The UOPWA succeeded in effectuating a contract at Paramount Pictures, Inc., for the Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild, Local 109, providing for weekly minimum wage increases, retroactive to October 5, 1942, union shop, severance pay, etc. This is the sixth major company in this industry to sign with this union.

James Malone sends in these victories for the United Steelworkers: Canonsburg Steel and Iron plant, CIO 358, Machinists (which had had union shop contract) 86 and no union 15; Continental Can Co., Canonsburg, CIO 197 to 53 for no union.

CIO Stand Unanimously Supported

The meeting of the CIO executive board, council representatives, international union representatives and regional directors was one of the most important ever held. The resolutions adopted dealing with major matters affecting our nation and our movement met with unanimous approval. Representatives left for their homes determined to stand united together and fight for this constructive program.

President Murray received the acclaim of everyone there for his courageous position on these matters and the statesmanship he has shown in leading this great movement. All out production and support to the Commander-in-Chief in the war effort were unanimously acclaimed. Demands for rolling back the cost of living consistent with the law to September 15, 1942, were also adopted. The War Labor Board was asked to authorize adjustments of wages and inequalities in plants and between plants. Opposition to the Connally anti-labor bill and Smith amendments was expressed.

The War Labor Board was asked to grant to the United Mine Workers an equitable wage adjustment consistent with the union's demands. The CIO urged that their meritorious case be equitably determined and pointed out to the miners that the CIO would lend every aid in obtaining their goal, calling to their attention that to strike and interrupt production at this time would result in jeopardizing the war effort, thereby helping our nation's enemies.

We expressed confidence in the patriotism of the miners and complimented President Roosevelt on his action in affording the miners the opportunity through peaceful means to return to work, rather than through the use of troops, and demonstrate their loyalty to their government and their desire to win the war.

On the program adopted at this meeting the CIO is determined to go out and organize the unorganized and it was that spirit that prevailed and all representatives left determined to intensify organizing activities, with the declaration that winning the war is the first objective of all.

Asks Greetings For Argentine Democrats

Mexico City, May 22 (ALN)—Vincente Lombardo Toledano, president of the Confederation of Latin American Workers (CTAL), this week wired CTAL affiliates in 14 Latin American nations urging them "to call on the trade unions of Latin America and the United States" to express their solidarity with the pro-democratic people of Argentina on May 25, the Argentine national holiday.

"This date," Toledano's message said, "should be made the occasion for great public demonstrations and special editions of labor papers, supporting the labor and national unity movement of the Argentinians, persecuted by the pro-Fascist clique of President Castillo and Foreign Minister Ruiz Guinazu."

Indian Peasants Call for Action On 2nd Front

BOMBAY, May 22, (ALN)—Resolutions calling for an "immediate second front in Europe" and the release of Mohandas K. Gandhi and all other Congress leaders were unanimously passed by the seventh convention of the All-India Kisan Sabha (Peasants' Union), held last month in Bakhna Kalan, Punjab village 20 miles from Lahore. Two hundred and thirty-one delegates representing 300,000 members of fourteen provincial Kisan Sabhas, attended the convention, which was a landmark in the struggle of the Indian people to mobilize their full strength against the Axis.

Indicative of the growing importance of the organized peasants' movement in Indian national life was the fact that the convention voted to increase membership of the All-India Kisan Sabha to 600,000 by the end of 1943. "The Indian Kisan movement is now an integral part of the worldwide movement against Fascism and for the freedom of all peoples," the convention declared.

The resolution urging a second front, moved by Swami Sahajanand Saraswati, general secretary of the All-India Kisan Sabha, was cabled to Prime Minister Winston Churchill in London. Other resolutions greeted the "heroic victories of the Red army" and pledged to the Chinese people "our determination to do everything in our power to build full national unity in India against the Japanese."

Blast Bureaucracy

Placing the blame for the present political deadlock in India "squarely on the shoulders of the British bureaucracy," the convention urged unity between the National Congress and the Moslem League "for the winning of a national government, which alone can fully defend India against the Japanese and gain national freedom."

The delegates declared that the British government's "restrictions on civil liberties are unnecessary and harmful to the defense of India."

Sabotage against the British by "struggle-wallas" was condemned as "tactics which play into the hands of our deadliest enemy—the Axis." During the period of national crisis following the arrest of nationalist leaders on August 9, 1942, the Kisan Sabha strenuously fought against fifth columnists who wanted to start the peasants on a campaign of sabotage throughout the country.

Pointing out to honest Kisans that sabotage was an anti-patriotic activity, the union worked to win the day-to-day economic demands of the people and to keep up anti-Fascist morale in the villages under the difficult conditions created by collective fines imposed by the British authorities.

Women Organize

Establishing an historic precedent, more than 2,000 Kisan women from nine Punjab districts—grandmothers, young girls and mothers carrying their babies—simultaneously held a conference of their own in Bakhna. Two hundred were Moslems and the rest Sikhs. The auxiliary convention called for the organization of women into unions "irrespective of cast, creed or political allegiance," and for the formation of a national women's defense league.

The Kisan Sabha was urged to encourage women to join and participate in all union activities. In a further resolution, the delegates sent greetings to the women of the Soviet Union. More than a thousand Punjab women attended the open session of the Kisan Sabha convention.

A Soviet and Chinese exhibition was arranged by the Friends of the Soviet Union and China. A constant stream of bearded old kisans, youths, women and children filed past the colorful charts illustrating Soviet agricultural and industrial production.

The convention issued an appeal to all other sections of the Indian people—particularly the trade unions—to support the peasants in their demand for a just price for their produce, and to work for unity between town and country as an essential basis for national unity.

Ask Action Now

London, May 22, (ALN)—At a May Day rally in Trafalgar Square last Sunday, 40,000 London workers called for "decisive action against the enemy at the earliest moment" and pledged resistance to "every attempt, however cunning, to provoke disunity among the United Nations."

Ecuador Unionists Face Tough Battle for Rights

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, May 22, (ALN)—The National Coordinating Committee of Ecuador labor organizations, established at a secret meeting in Quito last month after the National Workers' Congress was violently suppressed by the government, is expected to meet to prepare for the holding of a new congress as soon as circumstances permit.

Meanwhile, after two years of efforts to form a united national body, Ecuador labor is still divided into fragmentary groups. Its leaders are in jail, in exile or in hiding. Labor rights, drastically limited since the government of President Arroyo del Rio assumed dictatorial powers during the border dispute with Peru, remain curtailed.

Despite all difficulties, the congress convened in Quito at the end of March. Of the 200 delegates, an overwhelming majority of 160 voted to join the CTAL and to invite teachers, government workers and farm workers to affiliate.

The congress approved a resolution condemning Nazi-fascism and sent messages to labor bodies in Mexico, the U. S., England and the Soviet Union. At this, a minority of 20 delegates appealed to the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor to dissolve the congress.

The government struck immediately, and struck hard. When Guillermo Rodriguez, secretary of the Confederation of Columbian Workers and a CTAL vice president, who had been invitted to preside, arrived in Guayaquil and attempted to hire a car to Quito, he was arrested for "fomenting division in the ranks of Ecuador labor."

After being held incommunicado for two days in the carabinieros' guardhouse, he was put aboard a Panagra plane for Colombia.

Juan Jenaro Jaramilla, leader of the Socialist Party, was arrested for "pursuing decidedly Communist aims and sabotaging the Labor Congress." Meetings of the congress were suspended by Quito police.

Meanwhile, the minority of 20 delegates, augmented by 70 others hastily recruited from people expelled from various unions, held a rump session under police protection. Leopoldo Chavez, Minister of Social Affairs and Labor, in the U. S. at the invitation of the Committee for the Coordination of Inter-American Affairs, endorsed the rump congress in an interview published in the Ecuador press.

The delegates voted to demand government intervention to secure the compulsory organization of all manual workers into unions. A constitution containing non-political and anti-international pledges was approved.

Recent events in Ecuador illustrate the difficulties faced by Latin American labor in mobilizing the people against the Axis and its Fifth Column. The principal Ecuador labor groups are the Union Sindical del Guayas, the Union Sindical del Pichincha and the STACPORG (Sindicato de Trabajadores Agricolas, Campesinos and Obreros Rurales del Guayas), corresponding to the main geographic and economic divisions of the country.

File But Don't Forget—A Record On Congressmen

WASHINGTON, May 8—The CIO NEWS this week presents the third of several lists of voting records of Congressmen on issues vital to the war.

Five major issues have been selected: 1) continuation of the Dies Committee; 2) setting up the Smith universal smear committee to "investigate" government agencies; 3) the Ruml grab plan which would forgive taxes for the rich; 4) the Hobbs bill to bust unions; and 5) an amendment denying incentive payments to small farmers. Labor's position on all these was "nay."

Four states are covered in this issue. Later issues will cover other states.

R—With labor.

W—Against labor.

O—Not voting.

Cox Took $2,500 from Radio Station; Unfit to Probe FCC, Is Charge

WASHINGTON, May 22—E. E. Cox, polltax congressman from Georgia, had an embarrassing $2,500 check waved under his nose this week by Clifford J. Durr, a member of the Federal Communications Commission. Durr charged that Cox was unfit to investigate the Commission because he had accepted the payment for "legal services from a radio station whose application for license renewal is an object of Commission scrutiny."

The station is WALB, of Albany, Ga. Durr charged that at the time Cox introduced a resolution asking for investigation of the Commission, he owned $2,500 in stock in the Albany Herald Broadcasting Co., which controls WALB, and is still the owner of the stock, so far as Durr has been able to ascertain.

"The facts indicate that Cox, in introducing such a resolution, was motivated to a large degree, if not wholly, by the Commision's activities in connection with the ownership of Station WALB," Durr said in a letter to the House of Representatives.

Durr said the matter has been submitted to the Attorney General to discover whether or not criminal action should be instituted.

Durr said that he did not think that Cox is an appropriate person to conduct an inquiry into Durr's activities as a member of the FCC or into the activities of the organization "because of his personal interest and because of the prejudice and bias which he has already shown."

Negroes Fight, Bleed, Die For Freedom—Must Get Decent Break, Says Downey

LOS ANGELES, May 22—A million Negro Americans representing ten per cent of all Americans under arms will be serving their country in the armed forces by the end of this year, Senator Sheridan Downey, Democrat, said in opening hearings here on racial discrimination in the U. S. armed services.

"It becomes vital to the successful prosecution of America's war of survival," he said, "that the morale of the Negro Americans in our armed forces and of the 12,000,000 more who are working on the home front, be not impaired by failure of any Government agency to live up to the letter and spirit of existing laws against discrimination."

The Senator who selected his home state as the starting point for the investigation, is chairman of the subcommittee of the U. S. Senate Military Affairs Committee. He recently introduced a bill in Congress to investigate racial discrimination in the armed forces.

The Senator became incensed during the hearings when witnesses told of discriminatory practices at local war plants. Mrs. Louise Holland, an inspector at the North American Aircraft Co., testified that she was questioned by company officials about her Negro friends.

"I was amazed, because I am proud of my Negro friends," she said, "and proud of belonging to the United Automobile Workers, CIO, which is one of the first organizations to integrate Negroes in industry, not only as janitors, but in every department."

Soldiers Solid With Labor

back when the war is over.

"We all agree that there should absolutely be no stoppages of work for any reason during the war. Soldiers resent the close to traitorous action of any person or group of persons who would stop for a minute the production of vital war materials.

"We feel that there are regular channels for the handling of all grievances. If grievances can not be settled adequately under such channels, then labor must work for improvement of those channels.

"In this connection, I should mention that the enlisted men of our division, a Pennsylvania outfit, are bitterly opposed to a strike or stoppage of production by the miners. They do realize that the miners have legitimate claims which must be adjusted.

"Our most fervent hope is for a speedy invasion of Europe at any cost to catch Hitler and his gangsters in a mighty vise between our Armies and those of Russia. That alone will bring about a speedy end of the Axis.

"The servicemen of America are solidly in step with the workers of America. We know that you are turning out material of war in ever and ever increasing amounts. We stand ready to use these weapons.

"Side by side we are headed for complete victory over the forces of evil who would attempt to enslave the world.

"Let's get on with the job on all fronts."

Nazi 'Super-Men' Wilt Before Truth

The following first-hand story arrived in the United States this week from Irving Gitlin, assistant editor of the Cleveland UNION LEADER, now on leave of absence and serving as Pvt. 1st Class with the American fighting forces in North Africa. His story was passed by the censor.

* * *

I watched the prisoners as they straggled into formation and waited for the marching command of a French sergeant. Their uniforms were filthy and torn. They needed shaves badly, and sometimes when I got near them—especially when it was hot—their stinking bodies testified that soap was rationed sparingly.

Two Types

They were of two types.

The ones in hard olive drab who acted as if no one existed outside their sphere. Sullen, proud, their minds warped and shrunken to comply with New Order styles—these were the Germans.

The Italians, usually in far greater numbers, were a mass of sloppy blue-grey. When they walked their feet dragged lazily. Poorly wrapped leggings dragged behind them. The torn soles of their shoes made little clouds in the African dust.

They seemed relieved, enjoying a rest. They cussed Mussolini freely—to the disgust of some of the German officers.

The guard sounded the French equivalent of Attention. The prisoners fell into place and prepared to march.

The Italians grinned at one another as though they were on the threshold of a grand new adventure—much, much more pleasant than Allied fire and German contempt.

* * *

But the Nazis snapped into place. It seemed that anyone could shout a command and they would respond. This was regimentation and they understood it precisely.

I was much more interested in the Germans than the Italians. Perhaps it was because I could speak German.

Hitler Lover

I was especially interested in a young Nazi whom we'll call Robert. This youth was in his early twenties. He was blond and his eyes were blue. He was tough. He was confident in ultimate Axis victory, loved Hitler and felt sure that the barbarous Allies would make mincemeat of him now that he had fallen into their grasp.

Robert was a union man—a steelworker like Benny Favorito back home at Otis Steel Local 187. But there the comparison stopped abruptly. Benny's clear, practical sense of values had not been damaged by a lot of poison about "Aryanism" and "supermen."

I wanted to know something about Robert's union. It was remarkable how different his definition of the term was from mine and Benny Favorito's. Robert's union was part of the state. The state was the industry, the employer. His first allegiance was to his boss.

Robert's was just a big company union which had been sold on the idea that once the employer had extended his power all over Europe, every German would be an employer.

Nazi Exploiter

Already, Robert explained brightly, his drill press was being operated by a Frenchman—a defeated foreigner who deserved the dirty work while the Nordic did his gentleman's job of killing, plundering—and getting other foreigners to work for him.

What a strange union Dr. Ley has built in Germany. Where else do you find union members pledged to break strikes?

Robert spoke of how his local decorated itself with glory in 1937 when the men of a small machine shop—dominated by radicals, he claimed—struck for higher wages. Robert and his friends smashed the picket line, arrested the leaders, turned them over to the Gestapo and kept the shop going until "matters were put aright."

The strikers, it seemed, had been guilty of "anti-union activity."

According to the Nazi definition, the strikers were finks.

Cracks in Week

In the period of less than a week, I saw Robert crack.

It started when a medical corps major came in and told him that his Luftwaffe had been strafing our ambulances, killed our drivers. German bombs had been dropped on a U. S. field hospital. It was hard to disbelieve when litter-bearers started bringing in the victims.

Hitler would not have been proud of his charge who looked with bewilderment at the new patients and said "Das ist nicht gut." "That is not good."

Robert was silent for several days. He avoided the subject of Nazi Germany. I asked him what he would do if Stukas descended on his ward and bombed him and the Americans who were giving him cigarettes and candy.

"I guess I would have to shoot at them—if my captors would permit it."

Fear of Front

How changed he was! When I jokingly suggested that he might escape and go back to his company, he remarked, "No, then I would have to go to the front and fight again."

I had learned a great deal. Many of the things I had been taught to regard with skepticism had become real enough.

I know now, for example, that the so-called "atrocity stories" are not drummed up by propagandists. I heard Robert himself praise a friend who had returned from the Eastern front with the nipples of a Russian woman's breast as souvenirs.

I know now about the Frenchman who is running Robert's drill press.

Besides, I've seen the towns and cities the Nazis have occupied, robbed and terrorized.

All of us know of the terrible fear these "supermen" have for a formidable enemy. Everyone knows now that they are vulnerable. If they can be killed as individuals, their reactionary society, too, can be destroyed.

Polltax Repeal Passes House With Senate Hurdle Next

Smashing bitter opposition from Southern defeatists, the Polltax Repeal bill passed the House of Representatives this week by a vote of 265 to 110. Next battle in this fight to cement American unity heads up in the Senate, where polltaxers will try to sabotage the demands of the people—unless we overwhelmingly make heard our demands for action.

Home Front Plot Aimed to Wreck War Effort

A full-blown conspiracy against the home front, with direct effects on the fighting front, is being hatched in Congress—not on the floor, but in the obscurity of committees, which are doing a vicious job on the price control program that is vital to our domestic economy.

CIO Hero Gets Purple Heart From FDR

NEW YORK, May 29—Air Corps Lieut. David Hirsch, former New York Welfare Department file clerk and member of the CIO State, County & Municipal Workers, has come home, a hero.

Wounded in action in the Pacific, Lieut Hirsch, who wears three service ribbons, was cited by President Roosevelt and has been given the Purple Heart.

"CITY'S FINEST"

At City Hall where he was congratulated by Mayor La Guardia and Welfare Commissioner Leo Arnstein, the mayor called him "the city's finest."

Describing what happened when a Japanese convoy was seen approaching the base in New Guinea where his fighting group had been sent, Hirsch said:

"Our fighters took their planes into the air in short order and headed through a heavy fog straight for the Japanese. At dawn the convoy was sighted and the American planes went into the attack at 1500 feet because of the low ceiling. A veritable wall of fire was put up by the Japanese guns and through this moving, deadly wall the Americans plunged."

Caught by a burst of fire, the bombardier on his plane was killed, but before he died released the bombs. Lieutenant Hirsch was hit and his leg ripped open.

"I felt a dull thud, like I'd been hit by a baseball bat," he said. "Only sheer luck made me choose a bearing that brought the plane through a pass instead of head on into a mountain."

DRIVING PRICES DOWN: A practical way of supporting CIO policy was taken this week by the Women's Auxiliary of the United Federal Workers Union, which conducted a petition campaign on the streets of the nation's capital to help cut outrageous prices charged by restaurants.

1st West Coast Steel Plant All CIO

Fontana, Cal., May 29—Steel with a CIO label on it all the way from the time it first comes into the yards as basic raw materials until it emerges through various operations as full-fledged ingots is being turned out at Henry J. Kaiser's new steel plant here. This is the first steel producing plant on the West Coast.

Members of the United Steelworkers of America load scrap iron, lime, pig iron and manganese into boxes, and CIO cranemen, CIO furnacemen, CIO ladle crane operators, all work at getting out the ingots.

Win 2 Elections

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 29—Two NLRB elections covering more than 600 workers at the plants of the Link-Belt Speeder and the Cherry Burrell Co., were won here by the United Farm Equipment & Metal Workers. Link-Belt workers voted 202 for the CIO union to 79 for the AFL. At the other plant, the CIO won 137 to 108 for no union.

SIGNING MET PACT: CIO President Philip Murray, left, and Leon W. Berney, director of the insurance division of the United Office & Professional Workers, look on as Allan S. Haywood, a CIO vice-president and director of organization, signs for the CIO a contract between the UOPWA and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., largest in the nation. The pact covers 2,000 New York agents. The union also represents a majority of Metropolitan industrial agents in Camden, Trenton, Pert Amboy, Passaic, Patterson, Newark and Union City, New Jersey, and has asked the company for collective bargaining.

Machinists, 500,000 Strong, Quit AFL

WASHINGTON, May 29—Forty-eight years an AFL affiliate, the Int'l. Assn. of Machinists this week notified the AFL Executive Board that the union will withdraw from the AFL as of Monday, May 31.

The IAM, which claims more than half a million members, explained that its action came after a referendum vote of the membership, and after a long-standing argument with the AFL Executive Board because of its failure to grant the IAM satisfaction in a jurisdictional dispute.

H. W. Brown, IAM president, said that the organization plans to remain independent, at least for the near future.

In a letter to the AFL Executive Board, the IAM pointed out that a 1914 AFL convention gave the IAM "jurisdiction over the building, assembling, erecting, dismantling and repairing of machinery in machine shops, buildings, factories or elsewhere where machinery may be used."

The IAM contended that the failure of the AFL Executive Board to enforce the decision has forced 15,000 machinists and auto mechanics within the past five years "to pay tribute to the Carpenters Union, Operating Engineers Union, and the Street Carmen's Union for the right to work at our trade."

Here's Proof That Price Control's Really Needed

WASHINGTON, May 29—A letter wrung from the heart of a CIO shipyard worker this week gave the lie to those reactionaries in and out of Congress who contend that American workers generally are living in silk shirt luxury.

The letter was written by Carey Richardson, employed by the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., of Newport News, Virginia, and was sent to the CIO Cost of Living Committee.

Richardson said that he earns 68 cents an hour, averaging only $30.31 a week to take home to his wife and five children, ranging in age from 9 years to 4 months.

Children Go Barefooted

Richardson told Arthur Leary, national organizer for the Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, that the family lives chiefly on frankfurters and eggs for breakfast and lunch, and on soup and bread for dinner. The children go barefooted.

In his letter, Richardson complained about his rent—$32.50 for a five-room apartment in a government housing project. The rent, Leary said, is within the legal ceiling, but that still doesn't solve the problem of how the Richardson family is going to feed and clothe itself properly as well as keep a roof over its head.

Works Hard

In his letter to the Cost of Living Committee, Richardson wrote:

"It brings tears in my eyes to think about how hard I am working to help build ships and support my family and right now they are ragged and barefooted.

"Food prices have gone to the top until I can hardly feed them. Study my condition for a moment. It's like the old folks used to say, it makes me scratch my head when it's nothing biting, and I am quite sure you will say so too."

This, the Cost of Living Committee pointed out, is just a sample of what is going on over the nation—the case can be multiplied by the thousands, but all of them put together won't amount to a $3 bill with Congress unless the people speak out through their unions and demand effective price control.

Rubber Workers Heed Officers' Call, Return to Jobs

AKRON, O., May 29—A brief stoppage involving 50,000 rubber workers ended this week as the General Executive Board of the United Rubber Workers Union and President Roosevelt called on members involved "to return to their war production jobs without delay."

The stoppage involved employes of the B. F. Goodrich, Firestone, Goodyear and General Tire & Rubber Cos., protesting against a War Labor Board award of only three cents an hour increase when a WLB panel had recommended eight cents.

The Executive Board pointed out that "our country's interests suffer because the production of key war materials is tied up at the very moment when our highest military authorities are making preparations for the invasion of Europe and taking the offensive against Japan."

The board took occasion to reaffirm "complete and unswerving allegiance to the Congress of Industrial Organizations and its leader, Philip Murray."

"Mr. Murray," the board stated, "through his far-sighted labor statesmanship, has given American labor a really devoted, patriotic leadership in these trying times of war.

"We appreciate his services, and we pledge him our complete support in his policies of supporting President Roosevelt, adherence to the no-strike pledge, and his general policies to help our country win this war quickly and decisively."

Expressing full confidence in Rubber Workers President S. H. Dalrymple and his associate officers, the board assured the members of the union that "we shall do everything we can to right the wrongs which they (the members) have experienced."

Va. Council Backs CIO Victory Drive

Lynchburg, Va., May 29—A hundred delegates from CIO unions in the textile, clothing, tobacco, shipbuilding, maritime and other industries of Virginia attended the three-day convention of the Virginia State CIO Council held here May 20-22.

The convention endorsed the national CIO policy as set forth at Cleveland, re-elected Ernest B. Pugh as president, chose Parker T. Melton of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers as secretary-treasurer, heard speeches by CIO national and regional leaders, and took action on a number of problems important to the CIO in the state and nationally.

CIO speakers from national headquarters included David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the United Steelworkers of America; CIO Vice-President Allan S. Haywood, Dr. J. Raymond Walsh, director of research and education, and John Brophy. director of CIO Councils.

Other CIO guest speakers were John B. Easton, president, West Virginia Council; Noel R. Beddow, southern regional director, and W. H. Crawford, USA District 35 director.

BLAST LEWIS

The delegates passed resolutions:

Approving the wage increase demands of the miners but condemning the attitude of their president, John L. Lewis.

Endorsing the program of the National Resources Planning Board.

Opposing the poll tax and demanding extension of workmen's compensation to cover occupational diseases.

Condemning Eddie Rickenbacker's anti-labor activities.

The convention also directed the President of the Council to send a cablegram of congratulations to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in North Africa pledging increased production on the home front.

NMU Men Delivering Goods Ask Uninterrupted Output To Crush Fascist Axis

NEW YORK, May 29—Citing the fact that more than 4,500 merchant seamen have sacrificed their lives to help crush Fascism, the Nat'l. Maritime Union this week took "the flat position that any strikes taking place today are against the best interests of America."

"Strikes at this time are playing into the hands of Hitler and Tojo," a statement signed by NMU national officers declared. The statement continued:

"It is true that workers in many cases have justified grievances. But it is also true that government agencies have been set up which must be used and strengthened by Labor to adjust those grievances. The NMU feels that the government machinery, such as the War Labor Board, should be used to adjust all disputes.

"Strikes at this time are playing into the hands of Hitler and Tojo. It is our feeling that strikes such as are taking place in the coal industry under the leadership of John L. Lewis are inspired from Berlin and Tokyo.

HIT LEWIS

"The more than 4,500 seamen who have given their lives in this war against the Axis will never rest peacefully so long as Lewis and other betrayers of labor are allowed to run hog-wild, spreading strikes, fomenting unrest, and attempting to develop a lack of confidence in the leadership of our Commander-in-Chief and our government.

"The NMU unequivocally supports the position of President Philip Murray and the CIO. The program the CIO has put forth for adjusting disputes strengthens the war effort. It rallies the labor movement behind the policy of President Roosevelt."

Furniture Men Back CIO Drive, Re-elect Muster

Cleveland, May 29—Following up its full endorsement of the CIO victory program and of President Murray's leadership, the CIO United Furniture Workers meeting in its third convention here took other important actions, including:

A resolution urging compensation for American fighters disabled during the present war "to enable them to live decently"; urged full citizenship for Harry Bridges and an end to persecution; reaffirmed support of the polltax repeal bill (HR 7); asked the U. S. to declare war on Hitler's ally Finland.

The convention re-elected Morris Muster president, elected Max Perlow secretary-treasurer, and Ernest C. Marsh director of organization. A move to transfer headquarters from New York to Chicago was voted down.

Warning—Guard Women's Health As Vital to War

Charolette, N. C., May 29—Preservation of the health and welfare of the women war worker, the Nation's primary labor reservoir, is one of today's greatest challenges, Director Mary Anderson of the U. S. Women's Bureau told the North Carolina Safety Conference at a meeting held here.

"Women workers are essential," Miss Anderson said, "and they are dependable when employed under the right conditions. We must conserve our womanpower. We must use our human resources wisely in this great democracy."

The speaker noted that more than 15,000,000 women are now employed in all fields, or almost 4,500,000 more than in April, 1940. A further increase of 2,000,000 is expected by the end of this year.

Kill Chinese Immigration Ban—CIO

Washington, May 29—CIO approval for a bill to remove the insulting exclusion against our Chinese allies as possible immigrants was expressed this week before the House Immigration Committee.

In testimony before the committee on a series of three bills to take Chinese citizens off the immigration shut-out list, Kermit Eby, assistant to CIO Research Director J. Raymond Walsh, pointed out that removal of the ban would show our Chinese allies that we mean what we say when we talk about the Atlantic Charter and the United Nations.

Eby also pointed out that passage of the bills would be of great help in our war against the Axis, 1) by jerking the rug from under Japanese propaganda that the U. S. discriminates against Oriental peoples on racial grounds; 2) that this would help the United Nations by lining up native support for our cause, reversing the experience we had in Burma and the Malay Peninsula, and 3) that the people of the Philippine Islands fought and are fighting Japan because they knew they would get a decent deal from the U. S.

Biggest Small Arms Plant In Nation Goes UE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 29—Bargaining rights for some 27,000 production workers at the U. S. Cartridge Co. here, biggest small arms plant in the country, have been won by the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, the union reported this week.

In a two-day election just held, the UE won a sweeping victory among the production workers and also carried four small unit elections in the same plant among the laboratory workers, firefighters, timekeepers and painters.

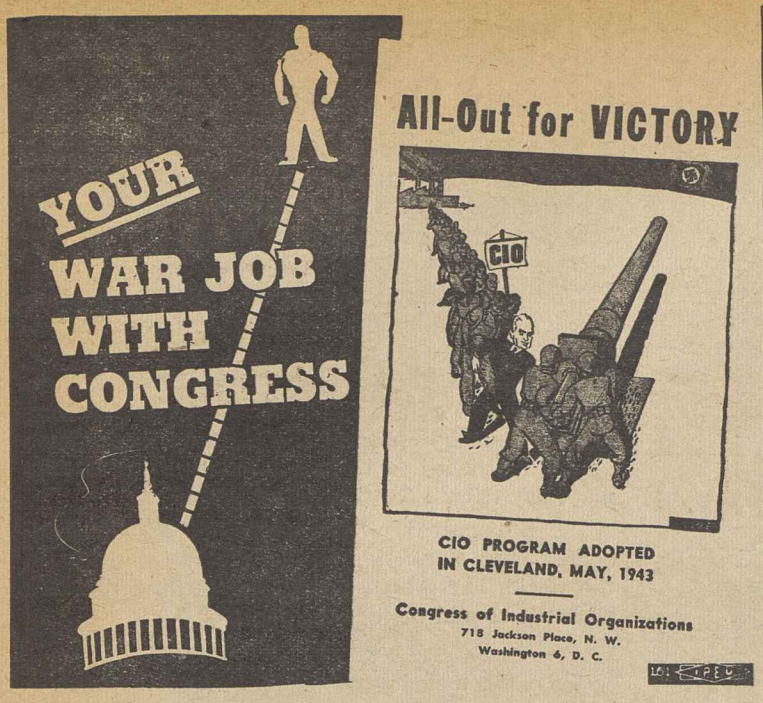
In previous polls the UE had won the right to represent some 7,000 cartridge workers.

Hit Anti-Negro Housing Pact

New York, May 29—The New York CIO Council this week urged the Board of Estimates to reject the present form of the contract with the city proposed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company for its Stuyvesant Town housing project.

The Council's principal objections to the proposed contract were based on the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s policy of excluding Negroes and "undesirable aliens" from Stuyvesant Town and the failure to provide school, library or public meeting facilities.

Pass the Ammunition to the Boys Across the Sea



READERS' MUSTS for every workers' library are the two new CIO pamphlets shown above: Your War Job With Congress and All-Out For Victory. Your War Job tells in simple and exact terms how to make Congress and other government agencies work with you to win-the-war. Smith Bill Set For Action This Week

This is a warning to all workers and all Americans who want to win the war through free labor and a united nation—the only way it will be won.

The Smith-Connally bill (S 796) can be brought on the floor of the House for debate and vote any day this week, with the first day it can be brought up set at June 2.

The Smith-Connally bill is opposed by labor, by administration leaders, by progressives and win-the-war people of every kind—even by one or two daily newspapers; and still the Congress defeatists keep shoving for passage.

The bill not only outlaws strikes and makes criminals out of striking workers; by turning over War Labor Board cases to the courts, it makes settlement of wartime labor problems impossible. By depriving "offending" unions of all legal protection, it kills both the Wagner Act and the WLB at a time when they are more needed than ever before.

Every worker and every man and woman who is for national unity and top war production must double and re-double his work with his Congressman and Senators against this wreckers' bill.

The fact that S 796 has been stalled off this long doesn't mean its a cinch to stop it completely. It can come up any day after (and including) June. 2.

Architects, Md. Council Vote Full Support for Murray's Policies

Washington, May 29—Full support for CIO President Philip Murray and for the win-the-war policies of him and of the CIO was voiced this week at the first two reported meetings to take up the questions since the CIO Executive Board meeting at Cleveland.

The backing came from the Executive Board of the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists & Technicians and from the Maryland & District of Columbia Industrial Union Council, which held a special meeting to work out ways to help check rising prices and support the war. The Architects said in a resolution addressed to Murray that:

"We are cheered by your forthright leadership in the difficulties of the coal miners in condemning the attempts of John L. Lewis and others more concerned with provoking disunity through strikes and interruption of war production than with bending every effort toward waging and winning the war. We pledge you to strive without cease in building national unity and the unity of labor behind your war program."

Aircraft Elections

Los Angeles, May 29—NLRB elections among workers at the Vernon and El Segundo plants of the Douglas Aircraft Co. have been ordered held by June 16, the regional office of the United Automobile Workers reported here this wek.

The UAW predicted an easy victory at Vernon which is 80 per cent CIO-organized, but said that at El Segundo the job will be a lot tougher.

Congress Tax Deal Favors Rich—CIO

Washington, May 29—The tax jam on pay-as-you-go has been broken—with favors to the rich—by the House and Senate conference committee agreeing on a 75 per cent version of the Ruml plan, under which 1942 taxes below $50 will be totally forgiven, and everything above $50 in 1942 liability will be 75 per cent forgiven.

This move, taken after the Senate had earlier approved the Ruml plan whole-hog and the House had rejected it for the Robertson-Forand plan, now puts the whole situation again up to the House and Senate floor. As the CIO NEWS went to press, the House was prepared to vote, with the Senate vote expected later this week.

Wiring to House and Senate leaders, President Murray described the new compromise as "a tax grab" and pointed out that, like the Ruml plan, the compromise "affords overwhelming benefits to the highest brackets and threatens an additional shift of the tax burden to small incomes in future tax laws."

Confirming Murray's analysis, several House and Senate leaders began putting out feeler statements designed to lead up to a sales tax, which they indicated is "inevitable" to make up the revenue deficiencies—brought about by their own action.

Murray put the finger on the Congressmen and Senators by pointing out that a $2,000 a year man will get $105 in taxes forgiven, or the equivalent of about three weeks net income; while the $10,000 man (Congressmen are paid $10,000 a year) will get a $1,600 cancellation, equal to about two and a half months income. The $100,000 man and the $1,000,000 man will get back the equivalent of one and a quarter years and four and a half years income.

Murray also wired to CIO affiliates urging them to rush protests to both House and Senate against the tax grab, which he said was indefensible "with men at the battlefronts sacrificing their lives for the nation."

Longshoremen Rap W. Coast Shipping Head

Los Angeles, May 29—The International Longshoremen & Warehousemen's Union this week gave notice to the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board, subsidiary of the War Shipping Administration, that the CIO Longshoremen will boycott the board's meetings from now on in protest against its chairman, Paul Eliel, labor-hating professor.

The ILWU demanded the immediate removal of Eliel and the appointment of a successor who "can set aside personal prejudices."

Local 13, ILWU, declared bluntly in its severance notice that Eliel has pursued a policy of obstructing the war effort by refusing to recognize the work of the Longshoremen in the speedy loading and unloading of vital war cargo.

Polltax Repeal Passes House, Senate Is Next

WASHINGTON, May 29—The polltax repeal bill (HR 7) went through the House this week in a better than two-to-one victory, the vote being 265 to 110, with 54 not voting.

It now goes to the Senate, where CIO members should turn the same heat that got HR 7 through the discharge petition stage, onto the floor and a victorious vote.

The repeal bill stands a much better chance of becoming law this year than it did last year, since the House passed it early in the session and there is less chance the polltaxers can filibuster it to death in the Senate, as they did in 1942.

The debate in the House on the part of the polltaxers reached new lows in bloody shirt-waving, hysterical bleats about "communism," and plain personal slander directed at the coalition that sponsored the bill.

In fact, the level was so low that one visitor, a sailor, violated the holy of holies by letting off some of his disgust in a speech directed to the polltaxers from a perch in the gallery.

"Why should a man pay a tax to vote when he can fight without paying a tax?" he asked, while horrified attendants tried to pull him back. Later, in the capitol guard room, he explained that he had come to Congress "to see what was going on in this democracy" and found that "they were fighting the Civil War all over again."

The sailor's disgust was more than justified, for the polltaxers used everything from the lowest kind of Negro baiting to lynch incitement and threats directed at the Administration and the entire nation. Typical quote from one of them, Rep. Whitten of Mississippi, referring to the Negroes freed by the Civil War: "We know the scum, both white and black, that were selected and ruled our country. It has taken years for us to recover from that blight and to overcome the antagonisms which were developed."

Another one, Rep. Winstead, also of Mississippi, who tried to bait Rep. Celler of N. Y., a supporter of the bill by saying: "In New York they have an educational test. In order to vote one must be able to read and write English. Under those circumstances, I wonder how the gentleman from New York, Mr. Celler's supporters ever get to vote at all."

But not all the railing came from the polltaxers. Clare Hoffman, most fanatical of all the labor-haters on the Republican side, spoke and voted against the bill, pleading with fellow-Republicans not to "kick our Democratic friends, those who have voted with us in spite of administration pressure, on the shins."

The coalition of six who sponsored the bill, Reps. Baldwin, Magnuson, Bender, Marcantonio, Gavagan and Dawson, with the united labor and progressive backing they had, have shown that it's possible that united action can get results.

The same united action on the Senate will put polltax repeal into law.

'Smear Unity' Is Aim Of Anti-Union Bills

Washington, May 29—Witnesses from two major CIO unions—the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and the Shoe Workers—this week damned two new labor-harrassing bills now up before the House Labor Committee.

The two bills are H. R. 1483 and H. R. 804, offered by Reps. Landis (R., Ind.), and Woodruff (R., Mich.). They would exclude non-citizens from unions, require unions to register, prohibit them from taking part in political work, etc. They are two of many similar bills that have been flooding into Congress ever since the session opened in January.

'SMASH UNITY'

Both bills "are but a part of a vicious, reactionary offensive against the organized working people of the nation" and would smash at "national win-the-war unity," Russ Nixon, speaking for the UERMW, told the committee, while Jack Zucker, for the Shoe Workers, said they are "aimed to seriously impede the war effort of our country and cast suspicions on our policy of international unity in this war of the United Nations."

Both CIO men hit out at the alien-baiting Woodruff bill, which Nixon said was "a purely anti-union measure seeking by application of the old divide and rule technique to weaken the organization of the workers."

Zucker stressed the fact that the bill would force unions, against their will, to become alien-baiting organizations by taking away their right to democratically admit all workers, citizen or non-citizen, who qualify as union members.

They also described the Landis bill as an entering wedge for government control not only of unions, but of civic, fraternal and church organizations, paving the way for the kind of totalitarian control that destroyed democracy in the Axis countries.

And Now The Senate

The passage of the anti-polltax bill in the House, by a vote of 265 to 110, is about the most hopeful sign that has yet come from this Congress.

It shows that sufficient popular pressure can reverse the reactionary trend that has marked most of the House's actions to date.

It is also encouraging to note how early in the present Congress this action has been taken. In the last Congress, it will be remembered, House passage of an anti-polltax bill was deliberately stalled until near the time of adjournment, so that polltaxers in the Senate could filibuster it to death.

Prospects of Senate passage are thus greatly improved, since even a polltax Senator can't filibuster for a year and a half.

But that is not to say that every other kind of parliamentary device will not be used to prevent early Senate action.

The Senators as well as the Congressmen know how great is the popular demand for this essential war measure, and there is little doubt of a favorable majority in a floor vote.

The first tactic of the Senate polltaxers therefore will be to delay or sidetrack the anti-polltax bill in committee.

It is therefore urgent that every union member contact his Senator at once—and particularly the members of the Senate judiciary committee—calling for a speedy and favorable committee report on the anti-polltax bill, and asking every Senator to vote for cloture if a filibuster is attempted.

A Blow For War Unity

In supporting repeal of Chinese exclusion, the CIO has struck a telling blow against racial discrimination, to establish the sincerity of our war aims, and for unity of the United Nations.

Japanese propagandists have long made capital of the fact that, while the Chinese are our allies and we declare we are fighting for equal treatment for all nations, we discriminate against them in practice and deny them the right to become American citizens.

The excuse that the Chinese exclusion act is designed to prevent mass immigration of low-wage labor is pretty threadbare by now. For if the same quota provisions were applied to the Chinese as are applied to all other nationalities, it would mean admitting only 107 a year.

None of the labor arguments against mass immigration apply to repeal of the present complete and discriminatory exclusion of Chinese and the denial of naturalization rights to them that are accorded to other nationalities.

Yet politicians have long resisted repeal of the present law on the grounds that to do so would offend labor.

In supporting repeal, the CIO not only punctures this argument but also maintains the consistency of its opposition to all forms of racial discrimination.

Repeal of the present law is essential as evidence of American good faith in support of the Atlantic Charter, and as a necessary step toward victory for the United Nations.

Shifting The Tax Burden

Behind all the fuss and fury about the Ruml plan, there has been a deliberate plot to shift more and more of the tax burden from the shoulders of the rich to those of the poor.

Sixteen billion dollars more has to be raised in tax revenue. In face of this fact, the Ruml planners have sought to "forgive" huge tax sums to the wealthy, with the idea of making this up, and more, through sales taxation and other soak-the-poor legislation.

The compromise 75 per cent tax abatement plan adopted by the Senate and House conferees is a 75 per cent victory for the Ruml planners. It benefits the rich in proportion to their wealth, and threatens new burdens for the poor.

A person with an income of $2,000 will receive cancellation of only $105, while a Congressman with $10,000 receives $1,600 cancellation, and individuals with $100,000 and $1,000,000 enjoy abatements of $48,000 and $640,500 respectively.

Unless this shameful tax grab is defeated in the Senate and House, by rejecting the conference report, labor's fight to stop more and more of the tax burden being imposed on low incomes will be made a hundred-fold harder.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

MILLIONS of our fighting men and war workers would feel just like Signalman Evan Owen Jones of the U. S. Navy, if they too could see and hear for themselves just what is going on in Congress and some of the state legislatures.

Jones had been away two years fighting for democracy. He entered the House gallery when the anti-polltax bill was being debated.

He listened, for as long as he could stand it, to the polltaxers ranting against democracy, inciting race hatred and opposing the right to vote. Then he too demanded to be heard, asking "why a man must pay tribute for the right to vote."

"I'm disgusted," Jones said. "I admire democracy, and think this is the greatest country in the world, but people shouldn't be acting like this when we should be fighting this war."

★ ★ ★

Like the melodrama villain, who always got in his dirty work while the hero was away, anti-democratic forces are today taking advantage of the absence from the polls of millions of fighting men and war workers.

Scores of anti-labor bills are written on the backs of the twenty million unused ballots of 1942.

A recent Gallup survey estimates that 58 per cent of America's war workers failed to vote last year; and the percentage of non-voters among the millions in the armed services was even larger.

This mass election-absenteeism, whether avoidable or unavoidable, is responsible for the present reactionary complexion of Congress and many state legislatures.

For New Deal and progressive policies draw most of their support from labor voters and the younger generation now in the armed forces.

The Connally-Smith bills in Congress, the anti-labor laws passed in seven state legislatures, and many other measures that would destroy our liberties and obstruct the war effort, are due to the present unfair advantage enjoyed by reactionary and anti-democratic politicians.

The Connally bill passed by the Senate is union-busting in character and would subject all War Labor Board decisions to endless court delays.

The House committee has added to this bill a dozen other anti-labor features. It would outlaw many kinds of legitimate union activities, in effect repeal the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction law, and deny the War Labor Board the power to grant union security.

★ ★ ★

This federal anti-labor legislation follows much the same pattern as the anti-labor bills being pushed in most states and actually enacted in Arkansas, Kansas, Colorado, Texas, South Dakota, Idaho and Michigan.

These bills go far beyond the alleged abuses they purport to remedy, with all sorts of provisions designed to weaken or destroy union organization.

The Arkansas law, for instance, under the guise of preventing violence, would actually prevent any effective union picketing.

The Florida constitutional amendment and some of the other state acts are directed against all forms of union security.

The Kansas and Texas statutes would practically prevent organizing by requiring every union member who brings in new members to be licensed as a labor organizer.

The Colorado law would destroy the protections of the Wagner act and practically regulate unions out of existence, by unbounded interference with their internal affairs.

All such legislation uses comparatively inoffensive provisions, like filing of copies of constitutions and financial statements, as a first step toward the virtual outlawing of union organization.

Labor is challenging the constitutionality of these state anti-labor laws. It will remember at the polls any member of Congress who votes for the vicious Connally-Smith bills.

But most Americans are so preoccupied with working and fighting to win this war that they don't realize how far the domestic political intrigue against their liberties has been carried.

If they saw and heard for themselves what is going on, their protest would be as vociferous as that of Signalman Jones.

Labor's absenteeism from the polls in 1942 was as bad as a military defeat. In organizing to fight the present mess of union-busting legislation, every union member should realize that political action to defend democracy is as essential as working or fighting for democracy.

It is none too soon to start organizing politically to turn the election defeats of 1942 into an election victory for all we are fighting for in 1944.

Keep Your Eye on Congress

The tax bill deadlock on forgiveness has broken, with the Senate and House conference committee recommending a 75 per cent tax forgiveness. This means that a $2,000 man is forgiven the equivalent of three weeks income, a $10,000 man three and a half months. Congressmen are in the $10,000 class. CIO denounces the compromise, urges its rejection.

The Smith-Connally-Lewis bill (S 796) to break unions has been put over to June 2, can be brought up any time after that. Government officials have opposed the bill, but a sneak push to put it over is always possible.

Currently, Congress defeatists are doing dirty work in committees, with a big offensive against price control under way in the Smith Committee which is leading the attack on rent control.

CIO Backs Full Social Security Plan

WASHINGTON, May 29—CIO is "gratified to learn that you are planning to propose thorough-going improvements in present social security laws," President Murray wrote this week in a letter to Sen. Robert F. Wagner, in which he assured him "of the deep interest of the CIO in such a program and of our desire to assist in bringing about its speedy adoption."

In writing to Wagner, Murray said that the CIO program for immediate social security improvements covers eight points, including:

1) Adequate provision for men and women in the armed forces; 2) similar coverage for all war workers, "millions of whom are not now adequately protected"; 3) liberalization of old age and survivors benefits and extension to all types of wage earners, including farmers and the self-employed; 4) a U. S. employment service large enough "to aid in placing workers both now and after the war."

FULL COVERAGE

5) A single federal system of unemployment payments covering all workers for a minimum of 52 weeks, with sufficiently high payments to ensure a decent living standard and proper care for dependents; 6) adequate cash payments for the sick and disabled; 7) a vigorous national health program covering all persons and their families; and 8) an improved program of federal grants-in-aid for maternity and child health care and all other kinds of public assistance.

"We believe that the cost to the nation of such a social security program is far less than the cost of not having adequate protection," Murray said. "As a matter of principle, we believe that the program should be financed in the largest measure possible by taxes upon aggregates of excess income and wealth."

Murray Calls For Plan Board Funds

Washington, May 29—Funds for the National Resources Planning Board, author of the postwar social security plan, were urged by CIO President Philip Murray in a wire sent this week to Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and Senate leaders.

Murray's wire, backed up by a wire urging action by CIO Councils from Director John Brophy, protested the Senate committee's cut in Board funds from $1,400,000 to $200,000, described the reduction as "a cruel blow to the people's aspirations for full employment and social security when war ends."

"While the CIO would wish to go further than the Board has proposed," he said, "we consider that its reports are of tremendous significance in focusing attention on questions of basic importance for the future of our nation and the world. More, not less, planning is essential for the preservation of our democratic institutions."

Rasmussen Is New Mine, Mill Vice-President

Denver, May 29—Ralph H. Rasmussen, board member of the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers from Utah, has been appointed by President Reid Robinson as vice-president of the International Union to fill the vacancy left by the death of Ora L. Wilson. The appointment was approved by the Executive Board.

Dan Edwards was appointed to succeed Rasmussen as District 2 board member.

Brophy's Daughter Named as Editor

College Park, Md., May 29—Jackqueline A. Brophy, only daughter of John Brophy, director of CIO Industrial Union Councils, this week became the first woman managing editor of the "Diamondback," student newspaper at the University of Maryland.

Miss Brophy had company for her shattering of tradition, for women editors were appointed to chief editorial positions of all three campus publications, also for the first time in history.

Home Front Plot Aimed to Wreck War Effort

By C. W. FOWLER

WASHINGTON, May 29—A full-blown conspiracy against the home front, with direct effects on the fighting fronts, is being hatched in defeatist and reactionary Congress circles here.

The hatching is being done not on the floor of Congress, where publicity might give the game away, but in the comparative obscurity of a half dozen Congressional committees that are doing a concerted needling job on various angles of price control and economic stabilization.

Working closely together, and run by the most experienced anti-victory and anti-labor Representatives and Senators, both polltaxers and non-polltaxers, these committees are heading up to a grand offensive on the whole idea of holding off inflation, rolling back living costs, and insuring adequate food production for the immediate future.

Their end of the wrecking job is closely tied in with recent maneuvers directed against the OPA, where labor and administration pressure has begun to force a recognition of the need for real price control and the rollback to 1942 price levels.

HERE'S LINEUP

Take a look at the line-up of Congressional sabotage going on now;

In the House, the Small Business Committee, chaired by Rep. Patman, (polltaxer, Tex.) is currently holding hearings on the supposedly terrible effect that OPA regulations are having on little businessmen. The parade of witnesses before the committee is busy reciting a long list of wails that OPA is "ruining small business"—despite the known fact that all business, small and great, is now enjoying its greatest volume of sales and profits in history.

Also in the House, a sub-committee of the Interstate Commerce Committee, headed by Rep. Boren (D., Okla.) is doing the same job on quality grade labelling, chiefly through giving big newspaper publishers a chance to scream "freedom of the press." (The connection between labelling and freedom may seem obscure, but it's really simple. If canned foods are grade labelled, there won't be so much need for advertising. If advertising goes, freedom of the press is lost, Q.E.D.)

HATCHET WORK

The most violent piece of hatchet work in the House is being done by Rep. Howard Smith (polltaxer, Va.) in his special committee to probe all U. S. war agencies. Smith's attack is on rent control, where to date the OPA has made its best record on holding down living costs.

Smith's committee has been an open forum for every real estate and landlord interest in the country, all of them denouncing rent control as the last step toward dictatorship. One labor witness, from the UERMW, has so far been able to batter his way in to the hearing stand, only to be subjected to bullying and insulting treatment.

In the Senate, the anti-victory forces are out after big game, aiming to wreck the whole of the price rollback and food production program by killing the subsidy plan. Here the attack is led by Sen. Cotton-Ed Smith, decrepit polltaxer and farm bloc loud-mouth from South Carolina, whose Agriculture Committee has been winning acres of newspaper space for its open onslaught on the very idea of producing and distributing food for people to eat.

AIMED AT OPA

Getting back to the House, the whole purpose of this multi-front drive against price control and living cost rollback becomes clear, as we learn that the House Appropriations Committee is preparing to hold hearings on the OPA request for an appropriation to carry on its work.

The needling job now being done in these other committees is simply laying the ground for the grand assassination planned for the whole of the price control set-up, with profiteering running wild and to hell with the war.

When President Murray was winding up the CIO special meeting in Cleveland two weeks ago, he put great stress on the need for every CIO leader and member to mobilize the broadest possible action to put CIO's price rollback into effect.

He pleaded with CIO to take the initiative in organizing workers, farmers, union auxiliary members, neighbors—all the plain people—for the win-the-war stabilization program and against the wreckers in Congress and outside it.

Here is a record that shows the urgency and the sense of Murray's warning.

Allis-Chalmers Signs Farm Equipment Pact

Springfield, Ill., May 29—A contract covering 1700 workers in the Allis-Chalmers plant here was ratified this week at a membership meeting of Local 120, United Farm Equipment & Metal Workers. Officers and members hailed the agreement as a real victory won after nearly a year's struggle.

The Local won an NLRB election in June, 1942, but negotiations for a contract were held up pending a decision of the WLB in another Allis-Chalmers case.

CIO, AFL Jointly Fight Colorado Anti-Labor Legislation

WASHINGTON, May 29—Continuing its fight on union-crippling state laws, the CIO this week joined with the AFL in filing a legal action in Denver against the Colorado state anti-labor bill, passed on the model of the "Christian-American" conspiracy against unions and against war production.

The Colorado law was passed over the protests of CIO, AFL and railroad unions in the state. It is unusually vicious, and will, if upheld by the courts, do much to damage workers' morale and lower war output. Among its chief provisions are:

(1) Incorporation of unions, regulation of elections and all voting on all policy questions by secret ballot.

(2) Fixing of dues and initiation fees by state Industrial Commission, a ban on political contributions by unions and public inspection of all books and records.

(3) Prohibition of strikes, "hot cargo" walkouts, picketing and anything that intimidates "an employe in enjoyment of his legal rights."

An open invitation to labor spying and blacklisting is given in a clause allowing any 10 members of a union to ask the State Industrial Commission to send a state employe to take minutes of union meetings, which then become the property of the commission.

The joint CIO-AFL suit seeks a court test on the constitutionality of the law, and follows similar action last week on the Kansas state anti-union act.

CIO Backs OPA's Fight With Business Wreckers

By CIO COST OF LIVING COMMITTEE

THE OPA, after having undertaken the dollars and cents pricing and roll-back programs for which labor and consumer groups have been fighting for six months, is today under savage attack by selfish trade interests and their champions in a half dozen Congressional Committees. While labor has its differences with the present administration of OPA, the CIO Cost of Living Committee believes that these differences fade into insignificance in view of the present crucial battle which will determine whether price control is to be or not to be.

Here are some of the facts on the present battle: Dollars and cents prices are under attack before the Boren sub-committee of the Interstate Commerce Committee and before the Patman Small Business Committee, both of whom are accusing the OPA of committing economic murder against small business.

The committees and the trade lobbies making these charges are in no way abashed by the Department of Commerce's publication of statistics showing that small business, particularly in the food trade, is drawing away business from the chain stores.

The plain facts are that retail trade, great and small, is enjoying the greatest boom in our history. If anybody is being murdered, it is the consumer. But when the OPA attempts to come to the rescue of the consumer by enforceable dollars and cents price ceilings, it is accused of murdering little business and American enterprise.

The Smith Special Investigating Committee—headed by a man whose name is anathema to labor—is putting its facilities at the disposal of real estate lobbies in an attempt to break down rent control.

Rents Kept Stable

This is one program on which the OPA has done an outstandingly successful job. Rents have been kept stable, and yet landlords have been uniformly prosperous—by reason of the high occupancy rate of their houses and apartments.

The counsel for the Smith Committee, in an attempt to unearth a scandal in the rent administration, has come up with the fact that the OPA rent administrators have consulted with labor before making certain appointments. As Congressman Delaney remarked, "What's wrong with consulting with labor?"

The Senate and House Agricultural Committees are raising a rumpus over the subsidy program which is to finance the 10 per cent roll-back on meats, butter and coffee.

Davis Aids Delay

They are apparently aided and abetted by War Food Administrator Chester Davis, who is delaying the inauguration of the program by presenting obstacles before Stabilization Director Byrnes.

The tactic is evidently to delay the subsidy program until the lobbies can marshal strength in Congress to kill it.

At the same time a number of officials have resigned from the Food Price Division of the OPA, and these officials are attempting to create the picture in the press of the impending break-up of OPA.

Actually these officials have been business appeasers who have been unsympathetic with the President's hold-the-line policy and have refused to cooperate in OPA's steps to make that policy a reality.

Resignations Aid OPA

Their resignation from OPA strengthens rather than weakens OPA—provided the campaign to break up the OPA and distribute its functions and powers can be defeated.

In this campaign to break up OPA and prevent any real price control, the trade lobbies and their Congressional spokesmen have received the cooperation of some of the commodity czars in the war agencies.

Davis wants all power over food prices and rationing, Ickes over oil, etc.

Want Prices Raised

The Cost of Living Committee knows by long experience that these people want price power in their respective fields not in order to control prices but in order to raise prices.

The Cost of Living Committee urges all unions and their members individually to wire their Representatives and Senators in Congress that the present campaign to prevent OPA from carrying through on labor's price control program must stop; and that so far from permitting the carving up of OPA, Congress must strengthen the OPA with funds, personnel and adequate powers so that it can carry through on the President's promise to hold the line on the cost of living.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

James J. Matles, Director of Organization, UERMWA, reports that during the past three weeks this international has won the following NLRB elections: Cinch Co., Chicago, 371 to 140; Sheridan Machine Co., Easton, Pa., 57 to 23; Otis Elevator Co., Buffalo, N. Y., 348 to 100; Covel Manufacturing Co., St. Josephs, Mich., 252 to 56; St. Joseph Machine Co., St. Josephs, Mich., 51 to 26; Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., Louisville, Ky. (guards), 52 to 25; General Electric Co., Taunton, Mass., 350 to 26; Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., Fairmont, W. Va., 271 to 8 (Magnetron Division); Wales Strippit Corp., North Tonawanda, N. Y., 73 to 57.

Additional UE victories were reported at: Virginia Armature Co., Bluefield, W. Va., 63 to 28; National Electric Coil Co., Bluefield, W. Va., 129 to 24; Motch & Merryweather Machinery Co., Cleveland, 79 to 38; Servel Foundry, Evansville, Ind., 130 to 56; Elwell Parker Co., Cleveland, 257 to 133; Erie Resistor, Erie, Pa., 733 to 87; Brownell Co., Dayton, Ohio, 51 to 0; Springfield Machine & Foundry Co., Springfield, Mass., 201 to 40; High-Grade Sylvania, Salem, Mass., 856 to 334; North Shore Die Works, Lynn, Mass., 46 to 9; Benjamin Electric Co., Chicago, 267 to 77. Congratulations on these mighty fine accomplishments!

Fight Off Raid

Ewald Sandner, regional director for New Jersey, adds that the UERMWA successfully fought off an attempt by the AFL to raid Local 420, Walter Kidde shop in an NLRB election in five shops. The vote was UERMWA 1,800 to 1,100 for the AFL.

Through the efforts of Thomas Shane, USA District Director and also member of the United Gas, Coke & Chemical Workers, and Field Representative Kempton A. Williams, the UGCCWA won the election at Gelatin Products plant in Detroit with a vote of 346 for CIO to three for District 50.

Frank Bender, regional director in Maryland, reports two election victories, as follows: American Can Co., Baltimore, out of 370 eligible to vote, 259 voted for USA-CIO with 41 votes against; Kelly-Springfield Rubber Co., Cumberland, Md., in an election among the guards, the URWA-CIO polled 151 to 10.

3 More for USA

Henry Burkhammer, district director, USA, reports three election victories: Pickands Mather & Co., & Corsica Iron Co., Nicor, Minn., 69 for USA-CIO to four; Kiwabik Mining Co., and Pickands Mather & Co., 43 for USA-CIO to two; Evergreen Mines Co., 19 votes for USA-CIO to one.

George Craig, regional director in Philadelphia, reports that at Yorkshire Mills, Chester, Pa., and Lenni, Pa., the Textile Workers won with a vote of 280 to 171 for the independent. This is the ninth victory for the Textile Union in this area which is under the directorship of Sol Stetin, who is doing a marvelous job in organizing the unorganized.

Paul E. Miley, UAW regional director, reports that the UAW-CIO won its 25th consecutive election in southern Ohio, among the 600 employes at Bauer Brothers Co., Springfield. International Representative Dale Toler was in charge of this election and was assisted by Austin Patton, along with a committee from Local 500.

Utility Victory

Hugh Thompson, regional director in Buffalo, N. Y., reports that a controversy in the Buffalo Creek Railroad has been settled, and an election held by the National Mediation Board has resulted in a vote of 15 for the Utility Workers Organizing Committee, CIO, to seven for the AFL. In an election at Buffalo Brake Beam Co., the USA-CIO won by a vote of 53 to two.

George Brown, assistant director of organization, IWA-CIO, advises that the election held at Northern Hardwood Veneer Co., Butternut, Wisconsin, resulted in a vote of 207 for CIO to 12 for no union. Clifford Baker, special representative, IWA, also assisted in this victory.

Ernest B. Pugh, regional director in Virginia, reports that the election at Virginian Railroad Coal Piers, Norfolk, conducted by the National Railroad Mediation Board, resulted in a vote of 36 for ILWU-CIO to 15 for District 50. This drive was conducted by CIO Field Representative Robert Johnson and President Ocie Hamlin of Local 978.

Wilber E. Bade, Director of Organization, ANG, advises that the Guild won an NLRB election on the Buffalo, N. Y., NEWS in the editorial department, where the employes selected CIO by a vote of 65 to 59. Recently, the employes of the N. Y. Times maintenance department voted for the Giuld by a vote of 123 to 0.

John L. Yancey, secretary-treasurer, Transport Service Employe, advises that in an election conducted by the National Mediation Board among the employes of the Pullman Co. in Chicago, approximately 85 per cent voted CIO.

It Does Happen Here:

Beg Women to Take War Jobs Yet Deny Them to Negroes

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

Labor Day, 1943, will see more women at work than ever before in our country's history. Two million new women workers will be needed in industry before the end of the year. The War Manpower Commission and the Office of War Information are planning a nation-wide campaign to induce women over 18, with no children under 14, to take jobs.

At the Executive Board of the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries last week-end in Cleveland we discussed this need for women workers. Each member of the Board—and they all come from big industrial centers—cited instances in which Negro women had been denied jobs in the face of labor shortages.

Two of our Board members had had personal experiences. They had stood in line at an employment office where women were being hired, had been told, when their turns came, that no more help was needed, and had seen white women coming after them hired for the jobs.

There's a new bomber plant in Cleveland. Over 60% of the employes are scheduled to be women—and they're talking of bringing women workers in from other areas. But Negro women who want jobs in Cleveland are still waiting.

NEGROES TURNED AWAY

In Indianapolis the papers carry urgent ads for women workers in war industry, and Negro women applying for those jobs are turned away.

The auxiliary executive board realized that this situation is undermining the morale of the Negro citizens of our nation. Negro men give their lives to win the war against Hitlerism on the battle front. It is utterly unfair that their wives and sisters should be denied the opportunity to work for Victory on the production front.

Our Board voted to call the matter to the attention of the President of the United States and to ask him to force employers to observe the official policy of our government banning racial discrimination in war industry.

OTHER DISCRIMINATION TOO

Discrimination because of color is not the only discrimination we must fight. Many older women—the very ones who have "no children under 14"—are being denied jobs too. Employers set up all sorts of age, height and weight requirements by which they limit the women they will employ.

Women with young children who must have jobs—wives of servicemen, for instance, whose government allowance is utterly inadequate—are denied employment, too.

Our auxiliary board voted to urge the War Manpower Commission to conduct a national registration of women in those areas where labor shortages exist or are developing. Such a registration would give the local manpower authorities a real picture of the available labor supply which they do not have at present.

A firm policy of requiring employment of all available local labor before workers are imported must then be instituted to help break down the discriminations now hampering our war production.

Waste Fat Helps Blow Hitler to Hell

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

The drive for waste fat salvage is still on. The need now is greater than ever because fats contain glycerine, that all important ingredient in dealing out death and restoring new life to the dying. For glycerine must not only be present in all explosives, but it is one of the main ingredients of the new sulfa drug, the drug that has literally been working miracles for our wounded men at the front.

If every household salvages only one tablespoonful of fat a day, adding up to one pound a month, we can reach the quota of 200,000,000 pounds set by the War Production Board.

Strain all left-over grease into a tin can and as soon as it is full take it to your meat dealer—without delay.

BUTTER OR OLEO

Salvaging every drop of fat for explosives and medicines doesn't mean that you have to cut down on fats in your diet. Fats are important because they furnish a concentrated source of energy. Each person should have ½ to 3/4 of a pound of fat each week.

Although most foods contain some fats, butter and oleo are the best sources. Consumers Union made a study very recently comparing them and here's what they found.

As far as nutrition is concerned, both must contain no less than 80% fat according to law. The sources of the fats, however, are different. Butterfat comes from milk. The fat in oleo comes from animal and vegetable sources.

Experiments show that oleo is just as digestible as butter. As for vitamins, butter is a good source of Vitamin A, the 'black-out vitamin' that prevents night blindness and helps the body resist infection. Today practically all oleo is fortified with enough Vitamin A to equal the year round average Vitamin A content of butter.

Fats are important also because of essential fatty acids. Research shows that oleo contains more of these acids than butter.

BLINDFOLD TEST

Another factor tested in comparing the merits of oleo with butter was the taste and flavor of oleo. A group of twenty people tasted 21 samples of oleo and butter spread on bread. They couldn't tell the difference.

Another interesting and important fact brought out in these tests was that oleo could be stored for as long as two months in an ordinary refrigerator and still taste fresh whereas butter stored for the same length of time would have become rancid.

THE MEN and women workers of the West Leechburg plant of the Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corporation have been awarded the coveted Army-Navy "E" for excellence and outstanding achievement in war production.

We are confident that six months hence a service star will be added to the Burgee that will proudly fly above the West Leechburg plant—for we have full confidence in the ability and the loyalty of every worker—and we know they will continue to be fine soldiers on Uncle Sam's production front.

Here's a Check On Vote Records Of Congressmen

WASHINGTON, May 29—The CIO NEWS this week presents the fourth of several lists of voting records of Congressmen, on issues vital to the war.

Five major issues have been selected: 1) continuation of the Dies Committee; 2) setting up the Smith universal smear committee to "investigate" government agencies; 3) the Ruml grab plan which would forgive taxes for the rich; 4) the Hobbs bill to bust unions; and 5) an amendment denying incentive payments to small farmers. Labor's position on all these was "nay."

R—With labor.

W—Against labor.

O—Not voting.

John Green Proud Father

Camden, N. J., May 29—Timing his "landing" neatly between his dad's testimony before a Congressional committee on Wednesday and his speech at ship launching ceremonies here Thursday, John Allison Green, only son of President John Green of the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, arrived at the West Jersey Hospital last week. The boy weighed four pounds, seven ounces. President and Mrs. Green have been married 23 years and have three daughters.

First Florida Shipyard Vote Won by CIO

Hialeah, Fla., May 29—In the first Labor Board election ever held in a Florida shipyard, workers at the Gibbs-Harrison Marine Shipyard here last week voted 63 to 11 for the Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers.

Labor Leads Anti-Inflation Fight—Carey

NEW YORK, May 29—Labor is bearing the major burden of the fight against inflation, with business definitely lined up on the other side, CIO Secretary James B. Carey told the National Industrial Conference Board at a dinner held here this week.

"It has been labor that insisted on specific price ceilings uniform for all retailers in the same class. It has been labor that has struggled hard but vainly to secure grade labelling and prevent deterioration of quality, which is a concealed form of price increase," Carey said.

The importance of collaboration between labor, management and government after the war to meet the tremendous problems of social and economic readjustment was the theme of Carey's speech.

"The American people do not want to go back to the mass unemployment of the 1930's," Carey declared. "We know now what full employment and full production can mean. We must find ways of avoiding past mistakes and creating better ways of doing things."

Calling for a broad social security program that will insure necessary goods and services even when usual sources of income are lacking, Carey said that the time will come "when it will seem as senseless and cruel to permit any child to grow up without adequate nutrition, as the jailing of insane people a century ago now seems to us."

Labor is concerned not only with peace, Carey declared, but with international cooperation to raise levels of living and to extend democracy. "A labor movement in every country will be the best way to guarantee these," he said.

World Unity Needed Now, Briton Says

London, May 29 (ALN)—International labor unity is needed now more than ever if the trade unions are to play their full part in bringing about the early defeat of fascism and safeguard their postwar position, E. W. Bussey, general secretary of the Electrical Trades Union, declares in the latest issue of his union's newspaper.

"One of the great problems facing the unions is the reorganization of the international trade union movement," he writes. "The strong trade unions of Germany, Austria and Italy have been destroyed. In the occupied countries of Europe, trade unionism has been ruthlessly suppressed, and many of its leaders are in hiding or exile.

"A nucleus of the continental movement is the group of refugee workers employed in British factories, who are organized in their appropriate British trade unions and are members of the International Federation of Trade Unions. But this, as yet, is only a beginning. There still remains much more to be done if we are to achieve international solidarity."

Kerr Old-Time 'Witch Hunter'; UFW Backs Victims

WASHINGTON, May 29—The head of the House Kerr Committee, investigating alleged "subversives" in government service, is a witch hunter of old standing, it was revealed this week.

Congressman John H. Kerr of North Carolina teamed up as early as 1935 with Congressman Martin Dies and the late Senator Marcus A. Coolidge to introduce a bill supposedly benefiting aliens—and incidentally providing that those who faced deportation because of their political views could not benefit from its remedial provisions.

The Kerr-Dies-Coolidge bill had one good provision, staying deportations in cases where families might be broken up, but it had plenty of others that were mighty bad.

The bill provided for the deportation of non-citizens charged with a crime involving "moral turpitude" whether or not any sentence had been served, and also for the deportation of non-citizens convicted of carrying or possession of "concealed or dangerous weapons."

Under the provision for deportation of non-citizens, trade unionists might easily have been framed by the loose application of the terms "moral turpitude" or by the "planting" of concealed weapons in the pockets of non-citizens arrested on picket lines.

ROUGH TIME

Meanwhile, the objects of the present Kerr Committee's attacks faced a rough time in Congress, with Senate and House conferees scheduled to pick over "evidence" that led the House to vote for the dismissal from Federal service of Robert Morss Lovett, government secretary of the Virgin Islands, and two employes of the Federal Communications Commission, William E. Dodd, Jr., and Goodwin Watson.

This week, the United Federal Workers Union came to the defense of the three, terming the attack against them unconstitutional because it is a bill of attainder. The amendment providing specifically for their dismissal was tacked on to the Deficiency Appropriation Bill.

Pointing to the "excellent character, abilities and loyalties" of the three men, the UFW said through Sec.-Treas. Eleanor Nelson that "we believe it a matter of grave national concern that Congress is allowing itself to be diverted into fighting anti-fascists at a time when the services of these men are badly needed by our country and when complete unity is essential to national survival."

While the Senate Appropriations Committee eliminated the dismissal amendment from the Apropriations Bill, this was believed to mean little, since the real recommnedation affecting the three men's jobs is expected to be made by the Senate-House conferees.

Ecuador Workers Pledge Anti-Axis Solidarity With U. S.

GUAYAQUIL, ECUADOR, May 29 (ALN)—The recent visit of Vice-President Henry Wallace to Ecuador gave the workers of this country an opportunity to express their support for continental unity in the fight against Nazi-fascism—an opportunity which has been denied them since political police broke up the National Workers' Congress in Quito last month and arrested a number of the country's leading unionists.

Great labor demonstrations in honor of Wallace took place in Quito and Quayaquil despite opposition from the Workers' Confederation of Ecuador, a dummy organization set up several weeks ago under undisguised government auspices.

Before leaving Ecuador, Wallace was visited by Humberto Heredia, representing the Union Sindical, who assured the vice-president of the democratic feelings of the Ecuador people and said that Ecuador labor favored the immediate calling of a continental labor congress.

Wallace replied: "For eight months I have occupied myself with the question of such a congress, and I have discussed it with labor leaders in the countries I have visited. The only thing that stands in its way is the poverty of Latin American labor organizations. If the U. S. government paid the expenses, interested individuals would accuse the congress of being dominated by us for imperialist ends. Perhaps the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs could help in the matter, jointly with the individual Latin American governments."

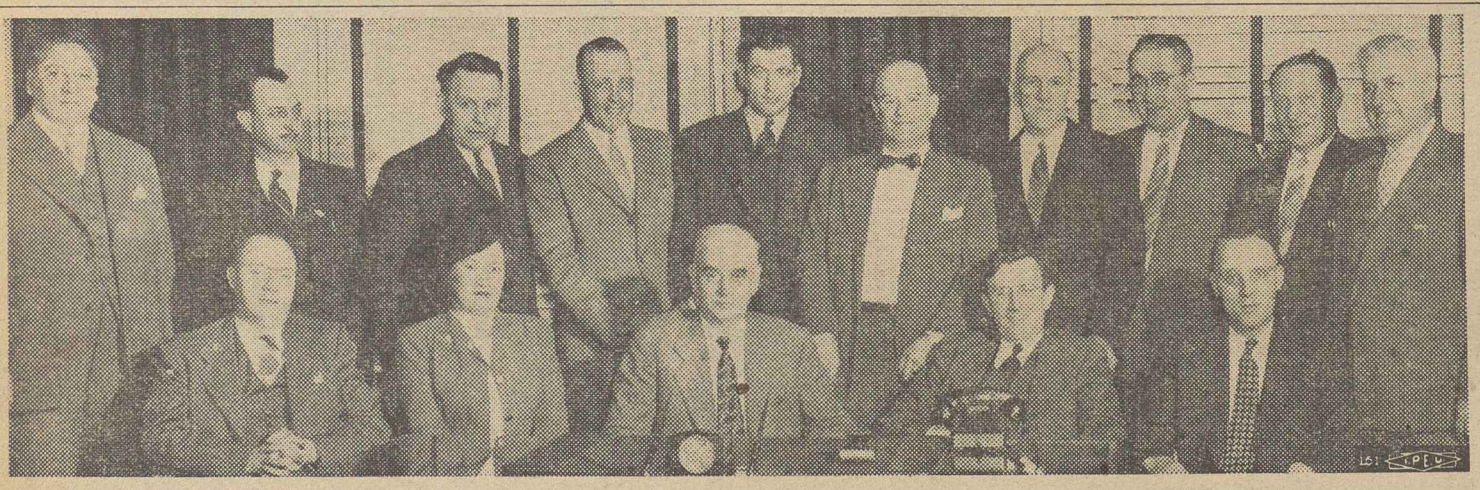
Heredia gave Wallace a message of greetings for transmission to U. S. labor. Pledging "to increase their work and sacrifice to help destroy international fascism in the shortest time possible," the Ecuador workers urged the AFL and CIO to "work for the immediate calling of a continental labor congress to solve our common problems." Representatives of unions in Britain, the Soviet Union and China should be invited, the message said, to "coordinate the effort of the democratic labor movements in the interests of a speedy and effective victory."

Bridges Fight Backed By CIO Funds

San Francisco, May 29—CIO unions have contributed $11,500 recently for the fight to win citizenship for Harry Bridges.

The contributions were in checks of $5,000 and $6,500 from the National CIO Bridges Committee, swelling to $41,607 the amount raised by the National CIO since the committee was established slightly more than two years ago by President Philip Murray.

"The generous manner in which CIO internationals have responded augurs well for a successful conclusion of the fight against the Bridges persecution," George Wilson, secretary of the committee, said.



USA TO USA: Workers from the Buffalo region of the United Steelworkers of America gathered this week in President Murray's office to give Joseph Molony, USA-CIO regional director, a sendoff to the United States Army. To serve in his place for the duration, they selected Joseph McNichols. Seated: McNichols; Marion Polakov; President Murray; Joseph Molony; David Sneddon. Standing: Julian Bruce; John Strobel; George Male; Ray McLaughlin; John McCann; Walter J. Payne; Roy Rouse; Jack Fanning; James Carlton; Edward Janiak.

CIO Members Win Half of National Production Honors

WASHINGTON, June 5—Workers in plants under agreement with CIO unions carried off 70 honors from a national total of 141 awarded by War Production Drive Headquarters here in May for valuable suggestions to boost war output.

Of this month's CIO winners, who were accorded national recognition for their contributions, the largest group work in engine plants, with ordnance and shipyard workers following in second and third places, respectively.

AWARD CERTIFICATES

Certificates for particularly valuable suggestions were awarded 21 of the CIO workers, the others winning honorable mentions. The winning suggestions were culled by the Drive's Board for Individual Awards from among thousands submitted by Joint Labor-Management Committees throughout the nation.

The May group includes two women, both of whom won certificates.

Bessie Telban, of Pittsburgh, who works in a plant under agreement with the UERMWA, submitted a suggestion which saves 1564 man-hours and 800 square yards of glass cloth a year.

Amelia Shartoff, of New Jersey, joined with two men to devise a new method of inspection which saves 29,472 man-hours a year. She works in a plant under agreement with the United Auto Workers.

Auto workers turning out engines in the Packard Motor Car Company of Detroit retained their national leadership for winning honors in May by carrying off 23 awards, including 11 certificates and 12 honorable mentions.

Since the start of the War Production Drive in Packard, 75 workers recommended by the Joint Union-Management Production Committee have won national honors, 35 of them winning certificates and 40 winning honorable mentions.

Awarded certificates for particularly valuable production suggestions, were:

Albert Dietrich, John M. Ulichney and Amelia Schartoff, UAW, Joint Titeflex Metal Hose Co., Newark, N. J.; Frank A. Olshinsky, Shipyard Workers, Bethlehem-Fairfield, Baltimore, Md.; Philip Trembot, UE, Foote Brothers Gear & Machine Corp., Chicago.

Joseph Loncharte, Joseph Baisseau, Woodrow Juzek, Woodrow Carps, Herbert Nelson, Elmer Jordan, Adam Dixon, Avery Switzer, Darus Klinkman, Donald McKay and Mitchell Kafarski, UAW, Packard Motor, Detroit.

Ernest Wilbert Nord, UAW, Yellow Truck & Coach, Pontiac, Mich.; Harry H. Halonen, CIO, Nordberg Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; Herman Lichius and Bessie Telban, UE, Westinghouse, Pittsburgh, and Gerald Thinnes, UE, RCA, Camden, N. J.

CIO Family's Son Defies Death To Save Comrades

NEW YORK, June 5—A story of heroism and devotion to duty rivalling anything that has happened in this war against Fascism was told this week by the U. S. Navy about the son of a member of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. The hero is Corp. Anthony Casamento, and his father, Charles Casamento, is a member of ACW Local 162, of this city.

Riddled with bullet wounds that "stitched a pattern" all over him, Corp. Casamento told his story from a hospital bed. Doctors said he was lucky to be alive, and would never have been saved had not a pint of blood plasma been available through contributions collected by the American Red Cross.

Casamento was in charge of a machine gun squad on the Tenaru River on Guadalcanal. In steaming heat the sweating crew maneuvered their gun into position.

Suddenly a burst of shrapnel screamed across the river, hitting Casamento's right leg. The shrapnel, plus two Jap machine guns, that cut loose with a vicious criss-cross pattern of fire mowed down every member of Casamento's squad—every man dead or seriously wounded.

Despite the fact that he was wounded badly and had no one capable of helping to feed the gun, Casamento stuck to his post.

Gun Jammed

"The gun mas getting hot and stuck at intervals, but I was mad and didn't care," he said. "My friends had been shot and I meant to get revenge."

He got what he wanted, all right, his coolly aimed bullets wiping out one Jap machine gun nest 50 yards away and dead ahead. But another one to the right opened up on him.

"It was like a bunch of hammers hitting me all over the body at the same time," he said. "I looked at my legs and the blood was soaking out of them, and from my neck, arms, chest and shoulders, too.

"That machine gun stitched a design of bullet holes in me from my feet to my head."

His courageous fight was almost ended by a Jap grenade which broke every finger in his right hand. Despite this, when the Japs yelled in English, "Retreat, Marine, Tojo says you must die," Casamento answered:

"Go to hell, you blankety, blank so and so's. Come and get me"—only he said it to himself, for with bullet holes in his throat he couldn't make a sound.

Saved from Death

"I figured the Japs would be on me any minute with their bayonets, but our own men were starting to catch up. A lieutenant I knew saved me from being killed by my buddies, who couldn't tell who I was with all the blood over me and most of my clothes off. They came at me with bayonets, but he stopped them just in time."

An examination of the Jap positions showed that he had well accounted for his dead and wounded comrades. Marine Corps officers credited him with saving the lives of many Americans behind him who would have been ruthlessly mowed down had Casamento left his post.

Packing Co. Tries to Wreck CIO Union

Chicago, June 5—Charges that phoney union withdrawal cards are being circulated among workers by foremen at the Wilson & Co. plant were made here this week by the CIO Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee.

The Chicago plant is covered by the master agreement which provides for maintenance of membership and the check-off, PWOC officials said. Members of PWOC Local 25 reported that the phoney cards, which had no union label, were handed to them by foremen at the Wilson plant.

CIO Hails Social Security Plan As Aid to Victory

WASHINGTON, June 3—The new amendments to the Social Security system proposed by Senators Wagner and Murray and Rep. Dingell (Mich.) "will aid the war effort now and later help achieve full peacetime employment," Pres. Murray said this week in praising the bill as "a move toward real social security."

The bill, put into the Congressional hopper this week, represents in large part the work of the CIO Social Security Committee, of which Van A. Bittner, assistant to the president of the United Steelworkers, is chairman.

Pointing out that the CIO has worked for years for broader coverage and greater protection against unemployment, sickness, old age, disability, and other social hazards, Murray declared that enactment of the bill will assure "the men of our armed forces that the goal of freedom from want will be within reach as they return to their homes."

"The bill makes important progress toward guaranteeing an income to all Americans no matter what hazards overtake them," he said, listing improved job-finding machinery, broader unemployment compensation, protection for soldiers and sailors, and better safeguards against old age and other insecurities.

"Labor is willing to pay its fair share of the increased amounts required for greater benefits," he said. "The CIO would prefer, however, that the program be supported in large part by levies on swollen incomes and fortunes.

"The CIO hails this important result of the efforts of labor to move toward real social security and will continue to fight for this and such additional improvements as are necessary."

A breakdown of the bill prepared for circulation among all CIO affiliates, along with Murray's urging of full CIO backing, shows:

1. Unemployment: Benefits payable for 26 weeks, to maximum of 52 weeks if funds are available; rates set at 50% of the first $12 a week wage, plus 25% of the wage between $12 and $56, and one-half of this added for dependents. Domestic and agricultural workers, as well as seamen and employes of non-profit outfits are included—were formerly left out.

Former members of the armed services get benefits of $12 a week, with dependents' allowances bringing this up to $30.

2. Old age and survivors benefits: Increased from present $10 a month minimum to $20, maximum from $85 to $120. Coverage also extended to workers previously left out, with government employes coverage provided under voluntary agreement.

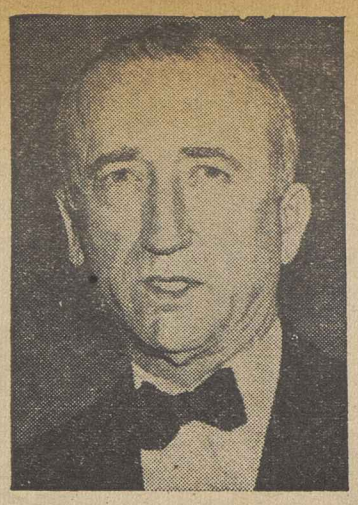
3. Sickness and disability: Federal system of medical and hospital insurance set up; temporary disability and maternity care put under unemployment insurance, permanent disability under old age and survivors system.

4. Aid to needy: Federal grants to states under a unified system broaden coverage and raise the limits on benefits.

5. Financing the program: Contribution by workers and employers raised to 6 per cent of earnings of $3,000 a year and less, with a 7 per cent payment by self-employed people. This is the section Murray refers to when he says the CIO would prefer that the program be financed "by levies on swollen incomes and fortunes."

In a final section, the new program provides for advisory councils of employers, workers and public representatives.

Hearings on the new social security program are expected soon; letters and wires from CIO unions, individual members, and community action will make the new and greatly improved protection a reality.



MOBILIZATION CHIEF: James F. Byrnes, above, former director of economic stabilization, has been named by President Roosevelt to head the newly created office of War Mobilization to coordinate all phases of our war effort.

WLB Spikes 'Damper on Bond Sales' Statement

WASHINGTON, June 5—The Treasury Dept. and the War Labor Board have assured the millions of wage earners employed in 40,000 firms where the plan for 10 per cent payroll deduction for War Bonds is in effect, that this will not jeopardize possible wage increases or be taken into consideration in deciding wage rate cases.

The announcement was made after a member of a WLB panel in Los Angeles had declared in a minority report that CIO rubber workers at a local plant did not need a wage adjustment because they had voluntarily subscribed more than 13 per cent of their pay for War Bonds.

CIO Urges:

Back Army By Home Front Victory Drive

WASHINGTON, June 5—CIO's earnest plea for win-the-war action on the economic front to back up the fighting fronts, was given to President Roosevelt by the three CIO members of the "Combined Labor Victory Committee" in a White House interview this week.

The program, given to Roosevelt and released by President Murray, UAW President R. J. Thomas and UE Secretary-Treasurer Julius Emspak, covered the price rollback, subsidies to make the rollback possible, taxes, the newly created Office of War Mobilization, the War Labor Board and other critical points.

PRICE ROLLBACK

Main emphasis in the memo to the President was on the price rollback. The announced dollars and cents levels and a rollback scheduled by OPA on butter, meat and coffee have not been put into effect, the memo said, and some of the dollars and cents levels would actually increase prices. Enforcement of control, the memo said, "is a myth."

The price rollback, the CIO leaders added, "clearly involves subsidies," yet despite this, the subsidy program in Congress "seems on the verge of being defeated without any strong Administration backing in support of subsidies."

"It is becoming increasingly impossible to prevent the rising resentment on the part of the workers who are abstaining from any wage demands because of the promise of a rollback which is proving to be a myth," they said.

ASK ACTION BY BYRNES

The CIO program urged that James F. Byrnes, newly appointed director of the Office of War Mobilization, order all U. S. agencies to comply with and support the rollback and the necessary subsidy program. At the same time, Administration leaders must push the program in Congress.

On taxes, the CIO leaders said that the 75 per cent Ruml plan, involving huge rebates to big taxpayers and proportionately much smaller forgiveness to the lower income groups must be vetoed. This scheme, they said, would pave the way for a 10 per cent sales tax if allowed to stand.

A "complete breakdown which may by itself actually threaten the entire existence of the machinery of war" is feared unless War Labor Board regulations on merit promotions, job reclassifications and the like are made simple and realistic, the CIO memo said.

BASIS FOR DISCONTENT

"These regulations therefore lay a basis for the most widespread resentment and demoralization on the part of American workers," it said in urging a cleanup of the complicated situation.

On the newly appointed Office of War Mobilization, set up by executive order of the President last week and headed by Byrnes, the CIO leaders praised the move as a step toward central planning and asked for labor representation to make it effective.

"To fully mobilize all of the resources of the nation obviously demands the enlistment of the effort of all the people and particularly of labor," they said. "Organized labor's representatives, therefore, must have an important role in the activities and formulation of policies in the OWM."

In a final point of the CIO memo to the Commander-in-Chief, the three CIO leaders asked for "more forthright Administration leadership in Congress in support of the President's program" and for Presidential consultation with labor on the issuance of executive orders and directives.

CIO Asks Veto Of 75% Tax Grab Bill

WASHINGTON, June 5—The 75 per cent tax forgiveness plan, passed by the Senate and sent to the President, should be vetoed as "an unscrupulous tax grab for the high income groups" and as an entering wedge for the sales tax, CIO President Murray wrote to President Roosevelt this week.

"The measure enacted by Congress is nothing but the Ruml plan on a 75 per cent basis," Murray wrote to Roosevelt. "You have heretofore expressed your opposition to the Ruml plan. The proposed legislation merits equal condemnation."

SALES TAX PLOT

Murray pointed to the people in Congress and outside it now calling for a 10 per cent sales tax as a direct result of the tax grab, saying: "Already there have been expressions in Congress that a 10 per cent sales tax is the necessary corollary to the present tax measure pending before you. This means a 10 per cent wage cut for the American workers."

Under the tax bill as passed, all tax liability for 1942 up to $50 is forgiven, with a 75 per cent forgiveness from $50 up. As a result, the big incomes benefit most.

At $2,000 a year income, only $105 or three weeks income is forgiven; at $10,000 (the rate of pay for Congressmen and Senators), $1,600 in taxes is cancelled, or 2.5 months' income, and so on up to the equivalent of 4.5 years' income for a $1,000,000 man.

ACTION: All CIO members should write and wire President Roosevelt urging him to veto the 75 per cent Ruml steal, and to Representatives and Senators demanding that they return to fair and adequate taxation, avoid the sales tax as an economic disaster equal to a military disaster.

UAW Ads Ask People's Aid To Cut Prices

Washington, June 5—In full page ads appearing in several major metropolitan daily papers, the United Auto Workers Union this week called on the people to support the CIO's program for a rollback of prices, for strengthening of OPA, for extension of power to the WLB, and for aid to small farmers to increase food production.

"The news from the battlefronts is good," the ads read. "At home, it's another story. . . . Congress is fighting a different kind of war. It is turning OPA over to the food profiteers. Congress is refusing to permit a rollback of prices."

The ads cited other Congressional actions in support of business minorities and against the welfare of the people and declared that "too many Congressmen hate Roosevelt more than they hate Hitler."

"It is time the plain people who elected Congress insisted that our government should be for the people, not for certain special interests who would expoilt the war emergency," the UAW ads stated.

Get off the Dime On Price Control Is CIO Demand

WASHINGTON, June 5—President Roosevelt was urged by organized labor this week to take drastic action to halt the retreat on the price-control front.

He was asked particularly to shake up the price and food administrations, to insure real action to roll back prices despite the opposition of special interests.

These and other labor representations were made jointly by the CIO and the AFL at a White House meeting of the Combined Labor Victory Committee, with Philip Murray, R. J. Thomas and Julius Emspak of the CIO and Wm. Green and George Meany of the AFL attending, in addition to the President.

The labor leaders called particular attention to runaway food prices, presenting figures which showed that they have risen from 24% to 150% in many instances since January, 1943.

HIT MAXON

They told the President that the situation is not being met by the OPA and the Food Administration, and criticized particularly the policies of men like Lou Maxon. "His policies run counter to the rolling back and stabilization of prices," Murray said.

He declared that subsidies must be used to roll back prices, as has been done successfully in Great Britain, and that the United States could well afford to spend $2 billion for subsidies "to enable our workers to secure adequate living standards."

President Roosevelt was reported to have "reacted favorably" to the labor suggestions.

Murray also told the press that the new Office of War Mobilization was discussed with the President. He said that meetings should be held with Director Byrnes to ascertain the functions of the new body and to urge labor representation in it.

Retail, Wholesale Output Meet

New York, June 5—Ways by which fuller use can be made of the untapped skill and talent of the 60,000 salesmen, saleswomen, warehousemen and production employes in this area will be discussed at a working one-day conference of all 40 local unions affiliated with the Greater New York Joint Council of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes of America. The conference was scheduled to take place this weekend at the Hotel Astor.

A Job for OWM

The newly created Office of War Mobilization is an important step toward the goal of total mobilization long advocated by the CIO.

As the CIO has pointed out, a central administration and coordination of production, manpower distribution and economic stabilization is urgently needed.

All of these problems are closely interrelated, and much of the bungling and lack of planning that has been in evidence is due to attempts to handle them in separate compartments.

But there is at least one most serious imperfection in the newly established machinery. That is the failure to give labor representation. War mobilization cannot be complete or effective unless labor is given an important role in formulating the policies of a body like OWM.

Besides demanding labor representation, the CIO is also anxious to know more about the functioning of the OWM and how it intends to cope with the tremendous problems confronting it.

It faces one immediate test. What is it going to do about rolling back prices?

Price control is still little more than a pious hope, and the rolling back of prices clearly requires subsidies. Yet the Price and Food Administrations are showing shocking weakness; and Food Administrator Chester Davis has actually testified he opposes subsidies, while Jesse Jones, who is upposed to furnish the money, has also indicated opposition.

When the government's own administrators neglect or obstruct such an essential administration policy as the roll-back of prices, it is clearly time for a body like the OWM to step in.

That is why the CIO is asking James Byrnes, as director of OWM, to take immediate action to require all executive agencies to support and make effective the policy of rolling back prices through the use of subsidies.

At the same time the CIO urges more vigorous administration leadership in Congress in support of the President's program, and particularly for legislation affirmatively calling for subsidies to roll back prices.

Freedom from Want

The social security program introduced in Congress by Senators Wagner and Murray and Congressman Dingell is a measure of far-reaching importance both for aiding our war effort now and for approaching the goal of freedom from want.

The proposed amendments to the Social Security Act follow the lines of many recommendations for which the CIO has long been fighting. In general, they will have the wholehearted support of all organized labor.

The whole program is directed toward assuring an income to all Americans, no matter what hazards overtake them, as CIO Pres. Murray points out.

It is designed to set aside reserves now, to cushion the country against post-war unemployment and other economic troubles resulting from the return to a peacetime economy.

Enactment of this program is of particular importance to the men in the armed forces and to their families. The CIO has long advocated proper provisions for these men to guarantee them full social security protection after the war. It insists they be provided with jobs under decent conditions and assured an adequate income until they find employment.

The social security program now before Congress sets up improved machinery for finding jobs. It extends protection to large numbers not covered by the present law. It broadens and improves old age and survivors insurance and unemployment compensation. It also launches a new program of health insurance.

One important aspect of the program, which will probably draw much reactionary opposition, is that it replaces piecemeal and inadequate state systems of unemployment compensation with a federal system wider in coverage and more adequate in protection.

The bill does not include everything that should be done, and improvement of certain features may still be needed. Furthermore the CIO contends that it should be financed in large part by levies on swollen incomes and fortunes.

But, in general, it is such a tremendous step forward toward the goal of real social security that every effort must be mobilized to overcome reactionary opposition and to secure its enactment.

The CIO therefore asks all its unions and members to wire their representatives in Congress urging immediate hearings and full support for the bill.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

REP. Van Winkle woke with a start, to find his beard tangled around the bedposts.

"Must have overslept," he grumbled. "And where did this beard come from? Must be that fellow in the White House. I warned 'em grass would grow in the streets. But I didn't know it'd grow on my chin."

He rubbed his eyes at the sight of so many uniforms, as he hurried through the streets.

"Regimentation, that's what it is," he murmured. "Why, he's even putting the people in uniforms!"

But Rep. Van Winkle felt at home again when he got to Congress. He launched at once into one of his favorite speeches.

It was full of well-seasoned cracks about "New Deal professors," "crackpot bureaucrats" and "communistic policies." He felt he rose to new heights as he denounced "social reforms," governmental subsidies and "toadying to labor."

It worried him a little that someone laughed when he referred to this year of 1933." He heard a stage whisper: "That guy must have been asleep ten years. He doesn't know there's a war on and thinks this is 1933."

But he recovered his composure as one Congressman after another rose after him to talk very much like he had. "If I've been asleep, I'm not the only one," Rep. Van Winkle comforted himself.

To wake up some of the Rep. Van Winkles to the realities of 1943, let's read them some findings of a recent Fortune magazine survey of public opinion.

It reports that 70 per cent of the persons questioned think Pres. Roosevelt is doing a "good" job of running the war; and that even in his domestic policies, 56 per cent think he is doing a "good" job, 31 per cent rate it "fair," and only 11 per cent think it "poor."

But what the people think of Congress is quite a different story. Only 25.6% think Congress is doing a "good" job of helping to win the war; 50% call it "fair," and 17% say Congress is doing a "poor" job.

Yet many Congressmen are so asleep to the real issues of America at war that they interpret the "absentee" elections of 1942 (when millions of progressive voters were kept from the polls by armed service or war work) as a mandate to revive the anti-New Deal slogans of ten years ago.

They picture themselves as champions of business, resisting all "social reforms" that benefit the masses of the people as "bureaucratic encroachments."

They don't seem to realize that such 1933 behavior in this war year of 1943 makes them stooges of profiteers obstructing war measures essential for victory.

Consider Congressional reactions to inflation-control. This is an obvious war essential that calls for widest extension of rationing, for iron-clad price ceilings, for rolling back runaway prices, and for government subsidies, wherever necessary, to roll them back.

But no sooner did OPA start its work than every stray price-profiteer began caterwauling into sympathetic Congressional ears, and OPA was denied adequate funds. Leon Henderson was sacrificed, and Prentiss Brown put in his place.

Brown brought in Lou Maxon, the profiteers' friend, and began appeasing. Grade labeling was thrown out the window, the "police whistle" was discarded, and prices shot up here, there and everywhere.

Labor and consumers raised such a fuss that finally Roosevelt stepped in to call for real price control and subsidies to roll back prices. And the first timid steps were taken in this direction.

But this enraged the profiteers and their Congressional echoes. They have demanded and received the scalp of J. K. Galbraith, Maxon's chief OPA opponent. They are fighting desperately against subsidies. And some half-dozen Congressional committees are devoting most of their time to sabotaging and obstructing every real step OPA has taken, or might take, for price and rent control and against inflation.

In Congress and the big business press one hears again all the old corny cracks of 1933 about "New Deal professors vs. businessmen," "social reform" and "toadying to labor." One OPA official was even grilled for the crime of "consulting labor."

But if the Rep. Van Winkles insist on reviving the issue of the money-changers against the masses, they will get an even more rude awakening than in 1932. For the masses of the American people are out to win this war, and they have the votes.

Keep Your Eye on Congress

House action on Smith-Connally bill (S 796) was still uncertain as THE CIO NEWS went to press. If it is passed, everyone must immediately wire President Roosevelt urging him to veto it.

The bill is a deliberate attempt to wreck the labor movement, and has been whipped up in a frenzy of labor-hating provoked by the John L. Lewis strike in the coal mines.

The 75 per cent Ruml tax grab has been OK'd by the Senate, and also goes to the President—who must be urged to veto this anti-war move also. Next step will be strong pressure in Congress for a sales tax—which would be an economic disaster.

On the positive side, the Wagner-Murray-Dingell social security amendments were put into the hopper. They must receive all-out CIO support as the most important step toward real social security taken since 1935.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Smith-Connally (S 796)	Union smashing at its worst to date.	Passed Senate, may pass House by time you read this.	If passed by Congress, urge FDR veto
1943 Tax Bill	Gives 75% tax rebate, benefits rich, opens way to sales tax.	Passed both House and Senate, now goes to FDR.	Urge FDR. veto.
Social Security Amendments	Extend scope and coverage of all benefits; big step to real security.	Put into House and Senate hopper this week.	Write your Senators and Representatives for.
Polltax Repeal (HR 7)	Repeals polltax bar to 10 million voters.	Passed House, now in subcommittee of Senate Judiciary, headed by Sen. McCarran (D., Nev.).	Urge immediate report out from subcommittee, ask your Senators to support cloture to stop filabuster.

FOOD CRISIS

The half dozen Congressional Committees reported last week as working out defeatist venom on price control are still campaigning against your food budget, your health and your efficiency on the production line. Action: Write to your Congressman and Senators, and to the chairmen of these committees (see story, page 5), demanding labor testimony at these committees, an end to underhand sabotage of price rollback, subsidy and other stabilization programs.

ACA Wins 25% Pay Hike In WLB Postal Ruling

NEW YORK, June 5—The National War Labor Board today approved a wage increase of 25 per cent for all adult employes of the Postal Telegraph Co. on the ground that their pay was substandard, both with respect to the cost of living and in comparison with wages paid in Western Union.

The award was won by the American Communications Association, which holds a national closed shop contract with the company. The increased pay is retroactive to October 1, 1942, and will amount to approximately $3,000,000 annually.

The award granted an increase of 12.5 cents an hour for all adult employes, except route aides who get about $3.50 per week increase; messengers will get a flat 10 per cent (the same award as in the Western Union case); motor messengers receive a 25 per cent increase and are treated in other respects as adult employes.

Although the union's case for wage increases had been pending for more than nine months, the membership maintained union discipline and lived up to the letter of the ACA-CIO no strike pledge.

HAILS DECISION

In a statement hailing the decision, Joseph P. Selly, ACA president, paid tribute to the leadership of Philip Murray whose "correct win-the-war policies and adamant support inspired our workers to a program of action which concentrated on production problems while making full use of existing government agencies for the settlement of their wage grievances."

Refusing to be provoked into strike actions, Union Victory Committees established in 30 principal cities concentrated instead on a program to gear the telegraph industry to more efficient war service.

ADOPT UNION PLANS

As a result of data and recommendations submitted by the Victory Committees, the Federal Communications Commission conducted an investigation which resulted in the adoption by the Board of War Communications of union suggestions eliminating non-essential traffic such as holiday greetings, singing telegrams, etc.

In addition speed of service standards were established which is forcing the telegraph industry to move essential war production traffic ahead of all other types of wire services.

Congress Wreckers Bolder In Moves To Sabotage War

By C. W. FOWLER

WASHINGTON, June 5 — The plot of the Congressional wreckers against price control and food production, brought to light when the conniving of a half dozen Congress committees was revealed a week ago, is coming more and more boldly out from under the stones and into the light.

The open attack is centered on two targets—the OPA, for attempts to enforce real price control and the rollback of food costs, and the plan to subsidize food distribution to make the rollback possible.

In the House, the Banking Committee has reported out a bill (HR 2725) extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation with a rider forbidding it or any other agency to use funds for subsidies to roll back prices. Rep. Steagall, an Alabama polltaxer, is chairman.

BILL HITS SUBSIDIES

This is aimed at forbidding the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to use any of its funds for subsidies, and will, if passed, knock out even the feeble subsidy program already scheduled for coffee, butter and a few other commodities.

The Smith Committee (headed by Howard Smith, polltaxer, Va.) is branching out from its offensive against rent control (rent control is the chief success of OPA to date) to an echo of the Interstate Commerce Commission assault on quality grade labelling of canned goods.

The Smith Committee is working the canning industry's side of the street exclusively, giving canners' lobbyists a loudspeaker for yelling that labelling (which tells the consumer what he's paying for) is "radical." The Commerce sub-Committee uses its platform for the big newspaper publishers, who declare that labelling will "destroy" advertising and therefore kill freedom of the press.

In the OPA itself, Administrator Prentiss Brown has made a deep bow of appeasement to the wreckers by firing one of his assistants, J. K. Galbraith, and by fixing to promote another, Lou Maxon, as "general manager" of OPA. Galbraith stood for real price control; Maxon, head of a huge food advertising firm, stands against price control, against grade labelling, for big profits.

All these anti-war and anti-stabilization actions are being protested by CIO, should be protested by every worker and every housewife and every individual who wants an adequately fed country to help us win the war.

This week, CIO Legislative Director Nathan Cowan sent a vigorous protest to the leaders of the committees now doing the sabotage job, declaring that their committees were being used "as sounding boards for the voicing of petty grievances and demands for special privileges" and urging labor testimony "to present the insistence of the American nation on a strengthened and not a crippled OPA."

ACTION: The defeatist plot against your food budget and your health and efficiency on the war job can be stopped. Write to your Congressman and Senators; demand an end to sabotage on price control, rent control and food subsidies essential to the rollback. Demand a voice for labor in these Congress committees—and the plot will collapse. Write to OPA head Brown and to the President to back up CIO's rollback program, and real price control. It's your food that's at stake.

CIO Calls For Stronger Price Check

This is what the CIO had to say this week on the desperate need to beat back the price control wreckers. The quotes are from Nathan Cowan, CIO legislative director, who declared in a letter to Congress:

"It is extremely unfortunate and dangerous that at the present time with prices and particularly food prices still moving upward in a constant threat to the health and welfare of the nation, certain private interests should be instigating and carrying on a concerted attack on the OPA in an apparent effort to cripple or destroy it.

"The working men and women of America have been critical of OPA, but only for insufficient firmness in enforcement of real price control. It is essential, therefore, that the OPA be preserved with more effective powers and more effective policies. The drive to eliminate or warp OPA policy is a drive for profits at the expense of national welfare."

CIO Urges:

Back Army by Home Front Drive for Victory

Urging full support for our fighting forces, CIO members of the Combined Labor Victory Committee this week submitted the following memorandum to President Roosevelt. CIO members on the committee are: President Philip Murray, R. J. Thomas and Julius Emspak. The statement follows:

1. Prices:—(a) The OPA has established dollars and cents levels and has announced that it will initiate a roll-back of prices on butter, meat and coffee, but as a result of the confusion and turmoil prevailing in the OPA no attempt has been made to roll back the dollars and cents prices which are admittedly too high and when established actually caused a price increase. Enforcement of prices is still a myth.

Must Have Subsidies

(b) Roll-back of prices of Sept. 15, 1942, clearly involves subsidies. In Congress this issue seems on the verge of being defeated without any strong Administration backing in support of subsidies.

Chester Davis, Food Administrator, actually testified before one of the Congressional Committees that he opposed subsidies.

It is open knowledge that Jesse Jones, who is supposed to furnish the money for these subsidies, is also opposed to this practice.

It is becoming increasingly impossible to prevent the rising resentment on the part of the workers who are abstaining from any wage demands because of the promise of a roll-back which is proving to be a myth.

Asks Aid for Roll-Back

It is therefore imperative that:

(a) James Byrnes, as Director of the Office of War Mobilization, direct all of the executive agencies to comply with and support the policy of roll-back of prices, together with subsidies to accomplish this end. There must be an end to the back-biting of this basic policy.

(b) Administration leaders in Congress be directed to introduce legislation affirmatively calling for subsidies to enable the government to roll back prices to meet the outstanding obligation to the nation on this issue. There must be an end to this policy of apparent weakness in regard to the basic issues of roll-back of prices and subsidies.

2. Taxes:—(a) The 75 per cent Ruml Plan just enacted by Congress must be vetoed by the President. It leaves part of the 1942 tax burden still to be paid by low income groups (since only $50 of the 1942 tax is completely abated and 75 per cent of the rest) while the huge incomes also receive a 75 per cent abatement of 1942 taxes.

(b) The loss to the Government of this income will have to be borne by low income groups. Already it has been expressed in Congress that there will have to be a 10 per cent sales tax which means a 10 per cent wage cut.

Legislation

We ask for more forthright Administration leadership in Congress in support of the President's program.

3. National War Labor Board:—The Board has issued regulations indicating how wage adjustments may be obtained under its wage bracket formula and for reasons of merit promotions, job reclassifiiations and the like.

These regulations are so complicated as to be completely beyond the understanding of the average American citizen. The regulations therefore lay a basis for the most widespread resentment and demoralization on the part of American workers. It is completely unrealistic in terms of American industry and the day to day problems which confront both labor and management.

It is feared that within 60 days there will be a complete breakdown which may by itself actually threaten the entire existence of the machinery of war.

4. Office of War Mobilization:—Correlating all of the domestic activities of the government in an Office of War Mobilization is a decisive step toward an objective which has been supportd by the CIO for a long period of time.

However, the absence of labor representation in the Office of War Mobilization is a serious weakness. To fully mobilize all of the resources of the nation obviously demands the enlistment of the effort of all the people and particularly of labor.

Organized labor's representatives, therefore, must have an important role in the activities and in the formulation of policies in the Office of War Mobilization.

5. Executive Orders and Directives:—The increasing frequency with which Executive Orders and Directives of far-reaching importance are issued makes it imperative that the groups whose interests are directly concerned should be consulted prior to their issuance.

Silk Shirt War Pay Bunk, Says Professor

KENOSHA, Wis., June 5—Charges that American workers are enjoying lush, silk-shirt incomes were knocked on the head this week by Dr. Joseph Mire, research director of the University of Wisconsin Summer School for Workers. On the contrary, he said in a recently published 2,000-word article, the workers' standard of living has dropped since Pearl Harbor.

Dr. Mire said that a reported 44 per cent increase in the average hourly earnings in manufacturing industries from 1939 to November, 1942, has been offset by the following factors:

1. A large portion of the money increase is the result of overtime earnings and does not represent an actual increase in standard of living, since standard of living must take into account hours of work along with other conditions.

2. Hundreds of thousands of workers have increased their technical skill and are now doing more important and more efficient work, with a corresponding increase in their pay.

3. Employment in the upper brackets increased faster than employment in the lower brackets, resulting in a higher overall wage average than would have been shown otherwise.

4. Unofficial but conservative estimates show an increase in the cost of living of as high as 33 per cent. The official cost of living index does does not take into consideration deterioration in the quality of goods, which are bought today in inferior quality at their former prices.

5. Income taxes have increased, especially for wage earners.

6. Output per man-hour from 1939 to 1941 increased 10.3 per cent, due mainly to increased labor efficiency and application, but in part to use of improved machinery. A further increase of 2.5 per cent is indicated for 1943.

These things, Dr. Mire declared, more than offset the 44 per cent increase in gross hourly earnings.

"If we take finally into account that, since Pearl Harbor, the majority of workers are investing 10 per cent of their weekly pay in bonds," he concludes, "it becomes evident that labor has actually suffered a reduced living standard and is indeed carrying its full share of the burden of the war."

Speak Up for Fair Food Plan Now!

By ELEANOR FOWLER
Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

Committees of Congress are working nights figuring how to block the President's plan to roll back food prices. They're planning to ban the use of federal funds to pay subsidies to producers and processors of food and to make the individual consumer bear the brunt of increased production costs. And it's up to us indi- vidual consumers, each and every one of us, to see that they don't get away with it. Here are a few facts every Congressman should know:

Wages were stabilized as of September 15, 1942. They weren't stabilized at high levels, either. The average wage for all industry was $40 a week, $2000 a year if you work 50 weeks. That's $600 less than a family of five needs for a decent healthy standard of living, according to the most recent official budget study.

And what has happened to food prices since September 15, 1942? The CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries has conducted a national survey on food price increases since that date.

BEEF PRICES SOAR

Returns from all parts of the country—from mine camps and big cities, from east and west—show the same picture. Beef prices are up from 10 to 50%—in one company store 100%. Fresh vegetable prices have risen from 50% to 400%.

Department of Labor figures show skyrocketing increases in seasonal vegetables. In April 1943, compared to April 1942, potatoes were up 65%, onions 89%, carrots, 27.4%, cabbage 18%, beans 64%.

The President proposes to bring food prices down to the September level by having the government pay subsidies to producers and processors of food where that is necessary to meet increased costs of production.

There's nothing new or un-American about government subsidies. The very Congressmen who are blasting them now have voted subsidies for years to keep prices of cotton and corn and silver up.

It's only when subsidies are proposed to keep butter and meat and coffee prices down that they attack subsidies. What they're really afraid of is that the subsidy program may make price control work as it has in Britain.

In England they've paid subsidies to keep food costs down for two years. Why? Because they recognize that the health of the civilian population is vital to winning the war and proper food is essential to health.

As a result the increase in living costs in Britain in the last two years has been ½ of one percent, while in the United States living costs have risen 21%—even by Department of Labor figures—since January 1941.

The result, plainly and simply, is that many American workers aren't getting enough to eat. That in turn, means that they aren't doing their best work on the production lines. And that means that we aren't getting top production for Victory.

It isn't hard to see how serious that is now, when every day brings the European offensive nearer.

The drive against the President's program of subsidies to bring food prices down and keep them steady is in fact a drive against a quick victory over Hitler. We've got to make our Congressmen understand that and vote to support the subsidy program.

Brown Fumbles OPA Price Roll Back by Firing Galbraith

BY CIO COST OF LIVING COMMITTEE

Just as labor was moving up its ack-ack batteries to defend the OPA roll-back and the dollars and cents ceilings against the dive-bombing attacks of the trade lobbies and their Congressional spokesmen, Price Administrator Prentiss Brown created confusion and dismay within the ranks of OPA by firing the fighting leader of the new program, Deputy Administrator J. K. Galbraith.

Galbraith's dismissal came as a result of joint pressure from the trade lobbies and the notorious Lou Maxon, has set out to become the Quisling of price control.

Maxon, head of one of the nation's largest advertising agencies, whose clients are opposed to price control, also served an ultimatum on Brown that he be made general manager of OPA or else he would quit.

Firing Significant

Although Brown, with characteristic tactics, has delayed accepting Maxon's demand to be made general manager, his firing of Galbraith indicates that at the present writing Maxon is "in."

It will be recalled that during the grade-labeling controversy Brown delayed formally announcing the repeal of grade-labeling until a favorable moment, although the decision to do this was made known two months earlier by Maxon.

The Cost of Living Committee is not ordinarily interested in personnel changes at OPA. But the current revolution in personnel goes to the heart of price control policies. Galbraith is cut down just at the time he has gotten the OPA to undertake a real program of price control.

Other key men in the organization—Paul Porter in charge of rent control, Paul O'Leary in charge of rationing, Tom Emerson in charge of enforcement—have indicated that they will not serve under Maxon.

Maxon Bosses' Man

And what kind of an administration will Maxon give to price control? His stand against grade labeling, his demand that OPA remove the police whistle and go in for soft enforcement, his support of Fulton Lewis' propaganda for the removal of price ceilings on rationed foods—all these things indicate price control and rationing will not be worth the paper the regulations are written on once he is put in full control.

As a further revelation of Maxon's character has come the news that a Detroit rationing board is investigating the granting of a huge institutional allotment for Maxon's summer cabin in northern Michigan. This allotment, enough to feed 80 people a day for two months, was railroaded through the rationing channels by Maxon's friends in the Detroit OPA.

The rationing board has now called a hearing to determine whether Maxon is entitled to such a ration in order to entertain his advertising clients at a place two hundred and fifty miles out in the country and accessible only by a long automobile drive.

Queer Ethics

Indepently of the technical findings of the rationing board, the question may well be raised as to the propriety of a high OPA official taking advantage of the loopholes of OPA regulations to get large amounts of food denied to the rest of us.

Several years ago it was revealed that the income tax regultaions were so loosely drawn that millionaires could escape payments of taxes by incorporating their yachts and personal estates. But no official of the Treasury used his inside knowledge of the regulations to indulge in this type of tax evasion.

The Quisling situation inside of OPA adds to the need for firm labor pressure, not only on Congress, as was suggested last week, but also on the top war agencies that supervise the OPA.

The Roosevelt Administration has made a commitment to enforce price control, to roll back prices and to carry through subsidies. Labor insists that this commitment be honored.

Fair Job Group Gets New Head

Washington, June 5—The Fair Employment Practice Committee's new chairman, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis Haas, dean of the School of Social Studies at Catholic University, was sworn into office this week.

Msgr. Haas replaces Mark Ethridge, newspaper editor from Louisville, Ky., who resigned recently along with three other members of the original committee of seven.

The four members now on the committee are CIO President Philip Murray; AFL President William Green; Milton P. Webster, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters; and Earl B. Dickerson, Negro attorney from Chicago.

John Brophy, CIO director of Industrial Union Councils, is alternate for President Murray, and Boris Shishkin is alternate for AFL President Green.

MORE TO COME

Other members of the committee will be named later by President Roosevelt with the advice of Msgr. Haas, who will devote full time to the work of the FEPC.

The FEPC, which used to be under the War Manpower Commission, was recently transferred to the Office of Emergency Management, executive office of the President.

A number of cases of discrimination against Negroes in industry are awaiting action by the re-established committee.

Save Your Tin Cans To Help Win War

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

The tin cans that you discard are urgently needed to pack the food shipped to our armed forces and Allies. Neither the cold of the Arctic countries nor the heat of Africa can harm food packed in tin. Tin cans withstand bombing assaults. After ship sinkings the cans, if recovered, can even be dropped to fighting men cut off from their bases.

Government reports show that the Tin Can Salvage Drive is lagging behind. 40,000 tons of tin could be handled each month. Only 21,000 tons are being collected at the present rate. Every housewife can help to raise the quota.

Only cans properly prepared can be salvaged. Remove labels and wash cans thoroughly. Remove both ends. Cans must be free from all particles of dirt. Flatten can by stepping on it firmly. Store in a dry place to avoid rust.

SUMMER RECIPES

Here are some recipes to tempt the wilting appetite these warm days.

A good starter for any summer supper is cold borsht. Peel and grate 4 medium size beets. Put in saucepan filled with four glasses of water. Squeeze in juice of 1 lemon. Let boil vigorously. Skim top 2 or 3 times. When beets are tender, add 1 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons sugar. Be sure of your favorite flavor by tasting.

Pour in jar and let stand in refrigerator several hours. When ready to serve add finely sliced cucumbers and top each bowl of borsht with 1 heaping tablespoon of sour cream. If you're lucky enough to have some potatoes, boil one or two for each person and serve hot with the cold borsht.

Here's a cool dessert that uses milk as one of the main ingredients. Especially good for the children.

ORANGE MILK SHERBERT

Soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Add 1¼ cups sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt to 2 cups milk. Heat until dissolved, then add the gelatin and grated rind of 1 orange. Pour the milk very, very slowly into 1½ cups orange juice and the juice of 2 lemons. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze, stirring at half hour intervals until frozen. Makes 1 quart.

Here's a quick dessert with graham crackers used as a pie shell.

APPLE SAUCE CRUMB CAKE

Roll out two glassfuls of graham crackers — making fine crumbs. Melt ½ cupful of oleo (with Vitamin A added) and moisten the crumbs. Pat half of the crumbs into a 9 inch pie plate. Fill with chilled apple sauce and cover with remaining crumbs.

Let stand in refrigerator for several hours. Serve with whipped cream—Add a little lemon juice to coffee cream and whip.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

Field Representative A. R. Hardesty reports the victorious results of the NLRB election at Mosher Steel Co. where USA-CIO received 178 votes to 92 for no union. J. L. Dowling, USA field representative, reports that the employes of the International Harvester Co. of Canada, Hamilton Works, voted 946 for CIO to 115 for neither. Regional Director C. H. Gillman advises that the CIO was victorious in the election in the Miami Shipyard, Miami, Florida, with a vote of 562 for CIO against 207 for AFL.

G. Geo. DeNucci, CIO sub-regional director, reports the results of the NLRB election at the Barnebey-Cheney Engineering Co. of Zanesville, Ohio, gave the Glass Ceramic & Silica Sand Workers, CIO, 100 as against 32 for the Independent Union. International Representative Everett Kanatzar was in charge of the election.

Ewald Sandner, N. J. regional director, reports winning an election at the Brewster Ideal Chocolate Co., by a vote of 42 for CIO to 29 for the AFL. The AFL had previously had a closed shop contract in this plant.

Harry Haberthear, acting regional director in Cincinnati, advises that Representatives Robert O'Donnell and Bernard Wilberding report that the CIO was victorious in the election at the Hamilton Metal Products Co., Hamilton, Ohio, by a vote of 40 for the UAW-CIO to 4 for no union.

Aluminum Workers Win

R. W. Pasnick, publicity director for the Aluminum Workers, report two election victories: J. P. Marsh Aluminum Co., Chicago, AWA-CIO, 235 to 117 for no union; Harvey Metal Corp., Chicago, AWA-CIO, 84 to 29.

Morris Wright, News Editor, Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, reports the following election victories: Local 726 at Adrian, Michigan, won by a vote of 96 to 4 at the Gerity-Adrian Co.; Sunrise Mining Co., Lake Crescent, Wash., MMSW-CIO, 18 to 0 for the AFL; Consolidated Coppermines, Corp., Ely, Nev., MMSW-CIO, 440 to 76; at Kimberly, B. C., one of this international's newest locals defeated a company union of more than 20 years' standing by a vote of 570 to 368 at a property of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., of Canada, Ltd.

Harry R. Doll, CIO sub-regional director, Akron, Ohio, advises of the results of the election at Palmer Match Co., with a vote of 148 for CIO to 72 for AFL. District 50 gave up the fight when the NLRB came in for a formal hearing a month or so ago.

Brothers Paul Fessenden, secretary of the Akron IUC and International Representative Wendell Ringholz of the United Gas, Coke & Chemical Workers are to be congratulated on this fine victory.

The War Labor Board this week unanimously voted approval of a panel's recommendations in the Postal Telegraph ACA case. This brings approximately a 25 per cent increase to substandard Postal Telegraph workers.

British Labor Party Meeting to Tackle Vital War Issues

LONDON, June 5 (ALN)—Issues of vital importance to the speedy winning of the war and the establishment of a just peace will be decided at the 42nd annual conference of the British Labor Party, to be held in London June 14-18. More than two and a half million Labor Party members will be represented.

Main issues to come before the conference will be: 1) continuation of the electoral truce; 2) withdrawal of Labor Party members from the British Cabinet; 3) post-war treatment of the German people; 4) affiliation of the Communist Party to the Labor Party.

Under the terms of the electoral truce, in effect since May, 1940, the Conservative, Labor and Liberal Parties agree that whenever a seat in the House of Commons becomes vacant it shall be filled by the party already holding the seat.

Significantly, none of the 38 resolutions against the truce come from trade unions. Will Lawther, president of the Miners Federation of Great Britain — 447,000 of whose 700,000 members pay dues to the Labor Party — stated recently: "When labor gave its pledge to join in an all-party government, it did so for the duration of the war. We cannot afford the luxury of general elections, the turmoil and strife of party politics, when tens of thousands of our members are at death grips with the destroyers of freedom and liberty."

The National Executive Committee of the Labor Party, reaffirming its support for the truce, declared last week: "Only the supreme needs of the nation—as, for instance, the defeat of a government which has become too lethargic for war purposes — could justify the termination of the truce."

DELAY ON BEVERIDGE

Raising an issue of still greater significance, two divisional parties have submitted resolutions calling for the party's withdrawal from the government. At present labor has eight representatives in the cabinet. Demand for their withdrawal came to a head recently when the government, including the Labor members, postponed action on the Beveridge Report—in direct opposition to the 160 Labor M. P.'s who constitute the Parliamentary Labor Party.

Other resolutions, expected to receive strong support, call for freedom for India; more pay for men in the armed services; post-war nationalization of land, sea and air transport—with full trade union representation in the controlling government agencies; the sending of a Labor Party delegation to Russia; and formation of a new labor international, to include all anti-fascist labor movements.

A number of resolutions have been put forward opposing "Vansittartism" (Lord Vansittart is the leader of a group of Tories who advocate post-war dismemberment of Germany) and strongly criticizing Labor Party officials associated with Fight for Freedom, organization of European refugees devoted to arousing "hatred of the German people."

Probe U. S. Fifth Column, Auto Union Asks Congress

DETROIT, June 5—A Congressional investigation to ferret out and bring to light America's Industrial Fifth Column was urged by the United Automobile Workers this week.

In a letter sent to Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House Labor Committee; Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes and Vice-President Richard T. Frankensteen of the UAW stated:

"Many examples have been drawn to our attention where managements, by seeking to create racial antagonism, by their deliberate refusal to follow established practices of collective bargaining, and through the deliberate spreading of rumors tending to undermine the workers' morale, have been creating dissatisfaction among the war workers of the nation."

These attempts, they said, tend "to undermine the workers' morale in a sinister move against the nation's war effort" and are "a conspiracy to bring labor and democracy to disaster."

In discussing the part labor has played in the war effort, Addes and Frankensteen claimed that the UAW's record of uninterrupted production of the weapons of war since Pearl Harbor has not been excelled by any other group of workers in the world, and that "it is the obligation of the national government in this time of crisis to give full support and protection to the patriotic workers of the nation."

Steelworkers Hit Memorial Day Shutdown

Washington, June 3 — Charging that "two days of very necessary production have been wantonly wasted," David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the United Steelworkers of America, today wired War Production Head Donald Nelson in protest against the Joliet, Ill., plant of the American Steel and Wire Co., for shutting down over Memorial Day to avoid paying overtime.

"The Joliet, Ill., plant of the American Steel and Wire Co. is an important supplier for the Rockford ordnance plant, and for some time has been operating six days a week. To avoid the payment of time and one-half this plant was shut down on Memorial Day, Monday, May 31, and again to avoid paying overtime was shut down Saturday, June 5," McDonald said.

"I believe this is a very deplorable situation and warrants your personal attention. The members of our union employed at this plant cannot understand why two days of very necessary production have been wantonly wasted."

Auxiliaries Fight Rising Prices

Washington, June 5 — "Help Check Prices to Help Beat Hitler" was the title of a simple and easily copied leaflet put out to local branches this week by the CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries, in cooperation with the CIO's drive to roll back prices to September, 1942 levels.

The leaflet, which was based on a CIO NEWS price control layout which the Auxiliaries aided in preparing, urged housewives to check store prices, watch weight of foods, report price ceiling violators, and refuse to buy from black markets.

The Auxiliaries urged local groups to copy the leaflet and see that it gets in the hands of every woman who buys for a CIO family.

Demand Equal Pay For Women In English War Plants

London, June 5—(ALN)—Resolutions calling for equal pay for equal work, full participation in labor-management committees and "all-out production for the offensive" were passed by the first convention of women members of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, held this week in Blackpool.

Women were admitted into the AEU on Jan. 1, this year, after a membership vote. Sixty-four thousand women were represented at the convention, presided over by Jack Tanner, AEU president.

"We want the same rates of pay as men," Mrs. Joan Finch, of Coventry, said in moving the resolution on women's wages. "We are doing the same kind of work, with equal results."

Another delegate declared: "We must think of the welfare of the lads away fighting. When they get back they must not find that employment of women has cut their wage rates."

ASK TRAINING

A resolution, unanimously adopted, demanded full training facilities for women and the assistance of skilled men in giving training courses, with training time to be reckoned as part of any qualifying period necessary to entitle women to higher rates.

"The idea that women engineers pick up as much as 15 pounds ($75) a week and spend the money on cocktails and fur coats is baloney," Mrs. Anne Henry of Manchester said.

"Low wages for women are holding up production and preventing many women from accepting part-time work. Some women with children who leave their homes to do part-time work are only getting one pound ($5 a week."

WAGES LOW

Average weekly wage for women in war industries is still only 56 shillings ($14).

The convention called for better food and housing for women workers, particularly those living away from home. "Many girls in the Midlands are going home for weekends in order to get a square meal," Mrs. Susan Williams of Colchester declared. "They go home Friday and don't return until the following Tuesday. Insufficient food and high charges for lodgings are two of the main causes of absenteeism."

Concluding the convention, Tanner stated: "Today we stand in sight of victory over fascism. Women represent one of the most powerful forces for winning this fight. Not only can they release men for the armed forces, but they themselves can increase production. The old prejudiced idea that women were merely makeshift workers, incapable of doing an engineering job, has been shattered."

Nazis Kill Unionists 1st in USSR

Kuibyshev, June 5 (ALN)—The first persons executed by German troops in the occupied areas last fall and winter were trade union officials, according to the eye-witness account of Maria Bondarenko, a North Caucasus union leader.

"Only three members of our regional committee failed to get away," she said. "Sergei Yanov was ill with tuberculosis, Dr. Anna Gendina's seven-year old son was in the hospital, and Efrosinya Zaitzeva was too old to travel.

"When we returned we found no traces of Sergei Yanov. Two months later, after the snow began to melt, we found his body in the city's outskirts with 300 murdered Soviet people. His eyes had been gouged out. His tongue had been cut off. His arms and legs had been broken."

JEWS KILLED

The day after the occupation, she said, all Jews were herded together at the railway station and loaded into freight cars. Five kilometers outside the city the women, old men and children below working age were driven into the steppes and shot.

"Dr. Gendina, our regional committee member, was saved by a miracle. She and her sick son hid for three months in a cellar opposite the headquarters of the Gestapo. It never occurred to the Gestapo that a Jewish union leader was concealed so close by.

"Efrosinya Zaitzeva, a scrubwoman in one of the municipal buildings, was arrested the first day and ordered to hand over the names of union members in the underground. Despite brutal beatings, she refused. At last she was sent with hundreds of others to an open concentration camp near Georgivsk.

"One night she escaped and made her way to her native village, where she was kept hidden until the Red Army settled accounts with the fascist butchers."

FDR Hails NMU War Pledge

NEW YORK, June 5 — The bravery of National Maritime Union crews and their death-defying determination to "keep 'em sailing" to crush the Axis were officially recognized this week by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In a letter to NMU President Joseph Curran, President Roosevelt thanked the crew of the Army transport S. S. Brazil for its pledge of "continued cooperation in our common endeavor to defeat the Axis."

The crew had written the President:

"We pledge to you, our Commander-in-Chief; we pledge to our freedom-loving people; we pledge to our fellow trade unionists throughout the world and especially to those in the countries where the iron heel of fascism has temporarily crushed the trade unions—that we will keep the ships so vitally needed for victory sailing and to do all in our power to bring about the complete defeat of the fascist menace to mankind.

"We know victory will not come easily. We are ready for win-the-war sacrifices. We urge you to take stronger measures against the "copperheads" of today who would disrupt the war effort and profiteer on the people.

HITS DISRUPTERS

"We urge you to use your good office to secure the punishment of those who disrupt the war effort by anti-labor and anti-Negro attacks and campaigns.

"We urge you to use your office to secure the equal representation of organized labor on all boards vital to production for victory."

Win Security Clause

Franklin, Va., June 5—The Natl. War Labor Board this week ordered a maintenance of membership clause and check-off collection of union dues in a contract between the Camp Mfg. Co. and the United Timber & Lumberyard Workers, a CIO local industrial union.

WASHINGTON, June 5—The CIO NEWS this week publishes the last of several lists of voting records, of Congressmen from major states, on issues vital to the war.

Five major isues have been selected: 1) continuation of the Dies Committee; 2) setting up the Smith universal smear committee to "investigate" government agencies; 3) the Ruml grab plan which would forgive taxes for the rich; 4) the Hobbs bill to bust unions; and 5) an amendment denying incentive payments to small farmers. Here's an Antidote To Pegler!

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 5—Furnishing at least one employer press antidote to the anti-labor smears of Westbrook Pegler, a kind word was spoken for organized workers this week by Damon Runyon, well known columnist, in the Wilkes-Barre TIMES LEADER. Citing the "prodigious output" of American ships, munitions, aircraft, tanks and guns, Runyon wrote:

"Does this sound as if our workers were guilty of the absenteeism to the extent alleged by persons who made a regular business of going up and down the land crying the accusation?

"In the past few weeks we have not heard a great deal about absenteeism. Perhaps the windy accusers paused long enough to examine the production figures and realized the absurdity of their charges."

"I know a fellow who works in a big shipyard at 81 cents per hour," Runyon said. "For the first three months he worked six days a week, totalling 52 hours, that is with time and a half for Saturday.

"Thus his earnings for the week were $42.12. Then came the deductions: $3.75 for bonds, $1.50 victory tax, 84 cents social tax, 25 cents for insurance, 25 cents for cigarettes for men in the Navy. Subtract an additional $2.40 for carfare.

"That left him a net of $33.13 on the week. He has two children. Out of his $33.13 he paid for food, rent, and clothes and other expenses of the average household.

"He used to go to the movies once a week with his kids, but he has been compelled to forgo that recreation because of a wonderful windfall, for which he has been most grateful.

"'Thank God,' he says,' the last two months I have worked seven days a week, making $45.15 with all the deductions. My daily routine now is work, supper, bed. I dare not take a day off because I can't afford it and I don't want to be called an absentee."

Steel Firm Flouts NLRB

Cleveland, O., June 5—Shades of 1935! The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. this week openly—and fruitlessly—flaunted the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

Prior to an election among plant guards won by the United Steelworkers of America 37 to 15, the firm sent the guards a letter, which said among other things:

"Any plant guard who does not wish to continue as a part of management, who believes his interests require representation, and feels that he is more a part of the production and maintenance group than the management staff, will, upon request, be transferred to an equivalent production or maintenance occupation."

William F. Donovan, OPA district director, said that the company letter was sent after the NLRB had ruled the guards were eligible for union membership, and constituted intimidation and was in violation of the law.

UE, Amalgamated Blast Lewis As War Disrupter

NEW YORK, June 5—Statements branding John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, as a disrupter of the war effort were issued this week by two CIO unions, the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, in their official publications.

In an editorial entitled, "Lewis Bombs the War Plants," the UE NEWS said:

"Lewis is not fighting Roosevelt for the sake of the miners. He is, to use a military term, 'expending' his miners, ruthlessly throwing them and their interests to destruction to advance his war on the Administration. He is perfectly willing, even anxious, to do the same with the entire labor movement.

"Lewis' maneuvers to unite the anti-Administration forces, his attempts to break down the home front with a strike wave, must be met by labor with direct and uncompromising repudiation.

"His move for unity of the Quislings must be met by labor unity behind the war effort and behind the victory policies of the Administration."

EMSPAK WIRES FDR

In a wire to President Roosevelt, on behalf of the UE, Sec.-Treas. Julius Emspak urged Roosevelt to "direct John L. Lewis to call off the coal strike at once and that if he refuses you act immediately to make it impossible for him and his henchmen to continue to organize disruption of coal production."

In the Amalgamated's official organ, the ADVANCE, the union stated:

"The wage situation is not a healthy one. All the effort and the goodwill of the best labor leadership went overboard in the face of the demagogy of the intriguing Mine Workers Union leader when he set out to wage his one-man war on the United States.

"On all sides in the labor field, things were done and words were said or not said, all with a view to what those things or words would mean in the face of that man's challenge to the country and his bid for a following among the workers in all industries.

"In a sincerely united labor movement, no such browbeating would be conceivable," the ADVANCE added, calling for labor unity now as an aid to the war effort.

48-Hour Steel Week Order Big Victory for USA

WASHINGTON, June 5—Instructions providing for the extension of the 48-hour week to all branches of the steel industry by August 1, were issued this week by the War Manpower Commission. The order was a big victory for the United Steelworkers of America, which urged extension of the work week as an aid to the war effort. The regulation confirms the General Order issued May 1, despite the objections of representatives of industry.

The order provides that management must consult with the union on hiring or firing of workers affected by the regulation.

Under the order, plants which cannot obtain a minimum wartime work week of 48 hours by July 1 must submit by that date a release schedule indicating when workers made available by increased hours of work can be released.

The new instructions require that workers released under the provision must be released by Aug. 1, except in exceptional cases requiring special approval.

USA Pres. Philip Murray this week sent out a letter of instructions to all the union's district directors, staff representatives and local unions, informing them of the provisions of the WMP's directive and asking each district director or local union representative involved to keep "in constant contact with the proper regional Manpower Director to assure that the union will be consulted on all the important decisions in the manner required by the instructions."

Shipworkers' Price Survey

Camden, N. J., June 5—A six months' survey of prices in major boom town waterfront cities of the nation will be made by the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers Union to double check on Bureau of Labor Statistics figures, the organization announced this week.

The union charged that "no government agency is considering the fact that shipyard areas have higher prices than the rest of the country. When the BLS surveys prices in a city, it does not go into a shipyard area as such, but takes the average for the city as a whole."

Meet Lou Maxon— He Fights Price Control, Hoards Food

Washington, June 5 — Here's a sidelight—and a pretty blinding one, at that—on Lou R. Maxon, the big advertising man who opposes price control, grade labeling and subsidies, and who does it from the next desk to Chief Prentiss Brown in the OPA.

Out on the beach at Onaway, Mich., Mr. Maxon has a summer lodge, where he escapes the heat with his good customers from the canning industry. To stock up that lodge, Mr. Maxon demanded and got permits for this much food: 416 pounds of sugar, 169 pounds of coffee, 7,812 points worth of processed foods and 12,108 points worth of meat.

This little example of hoarding was turned up by R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW-CIO, who has written to Prentiss Brown to ask how come and to point out: "If Mr. Maxon is guilty of obtaining foodstuffs and ration food points in contravention of the regulations of OPA, he should be immediately dismissed from his OPA position and held to strict accountability under the law."

Vol. VI, No. 24 | 82 | June 14, 1943 | Entered as Second Class Matter, Post Office, Washington, D. C., under the Act of Aug. 24, 1912 and Feb. 28, 1925. | $1 a Year, 3c a Copy

MAJOR CAUSE: Based on a study made by the Aircraft War Production Council, this chart, designed and drawn by Marika Hellstrom for MEDICAL CARE, shows that 74% of absenteeism in the aircraft industry is due to sickness; 11.9% to transportation difficulties; 8.3% because of illness or death in workers' families; and 5.2% due to other causes. Well, Strike Me Pink! Bosses' 'Mag' Tells the Truth

NEW YORK, June 12—Credit to Labor-Management Production Committees for improving industrial relations and employers' statements that absenteeism "is a badly overused word" highlight a lead article on war-booming Bridgeport, written by Robert Cruise McManus in the June 12 issue of Liberty magazine.

McManus writes:

"Listen to what Editor George Waldo of the Post says about absenteeism, that bogey that has caused his colleagues in other parts of the country to break out with the tizzie-wizzies:

"'This talk about absenteeism is a lot of ranting. Absenteeism is something like this: A woman with four children can't get to her job at the factory because one of them wakes up with the whooping cough.

"'I'd like to see some of these complaining editors submit themselves to the discipline of a factory. I'd like to see 'em separated from their families and packed into a hole-and-corner roominghouse, or forced to commute God knows how many miles at God knows what hours of the day and night. Maybe they'd know a little more about what absenteeism means'."

Win 5% Pay Hike

Atlanta, Ga., June 12—A five per cent pay increase retroactive to May 1 was negotiated this week by the United Steelworkers of America in a contract renewal with the Southern Spring Bed Co.

The pact also provides for 10 minute rest periods every four hours, and allows the union to solicit membership on company property.

Bittner on Natl. Hookup With Security Talk

Washington, June 12—Van A. Bittner, chairman of the CIO's Social Security Committee, will speak on a nation-wide broadcast at 6:15 p.m. (EWT), June 14, over the NBC Blue Network on the new amendments to the Social Security system proposed by Senators Wagner and Murray and Rep. Dingell, (Mich.).

Bittner, who is assistant to the president of the United Steelworkers of America, has worked determinedly, as chairman of the CIO Committee, for the introduction of the bill into Congress.

He has pointed out that the CIO for years has pushed for extension of the Social Security law to provide greater protection for more workers against unemployment, old age, sickness and other social hazards.

Longshore Union 100% For CIO War Policies

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 12—Adopting in its entirety the win-the-war program of President Murray and the CIO and pledging unequivocal support for the policies of President Roosevelt, the fifth biennial convention of the Intl. Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union concluded here this week with nomination of officers.

The convention, the union's first since America entered the war, began on June 4 with a keynote from President Harry Bridges in which he declared that the only alternative to unity of labor and the people to win the war would be unity in concentration camps.

Delegates numbered 135 from all parts of the country. The entire proceedings of the first day were recorded by the Office of War Information for broadcasting in Australia, New Zealand, England and other countries.

Among distinguished guests addressing the convention were Reid Robinson, president of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, and R. Lal Singh of the Indian National Congress. James Thimmes, regional director of the United Steelworkers of America, represented President Murray.

DENOUNCE LEWIS

John L. Lewis was denounced both in the officer's report adopted by the convention and by resolution. While the demands of the coal miners were held to be justified, Lewis was branded "the single most effective agent of the Fascist powers within the ranks of labor" and "a Fascist in his own right."

A resolution in support of President Roosevelt called upon him "to make every demand or request of labor" and said "we pledge ourselves to give everything we can in fighting men, production, in money and in patriotism to enable the United Nations to smash forward into Europe until our drive ends in the heart of Germany and the military destruction of the fascist axis has been achieved."

HIT DEPORTATION ORDER

The Attorney General's deportation order against Harry Bridges was recognized "as an attack upon our union and each of its members, and an outrage against the democracy which we are struggling to preserve in the present war against fascism", also as "an attempt to negate our right to choose our own leaders and a blow at the nation's war effort to which our president has so energetically devoted himself."

The convention pushed the CIO Maritime Plan as necessary to bring efficiency to shipping and backed up Bridges' demand for the removal of Chairman Paul Eliel of the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board.

Per capita was raised from 50 cents to 65 cents per month and the delegates voted to give probationary members voice in meetings and called for admission to full membership after six months.

The speech of Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek made to members of Local 10 on March 29 was played to the convention by transcription and an answer was recorded with Bridges and a cross section of delegates taking part. The next evening the record was presented to the Chinese Consul at a banquet where the Chinese people of San Francisco presented a gold-embroidered scroll in appreciation of the ILWU's refusal to handle scrap iron for Japan in 1938.

'For This We Fight'—June 19

Washington, June 12—The current broadcast on a new series of programs on post war issues, entitled "For This We Fight," will be heard at 7 p.m. (EWT) on the NBC Red Network, and will feature as a guest speaker John Foster Dulles, of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—From many industries in all parts of the state, about 300 delegates alternates and visitors attended the convention of the Tennessee CIO Industrial Union Council held here June 5-6.

Allan S. Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization, and John Brophy, director of Industrial Union Councils, represented the national CIO at the meeting.

Reporting that CIO unions in the state had taken in 15,000 new members during the year, Paul Christopher, president of the State Council, who was re-lected by acclamation for another term, told the delegates that the number of locals and members lost when the United Mine Workers withdrew last year from CIO had been considerably more than made up.

The Council's financial status, he reported, was better that it was a year ago. Calling attention to the significant fact that all bills designed to cripple labor had been defeated in the General Assembly, while the bill eliminating the poll tax had been passed, Christopher said that these victories were due to the combined legislative action of the CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods.

GREETINGS TO FDR

In a resolution of greetings to President Roosevelt, the delegates voted to extend full and wholehearted support to him "for the achievement of complete victory over the enemies of democracy."

Calling for continuation of the war until the enemy had unconditionally surrendered, the message to President Roosevelt urged "the launching of a great European offensive to create the preconditions for breaking the backbone of Hitlerism."

In addition to President Christopher, the delegates elected 11 vice-presidents to form an executive board of 12.

CIO Takes Off Gloves in Food Subsidy Fight

WASHINGTON, June 12—CIO went into full action on the Congress food front this week, with demands for subsidy payments to make the food price rollback possible, to increase war food production, and to strengthen the few measures already taken by OPA.

As CIO stepped in, Congress defeatists were working over-time to block the plan of using war funds for a rollback of living costs, to protect the war workers from inflation and the farmers and small business men from a price squeeze.

The anti-rollback mob in Congress is led by such people as Senators Smith (polltaxer, S. C.), Taft (R., O.), Wheeler (D., Mont.), Bushfield (R., S. D.) and in the House by Representatives Patman (polltaxer, Tex.), Wollcott (R., Mich.), Smith (polltaxer, Va.), and others whose character is doubtfully anti-fascist.

Of these, Senator Bushfield has been active in promoting a bill (S. 1143) in the Senate Agriculture Committee that flatly forbids use of any money for subsidies to cut back the cost of food, while "Cotton-Ed" Smith has been bellowing against subsidies in the same committee, and the others have been sounding off at regular intervals in both Senate and House — all agreed on one thing—subsidies are terrible when they are used to give the war workers and consumers a break on the food budget.

SLIGHT SHOCK

They got a slight shock, however, when Donald Montgomery, UAW-CIO consumer counsel, reminded the Senators at the Agriculture hearing that both House and Senate restaurants in the Capitol are subsidized by free rent and $30,000 cash a year to keep the cost of Congressional snacks down to reasonable levels.

Montgomery, who was followed on the stand by Jack Zucker for the United Shoe Workers, Hoyt Haddock for the CIO maritime unions, and Don Henderson for the Cannery and Agricultural Workers, was emphatic in pointing out that CIO does not want a rollback at the expense of farmers or of processors, and that the only way the rollback can be accomplished is through use of subsidy payments.

"It is perfectly clear that the rollback is not going to be taken out of farmers or processors or distributors," he said. "Therefore, if Congress prohibits the use of subsidies for rolling prices back, it is prohibiting the rollback. That prohibition would defeat the President's stabilization program."

USE SUBSIDIES ELSEWHERE

Montgomery also pointed out that the subsidy method is in use, and has long been in use, on agriculture and other industries, and that "opposition only comes when subsidies are used to roll back prices or to prevent further price increases."

Without the rollback, we will have inflation, he said, "and inflation has no ceiling. How much is it worth to us to hold the line while we are fighting this war?"

Henderson called for subsidies both to make the rollback a reality and to increase food output, also stressing the CIO position against taking rollback costs out of the hide of the farmers.

ASK ROLLBACK NOW

"The most immediate type of subsidy program is one which will make a rollback of prices possible," he said. "The second type should go directly to farmers for the purpose of aiding them in conversion to war crops, increasing production, and absorbing their higher costs."

A concrete warning of what runaway prices mean to war workers and war production was given by a USA-CIO official from Philadelphia, S. W. Baldwin, who cited huge increases in his area to prove that "it is impossible to hold the line by stabilizing wages and letting prices run haywire" as is happening now.

Meantime, on the other side, every business association with an inflationary axe to grind was busy on Capitol hill, trying to block food cost reductions, trying to wreck the whole idea of price control and enforcement of the President's hold-the-line order.

Labor will have to do a great deal more to halt this conspiracy against the nation's food basket and against the people's living standards.

Win $120,000 Pay Award

LOS ANGELES, June 12—Back pay totaling almost $120,000 was awarded this week to 4,000 workers at the North American Aviation plant in Inglewood, under contract with the United Auto Workers Union.

The award covers employes not paid overtime or Sunday premium pay from February 15 to May 1, 1942. It was granted by a three-man arbitration panel after the case had dragged on for almost a year.

UAW officials estimated that average back pay will run to about $30 per worker .

Crawford, director of USA district 35. The wedding was held in the shell finishing department of the plant, with the cooperation of the management, to save time of workers intent on boosting production to beat the Axis.

Keep Your Eye on Congress

House and Senate conferees have agreed on a union-blasting version of the Smith-Connally-Lewis bill (S 796) which was waiting final agreement by both Houses as the CIO News went to press.

After passage, the final step left is to appeal for a veto by President Roosevelt. The President should be getting thousands of wires and letters urging this veto now, in the interest of national unity, morale and war production.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the 1943 "pay-as-you-go" tax measure that forgives 75 per cent of all 1942 tax liability. Next step of Congressional reactionaries is to press for a general sales tax. The fight against the sales tax will take everything we have, and must be begun at once.

The Senate has done the right thing in voting to restore funds to the Farm Security Administration in HR 2481, the Agriculture Appropriation bill. It now goes to the House again for final approval. Wire your Congressman for support.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Smith-Conally (S 796)	Knocks out union security, forbids political action by unions, subjects workers to severe criminal punishment, etc.	Before Senate, final action expected early this week.	If passed, wire FDR for veto.
1943 tax bill	Action to date forgives 75% of 1942 liability.	President's signature expected this week. Strong Congress push for sales tax to follow signature.	Write, wire, visit Senators and Representatives against sales tax, for CIO win-war tax program.
Social Security changes. (S 1161, HR 2861)	Extends scope of all benefits, big step to real security.	To Senate Finance and House Ways and Means Committees, hearings to begin soon.	Write your Senators and Representative for.
Polltax repeal. (HR 7)	Repeals polltax bar to 10 million voters.	Passed House, now in sub-committee of Senate Judiciary, headed by Senator McCarren (D. Nev.).	Urge immediate re-report out from sub-committee, ask Senators to vote for cloture to stop filibuster.
Lucas (S 1089)	Keeps election polling places open from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m., helps war workers vote.	Senate sub-committee on Elections.	Write your Senators for.

FOOD CRISIS

Hunger-bloc leaders in House and Senate are moving into the open in the fight to kill subsidy plan as aid to price rollback, increased food production. Tory and defeatist Senators like Taft (R., Ohio), Wheeler (D.. Mont.), Smith (polltaxer, S. C.), et al., are preparing new bans on use of subsidies to cut living costs for war workers, all consumers. ACTION: This sabotage of war workers' health and of war production can be halted, if CIO members demand House and Senate action to make rollback possible through subsidy payments. The issue is urgent; your habit of eating depends on what Congress does.

WASHINGTON, June 12—The Smith-Connally bill (S 796) came out of House and Senate conference this week with as strong an anti-victory color as its defeatist sponsors felt they could put into it. As The CIO NEWS went to press, the bill appeared headed for final passage and for delivery to the President for signature or veto.

As it stood this week, the bill might be interpreted to bar union security awards or decisions from the War Labor Board. It would require a 30-day "cooling-off" period before a strike, would slap drastic criminal penalties on anyone who takes part in, helps or "conspires" to call a strike, and would ban political activity by unions through banning political contributions.

In a final appeal to Senators and Congressmen to abandon the self-induced anti-labor frenzy whipped up under cover of the John L. Lewis strike in the coal fields, CIO Legislative Representative Nathan Cowan wired to Congressmen and Senators urging them, "in the interest of national unity and morale," to vote against "this disastrous bill."

"The issue is more than a matter of justice and fair play to American workers," Cowan wired. "The Connally bill, by subjecting workers to severe criminal penalties, by knocking down the security and other protections the unions have won, and by barring other normal and patriotic labor activities, is a serious wedge driven into the solid front all our people must present to the enemy.

"Such a split will give our enemies great satisfaction and will make the task of winning victory that much harder. To avoid ranging the majority of Congress alongside the enemies of victory and democracy, I again urge you in the name of five million loyal American men and women to vote against this disastrous bill."

Only one step will remain after final Congress passage of the bill —a veto by President Roosevelt.

Murray to Byrnes:

Give Labor Voice To Help Win The War!

WASHINGTON, June 12—Setting up of the Office of War Mobilization, to act as top war agency in Washington, is "a decisive step forward in the development of unified programs and policies" that needs "concrete acts consistent with the objectives set by our Commander-in-Chief" to bring out its full value as a win-the-war move, CIO President Philip Murray said this week in a letter to James F. Byrnes, head of the new agency.

Basic step in making the OWM function at top efficiency is to recognize "the need for the participation of labor in the formulation and administration of its policies," Murray said.

"Only half-hearted measures" have been taken to roll back prices, and some Administration representatives have actually testified in opposition ot subsidies, Murray said in urging Byrnes to put into effect the mandate of Congress and of the President to roll back prices to the level of September 15, 1942, and to see that necessary subsidies are obtained.

FORCEFUL TAX POLICY

He urged the OWM to adopt "a forthright and forceful policy" on taxes to discourage "sales taxes or other regressive measures" overburdening "those who can least afford to pay."

Murray criticized the present "crazy-quilt approach" to manpower problems and advocated the "organization and scheduling of our production in coordination and conjunction with an analysis of our manpower distribution and with an eye to the important manpower problems of housing, transportation, child care and sanitation facilities."

Murray's letter dealt with the price rollback in some detail, saying:

"Congress has enacted a law, and President Roosevelt has issued a directive, to the effect that prices should be stabilized as of the September 15, 1942, level. This is a commitment to the American people but the job entrusted to various officials has not been done and only half-hearted measures have been attempted.

URGES SUBSIDIES

"A program of subsidies which is essential if the roll back is to be effectuated has not been vigorously supported and practically no attempt has been made to stop the selfish pressure groups in Congress from defeating this policy.

"Administration representatives such as Chester Davis, Food Administrator, have actually testified in opposition to the policy of subsidies, thereby actually opposing the roll back of prices. The effective rent control of the OPA is being seriously threatened by real estate groups which are exercising their pressure on the OPA and in Congress.

"You are now obligated, as the Director of the Office of War Mobilization, to put into effect the mandate of Congress and of the President of the United States that prices be rolled back to the level of September 15, 1942.

"Whatever appropriations may be necessary by way of subsidies to accomplish this end should be obtained.

"The OPA should be strengthened in its policies in regard to prices, rent control and rationing and given vigorous and unstinted support when carrying them out."

PRAISES OWM

In concluding his letter to Byrnes, Murray again praised the setting up of the OWM as laying "the groundwork for an important surge in our productive apparatus."

Victory for Democracy!

Bosses Can't Pay Negro Less Than White Man

WASHINGTON, June 12—Ordering the abolition of pay differentials between white and Negro workers performing equal work, the War Labor Board this week unanimously ruled that wage classifications based solely on difference in race were without validity.

The case involved the employes of the Southport Petroleum Co., Texas City, Tex., who are represented by the CIO Oil Workers Intl. Union.

The WLB ordered the company to grant wage increases to its Negro employes which would "place them on a basis of economic parity with the white workers in the same classification."

Declaring that "economic and political discrimination on account of race or creed is in line with the Nazi program," the Board's opinion written by Dr. Frank P. Graham, public member, pointed out that "America in the days of its infant weakness" had served as a haven for "heretics and the oppressed of all races," and must not "in the days of its power become the stronghold of bigots."

"There is no more loyal group of our fellow citizens than the American Negroes, North and South," the opinion stated.

"In defense of America from attack from without, they spring to arms in the spirit of Dorie Miller of Texas, the Negro mess boy, who, when the machine gunner on the Arizona was killed, jumped to his unappointed place and fired the last rounds as the ship was sinking in Pearl Harbor."

A Witches-Brew

A witches-brew of labor-baiting venom and disruption has been concocted by Senate and House conferees, to poison industrial relations and to undermine the morale of America's loyal war workers.

It has been labeled the Smith-Connally bill and includes most of the worst features of the different anti-union measures passed by both houses of Congress.

Most of the ingredients of this alleged compromise bill come from the quack-medicine chest of Rep. Howard Smith, the most notorious labor-baiter in Congress.

As chief stooge of union-busting employers, Smith has for years led nearly every legislative attack on labor, and he has now at last succeeded in slipping over some of the worst of his nostrums.

The Smith-Connally bill is supposed to be an anti-strike measure directed chiefly against the strike-incitement of John L. Lewis. But actually its chief impact will be felt by millions of organized workers who are faithfully observing their no-strike pledge and producing to the limit, and who have no sympathy with Lewis' policies.

The bill goes far beyond its alleged anti-strike purposes to undermine the right to organize, to destroy the protections furnished by strong unions, and to disrupt the work of the War Labor Board.

Completely unrelated to its anti-strike declarations, for instance, is its blatant attempt to restrict the democratic political activities of organized workers, by denying unions the right to contribute to political campaigns.

This would leave wealthy individuals and families still free to exercise undue political influence through large personal contributions, while denying to low-paid workers the right to offset this influence by pooling their political support.

The insertion of this provision in itself reflects the uneasy conscience and political fears of the members of Congress responsible for the Smith-Connally bill.

They know that labor is keeping score for '44, and they are desperately trying to weaken the political influence which the workers will bring to bear against their enemies in the next elections.

At this writing, the conference report on the Smith-Connally bill awaits final passage by both Houses. If it is passed when you read this, labor's only recourse will be to call on Pres. Roosevelt to veto this vicious blow at war unity and morale. Let him hear from you without delay.

Let The People Vote

There's one bill before Congress that is much more important than it might seem at first sight. It's Senator Lucas' bill (S. 1089) to keep election polling places open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Our country suffered a major defeat at the last elections, because some 20 million people failed to vote. The greater proportion of these absentees from the polls were men in the armed forces and war workers—both groups which constitute the backbone of win-the-war and progressive politics.

As a result, many anti-New Deal, obstructionist and even defeatist Congressmen were elected, and the present Congress has had a disgraceful record of labor-baiting, administration-baiting and block-the-war activities.

A recent Gallup poll estimated that 58% of the country's war workers failed to vote in the last elections.

This was partly due to many moving from one state to another on war jobs and not being able to establish voting rights, and to the preoccupation of others with their war work.

But it was also due in large part to the fact that polling places were closed at the only time many war workers could go to them without being absent from their jobs. And the difficulties of getting to the polls have been greatly increased by wartime transportation conditions.

There is even evidence in some instances that companies deliberately made the workers work overtime to prevent their voting.

Passage of the Lucas bill is one of the first measures that must be taken to insure that all war workers have a chance to vote at the next elections —to maintain the vigor and effectiveness of our democracy.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

THE Senators were probably quite annoyed when Donald Montgomery told them they benefit from a subsidy themselves—which cuts the cost of their meals in the Senate restaurant.

According to our dictionary, the word subsidy "often carries a derogatory implication"—presumably when you refer to what the other fellow gets.

When an industrialist gets a brand-new plant built at government expense, he doesn't consider himself "subsidized." He can think up all kinds of other words for it.

So can all the other special interests that have been dipping into the public purse for decades.

So the Senators must have thought it rather blunt of the UAW-CIO consumers' counsel to apply the word "subsidy" to their own price-controlled chow.

The only time the word's considered quite in order, it seems, is when Uncle Sam is asked to spend some money, not to assist a private enterprise, but for the benefit of the whole American people.

Many well-subsidized hands are today raised in horror at the very thought of the government spending any money to roll back living costs and prevent inflation.

The issue is quite simple. Prices have gotten out of hand, because the supply of food and other living necessities lags far behind the demand.

To bring living costs under control, steps must be taken from two directions.

On the one hand, everything possible must be done to increase production, particularly of food.

The usual stimulus of increased prices cannot be applied, because that in itself means more inflation. So the only alternative is incentive payments and subsidies for farmers, and credits for small farmers who can't produce without them.

Such steps will increase food production, without higher prices and without hurting the farmers.

But the war's demands are so great that, even with increased food production, supply will still lag behind demand.

Immediate steps must therefore also be taken, from the consumers' end, to ration all necessities, so everyone may get his fair share, and to roll back runaway retail prices.

But when you cut prices, someone down the line is going to get squeezed unless measures are taken for his protection.

If the retail storekeeper is made to cut his prices, he takes a loss, unless the wholesaler also reduces prices.

In that case, the wholesaler takes a loss unless the processor supplies him at lower prices. But the processor won't do this, unless he can similarly squeeze the farmer and pay him less for the raw products.

Neither the working farmer nor the small businessman can endure such a squeeze, and labor opposes price reductions at their expense. The CIO, in fact, has repeatedly demanded full protection for them in any price-control measures.

The manufacturers, processors and big business distributors, on the other hand, do enjoy sufficient profits to absorb many price decreases; and the CIO has long demanded price reductions through cutting down inflated profits.

But experience has shown that Congress will do little or nothing to cut into this profit margin, and that big business interests are expert as passing on any squeeze applied to them.

So the only way retail prices can immediately be rolled back, without hurting the farmer or small businessman, is by government subsidies to assure them a fair return at the reduced prices.

In Britain and other countries, living costs are successfully controlled through subsidies. The British spend from three to four billion dollars a year for this purpose—which is a small price, in relation to other war costs, to prevent the horrors of inflation.

In the United States, the administration has proposed to spend a mere half-billion to roll back some prices.

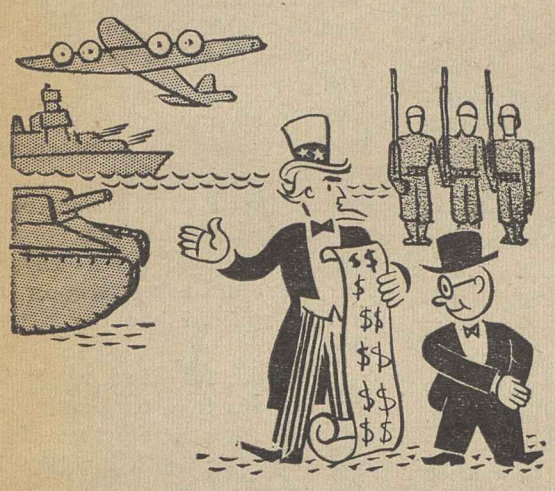
Yet even this small step in the necessary direction has provoked strenuous opposition from the big business "farm bloc" and processors—who want higher prices—and from every reactionary in Congress. And Food Administrator Chester Davis has supported this opposition.

The CIO, for its part, calls for appropriation of at least two billion dollars for subsidies to roll back living costs.

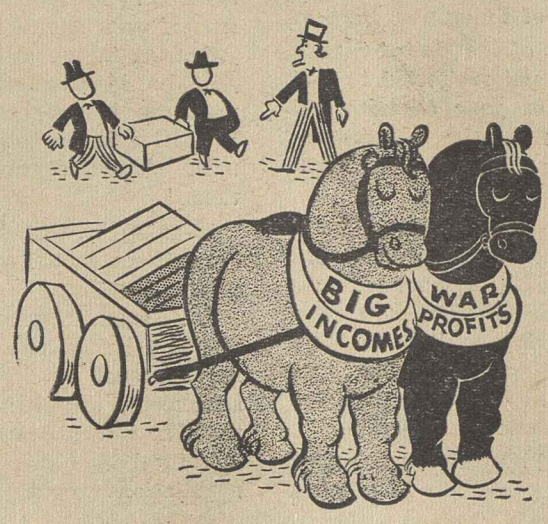
The battle between the people and the profiteers is now raging in Congress on this issue. If the profiteers win, nothing can stop inflation. If the people win, prices can be rolled back and a long step will have been taken toward victory.

Watch Congress! Halt Move for a Sales Tax!

Your 1943 tax bill is on deck. Now that the "pay-as-you-go" debate is out of the way, Congress is getting down to the KIND AND AMOUNT you will be paying. Seventy-five per cent of 1942 income tax liability has been forgiven—which is a special bonus to the rich. The deficit caused by this handout has to be made up. Already in Congress and in the daily papers they're beating the drums for a general sales tax on everything you eat or use. Below are CIO's arguments for a real win-the-war tax program, against the sales tax.



BIG MONEY is needed to help win the war—$16 billion of it in taxes, the President has said. No American who wants to win the war objects to paying his share of the freight for tanks, planes, ships, guns to blast the Hitler Axis off the earth. Taxes are part of victory; they must be fixed at the right levels and taken from the right sources to fit in with the picture of total mobilization of all our resources for total war. The CIO tax program calls for just this: a win-the-war plan based on ability to pay.

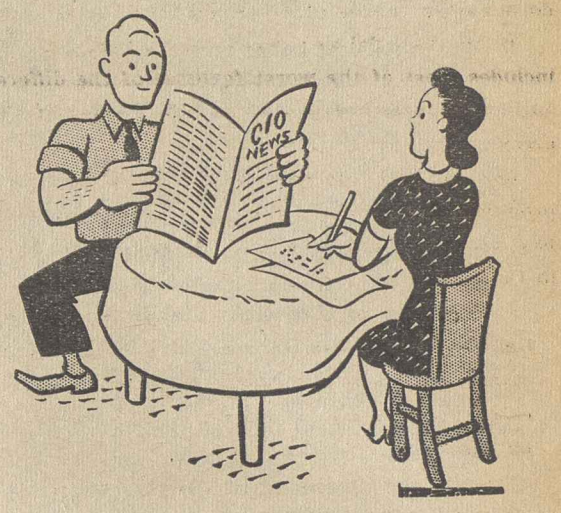


FOR A WIN-THE-WAR tax program, we must put swollen incomes and inflated excess profits to work. These two fat sources have scarcely been tapped, despite all the outcry about "soaking the rich." Congress has knocked out the $67,000 limit on gross incomes; the 1943 tax bill should restore it. Increased income taxes in the big brackets and much higher taxes on war profits are a No. 1 must to make this team work for victory. To harness this team, YOU must make this point in all your letters to your Congressmen on the tax bill.

TAXES MUST WORK as part of a plan to guarantee enough food to workers and all people to keep them healthy for their war jobs. Living costs are away up. Taxes on low incomes are dangerously high now; any increase will take that much more out of the family food basket. We must demand of Congress that low income people receive higher income tax exemptions, that there be no increase in the ratse that already reach down to the $15 a week- level. This is not "special privilege" for the poor; it is common sense to keep living standards and war work efficiency up.

EVERY YEAR billions of dollars are lost to the war through loopholes in the tax laws, that favor small groups. These include tax-free bonds and securities, separate income tax returns for wealthy couples, special bonuses to certain kinds of business, etc. This waste by tax evasion must be stopped by closing these leaks. Every tax evasion that is allowed to continue means more burdens on low incomes, means that much less money for victory, brings a general sales tax on everything you eat and use that much nearer.

WORST OF ALL anti-victory taxes is the sales tax. The sales tax bears down most heavily on the workers, since it takes the same percentage out of the $20 a week wage-earner as it takes out of the $50,000 a year coupon-clipper. It is, in other words, a straight wage cut, and it's sneaking up behind your paycheck now. A wage cut would be an economic disaster, especially in the middle of the war. A sales tax is the same thing—an economic defeat just as bad as a military defeat. Make your demand loud and clear to Congress—NO SALES TAX.



THE TAX QUESTION may look complicated—in fact, tax bills are usually made to look that way. Yet the tax question is one you have to think about and understand. Follow the tax bill through Congress—THE CIO NEWS will help you keep track and keep after Congress. James F. Byrnes, head of the Office of War Mobilization in Washington, is going to have a lot to say about taxes. Write to him too. REMEMBER: Big taxes on big money; low taxes on low incomes; close loopholes; NO SALES TAX.

CIO Pushes Bill To Aid Child Care

WASHINGTON, June 12—CIO support for a child-care bill (S 1130) offered by Sen. Thomas (D., Utah) was expressed this week by Kermit Eby, assistant to Economic Director J. Raymond Walsh, by Eleanor Fowler, secretary-treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries; and by Catherine Gelles, UAW-CIO auxiliary leader.

The three CIO witnesses pointed to the critical need for facilities to care for children of working women, a need that is particularly acute now that summer vacations from school are coming on.

Eby said: "It is impossible for many workers to pay $1 a day to keep their children supervised. Approximately 100,000 children have been taken care of, under Lanham Act and other grants. There are estimates that at least one million need supervision. It is obvious that $20,000,000 is not enough. We need five times as much."

Mrs. Gelles's testimony dealt in some detail with the Detroit situation, where about 350,000 women are employed, one-third of them mothers. Yet Detroit has only 15 child care centers, at which parents must pay $6 a week out of low wages for their kids.

"Now we are concerned with the women who make this machinery run—and with their children who must be cared for. One hundred million dollars is not too much to appropriate for democracy's children in wartime."

The responsibility of the Federal Government to see that adequate child care is provided is clear," Mrs. Fowler said. "In order to permit the Federal Government to meet the problem the Thomas bill must be amended to provide that 75 per cent of the cost be met out of federal funds, and at least $100,000,000 be appropriated for child care projects."

Senate Shuns Defeatists; To Vote Money for FSA

WASHINGTON, June 12—In a positive move—one of the few that can be credited to Congress in recent months—the Senate this week defied House defeatists and the hunger-bloc Wall Street farmers by restoring the appropriation for the Farm Security Administration.

The vote for FSA, 66 to 12, came at a time when Food Administrator Chester Davis was reporting the poorest crop prospects in three years, due partly to weather but chiefly to lack of planning for victory food production.

Farm Security, which has had the full support of the CIO, has been highly successful in helping small farmers to get into full food production, and has aided greatly in the production of essential crops as opposed to over-production of un-needed crops such as short staple cotton and tobacco, of which the nation already has huge surpluses.

Before voting the funds for FSA, the Senate defeated an attempt by Sen. Byrd (polltaxer, Va.) to hamstring the agency by transferring it to the Farm Credit Administration, controlled by "Farm Bloc" lobbyists.

Earlier this week, the CIO sent out a hurry call to all affiliates for wires and letters to the Senate for a favorable vote on FSA in the Agriculture Appropriation bill. The call, wired out by CIO Legislative Representative Nathan Cowan, cited the FSA record in helping small farmers step up production.

Pres. Murray Welds To Nation's Battle

"Must reading" for all who want to know national CIO policy are the following excerpts from an extemporaneous speech by President Philip Murray at the recent enlarged meeting of the CIO Executive Board in Cleveland. It reveals the constructive and patriotic attitude of the CIO and its president, and the substantial results achieved for labor and the country by the CIO's win-the-war policies.

The following speech, published for the first time, along with extracts from other important speeches made by Pres. Murray during the Cleveland conference, will shortly be printed in pamphlet form.

* * *

For a period of approximately one year your organization has conducted a fight to establish throughout the United States of America a system of equitable, universal, democratic rationing of all essential and necessary commodities.

Price Control Fight

At the same time it has waged a battle to make effective price control. It has fought in the halls of Congress for effective price control.

It has conducted the same kind of fight within the councils of every governmental war agency in the city of Washington, beginning with the White House and right through the office of the Director of Economic Stabilization, Mr. Justice Byrnes, through the Office of Price Administration, through the Office of the War Manpower Commissioner, through the National War Labor Board, and through the Procurement Divisions of the Federal Government as well.

It may be well for me at this time to enumerate chronologically the actions that have been taken by your organization, beginning with November, 1942, the time at which you defined your policy through the medium of the Boston CIO convention, and follow through from there.

Insofar as the War Labor Board is concerned, at the 1942 CIO convention, a statement of policy was adopted regarding the activities of the War Labor Board. That statement of policy met with the unanimous approval of all of the delegates.

The meeting of our CIO Regional War Labor Board representatives adopted the following type of resolution implementing the action of the Boston convention:

(a) Modification of the 15 per cent formula because of rising living costs.

(b) Effective control of prices, rollbacks and rationing.

(c) An equitable tax program.

(d) Condemnation of the decision of the Board in the meat packers and West Coast aircraft cases and a demand for reversal of those decisions.

During the first week of April, 1943 your Labor Victory Committee, the committee that is required to meet with the President of the United States from time to time, met with him and insisted that there be a roll back in prices to the September 15, 1942 level in accordance with the law of October 2, 1942.

We suggested to the President at that time that unless those prices were rolled back wage increases would have to be obtained to meet the rising cost of living.

The President of the United States promised relief and suggested to the representatives of your organization at that meeting that he intended to institute a campaign to roll back these prices.

The day after the issuance of the President's Executive Order 9328, the President of the CIO, together with the AFL's President, Mr. Green, endeavored to see President Roosevelt. We were unable to get a meeting with him. We therefore met with Justice Byrnes, the Director of Economic Stabilization.

The issue raised by your Chairman at that time was the question as to what the War Labor Board's authority might be in the adjustments of inequalities and how far-reaching this order might be with reference to its interference with the operation of collective bargaining contracts where such contracts had machinery, through grievance committees, for the orderly adjudication of both inequalities and inequities.

PRESIDENT MURRAY

I presented to Justice Byrnes at that meeting a copy of a standard steel collective bargaining agreement, and I asked that he interpret what Executive Order 9328 meant insofar as our national organization's rights ran in the field of collective bargaining, particularly in the adjustment of inequalities and inequities. I returned to my office after talking to Justice Byrnes about these matters and I addressed the following communication to him:

"Pursuant to your request I am attaching copy of agreement between the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co. and the United Steelworkers of America, together with a statement of procedure relating to disposition of grievances arising out of wage rate inequalities."

Under date of April 13, I received the following reply, thanking me for my letter of April 10, calling my attention to Section 2 of the President's Executive Order dated April 8, 1943, and then continuing:

"The language quoted appears to be somewhat similar to that embodied in your contract with the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co. Though I am not in possession of sufficient facts to give any final judgment in the matter, I should suggest that insofar as it seems compatible with the language of the President's Executive Order, the parties to the contract should continue their negotiations."

Meaning by that that our Grievance Committees should continue to function as usual—

". . . submitting any resulting agreement to the National War Labor Board for approval, or if there is any disagreement, submitting the dispute to the War Labor Board for adjudication. A refusal by either party to continue negotiations would give rise to a labor dispute calling for determination by the Board."

Grievance Adjustments

Now the substance of this letter conveys the very distinct impression that the intent of 9328 was to give to each labor organization the right to exercise its ordinary privileges through its grievance machinery for the adjudication of disputes, the disputes in mind being inequities and inequalities.

Following my meeting with Director Byrnes and after receipt of this communication I issued a letter to each of the International Unions affiliated with the CIO, endeavoring to explain as best I knew how, on the basis of the discussions that I had with Director Byrnes and my associates at the national office over in the city of Washington. The following suggestions were made in that letter:

That each of our international unions insist upon the President's directive that prices be rolled back to the level of September 15, 1942; that we take full advantage of the authority of the War Labor Board to make wage adjustments under certain conditions, such as correction of sub-standards, acquiring the 15 per cent increase in accordance with the Little Steel Formula; for promotions, reclassifications, etc.

I also asked our international unions to make formal demand that the War Labor Board be again given the authority to make wage adjustments, to correct inequalities and inequities, and also to provide wage increases to aid in the prosecution of the war.

While on my trip throughout the country I addressed a telegram to the President of the United States, under date of April 29th, which, up to the present moment has not been made a matter of record, but is being entered into the record today for your information, in which I had the following to say:

"For the past two weeks I have been talking to a considerable number of people at meetings throughout the Midwest, the South and the Pacific Coast areas. I find manifestation of growing unrest amongst the people due to the continuing rise in living costs, particularly food, with national wage freezing and no effective control over prices.

"Conditions in this respect are rapidly growing worse. Your recent directive freezing the adjustment of inequalities and inequities is meeting with opposition not only from workers but from management as well. The directive in this regard is wholly unworkable and is bound to have an extremely bad effect upon the morale of the American workers.

"This is evidenced in the many discussions I have had with managers and workers in the areas through which I am now traveling.

"It is my considered judgment that prompt action should be taken to roll back prices to the September 15, 1942 level and to restore the former powers of the National War Labor Board to provide adjudication of inequalities and inequities.

"These things, I am sure, can be done without agitating the inflationary spiral. In saying so I bespeak the unanimous opinion of all the groups I have been privileged to talk to since your recent directive was issued."

I received no immediate reply to that telegram, and two days after I had forwarded it to the President I called the White House and insisted that expeditious action be taken by the Office of Price Administration to make effective this formal demand that I had made upon the President of the United States April 29.

We have always contended that there could be no really effective system of wage stabilization in the United States of America unless the Congress of the United States complied with its commitment to the people in the law which required prices to be stabilized and wages to be stabilized as of September 15, 1942.

Your National CIO supported national wage stabilization, with the distinct understanding that prices would be stabilized at the same time wages were stabilized.

We have taken that position rather than the one that wages be increased. We see no solution of our economic problems on the home front here in the United States by confining the demands of CIO workers to wage increases.

Inflation Disastrous

We are definitely apprehensive about that method of attack, fearful that if that policy is adopted its inflationary repercussions will be disastrous to the nation and of course particularly to the workers, and may have an extremely bad effect upon the entire war effort.

Certainly it is admitted by all men who know anything about this problem that the most dangerous situation confronting the nation today is the possible development of uncontrolled inflation which might spread complete ruin, if not actual destruction of the labor movement in the United States of America.

CIO's No-Strike Policy To Crush Fascist Axis

No-Strike Pledge

We have consistently adhered to our no strike policy for the duration of the war. That commitment was made to the President of the United States the 17th day of December, 1942. The President did not ask for that commitment. Organized labor went over to the President of the United States on the 17th day of December, 1942 and said, "Mr. President, we are not going to strike for the duration of the war." President Green, President Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, myself, and a number of other CIO and AFL representatives participated in the meeting with the employers when that declaration was made.

It was made voluntarily. There was no compulsion, there was no legislation pending. Organized labor in the United States of America gave up its right to strike for the duration of the war voluntarily. The President had addressed no communications to anyone asking them to give up the right to strike, nor had he had any conversations that I am aware of with any leader of labor asking labor to withhold its right to strike.

But labor, recognizing the role that it must needs play in a war of this description, recognizing the need of a unified program to promote the interests of the nation and the successful prosecution of the war, voluntarily threw its economic gun behind the door and said: "We are not going to strike for the duration of the war."

And the man who proclaimed himself most loudly against strikes at that time was none other than the President of the United Mine Workers of America. He led the procession. He beat his breast, he said:

"I am a patriot and I am not going to strike, and what are you going to do about it?" He was vociferous, he was loud, he talked long and lengthily; he wanted a no strike policy. That act was witnessed by a number of our representatives who are here.

Well, we have continued our no-strike commitment. We intend to keep that pledge. We might suffer some inconveniences. It may entail some temporary sacrifices, but war brings those things upon people. Those are phases of our situation that somehow or other seem to be inevitable during a period of war.

War Comes First

I am not going to follow an idiotic, self-seeking, arrogant system of leadership in the field of American labor—I am not going to do it. I have got to think in terms of protecting the best interests of my country. My country comes first. If I didn't have this country I wouldn't have a union and I would not enjoy the benefits of collective bargaining, and I would not enjoy the right to organize.

My primary consideration in this situation for the moment must necessarily, therefore, be the winning of this war.

Witness Washington today — labor with its back to the wall, the Connally-Smith Bill pending, the legislative strait-jacket just around the corner—all because of the idiotic arrogance of a self-seeking leader who has not taken a minute of his time to consult with his fellow men about the reactions of the public state of mind to what he has been doing.

It is mighty easy to tear an institution down, an institution like the CIO that has rendered such great service to the country and to its membership. It is much easier to tear it down than it is to build it up. I am not going to tear it down.

Wholesale, Retail Confab Calls For Square Deal On Taxes, Prices, Wages

NEW YORK, June 12—A square deal for American workers on taxes, prices and wages was the demand raised here this week at a city-wide conference of locals affiliated with the N. Y. Joint Council of the United Wholesale, Retail & Dept. Store Employes.

The Conference gave complete support to the CIO's war program, called for immediate rationing of clothing, a billion dollar subsidy to roll back prices, and heavy penalties for black market operators.

A program presented by Martin C. Kyne, executive vice-president of the organization, was unanimously approved. It follows:

"Capable and willing administrators should be placed in charge of OPA who will be fearless and thorough in carrying out a progressive plan for economic stabilization.

"The government should take heed of the actual experiences of other countries such as England, where the government purchases all available and perishable items of foodstuffs for distribution through licensed retail outlets.

"Our people (the members of the union), where they are employed in warehouses, wholesale establishments or retail stores, should take upon themselves the duty of reporting to their unions all specific violations of price control and rationing.

"Congress should grant a billion-dollar subsidy so that prices can effectively be rolled back to May, 1942.

"Penalties up to $20,000 and revocation of business licenses should be imposed upon black-market operators and price and ration control violators.

"Livestock should be placed under ceiling regulations.

"Immediate rationing of all clothing is necessary before shortages develop."

Main speaker at the conference was James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, who lashed out at John L. Lewis, Mine Union head, for "playing Republican politics."

Referring to the Smith-Connally anti-strike, anti-war bill, and the part Lewis played in stirring up Congressional sentiment for its enactment, Carey said:

"I think John L. Lewis is a little tired. I think he is nuts. With Representative Howard Smith of Alexandria, where Lewis also lives, he is doing his best to help shackle labor, to prevent labor from doing its best for the war effort."

CIO To Furnish Club Rooms For Soldiers Coast To Coast

WASHINGTON, June 12—There's a lot of CIO noise at Fort Meade, Md., these days, and both the commanding officers and enlisted men are happy that it is CIO noise.

For months the soldiers in the 514th Quartermaster Truck Regiment at Fort Meade had been wishing for a bugle and drum corps. Although many of the boys were skilled musicians (some of them from nationally-known bands) there were no instruments.

Today the 514th Regiment has one of the best bugle and drum corps of any Army camp in the country—because the National CIO War Relief Committee, responding to a request from the boys themselves, furnished them with 27 bugles and three big drums.

What the CIO's gift of musical instruments meant to the Fort Meade regiment is best explained by the commanding officer.

PRAISE FROM OFFICER

"I know of no other medium by which the morale of our men could have been brought to its present high level," said Col. T. J. Krokus in a letter to the CIO War Relief Committee, "and the enthusiasm shown indicates that the expenditure made is being appreciated. The new drum and bugle corps," he added, "in a short time should rank with some of the best in the country."

When the above Flying Fortress picture was first published in Studebaker advertisements last Fall, America's air might was just beginning to be felt in the Pacific and European war theaters. Today the Flying Fortress is spearheading one successful offensive operation after another. And every Studebaker man, who is privileged to help build Wright Cyclone engines for this invincible dreadnaught of the skies, follows the news of Flying Fortress victories with justifiable personal gratification in a job well done. Besides producing large quantities of Wright Cyclone engines for this devastating Boeing bomber, Studebaker is also turning out much other war matériel, including tens of thousands of big, multiple-drive military trucks. Studebaker is honored by its assignments in the arming of our Nation and its Allies.

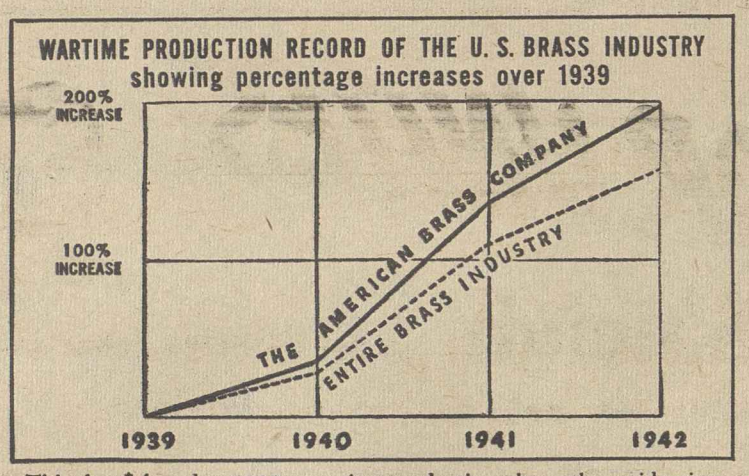
ALL TEN AMERICAN BRASS CO. PLANTS IN U. S. A. HAVE EARNED RIGHT TO FLY ARMY-NAVY "E" FLAGS

This is the story in terms of war production

Our Connecticut plants were among the first in the brass industry to receive the coveted "E" Award for outstanding production of war materials. Since then all our plants in the United States have been similarly honored.

As the largest fabricator in the copper and brass field, The American Brass Company is keenly aware of its responsibility and its opportunity to serve the cause of the United Nations.

Since 1939, production has been tripled, with virtually every pound today going for war purposes.



This chart*, based on 1939 peacetime production, shows the rapid swing into all-out war production, both by the copper and brass fabricating industry and The American Brass Company (not including Government-owned plants). All-time production records have been continually broken ever since the National Defense Program was initiated in 1940.

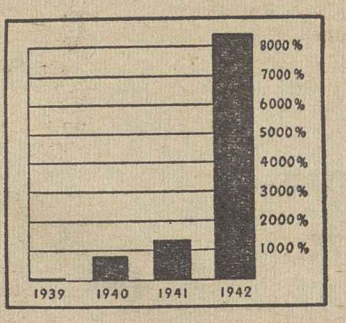
This record was accomplished by close cooperation between management and labor . . . careful planning for rapid conversion to wartime operations . . . intensive training of new personnel . . . plus efficient utilization of existing and new plant equipment.

Detailed figures, of course, cannot be revealed, but The American Brass Company is consistently breaking all previous volume records. In addition to its U. S. plants and that of a Canadian subsidiary, Anaconda American Brass Ltd., the company's production also embraces three plants operated for the United States and Canadian Governments.

Shipments this past January were the largest in the company's history. March exceeded January. The first quarter of '43 was by far the company's greatest tonnage quarter.

PRODUCTION OF COPPER ALLOYS FOR AMMUNITION by The American Brass Co.

This chart shows the vast increase in production of copper-base alloys directly earmarked for ammunition in plants operated by The American Brass Company. This is one of the most vital needs for copper and brass. Tremendous quantities are required for all types of ammunition.



The American Brass Company is proud indeed that all the plants it operates in the U. S. A. have won the honor of flying the Army-Navy "E" for excellence in production. But it is even prouder of the organization and the will-to-produce that have made this record possible . . . and will keep it going.

This is the story in terms of human effort

Mere statistics can't reveal the spirit of production that carries on at The American Brass Company—a spirit shared by those at furnace and machine . . . foremen . . . office employees . . . everyone in the company.

Figures can't tell of the many men and women who have worked on Thanksgiving Day and other traditional holidays. Of Sundays as busy as Fridays. Of the effort and skill devoted to turning out the finest copper and brass products possible, realizing how much depends on their work. Of the methods and means taken to utilize every last piece of equipment to help increase production. Of voluntary pay-roll deductions throughout the company to buy War Bonds.

Brophy Hails Security Plan In Letter To CIO Councils

WASHINGTON, June 12—Support of all CIO Councils for the Social Security Act improvements introduced in Congress last week by Senators Wagner and Murray and by Representative Dingell was urged in a circular letter sent out by Council Director John Brophy.

"We have an opportunity now to push energetically for a bill that will provide protection during the war and will be of tremendous importance in the post-war period of re-adjustment because of the help it will give to the stabilization of the economic system, particularly in regard to purchasing power," Brophy said.

"I have no intention of suggesting that this measure is perfect. We shall wish to advocate a greater federal contribution in the immediate post-war period and to urge that federal employes be covered.

"We believe, however, that these matters can be dealt with sufficiently at the time of hearings and that amendments on these and other necessary points can be proposed and developed later. Our disagreement with certain aspects of the legislation should not be permitted to interfere in any way with our wholehearted support of it.

"Enemies of the measure will make strong efforts to stifle discussion and to misrepresent the issues. Unless we offset such organized opposition by our own strenuous activity, we cannot hope for any progress in social security."

Anti-Union Bill Kiled By Ohio Labor

Columbus, June 12—Ohio labor wound up its greatest political and legislative battle here Saturday, May 29, when the reactionary Ohio Legislature recessed without acting on the fascist French bill.

The French bill is, in effect, a copy of other bills introduced into state legislatures throughout the country and passed in several states. It would place the entire labor movement under the dictatorship of three politicians appointed by the governor and provide other controls, similar to those prevailing in Nazi Germany's "Labor Front."

Efforts to bring the bill to the floor of the Ohio House and Senate were defeated.

While it would still technically be possible to bring the bill out at the final session late this month, that possibility appeared remote. The recalling of the body is primarily for passing on financial measures and, observers believed, only further provocations by John L. Lewis and those who follow his leadership, would provide any opportunity for passage.

GOP DRIVE

The bill was introduced into a labor-hating, Republican-dominated legislature last January. Apparently carrying the blessing of Governor John W. Bricker, who aspires to become GOP candidate for president next year, the bill seemed certain of passage.

CIO, Railroad Brotherhood and AFL unions throughout the state united for an all-out war to defeat the bill. Again and again, hundreds of workers representing the more than 700,000 organized workers of Ohio jammed the House Chamber for hearings. The capitol was flooded with hundreds of of thousands of letters and telegrams stating labor's arguments.

Break In Chinese Exclusion Act Seen In New Bill Before Congress

WASHINGTON, June 12—Following a setback in the House Immigration Committee in which the two bills to repeal the insulting exclusion acts against the Chinese people succumbed, a new bill (HR 2893) was introduced by Representative Gossett of Texas to do the same thing.

CIO support for repeal of the exclusion act was expressed last week. A CIO witness before the Committee pointed out that the repeal was an obvious step that must be taken to prove to our Chinese allies that we mean what we say about the Atlantic Charter and the principles of equality among the United Nations.

Chinese newspapers and organizations in this country have reacted very strongly to the proposed repeal, and have welcomed CIO support as additional evidence of the friendship of organized American workers for the Chinese people.

400 Get Pay Boost

Goshen, Ind., June 12—Four hundred workers of the Chase Bag Co. here represented by the CIO Textile Workers Union, won a three-cent an hour wage increase under an order issued by the War Labor Board.

John L. Lewis Doesn't Add Up To Much With This AFL Paper!

NEWARK, N. J., June 12—John L. Lewis doesn't add up to much with some people in the AFL, which he is currently wooing. Anything but kind words were spoken for the Mine Workers' leader this week in the N. J. LABOR HERALD, which describes itself as the "only publication in this state officially endorsed by the N. J. State Federation of Labor."

Here's what the paper had to say, in part:

"Lewis saw the crucial test between himself and Roosevelt coming. He was badly in need of some moral staff to lean on. Finances the miners needed not.

"He had hoped, after the CIO turned its face against him, that his "catch-all" District 50, might answer the purpose, but it turned out to be just a flash-in-the-pan. He used it to snipe at the AFL building trades unions, through his brother Danny, but the attack came to a cropper.

"Both the AFL and CIO were against him. Roosevelt hated him. He was beginning to scent trouble in his own miners' union, when they balked at a slight increase in dues. He was truly in a tough spot."

The paper went on to say that Lewis, realizing his situation, made overtures to the AFL, whose leaders he has so roundly condemned, as the last hope to pull his fat out of the fire.

CIO Women, Check 'Ham' In Hamburger

Los Angeles, June 12 — Hamburger—"poor man's chicken"—was taken apart, scientifically tested, and patted together again, all for the benefit of seven CIO Auxiliary Council members and some interested OPA officials, after a march on the OPA here last week.

Occasion was the first "price checking" conference of CIO and OPA officials, with Helen Daggett, CIO Auxiliary organizer, leading the group of seven trade union women who had spent precious red stamps for ground meat of varied quality and prices.

Result was that one flagrant price ceiling violation was uncovered—one of the women paid 45 cents a pound for pre-ground meat, whereas the ceiling is 33 cents. Such meat, it was explained by OPA enforcement officials, must be sold as hamburger.

Some of the meat also was dangerously close to the border line of 28 per cent fat allowed by the OPA.

Armed with price lists, facts about hamburger and other meat, and determined to see that price regulations are enforced, the seven women scattered to their neighborhoods where community meetings, checkups on stores and markets and consumer rallies are being planned by the local Auxiliary Council to carry out the CIO program for "rolling back" prices.

Raise to Replace Bonus at Curtiss

Washington, June 12—To compensate for the proposed elimination of an "unworkable" bonus system by which employes earned about 20 per cent above their existing hourly rates in 1941-42, a War Labor Board panel recommended unanimously that the hourly rates of employes at the plant of the Curtiss-Wright Corp., Buffalo, N. Y., be given an increase averaging 15 cents an hour.

CIO Stands Firm Against Race Bias, Walsh Tells NAACP

DETROIT, June 12—The CIO stands for equality of opportunity for all, regardless of race, creed, color or nationality. That was the statement reaffirmed this week by J. Raymond Walsh, CIO Economics Director, before a meeting of the Natl. Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Speaking for CIO President Philip Murray, Walsh said:

"The CIO condemns the policies of many employers of discriminating in their hiring and other employment conditions against Negroes, which constitutes a direct attack against our nation's policy to build democracy in our fight against Hitlerism.

"We are engaged in the greatest struggle of America, a struggle which will not only decide the destiny of America but the destiny of the world," Walsh declared. "We are fighting Hitlerism in Germany, in Japan, in Italy—and wherever it raises its ugly head.

"We insist that the struggle for freedom can best be advanced between states by advancing it within the states.

"The CIO rejoiced when the President of the United States said, 'It is the policy of the United States to encourage full participation in the national defense program by all citizens of the United States, regardless of race, creed, color, or national origin, in the firm belief that democratic way of life in the nation can be defended successfully only with the help and support of all groups within its borders.'"

Keep Polls Open To Keep 'Em Voting Is CIO's Demand To Congress

WASHINGTON, June 12—CIO support for the Lucas bill (S 1089) to keep election polling booths open from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. was expressed this week by Nathan Cowan, legislative representative, in testimony to the Senate Subcommittee on Elections, presented by Philip Porter of the UAW-CIO.

Cowan's testimony pointed out that many hundreds of thousands of war workers were prevented from voting in the last election because they had to work overtime, on swing shifts and like, while the booths were open. The new hours would enable them to vote either before or after going to work, no matter what shift they are on.

"It is generally conceded that the largest possible number of people should use their ballot," Cowan said. "The light vote last year showed among other things that people were unable to get to the polls in time.

"With this fact in mind and the realization of the long hours people are now working, plus their longer time and greater difficulty in traveling to and from work and to the polling places, and the overtime which is likely to pop up suddenly on election day, we of the CIO feel that this legislation should be acted on favorably."

District 50 Takes 2-1 Drubbing

New Castle, Pa., June 12—This stronghold of the United Mine Workers Union saw the UMW's District 50 go down to a crushing two-to-one defeat at the hands of the CIO this week.

In an election at the Shenango Pottery Co. the score was: CIO—1,006; District 50—433; AFL—227.

Orders Union Shop

A union shop provision in the contract between the Public Service Brass Corp., Los Angeles, and the CIO Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers was ordered continued by the War Labor Board.

FDR Signs Bad Tax Bill

Washington, June 12—President Roosevelt this week signed the tax bill passed by Congress, despite the fact that its 75 per cent tax forgiveness is a special bonus to the wealthy. The fight on the tax program moved ahead nevertheless, to a struggle against the sales tax and for a sound tax bill based on the needs of the war and on ability to pay.

Already loud voices have been raised in Congress and in practically all newspapers for a general sales tax.

Warning of this was given by the Executive Board of the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, which pointed out in asking for a White House veto of the present bill:

"Failure to collect such taxes on high brackets, coupled to the understanding among House and Senate conferees that no income tax rates will be increased for two years, shifts the necessary burden of raising enough money to win the war onto those low brackets already taxed very heavily, to the advantage of individuals well able to make a much greater financial contribution to the war without undue personal hardship."

Murray, In OWI Talk, Warns Of Grave Tasks

"The unity of purpose which brought the United Nations into existence has placed new and grave responsibilities on the men and women of the countries now engaged in the total war to which freedom-loving mankind has dedicated itself," CIO President Philip Murray said this week on United Nations' Day in a broadcast released and "shortwaved" abroad by the Office of War Information.

"The teamwork for which President Roosevelt called in his Flag Day proclamation requires nothing less than that the constant and determined cooperation of every worker, just as this teamwork presupposes that every worker will be used at his highest abilities.

"Because we have lately seen our armies deal staggering blows to the enemy on land, sea and in the air, we cannot assume that our efforts today are sufficient.

"We cannot relent either on the fighting front or on the production line until peace and security are assured to mankind."

Incentive Plan Permits Wage Hikes Up to 35%

Detroit, June 12—Increases in hourly earnings up to 35 per cent are permitted to employes of the Nat'l. Automotive Fibers Co. by a War Labor Board decision this week, under an incentive plan jointly submitted by Local 205, United Auto Workers Union and the company. About 1,600 workers are involved.

"Under the approved incentive system production standards are set forth for each department separately," the Board announcement stated. "The standard is the number of units produced per manhour immediately prior to the date of the introduction of the plan. This is called a credit hour.

"To determine an employe's incentive payment, the credit hours for his department are multiplied by his hourly wage rate. If production should increase more than 35 per cent, incentive payments remain fixed at that level pending a re-study of the standard."

WOMEN'S CORNER

Here's A Rollback Action That Works

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The Los Angeles Auxiliary Council has set a wonderful example to all CIO auxiliaries in acting on the national price control and roll-back program.

They drafted a six-point program for joint action with the unions which was approved by the Executive Board of the Los Angeles CIO Council. Here it is:

1. Mobilization of union members and families to carry out mass checking of prices of commodities in stores, and reporting violations to CIO for prosecution.

2. Mass campaign for letters and telegrams to Congress and War Mobilization Director Byrnes, demanding that prices be rolled back to September 1942 levels.

3. Distribution to shop stewards of special kits to be made up by the Council containing sample letters to Congressmen, etc., stamped envelopes and other material necessary to carry on the price and rationing campaign in the shops.

4. More delegations to the Los Angeles OPA to discuss the community ceilings and their enforcement.

5. A publicity campaign to familiarize the community with the CIO's work on price control and rationing.

6. Neighborhood meetings in various parts of Los Angeles to carry the CIO economic stabilization program to other organizations in the community and to the general public.

COUNCIL BACKING

The Council was so impressed with the auxiliary program that they not only voted to concur in it, but voted to establish a Consumer Service Department, headed by Helen Daggett of the Auxiliary Council, to carry it out.

And after hearing a special report of auxiliary activities, which emphasized the important contribution the auxiliary can make in the fight against inflation, the CIO council also voted to urge each local to pledge a regular weekly financial contribution to expand auxiliary work.

This chain of events in Los Angeles illustrates very vividly the point that President Murray made to the CIO Executive Board in Cleveland—that mobilizing the CIO families through the auxiliaries is an important part of the fight to bring living costs down.

The last News Letter of the CIO Auxiliary Congress urges each CIO auxiliary to make price control and roll-back its central campaign and to work out with its union the most effective way to mobilize the women in each union home to participate.

Enforcement of price control, an effective fight on the black market, the maximum pressure on Congress in support of full OPA appropriations and roll-back of prices through subsidy all depend on getting the women in the homes of labor aroused and organized for action. Trade union auxiliaries can do this job with the support of their unions. That support is essential to make the union Victory program a reality.

How to Make Your Lunch Box Nourishing

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

With restaurants overcrowded and food prices soaring, many workers are turning to the lunch box instead of the lunch counter for their midday meal. Lunch, like breakfast and dinner, should provide the necessary vitamins, minerals and proteins to keep you fit on the job.

Here is a pattern to follow that will help you plan both a nourishing and tasty lunch.

For the Office Worker

One or two sandwiches (one of these a protein—meat, cheese, eggs, fish.)

Raw fruit or vegetable salad, carrot strips, celery, tomato.

Sweet dessert—cake, candy or pudding.

Milk or cream soup.

For the Factory Worker

Two or more sandwiches (rich in protein).

1 sweet sandwich or salad sandwich (jam, apple butter or chopped carrots and raisins mixed with cream cheese) on nut, fruit, raisin bread.

Fresh fruit or vegetable salad.

Sweet dessert—Pie, cake, or pudding.

Beverage or soup.

Suggestions

BREADS: Use whole wheat, pumpernickel, rye, raisin, or nut bread.

PROTEIN FILLINGS: Meats—Sliced or ground cooked meat with mayonnaise, pickle or relish. Fish—Cold fish salad, salmon, tuna, crab or any other flaked cooked fish mixed with chopped celery, apple or chopped pickle. Mash sardines with lemon juice or chili sauce, chopped hard boiled egg, relish. Eggs — Hard cooked, deviled, chopped with other food. Cheese—Cottage cheese with relish or chopped onion or chives. Cream cheese with honey or apple butter. American cheese cubed to be eaten separately or sliced in sandwiches. All cheese spreads.

Sweet Sandwiches

Mix mashed prunes or any fruit cottage cheese or cream cheese. Jam, fruit butter, nut or raisin bread spread with cream cheese. Graham crackers with cream cheese filling. Tuck in a handful of raisins, dried prunes stuffed with cottage cheese.

For the Thermos Bottle

Hot cocoa, coffee, soups. Cold fruit juices, milk or iced tea or coffee. Care of the thermos: To keep the thermos fresh and clean. Wash the thermos in soap and water, then in water with a little soda added. Rinse and let it air overnight.

Tips on Packing Lunches

Save all cartons and containers that can be rinsed and used to pack salads, fruits or vegetables. Save wax papers that bread is wrapped in. Wrap food in wax paper to keep freshness, flavor, and food value.

It's best to wrap each of the following items separately in wax paper and assemble when it's time to eat: sliced bread, sandwich filling, and lettuce well-dried. Enclose a fork, spoon and knife. At lunch time make your own fresh sandwich with filling and lettuce and if you like some dressing pack that in a small jar separately. A crisp tasty sandwich prepared early in the morning will be wilted and taste soggy when it's time for lunch. The flavor, freshness and much of the food value will be gone.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

John D. House, URWA Field Representative reports that the CIO was chosen as the bargaining agent at Scioto Ordnance Plant, Marion, Ohio, by a vote of 91 per cent.

Frank Carmichael, regional director in Boston, reports that the UAW won the Bendix election at Norwood, Massachusetts, by a vote of 373 for CIO to 278. This is a splendid accomplishment and congratulations are due to the UAW and CIO boys who participated.

George Brown, assistant director of organization, IWA, advises that the election at Dierks Lumber & Coal Company, Dierks, Ark., resulted in a vote of 260 for CIO to 61.

Joe Walsh, regional director in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., reports that the UERMWA won an election at D. Genetti and Sons, Inc., resulting in a vote of 27 for CIO to 20. He also reports that the UERMWA won collective bargaining rights at the Tele-Radio Engineering Corp. plant at Georgetown, by a vote of 166 for CIO to 6. UERMWA Representative Frank Burns will commence negotiations with the company next week.

James J. Matles, Dir. of Org., UERMWA, reports the following victories: Willard Storage Battery, Canada, 100 to 15; Chemung Foundry Co., Elmira, N. Y., 95 to 10; McQuay-Norris Co., St. Louis, Mo., 141 to 16; Jacquard Knitting Machine Co., Philadelphia, Pa., 89 to 52; National Pump Co., Dayton, O., 89 to 30; General Electric Co., Kokomo, Ind., 280 to 3; U. S. Cartridge Co., St. Louis, Mo., 2 to 1 victory covering 18,000 employes; American Gauge Co., Dayton, O., 33 to 18.

Wilbur E. Bade, ANG, reports that the Guild won an election in the editorial department of the Pawtucket, R. I. Times, 21 to 1. The ANG has chartered a new local in Terre Haute, Ind., at the Star & Tribune.

Ewald Sandner, Regional Director in New Jersey, reports the following election victories: Collander, Engineering Co., Spotswood, N. J., CIO, 75 and 2 for no union; Arlington By-Products Co., Jersey City, UGCCWA-CIO, 78 to 17 for no union; American Rock Wool, South Plainfield, 100 per cent vote for UGCCWA-CIO and nothing for District 50. Bill Edmiston, board member, UGCCWA in Canada, advises of the following additional victories: Welland Chemical Works, 919 to 72 for no union; Dominion Tar & Chemical Co., Toronto, CIO, 55, no union 4.

Through the fine efforts of Regional Director A. J. Federoff of Pittsburgh and his staff, the CIO won a smashing victory at the Shenango Pottery, New Castle, Pa., where the employes voted 1,006 for CIO to 433 for District 50, and 227 for the AFL.

British Civil Service Workers Seek Unity With USSR Unions

LONDON, June 12 (ALN)—At their annual conventions this week, Britain's two largest unions of government employes—the Civil Service Central Association with 120,000 members and the Postoffice Workers Union with 80,000 members—endorsed a proposal to set up a Civil Service Anglo-Soviet Committee "for the purpose of establishing closer relations with our fellow-workers in the USSR." Both unions voted also to reaffiliate with the Trades Union Congress in defiance of the Trades Disputes Act of 1927, which forbids unions of government employes to belong to the TUC.

The government workers' unions have asked the Trades Union Congress to accept their affiliation at next fall's TUC conference, and to give them full backing in the event the government carries out reprisals for the flouting of the 1927 Trades Disputes Act. Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the TUC, has stated that the TUC will support their demand "whatever the risk and consequences may be," and has called for amendment of the Trades Disputes Act.

In urging the creation of the Civil Service Anglo-Soviet Committee, L. C. White, general secretary of the CSCA, pointed out that one of the worst effects of the Trades Disputes Act was to prevent British government employes from joining hands with their fellow workers in the U. S. and USSR through the medium of the TUC. Initial steps for the setting up of an Anglo-Soviet Committee, he said, had been taken at a joint conference of civil servants held recently in London. The following resolution, proposed by T. J. Hodgson, general secretary of the Post Office Workers, was unanimously passed by the London conference:

DECLARE FELLOWSHIP

"That this meeting of British civil servants, recognizing that complete understanding between Britain and the USSR is the corner-stone of international understanding, declares its fellowship with the heroic Russian peoples in their struggle against the common enemy, and affirms the determination of British civil servants to play, individually and collectively, their full part in the achievement of a speedy victory and the establishment of a world order in which freedom-loving peoples can live in peace. To this end British civil servants desire closer contacts with their counterparts in the Soviet Union as a contribution to the effective implementation of the Anglo-Soviet Treaty."

In further resolutions, the CSCA convention condemned the British government "for refusing the just demands of the Indian people for their freedom," called for the immediate banning of the British National Party (fascist organization which devotes itself mainly to anti-semitic propaganda), protested the refusal of the government to permit R. G. Miller, secretary of the Malta local of CSCA, to travel to the convention, and praised the "heroic courage shown by the people of Malta in the fight against fascism." A resolution submitted by clerical workers in the Admiralty, congratulating the Royal Navy for its part in the Tunisia victory and pledging all-out efforts to help in the winning of total victory, was unanimously passed.

Union Guerillas Scourge Nazis On USSR Front

KUIBYSHEV, June 12 (ALN)—Officials of Lithuanian and Esthonian trade unions are leading the powerful guerilla movement in the Baltic Republics, according to Berhard Tinnuri, head of the Esthonian Central Council of Trade Unions, who recently reached here from guerilla-held territory. In the early months of the war, Tinnuri organized volunteer detachments of union workers from the industrial city of Rakver. He is now in charge of the production drive of Esthonian trade unionists working in factories in the Urals and Central Asia.

Tribute was also paid this week to the role of the underground union leaders in Lithuania. "Active union members are behind the partisan movement and the anti-Hitlerite sabotage," said Justas Paleckis, chairman of the presidium of the Lithuanian Supreme Soviet. "In January underground anti-fascist conferences were held all over Lithuania, and now anti-fascist 'Fight for Independence' committees, led by former trade union officials, are active in every town. Orders of the German High Command show that the Nazis are becoming uneasy at the growth of popular resistance, the sabotage, the spread of illegal leaflets and newspapers."

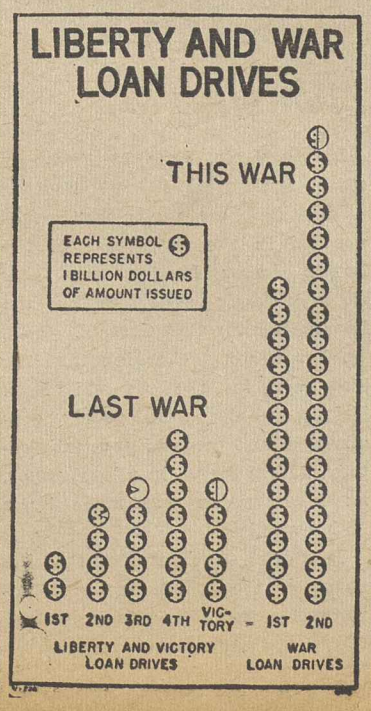
NAZI TERROR

The first act of the occupying army in Lithuania, Paleckis said, was to suppress the trade unions, burn down all union halls and execute every union leader, workers' deputy and Stakhanovite worker they captured.

After wiping out the union leaders, the Germans formed a so-called 'Chamber of Labor,' a branch of Dr. Robert Ley's notorious Labor Office. The duties of this body, which is headed by the scoundrel Dr. Paukstis, once an official in the Ministry of Finance under the Smetona government, are to organize the shipment of workers for slave labor in Germany."

Trade unionists are prominent in the ranks of Lithuanian units of the Red Army, Paleckis said. A number of officers of the Lithuanian Council of Trade Unions are now officers in the Red Army. Mary Kutraite, formerly secretary of the Textile Workers Union and vice chairman of the Lithuanian Supreme Soviet, is now a volunteer sniper with the Red Army and has accounted personally for more than 150 fascists.

Before the war, Tinnuri said, the executive committee of the trade union council had 34 members. "Most of us immediately took to arms. A number have been killed and several are still missing. Three of the 34, whose names cannot be given until after the war, direct the partisan movement. Their close connections with the workers and the authority they have always enjoyed have helped them kindle the fires of the war of national liberation. German admissions testify to their success in organizing sabotage in the few enterprises which the Nazis are still trying to adapt to the needs of their northern front."



Urge Freedom For Bolivian Union Men

Mexico City, June 12—(ALN)—Vicente Lombardo Toledano, president of the Confederation of Latin American Workers, urged President Enrique Penaranda, during his visit to Mexico last week, to free Bolivian labor prisoners and improve the conditions of exploited workers in the mining industry.

"Tin miners who could give great assistance to the cause of the United Nations are being kept in misery," Toledano said. "An adjustment of this situation would be of enormous benefit to the common cause of American democracy."

CTAL headquarters here have been informed that in every country Penaranda visited he was overwhelmed with petitions from labor groups. In Guayaquil, Ecuador, a May Day meeting of the Union Sindical del Guayas, the Society of Writers and Artists, the Federation of University Students and the Anti-Nazi Committee adopted a resolution expressing solidarity with Bolivian labor and urging Penaranda, then in Ecuador, to make restitution for the massacre of the miners of Catavi.

To Celebrate 'Murray Day'

Atlanta, Ga., June 12—Members of the United Steelworkers of America in this and in several other communities over the nation were planning this week to celebrate the birthday of the union's president, Philip Murray, on "Phil Murray Day," June 17.

Banquets, dances and other forms of entertainment will feature the programs, which USA officials said are local and spontaneous in origin.

CIO Housing Plan Offered In Cleveland

Cleveland, June 12—A plan to meet the housing and transportation crisis facing thousands of workers at the new Fisher Bomber plant here which was proposed by officials of the United Automobile Workers was passed unanimously by the Cleveland CIO Council this week.

The Council's program calls for greatly expanded housing near the plant in the Cleveland Airport area and improved transportation facilities, including the running of a train directly from downtown to the plant.

Under present conditions, workers are forced to spend long hours getting to and from work, as it is virtually impossible to find housing near the plant.

Reid Robinson Blasts Lewis

Denver, June 12—Condemnation of John L. Lewis for playing politics with the demands of the mine workers was voiced this week in the weekly column of Reid Robinson, president of the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, writing in The UNION.

"No single labor leader would take the position Lewis is taking today," Robinson wrote, "if he were not receiving powerful backing from groups and individuals who are bound and determined to be used against the war administration of the government."

5th Column Sabotage in Chile Wrecks

Santiago, June 12—(ALN)—Another serious train wreck occurred last week outside Antofagasta, in north Chile. A few miles from where 35 freight cars loaded with copper from Chuquicamata were destroyed two weeks ago, a car left the rails and only a row of telegraph poles kept the entire train from plunging over a precipice.

Chilean labor, led by the Federation of Railway Workers, is demanding that the government conduct a thoroughgoing purge of pro-Axis individuals, some of them in high positions in the administration of the railway, and establish labor-management Vigilance Committees on all lines to guard against sabotage.

More than a hundred workers have lost their lives in recent railway accidents.

Anglo-Soviet Meeting Set

LONDON, June 12 (ALN)—Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, and the four other British members of the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee will leave immediately for Moscow to take part in the third meeting of the committee, it was announced this week.

Main task of the committee will be to find ways of achieving better coordination between the labor movements of the United Nations. Citrine will report on the failure of his mission to the U. S. last January to secure American participation in the committee.

Says the Army to the Unions:

Let Us Know What's Going on at Home!

WASHINGTON, June 12—Two servicemen who are CIO members had a heart-to-heart talk with their union organization this week in letters that said frankly that CIO unions aren't doing a good enough job in sending news to their fighting men.

One letter, from Pvt. Alfred L. Marder, thanked the CIO NEWS for sending him a subscrip-tion, but declared also that while "we are appreciative of the efforts the unions have made in this field, they are limited to the major cities. We hope that they will be extended to the unions surrounding camps and training centers some distance from the few large cities.

PAPERS MEAN A LOT

"When one is away from home," the letter added, "and in the services, little things like gifts and letters and papers and parties assume an important place in a soldier's life. They make a soldier feel closer to those at home and make real the bonds between those who fight and those who produce for victory."

The other letter, whose writer asked that his name go unpublished, was written to CIO Pres. Philip Murray and contained some suggestions for counteracting anti-labor propaganda, and warned that unless the job is done the returning soldiers may be "used as the greatest wage-cutting and union-smashing group in America."

Criticizing the radio and the daily press for "blowing up" stories about labor difficulties and for overlooking labor's real contribution to the war effort, the writer said:

HEALTHY SIDE TOO

"On the healthy side are the facts that nearly all soldiers know why they are fighting—to retain the democratic freedom of the world—and who they are fighting—Fascism which would crush and enslave the world.

"Their greatest desire is to win the war quickly at any cost and return home to their families and their jobs. And they solidly support the policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the cause of the United Nations."

The writer declared that most soldiers were not seriously affected by the anti-labor "40-hour week" campaign, the silk shirt and champagne stories, nor the blasts of Rickenbacker.

GRAVE WARNING

Nevertheless, he warned that reactionary elements are planning a new campaign to use the soldiers as they were used after the last war—for repression of trade unions and other liberal organizations and for cutting wages.

"In the van of this drive is Rickenbacker with his cry of 'protecting the returning soldiers from having to join a union.' He has already attracted to him the reactionary section of big business and native Fascists."

The writer had several suggestions to offer to combat the Rickenbacker drive:

1. Keep up union newspaper mailing lists—see that every serviceman from your organization gets his paper.

2. Send copies of The CIO NEWS to all service libraries, hospitals, clubs and USO posts.

3. Prepare now for return of the soldiers—the CIO "should assist its members released from the armed forces to return to their jobs in a prompt and orderly manner."

4. Join with other progressive forces to form a new serviceman's organization—"Certainly the Ham Fishes, the Eddie Rickenbackers and their ilk should have no monopoly on forming and controlling veterans' organizations."

"It will be the duty of all of us," the writer concluded, "to see that returning soldiers do not become a great union-breaking and wage-cutting force.

"Instead, it must be a body of Americans ready to flow back to work in an orderly manner in union shops at union wages, and alert to assist in building freedom and democracy all over the world while playing a progressive role in America."

Are You Listening, Washington?

Detroit, June 12—UAW-CIO members, their friends and neighbors, are organizing a new and very practical kind of week in this city, with plans for "Tell It to Congress Week" under the direction of Richard T. Frankensteen, UAW vice-president and legislative director.

"Our object is the greatest political mobilization in the history of the nation, with hundreds of thousands of plain citizens telling Congress to stop its attacks on labor and the President and to get on with the war," Frankensteen said.

The week will dramatize support for the win-the-war program worked out at the special board meeting of the CIO held last month in Cleveland, and will make "all five of our Congressmen and both our Senators know that the UAW-CIO is determined that this program for the nation and for winning the war be carried out without delay."

SUCCESSFUL VISIT

Frankensteen also said that the UAW-CIO delegations to Congress will be continued, and revealed that 77 delegates representing 500,000 workers had already made one successful call on the capital, to be followed by others.

Support for "Tell It to Congress Week" is rolling in from many other civic and progressive organizations, Frankensteen said, including the Detroit Youth Council, and Negro, women's, church and other groups.

Following the Detroit mobilization, the week will be extended to other areas where UAW's million members are located.

U. S. Needs Fire Guards

Washington, June 12—An urgent appeal to "the men and women of organized labor to offer their skills, their time and their courage for a dangerous new job — the Fire Guards," has been made by James M. Landis, Director of Civilian Defense, in announcing plans for a fire-fighting force of 1,500,000 volunteers.

"Workers and their families living in war production centers know that when enemy fire bombs fall, theirs will be a double responsibility," he said. "They must protect themselves and their neighbors against fire, and they must help put out plant fires so that production losses can be kept down.

"That means many thousands of working men and women will be needed for the Fire Guards to man pump-tank extinguishers which have been distributed in all target-area cities in the country."

The initial goal of 1,500,000 guards will provide a half-million trained fire-fighting squads, Landis said, a force "necessary to meet the increasing fire hazard to homes, lives and plants resulting from new bombing tactics of the enemy.

Addes Hails Workers In USSR

Detroit, June 12—In a letter to the Secretary of the Soviet Metal Workers Federation in Moscow, Sec.-Treas. George F. Addes of the United Auto Workers Union this week conveyed "most cordial greetings to all your members who are working to keep the Red Army supplied with armaments of all kinds."

Writing through Russian War Relief, Addes said:

"Our 979,000 members are doing the same for the American Army and we know from the reports of our government that part of what we make is being shipped to the Red Army as well.

"May the combined efforts and those of all our United Nations succeed this year in beating down the Fascist aggressors and bringing freedom to all workers everywhere."

Bosses Must Refund Dues Of Co. Unions

Washington, June 12—The U. S. Supreme Court ruled this week that bosses found to have dominated company unions and to have collected dues for them from the workers must refund the money.

The Court ruled in a six-to-three decision that the Virginia Electric & Power Co. must repay such dues collected from employes who belonged to the Independent Organization of Employes.

CIO Starts Rollback Drive

Cleveland—"Roll back prices to September, 1942—NOW!"

This demand winds up a petition being circulated throughout shops and neighborhoods of Greater Cleveland today by CIO members, their wives, children and friends. Signer of the first petition was Mayor Frank J. Lansche.

The petition campaign was initiated by the CIO United Office & Professional Workers Union and then endorsed by the Cleveland Industrial Union Council. Objective is to obtain the signatures of a quarter of a million Greater Clevelanders—one out of every four residents.

—It is directed to James F. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization.

"Wages were stabilized by Executive Order of the President in October, 1942," the petition explains. "Further restrictions were placed on wage and salary increases by Executive Order 9328 in April, 1943.

"In line with this, President Roosevelt ordered that prices be brought under strict control immediately . . . 'to prevent further price increases direct or indirect, to prevent profiteering and to reduce prices which are excessivey high, unfair or inequitable.'

"We agree," say those who sign the petitions, "with President Roosevelt that a strong united nation requires a stable economy—with wages AND PRICES stabilized. All measures, including government subsidies to processors should be used, to effectuate this order."

Hit Smear Story On Housing

Lorain, Ohio, June 12—A smear story against a federal housing project for Lorain war workers is exposed in the first issue of the Lorain Labor Leader, new CIO weekly paper endorsed by the Lorain County CIO Council.

After a story, charging that the buildings in the Central Park Homes project were poorly constructed and generally unsatisfactory, had appeared in a local paper, an investigation was made by a CIO committee.

This committee reported that the charges were untrue and were inspired by real estate interests hostile to the slum clearance program from the beginning.

Senate Rejects Purge Bill By 69-0

Washington, June 12—The U. S. Senate this week rejected by 69 to 0 a House proposal which would oust from government service three Federal employes accused by the Dies and Kerr Committees of being "subversives."

Striking a solid blow for democracy, the Senate turned a cold shoulder on "evidence" from what were described as "star chamber proceedings" of the two committees, and eliminated from an appropriations bill a provision which would have forbidden payment of salaries to Drs. Robert Morss Lovett, William E. Dodd Jr., and Goodwin B. Watson.

Smith-Connally Bill Aimed To Wreck War

The Smith-Connally anti-victory bill, hatched in a Congressional incubator heated by John L. Lewis, will "hamper and stifle the production of our munitions of war through the demoralization of the workers on the home front," CIO President Philip Murray wrote President Roosevelt this week in calling for a veto of the measure.

John L. Lewis Great Guy In Eyes of Nazis

WASHINGTON, June 19—John L. Lewis is a great guy—with the Nazi murderers of United Nations' soldiers. The United Press reported this week that the "super-men" are so enthusiastic about the mine workers' fuehrer that they published a highly flattering biography of him in the authoritative Nazi newspaper, VOELKISCHER BEOBACHTER.

The UP report, from Stockholm, said the Nazis referred to Lewis as "the man who sees calamity in the United States alliance with Britain. Depicting Lewis as the true friend of American workers in contrast to President Roosevelt, the VOELKISCHER BEOBACHTER described the mine leader as "the man who sees things more clearly than others."

UE Membership Jumps 82,428 in 3 Months!

New York, June 19—An 82,428 growth in membership in three months was reported this week to the General Executive Board of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers by Director of Organization James J. Matles.

Covering the months of February, March and April, the report stated that 27 new plants were brought under contract in this period and that pacts were renewed in 87 other plants.

The rate of growth for the quarter was 22 per cent greater than during the previous quarter and 99 per cent greater than for the same quarter a year ago, Matles said

Union Men Best Soldiers, Know Why They're Fighting, Says U. S. Officer

By ANTHONY JENKINSON

NEW YORK, June 19 (ALN)—Experienced trade unionists make good soldiers "because they understand what they are fighting for, show initiative and are trained to work with other men as a unit," Lt. Col. Evans Fordyce Carlson, leading guerrilla warfare expert of the U. S. Marine Corps, stated this week in an exclusive interview with Allied Labor News. Last August, Colonel Carlson, with Maj. James Roosevelt as second-in-command, led the successful raid on Makim Island, northernmost of the Japanese-held Gilbert Islands.

In November, "Carlson's Raiders" wiped out a Japanese stronghold on Guadalcanal after a four-weeks' push through sniper-infested jungles and swamps previously regarded as impenetrable.

The 47-year-old colonel, who joined the Marines in 1922 after serving in France as a field artillery captain, received the Navy Cross for leading the Makim Island raid.

"The success of an operation depends not merely on machines and planning but on execution—on the human element," Carlson said. "It depends on men working together, obeying orders willingly, and using their own initiative. Trade unionism trains a man to do these things.

"Soldiers who think intelligently about economic and social problems are quicker to grasp new ideas and more readily come up to the standard of modern military requirements.

"When men have discipline based on knowledge and reason, when they fight because their hearts and souls are in it—rather than because they are ordered to fight—victory is certain."

Knowledge Is Power

Pointing out that it takes more than a mere knowledge of military tactics to make a good soldier, Carlson said: "Unless men understand the meaning of the war and the real character of the enemy, they tend to give up easily, to fall out or go back to the base hospital."

Carlson, who picked his men out of 7,000 candidates, carried out this education mainly by means of forums.

"We discussed all manner of subjects, including the $25,000 limit on incomes and anti-labor legislation," he said. "Every man was encouraged to take part.

"I was deeply impressed by the knowledge of these men and their ability to express themselves clearly. They showed themselves convinced that Nazism and Japanese militarism must be destroyed. They gave proof of the power and efficiency of democracy."

Already 16 of "Carlson's Raiders" have been commissioned from the ranks.

Many CIO Men

Of the 1,000 men in his battalion, Carlson said, quite a number are trade unionists: steel workers from Gary, Ind., who are members of the United Steelworkers (CIO); members of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers from Montana and United Mine Workers members from Pennsylvania. The miners are the battalion's demolition experts.

"The trade unionists are among the finest men in our unit," Carlson said. "They have this quality: they never give up."

Another asset of experienced unionists, according to the colonel, is that they "know how to look after themselves. For instance, on Guadalcanal, for days on end we were moving through swamps, with our clothes wet all the time.

"In such conditions a type of fungus grows on the feet. The only remedy against this dangerous growth is personal cleanliness. You have to wash yourself and your clothes thoroughly every night.

"When you are dog-tired, have to cook your food and cut down boughs to provide shelter (we carried no tents or blankets), the temptation is to skip this washing—and then the trouble starts. I noticed that the trade unionists were among those who never failed to look after themselves, setting an example to the whole unit."

CIO Urges Roosevelt:

Veto Smith-Connally Bill!

CIO President Philip Murray this week called on President Roosevelt to veto the Smith-Connally bill (S 796) on the ground that it "would hamper and stifle the production of our munitions of war through the demoralization of the workers on the production front." "Such action," Murray wrote in urging the veto, "will be hailed by all Americans who are determined not to permit any note of disunity to seep into our midst which could interfere with the decisive effort of our nation to achieve victory in the great patriotic war of survival." The complete statement follows:

The House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States have passed S. 796, cited as the "War Labor Disputes Act." This bill is now before you for consideration.

It is the judgment of the CIO that this proposed legislation, if enacted into law, would constitute one of the most serious blows directed against our national war effort and be the equivalent of a major military disaster.

A brief analysis of the major provisions of the bill reveals the anti-labor venom which prompted the sponsors of the legislation and the dangers to which our nation will be exposed as as a result.

CIO Pledges No Stoppages

1. The CIO and its affiliated organizations have given their pledge to the nation that there shall be no stoppages of work for the duration of the war. We have done so because of our very sincere and deep appreciation of the issues which are involved in our nation's war for survival. We did not give this pledge as a concession or because of any fear of penalties, but rather because our membership understood that nothing must be permitted to occur which would in any way aid the enemies of our nation.

S. 796, on the other hand, will actually encourage stoppages and interruptions of work. The bill authorizes groups of employes in the particular plants to give notice of their intention to strike and implies that in the event a majority of the employes signify by ballot their desire to strike, such action is permissible.

The real purpose of this provision is disclosed by the Section which authorizes civil suits on the part of any party damaged as a result of the failure of any person to comply with the provisions of notice and waiting periods.

The LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee revealed the lengths to which anti-labor employers have gone through the use of provocateurs and industrial spies to destroy and dismember labor unions. Through the reintroduction of these practices, unions under S. 796 will be at the mercy of large corporations which will instigate stoppages of work to pave the way for burdensome civil damage suits against the unions and thereby seek to accomplish their ultimate destruction.

It should be clear that legislation which affords an opportunity for this type of activity will only initiate a period of terrific internal strife and conflict within our nation that must be disastrous in terms of the present need for national unity to win the war.

Politics Ban Bares Hypocrisy

2. S. 796 purports to be a "War Labor Disputes Act" for the duration of the war. The hypocrisy of this claim is demonstrated through the insertion of the provision in the bill prohibiting labor organizations from making financial contributions in any Federal election. What possible relationship is there between the provision and any objective aimed at preventing strikes or stoppages of work?

This provision is one very openly aimed at weakening the democratic structure of our country by preventing the participation of the common people in our political life.

Those with wealth, through their large contributions as they desire, but will still be permitted to make as large cnotributions as they desire, but the individual workers is to be prevented from joining with his fellow workers, into labor unions for the purpose of bringing to bear their maximum influence in the election of their national representatives.

Would Weaken WLB Power

3. The Natl. War Labor Board, to date, has been the instrument created by you under Executive Order to settle in the most expeditious manner such industrial disputes that could not be resolved through collective bargaining or mediation. This agency was predicated upon the voluntary and democratic agreement arrived at between representatives of management, labor and the government. S. 796 purports to strengthen the National War Labor Board but Congressman Smith, whose hatred for labor unions knows no bounds, has indicated that he will encourage attempts to use this legislation to weaken and prevent the board from functioning as it has in the past.

Thus Congressman Smith openly stated that it was his desire that the board, on the basis of the provisions of S. 796, should not make any decision in favor of union security.

The bill also refrains from authorizing the board to act through agents, such as the regional boards that were established for the purpose of facilitating the disposition of cases. The elimination of regional boards would only result in delays and greater injustices to be heaped upon the workers.

The majority of Congress certainly did not intend to accomplish these objectives. But the expressions from Congressman Smith and others of his ilk on the floor of Congress will be sufficient to tie up the operations of the board through litigation which will be initiated by these corporations who have consistently, but to date unsuccessfully, opposed the board.

The United States Gypsum Co., whose leading official is Mr. Sewell Avery, also the head of Montgomery-Ward & Co., in a nation-wide advertisement today advised the Natl. War Labor Board that it will not accept a decision of the board directing the company to incorporate in its collective bargaining agreement with the CIO union, a maintenance of membership provision.

This must be marked as the opening gun in the attack that will be initiated by those anti-labor companies against the board and its operations as a result of the new legislation.

Conspiracy Law Revived

4. S. 796 makes it a crime for persons to engage in concert in a strike or other interruption of work where the plant is in the possession of the United States. The bill extends the criminal penalties to anyone who might conspire with or encourage any person in such unlawful activity, or who gives aid by giving direction or guidance or providing funds or other benefits to those who participate. These provisions re-incorporate in Federal law the hoary and vicious doctrine of criminal conspiracy which as applied to labor unions made them completely illegal.

There are many plants which are owned by the United States Government and operated by private contractors. These plants would undoubtedly be covered by the provisions of the bill which provide for notices of disputes and ballots regarding strikes.

Thus on the one hand the bill would authorize stoppages in these plants and on the other hand invoke criminal penalties to all those engaged in such strikes.

No strike or stoppage of work is justified during our present war. The CIO condemns any such act, but we equally condemn any legislation or executive action, as contemplated under S. 796, which seeks to set aside the Bill of Rights of the United States Constitution.

Trampling upon the democratic rights of the American people is not the method to be used in establishing national unity and accomplishing a total mobilization of the full effort and energies of all our people.

Cannot Be Tolerated

That was the method chosen by the Two Hundred Families and the Petains and Lavals who were hell-bent upon betraying France. It is the method that is chosen by Hitler and his Axis satellites in establishing a so-called "New Order."

But it cannot be accepted or tolerated in this country.

The destruction of the liberties of the people and of their democratic institution, labor unions, was the initial and necessary step of the Fascist and Nazi regime. S. 796 is the expression of a similar endeavor in our nation.

The millions of American working men and women who are toiling and sweating in the hope of establishing, through the victory of the United Nations, the Four Freedoms, condemn any attempted imposition of tyrannical rule in our great democracy.

Inspired by Defeatists

The proposed legislation was inspired by the very forces which, through the sowing of seeds of disunity and strife among the people, seek to prevent the all-out offensive against the Axis in accordance with your historic Casablanca call for unconditional surrender.

The legislation is not intended to produce an additional tank or an additional gun, or an additional ship, but rather to interfere with, hamper and stifle the production of our munitions of war through the demoralization of the workers on the production front.

On behalf of all of our affiliated unions and our five million members, and in the interest of preserving those basic and traditional democratic concepts of American life, I most earnestly request that you veto S. 796.

Such action will be hailed by all Americans who are determined not to permit any note of disunity to seep into our midst which could interfere with the decisive effort of our Nation to achieve Victory in the great Patriotic War of Survival.

House Does Hatchet Job on Funds For Vital War Agencies

WASHINGTON, June 19—This week's biggest Congressional blow at the war came in a hatchet job on funds for U. S. government war agencies by the House Appropriations Committee headed by Rep. Cannon (D., Mo.) which recommended deep slashes to the House in almost every important federal war set-up.

By this vote, the committee voted against price control in cutting OPA funds for enforcement by $12,000,000; voted against child care and other domestic mobilization projects by slashing Civilian Defense funds; voted against training war workers by killing the National Youth Administration; against letting the U. S. and foreign countries know about the war by cutting the Office of War Information; and tried to cripple the War Labor Board by reducing its funds.

The appropriations, after they are passed by the House, go to the Senate, where CIO and all win-the-war groups will put up a fight for restoration of vitally needed war funds. This can be done, as was shown when the Senate two weeks ago restored a major part of the Farm Security appropriation funds killed by the House.

In letters to Senators and to CIO affiliates, CIO Legislative Director Nathan Cowan appealed for restoration and urged all CIO members to halt this sabotage of the war being put over by a defeatist, reactionary gang in the House.

Cowan appealed particularly on the funds for OPA enforcement, which he pointed out affected the living standards and efficiency of war workers, and on the OCD slash, which would further strangle the feeble child care projects and other civilian war projects that OCD is aiding.

3 Top Manpower Posts Go to Labor

WASHINGTON, June 19—Three posts in the top U. S. manpower and production setup fell to labor this week, as at least the partial answer to a long campaign to get more representation on the committees that are vital cogs in the war machine.

Clinton S. Golden, assistant to President Philip Murray of the United Steelworkers of America, was appointed vice-chairman of the War Production Board for manpower liaison, and also was named as vice-chairman of the War Manpower Commission.

Joseph D. Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor (ALF), was designated vice-chairman of the WPB for labor production.

Golden will act as advisor to War Manpower Chairman Paul V. McNutt, and also will help to coordinate the operations of the manpower and production agencies.

Both jobs will be full time, with Golden and Keenan representing labor generally. Golden is on leave of absence from the USA.

Golden previously had served on the labor management policy committee of the War Manpower Commission.

Smith-Connally Bill Hits War—Veto It!

WASHINGTON, June 19—CIO's fight against the war-crippling Smith-Connally bill (S 796) moved into the final stage this week in urgent pleas to President Roosevelt for a veto, with President Philip Murray leading the fight.

The President was also appealed to by all CIO affiliates and thousands of local unions and councils, together with appeals for a veto from AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods and countless local bodies of all labor and progressive types.

Leading the campaign was President Murray's letter to the White House analyzing the effect the bill would have in cutting war production and urging a veto to smash any disruptive attempt "which could interfere with the decisive effort of our nation to achieve victory in the great patriotic war of survival."

Murray also joined with AFL President William Green and with David Robertson, president of the Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen in a similar analysis of the bill's effect on the war and an appeal for a veto.

In addition, he went on the air in two broadcasts this week, one with Green and Robertson and the other in a 10-minute speech over the Mutual Broadcasting System.

In a final drive to let the people know the real anti-victory meaning of the bill, the CIO placed large ads in leading city newspapers in the form of an open letter to the President.

LETTER TO PRESIDENT

In Murray's letters to the President, he pointed out that the bill would, if it becomes law under FDR's signature, "hamper and stifle the production of our munitions of war through the demoralization of the workers on the home front."

Analysis of the bill shows, Murray wrote, that it would "actually encourage stoppages and interruptions of work," through the tacit approval given in the 30 days' notice and secret ballot required before a strike can be held, would in turn open the way "for provocateurs and industrial spies to destroy and dismember labor unions and would expose unions to heavy punitive damages."

Murray sharply criticized the prohibition of political contributions by labor unions as "very openly aimed at weakening the democratic structure of our country by preventing the participation of the common people in our political life," while still permitting wealthy people to make heavy financial contributions.

BOSSES' AD CITED

He pointed to an ad appearing in the daily press this week in which the U. S. Gypsum Co. flatly refused to obey a WLB union security order as "the opening gun in the attack" of anti-labor employers on war production.

Criminal penalties against strikers or "anyone who might conspire with or encourage any person in unlawful activity" is a return to the medieval doctrine of conspiracy which could wipe out all unions, he added.

"The destruction of the liberties of the people and of their democratic institutions, labor unions, was the initial step of the fascist and Nazi regimes," he said in concluding the appeal for a veto.

The President has until June 25 to either veto the bill, sign it, or let it go through without signature. The first two of these three things can happen, of course, before the June 25 deadline.

Keep Your Eye on Congress

The President has until June 25 to let the Smith-Connally-Lewis bill (S. 796) become law or veto it. CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods and every win-the-war group in the country want a veto. Add your voice, by wire to the White House.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Smith-Connally (S. 796)	Knocks out union security, forbids political action by unions, subjects workers to severe punishment, etc.	Before President Roosevelt, must be vetoed or let pass by June 25.	Wire FDR for veto before June 25.
Lucas (S. 1089)	Keeps election polls open from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m., helps war workers to vote.	Senate sub-committee on Elections.	Write your Senators for.
Social Security changes. (S. 1161, H. R. 2861)	Extends scope of all benefits, big step to real security, aids armed forces in readjustment after victory.	To Senate Finance and House Ways and Means Committees, hearings soon.	Write your Senators and Representatives for.
Poll tax repeal. (H. R. 7)	Repeals poll tax bar on voters in seven states.	Passed House, now in Senate sub-committee of Judiciary, headed by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.).	Urge immediate sub-committee report; ask Senators for cloture vote to stop filibuster.
Tax bill.	Action to date forgives 75% of 1942 tax liability. Sales tax fight under way.	Hearings on new bill covering kind of taxes you will pay to begin in next few weeks.	Keep up drive against sales tax, for CIO program.
National Resources Planning Bd. appropriation.	House killed all funds for NRPB, Senate restored $200,000.	Now in House-Senate Conference.	Urge your Senators and Representatives to restore full appropriation, $1,400,000.

FOOD CRISIS

Fight for subsidies to roll back food prices still on, Senate and House defeatists (men like Sens. Taft (R., O.), Bushfield (R., S. Dak.), Smith (polltaxer, S. C.), Reps. Smith (polltaxer, Va.), Boren (D., Okla.), et. al) leading drive against rollback by forbidding use of subsidies to make it possible. Pres. Roosevelt has entered fight actively with demand for $2 billion program. ACTION: Write your Senators and Representative demanding support for subsidy and rollback. How well you eat depends on how well you do this job.

House anti-victory forces have cut funds for vital war agencies, including OPA, the Natl. Youth Administration, Office of Civilian Defense, Office of War Information and others. This means less price control enforcement, less youth training for war work, less child care, etc. ACTION: These funds can be restored in the Senate, the same way Farm Security funds were restored. Write your Senators immediately.

New York, June 19—A total of $4,200,000 a year in wage increases for the 32,000 employes of this city's transit system was awarded this week by the Board of Transportation. The CIO Transport Workers Union hailed the raise as a substantial victory.

Gained by peaceful collective bargaining in the interests of the war, the increases will provide about $120 a year extra for the average employe, according to TWU officials.

The increases were accompanied by a simplification of the rate structure, with a total of 1,600 former rates being cut to only 75. In no case will there be more than five wage rates for any one job classification.

The union pointed out that the agreement was obtained under CIO's policy of no strikes for the duration.

New York, June 19—A renewed collective bargaining contract providing for more than $3,200,000 in wage increases recently ordered by the War Labor Board was signed today between officials of the Postal Telegraph Cable Co. and the American Communications Association. The union represents practically all of the company's employes throughout the nation.

Funds to pay the wage increases will be obtained by the company from the Reconstruction Finance Corp. The new pay rates will be effective for the payroll period beginning June 20, 1943. Retroactive pay to October 1, 1942, amounting to $2,200,000 will be distributed as soon as computations can be completed.

Veto Called For

The whole future of the labor movement is at stake in the decision which President Roosevelt must make on the Smith-Connally Bill. It rests on his desk, as this is written, awaiting either his signature to become law or his veto.

More that that, the future success of our victory production drive is also at stake.

The anti-labor, anti-democratic and anti-victory character of this vicious measure is fully described in other columns.

The Smith-Connally Bill has been sold to Congress and the public as an "anti-strike" and "anti-Lewis" bill. It is neither.

It was hatched by the administration-baiting political cronies of John L. Lewis, and he furnished the pretext for its passage.

It is actually designed to provoke strikes, rather than to stop them.

It will demoralize war production, cripple the War Labor Board, threaten the life of labor unions and destroy the workers' democratic rights.

President Roosevelt must either sign or veto the Smith-Connally Bill by June 25, otherwise it will become law without his signature.

He needs the strongest possible assurance of labor and popular support if he is to veto this bill.

Wire him at once in the White House at Washington, urging him to veto the Smith-Connally Bill as a dangerous stumbling-block on our road to victory, and to expose its true character to the whole country.

Why Subsidies?

For a long time, the word subsidy had a nasty sound to American ears. It meant that big business was getting all four feet into the gravy trough and scooping out huge profits at the public expense.

The shipping industry scandals, the airmail exposes of 10 years ago, a score of distinctly unpleasant if not noisome instances of graft gave the word and the idea of subsidy an unwholesome connotation.

Today, Americans are learning that the subsidy idea, when properly applied, is a win-the-war measure, and that their own living standards and their ability to do their war jobs at top efficiency depend on the proper use of subsidies to make the rollback of living costs possible.

The rollback in living costs is a number one necessity, just as much a part of winning the war as anything on the offensive front and on the home front in the common task of achieving victory.

CIO President Murray put the need for subsidies to roll back living costs in his testimony before a Senate committee when he told the assembled statesmen: "The issue is simple; price control or no price control, stabilization or inflation."

The rollback has to be paid for. The war workers and the rest of the people who work for a living cannot pay for it, since that would not be a rollback. The farmers and the processors and the distributors cannot be expected to pay for it. The CIO doesn't want the rollback to come out of their hides, because that wouldn't help the war.

Yet a lot of people, in Congress and outside it, are fighting the subsidy plan tooth and nail. They say it will cost too much, that it's not needed, that it's "un-American," and some of them even are bold enough to say that prices should be allowed to keep on going up and up, and to hell with the war.

The last argument is an argument of defeatism. Any more increases in living costs, and a failure to roll them back, would be a disaster equivalent to a major military defeat.

The argument that it costs too much is fallacious. The rollback is a war necessity. President Roosevelt has said it would cost about $2 billion. That's two per cent of this year's total war budget—and we aren't counting the money cost of winning this war.

As for subsidies being "un-American"—since when have inflation and profiteering and lowered living standards been anything but un-American?

The subsidy plan is a war necessity. There's nothing under the sun more American than winning this war against Axis slavery.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

THE Smith-Connally Bill is one of the world's worst phoneys.

It is called an "anti-strike bill." Yet it actually encourages strikes.

It is supposed to be directed against John L. Lewis. Yet it was promoted by the political clique with whom Lewis is keeping house. It hurts millions more than it hurts Lewis; and he was more responsible for its passage than anyone else.

The bill claims to strengthen the War Labor Board. Yet it actually cripples its functioning, encourages court attacks on its decisions, and invites disobedience on the part of employers.

It purports to be a "War Labor Disputes Act." Yet it includes completely irrelevant provisions to deprive workers of their democratic political rights.

It claims to aid the prosecution of the war. Yet it follows the Hitler fifth column pattern for creating internal disruption by destroying labor unions and demoralizing production.

★ ★ ★

The Smith-Connally Bill undermines labor's no-strike stand by actually outlining procedures under which strikes may be called.

It tempts union-busting employers to use provocateurs to cause stoppages, so that heavy civil damage suits may be brought against the unions.

The bill revives the vicious doctrine of "criminal conspiracy" against labor unions—which was used for 50 years to destroy the right to organize, until removed by the Clayton and Norris-LaGuardia acts.

By stating that decisions of the War Labor Board must comply with the Price Control, Labor Relations and other acts, and by barring labor members from sitting on cases in which they have "a direct interest," the bill exposes board decisions to endless court attack by employers.

The claims of the bill's sponsors that it will bar maintenance-of-membership or other union security awards by the War Labor Board should not stand up in any fair court. But they will furnish a pretext for countless legal attacks on decisions favoring union security.

A complete give-away of the anti-democratic intent of the Smith-Connally Bill is its ban on political contributions by labor unions.

This is a gross class discrimination against the political rights of the workers. For the ban is not applied to any other kind of unincorporated association, whether business, fraternal, church or farm.

Furthermore, individual members of wealthy families can still contribute large sums to political campaigns—which have totaled from 50 to 100 thousand dollars from a single family in one campaign.

But the workers, under this bill, are denied the right to pool their meager resources through their unions to offset the political influence of the wealthy.

The Smith-Connally Bill is a misbegotten monstrosity whose could-be fathers are legion.

Immediately recognizable are the union-busting features of the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers, whose bills Howard Smith has sponsored for years.

The bill is named for two polltaxers and supported by the whole polltax gang in Congress, which constantly seeks to knife labor and the Administration and which hates democracy more than it hates Hitler.

It was passed by a combination of polltax Democrats and reactionary or defeatist Republican pals of John L. Lewis.

Lewis himself was the strike-provocateur who opened the floodgates for the anti-labor deluge.

And lurking behind the scenes is the sinister influence of the Axis itself.

The recent praise for Lewis in Hitler's press should not be overlooked. Nor should it be forgotten that the Nazi fifth column helped to destroy France from within through similar labor-crushing measures directed against the country's real democratic backbone.

A gross deception has been perpetrated on the country through this bill.

Everyone who wants to win the war opposes war-time strikes and is disgusted with Lewis' provocations.

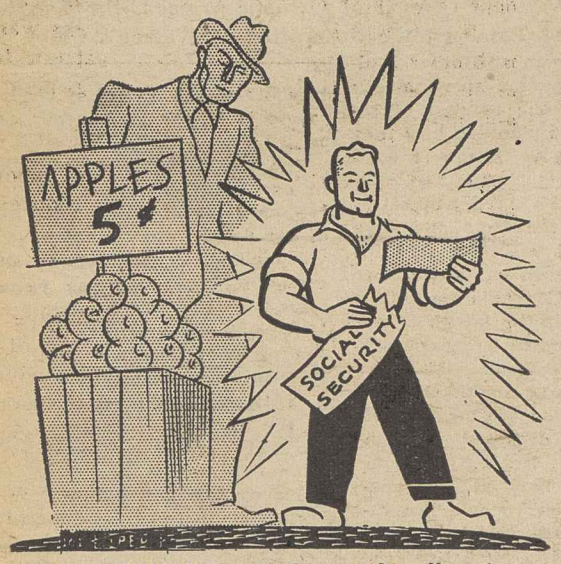
So much of the public has been sold on an alleged "anti-strike" and "anti-Lewis" bill, without realizing it conceals the very opposite purpose.

Actually the Smith-Connally Bill is the fruit of a dangerous political conspiracy by Administration-baiting politicians and defeatists, who are more anxious to lick Roosevelt than to lick Hitler and whose labor lieutenant is none other than Lewis himself.

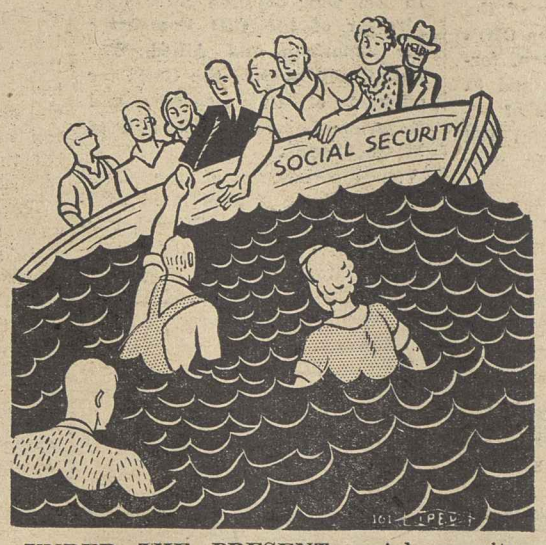
In fighting the Smith-Connally Bill as disruptive of our war effort, one of labor's first tasks must be to tear the mask from this whole anti-victory conspiracy.

John Q. Citizen's Security Bill And What It Means to You

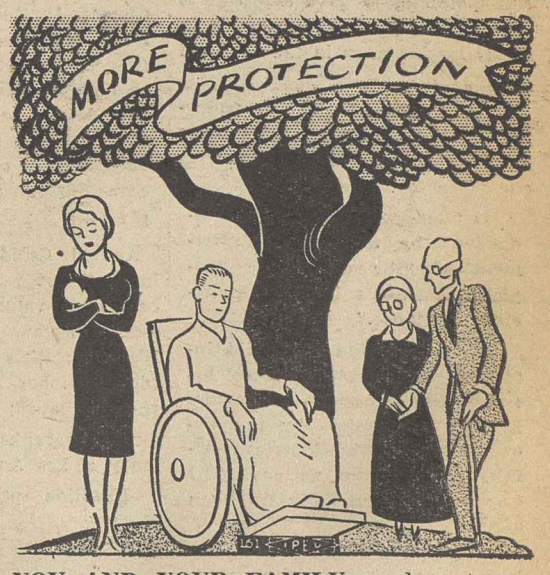
Freedom from want and freedom from fear are two of the main objectives the United Nations are fighting for. The greatest source of fear we have is the fear of insecurity the fear of hunger and misery due to unemployment, old age, sickness, disability. Our first Social Security law was passed almost 10 years ago. Today, in the new bill introduced by Senators Wagner and Murray and Representative Dingell, we have a chance to broaden and improve our social security system to end much of this source of fear. Below, we show how the new program would work—and why YOU should work for its passage by Congress.



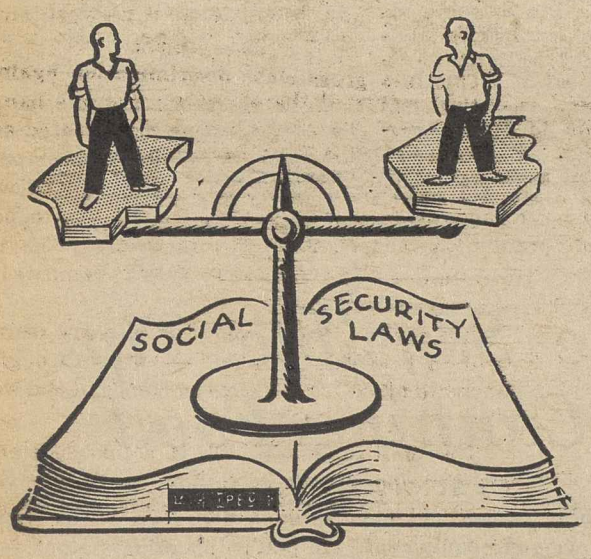
THE SHADOW of the apple-seller is a dark memory to millions of workers who know what it is to be out of a job. Unemployment compensation, which the workers get as a matter of right, not of charity, is a No. 1 necessity in any social security program. The new bill now in Congress broadens and increases the amount of benefit payment in case you lose your job, makes the payments last longer.



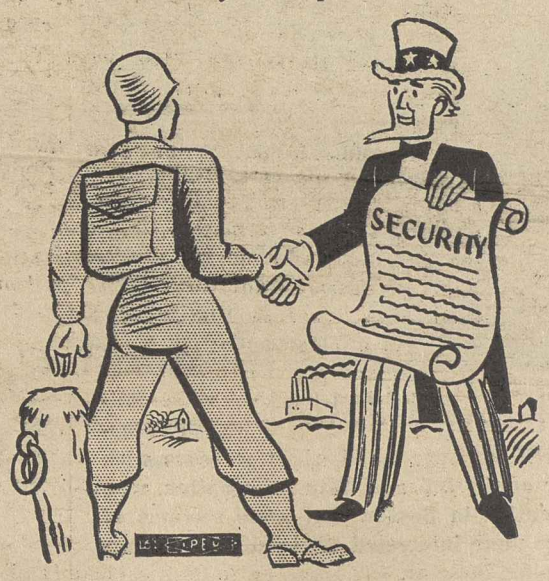
UNDER THE PRESENT social security law, many millions of workers are left without protection, though they need it as much as anyone. Under the proposed new bill, these groups, including agricultural workers, domestic workers, workers in non-profit outfits, and government workers (by agreement with their agencies) are taken aboard along with industrial workers and others who today have protection.



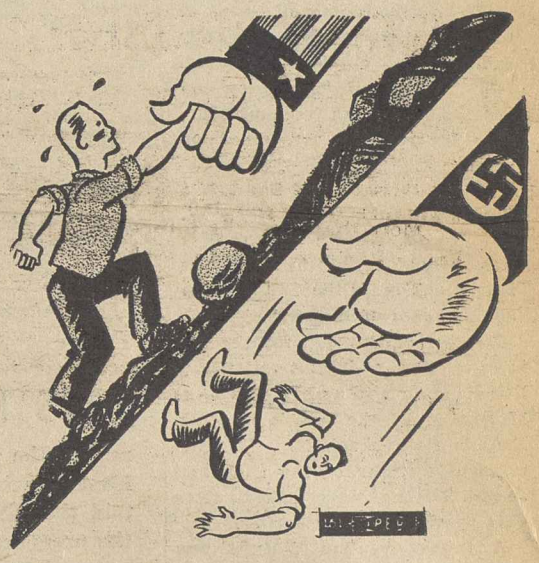
YOU AND YOUR FAMILY need protection for security from infancy through to old age. The new social security bill increases this protection over the present act, provides more for maternity care, child care, protection against sickness and disability, including hospitalization, and old age. You can help give yourself and your family this protection—by demanding passage of the new bill now.



ONE OF THE FAULTS with the present social security act is the fact that standards of protection throughout the country are very uneven. Benefits vary greatly from state to state, and a uniform, nation-wide standard is lacking. The new bill proposes to lift all social security standards, equalizing those in places where benefits are too low. This is a major step toward real security in all of the U. S. A.



AFTER THE VICTORY, our soldiers will come back to civilian life. They will be faced first with the problem of getting jobs. This period of re-adjustment must be made as smooth as possible for them. The new social security act proposes to give them unemployment benefits in the same way it proposes to give them to civilian war workers. Passage of this bill now is a real service to our men in the armed forces; and more, it gives them an added goal to fight for.



THIS IS THE DIFFERENCE between a democracy and a fascist dictatorship; in a democracy, the nation cares for its people; in the fascist Axis, the people live in terror and insecurity. Here, the nation helps the individual. In the Axis, the state exploits him as a slave, lets him die when he has no further use as a slave. Real social security is one of the things that makes the difference between civilization and Hitler. It is one of the things we're fighting for.

Subsidies Tied to Health Of Nation, Murray Warns

WASHINGTON, June 19—CIO's fight for the price rollback and for subsidy payments to make it possible is the most basic home front issue in the war, President Murray told the Senate Banking Committee this week in hearings on the subsidy plan.

"This is not a question of figures on a chart," he said. "It is a question of men and women and children and their health. It is a question of war production and the health and productive efficiency of war workers. It is a question of the morale of American workers."

Murray's testimony highlighted the CIO drive to secure the living cost rollback through subsidies, and was CIO's challenge to the defeatist forces that are trying to block the rollback and to promote inflation, regardless of the fact that inflation would be a disaster equal to a major military defeat.

As Murray put it; "Failure to push forward effectively on the price control front can be as devastating in its military consequences as would have been a failure to push the Nazis into the sea at Tunis and Bizerte."

Two days before Murray testified, President Roosevelt joined the price rollback drive by telling a press conference that subsidies were absolutely essential to a stable home front, and that around $2 billion would be required for a sound program. This is about two per cent of this year's war budget.

Roosevelt's statement helped to offset the anti-subsidy campaign being carried on in Congress by such men as Sen. Taft (R.,O.), Sen. Bushfield, (R., S.D.), Sen. Bankhead, (polltaxer, Ala.), and in the House by such people as Smith (polltaxer, Va.), Broen, (D., Okla.), and others.

Roosevelt also knocked on the head a proposal for a single food "czar" which reactionary Congressmen have been pushing with the idea of enthroning an anti-subsidy man as the czar and with the basic aim of completely destroying price control.

This idea, incidentally, was unveiled before Congress by Herbert Hoover, best known among workers as the father of apple selling as a cure for the problem of eating during the early years of the great depression.

Meantime, a new Congressional group of about 20 members has been formed to fight for the price rollback and for real price control in the House, with a meeting of consumer groups set for Friday, June 25, in this city.

Murray's testimony forcibly reminded the Senate committee members that Congress was committed to holding the line and to real price control by the original act of October, 1942, and that so far only wage control had been put into effect.

Failure to control and rollback prices will force the lid off the wage question, he warned, pointing out: "There has not been a single upward adjustment of wages allowed by the War Labor Board to compensate for the increased cost of living" since the Little Steel freezing formula.

FOR ALL THE PEOPLE

Labor's fight for control and for the rollback through subsidies is a fight for all the people, he added, and particularly for the unorganized workers who do not have unions to fight for higher wages for them. Unorganized workers in the professions, in white collar work and government work, as well as farmers, people on fixed incomes and all others will be benefitted, he said.

At the same time, he pointed out that the subsidy program is the only way to achieve the rollback without injury to growers, processors or distributors. Any other means of rolling prices back will work injury to them, and labor is insistent that any reduction be not taken out of their hides.

Guild Parley All-Out For CIO War Policy

By WILBUR H. BALDINGER

BOSTON, June 16—The American Newspaper Guild met in tenth anniversary convention this week with its CIO membership strength at an all-time high and with the war the dominating theme in all proceedings.

The Guild "is larger and stronger than it was a year ago or than it has ever been," ANG Executive Vice-President Sam B. Eubanks told the delegates at the Hotel Statler, where they unanimously lined up behind the war leadership of President Roosevelt and CIO President Philip Murray, and unanimously gave approval to CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey for his work in the CIO and for the Guild.

In early reports of its policy-making resolutions committee the ANG convention also spoke with one voice for:

(1) "Recognition and consideration" by the State Department of "the democratic people's movements in the Fascist-enslaved lands."

(2) "Cooperation and solid inter-American understanding between the Americas, as implemented in wartime by the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs and by the national CIO committee on Latin-American affairs.

(3) "The movement for the release of anti-Fascist prisoners in North Africa."

(4) "Funds sufficient to maintain the National Resources Planning Board as an effective agency for economic planning to the end that American workers, now dedicated unreservedly to the tasks of war, shall be protected from the catastrophe of post-war industrial collapse."

(5) "Opposition to all forms of discrimination against minority groups" and elimination by all labor unions of "any provision that bars a person from membership because of race, creed or color."

(6) Reaffirmation of the ANG's "pledge of support to Harry R. Bridges so that he may receive every right in law to which he is entitled under the Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

Principal spokesman for the CIO in convention addresses was Carey, listed for an appearance at a June 17 session of the ANG's meeting. Francis Carmichael, New England regional director of the CIO, and Joseph Salerno, Massachusetts state CIO president, spoke earlier.

A top convention feature was presentation of the annual Heywood Broun Memorial Award for the best newspaper job done in the spirit of the founder of the ANG.

The award went to Milton J. Lapine, long-time leader of the Cleveland Guild; William M. Davy, executive secretary of the Cleveland Guild and of the CIO's council there; I. L. Kenen, former ANG vice-president, and E. George Green for a series of advertisements on the causes and cures of absenteeism in war plants.

Annual Guild Reporter awards for the best work by Guild members, on a volunteer basis, for the union's organ, went to James A. Wechsler, PM's national-labor editor, for labor roundup stories in the newspaper; John Albert of PM, for photographs, and John P. Maloney of Los Angeles, for cartoons.

Headline speakers, in addition to Carey, Carmichael and Salerno, included Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, who sharply criticized some newspapers for their business-and-politics-as-usual policies in the war; Monroe Sweetland, director of the CIO Committee for American and Allied War Relief, who praised the Guild for support of its program, and Governor Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

The top officers of the Guild were unanimously nominated without opposition for additional two-year terms. They included: President Milton Murray, Executive Vice-President Sam B. Eubanks, and Secretary-Treasurer William W. Rodgers.

Election of 10 vice-presidents is scheduled by national referendum, with five candidates nominated in opposition to a full administration slate.

HITS POLITICS-AS-USUAL: Pres. Milton Murray of the American Newspaper Guild, right, concurs with Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, who told the ANG's convention in Boston that some sections of the press seemed to be more interested editorially in politics-as-usual than in winning the war.

Roosevelt Takes CIO Position on Subsidies

President Roosevelt has adopted the position of Organized Labor on using subsidies to roll back the cost of living. This was made obvious in a press conference with the President Tuesday, June 15, when he mentioned spending $1,500,000,000 or $2,000,000,000 in subsidies. The latter figure is the figure the CIO has been campaigning for as necessary to roll back prices.

The President declared that even if a billion and a half or two billion would be spent in subsidies, it would amount only to 1½% or 2% of a $100 billion budget.

The position of organized labor, generally, and of the CIO, specifically, was presented to the President two weeks ago at the meeting of the Labor Victory Committee. At that time, Philip Murray and William Green demanded vigorous action to roll prices back to May, 1942 levels.

Now that the subsidies have been approved by the President and the OPA has, thereby, been ordered to swing into action, we may see a number of prices of key commodities lowered. The price of butter has already been reduced. Meat and coffee may follow shortly.

Enforcement A Must

But it is important to remember that subsidies alone cannot keep prices down. Subsidies are no excuse or substitute for proper enforcement. Even with subsidies, prices can continue rising unless there is a determination on the part of the OPA to really enforce prices.

The CIO is also opposed to the use of subsidies to pay companies or industries which are reaping big profits. Subsidies are meant to help out companies which are squeezed between price ceilings and high costs. Subsidies should never be used to help companies whose profits will remain sufficient after prices have been rolled back.

We don't see any reason, for instance, why all meat packers should get a subsidy. The profits of meat packers in 1942 was 347% above the 1936-1939 average, before taxes.

The same applies to the canning industry. Profits of fruit and vegetable canners increased 83% before taxes in 1942 as against 1941. This has meant a doubling of profits in one year.

There may be individual companies in these industries which need help in the form of subsidies. But almost all industries, as a whole, have been making more money in the last two years than ever before.

Rationing Boards

CIO, AFL and Rail Unions have a sub-committee of the Harrisburg OPA Labor Advisory CSommittee working in each of ten central Pennsylvania counties which the district covers.

Responsible for this achievement is the Labor Advisory Committee, consisting of representatives of each of the major labor organizations, with George Medrick, of the United Steel Workers of America, heading the CIO delegation.

Venereal Disease Is Threat to Nation

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The CIO auxiliaries were represented at an important conference this week—a conference called by the Federal Security Agency on venereal disease and prostitution. Women from the YWCA, the National Council of Catholic Women, the Congress of Parents and Teachers, the Federation of Women's Clubs, the University Women and other leading women's groups spent a day learning about the ravages of social diseases and planning how they can help the government to combat them.

PLAIN SPEAKING NEEDED

They heard the facts and they were impressed with the need for plain speaking. In our all-out war against the Hitler Axis we cannot afford to permit the health of our armed forces and of our war workers to be undermined.

In the last war one-third more men were put on the injured list from venereal disease than from enemy action. Draft figures indicate today that almost one-twentieth of our people are infected with venereal disease.

HANDICAPS SERIOUS

One of the big problems we face in this offensive is the hestiancy of most people to discuss the problem frankly. Syphilis and gonorrhea are contagious diseases but lack of public information about them, lack of understanding of the basic social causes, has been a terribly serious handicap in curing their victims and preventing their spread.

Prostitution is one of the principal causes of the spread of venereal disease. Public Health figures show that one-half to three-quarters of all prostitutes are infected. Suppression of prostitution, therefore, is an urgent health problem in every American community.

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke to our national women's conference on this subject. She pointed out that the real cause of prostitution and therefore of the spread of venereal disease is failure to face our community problems.

The wretched living conditions in our industrial cities, the low income level of more than half of our people, our failure to provide adequate recreation programs for our teen age youngsters, our war workers, our servicemen—these are the roots of the problem. And the basic answer in Mrs. Roosevelt's words is a "real effort to meet the needs of the people."

A study of diseased girls in San Antonio illustrates her point. One young woman was the wife of a serviceman, with two babies. She earned $7 a week as a dance hall hostess. In order to hold that job she had to pay $5 a week for care of her babies. The first time she brought a man home for pay was when she had to have that $5 the following morning.

FREEDOM FROM WANT

In the meantime labor has a tremendous responsibility to join with other organizations in developing public understanding of the threat of social disease to our war effort; and to lead the way in a constructive program for community welfare which will really attack the roots of the problem.

Some Sensible Tips On Canning Food

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

The canning season will soon be upon us. Now is the time to check up on your equipment. If you're planning to put up fruits and vegetables other than tomatoes, you'll need a pressure cooker.

Pressure cookers are scarce. There aren't enough to go around for each housewife to have one of her own. However, you can have the use of a pressure cooker if you will share it with your neighbors.

There will be 275,000 pressure cookers on the market this year to be rationed for home canning, according to reports from the Food Production Administration. These will be rationed according to the number of famiies that will be benefited by each pressure cooker.

HOW TO GET PRESSURE COOKER

First get several of your friends to join with you in applying for a pressure cooker. You will get your application from the County Farm Rationing Committee in your locality. You will indicate in your application the number of families that will use the pressure cooker and the number of quarts of fruits and vegetables you expect to put up.

The committee will consider your application, and if it decides you are eligible for a pressure cooker, you will be advised that a purchase certificate will be issued to you as soon as you have located the pressure cooker you wish to buy.

So don't delay and start checking up on your neighborhood stores now. If there are no pressure cookers in stock now, ask the storekeeper to earmark one for you when his next shipment arrives.

SUGAR FOR CANNING

The next thing to check up on is the approximate amount of sugar you will need to meet your demands. You can now get extra sugar for home canning. Stamps 15 and 16 in War Ration Book 1 are good for five pounds of sugar each through October 31.

If you'll need additional sugar, you can apply in writing to your local rationing board for additional allotments. The Board will issue extra coupons up to 25 pounds of sugar per individual.

TIPS ON CANNING

"Home Canning of Fruits, Vegetables and Meat" a pamphlet put out by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is designed to help the housewife get the best results with her home canning. It tells clearly and simply how to go about canning all kinds of fruits, vegetables and meats step by step. Each food is treated separately. Canning equipment is described in detail.

Write to U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Ask for Farmers Bulletin No. 1762. Other pamphlets you may be able to use are—"Home Storage of Vegetables," (No. 879), Home-made Jellies, Jams and Preserves (1800) Drying food for Victory Meals (1918).

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

Passage of the Smith-Connally Bill was a vicious attack upon labor. It is a blow at the democratic institutions of our country. We will compare labor's patriotism with that of any one who voted for this bill. As President Murray puts it, "The bill will actually encourage stoppages and interruptions of work." He points out the provisions of the bill providing notice and secret ballot for a strike are tacit approval of stoppages.

Every enemy of labor—those who have fought organized labor at every turn, are rejoicing in this act. These enemies tipped their hand when they inserted in the bill the clause prohibiting labor organizations from making contributions in any Federal election, which has no relationship to any work stoppages whatever. At the same time it doesn't prohibit the wealthy from making contributions.

Labor must rise and protest this attack upon its patriotism and its service to the nation and call upon the President of the United States to veto this un-American measure. Act now!

Shoe Workers' Victory

The United Shoe Workers of America report an election victory at the Freeman Shoe Corp., Dixon, Ill., where CIO polled 152 votes as against 138 for no union.

Edward T. Shedlock, Midwest Region Director for UWOC reports a victory for CIO in Detroit Edison Co., in the underground lines department, with a vote of 99 for UWOC-CIO, only 49 for AFL.

Walter H. Harris, Director, UGCCWA, reports that at the Richold Chemical Co., Detroit, CIO won 50 votes in an election as against 44 for no union.

E. B. Pugh, regional director in Virginia, reports the labor board election victory at Lynchburg Foundry at Radford, Va., with a vote of 353 for USA-CIO as against 171. Earl Crowder, district representative, was in charge.

Morris Muster, president, UFWA, reports the following elections: General Aircraft Corp., Astoria, L. I., CIO 649 as against 624 for no union; Jamestown Lounge Co., Jamestown, N. Y., CIO 52 as against 26 for AFL; Thompson Mahogany Co., Moorefield, W. Va., CIO 77 as against 13 for no union. They also report the completion of a very fine agreement with the Berkey & Gay Furniture Co., Grand Rapids, involving some 400 workers with union shop and check-off.

More Elections Won

L. H. Goldsmith, field representative in Newark, reports the election victory at Collender Eng. with a vote of 75 for CIO as against 2 for no union. He also assisted in the election victory at the Rutherford Bus Lines, where TWU-CIO won by a vote of 69 as against 17 for the AFL.

Pete Mosele, regional director in New York City, reports a PWOC victory in Jersey City at the Jersey City Stock Yards, where the NLRB check of membership cards showed that 36 out of 37 employes were members of the CIO.

John Brost, field representative in Oregon, reports that the CIO won an election at the Aluminum Co. of America, Troutdale, Ore., wtih a vote of 174 as against 159 for the AFL.

George Brown, assistant director, IWA, advises that the results of the Wilsey Shaffer election in Vicksburg, Miss., gave 19 votes to the CIO as against 2 for no union.

Sub-regional Director Harry Doll of Akron, Ohio, reports the election victory at the Akron Standard Mold Co., with a vote of 143 for USO-CIO as against 8 for no union. Congratulations to those participating.

Richard T. Frankensteen, UAW director of Aircraft, reports the election victory at the Bernon plant of the Douglas Aircraft Corp. in Los Angeles. CIO polled 69 per cent of the votes over the IAM. The election involved approximately 2,000 workers.

British Union Fights Anti-Politics Law

LONDON, June 19 (ALN)—The decision of Britain's unions of government employes, backed by the Trades Union Congress, to challenge the Trades Disputes Act of 1927 by re-affiliating with the TUC concerns one of the most vital questions of British politics: the future role and importance of the Labor Party. The Trades Disputes Act passed by the Baldwin government in retaliation for the general strike of 1926, decreed:

(1) That government workers' unions could not affiliate with the TUC or with "any organization with political objects" meaning the Labor Party.

(2) That "sympathetic" strikes were illegal.

(3) That members of trade unions had to "contract-in" instead of "contract-out" of the Labor party—in other words, instead of automatically paying dues to the Party for all their members, except those who declared themselves unwilling to pay, unions were forbidden to pay without the member's written consent.

A similar provision in the union field would have prohibited unions from paying per capita tax to the TUC without written authorization from their members.

Half Million Loss

The Act thus resulted in half a million members of government workers' unions (biggest being the Post Office Workers Union, with 157,000 members, and the Civil Service Clerical Association, with 120,000 members), and at least four million other trade unionists staying out of the Labor Party.

This has meant a drastic reduction in the Party's fighting fund, so that it has not been able to afford to run its maximum number of candidates at general elections. Labor Party representation in the House of Commons has consequently suffered.

Polltax Blight Hits 93% of Tannery

Washington, June 19—If you don't think the polltax is a blight on American democracy, just talk to the CIO Fur & Leather Worker Union members employed by the Virginia Oak Tannery, at Luray, Va.

A delegation of nine of them came to Washington this week to talk to their Congressmen, and explained, in asking for repeal of the polltax, that it had effectively prevented about 90 per cent of the 250 employes of the tannery from voting.

They told Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia that 93 per cent of the people who participated in an NLRB election at the tannery voted then for the first time in their lives—and not because they were too young, either. The delegates pointed out that if they don't vote for three years because they lack sufficient funds, they must pay not only three years' polltax to win back their franchise rights, but also interest on the "debt"—total nearly $5, which isn't "hay" in Luray.

Mid-West Press Conference

Chicago, June 19—A two-day labor press conference under the sponsorship of the American Labor Press Association will open here July 10, with labor editors from the Mid-West invited to discuss labor's view of what U. S. domestic policy should be in the post war era, labor's ideas in regard to international planning, and labor's public relations.

House Group Fights For Price Control

WASHINGTON, June 19—Formation of a new group in Congress to fight for real price control and for the rollback of food costs was seen as one of the most important steps taken by this Congress to halt the disastrous drive to inflation and to defeat of win-the-war policies on the food front.

As a first move to making the program effective, the group is calling a consumers conference to be held in the House Office Building here Friday, June 25.

The group is headed by an executive committee of four, Reps. Thomas Scanlon, (D., Pa.), Chet Holifield, (D., Cal.), Howard McMurray, (D., Wis.) and Vito Marcantonio, (Am. Labor, N. Y.). It is tentatively called "The Congressional Group for the Protection of the Consumer."

"We plan to carry on a campaign for real price control and for the rollback of food costs," Rep. Scanlon told THE CIO NEWS. "The rollback and the subsidy plan which alone can make the rollback possible are the only bars to inflation.

EDUCATIONAL DRIVE

"We also plan to carry on an educational drive among the public and among the Congressmen, to show them how the price control issue has been misrepresented and to show them how absolutely essential real price control is to winning the war."

Already a large number of wires have come in from consumers' groups asking for more details on the group's plans and inquiring about the June 25 conference, Scanlon said, adding that this was evidence of the tremendous interest the people have in the living cost crisis.

About 20 Congressmen have joined the group already. Those present at the first meeting this week were: Reps. Bradley, (D., Pa.), Cellar (D., N. Y.), Coffee (D., Wash.), Dingell, (D., Mich.), Burchill, (D., N. Y.), Felghan, (D., O.), Furlong, (D., Pa.), Hoch, (D., Pa.), Holifield, (D., Calif.), Kelly, (D., Pa.), Klein, (D., N. Labor Group In Legion Hits Smear of Unions

Detroit, June 19—Union members of the American Legion, meeting here in a two-day pre-convention conference, this week assailed the "deliberate attempt on the part of anti-labor forces to attack the excellent record of organized labor in this war" and condemned "those who by word or deed attempt to create dissension between the armed forces and the people at home."

Fifty delegates, representing some 84 union American Legion posts throughout the country, also:

1. Urged formation of labor-management committees for postwar planning and conversion of industry to peacetime pursuits.

2. Condemned racial discrimination.

3. Supported President Roosevelt's program for full collaboration among the United Nations.

4. Condemned the acceptance by the American Legion of large sums of money to underwrite a so-called Americanism program financed by powerful business interests.

Florida Takes Whirl At Anti-Union Law

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 19—Another state took a whirl at passing an anti-labor law that probably will prove unconstitutional, with the Governor's signature this week of a bill which restricts picketing, demands the registration of unions, and sets maximum initiation fees, among other things.

Although the bill was described as "not affecting the union shop nor the right to organize and bargain collectively," it provides that:

1. No strike may be called except on majority vote of the employes to be effected, and all elections must be by secret ballot.

2. Jurisdictional strikes between unions or within unions are prohibited.

3. Initiation fees are limited to $15, although higher fees in effect January 1, 1940, may be continued.

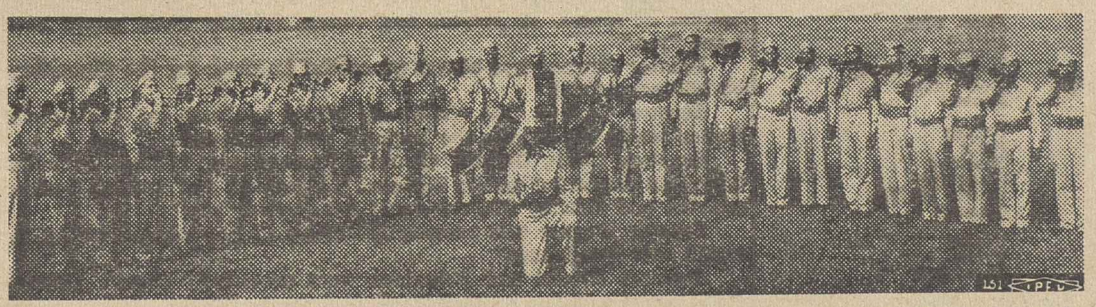
4. All picketing must be confined to the district where a dispute arises, and picketing must be conducted so that plant entrances are not blocked.

Shoe Workers Urge Price Rollback

Washington, June 19—Price rollbacks are "musts" if the United States is to have a stable economy under which to carry on all-out war against the Axis, Legislative Representative Jack Zucker of the United Shoe Workers Union told the House Small Business committee this week.

"It is obvious that prices must be rolled back to September, 1942 levels, that subsidies must be utilized to assure the rollback, and that the OPA must be granted the full appropriations it requests to assure the success and enforcement of this program," Zucker testified.

He declared that charges that price control is forcing businesses into bankruptcy are false, and pointed out that business failures are at the lowest levels in the last half century.



'CIO' MUSIC: One of the snappiest drum and bugle corps in the U. S. Army is tooting the CIO's horn at Fort Meade, Md., these days. When the Natl. CIO War Relief Committee heard that the men of the 514th Quartermaster Truck Regiment wanted above all else the chance to form a drum and bugle corps, and lacked only the instruments, the Committee provided them. The outfit started rehearsals last week and proved the sensation of the first regimental review.

CIO Blasts Bias, Mob Violence Over Nation As Aid to Axis

WASHINGTON, June 19—Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey of CIO, head of the CIO Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination, this week sharply condemned reported discrimination and mob violence against various racial, national and religious groups as of direct aid to the Axis powers.

"Reports of mob violence in widely scattered sections of the nation and of job discrimination against Negroes and other minorities can only bring a smile to the perverted leaders of Nazism," Carey declared.

"Such violence and discrimination are part of the Nazi creed—to set one group of people against another in the interests of the top rulers of the nation, in this case in the interests of the Nazis.

HARMS WAR

"The exercise of such discrimination is particularly harmful to the war, aside from the fact that it has no valid place in democratic America.

"In this life and death fight against the Axis, we must secure the maximum contribution of all the people of America—from every race, nationality, and religious relief—to wipe our enemies off the earth," he said.

The discrimination incidents and mob violence ranged from a lynching in Florida to so-called "zoot suit" riots in Los Angeles; from fights in a Mobile shipyard for which the management was blamed, to battles in Beaumont, Texas, where two men were killed, and where police said they were checking on rumors of fifth column activity. Martial law has been declared there.

Most publicized incident was the battle of soldiers and sailors in Los Angeles with Negroes and Mexicans, with daily newspapers whipping up the hysteria and giving the impression that vicious discrimination against minority groups was nothing more than a fight with "zoot suiters."

A citizens committee, appointed by the Governor of California to investigate the fighting demanded not only its immediate cessation but also long range curative action—something that is needed in every one of the other cases in other sections of the nation.

The committee lashed out at racial prejudice, and declared that it could not ignored as a cause of the outbreaks.

"Youth is peculiarly sensitive," the committee stated. "To be rejected by the community may throw the youth upon evil companions.

"Any solution of the problems involves among other things an educational program throughout the community designed to combat race prejudice in all its forms."

At Mobile, where white workers protested against the upgrading of Negroes at the Alabama Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Co., the Office of War Information took the management severely to task for bungling its job of employe relations.

OWI Regional Director Marvin Cox charged that the company had refused to make public an agreement for the employment of both white and Negro workers in the yard, and thereby had built a fire under confusion that caused rioting and the serious injury of several workers.

The Clerk announced the following pairs: Mr. McCord for, with Mr. Wolfenden of Pennsylvania against; Mr. Domengeaux for, with Mr. Larcade against; Mr. Pace for, with Mr. Capozzoli against; Mr. Slaughter for, with Mr. Sullivan against; Mr. Jennings for, with Mr. Smith of West Virginia against; Mr. Costello for, with Mr. Tolan against; Mr. Rizley for, with Mr. Beall against; Mr. Lyndon B. All U. S. Keen On Security, Bittner Says

Washington, June 19—Organized labor, war workers and all Americans are vitally concerned in the bill to extend and increase the benefits of the Social Security Act now before Congress, Van A. Bittner told a radio audience this week over a nationwide hook-up. Bittner is assistant to the President of the United Steelworkers of America and chairman of the CIO's Social Security Committee.

Paying tribute to Senator Robert F. Wagner as "that great American statesman who sponsored our original social security act and who is today devoting his time to a new and greatly improved version of it," Bittner said that Wagner's name was attached to much of our progressive social legislation today.

WIDER COVERAGE

Senator Wagner was joined by Senator Murray of Montana and Congressman Dingell of Michigan in sponsoring "a new social security act that will achieve that real security that must be the aim of all democratic people," Bittner said.

UAW Signs 1st Canadian Plane Pact

Toronto, June 19—The United Auto Workers Union this week signed the first aircraft contract in Canada with De Havilland Aircraft, makers of the Mosquito bomber which is being used with devastating effect in Europe.

The contract covers 4,000 workers including office employes and has many unique features, including compulsory arbitration. An election was won by a vote of 2424 to 1033 against the Intl. Assn. of Machinists.

Murray Blasts Anti-War Bloc For Killing Veto

A shouting mob of reactionary Republicans, polltaxers and anti-victory Democrats in both Houses of Congress this week re-passed the Smith-Connally bill over President Roosevelt's veto. Describing the action as "a sneak attack on the Commander-in-Chief," CIO President Philip Murray blasted the anti-war conspiracy as "a major national disaster" and, also, took occasion to renew labor's pledge "to stand firmly behind" President Roosevelt and "carry forward the fight for complete and speedy victory."

Lewis No Prize, Say AFL'ers

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26—The AFL Central Labor Council here this week joined with two influential AFL international unions in bitterly condemning John L. Lewis. The Council and the United Hatters, Cap & Millinery Workers urged that the AFL shun the mine leader's petition for reaffiliation with the Federation.

Lewis, in the Council, was attacked for violation of labor's no-strike pledge, and some delegates declared that Lewis and AFL Carpenters Union President Hutcheson had swung a deal for Lewis' re-entry in the AFL as part of a drive against the Roosevelt administration in the 1944 election campaign.

The Hat & Millinery Workers declared in their official organ that:

"Lewis' entry into the AFL will not promote labor unity, but will hinder it; will not hasten peace between the AFL and CIO, but will retard it; will not work for the amalgamation and mobilization of the progressive forces of our country, but for their dispersion and dissipation."

The organ of the AFL Intl. Boilermakers Union declared about Lewis:

"By permitting his personal and political dislike for the Administration and some of the agencies set up by the government, his spiteful attitude and his arrogance toward everyone, to influence his official conduct as head of a great labor organization, he is doing not only his own organization but all organized labor a most grievious wrong."

UAW Makes Gains In Canada

Detroit, June 26—Nine collective bargaining elections and 13 new contracts have been chalked up by the United Auto Workers in Canada during the last three months, UAW President R. J. Thomas said in a radio address here.

Reporting the formation of three new locals, Thomas said that there has been no let-up in the demand of the Canadian workers for organization into the UAW, particularly in Ontario.

This Helps U. S. Win the War:

The booth above, in conjunction with others, helped to collect more than 2,000 price rollback petition signatures in one day.

OWI Vital to War, Is CIO Position

WASHINGTON, June 26—With riots over the nation sharply dramatizing the need for public education about the way we need to fight the war, the House nevertheless this week voted to forbid use of funds for the domestic activities of the Office of War Information. The action met with strong objections from the CIO and its affiliated union in the daily press field, the American Newspaper Guild.

CIO President Philip Murray wrote Congress that:

"On behalf of the five million members of the CIO, who are very much concerned with the need for accurate information on the progress of our war and who welcome the work of the OWI in this and in offsetting the divisive efforts of Axis propaganda, I urge you to restore the full amount of the appropriation asked by the OWI for its domestic branch."

A protest from Editor Len De Caux of the CIO NEWS in behalf of the CIO press urged that hearings be held on the action and that labor be allowed to testify. Urging Senate action to continue OWI's domestic activities, De Caux said:

1. That the labor press uses much OWI material and considers it valuable in building morale.

2. That OWI performs an important domestic function by compiling labor news here for transmission overseas, to counteract propaganda from the Axis.

3. That the radio and motion picture work conducted at home by OWI "is of vital importance to building and maintaining labor morale in our war effort."

CIO Largest Single Giver for War Relief

WASHINGTON, June 26—CIO members throughout the United States last year were the largest single source of funds supporting the USO, Chinese, Russian and British war relief, Monroe Sweetland, director of the Natl. CIO War Relief Committee, announced this week.

Including Red Cross and other war relief funds, CIO contributions exceeded $22,000,000, Sweetland declared. CIO members, he said, have given $4,000,000 to the USO.

LED THE NATION

The CIO, Sweetland asserted, "has in fact led the nation's war program." In support of his statement Sweetland pointed out that:

"Three fourths of the vital war industries are CIO organized—steel, autos, tanks, aircraft, shipyards, rubber, oil, lumber, electrical equipment, aluminum, copper, uniforms, textiles."

"Strikes have been cut to one-half the record of World War I.

"CIO's 'no discrimination on the job' policy has made it possible for the nation to use the hands and brains of millions of men and women heretofore excluded from industry.

"CIO workers have submitted thousands of ideas for improving production, ranging from short-cuts in the shops to the overall programs of the Murray Plan and the Reuther Plan.

"Nearly 900,000 CIO men and women are in the armed forces. While they are in uniform their membership continues, their job seniority accumulates so they will have first call on their old employment when they return.

"One third of the nation's losses in action have been among the merchant marine, nearly every one of them a union man."

What's Needed To Kill Polltax

WASHINGTON, June 26—Here's the kind of letter YOU should be writing to your two Sennators on the polltax repeal bill, HR 7:

Dear Senator: The polltax repeal bill (HR 7) is now in a sub-committee of the Senate Elections Committee. The sub-committee's chairman is Senator Van Nuys of Indiana.

As an American war worker and a citizen of a free democracy, I urge you to use your influence with Senator Van Nuys and with the members of the sub-committee to have this bill reported out immediately, without hearings and without amendments.

HR 7 passed the House several weeks ago, after extended debate; a similar bill passed the House in the last Congress, only to be filibustered to death by poll-tax Senators.

To prevent a similar filibuster this session, I urge you to vote for cloture as a means of cutting off debate. The United States must not let the important victory for democracy won in the House passage of the bill be snatched away again.

Yours for victory,
Joe and Jane War Worker.

Murray Hails Soviet Allies

Washington, June 26—CIO President Philip Murray in a message of greeting to "our gallant allies, the people of the USSR," on the anniversary of Hitler's attack on Russia praised the "magnificent resistance" of the Russian armies and people and said that the CIO is working for "the international unity of labor in all the United Nations."

Here is the full text of President Murray's message:

On behalf of the five million American war workers organized in the Congress of Industrial Organizations, I am happy to send greetings to our gallant allies, the people of the USSR, on this anniversary of Hitler's atrocious attack on your country.

American labor applauds without stint the magnificent resistance of your armies and your whole people, which has now held at bay the Nazi enemies of humanity for two full years.

Our members are producing without limit to speed the victory of all the United Nations to wipe Hitlerism from the face of the earth and establish the democratic way of life for all mankind. We extend you you our warmest greetings and assurances of full support in our common cause.

We in the CIO are also working for the international unity of labor in all the United Nations and to promote continued cordial relations between your country and ours for victory and for a peaceful and prosperous world after this war is won.

Stone Parley Sept. 13-15

Barre, Vt., June 26—The fourth convention of the United Stone and Allied Products Workers of America will be held here at Scampini Hall September 13, 14 and 15, the union's international Executive Board announced this week.

The board will present to the convention constitutional changes which will make possible a greatly accelerated union drive in the stone and allied products industries.

About 80 per cent of the companies under contract with the union are producing materials which indirectly enter into the war effort.

The board also announced the winning of an election, 26 to 5, among the Borden brick and tile workers of Durham, S. C., and the signing of a contract with the White Pigment Corp., Proctor, Vt., which calls for maintenance of membership, paid vacations, seniority rights and other gains.

Steelworkers Ask Subsidies, Strict Control of Prices

WASHINGTON, June 26—Congress must roll back the cost of living to September, 1942, levels, the full executive board of the United Steelworkers of America, meeting here, declared this week. The board called for use of subsidies and for strict enforcement of price control regulations to do the job.

Declaring that if prices are not rolled back labor must receive wage increases to make up the difference, the Board in the name of 800,000 USA members stated:

"We must not permit the defeatists and administration-baiters in Congress to destroy the price control program and embark this nation on a sea of inflation with the drastic consequences which any such policy would bring in its wake."

In other actions, the Board:

1. Urged President Roosevelt to veto the Smith-Conally bill, declaring that it would "invite a period of internal strife when national unity is so essential for the preservation of our nation itself."

FULL SUPPORT FOR FDR

2. Voted full support for FDR and declared it "opportune and premature" to discuss at this time formation of any independent political party, "since this activity may inject the seeds of disunity in our national life."

3. Strongly opposed a sales tax, and called for legislation to tax away war profits, plug tax loopholes, raise exemptions for income taxpayers in lower brackets, and set a $25,000 a year limit on personal incomes.

4. Supported the Murray-Wagner-Dingel social security bill.

5. Urged local legislative committees to work with other CIO unions, the AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods and liberal organizations in support of the administration's program for winning the war.

"The most important task confronting every American and every labor union today is the one of making the maximum contribution in support of our nation's struggle to win the war," the Board declared.

Criticizing defeatists and obstructionists in Congress and in industry "who prefer to maintain their politics-as-usual and business-as-usual policies regardless of the effect which this may have upon the war," the Board stated:

"The war program of this nation and of our President and Commander-in-Chief can only be prosecuted through the unswerving and wholehearted support of the entire nation.

"It is the function of organized labor to assume the leadership in forging this national unity of all groups and interests in our national life."

8 Gas, Coke Pacts Up Pay, Conditions

WASHINGTON, June 26—Eight contracts which provide for substantial wage increase, job protection and improved working conditions have been signed within the past two weeks, the United Gas, Coke & Chemical Workers stated here.

One contract with the United Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo., contains a clause aimed to protect workers from spiralling food prices by providing a cost-of-living bonus.

The other firms signing with the CIO union are: Novelty Pen & Pencil, Cliffside, N. J.; General Ceramics, Keasby, N. J.; Calco Chemical Division (American Cyanamid), Newark; Carlova Cosmetics, St. Louis; Packers By-Products Co., National City, Ill., and Norton Co., and Carborundum Co., both in Canada.

Terms included in the various contracts call for check-off, union shop, bonus for night workers, equal pay for women, maintenance of membership and protection of seniority right.

Woodworkers To Meet Aug. 17

Portland, Ore., June 26—The annual convention of the International Woodworkers of America will be held August 17 in Sacramento, Calif., the union's executive board decided this week.

The board also endorsed the War Bond drive, went on record for a roll-back of prices and supported the stand of the national CIO on John L. Lewis. President Worth Lowery presided.

BLOW FOR VICTORY: The gals and sailors and soldiers celebrate the first anniversary of the Steno Canteen with a big blow. Needless to say, the candle went out. The canteen, operated by Local 16, United Office & Professional Workers, is open to servicemen every Wednesday and Friday in New York City. (Federated Pictures.)

Halt Hitler-Like Mob Violence, CIO Demands

WASHINGTON, June 26—Strongly worded demands that the Federal government take immediate steps to halt mob violence over the nation poured into the Capital this week as Detroit counted its 31 dead and more than 700 injured—toll of one of the worst riots in the country's history.

Protesting CIO unions and other liberal organizations saw the hands of Axis sympathizers dripping with the blood of innocent victims, Negro and white, who were set against each other by terrorism and rumors that helped make Detroit a bloody battle ground.

As soldiers patrolled Detroit streets to protect residents from Nazi-minded hoodlums, labor unions and other organizations charged that behind the riots lurked the influence of the Ku Klux Klan, the Christian Front, the Black Dragon Society, the National Workers League, the Knights of the White Camelia, the Southern Voters League and similar organizations based on a policy of terror and of "white supremacy."

A warning that the riots have seriously disrupted war production was brought to Washington by a committee of white and Negro unionists, among them Shelton Tappes, recording secretary of Ford Local 600, United Auto Workers Union of Detroit.

CALL FOR ACTION

The delegation, which numbered among it CIO, AFL, Negro and Jewish organization leaders, called upon President Roosevelt to "put down with a firm hand" the organized campaign of violence which is being carried on "against Negroes, the Mexican population, Jewish people and other minority groups and against organized labor in industrial centers."

The delegation called for the apprehension of riot leaders and their imprisonment, and said that FBI officials declared that they are working on the case.

The fact that the Detroit violence followed a pattern written in blood in other war production centers was pointed out by CIO President Philip Murray, who called on President Roosevelt to issue orders to the Dept. of Justice, War and Navy Depts. and the Office of War Information "to offset the plotting of disruptive agencies that have fomented this hysteria" and "with a view to severe punishment of these found guilty."

President R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, with headquarters in Detroit, declared that "there is a substantial nucleus of KKK and Black Legion elements here, and nobody in political life has the intestinal fortitude to move in and prosecute. It's no secret that the KKK whooped it up here during the last couple of days and I'm willing to give names before a grand jury."

Congress Kills FDR's Veto

Smith-Connally Bill Law; CIO Hits Passage But Renews War Pledge

WASHINGTON, June 26—Within minutes after the President's veto of the Smith-Connally bill, a shouting mob of reactionary Republicans, polltaxers and anti-victory Democrats in both Houses re-passed the bill this week by the required two to one majority.

By its action, the majority in Congress defied the Commander-in-Chief's warning in his veto message that the bill would actually tend to promote strikes, that it ignored labor's no-strike pledge, which, he said, has been kept by all except John L. Lewis, and that it tramples on the people's democratic rights by its prohibitions on political contributions by unions.

CIO's immediate reaction came in President Murray's statement after the over-riding, in which he blasted the anti-war conspiracy in Congress and renewed labor's pledge to continue to give all its strength for victory.

"The duty of labor at this time is clear," Murray said. "We will continue to stand firmly behind the Commander-in-Chief and carry forward the fight for complete and speedy victory."

Murray was sharply critical of the absentee Congressmen whose absence from the floor at the time "made it possible for a Congressional clique to engineer a sneak attack on the Commander-in-Chief by rushing through the over-riding of the veto within minutes of its announcement."

MAJOR DEFEAT

"The absentee Congressmen must share the blame for a major national disaster equivalent to a real military defeat for democracy," he said.

Murray, in repeating labor's pledge of every effort for the war, declared that "organized labor will carry on the fight to strengthen the home front.

"We will help the people of America to make articulate their resentment against this sniping and war sabotage by the groups which sponsored this measure.

"That resentment will inevitably reach every corner of Congress and bring about the repeal of a measure of this type and an end to this harassment of the Commander-in-Chief and this attempted sabotage of the people's will to victory."

The vote in the Senate was 56 to 25, in the House, 244 to 108. Thus, 15 failed to vote in the Senate, 83 in the House. A large number of the House absentees were from large war industry centers. Their votes could have turned the anti-war tide.

Workers in their home areas will want to know why they weren't on deck when they were needed.

Smith-Connally Law Stimulates Strikes, FDR Veto Declares

WASHINGTON, June 26—President Franklin D. Roosevelt's veto of the Smith-Connally bill, over-ridden in less than three hours by Congress this week, sharply criticized the bill for actually fomenting strikes instead of preventing them.

Pointing out that the bill completely ignores labor's splendid record of uninterrupted production during the war, the President said:

"Section eight ignores completely labor's 'no-strike' pledge and provides in effect for strike notices and strike ballots. Far from discouraging strikes, these provisions would stimulate labor unrest and give government sanction to strike agitations.

"The 30 days allowed before the strike vote is taken under government auspices might well become a boiling period instead of a cooling period. The thought and energies of the workers would be diverted from war production to vote getting."

Declaring that he sympathized "with the general purposes" of the bill in its efforts to prevent stoppages of production, President Roosevelt pointed out:

"American labor as well as American business gave their 'no-strike, no-lockout' pledge after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

"That pledge has been well kept except in the case of the leaders of the United Mine Workers.

"For the entire year of 1942, the time lost by strikes average only 5/100ths of one percent of the total man-hours worked."

Special CIO Executive Board Meeting

Washington, June 26—CIO President Murray today called an extraordinary meeting of the full CIO Executive Board to consider and act on the situation created by passage of the Smith-Connally bill over President Roosevelt's veto.

The meeting will be held at national CIO headquarters here, beginning at 10 a.m., July 7.

Keep Your Eye on Congress

Critical home front issues this week are price control, subsidies to make the living cost rollback possible, food production—the whole of the struggle between inflation and your chances of keeping on eating.

House Republicans, in anti-victory plot with the polltaxers, aided by absentee Congressmen, voted to wipe out price control by slashing enforcement funds by attaching crippling amendments to the OPA appropriation bill (HR 2968) that would prohibit subsidies, turn enforcement over to anti-price control interests, destroy Farm Security Administration by handling it over to the hunger-bloc, slash funds for WLB, NLRB, OWI, OCD and other war agencies.

HR 2968 and the others now go to the Senate Appropriations Committee for hearings and action before vote. Wire Committee Chairman Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) and your two Senators immediately, demand restoration of full appropriations elimination of crippling riders.

On the subsidy-rollback battle, two bills are pending. One (HR 2869) in the House has a rider prohibiting use of funds for subsidies for price rollbacks, the other (S 1108) in the Senate limits subsidies to $500,000,000. The Senate bill would hold the subsidy scheme to subsidies already being paid for the rollback on coffee, butter and meat, allow for nothing more.

Both bills must be opposed with demands to your Representative and two Senators for the full subsidy program (costing upwards of two billion dollars—which is two per cent of our total war bill) and an end to all trick riders on appropriation bills that would prevent subsidies.

Here is the score sheet on what to do this week:

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
OPA appropriation (HR 2968)	As passed by House, cripples OPA, knocks out price control, subsidies for rollback	In Senate Appropriations Committee, Sen. McKellar, chairman	Wire Senators for full appropriation, end to trick riders banning subsidies, rollback, grade labeling
Commodity Credit Corp. bill. (HR 2869)	Has trick riders banning subsidies for rollback	Passed House, goes to same Senate group as above	Same as above
Agriculture Dept. appropriations. (HR 2481)	As passed by House, turns FSA over to farm bloc agents	Goes to Senate this week	If not already passed as you read this, wire Senators to restore FSA full funds

NOTE: The subsidy plan is, of course, not the whole answer to the price control problem, though without subsidies, the rollback is impossible. We must also keep pushing for other price control measures—dollars and cents ceilings, grade labelling, enforcement etc.

Organize Against Inflation

There is this much silver lining to the ugly inflationary cloud over Capitol Hill. The irresponsible extremism of the High Cost of Living Block in Congress has led to the counter-organization of a Congressional Group for the Protection of the Consumer.

The American consumers, which means the whole American people, certainly need protection these days against the rampage of the HCL Congressmen.

In one fell swoop the majority of the House has voted to forbid subsidies to roll back prices and check living costs; to cripple the work of OPA by denying it adequate funds; to turn over price control to the business interests affected; and to forbid grade labeling and food standardization to protect consumers.

In a word, the House has voted for runaway living costs and inflation, by forbidding the government to take the only steps which will actually roll back prices and keep them down.

But fortunately there are still Congressmen who are true to the people they represent, and who share the popular alarm at this dangerous invitation to inflation.

Already some 50 Congressmen have joined the group of which Rep. Thomas Scanlon is chairman, for concerted action to protect the consuming public. One of their first actions has been to invite representatives of all sections of labor, the farmers and consumers' groups to meet with them and plan a campaign for subsidies to roll back living costs and for real price control.

Check up on your Congressman. Find out whether he runs with the HCL crowd, or whether he will work and fight for a real anti-inflation program.

And let's all lend our full support and encouragement to those Congressmen who are fighting the people's battle for a victory economy.

Race Hatred Is Sabotage

The mob violence and race hatred that have swept like a pestilence through a number of American cities of late constitute the worst kind of war sabotage.

They have halted or diminished war production. They have caused many deaths and serious injury to hundreds. They have turned Americans to fighting each other instead of fighting the Axis. They have disrupted national unity. They have furnished propaganda ammunition to the enemy to divide the United Nations and to throw scorn on our country.

Axis agents have unquestionably played a part in provoking this race hatred and mob violence, which so closely follow the Fascist pattern and so clearly do Hitler's dirty work.

The authorities are working to hunt out such agents and their accomplices. Drastic measures against them are essential for our national security.

But it is equally important that all Americans should give thought to the prejudices, discriminations and injustices that provide the powder to which war saboteurs may set the match.

Job discriminations, polltax denials of political rights, unequal community treatment of racial minorities—these are some of the dark spots in American life where race hatred is bred.

Organizations like the Ku Klux Klan, as well as direct Axis agents, whip this hatred into dangerous flames. And many Americans unthinkingly contribute to this war sabotage by repeating racial jibes and insults and spreading lying rumors from mouth to mouth.

The sound patriotism of the CIO's position on these questions is amply demonstrated by recent events.

The CIO opposes all forms of discrimination against minorities. It fights to abolish the polltax and other denials of equal democratic rights.

Its unions organize all workers, regardless of race, creed, color or nationality. They fight for equal treatment and equal job opportunity for all. They carry on educational work against racial prejudice and intolerance. They seek to promote the closest fraternity between all racial and national groups.

This is true Americanism at any time. But it is also a war necessity that such a program should be promoted throughout our national life.

For only so can a recurrence of the recent disasters be prevented.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

TRUTH is stranger than fiction. If you want your blood to curdle at tales of sabotage against our war effort, you can save yourself the admission price to a movie spy melodrama by getting a free copy of the Congressional Record.

There, buried between pages of misleading speeches, you will find a record of home front disruption more extensive and effective than anything Hollywood has yet thought up.

Can you think of anything that will cause more damage and dismay than runaway inflation, with price control thrown overboard, and living costs soaring further and further out of the ordinary consumer's reach?

Can you imagine any more subtle sabotage of public confidence than to give sole power over the people's sustenance to self-seeking business interests and profiteers?

Can you believe that right under the Capitol dome a plot has been hatched to stop the government from coping with Axis propaganda in America, and from presenting the true facts about this war to the American people?

★ ★ ★

On a single day the House of Representatives exploded one after another the following bombs at strategic points where they would cause maximum demoralization to our domestic war effort. It voted:

(1) To forbid any kind of subsidies to roll back prices and keep in check the cost of living.

(2) To deny the OPA the necessary funds to carry out a real price control and rationing program.

(3) To turn price control over to selfish business interests by requiring that all OPA officials must be businessmen of five years' standing in the particular business affected.

(4) To forbid any grade labeling or standardization of food or other commodities to protect consumers and to enforce real price ceilings.

(5) To abolish the domestic operations of the Office of War Information, the agency charged with fighting Axis propaganda and keeping the public correctly informed on the war.

No one seriously believes that living costs can be rolled back or controlled without subsidies. The House's action in this respect opens the door wide to ever-rising living costs and disastrous inflation.

The OPA has constantly been criticized by labor for its weakness in controlling prices and extending rationing, for failing to enforce grade labeling, and for its appeasement of profiteering business interests demanding higher prices.

What is needed is a stronger, tougher, more public-spirited OPA, with ample funds to roll back prices, to enforce real price ceilings, to ration all necessities, to end black markets—and with enough determination to tell the selfish, price-boosting profiteers to go to hell.

But the House has voted to deny the OPA power to do these things, and to turn over its administration to the very business interests it is supposed to control.

Who are the people who have perpetrated this dynamiting of our national welfare and economic security?

They include poll-tax Democrats and politics-as-usual Republicans, united by hatred of the administration and venting their political spite regardless of effects on the war effort.

They include stooges of selfish profit interests, labor-baiters, blind reactionaries and outright defeatists, who cunningly conceal their disruptions of our all-out victory drive.

Sharing a measure of guilt is weak administration leadership in Congress, which appeases too much and fails to capitalize boldly and aggressively on the tremendous popular support for the win-the-war leadership of Pres. Roosevelt.

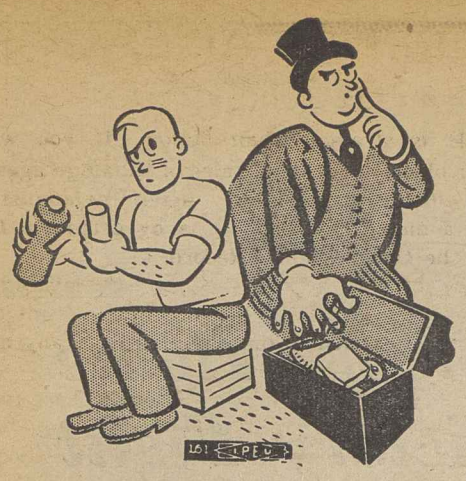
All this presents a challenge to labor which it cannot dodge. It demands greatly increased legislative and political activity not only to defend the workers' interests but also to protect our country from the disasters threatened unless the present Congresional tide is turned.

One thing we can all do immediately. Our Congressmen will be recessing and returning home shortly. Everyone should contact his own Congressman, individually or in delegations.

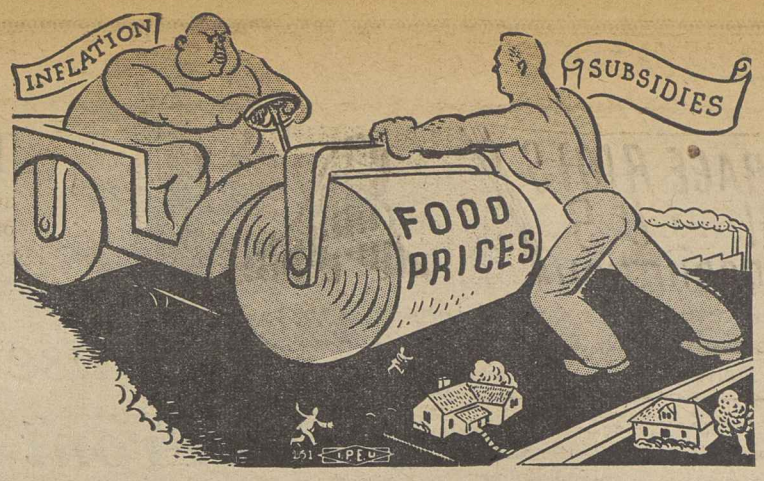
Ask him if he voted for higher living costs and inflation; or for subsidies, grade labeling, roll-backs and real price control.

Ask him how he voted on the strike-provoking, production-disrupting Smith-Connally Bill.

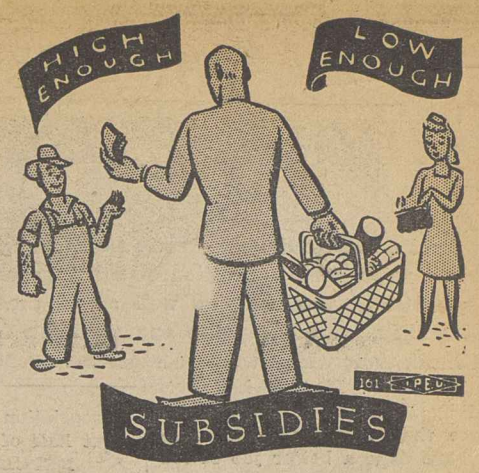
Praise and encourage him if he voted right; and if not, show him where he was wrong and warn him that labor is not only keeping score but organizing politically for '44.



HIGH PRICES, unless checked and rolled back by subsidies to 1942 levels, will steal from your lunch box and your family's food basket just as effectively as a pickpocket could steal your money. And what's more, they'll take so much out of your food budget and your clothing budget and your rent budget that you won't be able to work properly on your war job.



LIVING COSTS CAN BE CHECKED and rolled back if we use a system of subsidy payments. Subsidies cost money, of course, but sky-high prices cost you much more money, and inflation will cost us all the war. Subsidies do two things: they make the rollback possible without squeezing anybody, and they make sure of a full supply of food and other basic living necessities. The alternative to subsidies is inflation, chaos and defeat. The anti-victory Congressmen—Republicans and their polltax-Democrat allies—know this. That's why we have to fight for subsidies to make the rollback possible—because subsidies are a war necessity just as much as ships and planes and guns.



UNDER A PROPER subsidy and rollback system, the consumers will get goods at prices they can pay out of stabilized wages, and the farmers and other producers will get prices that will keep them producing. The fight for proper subsidies is on in Congress NOW. Get into it—wire your Senators demanding a full subsidy program ($2 billion or more) as asked by President Roosevelt and the CIO.

Win-War Group In Congress Leads Progressive Fight

WASHINGTON, June 26—More than 400 delegates came to Congress this week to talk over cost of living problems with their Representatives—and they came at the invitation of a win-the-war Congress itself.

The delegates came from CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods, organized farmers, and consumer organizations from all over the country. They came at the invitation of the newly formed Congressional Committee to Protect the Consumer, a group set up to combat the disastrous drive toward sky-high living costs and inflation let loose by the lose-the-war Republicans and their poll-taxer allies over the past few weeks.

Tremendous applause greeted CIO President Philip Murray as he told the delegates that if Congress does not pass legislation by July 15 to insure an immediate rollback of prices, labor will be compelled to demand that wages be increased. He warned that the internal economy of the nation is "disintegrating."

Declaring that Congress has failed to keep its commitment to the nation to roll back prices, Murray said:

"This is the most important matter confronting the internal economy of the United States today. It is a situation that causes more concern than any other.

"It is not primarily an organized labor problems, but one that affects every citizen of the United States."

The new Congressional group, organized to fight the wrecking activities of the Congressmen who voted this week to wreck price control, forbid the use of subsidies for the price rollback, and generally sabotage the home front, called the meeting to map ways and means of stabilizing the cost of living to ensure full war production to back up the offensive fighting fronts.

The group, headed by Representatives Scanlon (D., Pa.), Marcantonio (ALP, NY), McMurray (D., Wis.), Holifield (D., Calif.) asked the labor-farmer-consumer organizations to Washington in the first move by a Congressional group to invite the people to the capital to state their side of the case for the people's welfare and for winning the war.

LEGISLATIVE CRISIS

The conference will hear a survey from the Congressmen on the legislative crisis now threatening price control and the rollback, will hear reports from the delegates on how the people are reacting to the crisis, will plan immediate steps to ensure full appropriations for price control, and will lay plans for an educational drive in Congress to re-convert the majority to the need of strengthening the home front behind the offensive front.

The conference will also lay plans for a continuation of its work and for spreading its effects throughout the country. Regional meetings, to bring the critical situation home to the voters in the localities will be planned, as well as a steady campaign in Washington itself.

Crisis Deepens As House Goes On Anti-War Spree

WASHINGTON, June 26—The crisis on the home front deepened this week with a vote by a majority of Congress against price control, against subsidies to make living cost rollbacks possible, against quality grade labelling to prevent price chiselling, and against enforcement of OPA price ceilings to protect the consumer.

Just how closely the vote in the House affects the war worker, his family and every person living in the United States is shown by the bare record of what the House did this week. Here it is:

1. Cut OPA appropriations $35,000,000, almost entirely in the enforcement sections. This means no enforcement of price ceilings, if it goes through both House and Senate.

2. Tacked amendments to the appropriation bill for OPA forbidding the use of any money for subsidies to carry out the rollback of living costs. This means, if the House has its way, that prices will not be rolled back to September, 1942, levels, as asked by the President and by the CIO and the AFL.

3. Tacked on an amendment forbidding quality grade labelling of food, clothing, etc., thus opening the way for price chiselling through lowering of quality—you pay the same price for inferior goods.

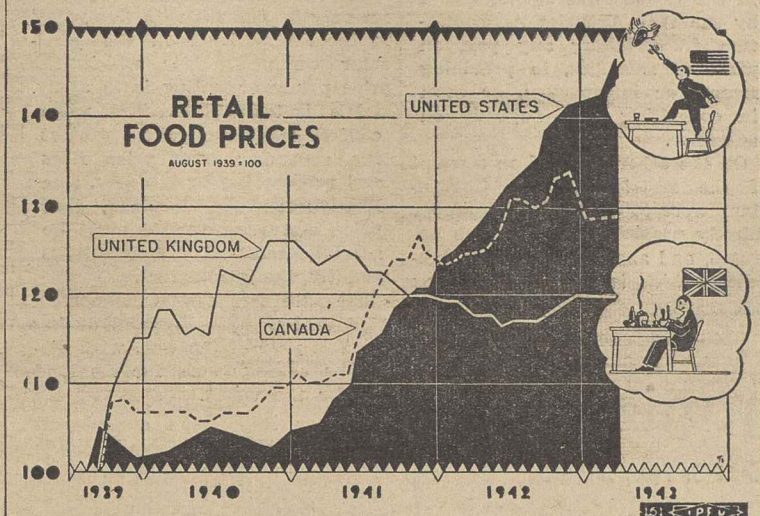
This is the record, briefly, on what the defeatists and the reactionaries did in the House on price control. They also wiped out the civilian services of the Office of Civilian Defense—thereby ending such activities as surveys for child care, civilian mobilization for scrap campaigns, etc., and they wiped out the Office of War Information, which is charged with giving us the facts about our war.

CLINCHER

And just as a clincher, the House passed an amendment requiring five years' business experience of any OPA employe having anything to do with setting prices—a simple way of handing over the whole program to people opposed to real control and freezing out anyone for control.

The House drive against the home front breezed through by votes of 185 to 147 and 160 to 106, with the Republicans voting solidly for the crippling amendments and large numbers of Democrats absenting themselves from the House. The polltax Democrats, of course, voted with the wrecking crew.

The appropriation bill now goes to the Senate, where there is a chance of restoring the funds desperately needed for real price control and other necessary stages of the home front program.



SUBSIDIES HOLD THE LINE: In Britain and Canada, use of subsidies to hold food prices in check has kept them down far below U. S. levels, where we don't use subsidies on living costs. CIO is battling for subsidies in Congress now, to help you keep on eating. Chart based on one published in the National City Bank Letter, June, 1943.

Subsidies Help Fight Rise in Living Costs, CIO 'Outlook' Says

WASHINGTON, June 26—A system of subsidy payments is "of the utmost importance" to the rollback of living costs, the Economic Outlook, monthly publication of the CIO, says in the current issue released this week.

The Outlook cites the example of Britain and Canada, where subsidies have kept the cost of living within bounds, and the fact that 16 war-time subsidy programs are already in effect in the U. S. A. A full program for the United States, based on the British and Canadian experience, will require between 1.5 and two billion dollars annually, the Outlook says. The cost of the present United States program on the 16 commodities is $750 a year.

HOW TO DO IT

A proper subsidy program "must be made discriminative," the Outlook says pointing out that in meat, for example, the large packers are making profits eight times greater than before 1939, and that "they could take the rollback out of their own fat," while the smaller and higher cost packers need subsidies to avoid operating at a loss.

Following a detailed examination of huge war profits being made by leading corporations, the Outlook declares:

"For all these reasons, it is apparent that this war like World War I is enriching a powerful minority of the people. It is creating a new group of millionaires and enhancing the wealth of the old ones.

New U. S. Job Office

Washington, June 26—Plans have been completed for the establishment of the first U. S. Employment Service office in Puerto Rico, Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower chairman, announced this week.

Cop to Stand Trial in Civil Rights Case

JONESBORO, Ark., June 26—An important ruling affecting the rights of trade union organizers to carry on their work without fear of persecution from local poilce officials was issued this week by Federal District Judge Thomas C. Thimble here.

The Judge ruled that William Buchanan, Walnut Ridge, Arkansas city marshal, must stand trial on charge of violating the Federal Civil Rights statute. This is the first such case involving a union official.

Buchanan was accused of entering the office of the Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union and "wrongfully and without jurisdiction or cause" assaulting union business representative Hobson Abernathy. Buchanan was said to have "dragged Abernathy from the premises and, using abusive and threatening language, ordered him to leave the city."

251 CIO Marine Engineers Give Lives in War

Washington, June 26—The honor roll of the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Assn., CIO, contains the names of 251 members who have given their lives in the service of their country. Eleven members are listed as among the prisoners being held by the Japs.

Where Were The People You Elected?

WASHINGTON, June 26—Here's a note on absenteeism, particularly beamed at war workers in big city industrial areas.

When the Republican—poll-taxer-defeatist gang was doing its best to promote inflation and wipe out real wages in the amendments to the OPA appropriation bill crippling enforcement, forbidding subsidies, grade labelling, etc., the Democrats were conspicuous by their absence.

For example: the vote to knock out price enforcement by lopping off $35,000,000 from the OPA was passed by 185 to 147—a majority of 38. Altogether, 99 Democrats were away from the House when the vote was taken.

Democratic absentees from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago could have reversed the majority and saved price control from the House wrecking crew.

Most of these absentees were win-the-war Congressmen. Get after them and tell them they won't win the war by minding fences outside of Washington—in fact, they won't even mind their fences too well.

Congress Reactionaries Sabotage Battle Here

By THE CIO COST OF LIVING COMMITTEE

Last week the Republicans in the House of Representatives gave to the country and to the world a remarkable exhibition of sabotage on the home front. Taking advantage of large scale Democratic absenteeism, as well as of the active assistance of a sprinkling of reactionary Democrats, they gummed up the appropriation for the Office of Price Administration with restrictions and limitations which would compel the agency to function as a price-raising, inflation-creating administration. If they had been paid by Hitler or Hirohito—as of course they were not—they could not have done a better job of aiding the enemy.

Fortunately, the bill has still to pass the Senate. Labor and consumer pressure, as well as the intelligent patriotism of Republican and Democratic Senators alike, can still undo most of the sabotage. But labor and consumer groups will have to act fast in presenting their viewpoints to the Senate and in putting pressure on the Conference Committee (which will have to be appointed after the Senate gets through with the bill) to see to it that a recent appropriation bill is finally enacted by both houses.

Here is the record of what the Republicans did to the OPA appropriation. In the first place, after both the Republicans and the Democrats on the Appropriations Committee both agreed to recommend a total sum of $165,000,000 as against $177,000,000 requested by the Bureau of the Budget, they put through a tricky amendment which has the effect of cutting the appropriation to $91,000,000, or about half of the original request.

REPUBLICAN AGAIN

Then the Republicans put through an anti-subsidy amendment in order, as they put it, to prevent the OPA from controlling business. The amendment is as vicious as Republican ingenuity could devise, but it does not completely prevent the RFC or the Commodity Credit Corporation, the principal agencies that have been paying out subsidies, from continuing to do so.

What the amendment does, however, is to forbid any of the hundreds of thousands of persons in the various war agencies paid by the War Agencies Appropriation from taking any part in planning subsidies, in providing figures or information, or even in consulting with anybody on subsidies.

On the other hand, if on account of the restrictions, the Government were to decide that a proper subsidy program could not be operated, and abandoned all war subsidies—which is what the framers of the amendment want to happen—then there would be literally hell to pay.

The cost of living would jump 15 per cent immediately.

The rollback on meats, butter and coffee would be scrapped.

The Government would be breaking faith with the workers and consumers to whom it solemnly promised in the Stabilization Act that the cost of living would be stabilized at September 15, 1942, levels.

As if the anti-subsidy amendment were not enough to kill the cost of living program, another amendment was inserted that price policies and price ceilings must be set only by persons with five years' business experience in the particular commodity for which the price policy or ceiling is to apply.

We had imagined that price control was designed to protect the consumer from price rises and profiteering by business. The Republicans say, however, that price and rent control must be administered by the profiteers and by the speculators.

The late lamented Chamberlain tried that plan in England during the first year of the war, with disastrous consequences for England and for the world.

Another Republican amendment cuts out standards and grade labeling in price control. This amendment is equivalent to smashing the grocers' scales so that the customer would have no way of knowing how much he is getting for the money he is asked to hand over. According to the Republicans, consumers have no rights at all that merchants must respect.

Well, there is an old proverb which the Republicans might well ponder: Those whom the Gods would destroy, they first make mad!

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

The Intl. Fur and Leather Workers report three recent election victories: J. G. Curtis Leather Co., Ludlow, Pa., a landslide vote of 6 to 1 for CIO; Borden Co., at Wellsboro, Troy and Elkland, N. Y., 54 for CIO to 8 against; Mercersburg Tannery, Mercersburg, Pa., 53 for CIO to 7 against.

Powers Hapgood, CIO regional director, advises that Goodyear Workers, in Muncie, Ind., cast 228 votes for the United Rubber Workers, CIO, only 16 for no union—a 93 per cent victory.

Gas, Coke Beats District 50

August Scholle, international representative and regional director, advises that in an election at Antrim Iron Co., Mancelona, Mich., UGCCWA polled 198 votes to 20 for District 50 and 3 for no union.

E. D. Hodson, regional director in Wilmington, advises that at National Vulcanized Fibre Co., the UERMWA-CIO received 334 votes to 59 for no union.

The Aluminum Workers of America won the election at the government Aluminum plant operated by Alcoa at Mead, Wash., by a vote of 366 for CIO to 153 for AFL. CIO Rep. Virgil Burtz and AWA Rep. James Dickerson did excellent work, as reported by Reg. Dir. Atkinson.

E. T. Sheldock, UWOC representative, advises that at the Detroit Edison, Beecher Shop, CIO won by a vote of 89 to 23 for no union. In the Field Construction, CIO polled 310 votes to 62 for no union.

IWA Wins 10 Elections

George Brown, assistant director, IWA-CIO Organizing Drive, sends in the following recent victories: Beaver Logging Co., CIO 7 to 0 for no union; Evans Product Co., CIO 19 to 1 for no union; Scott Lumber Co., CIO 54 to 4 for no union; Eaton Lumber Co., CIO 10 to 5 for no union; Powers-Davis Lumber Co., CIO 21 to 18 for no union; Weyerhaeuser, (Camp Ryan), CIO 42 to 16 for no union; Fruit Growers Supply Co., Susanville, Calif., CIO 181 to 100 for AFL; Logging Camp, CIO 38 to 2 for AFL; Wheeler Pine Co., Klamath Falls, Ore., CIO 14 to 3 for AFL, and C. M. Gooch, Vicksburg, Miss., CIO 31 to 3 for no union.

Frank Bonacci, regional director in Utah, reports that the MMSWA won the Utah Copper Open-Pit Mine by 556 to 27, among the production and maintenance workers, including the track department.

Morris Wright, editor, MMSWA, reports four additional victories, as follows: Empire Zinc Co., Minturn, Col., CIO 253 to 108 for no union (this is the second largest mining operation in Colorado); Fleming Lumber Co. (workers who cut timber for the Empire Mining Co.), 15 to 12 for CIO; Athletic Mining & Smelting Co., Fort Smith Ark., CIO 131 to 76; employes of the sanitary department of Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. R. Co. mines, 12 to 2 for CIO. Production workers at these properties are already under CIO contracts.

Harvey Fremming, regional director in Kansas City, reports office clerks at Armour & Co., voted 16 for CIO to 3 for no union.

Mine, Mill Signs Chase Brass Pact

R. J. Davidson, CIO administrator, Dist. 6, MMSWA, has sent in a signed contract covering approximately 5,500 employes of the Chase Brass & Copper Co., Inc. This is the first union contract signed with this company, after winning the election approximately 11 months ago. Brother Davidson advises that in his opinion one of the most unusual features of the contract is the company agreeing to pay four representatives selected by the union to make a joint time study of all jobs in the plant. When this study is completed, an increase approximating 12 per cent will be due the workers.

Lewis Alan Berne, president of FAECT, reports the following election results: North American Aviation Co., Los Angeles, 90 out of 100 aircraft engineers participated in an election; 80 voted for CIO. FAECT Regional Director David Adelson conducted the drive. On the East Coast, FAECT Rep. Thomas Sullivan announced a six-to-one victory for CIO at York Aircraft in NYC. Out of 60 aircraft designing engineers, 46 voted for CIO, 7 against.

Walter Payne, USA representative, reports a USA-CIO victory at Morrison Steel Products, Buffalo, N. Y., 71 for CIO, 4 against.

Van Nuys Pledges Aid To Kill Polltax

Indianapolis, Ind., June 26—The Indiana CIO Council announced this week that Senator Van Nuys, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, at a conference with union leaders in Washington, promised his full support toward bringing the Anti-Polltax Bill on the floor of the Senate as soon as possible.

O. H. McKinsey, vice-president of the Council and Walter Frisbie, secretary, who conferred with the Senator, said he "has once more aggressively entered the fight to enfranchise the low income groups in the southern polltax states."

Argentine Unions Caused Rawson Government to Fall

BUENOS AIRES, June 26 (ALN)—Prompt action by the powerful Argentine industrial unions, which continue to lead the fight against the small army of Axis agents still concentrated in Buenos Aires, brought about the immediate downfall of Gen. Arturo Rawson after his seizure of the government early this month.

Argentine labor, while opposing many of the acts of the new government of Gen. Pedro Ramirez, has approved its first tentative steps toward ending Argentina's role as the only outpost of the Axis in the western hemisphere.

Officials of national unions have called upon labor all over the country to exert every effort to strengthen the movement of national democratic unity, which was on the point of consolidation when it was interrupted by the events of June 4. Labor observers emphasize that the Ramirez cabinet is by no means homogeneous and can undergo important changes.

Labor's program, put forward in the first hours of the Rawson coup in posters, leaflets and great popular demonstrations before the Casa Rosada, demanded political and trade union liberty, support for the United Nations, respect for the constitution and measures to control the cost of living.

The newly-formed Buenos Aires Federation of Labor, representing all organized workers in the capital, issued a declaration which said:

"It is indispensable that haste be made in organizing national unity of all democratic and progressive forces. Today more than ever it is necessary to declare our position in the struggle against Nazi-fascism. It is impossible to follow a policy of loyal understanding with the American countries unless our country is cleansed of Nazi-fascists and their Argentine followers."

House Blocks Home Front Victory Fight

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The spectacle Congress made of itself last Friday has made all good win-the-war Americans blush. Why blush? Well, after all, we elected those guys. They are supposed to speak for us in Washington and what they did in the House of Representatives on June 18 revealed that most of them have no understanding of the all-out character of this war. They don't see that mobilizing our people at home and conducting an effective program to control inflation is essential to Victory for the United States.

See the stories and editorials about this anti-war offensive on other pages of the CIO NEWS. The picture is bad, but luckily it could be worse. A few Congressmen do know the score.

They have set up a new bloc—a committee to protect us, the consumers.

They're asking every Congressman to join who wants to protect our war economy by rolling back prices to the September, 1942 level and keeping them there.

Here's our chance to make up for our failure to do a real job on Congress earlier. It's up to each and every one of us to get our Congressman into that consumer protection bloc. We got 218 signatures of Congressmen to the anti-poll tax discharge petition. Now let's get 218 Congressmen committed to stabilizing our home front so that we can march ahead to Victory over the Axis.

The United Automobile Workers and their auxiliaries are on the job. This is their "Tell It to Congress Week." CIO delegations from Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Maryland are in Washington this week joining UAW in telling Congress what the workers need to keep up record production. Three hundred representatives of national labor and consumer organizations are meeting with the new Congressional bloc this week to plan a campaign.

Unlimited inflation is staring us in the face unless we change Friday's decisions in the House. Inflation would be a major victory for Hitler. We must make every Senator and every Congressman understand that, and understand also that his voting record on holding the line will count heavily when we choose our Representatives for 1944.

Here's Pro and Con On Pressure Cooking

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

A very acute question has come up. Is a pressure cooker absolutely necessary for canning? How did our mothers and grandmothers before them manage without pressure cookers? You may think I am being facetious, but the fact is that I have been getting heated correspondence on this very question. Why go to all the trouble, spending precious time and money tracking down a pressure cooker when we can do our canning in the good old way?

Of course you can do your canning in the good old way and run the good old risks of wasting not only precious time and money but scarce and much needed good food.

Just because the good old ways of canning could not guarantee the best results, much study and research has gone into the analysis of the ways and means of avoiding waste and spoilage in canning. And the advice of experts is:

"Use a pressure cooker if you want to be sure to kill all the bugs that may spoil the good food you can, and protect your family against food poisoning from botulinus bacteria."

Food is too precious these days to take any chances on spoiling any of it by canning in the good old fashioned way.

Food spoilage in canning is caused by enzymes, bacteria, yeast and molds. Enzymes are present in fruits, vegetables and meats. Bacteria, yeast and molds are present in the air, soil and water. Most damage is caused by the presence of bacteria.

While bacteria are growing actively they are easily destroyed at the temperature of boiling water (212 degrees F.) But some bacteria go through a spore stage when they are very hard to kill. It may take six hours or more at boiling temperatures to kill these spores, but at 240 degrees, the temperature obtained in the steam pressure cooker, they are killed in 30 minutes.

But with the non-acid foods like meats and practically all vegetables, the heat resistant spores can be killed with speed only at the high temperatures of pressure cookers.

The most dangerous bacteria is the botulinus bacteria, lately called enemy No. 1 in canning. When the spores of botulinus bacteria are not destroyed in the canning process they may grow later and produce a poison in the food. The only sure way to kill the botulinus bacteria is by using the pressure cooker.

Therefore the sensible, practical and in the long run, inexpensive way to go about your canning is to take the advice of those who have studied the question. I refer to the study on "Home Canning of Fruits, Vegetables and Meats" put out by the U. S. Department of Agriculture (Bulletin No. 1762).

HERE'S A MOTION PICTURE FOR YOU!

"ACTION IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC" is the first feature picture about the men of the United States Merchant Marine... the guys who damn the torpedoes and deliver the goods . . . guys like you!

And naturally, "ACTION IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC" comes from Warner Bros. . . . the company that gave you such great pictures as "Yankee Doodle Dandy", "Casablanca", "Air Force", "Edge of Darkness" and "Mission to Moscow".

We're proud of this new picture... but we're even more proud to have been selected as the first company to receive the Maritime Commission's Victory Flag (presented to Jack L. Warner during ceremonies at the opening of the picture at the New York Strand Theatre).

We hope that "ACTION IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC" will hasten full recognition of the victory-vital part which every merchant seaman—from wiper to chief engineer, from O. S. to "Old Man"—is playing in the triumph of democracy.

Slight Rise In War Jobs For Negroes

Washington, June 19—A slight increase in the percentage of Negro workers employed in war industry was noted this week by the War Manpower Commission.

The WMC reported that Negroes comprised 6.7 per cent of 14,673,000 workers employed as of March, 1943, in 16,000 establishments. Negroes comprised 5.8 per cent of 12,000,000 workers in plants reporting to the U. S. Employment Service as of July, 1942.

Increased Negro employment has been uneven by industries, the WMC declared. The number of Negroes at work in tank factories more than doubled during the period while total employment in that industry increased only 31.3 per cent. In the aircraft industry Negro employment jumped 96.1 per cent in comparison to a total employment increase of 35.4 per cent.

However, in March, 1943, Negroes comprised only a fraction of one per cent of total employment in the fireworks and pyrotechnics industry and less than 2 per cent in the manufacture of electrical equipment for industrial use, metal working machinery and scientific instruments.

The WMC declared that although the general increase of Negro employment is gratifying, it does not represent adequate utilization of Negroes in some areas.

Roll Back Prices Or Hike Wages, Murray Demands

DETROIT, June 26—In a fighting speech to more than 5,000 Ford workers here, Pres. Philip Murray declared last week that he was serving notice on Congress that "unless they play fair with us and make that law (Oct. 2, 1942) effective and roll back those prices, labor is going to demand wage adjustments commensurate with the rise in prices."

Pres. Murray was speaking at a mass membership meeting of Local 600, UAW-CIO, celebrating the second anniversary of the first contract with the Ford Motor Company.

Congress passed a law on Oct. 2, 1942, providing for the stabilization of prices and wages, which was warmly supported by the CIO, Murray said.

"It was distinctly understood that price stabilization would become effective the same day wages had been frozen—Sept. 15, 1942," Murray said.

"Congress made a commitment to put that law into effect in all its phases. The wage stabilization was put into effect but Congress forgot to roll back prices to Sept. 15. And since Sept. 15 prices of foodstuffs have gone up by leaps and bounds with no semblance of control.

"The same Congress," Murray charged, "violated its commitment last Saturday and refused to go through with its pledge by refusing to extend subsidies and roll back prices. By implication, Congress said, 'Let prices go sky high.'"

Another doublecross by Congress, which Murray bitterly denounced, was its passage of the Smith-Connally bill, "a bill full of hatred and venom, directed against one man for whom all the people of the United States must suffer."

"It is the worst union-busting bill ever enacted by Congress in the history of the United States," he said. "It was enacted in the face of a remarkable record of production done voluntarily. Labor is eager to do all it can to win the war, but it doesn't want to do it under the heel of tyranny.

"It is a bill that will not increase production. It will encourage, not discourage, disputes."

Despite this provocation by Congress and by employers, the CIO will continue to observe its no-strike pledge for the duration of the war, the CIO president declared.

'Cradle-to-Grave' Pact Signed By Textile Union

NEW YORK, June 26—Some 12,000 workers in the world's oldest and largest cotton textile center will receive extended social security protection, under an agrement just concluded between the Textile Workers Union and the New Bedford (Mass.) Cotton Manufacturers Assn., TWU President Emil Rieve announced this week.

The Association will provide insurance benefits, with cost to be borne by each member mill, which will include hospitalization for a period of 31 days; sickness and accident insurance of $10.50 a week up to 13 weeks; and a $500 accident and life insurance policy.

The agreement, which will run until Aug. 1, 1945, establishes an arbitration system and names Dr. Douglas Brown of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as permanent impartial arbitrator. It also provides for the union shop, check-off, seniority, paid vacations and overtime pay.

The new contract follows a recent Labor Board election in New Bedford, in which the CIO textile union defeated an AFL textile local which had a closed shop agreement.

Mills covered by the pact are the Kilburn, Hathaway, Nonquit, Quissett, Nashawena, Naushon, Pierce Bros., Soule, Gosnold and Wamsutta mills.

Furniture Victory

Moorefield, W. Va., June 26—The United Furniture Workers Union this week won an election at the Thompson Mahogany Co. by a vote of 73 to 17.

Wage Boost For Laundry Industry

New York, June 26—Timely approval of an over-all wage increase of 6.7 cents an hour for some 2,000 workers in the city's cleaning and dyeing industry has averted a complete shutdown of the industry, according to Jack Cohen, general manager, Cleaners & Dyers Local 239, Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

The pay boost was negotiated by the union and the employers groups on March 31 and submitted to the Regional War Labor Board. The Board announced approval of the increase this week.

The award, retroactive to April 5, gives some 1,500 inside plant workers hourly increases of 7 and 8 cents. Store clerks were given a 6-cent raise and drivers and commissioners received $3 and $4 a week.

Delay in approving the wage increases negotiated by the union, "resulted in a period of crisis in the industry featured by a tremendous turnover of labor in the shops," the union said.

"Workers quit to enter war industries and many shops were reduced to 50 per cent of their normal working staff at the height of the seasonal rush. The additional burden was thrown on the already overworked staffs and an inevitably speedup resulted."

Largest Cigarette Plant in World To Go CIO

PHILADELPHIA, June 26—The largest cigarette plant in the world, R. J. Reynolds in Winston-Salem, N. C., will soon be CIO, according to an announcement today by President Donald Henderson of the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing and Allied Workers of America.

Camels, Prince Albert smoking tobacco and other famous brands of smoking, chewing and plug tobacco are manufactured in this establishment of 20 plants and some 13,000 employes which towers over Winston-Salem.

SEEK NLRB POLL

Application has been made for an NLRB election, following a whirlwind climax to the organizing drive in which well over 6,000 of the production workers have joined UCAPAWA-CIO. Whites and Negroes are employed in about equal numbers in the plant.

Workers flocked into the Union since the outbreak of stoppages June 17, stoppages for which even the company admits the union was in no way responsible.

Long standing grievances had piled up to the breaking point over excessively heavy work loads and inequalities in pay within the plant. With the company determined not to recognize the union, the union had been unable to effect settlements of the grievances.

Through the services of U. S. Conciliator R. W. Goodrick, terms have been agreed to between chairmen of 35 workers' department and plant committess and the company whereby work will be resumed, no discrimination against those who left work will be practised, and grievances will be negotiated.

Perkins Urges Labor, Management to Cooperate In Plant Feeding

WASHINGTON, June 26—Labor and management must take the initiative in working out mass feeding facilities if war workers are to have a well-rounded diet, Secretary of Labor Perkins announced today.

"The Women's Bureau has formulated standards for eating periods for women in war plants—a minimum of 30 minutes' time, a menu that includes hot, nutritious foods at a reasonable price and a pleasant place in which to eat away from the workroom," she said.

"In a recent survey of 183 war plants, bureau agents found that 123 gave 30 minutes for lunch, not paid for in the worker's wages. A total of 1/5 of the plants paid for lunch periods, ranging from 15 to 30 minutes.. Of 177 plants reporting on facilities, about 60 per cent had cafeterias or mobile canteens serving hot food of some kind.

"The findings reflected a wide variety of conditions—some meeting fully Women's Bureau standards. But these statistics don't tell the whole story. Here's what the bureau also discovered:

"Thousands of war workers have no hot food during working hours.

"Thousands of war workers must eat lunch in 15 minutes.

"Thousands of workers eat in the open, exposed to all weather variations.

"Thousands of workers eat in unsanitary rest rooms.

"And the results? Lately people have been calling it absenteeism. Personnel offices call it anemia, indigestion, nervous debility and work lag. You can see it in the girl at an ordnance plant who doesn't even attempt to eat in her 15-minute dinner hour—she catnaps on a bench in the hall."

CIO Backs Bill To Aid Schools

Washington, June 26—CIO support for a bill to aid primary and secondary public school systems was voiced this week by Kermit Eby, assistant director of the CIO's Research and Education Dept.

The bill (HR 2849), was approved by the House Committee on Education, provides for the expenditure of an original 200 million dollars and 100 million a year thereafter to more adequately finance state educational systems and to reduce inequalities of educational opportunities, particularly in war areas.

Eby said the bill, if passed, will help to correct a shortage of 60,000 teachers, which is particularly acute in rural areas and is noticeable in the wealthy states as well as in the poorer ones. Because of low salaries offered teachers, many of them have gone into war industry or into the female branches of the Army or Navy, he declared.

'FIGHTING FORTY': New York's Mayor LaGuardia spoke earnestly to some 400 delegates to a meeting called by the Congressional Committee to Protect the Consumer here last week. The committee, already known as the "Fighting Forty," is headed by Rep. Thomas Scanlon (D., Pa.), seen seated by the mayor. Delegates from labor, consumer and other civic groups vowed to carry the fight for price rollbacks, for subsidies to make them possible, and for real price control to their localities.

Congress Dumps FDR Win-War Program

Wreck-the-war forces in the Senate and House this week added a final touch to last week's passage of the Smith-Connally bill over President Roosevelt's veto, by ganging up to defeat the Administration-backed plan for subsidies to roll back food prices and voting to strangle price control.

Congressmen Coming Home — Tell Them What You Think!

The Congressmen you elected are coming home for a vacation. The record of the majority of them is one of obstruction and defeatism. Many of them were absent when vital issues were decided. What your Congressman will do in the future will depend a lot on how much you work on him. What shall you ask him about his record? What should he do to improve it? For details:—

CIO Leads in Big Sun Ship Vote; More Tallies Needed

CHESTER, Pa., July 3—This city's closest major Labor Board election had the whole town agog today as Board officials prepared to determine the distribution of 61 challenged votes in Sun Shipyard balloting, that found the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers Union leading a company union by a nose. The yard, which employes 35,000 workers, is the third largest on the Atlantic Coast. It is controlled by the bitterly anti-union Pew family, which has fought the CIO for seven years.

The score in what the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers hope will be the climax of the contest is, to date:

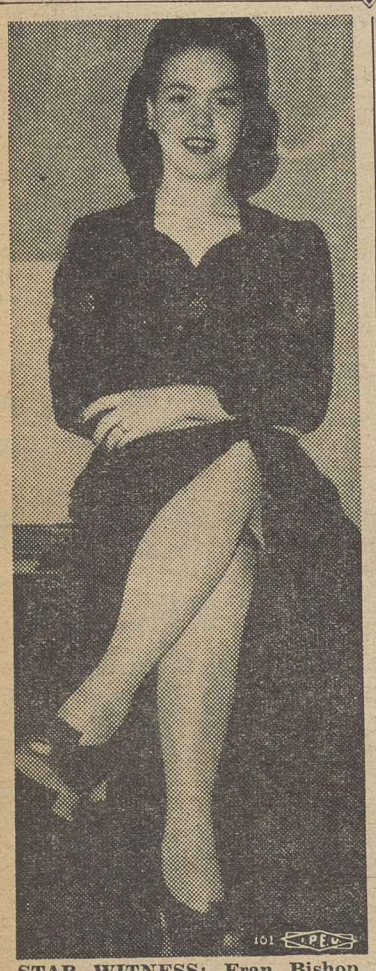
CIO	12,816
Company union	11,906
No union	864
Void	195
Challenged	61

The company union is the Sun Ship Employes Association, discredited by the NLRB as a company union, but revived by a Supreme Court decision, which held that it was an "independent organization."

The Maine & Shipbuilding Workers polled a majority of 910 more than the company union and a majority of 46 over both company union and no union. Only 8 of the 61 votes challenged votes are definitely needed to clinch the election for CIO, providing that neither the company union nor "no union" pick up any additional tallies.

If all the 61 challenged votes are ruled out, the CIO also will win. Other combinations of votes also make possible a CIO victory.

According to Regional NLRB Director Ben Shauffler, an immediate investigation of the 61 challenged votes will be held in an effort to determine whether the CIO has won or whether a run-off election will be necessary.



STAR WITNESS: Fran Bishop, a member of Detroit Local 26, United Office & Professional Workers Union, testified this week at a "trial of the high cost of living" that $100 a month is getting harder and harder to stretch. The "trial" originated by the UOPWA, was held before an audience of 250 white collar and professional people in the Detroit YMCA, in an effort to bring to public attention the need for price rollbacks.

At Michigan Parley

Thomas Blasts U. S. Fascists For Riots

DETROIT, July 3—A scorching attack on the "home-grown Fascists" who took a leading part in the recent Detroit race riots was made by President R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers at the sixth convention of the Michigan CIO Council, which met here this week.

John Gibson, a vice-president of the Michigan Council, was elected president at the closing session. He defeated C. Pat Quinn, president of the Wayne County Council. Earlier Ben Probe was re-elected secretary-treasurer without opposition.

Some 1,800 delegates, the greater part of them representing UAW-CIO locals, attended the convention at which many questions came up foreshadowing problems that will be acted upon at the UAW national convention scheduled to meet in St. Louis the end of September.

HAYWOOD, BROPHY TALK

John Brophy, director of CIO Industrial Union Councils, and Allan S. Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization, were among the out-of-state CIO leaders who addressed the delegates.

UAW President Thomas in his speech to the delegates charged that known members of the Ku Klux Klan led some of the Detroit rioters. "I don't know whether there were any foreign Fascist leaders," he said, "but I do know there were a hell of a bunch of home-grown Fascists involved."

PRAISE MURRAY

In a resolution passed early in the convention, the delegates praised CIO President Philip Murray for allowing "no provocation from the enemy at home or abroad to steer us away from our no-strike pledge to America," and voted to send a letter to President Roosevelt assuring him "that when John L. Lewis three times instigated a strike against America, he was not acting in accordance with the 'win-the-war' position of organized labor."

Later the convention recommended to the national CIO and to unions affiliated with the council, that "unless assurances made to labor at the time we gave up our right to strike are immediately and effectively put into operation, we consider our no-strike pledge no longer binding."

After being sent back to committee for revision, a resolution on the Detroit race riot was adopted which included a demand for an investigation by the LaFollette committee "to determine what part the Ku Klux Klan played in the riots."

Other resolutions adopted by the delegates asked for the removal of War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt and the appointment of a labor man to the job; urged the rollback of prices. supported the right of foremen to organize; opposed the pay-as-you-go tax plan, and denounced Eddie Rickenbacker as a labor-hating spokesman for the National Assn. of Manufacturers.

The militant speech of Thomas was one of the highlights of the convention. Urging the delegates to remember above all else that winning the war must come first, the UAW president warned companies who are refusing to work out their collective bargaining problems that "if they don't change their tactics when this war is over, they are going to have more headaches than ever before."

URGES FINISH FIGHT

He advocated fighting the constitutionality of the recently passed Connally-Smith law through to the Supreme Court, terming it a clear violation of the constitutional rights "that we are not to have slave labor in this country."

In discussing the situation arising out of the race riots, Thomas was critical of Governor Kelly of Michigan, Mayor Jeffries of Detroit, and the city police for the confusion, delay and "weak positions" taken in dealing with the rioters.

He urged that strong and unbiased action be taken against the leaders and declared that "unless some leaders are given long jail terms, this thing will happen again in Detroit."

ACA Demands Probe Of Axis Agents

NEW YORK, July 3—A searching investigation of "fifth column activities in Detroit, Mobile, Beaumont and other war production centers which have given Hitler his only victories this month," was demanded by the International Executive Board of the CIO American Communications Association, at a meeting here last week-end.

The resolution charged that civic authorities in Detroit are "giving aid and comfort to the enemy by attempting to whitewash an insurrection against law, order and decency which had been organized by the fifth column."

The board called upon President Roosevelt, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Department of Justice to bring the instigators of these riots to speedy justice.

"The only way to stop the fifth column interference with our war effort is to prosecute vigorously all those who not only engage in riotous activity but those who disseminate seditious propaganda and the racial doctrines of Goebbels," the ACA stated.

The ACA Board also sent a wire to President Roosevelt lauding his veto message on the Smith-Connally bill and pledging continued support of his domestic and foreign policies. It voted full support to all the policies of the CIO and President Philip Murray and made plans to organize a strong drive to roll back prices.

President Joseph P. Selly reviewed the union's recent wage increase victories for tens of thousands of workers in Western Union and Postal Telegraph, pointing out that a good job was done on the economic front, but the work "on the political front has been weak."

WLB Urges: Settle Beefs Or Arbitrate

Washington, July 3—The War Labor Board this week urged employers to settle grievances promptly or to submit to arbitration, pointing out that during wartime all labor disputes should be settled by peaceful means.

"The giving up of economic pressure," the Board stated, "imposes upon employers and employes the obligation to develop peaceful procedures for the prompt and equitable settlement of the day-to-day grievances in the plant which arise in the interpretation and application of the contract."

WLB Order 5-20c An Hour Raises

Chicago, July 3—Wage increases ranging from five to 20 cents an hour were ordered this week by the War Labor Board for employes of the Electrocast Steel Foundry Co., retroactive to September, 1942. The workers are represented by the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Union.

Textile Asks 55c Minimum In South

Charlotte, N. C., July 3—The Textile Workers Union will demand that a minimum wage of 55 cents an hour, vacations with pay, and third-shift minimum pay of 7 cents an hour be included in all of its contracts with southern textile mills.

Announcement of the union's policy was made here today by Emil Rieve, general president, at a meeting of members of the southern staff of the TWU.

"In all southern contracts negotiated from now on, Textile Workers Union of America will demand the inclusion of a 55-cent minimum computed on a daily basis, with adequate adjustment of wages in the upper brackets," Rieve said.

"The necessity for some sort of floor on wages in southern textile mills is glaringly apparent from Bureau of Labor Statistics figures, which show that the average wage in southern cotton mills last April was 56.2 cents an hour.

"Vacations with pay have been won for tens of thousands of workers by the Textile Workers Union in all sections of the country. The time has now arrived to make paid vacations a standard provision in all TWUA agreements in the South."

Brophy Named On Fair Job Group

WASHINGTON, July 3—John Brophy, director of CIO Industrial Union Councils, was appointed by President Roosevelt this week as one of the three labor members of the Fair Employment Practice Committee.

The other two are Boris Shiskin of the American Federation of Labor and Milton P. Webster of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. The President formerly appointed Msgr. Francis J. Haas chairman of the new committee which was established by executive order on May 27. He was named as a representative of the public.

Three members representing industry were also appointed this week, bringing the number serving on the committee to seven. The industry members are Samuel Zemurray, president of the United Fruit Co.; P. B. Young, editor-publisher, Journal & Guide, Norfolk, Va., and Sara Southall, supervisor of employment and service, International Harvester Co., Chicago.

Chairman Haas was in Detroit this week to investigate the status of cases there, several of which involve large war industries. When the new members of the committee meet,' he said, "they will have before them several important groups of cases, including those in Detroit, those concerning alleged discrimination on certain railroads and the Capital Transit case in Washington."

Roi Ottley Wins Book Award

Washington, July 3—Roi Ottley, publicity director for the National CIO War Relief Committee, and well known Negro writer, has been announced as winner of the $2,500 award given for books published in the Life-In-America series, by Houghton-Mifflin Co.

Ottley's book, "New World A-Coming," is an inside picture of the Negro's world, a world which has its center in Harlem, the capital of Black America, the publisher's announcement stated. It traces "the dramatic history of Harlem from the earliest days down to the present war, in which the Negro has so much at stake.

440 Election Victories Won By Steel Union

Pittsburgh, July 3—The United Steelworkers of America has won 440 election victories and has 1,075 signed agreements with steel manufacturing, processing and fabricating firms in the United States and Canada, President Murray announced this week, as the USA celebrtaed its seventh birthday.

The election victories were scored among the giant firms of the industry, those that other people said could "never be organized," including U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Inland, Crucible and many others.

The USA has won wage increases so substantial that today the pay of common labor in the steel mills is higher than the average pay for the entire industry was in 1936.

'Tell It to Congress' Drive Gets Results

WASHINGTON, July 3—Telling it to Congress in person is becoming a national institution—and an effective one, judging by the reception the tellers get when they come down here.

This week's wave of visiting voters came some 300 strong from the New York and New Jersey city CIO Councils, and they went to see not only their Congressmen but also the heads of various war agencies to tell them what's on the war workers' mind back home.

One of the chief items they had to question their Congressmen on was the matter of absenteeism during crucial votes. Delegate after delegate pointed out to the N. Y. and N. J. Representatives that a few votes in the House—votes that weren't there—could have swung the vote to the side of the President's veto of the Smith-Connally bill.

The delegates also demanded support for the price roll-back campaign and for subsidies to make it possible. They urged each of their Congressmen to join the "Fighting Forty," newly formed Committee to Protect the Consumer, that conducted a successful mass conference here last week on price control and rollback.

A group also visited the White House, where they offered labors' thanks for the veto and reiterated pledges of support to the President's war leadership.

Another group went to the Justice Department, where they lodged demands for a full probe of subversive agents at work in Detroit, Mobile, Beaumont and other areas where mob violence against Negroes has occurred.

Keep Your Eye on Congress

Next week, the Congressmen are coming home for a two months recess. The majority of them, from both parties, will bring home a pretty bad record. Workers and their friends and neighbors must use every chance they get during this recess to talk to their Congressmen and Senators and present them with our program to keep Congress united behind the Commander-in-Chief.

Here is a partial list of unfinished business that will face the Congressmen when they get back to Washington after Labor Day. Note that it includes some items which the anti-labor, anti-victory alliance thinks is finished and done with—and remember that it's up to us to convince them that it isn't.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT GETS FUNDS	ACTION
Appropriations for war agencies. (Several bills.)	In House, OPA, OWI, etc., funds slashed to cripple war work.	Some funds restored by Senate, especially OPA. At writing, in conference.	Watch developments, ask Congressman at home to restore fully for real price control.
Smith-Connally.	Worst blow yet at labor, war production, national unity.	Now law. Repeal bill filed by Representative Lespinski (D., Michigan).	Tell Congressmen at home you want repeal immediately.
Subsidies for price roll-backs. (Several bills.)	Killed in both Houses, chiefly in Commodity Credit Corporation renewal bill.	To White House.	Tell Congressman at home you demand rollback through subsidies and strict price control.
Poll tax repeal. (HR 7.)	Extends ballot to 10,000,000 citizens.	In Senate Elections subcommittee.	Tell your Senator at home to demand Senate vote as early as possible—no filibuster.
Social Security changes.	Step to real security by increasing benefits.	Hearings will begin after recess.	Tell both Representatives and Senators to support.

Congress Dumps FDR Win-War Program

WASHINGTON, July 3—In a final week of disruptive work before the Congressional recess, the wrecking crews in both House and Senate followed up the overriding of the Smith-Connally bill with votes knocking out administration-backed subsidies for the price roll-back, and strangling price control.

In the same week, both Houses left vital war agencies dangling without funds to carry them on after the June 30 deadline on the fiscal year. These agencies include the OWI, the NLRB and others that were slashed earlier.

The Senate did vote to restore the OPA appropriation to $177,000,000, after it had been cut by the House. In voting this amount, the Senate retained the House ban on grade labeling of cost-of-living goods that would have protected the consumer from price chiseling through lowering of quality.

An example of the confusion and obstruction created by the wrecking gang is seen in the fact that the first six months of the present Congress is ending this week in the rush to beat appropriation deadlines for important war agencies, many of which are not being met, while crippling amendments go through almost without debate.

A further lesson in absenteeism in Congress and the way it smooths the path for the disrupters was the House vote on extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corp., and banning subsidies, which went through by 160 to 32—with 243 Congressmen not voting.

Absenteeism, as was pointed out by President Murray in his statement last week, was a main factor in the overriding of the Smith-Connally veto. Some 16 votes would have turned the trick, and there were that many and more big city Congressmen absent when the test came.

This question—and many others—will be asked of all Congressmen when they return to their homes for the two months' recess starting early in July and extending through to Labor Day.

CIO Board to Meet July 7 to Form Policy On New War Setup

WASHINGTON, July 3—Members of the National CIO Executive Board were preparing to meet here at 10 a.m. Wednesday, July 7, to hear a first-hand report from President Philip Murray on the situation created by the passage of the Smith-Connally bill and to "promulgate clear guiding principles in the face of these new developments" which Murray described as absolutely necessary if the CIO is to continue to contribute its share in the march to victory.

Citing President Roosevelt's warning that passage of the Smith-Connally bill over his veto would take a toll in disunity and would harm war production, Murray said in a letter to executive board members:

"Labor and the CIO have stood and stand firmly behind the Commander-in-Chief. In these critical days it is more vital than ever that the policies of the CIO move forward firmly planted in the bedrock of the vital need for a united nation waging a life-and-death battle against a world-wide vicious enemy.

"Our nation is at war. Victory in that war requires that there be no faltering, no deviation from our no-strike pledge, no hesitation in our unyielding march to victory."

The same day he sent the letter to the board members, Murray sent another to President Roosevelt, congratulating him on his veto and assuring him that the CIO stands firmly committed to its all-out support of the war.

The letter follows in full:

LETTER TO FDR

"Lest there be misunderstanding regarding the attitude of the Congress of Industrial Organizations concerning the action of the Federal Congress yesterday in overriding your veto of S.796, the so-called War Labor Disputes Bill, I am taking the liberty in behalf of my organization to express gratitude to you for your statesmanlike attitude in placing your veto upon this vicious anti-labor measure.

"Despite our disappointment over the action taken by the Congress I hasten to assure you that our organizations will maintain their no-strike pledge. All of us affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations have a deep appreciation of the tremendous responsibility devolving upon you as President of the United States of America and Commander - in - Chief of our armed forces.

"We know that your prime interest, like ours, is to win this war against barbarism and slavery, and that in order to expedite the winning of the war it becomes necessary for all of labor to lend to you, our nation's leader, every possible degree of support. I am quite sure that every loyal worker, whether a member of organized labor or not, subscribes to this belief.

WARNED OF DANGER

"You correctly stated the danger of strikes and stoppages as a result of the enactment of the 30-day provision contained in Section 8. Because this is true it shall be our purpose to do everything possible to avert the obvious dangers arising out of it.

"For your information, I am enclosing a copy of a call which I have issued to the officers of our respective CIO International Unions, convening an extraordinary session of our International Executive Board, Wednesday, July 7, for the purpose of giving mature and orderly consideration to the many perplexing problems which as you doubtless know labor will be confronted with as a result of the action of Congress yesterday.

"In the meantime, let me again assure you of our wholesome desire to lend every possible degree of support to you and our country in this, one of the most trying periods of our nation's history."

Labor Unites To Fight Kan. 'Halter' Bill

Kansas City, Kan., July 3—Joint CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhood action to fight state anti-labor laws was taken again this week when attorneys for the three labor organizations asked an injunction from a Federal court here against the Kansas act restricting activities of unions.

In the argument, presented for the CIO by General Counsel Lee Pressman and Harry Clark, the injunction was asked on three basic grounds:

1. The act, by requiring licensing of union organizers and other officials, is unconstitutional because it is in effect placing a license requirement on the exercise of freedom of speech and assembly.

2. The act is in violation of the National Labor Relations Act, which guarantees all workers the right to organize without hindrance or intimidation.

3. The act destroys the right to strike, picket and boycott. These rights have been laid aside by voluntary action of the unions for the duration. The Kansas law, however, does not even pretend to be a wartime measure, but applies in peacetime as well.

Similar suits are being initiated in Colorado and Texas, where the same type of anti-union state laws have been passed.

Melbourne, Australia—Australian civilians are allowed one-half pound of butter per head each week under the new rationing scale. This is only two ounces per week under normal consumption.

House Bill Would Hamstring NLRB, Aid Co. Unions

WASHINGTON, July 3—Using the familiar trick of a policy rider on an appropriation bill, Congress this week has added to its list of sabotage by an attempt to freeze collective contracts between employers and fake unions.

The freeze was done in a rider to the bill for funds for the National Labor Relations Board, which prohibits Board action on a contract that has run for three months.

Immediate aim of the House wreckers was to perpetuate the back-door agreement between the AFL and the Kaiser shipyards, whereby Kaiser gave a closed shop to the AFL in dozens of plants before a single worker was hired.

The rider, it was pointed out here, thus legalizes company unionism by keeping the Board out of such situations and destroys much of the value of the Board and of the Wagner Act.

In addition, the House members—the vote was 169 to 11—have given their blessing to the kind of collusive back-door deals that CIO has been fighting since its beginning.

elimination of a trick rider on the NLRB appropriation that would protect collusive agreements by employers.

Politics Hits War—Cowan To Congress

Washington, July 3 — Cuts in funds for war agencies are "the product of political calculations, the work of forces striking at important war policies through control of the purse strings," CIO Legislative Representative Nathan Cowan said this week in writing to House and Senate leaders for full restoration of the cuts.

"Following this line of politics-as-usual, in fact, politics worse than usual, on the home front, groups in both houses have undertaken slashes of funds . . . and in some instances have undertaken to use the appropriations bills as a basis for tricky maneuvers and riders," Cowan added.

Cowan appealed especially for restoration of deep slashes in funds for OPA, Office of War Information, OCD, National Youth Administration, Labor Department, and for

USA Pledges Full Steel Output

PITTSBURGH, July 3—The United Steelworkers will do everything in their power to keep on giving the armed forces the steel they need for victory, USA-CIO President Philip Murray said in a radio speech at a production conference here this week.

"Almost daily we read of some new production record in steel," President Murray said. "Management deserves credit but management deserves no more credit than do the men who make steel. New production records are possible only because of the highest degree of cooperation between labor and management.

"It is in this spirit of cooperation that the United Steelworkers wants to tackle this latest production challenge—this challenge which calls for an extra 2,000,000 tons of steel in the next six months."

Murray called for more effective labor-management production committees, adding:

"Wherever steel is made these union men of the mills have their sleeves rolled, working feverishly, working desperately to win this war. The winning of the war will determine whether labor will live or die—and labor will fight to live."

New Home Week

With the recess of Congress between mid-July and Labor Day, the American people will start a new kind of "Old Home Week."

Throughout the nation, American workers and their friends and fellow-citizens are preparing a welcome home to the returning statesmen that will not be soon forgotten.

Of those Congressmen who voted against the home front and against the fighting fronts on the Smith-Connally bill, on cost of living, on taxes, on a score of basic war issue—the voters will want to know why, and will demand that it doesn't happen again.

Of those Congressmen who voted merely for the record and failed to do their full job in committees and in working with other Congressmen—the voters will want assurances of a better and more serious job in the future.

Of those Congressmen who were absent when the test came, the voters will demand assurances that they regard their job of representing the people as a full-time job, not as a chore to be hurried through between election years.

These questions will be asked in thousands of war industry centers and other communities throughout the nation. The questioners will not be the workers alone, but all the citizens.

Everybody is involved in this people's war. Everybody's future is affected by what happens on the home front and on the offensive fronts. And everybody is going to turn out to ask the returning Congressmen just what made them tick the way they've been ticking in Washington.

On the answers will depend the political future of every Representative and Senator who wants to be re-elected in 1944.

Holding Ranks

When the alliance of anti-victory Republicans and polltax Democrats passed the Smith-Connally bill over the President's veto, they hoped as part of their general disruptive scheme to provoke an immediate wave of anger and resentment on the part of organized labor.

They hoped that this bill would bring discontent and indignation to a point where it would boil over in stoppages of war production, thus achieving their two objectives: to pillory labor and to hamper war production.

The plotters against the nation and against labor were disappointed. President Murray immediately wrote to the Commander-in-Chief reiterating CIO's determination "to win this war against barbarism and slavery" and CIO's knowledge that "in order to expedite the winning of this war it becomes necessary for all of labor to lend to you, our nation's leader, every possible degree of support."

The passage of the Smith-Connally bill is aimed at making labor's support of the war and of President Roosevelt's war leadership more difficult to carry out. In conspiracy with John L. Lewis, the enemies of the President hope to turn labor away from winning the war to suicidal quarrels within our nation itself.

But the CIO knows how to deal with enemies such as those who sponsor the Smith-Connally bill, who promote inflation, who fight against the roll-back of living costs.

The CIO was born in struggle and achieved its place as the leader of progressive America through struggle. Today, the CIO fights for its own existence as part of the fight for the existence of our country.

The millions of working men and women who have made the CIO the leading force for democracy in America are fighting today on the war fronts and on the home front even harder than they fought to establish the right to organize and to live decently as workers and as Americans.

The same enemies are active against the American people that were active in earlier campaigns for labor's fundamental rights. The Howard Smiths, Gene Coxes, the Clare Hoffmans and the Connallys are the same gang that has always fought labor's right to live.

Today, this gang is fighting America's right to live, by giving aid and comfort to our enemy through their tactics in Congress.

And today, the CIO is fighting America's war for freedom and labor's war for existence when it holds its ranks against the Smith-Connally bill, when it spurns the obvious bait put out by the anti-victory, appeasement forces that sponsor such block-the-war measures as this one.

LOOKING AHEAD

In the absence this week of Len De Caux, "Looking Ahead" is guest conducted, with words from Langston Hughes, who wrote the lyrics for "We'll Hammer It Out Together." This new tune by Earl Robinson was sung last week on CIO's Labor for Victory program that featured Paul Robeson in a play by Peter Lyon. The play told how John Henry, mighty Negro worker, won the right to contribute his skill and strength in a CIO aircraft plant, where the workers hammered it out together, "white folks and black folks side by side," to "turn our strength into tanks and planes for the troops on the other side." The lyrics follow:

I know you've heard the story
Of John Henry, mighty man,
Matched his strength with the steam drill,
Died—his hammer in his hand.
I know you've heard the story—
Engineer, brave Casey Jones.
Well, his engine's still a-running
And his history's in my bones.
I know you've heard the story
How Paul Bunyan felled a tree.
Well, Bunyan, John and Casey
Hammered it out for you and me:

CHORUS

We'll hammer it out together
The new world we want to make.
We've got the plan and pattern
So, brother, set the stake.
We'll hammer it out together
And we'll make it strong and fine.
We'll hammer it out together,
This land of yours and mine.

The job our fathers started
Is here for us today.
We've got the blueprints ready
For democracy's highway.
Side by side we'll labor,
Men of every creed and race,
We can make a paradise
Out of this earthly place.
We've set a mighty standard—
Freedom for every man—
So let's hammer it out together
America, our land!

CHORUS

Yes, we'll hammer it out together.
The tomorrow we desire.
We'll hammer it out together
In the forge of freedom's fire.
The iron's upon the anvil
And it's metal sure is fine.
We'll hammer it out together,
This America of mine.

We know the Pilgrim Fathers
Did not have an easy road,
But they hammered it out together,
Each shared the other's load.
Time was when human slavery
Put its curse upon the land,
But we hammered it out together
Now every man's a MAN.
We've been through floods and fires
We been through war and woe,
But we've hammered it out together
And we'll keep on doing so.

CHORUS

Ye, we'll hammer it out together.
We'll keep it strong and free
We'll hammer it out together,
This land of liberty.
We'll all pull together
United in our powers.
We'll hammer it out together,
This America of ours.

The fascists try to stop us
Teaching divide and rule.
But the fascists and the Ku Klux
Must think that I'm a fool.
Sure, I know that we've got problems,
Hard to solve, some they may be—
But we'll hammer 'em out together,
And we'll come through, you and me.
Long as we stand united,
Foes within and foes without
Will know that we mean business
When they hear us shout:

CHORUS

We'll hammer it out together.
We'll plan it side by side.
We'll build a mighty nation
Where freedom will abide.
We'll stand shoulder to shoulder
United in our powers.
We'll hammer it out together—
This America of ours!

Congress Coming Home—Here's The Record—It's Up to You!

By C. W. FOWLER

Congress is coming home. Six months ago, when the Congress was new, it called itself the "Victory Congress." Now the Congressmen are coming home for a two months recess, to meet again Labor Day.

What is the record that the Congressmen have to bring home to YOU—the voters, the men and women war workers who elected them?

The record of the majority of both parties is one of obstruction and defeatism. By their acts, the alliance of anti-war Republicans and polltax Democrats has defied the Commander-in-Chief, defied the people whom they are supposed to represent, and defied the will of America for an early victory in the war against fascism.

Take a look at this record—and give some thought to what you and your neighbors can do about it.

(1) The bold attempt to wreck price control and promote inflation, by slashing OPA funds for enforcement of ceilings, by outlawing grade labelling for quality control, by prohibiting subsidies to roll back the cost of living.

(2) The Smith-Connally bill, passed over the Commander-in-Chief's veto and over the protest of CIO and all labor; designed to promote strife and disunity, when national unity is the No. 1 need of the hour; designed to smash the unions that are the backbone of the nation's war.

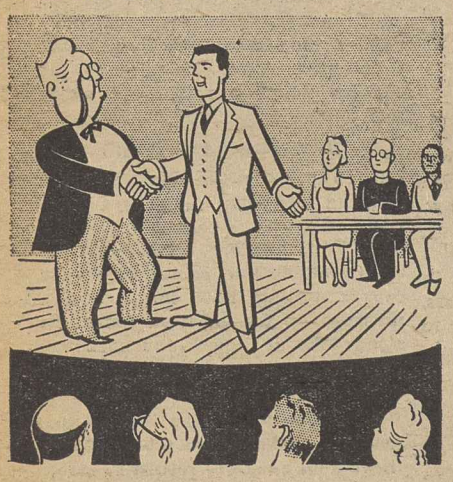
(3) The tax steal for the rich in the 75 per cent version of the Ruml plan, leading to the present drive for a sales tax on the already strained food budgets of the war workers and all the people.

(4) The failure to push plans for mobilization of all resources and people for all-out war, made clear in the failure to push plans for food production, to push overall war production planning, and other measures to gear our nation for the offensive and victory.

What We Can Do About It

This in brief outline is the record. What can we do to change it, so that all of Congress will unite behind the Commander-in-Chief and get on and stay on the victory beam?

Your Representative and your Senators are coming home. Use this chance to tell them what's on America's mind. Home talks with Congressmen are by far the most effective way of reaching them.



INVITE your Congressman to a good old American style town meeting. Have him get acquainted with the voters and with what's on the voters' mind. He'll be glad to come when you turn out a fully representative group.

Homework with your Congressman means more than simply meeting him at the station or calling on him at his house. You have to lay out a program and a plan—and the basis of your plan is to get together with as many organizations and people as you can.

Your job with Congress today is more than merely a matter of "labor bills." It involves your food, your wages, your living and working conditions, and the way the war goes—so consequently the job has to be done by everybody, not by the labor movement alone.

Here's how you, as a union member, a war worker and a citizen, can do the best homework job on Con-

HAVE your Congressman meet the housewife and the auxiliary members when he comes home. They'll have plenty of questions to ask him on what's happening to the family food basket.

gress during this two-month recess:

(1) You must know your Congressman' record. This means more than simply his voting record. Voting records are made with an eye on the voters at home. What your Congressman does in addition to voting is equally important — his work on committees, what he says on the issues involved, how he works with other Congressmen, whether or not he joins with them to push a win-the-war program.

(2) Start now—if you haven't already done it—to set up a local action committee that will bring in other labor unions, women's auxiliaries, church leaders and their congregations, civic and fraternal groups, farmers, white-collar and professional people—everybody that has a stake in this war, and that means everybody in the community.

(3) Have your committee call public rallies in the good American town meeting tradition. Get a prominent local citizen as chairman—the mayor, or a leading public figure. Ask your Congressman to attend. In big cities, do this on a Congressional election district basis. Hold the meeting in the biggest hall you think you can fill. Advertise it, by newspapers, by leaflets, by radio, by shop bulletins and every way that is open. Your Congressman will come, if you have organized your work properly.

(4) Have your meeting centered around the issues of most interest to all—cost of living, taxes, polltax repeal, social security, the Smith-Connally bill, etc. Ask your Congressman for his views. Tell the audience his record—how he voted or didn't vote, how he worked and spoke in committee and on the floor in debate. Be fully prepared and informed. If his record is bad, discuss it frankly so that it will improve. If it has been good, talk with him about working on other Congressmen that aren't so good.

Above all, make sure that the Congressman knows about your program—the program of the CIO and of all win-the-war forces, and make sure that the people in your community know this program.

Getting your program over to all the people in the community is just as important as getting it over to the Congressman; in fact, you have to get it to the people before you can get it to him and make it stick.

Use every publicity means you can reach or can afford; newspaper releases, ads, leaflets, billboards, radio time for speakers and discussions; send speakers to other organizations, invite local leaders to your own meetings on the issues; make sure that your union members know the score and that they talk to their shopmates and neighbors.

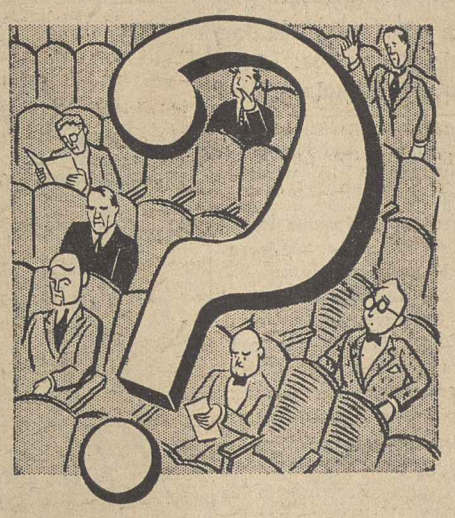
Public meetings are good, but are not the whole story. Start a petition campaign for the price rollback, as an example. Organize people to write to the newspapers. Organize delegations to make frequent visits to the Congressman at his home or his office.

Point up your whole drive during this Congressional recess to Labor Day, when the recess will be over. Plan a big Labor Day meeting, with your Congressman present, and make the issues in Congress and in Washington the theme of the celebration.

The Issues You Should Fight For

There are many issues to be discussed and worked on. Here is a limited list of the most important ones—there are others that will occur to you.

CAUTION: Do not tackle too many



ASK your Congressman about absenteeism. Was he in his place when House and Senate voted to override the Smith-Connally veto, to kill subsidies for the rollback, to wreck price control? If not—why?

---

issues at once. The job of involving all your fellow-citizens in the win-the-war program is easier if you start with the broadest and simplest issues first.

(1) SMITH-CONNALLY BILL: This anti-war, anti-unity bill must be repealed. The bill pretends to help war production by outlawing strikes. Actually, it is meant to promote strife and disunity, to harrass labor and the President and to prolong the war and delay victory. Urge your Congressman to work and vote for repeal.

(2) COST OF LIVING: The wrecking crew in Congress now leading the push for inflation must be broken up. A win-the-war group of Congressmen has been formed to fight for price control, for subsidies to make the rollback possible, for grade labelling and other food front measures. The group is called the "Committee for the Protection of the Consumer," and is headed by Rep. Thomas Scanlon (D., Pa.). Urge your Congressman to join this group, work with it, get other recruits.

(3) TAXES: One of the first jobs Congress will take up after the recess will be the tax bill. As a result of the tax grab for the rich in the 75 per cent version of the Ruml plan passed in May, the drive for a general sales tax is getting under way very rapidly. Tell your Congressman to work and vote for a tax bill based on the needs

DISCUSS his record with the Congressman when he comes home. If it's been bad, tell him so; if it's been good, tell him that and urge him on. And remember that the record is more than just the voting list—go over everything he did in Washington.

of victory, on ability to pay, for full taxes on big incomes and excess war profits, and NO SALES TAX.

(4) POLLTAX REPEAL: The polltax repeal bill, HR 7, has passed the House. It is now in a subcommittee of the Senate. Polltax Senators are planning a filibuster. Tell your two Senators to demand that HR 7 be brought up on the Senate floor immediately, without hearings or amendments, and that they vote for cloture if necessary to close debate and kill the filibuster.

(5) SOCIAL SECURITY: New amendments have been offered to the Social Security Act. They make a step toward real security by increasing the size and scope of benefits, protecting the people from hazards of unemployment, sickness, old age. Urge your Congressman to work and vote for these amendments. Hearings will start after the recess.

How to Keep Your Eye on the Ball

For your Congressman's record, for analysis of the issues involved, and for full knowledge of labor's win-the-war policies: (1) consult your local and council legislative committee; (2) write your international's Washington representative and the Legislative Department of the CIO (under direction of Nathan Cowan, CIO, 718 Jackson Pl., Washington 6, D. C.); (3) look up your shop paper, your international paper and THE CIO NEWS.

These CIO pamphlets will also help you keep track:

Congress Junks FDR's Program To Control Prices

By the CIO Cost of Living Committee

It has been a black week for price control as well as for labor. For not only did Congress override the President's veto of the Smith-Connally bill, but it also tore up the President's subsidy-roll-back program, taking the stand that subsidies are all right for everybody but the people. Subsidies are all right for big business, they are all right for agriculture, but they are all wrong when they are used to benefit the hard-pressed low-income groups!

One hopeful note in the otherwise black picture of the week was the Washington conference of the "fighting Congressmen" and consumer and labor groups. Another was the resignation of Food Administrator Chester Davis.

REVOLT STARTED

The consumer conference came too late to affect the trend of Congressional voting against subsidies, but it did start a revolt which is bound to grow, as Congressmen hear from the folks at home.

As for the resignation of Chester Davis, that will help put an end to the sabotage of the President's program in high places of the Administration. Ever since the President's hold-the-line order was issued, Chester Davis fought with all his powers to break it down. He raised the price of corn, he lobbied in Congress against subsidies, and he cooperated with the butter manufacturers and packers in creating a butter and meat shortage at the time the two subsidies went into effect.

Judge Marvin Jones, his successor, is a loyal friend of the President. He can be relied upon to manage the war food program in the interest of the hungry consumer and not in the interest of the profit-mad big farm groups.

MAY MEND SPLIT

If there is any person who can mend the split between the farmers and the city people—a split deliberately provoked by reactionary interests—it is Marvin Jones.

There is some hope also that the fight for rollback subsidies is not completely lost. The first round has gone to the anti-price control forces in Congress, with the killing of all subsidy provisions in the Commodity Credit Corporation bill.

This does not mean that the fight for the rollback ends. On the contrary, it means a re-doubling of our energies to see to it that Congress changes its mind on this vital issue.

When the price of butter jumps five and six cents a pound overnight and the price of meat jumps three or four cents a pound—which is what will happen when the subsidies are terminated—the consumers can be expected to make a noise that will reverberate down to Washington and right into the Senate and House dining halls where the solons feast on subsidized food.

The consumers will repeat the question that was asked a month ago by one of the members of this committee—if food subsidies are a crime why do Senators and Representatives subsidize their own dining halls, both in peace and war?

CIO Army Man Says His Outfit Pro-Labor

WASHINGTON, July 3—A CIO shipyard worker in the Army, with a lot of buddies from other CIO unions, took occasion this week to tell off some of the disrupters who are spreading anti-union propaganda in an effort to divide the nation. In a letter to the CIO News, the soldier—Pfc. Robert Nichols—wrote from an engineering regiment stationed in the west:

"A newspaper clipping denouncing the 'new strike wave' was put up on our bulletin board the other day. It was allegedly signed by 'Four Corporals' from some training camp in the Southeast.

"These four corporals sounded as though the men and women they had left in the factories back home were living like Diamond Jim Brady while they were fighting the whole war on field rations.

"I though perhaps you would be interested in what some of us soldiers in the Engineers think about it.

HITS LEWIS

"Just because John L. Lewis has called his miners' union out on strike does not mean that the rest of labor has violated its no-strike pledge.

"I myself worked in Local 42 of the Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America before I joined the Army and there have been no strikes in our union that I know of since we entered the war.

"One of my best friends in the company, Sgt. M. C. Williams, belonged to Actor's Equity in New York; there have been no strikes by his union.

"John Souza in my hutment was a member of the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen; his union has not only had a clear strike record since Pearl Harbor but is trying constantly to cut down inefficiency in handling merchant marine cargoes.

"Private First Class Ambrosiewicz, who is on the same landing boat as I, belonged to the United Auto Workers in Detroit. They have been working on labor-management committees and have contributed abundantly to win-the-war planning.

"There are many in our company that feel the same. We have not lost sight of what our unions back home are doing to fight this war. With the exception of John L. Lewis, labor is still pledged to settle its disputes voluntarily through collective bargaining and to keep production rolling.

"Our unions do not need to be coerced by laws such as the Smith-Connally measure. Freedom is far more profitable. If it were not for such freedom we would be wondering why we fought."

Hillman Calls For U. S., Soviet, British Unity

New York, July 3—"The firmest coalition between Russia, England and the United States in the prosecution of this war is the surest and, indeed, the only guarantee of final victory," President Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union declared this week at a "Tribute to Russia Day," celebrated by a huge rally at Triborough Stadium.

"We believe that one of the important tasks before us is to promote closer understanding between the Soviet people and ourselves, to clear away all misconceptions and suspicions which have divided us in the past, and by every means to deepen and extend the collaboration between our governments and our people."

CIO Urges Labor Unity In Politics

New York, July 3—Louis Hollander, installed yesterday as the new president of the New York State CIO, declared he will propose to Thomas Murray, head of the State AFL, a joint political and legislative program for 2,000,000 organized trade-unionists to insure keeping the Empire State in the New Deal column in 1944.

Hollander, who is general manager of the New York Joint Board, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and an Amalgamated vice-president, succeeds Gustave A. Strebel as State CIO president. Strebel was compelled to resign, under doctors' orders, on grounds of ill-health. He had been State CIO president since 1930.

The new State CIO president said that New York labor will not be caught unawares and that any attempt to foist an anti-labor legislature upon the state in 1944 would be unsuccessful.

"There will be no repetition in New York State of the adverse Congressional elections of 1942," Mr. Hollander declared. "New York labor is determined that the social welfare and other enlightened gains which have marked legislation in this state for nearly two decades will not be wiped out."

Stone Union Wins Election, Wage Boost

Washington, July 3—An election victory and a substantial wage increase were gains announced this week by the United Stone & Allied products Workers of America.

At the Pomono Terra Cotta Co., in Barre, Vermont, employes voted 105 to 92 for the union as bargaining agent.

At the Johns-Manville Corp., in Alexandria, Indiana, the War Labor Board in a contract renewal ordered a 7.2 cents an hour general increase, a union security clause, and a voluntary checkoff of union dues.

The wage increase is retroactive to November 3 1942.

Dependency Budgets Inadequate, Army Finally Admits

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The army has finally publicly acknowledged that present allowances to dependents of servicemen are inadequate. They point out that a year ago, when the present bill was passed, drafting of fathers was not contemplated. In spite of that, however, some 2,250,000 men in the armed services have applied for dependency allowances, and resentment at the present totally inadequate provisions has been growing.

And what does the Army propose? An increase from $62 to $68 a month for a wife and one child and an increase of $1 per month—from $10 to $11—for each additional child.

It is really hard to believe that the Army—which must give considerable thought and effort to maintaining the morale of our soldiers—should propose this pauper standard for servicemen's families. Seventy-nine dollars a month for a mother and two children is not enough to maintain health and decency.

Our ally, Canada, provides a government allowance of $99 a month, in addition to the soldiers' pay, for a dependent family of three. British allowances are graduated according to need and rise to a top of about $30 per week.

$40 SHORT

I don't know how the Army reached the conclusion that $7 a month added to present allowances would meet the need. They evidently have not approached the problem as we have from a study of what a woman with two children needs to maintain even a minimum decent standard of living. If they had they would realize that their proposed allowance is at least $40 short.

The Heller Committee of the University of California has developed a budget for dependent families and children. For a wife and two children that budget would require over $1,100 a year at present prices—as opposed to the $948 proposed by the War Department.

Here's a partial description of what that Heller budget provides: "The clothing allowance frankly admits the necessity for a considerable degree of shabiness. It has provided for movies once a month, an evening paper, a casual street car trip to the park for the family, a small amount of expenditures at school and church.

NO MEDICAL CARE

"Because the budget is designed for social dependents no provision is made for insurance or savings, or for medical care, which must be furnished free by clinics."

Here's Latest Slant On Home Canning

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

Many a seasoned housewife can learn a thing or two about the newest and safest methods of canning foods at home. Experts of the Department of Agriculture have compiled a list of the important steps to take to produce the best results in canning. Clip this list and keep it before you while you work.

To save food value, follow these steps in canning:

1. Make preparations the day before canning.

2. Prepare vegetables and fruits and put them up as quickly as you can. Two hours from garden to can is the ideal way to do your canning.

3. Scald all equipment immediately before using. Heat jars, glass or zinc covers in pressure cooker or pan of boiling water for 20 minutes. Scald rubber rings and self-sealing metal tops by dipping in boiling water.

4. Pre-cook non-acid vegetables (all vegetables except tomatoes) in boiling water to shrink products, to drive out air from tissues and to shorten processing time. Put rubbers on before packing jar.

PACKING TIPS

5. Pack hot vegetables in hot jars, and add boiling water in which vegetables were cooked to within ½ inch of top of jar. Add salt—½ teaspoon to a pint, 1 teaspoon to a quart. Do not pack vegetables tightly for it prevents thorough heating.

6. Get rid of all air in cans by filling cans and placing on rack in pan of boiling water on the stove or in pressure cooker until steaming hot before completely sealing. That's called exhausting the cans.

7. Seal screw-top jars with rubber rings only part way by screwing cap on tight and turning back a little. On the boil-type jar leave the side clamp on.

8. Exhaust the pressure cooker; add 1 inch of water or enough to cover rack in pressure cooker to prevent boiling dry. Put jars in cooker, clamp on the cover, tightening according to directions for your cooker. Leave petcock open until steady steam escapes—about 7 minutes. Allow 10 minutes for cookers which are 25 fluid quart size or larger.

PRESSURE COOKERS

9. To process the food you are canning means to apply heat to it. For the pressure cooker, close petcock, run pressure up slowly. Use the timetable that comes with your cooker telling how long to run pressure up for different foods. To avoid loss of liquid and for best canning results hold pressure constant for the time required.

10. When processing time is up, remove cooker from stove, allow needle on guage to return to zero, open petcock, release clamps, and remove cover, tilting away from the face.

11. Remove jars from cooker. Complete the seal on all jars except those with self-seal tops which have been completely sealed before processing. Leave bands on jars until cold. Stand jars upright, place apart to cook as quickly as possible.

12. When jars are cold, wipe clean, remove screw band of self-sealing jars, and label. Keep jars a week at room temperature before storing to check up on any spoilage by that time. Then store in a cool, dark, dry place till needed.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

E. L. Sandefur, regional director in Winston-Salem, sends in the results of the election held at the Borden Brick & Tile Co., Durham plant. The vote was 26 for CIO, 5 for no union.

James Ritchie, regional director in St. Paul, advises that the UAW-CIO won the election at Northwest Airlines, Minneapolis, 325 for CIO to 136 for AFL.

A. J. Shippey, PWOC district director, advises that the Wilson Packing Co. election resulted in 192 votes for CIO, 179 for a company union. This victory gives the Packinghouse Workers bargaining rights in the Big Four Packers in the Los Angeles area. This is the third election held at this plant. Those participating in this victory are to be congratulated.

H. C. Fremming, regional director in Kansas City, advises that the election at the Corn Products Co., resulted in 288 votes for CIO to 153 for the Corn Products Employes Union.

UAW Wins 2 More Aircraft Victories

The UAW-CIO International Office sends in the following additional victories: Timm Aircraft, Alameda, Calif. plant, CIO, 58% as against 6% for the IAM and 18% for the AFL Carpenters; Woodley Plant, CIO 79%, IAW 13%, and no union 8%.

Frank Hardesty, USA district director, advises that in the election held at Murray Gin, Dallas, Texas, the CIO polled 57% of the votes as against 42%.

W. D. Mackey, USA director in West Virginia, advises that at the election held at Mt. Vernon Bridge Co., CIO polled 71% of the votes.

Fullerton Fulton, regional director in Chicago, sends in the following election victories: Chicago Metal Co., UERMWA, 117 to 31 for no union; Chicago Flexible Shaft, UERMWA, 460 to 404 for the AFL; Benjamin Electric, UERMWA, 267 to 77 for no union; Cinch Mfg., UERMWA, 371 to 140 for the AFL; Wheelco Instrument Co., UERMWA, 157 to 62 for no union, and Moline Tool Co., UERMWA 54 to 45 for the AFL.

L. S. Buckmaster, vice-president URWA-CIO, sends in the following election victories: Buffalo Weaving & Belting Co., CIO 71 to 39 for no union; plant guards at Kelly-Springfield Tire Co., Cumberland, Md., CIO 151 to 10 for no union; Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Bowmanville, Ont., Canada, CIO 249 to 5 for no union.

Adolph Germer reports the winning of three elections by the IWA-CIO in Vicksburg, Mississippi: King Stave Co., IWA-CIO 41 against AFL 5; Vicksburg Hook Mill, IWA-CIO 48 against AFL 6; Warren County Heating Co., IWA-CIO 29 against AFL 21.

Shoe Workers Win at Brown Plant

James J. Mitchell, secretary, United Shoe Workers of America, reports the winning of an election at the Brown Shoe Co., Salem, Illinois: USWA 503 to 24 for no union. At the last minute District 50, UMWA, withdrew from the ballot.

Ralph Tillotson, CIO field representative, tells of another victory for the Electrical Workers. This time at the Windsor Electric Corp., Erie, Pa., UE-CIO 75 to 6 for no union.

George Craig, CIO regional director, Philadelphia, reports the following victories in his area: American Wire & Fabric Co., USA-CIO 211 to 71 for no union; Traylor Engineering & Mfg. Co., Allentown, Pa., USA 155 to 30 against; another at the American Wire Fabric Co., Mt. Wolf, Pa., USA-CIO 217 to 71 for no union; and at the Boring Furniture Co., York, Pa., United Furniture Workers 9, 5 for no union.

'Good Work'

At the Dravo Corp. Shipyard at Neville, Pa., near Pittsburgh, the Industrial Union Marine & Shipbuilding Workers of America were victorious in an important election of the main group where the vote was CIO 3025 to 2845. The election in the group represented by the Welders and Burners was inconclusive and a run-off election will be necessary between the CIO and the Independent Union. CIO is favored to win the run-off. Regional Director Federoff and staff assisted materially the IUM&SWA, making this their point of concentration. Representative Charles Purkis was in charge for the IUM&SWA.

Adolph Germer, Director of Organization, IWA-CIO, sends in another important victory for the IWA at McCloud, California by vote of 302 for IWA-CIO to 177 for no union. They also won a victory at Larison Woods near Greenville, Calif., by a vote of 27 for IWA-CIO to 24 for AFL.

James J. Matles, director of organization, UERMWA, reports the following election victories: W. L. Maxson Corp., New York City, 564 to 216; General Electric, Nela Park, Cleveland, 161 to 41; Atlas Steel Corp., Welland, Canada 1263 to 110; Robert H. Hood Co., Philadelphia, 47 to 5; Altorfer Bros., Peoria, Illinois 445 to 88.

NMU Confab Sets Win-the-War Goal

NEW YORK, July 3—Intent upon adopting a program to increase the efficiency of the merchant marine as a front-line adjunct of the fighting forces and in support of President Roosevelt's foreign and domestic policies, delegates to the fourth convention of the National Maritime Union, CIO, many of them torpedoed seamen, began arriving here today.

Representing the 50,000 NMU members delivering weapons of war to battlefronts all over the world, the delegates, including many who saw action in the Solomon Islands and North African campaigns, will act on current political and home front matters.

The delegates are expected to renew the NMU's pledge not to strike for the duration of the war—a pledge which has been scrupulously upheld since Pearl Harbor. The convention is also expected to denounce those forces within the labor movement who have violated the no-strike pledge.

Representatives from foreign seamen's unions will attend the sessions. The convention has a United Nations theme and is expected to go on record in favor of preserving the United Nations as a post-war force.

Appropriate ceremonies honoring the 6,198 merchnat seamen who lost their lives delivering the goods since Pearl Harbor will be held.

Joseph Curran, president of the NMU, will preside at the sessions.

Japs Force Starvation On Thousands

Kweilin, China, July 3 (ALN)—Since the capture of Hong Kong by the Japanese in December, 1941, over 1,000,000 unemployed and unskilled Chinese workers have been driven from the former British colony. The majority have been forcibly deported, the rest driven to leave through denial of food ration cards.

Without any resources whatever, thousands of these refugees have starved to death in the barren islands and coastal regions where they have been taken.

Despite this treatment, however, these deportees are more fortunate than thousands of women, children and unemployed who have been simply herded onto junks and barges, towed out beyond the entrance to Hong Kong harbor and dumped overboard. Many skilled workers, who refused to work for the Japanese and were unable to escape, have also perished in this manner.

Two factors make it particularly difficult for skilled workers to escape from Hong Kong. First, the Japanese guard them closely. Second, it costs at least $1,000 Chinese ($52.50 U. S.) to evacuate a worker from Hong Kong to the nearest factory town in the interior.

Since most workers did not receive the wages due them at the outbreak of the war, Japanese occupation found them with their reserves gone and facing starvation. Today, the wages of workers whose skills are needed by the Japanese, are carefully calculated to give them exactly enough to keep alive, and no more. Nevertheless, thousands of skilled workers have escaped from Hong Kong.

Most effective work as regards absorption of refugees from the occupied areas is being done by the Chinese Industrial Cooperatives. Operating on a small scale and utilizing local resources, the cooperatives, despite lack of funds, can at once provide the refugees with productive work.

John L. Lewis No Hero To British Miners

London, July 3 (ALN)—Efforts of the New York Times and other U. S. newspapers to make it appear that John L. Lewis is a "hero" to British miners were roundly condemned this week by Will Lawther, president of the Miners Federation of Great Britain, and Arthur Horner, president of the South Wales Miners Federation.

"Ninety-nine per cent of British miners have maintained that their prime duty is to produce coal for the war effort," Lawther stated. "Just as we condemn strikes here at home, so we resent any interference with production by miners elsewhere.

"The British and Russian miners are firmly linked together to crush fascism, and American miners should join with us."

While expressing support "for the basic demands of the American miners," Horner accused John L. Lewis of "utilizing their discontent to serve purposes contrary to the real interests of the labor movement."

Radio Unionists In Chile Offer to Hunt Axis Spies

SANTIAGO, July 3 (ALN)—Victor Labbe, president of the Union of Radio Telegraphers, affiliated with the Confederation of Chilean Workers (CTCh), last week offered President Rios the services of his union in locating illegal Axis radio stations, still functioning secretly here despite Chile's diplomatic break with the Axis.

Labbe also charged the editors of pro-Nazi Chilean newspapers with spreading Axis propaganda received from German short-wave radio stations in defiance of government regulations.

"We have already publicly stated that we refuse to cooperate with organizations or individuals who spread Nazi propaganda," Labbe said. "We have promised the government to ferret out all illegal radio or telegraphic activity.

Radio communication between the Axis and Chile works both ways, Labbe said. "The network of Nazi spies in Chile is in constant communication with its superiors through clandestine radio stations. If Germany sends U-boats to blockade our coasts, these secret stations will inform them of all movements of our merchant marine."

LACKS CONTROLS

Chile, Labbe reported, lacks an effective system of radio control. "The official radio control service has neither sufficient equipment nor personnel to monitor the air waves," he said. "The Direction of Electrical Services is in a similar position. It has three operators in its control department, who, despite efficiency and good intentions, cannot do the work of 20 operators.

"The U. S. has a veritable army controlling radio broadcasts. Brazil has decreased sabotage through an efficient system of air control, by other American countries. If and its example has been followed the work of spies is not discovered and prevented by an air police, Chile will experience many disagreeable surprises.

"Our union offers the government as many operators as it needs to put an end to the subersive work of the Nazis."

Canadians Back Win-War Policy of CIO

Toronto, July 2 (ALN)—Canadian unions affiliated with the CIO give full support to that organization's policy of opposing strikes in wartime, Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor (CIO and national unions), declared here this week at an emergency conference attended by 524 delegates from 114 Ontario CIO locals.

"Labor has kept its no-strike pledge," Conroy said. "The current steel stoppages in Galt and Hamilton were imposed on the workers by the employers and government. This is being used by some to justify sympathetic strike action by labor.

"But this is not an employers' war. It is a people's war. Shall we let Hitler go while we concentrate our fight against the employers? We have to see to it that this war is won."

"The workers in Europe are considering going on strike as soon as invasion starts, yet some here want to do the same thing and so nullify that action," said Roy England, president of Ford Local 200, United Automobile Workers.

A-B-C Of New Withholding Tax Law

1. The new "pay-as-you-go" or 20 per cent withholding tax is not a new tax or an additional tax but a new method of collecting your income tax. The new law does not change income tax rates.

2. Under the old system you paid income tax a year late on money you earned the previous year. Under the new "pay-as-you-go" method you pay income tax on 1943 income during 1943, bit by bit, pay day by pay day.

3. The new tax goes into effect July 1, 1943, and all payrolls beginning on or after July 1, 1943, are subject to the new law.

4. Every employee should immediately fill out a Withholding Exemption Certificate and file with his employer. This exemption certificate will tell whether you are married or single and how many dependents you have. Unless this certificate is filed 20% deduction will be taken from your gross pay.

5. Exemptions are $12.00 for the taxpayer, another $12.00 for a wife, and $6.00 each for children.

In the case of a married man with three children, exemptions would total $42.00. If the taxpayer's wage was $76.00 per week, he would pay 20 per cent tax on $34.00, which would amount to $6.80.

6. The new 20 per cent withholding tax includes the present five per cent victory tax.

7. Employers will turn deductions over to the Collector of Internal Revenue with their quarterly returns; or if the employer has enough employees to make aggregate deductions from all employees, $100.00 or more each month, he will deposit that money monthly in a bank which will turn it over to the Treasury of the United States. In either event, this money stands to the taxpayers' credit as pre-payment of income tax. The employers will not withhold the five per cent victory tax after the last payroll that begins in June, 1943. All payrolls beginning on or after July 1, 1943, are subject to the new law, and the victory tax is included in the 20 per cent withheld.

8. Employers are permitted to use the "wage bracket tables" which are written in the law setting out definite amounts to be withheld each pay day. For example, in the case of a married employee with three dependents whose weekly wage is anywhere between $50.00 and $60.00, the employer is permitted to withhold the flat amount of $2.60 per week instead of requiring him to figure the exact amount for each individual employee. The amount of tax withheld may be slightly different from an exact computation at 20 per cent, but if a little less than the actual 20 per cent is withheld, the taxpayer may have a small balance to pay March 15. If the withholding is a trifle more than the exact 20 per cent, the employee will have a credit coming to him March 15.

9. For a majority of taxpayers, that is people with incomes upon which tax amounts to $50.00 or less for either 1942 or 1943, the whole tax for the smaller year would be forgiven.

10. Shortly after the close of the year, or with the last pay if you stop working before the end of the year, your employer is required to give you a receipt showing the total amount of tax deducted and withheld from your pay during the year. If the amount withheld during the year amounts to more than the tax owed, any overpayment of taxes will be refunded or credited. If you change employment, your employer is required to give you a receipt showing the total amount of tax withheld with your last pay.

11. There is no withholding tax from the pay of (1) personnel of the armed services, (2) ministers of the gospel, (3) all persons engaged in domestic service, and (4) all persons engaged in agricultural service. These people will be required to pay their income tax out of their current income by filing a return showing their estimated tax, and pay such tax quarterly.

No Picnic in Washington

Legislative Jobs Tough Unless Workers at Home Back Up Representatives

By FRED D'AVILA

WASHINGTON, July 3—If you think that hobnobbing with Congressmen and convincing them how to vote is easy, you ought to come to Washington to take one of the jobs of the 14 legislative representatives employed here by CIO Unions. You'd soon find out that the most persuasive argument in the world, or the most engaging personality short of Clark Gable's or Ann Sheridan's, wouldn't get you the flick of an eyebrow unless you had the boys and girls at home to back you up with letters and telegrams and personal visits to convince Congressmen that they should support measures that the CIO believes will help to win the war.

That's the picture the 14 legislative representatives painted this week. Seven of them, by the way, are women, and they are just as certain as the men that "the smile that wins" is just a dud check to most Congressmen. You can cross your legs, powder your nose, and use Ipana tooth paste, and it won't make a bit of difference—the Congressmen want to see the votes.

The 14 CIO legislative representatives figure that, collectively, they do as much worrying about what is happening in Congress as any 14,000 average citizens. Their reading must be extensive, their reactions quick, and their decisions sound.

COWAN HEADS STAFF

Head of the legislative staff, and in a tie as dean in point of age, is Nathan Cowan, the national CIO legislative director. He's matched in age by T. R. Owens of the United Rubber Workers, and Owens in turn says that he matches Russ Nixon of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers Union as dean in point of service.

Others on the staff, according to Cowan, include: Miss Alice Balmer, youngest in point of years, of UOPWA; Mrs. Eleanor Fowler, Women's Auxiliaries; Hoyt Haddock and Bjorne Halling, CIO Maritime Committee; Miss Eleanor Nelson, secretary-treasurer, United Federal Workers; Philip Porter, UAW; Mrs. Jessica Rhine, MM&SW; Mrs. Elizabeth Sasuly, UCAPAWA; Mrs. Frances Sayler, assistant to Nixon; Miss Jerry Shandros, ACA; and Jack Zucker, United Shoe Workers. Cowan has two hard-working staff members in Miss Josephine Carney and Mrs. Ula Glenn.

As might be expected, most of the quips of the Congressmen are directed in a friendly way at the women representatives, who are asked, for instance, if they can repair radios, if they ever worked in a mine, etc.

NO RABBIT TRICKS

But no one—not even a charming CIO lady with the latest type of hair-do—can pull any rabbits out of the hat—take it from the girls.

"Congressmen are just as hard-boiled with us as they are with the men when it comes to making actual decisions," the women representatives say. "Unless they've heard from the people back home, we girls don't draw any more water than the men do."

The jobs of the legislative representatives aren't simply visiting Congressmen and attempting to convince them of the desirability of voting for the CIO's win-the-war program.

FOLKS AT HOME COUNT

That's a major part of the work, but also to be considered are the responsibilities of answering information requested by friendly Congressmen and other government employes, and of keeping a running fire of exchange with reserves back home—Joe and Mary War Worker—who need to know what's going on, and whose activity, or lack of it, is often the deciding factor in how a Congressman will vote.

Just how vital the visits and letters and telegrams are is illustrated by the following story, told by one of the legislative representatives:

"I went to see Congressman X about a bill and he was cold as ice.

"Two days later I went to see Congressman Y, and he was as cordial as the master of ceremonies used to be at night clubs in 1930. He couldn't do enough for me. The windup was his statement that he'd heard from the boys back home—and plenty—and he knew that I was going to tell them about his attitude."

It all adds up to this: You're paying good money to keep CIO legislative representatives on the job at Washington, and if you want to get your money's worth out of them, you've got to back them up. Your wires and letters and talks with your Congressmen PLUS the representatives' personal contacts here can do the job. It's up to you folks back home—how about it?

Remmeber the last Congressional election — how a large number of anti-labor, anti-victory Congressmen were elected largely because workers didn't vote?

Most of the workers who didn't vote were unable to do so because they hadn't registered, because they didn't know the technical requirements in new areas they had moved into, because they hadn't lived in the new places long enough.

It's not too early now to start taking the steps that will make it possible for all of us to vote in the next elections.

Find out what registration requirements are in your area. Put your union's legislative committee to work on this immediately. Get your membership and your friends and neighbors to thinking about the next elections.

If enough workers and enough of the plain people vote, we can clear out the anti-labor, anti-FDR gang that has the stranglehold on Congress now.

Keep score for '44—and start mobilizing the voters now.

UE Pamphlet Gives Real Lowdown on Profits

WASHINGTON, June 26—If you want a condensed version of the real lowdown on juggling of corporation profit figures, "must" reading is the recently issued 95-page, pocket size booklet, "How Corporations Conceal Profits." The booklet was published by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, with two views in mind:

1. To debunk the notion held by many union members that because employers' financial reports are expressed in dollars and cents they represent exact calculations and are absolutely honest.

2. To give organizers, business agents and active members facts that will help them understand the complete figures with which they sometimes are confronted.

"In unorganized plants," the booklet states, "the organizers invariably encounter backward workers who feel that they shouldn't ask for higher wages because 'the company isn't making any money.' If they knew the truth, they wouldn't talk that way, because companies that don't make profits are few and far between."

That it pays high dividends to "know the score" in connection with profit statements is proved by several instances listed in the booklet.

One organizer experienced in analyzing company reports, secured a 10 cents an hour increase for the workers he represented rather than the five cents the company had previously declared was its maximum limit, simply because the organizer was able to prove that the firm's own figures showed it could afford to pay twice as much as it had offered.

Labor-Employer Committees In 2,100 Plants

Washington, July 3—Extension of Labor-Management Production Comittees to 2,100 war plants employing four and a half million workers, through the addition of 200 committees, was announced here this week by the War Production Board.

Among the 200 new committees, 141 have CIO, AFL and other national union connections, and 12 have local independent unions. Among the big CIO unions represented are the United Rubber Workers, United Automobile Workers, United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, United Steelworkers, Shipyard Workers, Farm Equipment Workers and International Woodworkers of America.

CIO Renews No-Strike Vow, Maps Political Action To Aid War

Sun Ship Goes CIO; Union Wins Tight Tossup

CHESTER, Pa., July 10—This city's biggest National Labor Relations Board election was won by the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers this week as the NLRB decided, after counting a tight vote, that the IUMSWA was the winner. In an election that held labor-conscious residents breathless for almost a week, the IUMSWA finally polled 12,835 votes to 11,922 for a company union and 865 for no union.

In a count of 61 disputed votes, the CIO union picked up 10 extra to make the final victorious total. All it needed was eight of the challenged votes to be victorious.

Meanwhile the IUMSWA chalked up another major victory, at the Dravo Construction Corp., at Neville Island, near Pittsburgh. Among 12,500 workers in the shipyard, the vote from those eligible was:

CIO	3025
No union	2845

In a separate election for welders, the IUMSWA won 813 votes to 495 for an "independent" welders organization, and 406 for no union. A run-off election will be necessary to decide the result, with the IUMSWA confident of winning.

White Collar Workers Storm Capital to Lay Problems Before Congress

WASHINGTON, July 10—Something new in delegations to this city came in this week with a crowd of 150 Negro and white workers brought down by the United Office and Professional Workers.

The something new was the fact that the delegation represented both organized and unorganized workers, and the fact that it was the first time the white collar workers have laid their problems and their win-the-war program on the line to the Congressmen and to Federal officials.

Taking President Roosevelt's warning that the white collar worker usually has a fixed wage and small chance of raising it without organization, the union and non-union people in town this week spent most of their time on the living cost question.

They had an interview with Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, who assured them that their program was the program of President Roosevet and pleaded earnestly with them to spread it around among their fellow-workers and neighbors in every community.

Stimulated by the CIO Executive Board meeting, which emphatically urged the same line of action on all workers and plain people everywhere, the UOPWA delegation visited several Congressmen here and made plans to spread their work out in their home areas during the Congressional recess.

This point was also made to the delegates in speeches from Rep. Marcantonio of N. Y., Scanlon of Pa., and Klein and Celler, N. Y. Marcantonio spoke particularly on the significance of the CIO Board's politcal action decisions, urging every delegate to make their execution his No. 1 job when he got back to his home city.

Bevin Thanks CIO for Gift Of $100,000

Washington, July 10—CIO President Philip Murray this week received from Ernest Bevin, minister of labor for Great Britain, sincere thanks for a gift of $100,000 from CIO unions to be used to provide rest homes for women munitions workers.

A cable to Murray read:

"Have today had the great pleasure of receiving a magnificent gift of $100,000 through Mr. Cruger of the British War Relief Society of USA to be used for the provision of rest houses for our women munition workers. We are deeply grateful for this great act of comradeship of your membership. Ever grateful."

The $100,000 is the first part transmitted to Great Britain of half a million dollars contributed by American labor to build 10 new war relief projects for British workers, according to the CIO War Relief Committee.

New Housing Units

Washington, July 10—Some 230,500, new housing units for war workers were completed during the first five months of 1943, according to the National Housing Administration.

TAKING THE DECK: President Joseph Curran of the Natl. Maritime Union does just that at the NMU's fourth constitutional convention, held this week in New York City. Curran is speaking from the S. S. United Nations—a replica of a Liberty Ship like those that NMU members are keeping sailing to defeat the Axis.

NMU Convention 'Beams' Program For Victory

NEW YORK, July 10—The men who keep 'em sailing through all the hell the Nazi subs and Stukas can dish out had their convention here this week—and heard themselves and their union praised from every source in the country—even the daily newspapers.

From President Roosevelt, the men and women of the National Maritime Union, CIO, got a letter thanking them for their heroic conduct in one of the most dangerous theaters of war, praising them for re-affirming their no-strike pledge, and noting that some 12,000 NMU members wear torpedo pins.

From CIO President Murray, they got a wire from Joseph Curran and Ferdinand Smith, president and secretary, expressing deep regret that the CIO Board meeting going on at the same time kept him from the convention. "The whole nation knows of the heroism of the men who keep the ships sailing to our armed forces and our allies," he wired.

"The CIO is proud that its ranks include such men among the millions of workers who are giving everything they have to win this great war for freedom in a world free from fascism."

In addition to messages of praise and greeting, the NMU men and women heard speeches from national labor leaders of both CIO and AFL, from the Ambassador of China, from War Shipping officials and Congressmen, and were honored by a visit from Paul Robeson, great Negro artist and fighter for freedom, who is an honorary member of NMU.

LEADING MARINE UNION

On the achievement side, the union reviewed its growth from a struggling organization that had to fight shipowners, police, finks, scabs, stoolpigeons and labor spies sent into their rank, to top place as the leading maritime union in the U. S.

Keynote of the convention was the union's search for more ways of serving the country and the United Nations in the war of survival. In this spirit, the demand of NMU women—all with experience at sea—that they be allowed to ship out again received the full support of the men and made a two days' wonder in the press.

In the same way, the union's demand for a second land front in Europe now, for international labor unity, for an end to Congressional sabotage of the war and of President Roosevelt's leadership, and for all-out support of the CIO, of President Murray and the no-strike pledge, were all beamed at one target—victory.

The newspapers covering the convention handled it with respect. Perhaps the knowledge that these men daily risk their lives for the U. S., including its newspaper publishers, was the cause. Whatever it was, it worked—even the rat Pegler was afraid to squeal about the men of the NMU while they met in convention.

Army Cheers First Labor USO Club

Philadelphia, July 10.—The Nation's first USO Labor Plaza was enthusiastically opened this week by 2,000 cheering soldiers, sailors, marines and their girls.

Built, equipped and operated by trade unions, the Labor Plaza got off to a memorable start with ceremonies under a starlight summer sky, and with members of the CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods justly proud of the fact that it took them just 13 days to construct and equip the Plaza.

But behind the scenes, getting the Plaza started was a real struggle. While the first part—securing the necessary labor from the AFL Building Trades and the money for equipment from the CIO—was easy enough, there was some difficulty convincing the Mayor that the city should spend $5,000 to purchase construction material.

Your Homework On Congress— How To Do It

Washington, July 10—"Congress Comes Home"—and what you can do to make his return profitable for the war and for the workers—is CIO's newest political action leaflet, off the press today.

The leaflet tells in one-two-three style the steps you should take to organize community action groups on the lines laid down by the special CIO board meeting here this week.

It shows how to get community councils started, how to get your local labor, church, fraternal, women's auxiliaries, civic and business groups active in seeing to it that your Congressman learns what's going on among the victory-minded voters.

Congress Comes Home, CIO publication No. 85, can be ordered from Publicity Dept., CIO, 718 Jackson Pl., Washington 6, D. C. Price: 100 for $1.00, 500 for $4.25, 1,000 for $7.00. Order quickly—paper is rationed.

1st Job—Crush Axis, Says N. Y. State CIO

New York, July 10—Every program put forth by labor must be measured not in the interests of labor alone but by "the grueling test of support of our Commander-in-Chief and the needs of the whole Nation to fight their war to victory," the N. Y. State CIO Council Executive Board declared this week.

Pointing out that "forces within our Nation have chosen this decisive moment to subordinate the war against the Axis to an offensive against the Roosevelt administration, organized labor, and our national unity," the board criticized passage of the Smith-Connally bill, the anti-subsidy and anti-price control of reactionaries in Congress, and the race riots which "represent another victory won by appeaser and defeatist forces in the offensive against the unity of the home front."

America Must Solve Job Problem—Eby

Silver Bay, N. Y., July 10—If democracy is to be preserved in this country, we must solve the problem of full employment which war workers and soldiers will demand after conclusion of the world conflict. That was the main point of a speech made this week by Kermit Eby, assistant director of the CIO's Research and Education Dept., to a YMCA conference here this week.

"The organized workers of America," Eby said, "are convinced that an economy which can utilize its entire manpower in war time can also maintain them at work in peace time.

34-33 Senate Vote Saves Roosevelt Subsidy Program

WASHINGTON, July 10—In a last-minute reversal of several previous hunger-bloc votes, the Senate this week voted by 34 to 33 to permit the government to continue using subsidies for the price rollback on food costs.

In the vote, which ended a week of twists and reversals, the Senate continued the life of the Commodity Credit Corp. and left it without bans on subsidies for the rollback on food items already in effect or pending.

Earlier in the week, a House ban on subsidy payments to make the rollback possible had been vetoed by President Roosevelt and the veto sustained by 154 to 228. Following that, the bill was sent to the Senate, where the ban on subsidies was again slapped on by 26 to 28. This week's final vote permitting subsidies ends the Congressional finagling at least for the duration of the recess.

Plenty of wreckage of the price-control program was still left behind by the Congress before it took its vacation, however. OPA's funds for enforcement of price control are cut from $177,000,000 to $155,000,000. This is more serious even than it looks, since $60,000,000 of the appropriation is earmarked for local boards and the cut must come entirely from the enforcement end of the agency.

GRADE LABELING OUT

In addition, Congress wiped out grade labeling, which would have protected the buyer from quality chiseling and from hidden price boosts, and tried to tie OPA's hands by making it difficult if not impossible to hire its staff from any other source besides businessmen.

Though the last Senate vote saves Congress from taking the complete rap for busting the win-the-war price rollback campaign, the voters back home will have plenty of questions—all based on the record—to ask their Congressmen on price control when the statesmen return for the recess.

Boost Steel Wages To Match Increased Output, USA Urges

WASHINGTON, July 10—A wage policy for the steel industry that will guarantee increased earnings for increased production was recommended by the Executive Board of the United Steelworkers of America, which concluded sessions here this week.

Pledging that increased production would be forthcoming in the interests of winning the war, the USA also recommended:

1. That the National War Labor Board should establish a national steel panel which would adjudicate all wage disputes in the steel industry.

2. That the panel establish and apply the basic principle for the entire industry of equal pay for all employes performing the same type of work.

"Under the present set-up of regional boards there is a strong danger that the wage pattern in the industry will be broken down into regional patterns with the accompanying development of inequalities and unfair wage differentials," the USA warned.

PLEDGE AID TO WAR

Again pledging to do everything possible to increase the production of steel, the USA Executive Board recommended:

1. That each steel plant have an active, functioning labor-management committee.

2. That the 48-hour week ordered by the War Manpower Commission be universally complied with.

3. That some "incentive" systems now in operation which tend to discourage increased production be altered "so that they actually will encourage increased production by assuring proportionate increased earnings to the steel workers for increased production."

The USA urged that in the interest of steel production the War Production Board and the WLB should immediately convene a collective bargaining conference of representatives from the USA and the steel corporations to deal with these problems.

St. Louis Unites To Fight Rise In Prices

St. Louis, Mo., July 10—More than 500 delegates of unions of the CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods, as well as citizens' and consumer groups, met here this week in a high-spirited "Roll Back the Prices Conference" and adopted a six-point program for community action to compel Congress to enable President Roosevelt to carry out his price control program.

Declaring that the fight for price control is a fight to win the war, the six-point program called for:

(1) Immediate circulation of petitions to Congress, among union members and the general public, summarizing the demand for the necessary price control action;

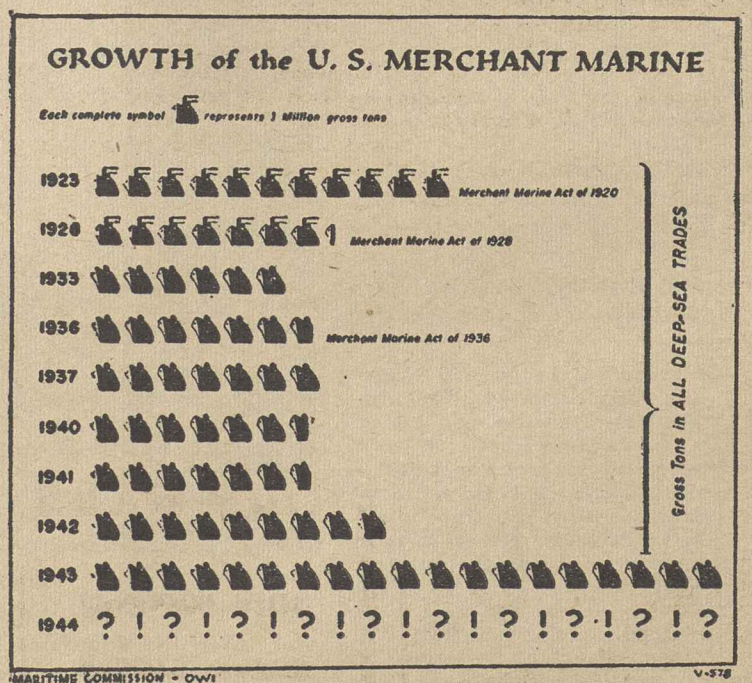
(2) A warning to Senators and Congressmen that they would be judged at the polls on their record on price control issues;

(3) The use of union funds for the fight;

(4) Use of local union headquarters and committees for the receipt of citzens' complaints of price violations and price policing;

(5) Setting up committees under the leadership of the united labor to carry on the action campaign on a ward basis in the city and township basis in the county; and

(6) An approach by the united labor and representatives of other organizations to the three principal farm groups in Missouri for joint action on adequate price control, adequate returns for the farmer, and production of food for victory.



This OWI chart shows the growth of the U. S. Merchant Marine in the past 20 years. In 1943, CIO and AFL shipyard workers are expected to double the gross tonnage of shipping over 1942.

CIO Means Business On Political Action, Board Shows

WASHINGTON, July 10—The CIO means business on the political front, and will take the lead in mobilizing all citizens behind win-the-war political forces. That was made plain this week as the CIO Executive Board and President Philip Murray created a special committee to build a labor league for action now and in 1944.

In setting up the committee, which is headed by Sidney Hillman, with R. J. Thomas as secretary, and Sherman H. Dalrymple, Rubber Workers; Albert J. Fitzgerald, Electrical Workers, and either Van A. Bittner or David J. McDonald, Steelworkers, as members, it was made clear that this was not a move toward a third party. Murray expressed his own opposition to a third party at this time, as did Hillman and other speakers.

First move of the new political committee was to announce preliminary conferences in Chicago and Philadelphia, where plans would be laid with the local CIO people for involving all citizens in the battle for win-the-war political action.

At the same time, President Murray declared that the purpose of the committee would be to build a new labor league for political action that would cooperate with all other groups.

URGE UNITED ACTION

In addition to setting up the new committee, the CIO Board approved a resolution calling for broad united action not only by all labor but to involve farmers, white-collar workers, business, women's auxiliaries and other groups as well.

First step toward this program was urged by the CIO in a plea to AFL and Brotherhood unions to meet together as quickly as possible to map out unified action in support of President Roosevelt and his war leadership.

Immediate action was urged by the board to rally wide popular attention in all communities to the record of the local Congressmen and Senators. The present recess, which this week sent the Congressmen home for a nine-week session of pulse-taking, must be exploited to the utmost, the board said.

To make sure that this job of involving everyone in the communities is done quickly and efficiently, President Murray appointed and the board approved another political action committee consisting of George F. Addes, UAW-CIO; David J. McDonald, USA-CIO; Julius Emspak, UE; and James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer.

The duty of this committee will be to promote the local and regional conferences called for in the resolution adopted on legislative work.

CIO Renews No-Strike Pledge, Maps Political Action to Aid War

WASHINGTON, July 10—In a firm determination to take every step needed to win the war, the CIO, meeting this week in emergency Executive Board session, reiterated the no-strike pledge and outlined a course of political action as labor's answer to the defeatists and the home front wrecking gang in Congress.

Sharply hitting out at "the labor-baiting and administration-hating forces" that passed the bill with the aid of John L. Lewis' coal strikes, the board declared that despite disappointment at the overriding of the veto, "we affirm the determination of all affiliated CIO unions to maintain our no-strike pledge," and added:

"Because of our deep appreciation of the issues involved in this war we shall not tolerate or permit any interruption or stoppage of work."

The board, in expressing its gratitude to President Roosevelt and to CIO President Murray for their leadership in the fight against the anti-war bill, also pledged a finish fight for the repeal of the measure.

MAJOR POLITICAL STEP

On the home front, the board undertook a major political step with the setting up of a special committee headed by Sidney Hillman and R. J. Thomas to mobilize support for a win-the-war political campaign beamed at 1944.

In announcing formation of the committee, Murray expressed his opposition to third party proposals. He said the committee would explore the possibility of forming a labor political league to mobilize political support behind progressive candidates.

This step was backed in two resolutions calling for a joint CIO-AFL-Brotherhood political conference and urging all CIO unions to take the lead in setting up community groups from all types of citizens for local pressure on the Congressmen.

URGE QUICK ACTION

Quick action during the Congress recess, which starts this week and runs through to Labor Day, was urged through these community councils. Such action, the board said, will make sure that "after its return to Washington in September Congress will be more attuned to the needs of the nation."

Economic action on the home front was demanded to achieve the rollback of prices to 1942 levels, involving use of subsidy payments to make the rollback possible and a further demand that Congress live up to its commitment when labor accepted wage stabilization.

If Congress fails to make the rollback effective, "organized labor must, under such conditions, receive an adjustmnet in wages to make up for the loss which it has incurred due to the rise in the cost of living between May, 1942, and the present date," the board stated.

As a measure of immediate and post-war benefit to the workers and to soldiers, the board urged full support for the amendments to the Social Security Act offered by Senator Wagner, Senator Murray and Representative Dingell and now before Congress.

IMPROVED MACHINERY

"The bill sets up an improved machinery for finding jobs," the resolution said. "It provides wide protection for former members of the armed services not now covered by any legislation. It greatly improves the programs of old age and survivors insurance and unemployment compensation which at present have serious weaknesses."

For these reasons, plus the greatly increased health, maternity, disability and public assistance systems in the new bill, the board applauded the bill and urged "that no untimely delays in its enactment should open the way to a repetition of the emergency of 1932."

Turning again to the immediate problems of the obstacles laid in the way of winning the war by the defeatists in Congress, the board took up the crippling rider to the National Labor Relations Board appropriation passed last week. Under this rider, openly sought by AFL leaders, particularly John P. Frey of the Metal Trades Department, the NLRB cannot set aside backdoor contracts of three months or more standing.

LEGALIZES CO. UNIONS

As the board pointed out, the rider legalizes company unionism and collusive agreements, and actually will hit AFL unions as hard as it hits the CIO. Frey's intrigue in getting the rider through involved a deal with Congressmen who voted to override the Smith-Connally bill, offering them AFL's forgiveness for that if they supported the rider.

The board urged repeal of the rider and instructed CIO national officers to move quickly in the attempt to protect basic rights of workers to join unions of their own choosing.

Reflecting again the CIO's determination to brush aside obstacles in the way to victory, the board unanimously passed a resolution condemning the mob violence aganist Negroes and other workers as a direct aid to Hitler and urging the President to take action personally to put a stop to it.

SOLIDARITY WITH NEGROES

"We express our solidarity again with our Negro fellow citizens and fellow workers, and renew our fight against discrimination and persecution of any of our people as a necessary part of the common fight against the enemies of our country and of the United Nations," the board said.

In a final resolution, the board urged serious attention to the problems of post-war planning, laying down a series of objectives for after the victory, including full employment at decent living wages, real security, full production, democratic action by all Americans and cooperation of the U. S. with other nations to ensure these objectives.

Anti-Negro Riots Block Victory, Aid Axis—CIO Says

WASHINGTON, July 10—Riots and mob violence against Negroes and other minorities are "seriously endangering" the war, the CIO Executive Board said in a resolution passed at the special executive board meeting here this week.

The resolution was presented by Willard S. Townsend, president of the Transport Service Employes and secretary of the CIO Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination.

"Labor must recognize that the forces which foment racial strife are identical with those that would destroy the organization of the labor movement," the resolution said. "As a means of strengthening democracy and for its very self-preservation, labor must wage an all-out attack on these disintegrating forces and deal resolutely with the basic causes in its day-to-day operations."

Urging an overall program by Federal agencies to deal with the crisis, the board called on President Roosevelt to assert his leadership and to give firm orders to the Justice Department and other agencies for arrest and severe punishment of those guilty of inciting the violence, including the Ku Klux Klan and Gerald L. K. Smith, Detroit Fascist.

Tying in the fight against discrimination with the fight against Hitler, the board declared: "We express our solidarity again with our Negro fellow citizens and fellow workers, and renew our fight against discrimination and persecution of any of our people as a necessary part of our common fight against the enemies of our country and of the United Nations."

Keep Your Eye On Congress

Your Congressman is coming home this week for a vacation that will last until Labor Day.

When he gets home, don't waste a minute in looking him up and inviting him around to your union and to your community council. Ask him about his record and about the work he did since January.

Get your shopmates and your friends and your neighbors together in an old-fashioned public meeting and talk things over with them and with the Congressmen.

Make him wake up to the fact—if he needs waking up—that there's a war on that you, the plain American citizen and voter, want won as quickly as possible.

President Murray of the CIO wants this done. The President of the United States wants it done—so that Congress will help him win the war rather than blocking him.

It's up to you, the war worker and the plain citizen—to do this job—because its your job and your duty.

'Steady As She Goes'

The CIO And Rollbacks

The CIO can claim much credit for helping to bring an inflation-crazy Congress somewhat to its senses in its closing days.

It was nip and tuck as to whether Congress would completely destroy the administration's program for controlling and rolling back living costs, or whether it would allow it a little leeway for checking inflation.

The violent and persistent fight against food price subsidies nearly deprived the government of the only means whereby it could roll back prices—and subsidies were only saved by a one-vote margin in the Senate.

The CIO, from the first, has led in the campaign for subsidies. It has pointed out that in the price control law passed by Congress last October, both prices and wages were supposed to be stabilized as of Sept. 15, 1942.

Wages were stabilized under the Little Steel formula, but living costs rose at least a further 9 percent in the year following the date of this wage stabilization—and food costs have risen far more than that.

The CIO has therefore long called for a rollback of living costs to the September 1942 levels. But when President Roosevelt set the wheels in motion for such a rollback, he ran up against the bitterest opposition from the majority of Congress.

When the CIO executive board met in Washington, it looked as if Congress would succeed in blocking any rollback of prices by forbidding the use of subsidies.

The board therefore adopted a resolution authorizing the CIO officers to move for revision of the Little Steel formula, to adjust wages to present price levels, "in the event Congress prevents the use of subsidies and thereby prevents the rolling back of prices."

The logic of the CIO's position is inescapable. It accepts the principle of wage stabilization and places first emphasis on the prevention of inflation. But if wages are frozen, while prices continue to rise, that is the worst kind of inflation—placing a direct and insufferable burden on those who can least afford to pay.

The CIO's first demand is therefore for the rigid control of prices and the rolling back of living costs to the level at which wages are stabilized. But if this is not done, labor has no alternative but to demand wage adjustments to the higher price levels.

Threat to Wagner Act

A sorry example of cutting one's nose to spite one's face is the action of certain AFL leaders in pushing through Congress a rider to undermine that charter of labor's rights, the National Labor Relations Act.

This rider forbids the Labor Relations Board to outlaw collusive agreements which deprive workers of the right to choose their own collective bargaining representatives.

It was promoted in a spirit of jurisdictional rivalry with the CIO, to protect certain "sweetheart" agreements of which some AFL unions have been guilty.

But its net effect will be to damage all bona fide unions, whether CIO or AFL, and to deprive all American workers of one of the most important protections of the Wagner act.

For one of the main purposes of this act is to assure to all workers the right to choose their own union representatives through democratic elections. But this right is destroyed if the Board cannot dissolve collusive agreements imposed from above in violation of the free choice of the employes concerned.

The chief beneficiaries of this spiteful measure will be company unions, whose wholesale reestablishment it invites and which it protects against Board action.

That is why the CIO board has voted for a campaign to repeal this vicious legislation, as a measure aimed to weaken or destroy the whole National Labor Relations Act.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

THE CIO executive board met in Washington as Congress was preparing to recess after one of the most scandalous sessions in its history.

The patriotic restraint and responsibility of the CIO gathering was in shining contrast to the irresponsible politics and outright disruptions that disgraced the nation's highest law-making body.

Consider the situation with which Congress confronted the CIO and American working people generally.

It had just passed the Smith-Connally bill over the President's veto. This is one of the most provocative and insulting anti-labor bills ever to be passed.

In addition, Congress blocked and nearly succeeded in wrecking every administration attempt to control inflation and to roll back prices.

By opposing subsidies, by crippling OPA and by dozens of other actions, the majority of Congress voted to raise living costs ever further beyond the reach of frozen wages.

Starting with its rejection of the President's $25,000 salary limit, Congress again and again coupled its persecution of labor and its disregard for the interests of low-income groups with the most glaring class favoritism for wealthy profiteers.

Throughout the whole session, the Congressional majority of reactionary Republicans and polltax Democrats sacrificed national war unity to administration-baiting factional politics.

It almost seemed as if the majority of Congress were seeking to bait labor into striking, into joining the inflationary scramble promoted by Congress, and into general class warfare, regardless of effects on the war effort.

But fortunately for our country and our victory, American working people are made of sterner stuff and have clearer vision than the petty self-seeking politicians who have played ducks and drakes with America's war interests.

The CIO executive board meeting served notice that American labor refuses to be provoked—that it continues to set victory ahead of everything else, and will act accordingly.

The first act of the CIO board was emphatically to reaffirm its no-strike pledge, despite the strike provocations of the Smith-Connally act.

Expressing labor's appreciation of Pres. Roosevelt's attempted veto, the CIO pledged to him the complete and unstinted support which is due the Commander-in-Chief of our embattled nation.

In this again, the CIO's stand is in shining contrast to the attitude of the administration-hating politicians in Congress, who have done everything possible to undermine the President's war leadership.

If public opinion polls are any indication, the CIO is much closer in tune with the majority of the American people in this than are their supposed representatives in Congress.

But the CIO did not take the Smith-Connally act lying down. It set the wheels in motion for protecting the workers' rights against this vicious law, for challenging its constitutionality, and for a vigorous movement for its complete repeal.

Every other action of the CIO board was also marked by a similar realization that labor's first interest is in winning the war, and that a militant defense of labor's rights must be geared to this main aim.

But Congress will have rendered one service to labor and the country, if its recent actions shock American working people into more effective political action than they have taken in the past

The CIO board reacted to the challenge of Congress, not only by passing resolutions but also by taking steps for organized and united political action to make such resolutions effective.

It urgently renewed its proposals to the AFL and railroad Brotherhood for a program of joint action on the legislative and political field—looking to joint committees on a local, state-wide and national basis, and to a national conference of all sections of labor and other sympathetic groups.

At the same time, the CIO board established a committee to report back shortly on the possibility of forming some kind of a broad labor political league, to mobilize all labor and progressive voters for the election of real win-the-war candidates throughout the nation.

The CIO has long realized that labor is fighting with only one hand, if it does not supplement its industrial efforts with political action—and the recent events particularly have driven this lesson home. This action of the CIO board therefore holds promise of being a forward step of the most far-reaching significance.

Full Text of Major Resolutions Passed by CIO Executive Board

The CIO NEWS this week prints the full text of major resolutions adopted by the National CIO Executive Board, CIO's reaffirmation of its no-strike pledge, CIO's all-out support for the win-the-war policies of the Roosevelt Administration, CIO's demand for price rollbacks through subsidies or wage adjustments to meet higher living costs, and CIO's condemnation of efforts to weaken the Natl. Labor Relations Act, the backbone of American economic democracy. Several other resolutions, for which space was not available, will be carried in next week's issue.

Hit Smith-Connally Act; Keep Pledge Not to Strike

Whereas, (1) The Congress of the United States approved the Smith-Connally Act over the veto of President Roosevelt, who specifically warned Congress that this legislation actually created new dangers to the war effort;

(2) The labor-baiting and Administration hating forces in Congress enacted this vicious anti-labor measure to wreak vengeance for the acts of one individual who flouted the needs of the nation for continuous production of vital war materials, ignored the machinery established for the adjustment of all labor disputes in order to guarantee continuous production, and recklessly caused a national strike in the coal fields.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that:

1. Despite the disappointment which we experienced over the action taken by Congress in overriding the President's veto of the Smith-Connally Act, we affirm the determination of all the affiliated CIO organizations to maintain our no-strike pledge.

Because of our deep appreciation of the issues involved in this war we shall not tolerate or permit any interruption or stoppage of work. We express our commendation to President Murray, who immediately following the provocative action of Congress in overriding the President's veto, clearly and emphatically declared for the CIO that its firm no-strike policy shall continue.

2. We express our deep gratitude to President Roosevelt, our Commander-in-Chief, for his statesmanlike attitude in vetoing the Smith-Connally Act. By this act President Roosevelt demonstrated his understanding of the contribution being made by labor toward winning the war and that any blow against labor is a blow against the war effort.

We pledge to our Commander-in-Chief that we shall continue, as we have in the past, to give him our complete and unstinted support in our nation's struggle in this patriotic war.

3. The national officers of the CIO shall seek to obtain by executive or judicial interpretation of the various provisions of the Smith-Connally Act the necessary guarantees for our members that through the application of the act, the basic and constitutional rights of our membership will not be abridged.

4. The CIO hereby pledges itself to mobilize its entire membership and other sympathetic forces in the campaign to obtain the repeal of this vicious anti-war, labor-baiting Smith-Connally Act.

Roll Back Prices To Sept. '42 Level Or Hike Wages

Whereas, (1) President Roosevelt's veto message on the Commodity Credit and Anti-Subsidy bill has very clearly stated the issue confronting the nation to be as follows:

(a) Our wartime domestic economy must be stabilized and controlled in order to prevent inflation which would bring havoc to the low-income groups and to those with fixed incomes, such as the wives and dependents of soldiers and old age pensioners;

(b) The price control law of October 2, 1942, established a firm policy of stabilizing wages and prices as of the levels which existed on September 15, 1942. The National War Labor Board has held to its task in regard to the stabilization of wages. On the other hand, prices have not been stabilized, and as against the "Little Steel" formula which authorizes wage adjustments of 15 per cent to meet the increase in cost of living which had occurred from January 1, 1941, to May 15, 1942, there has been an additional increase between May, 1942, and May of this year of 9 per cent. Food costs have of course risen even more markedly.

(c) The cost of living must therefore be reduced through a roll back of prices, of important key commodities in the family market basket, to their level of September 15, 1942. This can be done only through the use of subsidies which would assure a fair price to the farmers for their produce together with incentive payments for increased farm production, a fair price to the middleman, and a roll back of retail prices to the consumers.

(d) Unless the roll back of prices to the September 15, 1942, level is accomplished, labor must be accorded relief for the increase in the cost of living which has occurred since that date. All that labor requests is that there be reestablished the reltaionship between wages and prices as existed on September 15, 1942, in accordance with the mandate of the law of the land.

FDR FOR ROLLBACK

(2) President Roosevelt has demonstrated his determination to carry through the mandate of the price control law of October 2, 1942, through the dismissal of Chester Davis, who had sought to undermine the roll back and subsidy program and through the veto of the Anti-subsidy bill which has been sustained by Congress.

(3) The United States Senate is again attempting to prevent the affecting of the price roll back program by amendments forbidding subsidies.

(4) In the face of continued increasing profits for corporations arising out of war production, it must be recognized that the living standards of the workers of the Nation have been depressed below that which prevailed in 1939 by reason of the continued rise in cost of living, the increased taxes on low-income groups, purchase of United States bonds and donations for Red Cross, war relief and for other war purposes.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED:

1. The Executive Board of the Congress of Industrial Organizations pledges its continued support to the program of our Commander-in-Chief in the vital struggle to prevent inflation and of controlling and stabilizing our wartime domestic economy.

2. The OPA must immediately embark upon a program of overall rationing and of strict enforcement of price levels by utilizing the assistance of labor organizations and other local groups of consumers and housewives through the imposition of severe penalties upon price violators and operators of black markets.

3. President Roosevelt has charted the course for the nation in demanding a roll back of prices to the level of September 15, 1942. This task must be accomplished—not at some distant future date but NOW. At least two billion dollars is necessary for this program to be effective. Any smaller appropriation is but a token gesture.

In the event Congress prevents the use of subsidies and thereby prevents the rolling back of prices, then the national officers of the CIO are hereby authorized and directed, on behalf of all of the affiliated CIO unions, to call upon President Roosevelt, Mr. Byrnes, the Director of Office of War Mobilization, and the National War Labor Board to revise the "Little Steel" formula so that wage adjustments may be made to bring wages up to the present level of prices.

Organized labor must, under such conditions, receive an adjustment in wages to make up for the loss which it has incurred due to the rise in the cost of living between May, 1943, and the present date.

Unite Labor to Fight for FDR's Win-War Program

Whereas, (1) We must recognize that those groups and individuals who seek to undermine the war effort or to wreak their vengeance upon President Roosevelt and the Administration regardless of the impact of such acts upon the war effort, have within recent months become bolder and are driving ahead both in and out of Congress, sowing the seeds of disunity, strangling through curtailed appropriations for essential war agencies such as the OPA, the NLRB and the OWI, enacting anti-labor legislation such as the Smith-Connally Act over the President's veto, and the vicious amendment to the National Labor Relations Act, and seeking to destroy our wartime domestic economy through the encouragement of inflation and the uncontrolled high cost of living.

(2) Organized labor which has been and must continue to be the backbone of support for the policies of our Commander-in-Chief, continues to act in separate groups rather than in a unified manner which in itself opens the door to the further activity of the enemies of our Nation and of organized labor.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED:

1. The CIO, in the face of the actual problems confronting the Nation, and the obvious dangers which lie ahead, and in the interest of obtaining a real effective labor unity, reaffirms its proposal to the AFL and to the Railroad Brotherhoods that:

(a) The heads of these organizations should imediately meet for the purpose of establishing a program of joint action on all issues directed toward an intensified prosecution of the war, the protection of organized labor aaginst its enemies, a fuller participation of labor in the war effort, and for a complete mobilization of the people in support of the war program of our Commander-in-Chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

(b) The heads of these organizations should seek to create joint committees on a local and statewide basis throughout the Nation to encourage joint action between labor and all other groups and organizations that desire to give their wholesome and complete support to the war program.

2. The Presidents of the CIO, the AFL and the Railroad Brotherhoods should convene a national conference of representatives of organized labor and other sympathetic groups and organizations in an endeavor to mobilize on a national basis the entire population to assure the successful prosecution of the war and the defeat of any effort of our enemies to undermine, weaken or sabotage the war policies of our Nation and of our Commander-in-Chief.

Such a conference should establish the means and procedure for local mobilization of the people in order that they may on an organized basis create the means for communicating to the Congressmen, as they return home during the coming recess and thereafter when they return to Congress, the determination of all true Americans to preserve our democratic institutions such as labor unions and to support our Commander-in-Chief in his challenge to the Nation for a more vigorous and affirmative prosecution of the war.

Extend Social Security

The improved program of social security offered by Senator Wagner, Senator Murray and Representative Dingell should receive prompt attention and action by Congress. These constructive proposals, if enacted, will aid the war effort now, and later help achieve full peace-time employment. Many of the plans and provisions have long been recommended by the CIO, which will give the bill wholehearted support.

The immediate post-war period will involve tremendous changes, much uncertainty and perhaps terrific unemployment. The burden of post-war readjustments must not be permitted to fall too heavily on any family.

MUST HAVE JOBS

The millions of soldiers and war workers must be provided jobs, but if efforts to that end fail they must be assured an adequate income. Prompt enactment of the measure will give proof that the Nation intends to carry out the expressed goal of ending want.

The bill sets up an improved machinery for finding jobs. It provides wide protection for former members of the armed service not now covered by any legislation. It greatly improves the programs of old age and survivors insurance and unemployment compensation which at present have serious weaknesses.

It launches a new program of health insurance which will make the wonders of modern medicine avaiable to all our people. It provides benefits during permanent disability, for shorter periods of illness, and at maternity.

IMPROVED FEDERAL SYSTEM

Through an improved system of Federal grants, it makes possible more adequate public assistance by states and localities. It wisely provides for a Federal unified system shaped to the needs of modern conditions.

The CIO hails this important result of the efforts of labor to move toward real social security and urges that no untimely delays in its enactment should open the way to a repetition of the emergency of 1932.

Blast Sabotage Of NLRA

Whereas, (1) The Congress of the United States through the vicious practice of adding to an appropriation act an independent rider has undermined the administration of the National Labor Relations Act by legalizing collusive agreements which deprive employes of their basic right to choose their own collective bargaining representatives through democratic elections and by inviting a wholesale reestablishment of company unions, and

(2) This rider, openly sponsored by John P. Frey of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, will affect with equal severity AFL unions as well as CIO unions, and was obtained through the abominable practice of promising politcal blessing to those reactionary Congressmen who voted to override President Roosevelt's veto of the Smith-Connally Act if they voted for this vicious rider.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

1. This enactment of Congress is vigorously condemned as an open and flagrant drive toward weakening and destroying the National Labor Relations Act for the benefit of the enemies of organized labor.

2. The CIO pledges to exert its maximum effort to obtain the repeal of this vicious legislation.

3. The national officers of the CIO should proceed to make the appropriate representations to the National Labor Relations Board in order that the legislative rider shall be interpreted in a manner consistent with the fundamental policies and the basic rights of labor guaranteed by the National Labor Relations Act.

The Civilian War Front

FDR's Rollback Program Clears Congress Hurdle

BY CIO COST OF LIVING COMMITTEE

Congress has retreated on the subsidy front following the President's strong message on the "Raise-the-Cost-of-Living" Bill, which he vetoed. Under the compromise bill that is now being rushed through the legislative mill there will be substantial funds for the Administration's roll-back program.

The deep-laid plot to force labor to set off the fuse for an inflation which would benefit only big business has been frustrated. The scheme was to push up the cost of living to such dizzy heights that labor in self-defense would be compelled to ask for compensating wage increases.

These wage increases would merely set the stage for a runaway inflation of prices, and labor's money wages would always be far behind the race of prices.

Only the speculators and the cost-plus war contractors would profit from such an inflation, while the low and fixed income groups, including the dependents of service men, would be ground down to the starvation level. And for this misery labor would have gotten the blame.

PLOT FORESTALLED

This whole plot has been forestalled, and the Nation is now committed to rolling back the cost of living to last September levels and keeping it there.

But while the main inflationary plot has been forestalled, the enemies of price control were able to sneak through a great deal of sabotage via the appropriation route.

The OPA appropriation has been "comprised" at $155,000,000—an amount which is below the level of current expenditure and which rules out the hiring of additional investigators badly needed to make enforcement effective.

WRECKING PROGRAM

Also the Administrator is required to wreck the present organization by placing only men with business experience in key positions of policy. Experience in protecting the public interest does not count. It must be experience in "business, industry or commerce."

Finally, the shameful ban on grade labeling and standardization is still there, athough there is some hope at this writing that the ban on standards—but not on grade labeling—will be softened by an amendment inserted in the new Commodity Credit Corporation bill.

How much damage this ban will wreck on the food and clothing prlceing regulations has not yet been determined, but it will certainly be heavy.

PARLOUS STATE

Having left price control in this parlous state, the Congress is going home on recess till the fall. Labor and consumer groups will have to take this opportunity to educate their Congressmen individualy and collectively.

They should organize consumer conferences throughout the country emphasizing the issues of home front policy— the A B C of price control, subsidies, community dollars and cents prices, grade labeling, etc. The Cost of Living Committee will gladly assist in furnishing information and discussion material for these conferences.

The job is very important. Congress has acted the way it did because it did not know any better, and because it thought the people didn't care. It is time the people called the representatives of the people to account.

Murray Asks Action Now On Polltax

Washington, July 10—Just before the recess, members of the Senate Judiciary Committee now sitting on the poll tax repeal bill (H.R. 7) got an urgent appeal from CIO President Murray to get the bill out on the floor where the whole Senate can vote for it.

"The anti-poll tax bill has been fully considered for a long time," Murray wrote. "Extensive hearings have been held on it within very recent months. The pace of our war effort requires immediate action.

"I sincerely urge that you undertake to bring about a prompt and favorable report on H.R. 7 so that the Senate itself may proceed to a consideration of this very vital war measure."

Raft Hero Urges Workers To Hike Output

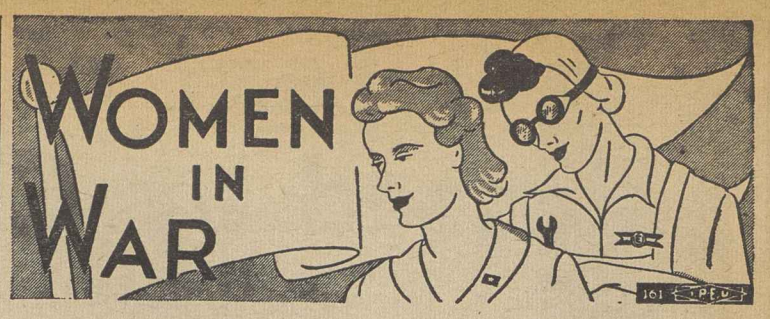
Washington, July 10—Trade union members in American war plants and shipyards are doing a great job in the Navy's war effort, states Basil Dominic Izzi, 20-year-old seaman second class and hero of one of the greatest stories of the war. Before enlisting, Izzi belonged to the CIO Textile Workers Union of America.

The dramatic story of the rescue of Izzi and two companions by a Navy vessel from a drifting life raft 83 days after his ship was torpedoed by an enemy submarine was front page news some weeks ago. Recently Izzi completed a tour of some 300 war plants which lasted exactly 83 days.

Speaking to thousands of war workers during the tour and talking personally to hundreds of them, he urged union members to increase production for the Navy, especially in the building of destroyer escort vessels.

Maternity Care

Washington, July 10— Programs for medical and hospital maternity care for wives of men in the four lowest pay grades of the armed services in more than three-fourths of the states have been approved by the Children's Bureau, Dept. of Labor.



Auxiliaries Hail House Vote Aiding FDR Rollback Policy

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The vote of the House of Representatives to uphold the President's veto of the Commodity Credit Corporation bill is the first good win-the-war news out of Capitol Hill in some time. The bill would have banned the use of subsidies to roll back food prices.

We think that the auxiliaries deserve some of the credit for the House vote, too. All over the country they've been busy these last two weeks bringing pressure on their Congressmen on this issue. An emergency letter from President Faye Stephenson of the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries started them off with a real understanding of the seriousness of the crisis.

When the letter reached the new Boston NMU auxiliary, which had just organized with eight members, the women decided to make the campaign for price rollback through subsidies their first job. Those eight new members were responsible for 100 post cards going to Boston Congressmen.

The UE Auxiliary in Warren, Ohio, sponsored a Women's Conference on June 24 where price rollback was one of the central issues. The attendance was good. The women unanimously voted to wire their Senators and Congressmen to vote for subsidies and against inflation.

BOOTHS ON STREETS

In Cleveland, auxiliary members are running booths on the streets where they collect signatures on a rollback petition. In Washington Federal Worker auxiliary members have each been asked to write or wire their Congressmen explaining why he must vote to support the President's subsidy program.

These are just a few of auxiliaries' activities to support the CIO program for economic stabilization. The auxiliaries helped to convince those 154 Congressmen who voted to sustain the President.

But 154 Congressmen aren't enough to pass a positive program—our CIO program for $2,000,000,000 for subsidies to roll back living costs to Sept. 1942. To pass a bill for that we'd have to have a majority—at least 218.

That's the next urgent job the auxiliaries will tackle along with the unions. During the next two months we've got to convince between 60 and 70 Congressmen that rolling back food prices is essential to maintaining the health and efficiency of our working people and therefore is vital to winning the war.

Group Canning Plan Works; Here's Proof

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

We canned 77 qts. of string beans on this Friday. Ten of us worked together with the help of an instructor. Non of us had ever canned anything before. The pressure cooker was new to all of us, but by the end of the day we felt that we could carry on without the aid of the instructor. This experiment in group canning is working beautifully so far.

Early in March parents were invited to attend a general meeting of the Parents Teachers Assn. to make plans for canning this summer. An instructor talked to us about working together.

We could use school cafeteria facilities. Two 14 qt. pressure cookers would be available. We could get our produce in large quantities wholesale at the market in town, or from farmers nearby—also jars and caps. There were 60 of us anxious to cooperate. We were to work in groups of ten, canning twice a week.

We set out at once to determine what vegetables we would like to can and the number of jars we would need. Counting one jar of food a week per person in the family, a family of 4 would need at least 200 jars for the year. Each member wrote out the number of jars she would need and the kind of vegetables she would like to can.

$20 EACH FOR FUND

With that information to go on we figured out the number of jars needed. Each person contributed $20 as a working fund. This money would pay for vegetables and jars. That meant that each of us started out with a credit of $20.

We started the first weekend in July. Two women in the group left at 6 a.m. for the market to get the produce for the day's canning. They brought back 3 bushels of string beans—paid $2 per bushel. By 9 o'clock we were all ready to start.

Each of us brought a large basin and paring knife. While some of us cleaned and cut the string beans, two women washed the jars in soapy water, rinsing them and setting them in the oven at 250 degrees for 20 minutes to be sterilized. When the beans were cut and cleaned, we put them to boil in a large kettle of water. After they were partially tender, we were ready to fill the jars. One teaspoon of salt was put in each quart jar.

Packed Beans Tightly

We packed the string beans in fairly tightly. After the jar was packed full, we filled the jar with the bean water to cover the beans. Then, after carefully feeling the rim of the jar for rough edges, we dipped the sealing disc in warm water, set it on the mouth of the jar, screwed the ring on snugly and set the jars in the pressure cooker.

After the jars were taken out of the cooker, they were put on a table and allowed to cool for 24 hours without being moved. The next day we called for our jars. The rings were removed ready to use on the next set of jars. Each of us had eight quarts of string beans, and were we proud!

The jars cost 69c per dozen—5¾c per jar. The beans cost $6 for 77 quarts—each quart cost 7.7c. The total cost per jar was 13½c for one quart of string beans—eight quarts for $1.08. Each member was charged with $1.08 against her credit of $20.

I felt this experiment was worth passing on to you. Perhaps it might give you an inspiration to form groups in your own neighborhood and pool the use of your pressure cookers. The results are well worth the efforts to get the group going.

Women's Bureau 25 Years Old

Washington, July 10—The Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor celebrated its 25th birthday on July 8. Formed during the first world war as an emergency "Women in Industry Service," to deal with the problems of mass employment of women in war plants, the agency was put into the Department of Labor in July, 1918.

'Charting the Victory' New CIO Pamphlet

WASHINGTON, July 10 — "Charting the Victory" is the latest CIO pamphlet, off the press this week. The 32-page booklet contains excerpts from CIO President Philip Murray's speeches to the CIO Executive Board meeting held in Cleveland last May, when the CIO again reaffirmed its solid support for the win-the-war program of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The pamphlet contains Murray's frank discussion of the record and of CIO's responsibility as a leading force in the fight against the Axis.

"My country," says Murray, comes first. If I didn't have this country, I wouldn't have a union and I would not enjoy the benefits of collective bargaining and I would not enjoy the right to organize. My primary consideration in this situation for the moment must necessarily, therefore, be the winning of this war."

'Police' Called Racket By UE Pamphlet

Cleveland, Ohio, July 10—How an ex-convict made a racket out of labor-baiting "in an attempt to prevent organization, disrupt unity and undermine the war effort" is told in a pamphlet, "The Story of 'Police'," issued here by District Council No. 7, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

The pamphlet charges that John P. Moran, who has been editing a paper called "Police" in the name of a "League for Justice," is a disbarred attorney indicted for embezzling funds from a lodge of the International Association of Machinists, who was sentenced to a year in the Ohio penitentiary.

Moran solicited funds from employers to carry on red-baiting attacks against the union and boasted that he had the support and cooperation of law enforcement officials, the UE pamphlet states.

Southern School For Workers Opens July 19

Roanoke, Va., July 10—Labor's contribution to the war and problems faced by war workers will be studied by workers from southern unions at the 17th summer session of the Southern School for Workers which will be held in the Blue Ridge Mountains near hear July 19 to August 14.

Adapting its program to the tempo of war production, the summer school this year will be attended by active men and women workers for one or two weeks' sessions, according to Mrs. Louise McLaren, director of the school.

SUMMER JUMPER SET: The slim, simple jacket topping a youthful, big-pocketed jumper should be a great success. Pattern No. 8463 is in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

UWOC came through with a triple-victory event at the Detroit Edison Co. among the building maintenance and operators: CIO 135, no union, 50. Representative Edward Shedlock was in charge. Dayton Power and Light Co., among the clerical and physical workers, CIO polled 470 votes to 98 for the Independent, 215 for no union. Among the plant protection employes, CIO polled 35 votes to none for Independent and 2 for no union. Representative Francis McMahon was in charge of these two campaigns.

A happy conclusion to a long struggle at Sun Ship in Chester, Pa., in an NLRB election resulted in the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers being contested by a company union. The first count showed for the CIO, 12,816; company union, 11,906; neither, 864, and challenged, 61. After canvassing the challenged votes the final results were: CIO, 12,835; company union, 11,922; and no union, 865. Organization Director Gallagher of the IUM&SWA and his staff and all those participating are to be highly congratulated on this remarkable achievement.

Erwin Leppert, staff representative, USA, Allentown, Pa., sends in the results of the NLRB election victory held at Traylor Engineering & Mfg. Co., Allentown. CIO received 155 votes to 30 for no union.

A. F. Hartung, regional director in Oregon, reports that the election at the McCloud Lumber Co. resulted in 302 for CIO as against neither, 177. Organizer Dusten was in charge. W. R. Henderson, representative, sends in the following additional IWA-CIO victories: King Stave Co., CIO 41 to 5 for AFL; Vicksburg Heading Mill, CIO 48 to 6 for AFL; Warren County Hoop Mill, CIO 29 to 21 for AFL and 3 for no union.

E. L. Sandefur, regional director in North Carolina, sends in the following election victories: Henderson, N. C., TWUA-CIO, 325 to 125 for no union; Burlington, N. C., UAW-CIO, 576 to 169, Fairchild Aircraft plant.

CIO Aluminum Victory

Virgil Burtz, field representative in Washington, reports that in the NLRB election at the Aluminum Co. of America Reduction plant at Mead the CIO polled 366 votes to 153 for AFL.

A. J. Federoff, regional director in Pittsburgh, reports that LIU No. 1323 has been certified as bargaining agent for Fisher Scientific Co., covering 90 employes.

At the request of the Intl. Executive Board of the United Paper, Novelty & Toy Workers Union, the CIO has taken over organizing activities in this industry for this union. An organizing committee has been created, including the following: Allan S. Haywood, chairman; Harry Sayre, secretary; A. H. Esposito, member of committee; James B. Carey, member of commitee; and Robert J. Davidson. The committee selected R. J. Davidson as the organizing director of this drive. A meeting of the organizing committee and organizing staff will be held within the near future for the purpose of mapping out plans and effectuating same. Davidson will take over his duties immediately upon completing the task to which he is now assigned, i. e., MMSW in Connecticut.

The largest gathering of delegates ever attending a state meeting of the CIO was present at the State CIO Council convention in Michigan. More than 1,500 delegates were seated. National Representative August Scholle, who has been serving as president of the council, on account of many other duties declined to run for re-election. John Gibson, who was a former secretary of the council, later State Director of Labor, was elected president, with Ben Probe reelected as secretary.

The CIO National Executive Board in session this week reaffirmed to our Commander-in-Chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt, its no-strike pledge. This in spite of the unfair attacks made upon labor by Congress through the passage of the Smith-Connally bill over the President's veto. The CIO recognizes that the biggest task confronting us is to support the war effort to complete victory over the Axis forces and that confusion can only result in injuring labor. The CIO is building not just for today but for the future. The workers of the nation clearly understand the issues involved in this global struggle.

Organizing the unorganized is as important today as ever and efforts should be intensified to bring more workers into the folds of this great modern labor movement so that we can more effectively support our nation in the war and cope with the problems with which we will be confronted after the war.

Bolivians Grateful For U. S. Aid

La Paz, July 10 (ALN)—Bolivian workers are grateful to U. S. workers for their expressions of solidarity and their offers of assistance, Aurelio Alcoba, general secretary of the Confederation of Bolivian Workers, told Allied Labor News this week. Alcoba recently returned to La Paz after being imprisoned for three months under the state of siege.

"Bolivian labor was happy to learn of the efforts undertaken on its behalf by North American labor during the difficult days of last winter," Alcoba said. "We believe that actions like these undertaken by our brothers in North America contribute much to the establishment of continental democracy.

"We consider the formation of the Latin American committee of the CIO an epoch-making event. As soon as freedom of association and of the press is re-established, Bolivian labor will initiate an all-out drive to increase the output of Bolivian strategic materials, the best way to acknowledge the support of North American labor."

In view of President Enrique Penaranda's promise in Washington to restore constitutional guarantees, Alcoba said, Bolivian labor now hopes to hold its frequently postponed Unity Congress next November.

During Lombardo Toledano's visit to Bolivia last year, all Bolivian unions signed a Pact of Unity and began preparations for a national Workers Congress. This could not be held at the time under conditions of the state of siege.

British Engineers Urge Unity With U. S., Soviet Union

LONDON, July 10 (ALN)—A resolution for "greater efforts to bring about unity between the trade union movements of Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union" was passed this week by the Amalgamated Engineering Union at its annual convention. The AEU is Britain's largest union of workers in war industries.

The action was the first of its kind yet taken by a British union and is believed likely to lead to a widespread demand that all sections of American labor—the CIO and Railroad Brotherhoods as well as the AFL—be invited to join the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee, now holding its third meeting in Moscow.

The AEU's move makes it certain that the question of international labor unity will be brought to the fore at the September convention of the TUC.

ASK NEW BATTLEFRONT

The convention also called for "the opening of a new battlefront in Europe which will crush the Nazi forces between the Red Army in the east and the Allied armies in the west"; for greater support for AEU members in the armed forces; for "an intensification of the drive to secure labor unity through affiliation of the Communist Party to the Labor Party"; and for increased enrollment of AEU members in the Labor Party.

Declaring that it was "well aware of the attempts of reactionary employers to force the government to freeze wages," the convention called for a 6 shillings ($1.50) a week raise for all time workers and a parallel increase for piece rate workers, equal pay for equal work, and "fair wages for apprentices and youths."

The government was urged to prosecute employers who refused to carry out the provisions of the Essential Work Order, and to pass legislation obliging employers to recognize unions of the workers' own choosing.

BACK POSTAL WORKERS

The convention voted to support the demand of the Post Office Workers Union and the Civil Service Clerical Association for repeal of clause 5 of the Trades Dispute Act, which forbids unions of government employes to affiliate with the TUC.

Earlier in the week the national executive committee of the Labor Party, following the lead of the general council of the TUC, called upon the government, "which was established to promote national unity, to introdue legislation to restore to civil servants the industrial rights enjoyed by all other workers."

Stone Union Wins 5c An Hour Raise

Proctor, Vt., July 10 — The New England War Labor Board this week ordered the White Pigment Corp. to increase hourly rates of its workers by five cents, retroactive to the first payroll period after January 7, 1943.

The Board's order, issued in final settlement of a dispute between the corporation and the United Stone & Allied Products Workers, CIO, supplements a previous order in which the Board granted maintenance of membership and voluntary check-off clauses.

Chinese Unions Play Major Role In Fight to Crush Jap Militarism

CHUNGKING, July 10 (ALN)—When the history of the war in the Far East is written, it will be found that a major role in the destruction of Japanese militarism was played by the trade unions of North China. Due to the drastic Japanese blockade of the greater part of this area, and to difficulties of communication with Free China, the task of supplying the principal northern armies—the Eighteenth Group (formerly Eighth Route) and New Fourth armies—has fallen to the one million members of these unions.

At a recent conference of repsentatives of the unions, it was decided to organize a North China Federation of Trade Unions to unify the labor movement and thus increase its fighting power against the military and political offensive of the enemy."

None of these unions is at present affiliated with the Chinese Association of Labor, government-sponsored organization of unions in Free China, with a membership of 425,000.

TREMENDOUS TASK

The magnitude of the task of these unions is illustrated by the fact that the northern armies are holding at bay fully one-half of the estimated 600,000 Japanese troops in China.

Last February, according to a Japanese communique, the enemy fought 1090 engagements against the 18th Group and New Fourth Armies, as compared with 356 against the armies in central China.

MAIN ACTIVITY

The central purpose of the North China unions was expressed by the executive committee of the General Labor Union, in a statement issued upon formation of the union in 1940.

"Our main activity must be to organize all the workers of the border region for active participation in the war of resistance and national reconstruction," the statement said.

"In order to guarantee victory, we must increase the discipline and productivity of labor, raise the political, cultural and technical level of the workers, and strengthen the bonds between the workers and soldiers." The General Labor Union includes industrial, office and agricultural workers.

To carry out its program of increasing labor productivity, the General Labor Union set up machine-shop training schools, night classes to abolish illiteracy, political and technical study groups, shop newspapers and research laboratories where workers can exercise their initiative in devising new tools, chemical processes and substitutes for materials rendered scarce by the blockade.

The union's program has achieved notable results. Last year technicians and skilled workers manufactured a duplicate of an intricate military radio transmitter (captured from the Japanese) out of aluminum plates from a Japanese airplane and parts from an automobile.

Research workers have discovered new materials for making paper and printing ink, with the result that the entire program for educating the workers, soldiers and farmers has been extended.

Other members of the union invented a process for making medicinal cotton out of water weeds.

U. S. News Letter Lauds Union Seamen

WASHINGTON, July 10—High praise for the job being done by union seamen in delivering the goods despite Axis bombs and torpedoes was voiced this week by the Office of the Coordinator of Latin-American Affairs in a special feature story distributed in Spanish to labor and other papers in the American republics.

Praising the seamen's voluntary no-strike pledge, originated by the Natl. Maritime Union, the news letter said that "the record of labor's contribution to the war effort has no brighter page than that which tells of the magnificent job being done by unions which man the cargo ships used in moving munitions and equipment to armed forces of the United Nations."

Women Help Britain Hike Plane Output

London, July 10 (ALN)—The fact that Britain alone now produces more planes than Nazi Germany is due largely to the efforts of women workers, Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, said this week at the diamond jubilee meeting of the Women's Cooperative Guild in London. "You are entitled as working women at the end of the struggle to enjoy the best the nation can give," he said.

Ban Bosses' Oppressive Labor Practices, Senate Committee Urges

WASHINGTON, July 10—Bluntly warning that return of peace probably will lead to organized vendettas by employers against labor unions, the Senate Civil Liberties Committee this week renewed its recommendation that Congress outlaw "oppressive labor practices" and "organized conspiratorial interference with the right of collective bargaining."

The committee, composed of Senators Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin and Elbert Thomas of Utah, cited its investigation of employer tactics in California as proof of the need for legislation providing criminal penalties for such offenses as labor espionage, professional strike-breaking, the use of industrial munitions, abuses of private police systems, anti-vigilantism, and blacklisting agreements.

The Oppressive Labor Practices Act, recommended by the committee, would outlaw such practices. The committee declared:

"Now that we are for the time being in an era of comparative industrial peace due to the single-minded devotion of the vast majority of employers and employes to the job of winning the war, we should not forget these manifestations of evil that will surely poison the stream of industrial labor relations and thwart the rights of labor when we return to normal peace-time relationships."

Discussing anti-unionism in California, where the committee collected evidence of a native Fascist trend toward oppression of labor unions with the eventual aim of their complete elimination, the report stated:

"The root of the malady was organized anti-unionism, finding expression in the all-inclusive anti-union employers' association.

"To condemn such associations is not a reflection upon other types of socially useful employers' organizations, nor an attack upon the constitutional rights which employers share with all other members of the body politic to associate together for their mutual interest.

"It is merely a recognition of an institutional abuse which society must curb.

"The all-inclusive anti-union employers' association finds no counterpart on the labor side. No one has ever discovered an association of working men formed for the express and avowed purpose of denying to their employers enjoyment of the right to organize and associate together for economic purposes.

"Such an organization of workers is inconceivable, and yet exactly the same concept among employers has long been a recognized reality."

Declaring that the National Labor Relations Act has "not yet overcome a principal obstacle to free collective bargaining, namely, the anti-union employers' association," the committee said about California:

"It is a sad commentary upon our industrial democracy that since the adoption in 1935 of a national labor policy favoring collective bargaining, California employers have pooled millions of dollars to finance organized and systematic interference with the civil liberties of labor."

The committee report named six major organizations in California that have expended over a five-year period in excess of three million dollars fighting legitimate labor unions. The organizations are:

Merchants & Manufacturers Association of Los Angeles and Southern Californians, Inc. (which were merged in 1940, the Industrial Association of San Francisco (now dissolved), the Association of Farmers of California and its county units, the Grower-Shipper Vegetable Association of Central California, and the Committee of Peace in Employment Relations.

Shipbuilders Ask Wage Hikes to Meet Rising Cost of Living

WASHINGTON, July 10—A demand for wage increases to meet the rising cost of living was made before the War Labor Board this week by Pres. John Green of the Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers.

Pointing out that workers have foregone increases with the understanding that the cost of living was to be controlled, Green said that the federal government has failed to check rising prices, and asked for a 9 per cent increase over the current highest minimum wage paid in the industry, plus a delayed payment of 5.83 per cent which the union says workers lost in wages last year.

The demand for a wage increase has been made also by the AFL. The combined demands affect 1,100,000 workers in 188 yards over the nation, making the case the largest ever presented to the WLB.

Green pointed out that Congress' failure to support the Administration's price rollback program has cost the shipyard workers 5.83 per cent of one year's income.

The union's proposal is that this 5.83 per cent be "held in escrow" as a severance indemnity, and that it be paid to workers when they quit their jobs or are laid off.

The 9 per cent, the union contends, is one half of the increase in the cost of living over that when wages were last adjusted in the shipbuilding industry.

Green declared that Dept. of Labor statistics on the rise in the cost of living are not entirely reliable, particularly in industrial communities that have expanded rapidly because of the war.

He said the gross hourly earnings of the shipbuilding industry from January, 1941, to March, 1943, had increased 39.5 per cent, while the earnings in the locomotive industry had risen 49.1 per cent, and the aircraft engine industry 40.7 per cent.

FEPC Takes Full Responsibility for Fair Job Practices

WASHINGTON, July 10—Responsibility for promoting the fullest utilization of all available manpower regardless of race, creed, color or national origin has been accepted by the newly appointed Fair Employment Practice Committee, Chairman Francis J. Haas said here this week.

Work of the committee Chairman Haas said, would aim "to further the prosecution of the war, worker morale and national unity."

"This duty, to give every industrial American a chance to serve his country, must be achieved," he said. "It is obviously basic to democracy. It is a war necessity. It is what all right-minded people want."

Referring to a three-day investigation made during a visit last week to Detroit, the committee's chairman said that the situation was grave but not desperate.

BLAMES BAD CONDITIONS

Crowded housing, poor transportation and inadequate recreation facilities, he said, "have bred irritation among decent people, and have afforded irresponsible persons the opportunity for shameful mob violence.

He said he learned when he was in Detroit that "where mixed races make tanks and airplanes side by side, that the workers in war plants did not lose their heads at the time when hoodlums were rioting in the streets of Detroit.

"The committee takes hope from the decency and patriotism of the overwhelming majority of the American people on this issue, and will carry out its duty in that light," he declared.

ENFORCEMENT PACT

Chairman Haas said that an agreement is being formulated with the War Manpower Commission to help in enforcing the executive order issued to assure non-discrimination because of race, color, creed and national origin.

Appointment of two assistants to the chairman was announced late this week. They are George M. Johnson, Negro professor formerly in the law department of Howard University, and Malcolm Ross, former director of information for the National Labor Relations Board.

The six labor and industry members of the committee were appointed recently by President Roosevelt. The three labor members are: John Brophy, CIO; Milton P. Webster, Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and Boris Shishkin, AFL.

Shipyard Union Gives A Brass Check To 'Reader's Digest'

CAMDEN, N. J., July 10—Describing "Reader's Digest" as "small in size and smaller in mental outlook," the CIO Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers this week editorially in the SHIPYARD WORKER awarded the Digest a brass check symbolizing journalistic prostitution for its anti-labor activity. Specifically objecting to an article by John Patric about alleged slow-down practices in the shipyard industry, the CIO Shipyard publication said:

"First of all the article is phoney. It's as vicious and fallacious a distortion as has ever appeared in any responsible publication.

"Mr. Patric's article purports to show that feather-bedding and slowdowns and other similar practices impeding production are rampant in the shipyards.

PICKED AFL YARDS

"According to the interviews which he reports, he seems to have picked every yard employing craft unions that he could find, and reproduced all the craft union restrictions of the AFL.

"He gives the false implication that the IUMSWA-CIO and the metal trades council of the AFL are both employing these practices.

"But Mr. Patric does not make clear, with apparent deliberate intent, that these practices were confined solely to the Gulf and Pacific Coast yards which he visited, and which are in the main under collusive closed shop agreements with the AFL.

"We IUMSWA-CIO shipyard workers have nothing to be ashamed of in our record. As far as production goes, our industry is the only one engaged in war production which has not only fulfilled the directive laid down by President Roosevelt, but far exceeded it.

"We are not condoning the evils of craft unionism. We know that the AFL indulges in feather-bedding. But the IUMSWA has been fighting evils of craft unionism for a longer period of time than the Reader's Digest has been fighting the battles of the National Assn. of Manufacturers. And we have been waging our fight on a constructive basis, for the benefit of the workers and of the war effort, and not, as the Reader's Digest does, 'for business as usual.'"

CIO Council Backs Murray's War Policies

Baltimore, July 10—Full support for the win-the-war policies of CIO and of President Philip Murray was voted this week by the Baltimore Industrial Union Council, in a resolution which praised the national CIO's position banning strikes for the duration of the war and asked repeal of the oppressive Smith-Connally act.

The Council also urged the immediate construction of proposed federal housing for Negroes, declaring that government agencies should cease bowing to pressure groups, and should erect 550 housing units in southwest Baltimore and 1,200 to 1,500 in east Baltimore.

Carey to Talk On NBC July 24

Washington, July 10—CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey will speak over the NBC network, Saturday, July 24, 7 to 7:30 p.m. (EWT), on "World Problems of Labor." The program is one of a series "For This We Fight" presented each Saturday by NBC's Inter-American University of the Air, in cooperation with the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace and the Twentieth Century Fund.

Other speakers on the same program are Carter B. Goodrich of the International Labor Organization, and Matthew Woll of the American Federation of Labor.

'Largest Employer'

Washington, July 10—The Army Service Forces is the largest employer of women in the United States today, with a total of nearly 380,000—about 38 per cent of more than 1,000,000 civilian workers employed in ordnance plants, depots and other ASF installations.

Unions Can Spend Money For Politics

American labor unions can still spend money to elect progressive, win-the-war candidates. That was the position made clear this week by CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman after an exhaustive analysis of the Smith-Connally Act. Pressman said that nothing in the Act stops unions or workers from any kind of political activity except direct money contributions to candidates during Federal general election campaigns.

You've Got a Job To Do With Congress!

Leaving behind a record of disruption second only to that which crippled France before its conquest by the Nazis, the United States Congress has quit Washington for a vacation. Dominated by a reactionary clique more interested in 1944 politics than in speedy victory over the Axis, Congress chalked up for its 1943 box score the sabotage of the Roosevelt administration's home front win-the-war program. You'll find the details and what to do about it on:

Boost Production, We'll Do the Rest, Say CIO Soldiers

WASHINGTON, July 17—Boost production, we'll do the rest!

That was the message left in the mail box of Mr. and Mrs. War Worker this week by four soldier members of the Intl. Longshoremen & Warhousemen's Union, who used to push cargo around on the San Francisco docks and now are pushing the Axis in the face.

The four—Joe Chambers, Ray Heide, Chester E. Fenn and James E. Walker—wrote to their union from somewhere in the South Pacific to say that the home front fighters should buy more war bonds, donate more blood, and maintain uninterrupted production, as their contribution to the fight to crush Fascism.

Their letter, which is a darned good editorial for anybody's breakfast table, follows:

"First, let us say that this is a war of machines and equipment, and in order to win we're going to have to have just as good and just as much as our enemies—and that's where you come in! You're the builders of that equipment, and you're the fellows that ship it to us, so let's figure out through your production committee how you can build it faster and get it here sooner.

"Don't let anything or anybody deter you in your efforts to step up production wherever possible and least of all the argument 'that the employers will only make more profits.' Some people have used this as an argument against increased output, but when we weigh this against the lives of American soldiers—many of whom are our members, and your friends—it becomes a very small argument and one that can only be used by those forces who would like to see the Axis powers win the war.

NEED A LOT OF MONEY

"It's going to take money to finance the manufacture of these machines, too. And you come in here, too! Your government has asked all of us to invest in War Bonds to the extent of 10 per cent of our pay. Mind you, this is not a tax, but merely a loan that will be repaid with interest. When you stop to think of the enormous amount of equipment needed, you will realize that everyone is going to have to do his share in the War Bond Drive.

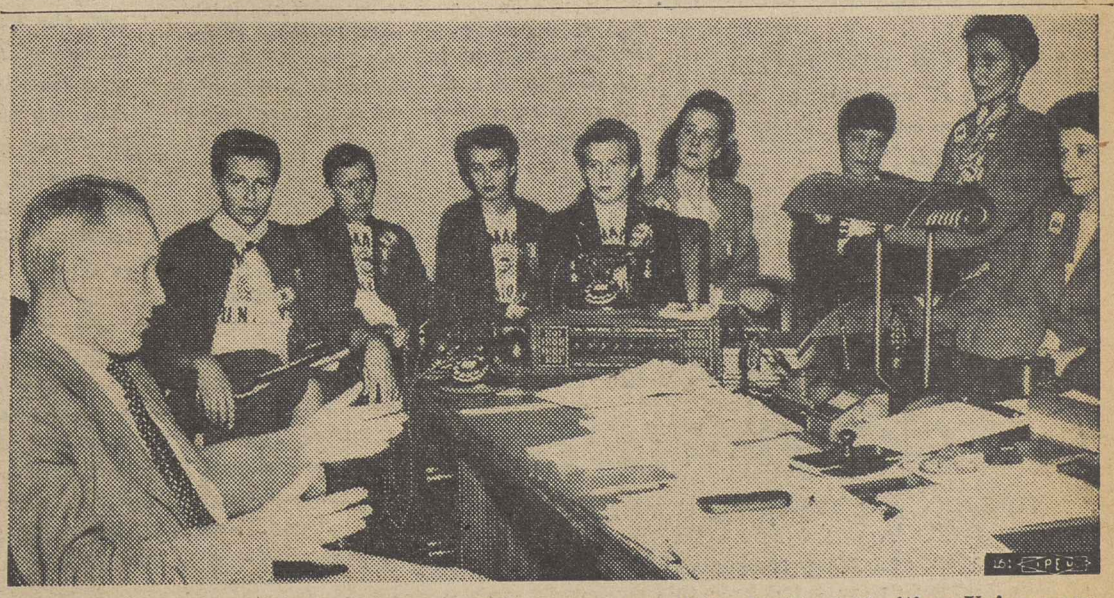
"And another thing—our armed forces need your help in the Blood Donor campaign conducted by the Red Cross. Every time you donate a pint of blood, the chances are that you're saving the life of some American soldier or sailor. They need lots of it from all of you.

"Maybe you think it hurts to have a needle shoved into your arm—and maybe it does hurt—a little. But let me tell you that it hurts a lot less than having a bullet shot through your guts! And maybe that pint of blood you meant to donate last week—but didn't get around to doing it—would have saved someone's life.

"Nearly everywhere we have traveled, we have managed to 'bump into' some member of the ILWU and New Caledonia is no exception. There are some 22 of us from various ILWU locals on the coast.

"When the news of Lewis' coal mine strike reached us, we all felt that he had certainly stabbed us all in the back. If all labor were to follow his policies this war would continue for a long time, or as easily be lost within a short time.

"We also feel that a broad program of education should be launched at this time to educate our new members in the basic facts of trade unionism and of the struggles all of us had to go through to build our local into a large fighting group—one that is capable of going into high gear and more than fulfilling the program needed to win the war and win the peace that will follow."



WANT TO SHIP OUT: These members of the National Maritime Union were part of a delegation of 18 that came to Washington this week to tell Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the War Shipping Administration, that he's sailing on the wrong tack when he insists on barring about 400 qualified women seafarers from American merchant ships. Pointing to the fact that women of other nations are serving as seamen, the girls told Land that their employment would help ease the manpower shortage.

CIO Condemns Race Bias, Urges Political Action to Help Win War

The last three of eight important resolutions adopted by the CIO Executive Board last week are printed in this week's CIO NEWS. The resolutions, which follow, outline in detail CIO's policy condemning racial discrimination, CIO's recommendation that affiliated unions intensify their legislative work to help win the war, and CIO's proposals for post-war planning, calling for "an income for everyone . . . adequate for health and happiness."

Let Congress Hear from You

WHEREAS, (1) During the past few months events in Congress and out have sharpened the issues before the nation and before the labor movement and have made clear the kind of fight which the CIO faces during the coming months.

Opponents of the Administration in Congress have made clearer than ever the motivation behind their program of sniping and general attack on the Administration's war activities and organized labor.

(2) These forces have opposed effective action to bring about real economic stabilization and to assure full protection against inflation.

They have harried and attacked the price control and rent control policies. They have impeded where possible the institution of grade labeling so necessary to real price control. They have impeded and seek to prevent the adoption of an effective subsidy program so necessary to the complete roll back of prices to the September 15, 1942, level.

They have slashed appropriations of important war agencies carrying on important functions on the home front. Their special targets of attacks have been such agencies as the OWI, the Office of Civilian Defense, the OPA, the National Youth Administration, the National Labor Relations Board, and the United States Employment Service.

They have also, as part of this entire drive, enacted vicious anti-labor legislation such as the Smith-Connally Act, and the emasculating amendment to the National Labor Relations Act.

(3) There are progressive forces in Congress, anxious to furnish their support to President Roosevelt's policies directed against inflation and for economic stabilization as indicated by the coalition of 50 Congressmen, which recently convened a conference of representatives of organized labor, consumer groups, and other interested organizations in Washington in the effort to stem the tide of opposition against the program of our Commander-in-Chief.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED:

(1) The CIO must recognize the need of directing its attention to ever more effective action on the legislative front.

Great progress has been made during the past year toward the awakening of the full membership and strength of the CIO to the importance of these legislative issues. Legislative committees in local unions throughout the country have begun to function with great activity because of the growing awareness that labor must act as effectively in the sphere of congressional action as it has heretofore in the sphere of collective bargaining.

(2) It is extremely important that during the coming recess period of Congress that the Senators and Congressmen be fully acquainted with the needs and demands of their constituents and to make sure that on and after their return to Washington in September Congress will be more attuned to the needs of the nation.

Toward this end the CIO pledges itself that during this Congressional recess it will seek to have organized in every community or Congressional district in which there is CIO membership a conference of representatives of organized labor, consumer groups, public and civic officials, and all other interested organizations to which the Congressional representatives will be invited and at which there will be a full discussion and formulation of the important policies covering our domestic front consistent with the CIO program.

In addition, such conferences should designate special committees to visit and attend their Congressional representatives for the purpose of obtaining assurances that their future legislative actions will be in support of this basic program.

Plan for Peace: Jobs for All

Constructive plans must be made immediately for the months after the war ends or the nation may suffer economic dislocation even more disastrous than that of the early 1930's. Preparation for an orderly and speedy transition to full consumption and employment is nearly as important as victory itself. Yet Congress has killed the National Resources Planning Board without holding any committee hearings on its own on post-war problems.

A new agency should immediately be established to plan for peace at home. War problems cannot be permitted to interfere with the essential minimum of preparation in defense of the people's welfare in peacetime. The kind of world we shall have five years from now is being shaped today by inaction as well as by conscious intent.

A planning body must be given power and responsibility not only to secure material but, in cooperation with other agencies, to draw up concrete detailed proposals for action.

Otherwise prospects for the post-war period are bleak indeed. Although the circumstances under which peace will come cannot be foretold exactly, millions of workers will probably lose their jobs within a few months after hostilities cease.

Millions of additional men and women will no longer be needed by the armed forces and will wish to return promptly to civilian life. Although there will be a large demand for goods, many huge plants will inevitably be idle for six or nine months as they change over from war production.

The tremendous need for civilian supplies will not in itself guarantee continued full production and employment. Even more likely than an immediate depression, is an inflationary boom followed by collapse.

The nation cannot afford to risk such a disastrous outcome of war-time sacrifices. The danger of economic chaos exists, and therefore must be faced and averted. Some businessmen and some state and local governments are making post-war plans on aspects of the problem that are within their own control. Many governmental and private agencies are studying the question.

Federal Action Needed

But useful as such activities may be, they are far from sufficient for grappling with a matter of basic importance to the entire nation and affecting every aspect of its existence. Only the federal government can act for the nation as a whole and can effectively control economic forces that ignore state lines.

In rebuilding its economy on a peacetime basis, the nation should seek not merely avoidance of disaster but the achievement of positive goals which our productive resources now make possible. These should include:

1. Peace-time jobs as soon as possible for every one, including former members of the military forces and former war workers.
2. Production of adequate supplies needed here and abroad to maintain decent levels of living.
3. Improved facilities for education, medical care, recreation, housing, transportation and so forth.
4. An income for everyone, including the unemployed, adequate for health and happiness.
5. Full, stable and efficient production and employment, with prevention of both inflation and business depressions.
6. Participation by all Americans in political and economic decisions that affect their welfare.
7. Cooperation with other nations to give all peoples everywhere a chance to earn a decent living, to enjoy democratic institutions and to live at peace.

Wipe Out Race Discrimination

The current wave of race riots is seriously endangering the war effort. The Mobile riot, the Beaumont, Texas, riot, the Detroit riot are but manifestations of an American brand of fascism that is as great a menace as the Japanese or Nazis. In every instance the riots have followed the familiar pattern of dissemination of false rumors, the occurrence of a provocative incident, and the development of mob psychology and hysteria.

The causes of racial tension and conflict arise out of fundamental defects in our democracy. Unless these basic causes are recognized by the entire nation and effective measures adopted and pursued to eliminate them, racial conflicts in other crowded industrial areas are inevitable.

Labor must recognize that the forces which foment racial strife are identical with those that would destroy the organization of the labor movement.

As a means of strengthening democracy and for its very self-preservation, labor must wage an all-out attack on these disintegrating forces and deal resolutely with the basic causes in its day-to-day operations.

The absence of conflict in the shops during the recent Detroit riots is a tribute to CIO leadership in Michigan.

Curative measures are not sufficient. A nationwide program of prevention is imperative. It must include every segment of our community life.

The CIO through its National Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination, working with similar committees set up in our industrial union councils must make real the basic racial policy of the CIO throughout every community in which we are organized.

Positive Program

It is incumbent upon the National CIO Executive Board to recommend to the Federal government that it recognize the conditions that lead to race riots and take the initiative in formulating a positive program to eliminate these conditions both in government and outside it. Such a program should include the following:

1. Development of an overall program for the various Federal agencies to include full and complete support for the President's Fair Employment Practices Committee, with White House directives to these agencies for the carrying out of the program.

2. A national radio broadcast by President Roosevelt on the program, outlining the situation and the remedies that the Federal government is to undertake.

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Executive Board of the CIO goes on record again sharply condemning all evidences of mob hatred and violence against Negro citizens and people of other minorities, wherever they occur or under whatever circumstances.

We petition President Roosevelt to order the Department of Justice and other appropriate agencies to make the fullest investigation of the origins and perpetrators of these outrages, with special attention to the presence and activity of Axis agents among them, to punish those guilty with the utmost severity, and to proceed immediately against such individuals as Gerald K. Smith of Detroit and the Ku Klux Klan who have notoriously been fomenting the very mob hatred and violence against Negro citizens and people of other minorities.

We express our solidarity again with our Negro fellow citizens and fellow workers, and renew our fight against discrimination and persecution of any of our people as a necessary part of our common fight against the enemies of our country and of the United Nations.

Packinghouse Workers Back CIO Win-War Policies

CHICAGO, July 17—All-out support for the win-the-war policies of CIO President Philip Murray and of the Roosevelt administration, and sharp condemnation of the defeatist policies of John L. Lewis were voted here this week by 400 delegates to a four-day national wage conference of the Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee.

Delegates laid the stage for creation of a new international union from the organizing committee, to take place at a convention scheduled to be held between September 30 and October 15.

Speaking for 90,000 organized packinghouse workers, the conference laid down a barrage against Lewis for his strikes-during-wartime policy and blamed him for passage of the Smith-Connally bill, which was shoved through Congress by a clique of reactionaries who used the recent mine workers' stoppage as a sounding board on which to thump for their labor-baiting program.

The delegates also: Condemned the recent anti-Negro riots in Detroit as aiding the Axis; praised President Roosevelt for his campaign to roll back prices; and wired the President and Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur full support for their policy of fighting for the unconditional surrender of the Axis.

Sicilians Here Hail Allies' Invasion

New York, July 17—The Sicilian labor underground, as well as the civilian population generally, was yesterday called upon by Joseph Catalanotti, vice-president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, to impede the Nazi and Fascist war machine and give all-out aid to Allied invading forces "who have arrived to liberate you from the Axis yoke."

Catalanotti, who is an American citizen of Sicilian extraction, hailed the Allied landing as the first step in the emancipation of the Sicilian people from the "20-year nightmare of Fascism and domination by Mussolini's Nazi masters."

The appeal to the Sicilian labor undergrounds was joined, Catalanotti declared, with an expression of joy on behalf of thousands of clothing workers of Sicilian extraction at the news of the Allied invasion. Many have sons or brothers in American Army ranks who are participating in the landing operations.

Catalanotti said he was convinced that American and Allied soldiers would be welcomed with open arms by the civilian population of Sicily.

Quarter Million In Back Wages

Los Angeles, July 17—A back-pay award of more than a quarter-million dollars was handed down this week by the National War Labor Board in Washington to 2,000 employes of the Union Oil Co. of California—all members of Oil Workers Local 128 in Long Beach and Local 326 in Rodeo.

The WLB decision approved a general five-cents-an-hour increase for all workers and a 10-cents-an-hour bonus for night-shift workers, retroactive to August 1, 1942.

Campbell Soup Increase

Washington, July 17—Workers at the big Campbell Soup plant in Camden, N. J., under contract with the CIO United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing & Allied Workers, will get a pay boost ranging from 2c to 4c an hour under the terms of an agreement approved by the War Labor Board this week.

At the peak of the packing and canning season about 5,100 workers will be affected by the new wage rates, which were designed to correct intra-plant inequities in the old scale.

Former rates ranged from a hiring rate for women of 51½c an hour to an overseer's rate of 83½c.

The new rates run from 55½c to 87½c an hour.

8½c an Hour Pay Raise

Washington, July 17—A general wage increase of 8½c an hour will go into the pay envelopes of some 1,700 workers in 10 furniture manufacturing concerns in Rockford, Ill., under an award made by the War Labor Board this week. The employes are represented by the CIO United Furniture Workers.

The board's order directed that a raise of 5c an hour given to some of the workers last April be deducted from the 8½c.

The total amount will bring the rates to 15 per cent above the January 1, 1942, earnings of the workers involved.

Furniture Victory

New York, July 17—A smashing vote for the United Furniture Workers of America in an NLRB election held at a glider and aircraft company in Grand Rapids, Mich., was announced this week by the union.

By a decisive vote, the UFWA was selected as bargaining agent for more than 1,400 employes of the American Seating Co., a furniture factory now engaged in aircraft production.

The Grand Rapids victory follows a recent election won at the General Aircraft Co.'s glider plant in Long Island City, whose 1,400 workers are now represented by CIO.

Quaker Oats Goes CIO

Philadelphia, July 17—The St. Joseph, Mo., plant of the Quaker Oats Co. has gone CIO in an NLRB election the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing & Allied Workers of America announced this week. The vote was 209 for UCAPAWA to 93 for no union.

All big Quaker Oats plants are now UCAPAWA: Akron, Ohio; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Memphis, Tenn.; Depew, N. Y., and now St. Joseph, Mo.

Timm Aircraft Votes for CIO

Los Angeles, July 17—An overwhelming vote for the United Auto Workers Union was scored this week by the workers in two of the three local Timm Aircraft Co. plants here.

In NLRB elections, the UAW registered 79.12 per cent of the total vote cast at the Woodley plant, and 58 per cent of the total vote cast at the Alameda St. plant of the Timm Co.

Also on the ballot were Intl. Assn. of Machinists, and no union.

Ask Race Unity Meet in Jersey

Newark, N. J., July 17—Governor Charles Edison has been asked by the New Jersey State CIO Council to call a state-wide conference of all church, labor, civic, welfare and service organizations to set up an immediate program for racial and religious unity in New Jersey.

Job for Life Joe Ryan's Gift To Joe Ryan!

NEW YORK, July 17—Joseph P. Ryan this week "elected" Joseph P. Ryan as president of the AFL Intl. Longshoremen's Assn. for life.

Apparently fearful that government social security programs would fail to provide for his old age, the virtual dictator of the ILA had his stooges offer him the position at the ILA convention. The vote was unanimous.

To make doubly sure of his "pie card," Ryan had the convention instruct the law committee of the ILA to prepare a change in the union's constitution making the action formal and fool proof.

Smith-Connally Analysis Shows:

Unions Can Spend Money for Politics

WASHINGTON, July 17—Nothing in the Smith-Connally act stops labor unions or workers from any kind of political activity except direct money contributions to candidates during Federal general election campaigns, according to an analysis of the act made by Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, at President Murray's request, and circulated among CIO affiliates this week.

Contributions can be made to candidates in state, county and municipal campaigns at any time. Contributions can also be made to Federal candidates during primary campaigns, campaigns for election of party committees, etc.

Unions can give money, time and energy to election campaigns "provided the money is spent directly by such labor organizations and not by agreement or pre-arrangement with the candidates, or their political parties or their political committees."

"In other words," the analysis says, "a labor organization may spend its money as part of its general activities in connection with a federal election by way of advancing the candidacy of a particular person by distribution of leaflets, arranging meetings of its members and the general public, etc.

"Such activities would merely be the exercise by the union and its members of such constitutional rights as free speech, press and assembly."

30-DAY STRIKE NOTICE

Under other terms of the bill, as interpreted by Pressman, unions are required to give 30 days' notice of a strike through a "representative" who will most likely be the organization or its agents certified by the Natl. Labor Relations Board.

Unions also must give notice of the possibility of a strike during the 30 day no-strike period, to avoid the damages and punishments that are in the bill for "wilful" failure to take such steps.

Under the heading, "Rights of Employes," the CIO analysis points out that nothing in the act prevents individual workers from quitting their jobs, unless done "by way of a strike rather than voluntary quitting of employment." Conditions prior to the 30-day notice must remain in effect for the waiting period. Conditions against which the workers have decided to take the strike vote must not be put into effect during the 30-day period.

WLB POWERS

Under the act, the War Labor Board is confirmed in its old powers and given some new ones, Pressman points out. These include the power of subpena, power to require attendance of witnesses, to procure documents, and to get court support for such orders.

In addition, no member of the Board can sit on a case in which he has "a direct interest as an officer, employe or representative of either party to the dispute."

The act also authorizes the President "to take over any plant, mine or facility whenever he finds that there is an interruption of the operation of such plant, mine or facility as the result of a strike or other labor disturbance." This confirms powers he already has, and provides for release of the seized plant when operations have returned to normal.

Copies of the analysis were sent to all CIO internationals, state and local councils and regional directors.

7 CIO Parleys Slated in Next Three Months

Washington, July 17 — Seven CIO unions and State Councils have scheduled conventions during the next three months, according to information received at National CIO headquarters. They are:

West Virginia Council, Huntington, W. Va., July 26.

Oil Workers Intl. Union, Ft. Worth, Tex., Aug. 9.

Woodworkers Intl. Union, Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 17.

Arkansas Council, Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 21.

United Stone & Allied Products Workers, Barre, Vt., Sept. 13.

State, County & Municipal Workers, Cleveland, O., Sept. 23.

United Automobile Workers, St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 29.

Back City Price Control Law

Youngsown, O., July 17—Support for a proposed city ordinance to help enforce federal price control regulations was voiced this week by the Mahoning County CIO Council Consumers Committee.

The ordinance would fix a fine of $500 and 60 days in the workhouse as maximum punishment for violations. Firms or persons with city licenses found guilty of violating price regulations would have their licenses suspended for the first offense; for the second offense, the licenses would be revoked for the duration of the war and for six months thereafter.

Maxon Quits; Only Canners Mad About It

Washington, July 17—With a final disruptive blast at the whole idea of price control, Lou R. Maxon, head of the biggest advertising agencies (clients, H. J. Heinz & Co., among others) resigned from OPA this week.

No one regretted his going except the big canners, whose faithful little lackey he was while deputy administrator of OPA. During his career he succeeded in sabotaging quality grade labeling on canned goods, a measure that would have protected the consumer from price chiseling through quality deterioration.

The day following Maxon's resignation, OPA Administrator Prentiss Brown told a press conference that the rollback on food costs was going to continue, with subsidies planned to reduce prices of canned vegetables.

Brown also made the claim that the rollbacks now in effect and those contemplated had the cost of living within about 5 per cent of September 15, 1942, levels. He said he also hoped to show more decreases when current figures are released.

Earlier in the week, the rollback through subsidies plan got another administration boost when Fred Vinson, director of Economic Stabilization, said in a radio speech that the program was going to be carried out despite all obstacles. Vinson, who works closely with James F. Byrnes and the White House, pledged the backing of the administration to the full extent needed to achieve the rollback.

CIO Political Action Committee Starts 'Drive for 1944'

PHILADELPHIA, July 17—Fast work on CIO's political action campaign is seen in the first of a series of regional conferences set for today in this city to explore means of involving labor and all progressive groups in work looking to 1944.

The conference, which as a preliminary move will bring in representatives of CIO affiliates in this area, was called by the new committee set up by President Murray at the recent CIO executive board meeting in Washington.

The committee is under the chairmanship of Sidney Hillman, president, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, with R. J. Thomas, president, UAW-CIO, as secretary, and Sherman H. Dalrymple of the Rubber Workers, Albert Fitzgerald of the United Electrical Workers, and either Van A. Bittner, assistant to the president of USA-CIO, or David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer, as members.

The meeting here follows by one day a meeting in Detroit of the second political action committee set up at the board meeting to promote action on the more immediate issues before Congress and the people, with special emphasis on work during the Congressional recess.

This committee consists of four CIO secretaries, George F. Addes, UAW-CIO; James B. Carey, national CIO; Julius Emspak, UE, and David J. McDonald, USA-CIO. It has the job of planning the rallying of all labor with civic, religious, women's auxiliaries, fraternal groups, etc., around the win-the-war program of the CIO and the administration.

Next week the Hillman-Thomas committee has a meeting set for the Chicago area. In setting up the group, President Murray and the board indicated that its main objective would be action toward the creation of a labor league, emphasizing at the same time that this was not a step toward a third party.

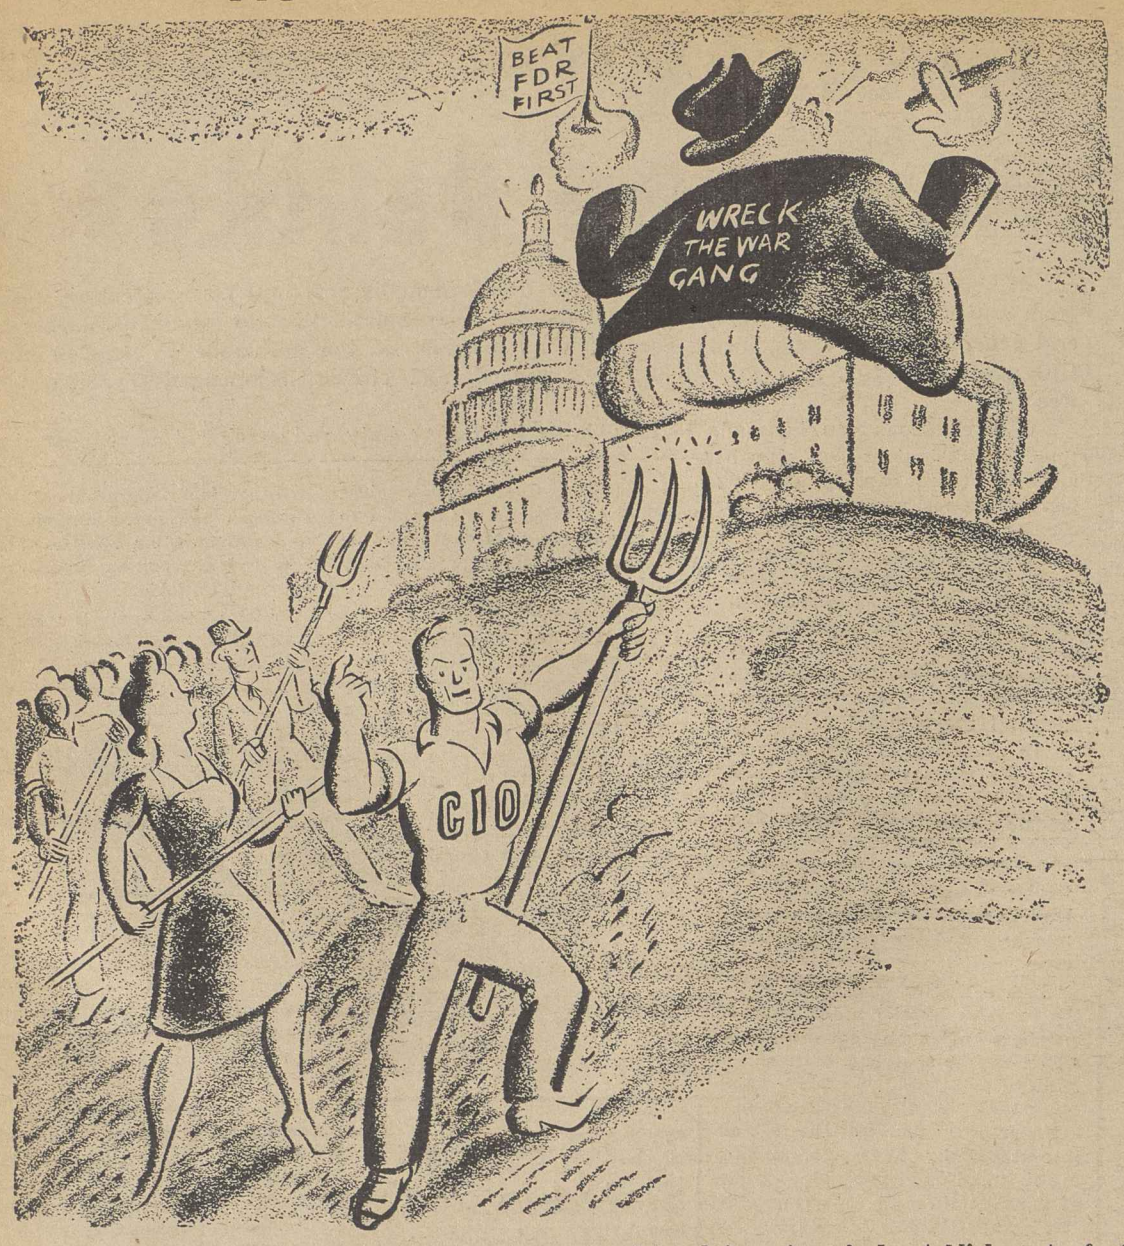
ALLOY SCRAP IS A WAR MATERIAL— DON'T WASTE IT

Alloy steels are among our most critical materials today. When these steels are fabricated, the waste metal can be used to make more weapons of war if it is handled properly.

Separate your regular scrap — turnings, stampings, filings — by alloy content. Place the scrap in containers labelled with the known analysis or grade of the steel. Keep the various grades of alloy scrap separated in the scrapyard while waiting shipment back to the steel mill.

No Time for a Sitdown!



YOUR Representatives

Every time you draw your pay, or go to the store, or sit down to eat, or go to your union meeting, you should think of your representatives in Congress.

They've had plenty to do with how much money you've got left after taxes—with how much you must pay for the food you can get—with your rights as a unionist and American citizen—and in fact with most of the details of your every-day life.

Here are just a few of the things the last session of Congress has done to YOU:

It has taken out of your pay envelope tax money that should have been paid by wealthy taxpayers "forgiven" by the 75% Ruml plan.

It has made your pegged wages buy less and less, by crippling OPA price control, by forbidding grade labeling and food standardization, and by resisting and restricting the administration's plan for rolling back living costs through food price subsidies.

It has flouted your no-strike pledge, threatened your union and destroyed many of your union and political rights by passing the Smith-Connally act.

This is but a small part of a record of labor-baiting, administration-baiting and politics-as-usual that has promoted inflation, disrupted national unity and weakened the cause you have most at heart—the speedy winning of this war.

Your Congressman and Senators have played their part in this. They have either voted for you or against you on all these issues—or they have lain down on the job by not voting.

Your representatives are home from Washington now, until Labor Day.

Get acquainted with them. Find out if they've truly represented you. Examine their record. Give encouragement and support to those who have put up a good fight. Get after those who have voted wrong. Remember they're YOUR representatives and let them know how you want to be represented.

And let's all get together behind the CIO's program for getting Congress back on the victory beam. This calls for:

(1) An active legislative committee in every local union.

(2) Impressing labor's wishes on Senators and Congressmen, particularly during the present recess.

(3) Conferences in every community of labor, consumer and public representatives, to which members of Congress will be invited.

(4) Special committees named by such conferences to visit Congressional representatives.

(5) United action by CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods through joint committees on a local and state-wide basis for legislative and political work.

(6) Preparation for coming elections. Campaigns to get every labor and progressive voter registered to vote. And establishment of effective labor political machinery (a special CIO national committee is now making plans for this) to rally support behind our Commander-in-Chief and to elect real win-the-war candidates.

Congress will meet again in September. It can then repair some of the damage done by the last session, or it can make matters ten times worse. Its future course will be determined by what we do NOW.

Now's the time to act, to make our Congressional representatives really represent US.

Social Security

One of the major decisions of the last CIO Executive Board meeting was to throw the full weight of the movement behind the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill for expanding social security.

This bill, the board pointed out, will aid the war effort now, and later help to achieve full peace-time employment.

It is a measure of immediate importance for the men in the armed forces and for all war workers—and it is national insurance against the tremendous economic dislocations which will follow the war.

The bill will provide improved machinery for finding jobs and more adequate protection and assured income for the unemployed, the aged, the sick, and other victims of the hazards of modern life.

But apathy and vigorous resistance will have to be overcome to enact this bill. Delays of every kind will be attempted. To prevent another case of too little and too late, the whole labor movement must begin campaigning now for the early enactment of this all-important victory measure.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

MY Yard is just lousy with grass roots, I'm the kind of man you meet in the street, and my initials happen to be John Q.

So it was only natural our Congressman should come to me to learn what the folks back home are thinking.

As soon as he got off the train, he put his ear to the ground, licked his fingers to see which way the wind was blowing, got a whiff of the grass roots in my victory garden, and trotted straight to my front door.

★ ★ ★

"John Q.," he said, "I'm going to be frank with you. Strike me dumb if I don't tell you the blunt truth about my record."

"Okay, Congressman, fire away," I said.

"In the first place, I've done everything within my power to help win this war . . ." But suddenly the Congressman's voice faded away. His lips struggled to form words, but no sound came.

"It seems you've been taken up on that crack about being struck dumb," I said. "You'd better start again and stick to the truth."

The Congressman's voice returned as he said faintly: "It seems I have no other alternative."

★ ★ ★

"To get down to brass tacks then, Congressman, I'm a war worker. My wages were frozen a year ago, but living costs have kept on rising. And now my paycheck is cut 20% for tax deductions. Did you have anything to do with that?"

"I did," the Congressman replied reluctantly. "I voted to stabilize wages and prices as of last September. I supported the Ruml plan to forgive a year's taxes to war millionaires and finally accepted a 75% compromise.

"I opposed the President's idea of limiting individual incomes to $67,000. I helped overturn his $25,000 net salary limit, and I voted against administration proposals for higher taxes on war profits.

"Naturally all these tax favors to the rich have to be made up somewhere, and you low-income folks are the goat. That's why I couldn't agree to CIO proposals for tax exemptions to leave the low-paid enough to live on."

"What about raising the rest of the tax money needed to win this war?" I asked.

"You'll likely be the goat again," the Congressman said. "If you don't stop me, John Q. Public, I'll vote for a big sales tax. After all, we've all got to make sacrifices . . ."

His voice started to fade again, till he pulled himself together and said: "I'll admit a sales tax imposes all the sacrifice on the poor, and it's true we could ask the wealthy to make some sacrifices."

★ ★ ★

"You spoke about stabilizing prices as well as wages," I said. "But Mrs. John Q. has to pay twice as much for our grub as she did before. Have you helped Roosevelt and the OPA to roll back living costs to that September level you voted for?"

"Well, I voted to cut OPA's funds for enforcing price control; to forbid grade labeling to guard Mrs. John Q. against paying higher prices for inferior goods; and to turn over OPA administration to interested businessmen, who love high prices and high profits.

"I also fought to the last ditch against food price subsidies—which are the only means to roll back living costs without skinning the farmer and the little businessman."

"So you voted for higher living costs and inflation," I said.

"No . . ." the Congressman began, but as his voice started to fade again, he stopped and meekly answered, "Yes."

★ ★ ★

"As a union man," I said, "I've taken a no-strike pledge, and my union's doing everything it can to boost war production. What have you done to help us?"

"I voted for the Smith-Connally act," the Congressman replied, "to provide procedures for calling strikes, to encourage employers to provoke stoppages for union-busting purposes, and generally to hamstring your union in its war work."

"One final question, Congressman. What have you done to promote national unity behind our Commander-in-Chief for victory?"

"I centered my fight on FDR and American labor. I voted for the Dies, Smith and Cox committees, to snipe at the administration and hamper its work. I opposed every FDR proposal for strengthening the home front. And I voted for all the labor-baiting bills.

"Now what do you think of my record, John Q.?"

"No wonder you choked when you talked of helping to win the war!" I replied.

Congressmen Home—Time To Work on Them Is Now!

The Congressmen are home now, checking over their political fences for the re-opening of Congress in September and for re-election in 1944. As a voter, you're the object of the Congressman's visit home. Even though he may not like the idea, you are the jury he has to appeal to on his record, because his political career ultimately depends on you.

CIO President Philip Murray put it this way:

"Our Senators and Congressmen are now returning home. It is up to all of us to let them know what steps must be taken to promote national unity, to prevent inflation, and generally to make the home front gear itself to help bring about the earliest possible victory on the battlefront."

To do this job, you need to know the record. Here it is:

Price Rollback

Action Needed

Authority and money to make price rollback to 1942 level possible without hurting farmer, processor or consumer; only practical through subsidy payments.

Action Taken

House first denied subsidies, action reversed after FDR veto. Senate in final week before recess allows limited subsidy plan, continuing present moderate rollbacks on meat, butter, etc.

On Your Agenda

Press for full subsidy plan to rollback all living costs, no strings and ample funds.

(NOTE: You may be told that subsidies cost money (they do) at taxpayers' expense. The answer is: sky-high prices cost many times more, all at expense of low incomes. $1 in subsidies will save $4 to $12 in price jumps. Subsidies are used in England, Canada to hold food costs.)

Price Control

Action Needed

Enough funds to OPA for real enforcement; quality grade labeling to prevent hidden chiseling; no hamstringing of other steps to strict price control.

Action Taken

House slashed OPA funds to cripple enforcement; outlawed grade labeling; demanded only "businessmen" in OPA. Senate restored part of funds, OK'd other bans.

On Your Agenda

Demand full funds for enforcement (minimum asked by OPA, $177 million); lifting of ban on labeling, etc. Urge your Congressman to join Congressional "Committee for the Protection of the Consumer."

(NOTE: In addition to these slashes and hamstringing amendments, enemies of price control undertook a sabotage campaign in House and Senate Committees under mask of "investigating" OPA. This includes a drive to wreck rent control, a smear drive against OPA personnel, etc. Urge your Congressman to fight this undercover conspiracy in both Houses.)

Food Production

Action Needed

Incentive systems to speed output of war foods, cut non-essential crops, mobilize small farmers, all farm resources for war needs.

Action Taken

Attempts in House to kill Farm Security Administration, thus knocking out small farmer; freeze land and labor on non-essential crops; all at orders of "Farm Bloc." FSA funds restored in part by Senate. Crop insurance to protect farmer killed.

On Your Agenda

Demand action to push conversion of agriculture to war needs; full funds for FSA; planned program for full output to avert hunger.

Labor Bills

Action Needed

Instead of acting in good faith on labor's no-strike pledge, labor's acceptance of stabilization, labor's production record, majority of Congress chose line of labor-baiting, disruption.

Action Taken

Passed Smith-Connally bill over veto; crippled Wagner Act by rider blessing backdoor contracts; passed Hobbs bill (in House); toyed with scores of other labor-baiting proposals.

On Your Agenda

Repeal of Smith-Connally bill, NLRB rider; kill Hobbs bill; end attacks on unions as grave danger to war production, unity.

Polltax

On Your Agenda

Immediate passage of polltax repeal bill (HR 7) to free 10 million citizens now voteless.

Action Taken

HR 7 passed in House, now in Senate sub-committee of Judiciary, headed by Sen. McFarland (D., Ariz.).

Action Needed

Demand your two Senators work for immediate vote on HR 7, without amendments, vote for limit on debate to smash filibuster by polltaxers.

War Finance

Action Needed

A tax bill based on needs of war, ability to pay; leaving low income groups enough for healthy living; taxing war profits and rich.

Action Taken

75 per cent version of Ruml tax grab plan passed, saving billions for the rich at your expense. Plans now for sales tax, "individual excess profits" tax (i. e., tax on all wage raises), forced savings, to make up loss in Ruml steal.

On Your Agenda

Demand win-war tax program on inflated profits, incomes, to leave low-pay groups enough; higher exemptions for low incomes; plugging of all loopholes; no sales or wage taxes.

(NOTE: The same Congress that gave the rich the Ruml plum and plans sales taxes and other burdens for the poor also knocked out President Roosevelt's order limiting salaries after taxes to $25,000 per person per year.)

★ ★ ★

All of the actions listed above are unfinished business. Those that prolong the war and block victory by baiting labor, by hamstringing price control and rollbacks, by hampering war production, must be brushed aside.

The failures of Congress to act positively on other matters, like taxes, war planning, stabilization, etc., must be corrected by prompt and vigorous action.

When Congress gets back, a major item on the program must be quick passage of the proposed changes in the Social Security Act. These changes will help our victory by giving security protection to all workers, by raising security standards, extending health, maternity, disability care to millions of men, women and children now without it. The bill has been offered to Senate and House by Senators Wagner and Murray and by Representative Dingell. Urge your Congressman to support it, to work and vote for early enactment.

THE JOB AHEAD

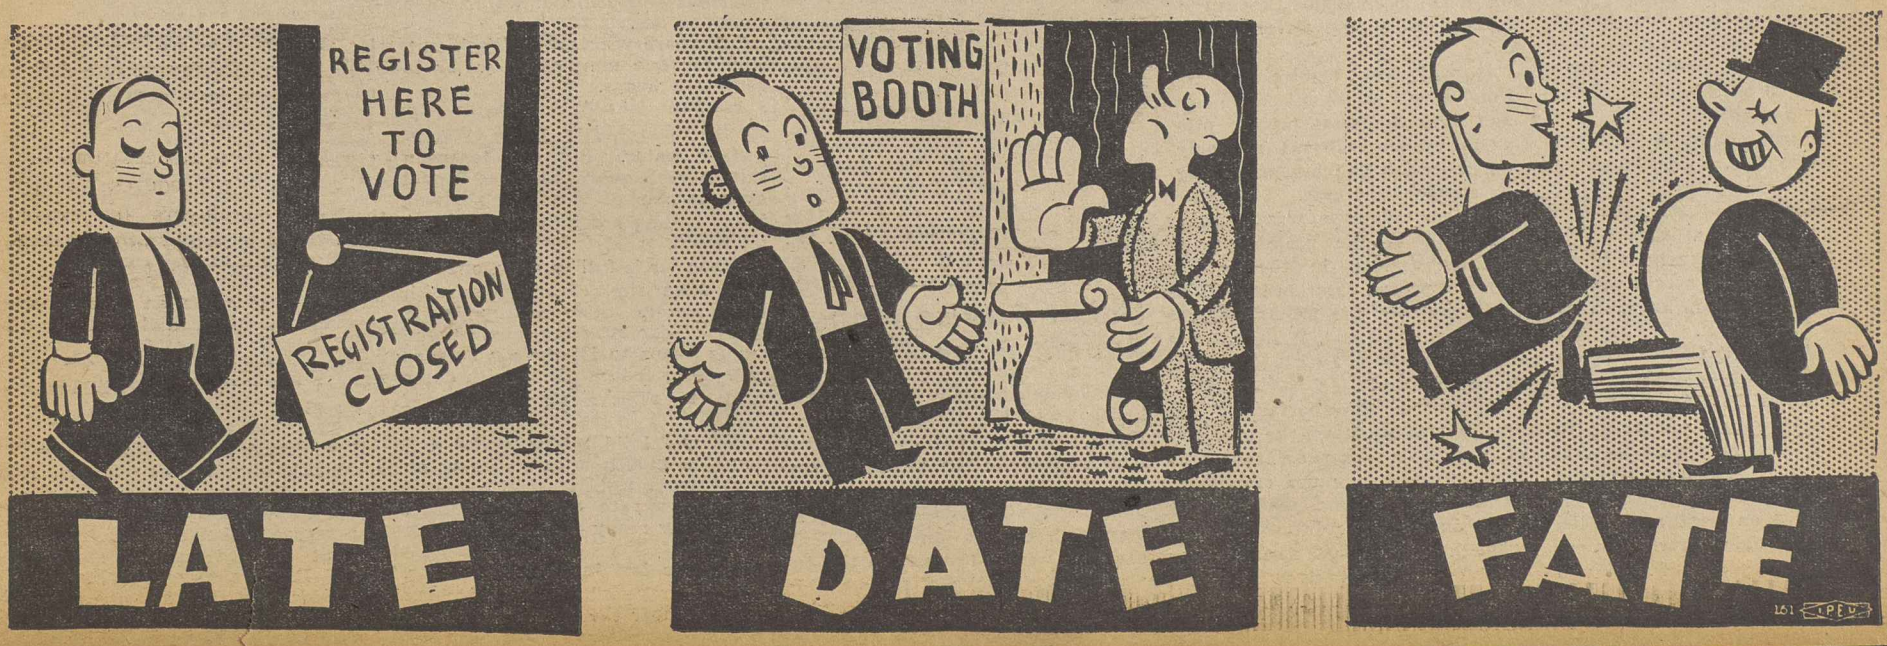
This is the record of the majority of Congress on a selection of the most important home front issues. It isn't a good one—but that does not mean that we cannot work with Congress, or that every Congressman is a reactionary and a defeatist.

The Congress did support war appropriations, lend-lease, the foreign policy of the administration generally. What we must do is show all the Congressmen that the home front and the fighting front are one and the same, that a blow against the home front is a blow against our fighting forces on the European and Pacific battle lines.

Above all, we must prepare now for action in 1944.

The first step here is simple—REGISTER TO VOTE. Remember what happened in 1942—millions of workers didn't vote, because they didn't register, and see the Congress we got. Don't let it happen again.

Don't Let This Happen to You!



Congress 'Fighting 40' Urge Subsidies to Aid Farmers, Consumers

WASHINGTON, July 17—In a major declaration of unity between farmers and consumers, the "Fighting Forty" Congressmen who belong to the newly formed Committee for the Protection of Farmers this week declared that the price rollback must be achieved by subsidies which will protect both farmers and consumers.

"We propose a program of price control and rollback which will guarantee that there shall be no reduction in the prices farmers receive," the committee said in the statement released by its chairman, Rep. Thomas Scanlon (D., Pa.). "Such guarantees can be made by appropriate legislation. Subsidies provide the means by which it is possible to roll back prices without having the cost rolled back on the farmer."

Basic approach on the war food problem must be "that of assisting farmers to increase food production," the committee said. This must include aid to the farmers in shifting from non-essential to essential crops, as well as in producing more food, in stopping wastage of land and other resources, and in helping them on market problems.

This will have to be done despite the opposition of the so-called "farm block" that does not represent the working farmer but rather the food monopolies and the inflation gang that has been working all along in Congress against subsidies and against price control, the statement added.

HIT SCARCITY PLAN

"Their (the farm bloc's) present 'solution' to the food problem is not to increase production—this they have always opposed—but to reduce consumption standards. By creation of scarcity and the attempt to wreck price control and block subsidies they are attempting to lead us directly into inflation and chaos," the committee charged.

Total food production calls for complete mobilization and use of all our resources, which means long-range planning "built on the principles of local, democratic participation in the food production programs," as opposed to the present way of leaving the food program wholly unplanned.

Farm production "cannot be turned on and off merely by pushing a button," the statement pointed out, and because of the long-term risks farmers undertake when they convert one crop to another, or when they expand production, they must be protected against losses which otherwise would put them out of business.

SUBSIDIES WELL KNOWN

"The government has been paying out subsidies in order to bring high-cost mines into operation and it has been using incentive payments in order to stimulate extra production necessary to the war even though its per unit cost is higher," the committee stated.

"There is no reason why such payments should be denied the farmers. If they are to increase production and shift their farm plans to meet war needs they should be safeguarded against loss and their extra costs should be met."

In a final section of the statement, which was signed for the committee by Reps. Scanlon, McMurray (D., Wis.), Feighan (D., Ohio), Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.), Holifield (D., Cal.), Rogers (D., Cal.) and Burdick (R., N. D.), the committee said:

"It is our firm conviction that there is a community of interest between the farmers and consumers. It is to the interest of the farmers and of all other consumers to prevent inflation just as much as it is to their interest to win the war."

Ledyard Heads Stone Union Again

Barre, Vt., July 17—H. C. Ledyard of Fort Wayne, Ind., has been re-elected president of the United Stone & Allied Products Workers, the union's election committee announced this week. W. John Mitchell of Graniteville, Vt., was elected vice-president.

Members elected to the internation executive board are Arthur

H. C. LEYARD

Rouse, John Meldrum, Niel Nielsen and Henry R. Coxon. They will serve until June 30, 1944.

John C. Lawson, secretary-treasurer and executive officer of the union, who is elected for a two-year term, holds office until August 31, 1944.

Charge Firm Incites Riots

Pittsburgh, July 17—Pres. Roosevelt and the Fair Employment Practices Committee this week were asked to investigate anti-Negro provocations by the Westinghouse Airbrake Co. in its Wilmerding, Pa., plant.

In a wire to the President and to Msgr. Francis J. Haas, FEPC chairman, Local 610, United Electrical Radio & Machine Workers, CIO, charged that the company was seeking to incite race riots and warned that a continuance of the provocation "can only lead to a repetition of the incidents which occurred in Detroit and other war centers."

Two stoppages have already taken place in the plant but they were quickly ended through the leadership of UE stewards. Shop gate meetings have been held to instruct and mobilize the 128 stewards and 8,000 union members for defeating company provocations.

Issue Anti-Bias Pamphlet

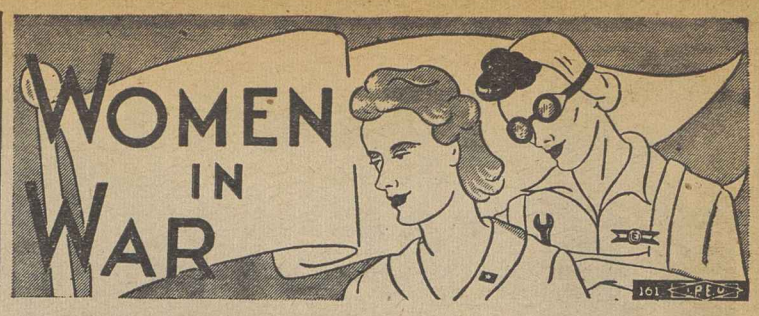
Washington, July 17—A pamphlet designed to assist the campaign to abolish racial discrimination has been published as a reprint by the quarterly, SOUTH TODAY. Entitled "There Are Things to Do," the pamphlet is "beamed" chiefly at white residents of the South.

The author, Lillian E. Smith, points out that white people can make varying contributions to the fight against racial bias, ranging from militant action through labor unions and other progressive organizations to simply the contribution of funds to support such action.

The pamphlet is distributed free by the Natl. CIO Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination; copies may be obtained from the Committee, 718 Jackson Pl. N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

Union Service Men Benefit From Dance

Philadelphia, July 17—Westinghouse Local 107, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers members who are in the Armed Forces, will benefit from the proceeds of an elaborate ball which was held in mammoth Convention Hall. Thousands of war workers from the entire industrial area of Philadelphia were invited to attend the affair.



NMU Auxiliary Puts Political Action In No. 1 Role on Agenda

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

"We want the auxiliary to become the political right arm of the union." That was the message that Vice-President Myers of the National Maritime Union brought to the second annual conference of the NMU auxiliaries in New York July 8. And the auxiliary responded by putting political action first on the program of war activities for this coming year.

Brother Myers pointed out to the delegates that the union was no longer primarily concerned with economic issues, that the welfare of each union member was directly bound up with speedy victory of the United Nations, and that giving leadership in mobilizing the people of this country to support our commander-in-chief was a major part of the union program.

NMU members spend most of their time on the high seas—so the union must depend on the families of their members—and especially on the women who are or should be in the auxiliary—to do the home front job.

The union doesn't expect them to shoulder this task alone. One full-time auxiliary organizer is already on the union payroll, and more help will be given.

Our NMU sisters deserve enormous credit. Four of the delegates this year were women who have lost their husbands in torpedoings at sea. All of them have been through heart-sick months wondering whether their men would come back. And yet they encourage those men to ship back out to deliver the goods while they organize the women to get behind the President's victory program at home.

We've all got to follow their example. President Murray said on the air last Sunday: "The CIO has decided that the time has come for labor to take the lead in mobilizing popular support behind our commander-in-chief and his victory program."

That means that the auxiliaries everywhere must get on the job. With 800,000 CIO men serving in the armed forces, the political importance of women is constantly increasing, and we women in the auxiliaries, in cooperaton with our sisters in industry, must assume a tremendous responsibility for mobilizing our communities behind the CIO program.

CIO and AFL auxiliaries meeting last week-end in a conference sponsored by the Women's Trade Union League at Hudson Shore Labor School agreed to urge all auxiliaries to concentrate in the next nine weeks on work on their Congressmen.

The July News Letter of the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries is on this one issue: What to do during the recess to send your Congressman back committed to support the win-the-war program of our commander-in-chief. The Civilian War Front

Report 'Deal' Made On Subsidies

FLASH: As this column was being set up, Lou Maxon, deputy administrator of OPA in charge of publicity, resigned. His passing was mourned only by the food trusts.

By the CIO Cost of Living Committee

Labor circles were flabbergasted when they heard reports that after Congress went home a last minute deal had been made to save the existing rollback subsidy on meat and butter on the promise that the Administration would not attempt any further subsidy rollbacks. If true this would mean the abandonment of the effort to push back prices to last September levels after only a token rollback had been achieved.

The President himself had indicated that one and a half to two billion dollars a year were necessary to achieve a complete rollback and hold the cost of living at last fall's levels. The subsidy program thus far is less than $500 million, or a fourth of the required amount. Also the fresh vegetable rollbacks which were to have been made without subsidies seem to have been halted after very small accomplishments. A commitment may have been entered on this phase of the program as well.

On the other hand, according to the same reports, a free hand was obtained for using subsidies to hold the prices of food necessities at their present levels. With a War Food Administrator who will cooperate with the administration, this phase of program has a chance of being carried out.

It is significant, in this connection, that he turned down the demands of the farm bloc for raising the loan rate on wheat to parity and thus forced up the price of flour and bread. On the other hand, ceilings have not yet been placed on hogs and cattle, a condition which practically ensures the breakdown of retail and wholesale meat price control, with or without subsides.

Proof of the tragic incompetence of Prentiss Brown as Price Administrator is daily piling up.

In the last days of Congress before the recess he lobbied on Capitol Hill to loosen the ban on grade labeling and standardization which had been inserted in the OPA appropriation act. But as a result of his own lack of enthusiasm for these steps, the ban was reinforced and made permanent through an amendment to the Price Control Act.

It will now require a legal Houdini to wriggle out of the ban and save the meat pricing program, which is based not only on grade labeling but on pricing by standardized cuts.

Another blunder was Brown's relaxation of the prohibition on pleasure driving in the eastern states to permit vacation trips. This was done over the protests of the rationing staff, and, if reports are true, in accordance with the advice of Lou Maxon.

In view of the shortage of gas on the east coast and the necessity of prohibiting non-essential driving, to permit the use of gas for vacation trips means creating a gas crisis in the near future. This is what happened last spring when Maxon persuaded Brown to lift the first pleasure ban.

Pressure Cooker's Use—from Peelings Down to Pabulum

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

Since much has been said about the use of pressure cookers in general, I've had a special request to describe exactly how to use one in particular, when canning string beans, for example. Here is an outline that tells you step by step how to do it. You can follow the same procedure for all non-acid vegetables.

First, get yourself a pencil, sheet of paper and a clock, then:

1. Heat pressure cooker with two inches of water so water will be hot when jars are ready to go in.

2. Sterilize equpiment.

Jars—Wash in soapy hot water, rinse in hot water, set on pan in oven for two minutes at 250 degrees or boil for 10 minutes, remove when needed.

Funnel (wide mouth), spatula or knife, boil 10 minutes.

Lids—Glass lids like jars. Metal lids do not have to be sterilized. Glass lids may break in pressure cooker. Safer to use metal ones.

Rubbers—Dip in hot water when ready to use.

3. Prepare vegetables—Wash, cut. Boil for five minutes in water to cover the beans.

4. Fill jars—When beans are ready, remove jars from oven or boiling water. Put one teaspoon salt in each quart jar. Set funnel over mouth of jar. Pack string beans boiling hot into jar, draining off liquid.

When jar is full to neck, one-half inch from rim, cover beans with bean water. Slide spatula along sides of jar pressing against the string beans to let the air bubbles out. Wipe mouth of jar with damp cloth to remove all particles of food.

Dip metal lid in hot water and place on mouth of jar. Screw on metal band tightly. Lift jar and tilt sideways to test for leakage. Jar is now ready to go in pressure cooker.

5. Place jars in pressure cooker.

Set your pencil, paper and clock on table near the cooker. Set jars in cooker so that air will circulate around them. Screw on clamp tightly. Open petcock and safety valve on top of cover to let steam escape. Turn flame up high to get steam going.

As soon as a wisp of steam escapes from the petcock, start timing yourself. Suppose it's 10 o'clock. Write out your time chart and follow it exactly. It should look lke this:

Starting time. Open petcock and valve—flame high.....10:00 a.m.
Exhaust seven minutes. (Let steam escape)—flame high.10:07 a.m.
Raise pressure to 10 pounds in 20 minutes—flame medium .....10:27 a.m.
(Close petcock and valve)
Keep pressure at 10 pounds for 35 minutes—adjust flame up or down .....11:02 a.m.
Lower pressure to zero in 20 minutes—flame low (open petcock and valve slowly)..11:22 a.m.
Let steam escape three minutes—flame off (valve completely open) .....11:25 a.m.

Raising and lowering pressure slowly will prevent the liquid in the jars from drying out. Food not covered by liquid will discolor.

6. Remove jars and cool.

Unscrew clamp, uncover. Lift jars out and place on newspaper two inches apart and out of a draft. Allow to cool for 24 hours without moving. Don't try to tighten the caps. That will break the seal.

7. Test jars for spoilage.

Next day, tap cap with a spoon; a metallic ring means the seal is okay, a dull thud means remove the cap, use a new one and process in pressure cooker again. Keep the jars at room temperature for a week. Remove screw bands.

8. Store in a cool, dry place. And good luck to you!

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

Hugh Thompson, director in Buffalo, reports victory in an election at the Jamestown Worsted Mills, Jamestown, N. Y., by a vote of 367 for the Textile Workers to 175 for no union.

Harvey C. Fremming, director, Kansas City, Mo., sends in the results of an election at the Wilson Sporting Goods Co., 170, for Amalgamated Clothing Workers to 71 for no union. Sidney Cohen, research director for the Oil Workers Organizing Campaign, reports the following victories: West States Petroleum Company, Long Beach, Calif., OWIU 100 per cent; Pure Oil Production Dept., Dawes, W. Va., 95 per cent. Good work!

Frank Bonacci, director in Colorado, sends in the following election victory for the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, 263 for IUMM&SW-CIO to 108 for no union.

The Cannery, Agricultural, Packing and Allied Workers won an election at the Quaker Oats plant at St. Joseph, Mo., by a vote of 209 for UCAPAWA to 93 for no union. All the big Quaker Oats plants are now UCAPAWA: Akron, Cedar Rapids, Memphis, Depew, N. Y., and now St. Joseph.

Two More for Aluminum Workers

CIO Field Rep. William R. Henderson, Little Rock, Ark., reports that the Aluminum Workers won two elections at Bauxite; one at the West Bauxite Plant of the American Cyanamid and Chemical Co., 19 to 0; the other at the Ozark Plant of the same company, 24 for AWA-CIO, 3 for District 50 and 5 for no union. A. F. Hartung, director in Portland, Ore., also reports a victory for the Aluminum workers at the plant at Troutdale, Ore., where a run-off election resulted in CIO winning, 157 and AFL 141 votes. Harvey C. Fremming sends in another election victory: U. S. Gypsum Co., CIO 54, to 6 for neither. Anthony J. Federoff, director, Pittsburgh, Pa., reports that CIO won the run-off among the welders at the Dravo Shipyard by a vote of 978 for IUM&SWA to 693 for Independent Welders Union.

At the meeting of the CIO executive board July 7 and 8 a committee was set up, composed of Sidney Hillman, chairman; R. J. Thomas, secretary; Albert J. Fitzgerald; Van A. Bittner, or David J. McDonald to map out a political action program.

Another committee was set up with George F. Addes, David J. McDonald, Julius Emspak and James B. Carey. This committee is meeting in Detroit July 15 for the purpose of mapping out plans to promote local and regional conferences to rally wide popular attention to the record of the Congressmen and Senators during the period that Congress is in recess and while they are home.

The first conference of this committe is in Philadelphia, July 17, at the Warwick Hotel, to which CIO representatives in the eastern area have been invited. Another conference is scheduled for Chicago July 23, to which representatives of other areas will be invited.

It will be the duty of this committee to bring forcibly to the attention of the Congressmen and the voters the necessity for supporting President Roosevelt's program which is to unite our domestic front with our war front.

To Help Crush the Axis

Australians Urge United Labor Front

MELBOURNE, July 17 (ALN)—In a decision of far-reaching importance, the Australian Council of Trade Unions, at its five-day convention held here last week, voted for the establishment of "a united home front of all working-class organizations as essential for the defeat of the Axis and the reelection of the Curtin Labor government." Two hundred and seventy delegates were present, representing 800,000 of Australia's 1,100,000 trade unionists.

The vote for national labor unity virtually assures the return of Prime Minister John Curtin's government with an increased majority at the next general election—to be held probably August 21.

The tory opposition had relied upon the split in the labor movement to put them back into office.

Emphasizing that international labor unity is as important today as domestic labor unity, the ACTU voted to affiliate with the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee, and further called upon that committee to convene a world labor congress at the earliest opportunity "so that international labor may play its maximum part in winning the war and building the peace."

The convention also called for "the immediate opening of a second front in western Europe."

ANTI-STRIKE PLEDGE

Pledging to "continue labor's successful efforts to reduce the number of strikes and absenteeism" and to work for maximum war production, the ACTU called upon all its affiliates "to campaign vigorously for the setting up of joint committees in all private industries as well as government factories."

Newspaper reports of absenteeism were condemned as "grossly exaggerated," and government enquiries were cited as showing that most absenteeism was due to fatigue caused by excess working hours.

President-elect Clarey pointed out that whereas the average number of man-days lost per month through industrial disputes was 125,604 in 1940 and 82,015 in 1941—years when the Menzies and Fadden governments were in office—in 1942, under the Labor government, only 32,872 were lost.

The government was called upon to amend its wage-pegging regulations, so as to allow pegged wages to be brought in line with wages of workers who have been given wartime increases.

FDR Hits Dies-Kerr Blacklist Firings

WASHINGTON, July 17—The Dies-Kerr blacklist gang got a powerful setback this week when President Roosevelt flatly refused to accept the firing of three Federal employes who had been smeared as "prematurely and excessively" anti-fascist.

The attempted firing was done in a rider to an appropriation bill that called for dismissal by November 15 of Robert Morss Lovett, Goodwin L. Watson and William E. Dodd, Jr., unless they were reappointed by FDR and confirmed by the Senate.

Revealing his action in a press conference, the President told newsmen that the blacklist was unconstitutional and a bill of attainder—i. e., a law to punish three individuals who were not given a trial.

The Dies-Kerr disunity team got after Lovett, Watson and Dodd as a part of the general drive to harass the Administration and to hamper the work of U. S. war agencies by attacking their personnel.

They were accused of the "crime" of having been opposed to Fascism before Pearl Harbor, of having advocated collective security, and of having worked with anti-fascist organizations.

The President's statement was made in connection with a message he plans to send to Congress on the subject when it meets again in September. He explained that he did not want to veto the appropriation bill because it provided needed funds for war agencies, and because Congress had recessed within a few days after passing the rider.

During the fight against the Congressional blacklist, the Senate several times voted down the proposed firing of Lovett, Watson and Dodd, but finally backed down on the November 15 arrangement.

New Haven CIO Backs Price Control Fight

New Haven, Conn., July 17 — A broad front in the fight for effective price control has been developed by the New Haven Industrial Union Council Cost of Living Committee.

Enrolled in the battle have been such groups and persons as the Mayor of New Haven, the Retail Merchants Assn., the Conference of Social Legislation, the Consumers League of Connecticut and cooperative stores.

Committees from the organizations have been meeting with the CIO committee. The Mayor has pledged that he will do all he can to assist in the campaign.

Realizing that the fight must be carried on nationally as well as locally, the CIO committee in a letter to Rep. Thomas Scanlon thanked him for his assistance in forming the Congressional "Fighting Forty" — a group of legislators pledged to support the Roosevelt administration's drive for control of prices to help prevent inflation.

According to estimates, 3,000 tons of tin will be saved in 1943 and 5,000 tons in 1944 by reducing the tin content of tin cans and adding silver to the lead base of new cans being manufactured.

Chinese Guerrilla Unions Free

Chungking, July 17 (ALN)—Unions in the guerrilla areas of North China differ from those in Free China in one important respect: they are controlled by the workers themselves rather than by the government. Whereas the officers of the Chinese Association of Labor—only labor organization in Free China recognized by the government—are appointed by the Ministry of Social Welfare in Chungking, officers of the North China unions are elected by the membership and are subject to recall.

MOBILIZATION LAW

The National Mobilization Law, passed by the Chungking government last year, made membership in CAL unions compulsory; membership in North China unions is voluntary, and workers are free to withdraw at any time they wish.

According to the constitution of the General Labor Union of the Shensi-Kansu-Ningshia Border Region, all workers are free to join the union "regardless of age, sex, nationality, political affiliation or religion." The only qualification for membership is that a worker "must abide by the union rules and pay dues."

The officers of the union, who must be members in good standing, are elected by referendum vote and "if found unworthy of the confidence placed in them, they can be recalled immediately and others elected in their place." All workers have the right to express themselves freely at membership meetings.

Depsite the fact that 78 per cent of the industry in the Border Region is owned by the government, the General Labor Union is an independent organization.

Georgia CIO Parley Hits Congress for Crippling Roosevelt War Program

By LUCY MASON

ATLANTA, Ga., July 17—The Georgia State Industrial Union Council, which met in Dalton, Ga., July 11, represented unions in many industries and from numerous communities.

The convention adopted resolutions upholding President Roosevelt in his fight with Congress to preserve the Administration's war program, prevent inflation and maintain democracy in America, and condemning the anti-labor attitude of the majority of Congress.

Charles H. Gillman of the United Automobile Workers was re-elected president without opposition. Other officers elected were Eunith Painter, Textile Workers Union, vice-president, and Lloyd Gossett, TWU, secretary-treasurer.

President Gillman reported on the progress made during the past year in Georgia, including many contracts and new activities. He emphasized the importance of political action and described the work of Victory Committees on blood donations, scrap collection, sale of war bonds and stamps, and entertainment for servicemen.

SUPPORT MURRAY

In the few instances in which management has agreed to the setting up of labor-management committees, he said, the CIO has also done a good job.

Delegates passed resolutions praising the leadership of CIO President Philip Murray and pledged full support to the progressive policies of CIO and of President Roosevelt. Congress was condemned for wiping out 75 per cent of the 1942 taxes, for crippling the National Labor Relations Board and for passing the Smith-Connally bill.

The need for educational work among union members was taken up by the convention and a resolution was passed urging local unions and state and city CIO Councils to set up educational committees.

Mary Lawrance, who conducted a six months' educational program for Atlanta unions, reported on the project. She stressed the growing need for wider educational activities to strengthen unions, particularly for the post-war period.

CIO Reporter Writing for 'Yank'

LONDON, July 17 — Sgt. Walter Peters, former reporter for the CIO NEWS, is a roving correspondent for the British edition of "Yank," the U. S. Army's weekly magazine.

Peters, who has become an expert observer of the training American troops are receiving for the invasion of Europe, has "covered" stories of amphibious operations, has sailed on a Polish destroyer and has interviewed members of the Polish Air Force.

Peters' face is familiar to American troops in the European Theater of operations as the PFC (private first class) whose picture has appeared often in "Yank" posing in outlandish uniform with a beautiful girl who does his kitchen police details for him.

Win War First, Set Up Jobs-for-all Plan With Peace—UAW

DETROIT, July 17—A seven-point post-war program adopted by the executive board of the CIO United Automobile Workers and formulated "in the conviction that its popularization now can serve as a powerful stimulus to the immediate job of wining the war," was released here by the UAW.

Asserting that "the immediate and primary task of the UAW-CIO, as it is of the entire nation, is to plan and work for an early and unconditional surrender of the Axis powers," the board declared that this objective requires "an increase to the utmost of unity and collaboration of all the United Nations, and on the national plane the over-all planned mobilization of our forces of production."

The program calls for representation for organized labor in all government agencies during the war; close and effective cooperation between the labor movements of all nations, and an international conference of representatives of organized labor of all the United Nations "to make effective labor's voice in the prosecution of the war, the formulation of the peace and the plans for a post-war world."

RECONVERSION PLAN

In a section on planning for reconversion of industry, the program urges the establishment of national industry-wide councils with equal labor participation to work out reconversion schedules.

A section on planning for full production and full employment calls for government or municipal ownership and operation of monopolistic industries, government control of other industries, and a gigantic planned national construction program."

A comprehensive plan for the health, education and security of the American people, and a post-war tax program based on the principle of ability to pay, conclude the program.

Murray Calls For Unity Behind Win-War Program

PITTSBURGH, July 17—An appeal to the American people to join with the CIO and the rest of organized labor in demanding that Congress enact a home-front program which will be a real contribution toward the defeat of the Fasicst Axis was broadcast last weekend by CIO President Philip Murray. He spoke over an NBC national hookup on CIO's "Labor for Victory" program.

Murray told the radio audience—numbering in the millions—that too many members of Congress have measured legislation not in terms of what it will do for the war but in terms of "labor-baiting, administration-baiting, and politics-as-usual."

He warned that "the fight on the home front, joined with the fight on the battle front, is the only way toward victory."

Reiterating CIO's no-strike pledge, Murray described the Smith-Connally anti-labor bill as one of the worst acts of Congress.

WARNING

"Its effect on our whole war production indeed may be most serious," he declared. "Congress well knew that the American workers have a production record of more than 99 per cent perfection; that is, that only a fraction of one per cent of the workers have engaged in unlawful strikes.

"This law tells the workers of this nation how they may go on strike even in war time. It seems as if Congress was seeking to bait labor into strike action. If that was the objective, I can assure you that we will not fall into any such traps.

FIGHTS INFLATION

"Not only do we intend to make the Smith-Connally Act useless through continuing each day to establish new production records. but we intend to do all we can to have the law repealed."

Murray pointed out that another key point in the home front fight is the battle against inflation. Declaring that labor enthusiastically welcomed President Roosevelt's seven-point program for control of the nation's economy and for prevention of inflation, Murray said:

"Labor was the first to make its sacrifice for the success of this program by accepting the principle of wage stabilization. But while labor has made this sacrifice, the rest of the anti-inflation program has bogged down."

"If the actions of Congress prevent a real rollback of living costs to the level of September 15, 1942, labor will have no other recourse than to demand a revision of the Little Steel formula, so that wages may be brought up to the present level of prices," Murray said.

Labor Press Wins Praise From Army

Chicago, July 17—The labor press was congratulated this week by Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, U. S. Adjutant-General, speaking at the Midwest Conference of the American Labor Press Assn., "on the job you have done to shorten our casualty lists by promoting an uninterrupted flow of weapons."

He urged labor editors to do all they can to combat complacency, "to dispel the feeling that we've got the war as good as won."

The conference was attended by several hundred editors of CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhood publications. They discussed particularly the question of labor's public relations and labor propaganda to promote the war effort.

SET UP BRANCH

Establishment of a permanent midwestern branch of the ALPA was voted, and approval given to publication of an ALPA semi-monthly paper to popularize outstanding material appearing in the labor press.

The national CIO was represented at the conference by Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey and Publicity Director Len De Caux.

Speaking at the session on post-war problems, Carey urged increased labor concern with international affairs. He pointed to the labor movement in Europe as one of the strongest guarantees of the restoration of the people's rights.

The United States, Carey said, should encourage labor movements in liberated Europe "as a means of fostering democratic organization and ideals."

Expressing the eagerness of the CIO press to cooperate with all other sections of labor for the promotion of the war effort, De Caux stressed particularly the importance of united action on the legislative and political fields.

"The labor press," he said, "has a leading role to play in the present overdue trend of labor to greater and more effective political action."

J. B. S. Hardman, Amalgamated Clothing Workers' editor, presided over the sessions as president of the ALPA, which was formed two years ago to bring together CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhood editors "for prosecution of common tasks in the national effort to win the war and win the peace."

UE-Westinghouse Pact Provides For Incentive Pay

NEW YORK, July 17—The United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers Union this week described as "one of the outstanding features" of a new contract with the Westinghouse Corp. an "agreement for day workers, based upon the additional production made necessary by the war effort." The contract, which has been tentatively agreed upon by negotiating committees, has been submitted to locals representing 75,000 production workers for their ratification.

"The adjustment plan, which is to be worked out locally in each plant, will insure additional earnings of at least 15 per cent for day workers, with a 30 per cent top limit for increased day work takeout," the UE stated.

The new contract also provides that:

1. Jobs previously performed by men, for which no men are available, shall remain "men's jobs" so far as pay is concerned even though they are performed by women.

2. Women doing "men's jobs" shall receive men's pay, and when a woman is placed on a man's job, she shall not be replaced by a newly hired man.

3. For the war emergency, all new jobs shall be established as "men's jobs," whether performed by men or women.

4. "Temporary" time values, which leave the way open for the wage cuts, will become permanent at the end of six months unless permanent ones have been established earlier.

5. All adjustments ordered by the government during 1943 because of the increased cost of living will become retroactive to April 8, 1943.

Commenting editorially on the contrast between the orderly negotiations with Westinghouse during the past three and a half months and the disorderly, defeatist, strike policy of John L. Lewis, the UE NEWS stated:

MINERS GOT LITTLE

"What did the miners come out with?

"For themselves, a petty vacation change. For their country, disruption and delay of the war effort. For themselves and the rest of the labor movement, the Nazi-pattern Smith-Connally bill.

"The results of the UE-Westinghouse negotiations were different. The UE has reached an agreement that accords to day workers the added pay that their added effort on behalf of war production entitles them to.

"The UE has achieved further protection of the rates and jobs of women workers that will permit them to make even fuller contribution to the war effort.

"The UE has placed additional safeguards around the rates of incentive workers that will yield to the country the extra productive effort so vitally needed, and at the same time yield corresponding extra compensation to the soldiers of production."

NMU Hails FDR, Urges Strong Stand Against Appeasers

NEW YORK, July 17—President Joseph Curran ended the Fourth Natl. Maritime Union Convention here this week with the union's "blessings to our Commander-in-Chief." Curran said: "We are behind you, President Roosevelt. Stand up strong against all appeasement—all local fascists. Go forward with your war effort. Go forward with your plans of Casablanca. Go forward with your Atlantic Charter. Our membership, our union, our resources are behind you. You can win this war in a short time. You can defeat the appeasers and you can build a new world out of the old one. And we will fight with you to get it."

Curran congratulated the 248 delegates on the progressive program they had adopted, "a program that will go down through history as the most progressive ever adopted by seamen's unions." He stressed four main features of that program:

1. First and foremost, the union's pledge "to make every sacrifice to assure the winning of the war."

2. Maintenance of the gains made since the building of the union.

3. The fight against appeasement, particularly on the political front. "We will see to it that our full weight is thrown behind defeat of those reactionaries in Congress who hinder the war effort.'

4. The fight to gain adoption of the union's postwar plan.

Curran brought the delegates to their feet when he said, "We adopted a no-strike pladge after Pearl Harbor. We reaffirmed that pledge in this convention. We repeat that there are absolutely no strings attached to that pledge. Regardless of what sacrifices we're called upon to make, we will allow nothing to interfere with the winning of this war."

The convention had high praise for Philip Murray, in a resolution that said:

"Philip Murray, as president of CIO, has given wise and forthright leadership to the American labor movement. He has been the outstanding spokesman in setting forth clearly and strongly labor's policies and programs for victory.

"His leadership on the pressing problems of wages, prices, taxes, over-all planning and labor-management cooperation has unified the CIO as never before, and charted a course to maximum production for all labor to follow.

"His knowledge, ability and courage have enabled American labor to make enormous contributions to our war effort, and will lead us to more miraculous exertions.

"Therefore Be It Resolved: That this convention send heartfelt fraternal greetings to President Philip Murray, thank him for his able sponsorship of the interests of American and international labor; and that we pledge full support to the policies he has laid down as president of CIO."

GOOD REMINDER: Lovely Gloria DeHaven, a member of Screen Actors Guild, points to the calendar to remind us that today and every day is a good time to buy war bonds and stamps in the national drive for $130,000,000 to build the Navy's new aircraft carrier Shangri-La. (Federated Pictures.)

CIO Launches Big Political Action Drive

CIO went to the people this week to tell the Story of Washington—how Congressional reactionaries have been hampering the war by wrecking price control, by forbidding subsidies, by enacting an unfair tax program, and by fighting labor, the productive force behind the vast war effort. Two CIO political committees jumped into action to mobilize ALL win-the-war forces in the nation—labor and non-labor—behind FDR's home-front program to support his fighting front policy of an "unconditional surrender" victory over the Axis.

Wallace Blasts Imperialists, Calls For Free World

"Imperialistic freebooters" who can make possible another world conflict were mercilessly tongue-lashed this week by Vice-President Henry A. Wallace at a Detroit rally, where he called for a new world after the war that will guarantee to all the right of free existence and adequate food, clothing and shelter to live a good life.

Speed-Bond-Sale Plan Urged For All CIO Unions

WASHINGTON, July 24—A plan for speeding up the purchase of War Bonds to be carried out in connection with the celebration of Labor Day was presented to all CIO offiliates this week by President Philip Murray.

Pointing to the excellent record established by Labor in the production of war materials, as well as in the purchase of bonds, President Murray presented a plan in cooperation with the U. S. Treasury department, urging that:

Members of each unit of the CIO, from the smallest local to the largest International Unions, invest between now and Labor Day a sufficient sum of money in War Bonds to underwrite the cost of some form of war material, ranging from a "peep" costing $1,165 to more expensive items, such as bombers and pursuit ships.

"It is hoped that Labor Day celebrations in various cities may include the exhibition of some of the war machines thus financed," Murray stated. "A Labor Day celebration of this sort will enable the members of organized labor to demonstrate to the American people in a factual and convincing way the impressive contribution to the national war effort."

CIO Wins At South's Oldest Mill

Durham, N. C., July 24—The oldest full fashioned hosiery manufacturing plant in the South, the Durham Hosiery Mills, has signed its first agreement with the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

The contract covers some 420 production and maintenance employes in the full fashioned, seamless, box and printing shops, and calls for paid vacations, the first ever given the employes.

Effective until August 31, 1944, the agreement provides maintenance of union membership, check-off of dues, protection of seniority rights and other standard union terms.

Unionists Tops as War Bond Buyers

WASHINGTON, July 24—Chalk up another merit award for unions' outstanding support of the war effort. A nation-wide survey of public opiinon conducted by a research group at Princeton University shows that union members are buying far more War Bonds than other people in the same income group.

About 90 per cent of the union members, practically all of whom come in the lower 50 per cent income group, are buying bonds, compared to only 69 per cent for non-union members in the same income class.

Figures for the nation as a whole show that 16.7 per cent have bought bonds.

Pamphlet Bares Fascist Activity

Detroit, July 24—An inventory of Fascist organizations and their leaders in this city which may throw light upon the recent race riots is given in a pamphlet, "Hell-Brewers of Detroit," written by Claude Williams, director of the People's Institute of Applied Religion, Room 1109 Kales Bldg., Detroit 26.

In addition to the better known groups more or less openly anti-Negro, anti-Semitic and anti-labor, Williams says there are several thousand "workaday preachers" who hold jobs in the plants of Detroit and vicinity and preach in their spare time.

Calling them "not vicious but misinformed," Williams says they "divide the people by teaching racism, anti-Semitism, anti-unionism, defeatism."

JOIN RED CROSS: Two former CIO union organizers, Rosanne Walker, left, and Rose Bush, were announced as "safe arrivals" in North Africa this week, where they will serve the Red Cross as clubmobile workers, handing out coffee and hamburgers like they're enjoying, and performing other tasks to ease the burdens of our fighting forces. Miss Walker was formerly an organizer for the United Retail & Wholesale Workers and the United Steelworkers, and Miss Bush worked for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the Textile Workers.

Labor Court Rules for Steelworkers

Toronto, July 24—Ontario's new Labor Court, introduced by the government on the eve of an election, certified the United Steelworkers of America as bargaining agency in the first case before it this week and in a supplementary judgment dealt a death blow to a company union organization which had sought to have a bargaining committee elected by union and non union workers.

The decision is considered of far-reaching importance because the organization whose proposal was rejected is known as the Industrial Relations Institute, and it contemplated having such a formula adopted for company unions it represents.

The institute is in favor of having legitimate unions certified as bargaining agency and then proposed that they retire from the scene to be replaced by a council elected by all employes, irrespective of whether they belonged to the union. The institute was formed just before a collective bargaining act was introduced by the government

Rubber Union Spikes 'Leaving CIO' Story

AKRON, O., July 24—Statements published in the Akron BEACON-JOURNAL that the United Rubber Workers of America will leave the CIO and join the AFL are pure bunk, URWA President Sherman H. Dalrymple declared this week.

"I have read with amazement the allegedly 'reliable' report that the United Rubber Workers will repudiate the CIO and rejoin the AFL under the leadership of John L. Lewis," he said.

"The report is sheer and unadulterated nonsense. The United Rubber Workers of America is 100 per cent loyal to the CIO and its leadership, typified by Philip Murray. We have no intention of deserting the CIO.

"This goes not only for the International Union, for our local unions as well. I know of no local union whose loyalty to the CIO and its policies can be questioned.

"I think the Beacon-Journal owes it to the working people of this community to insist that the writer, Mr. Clifford Prevost, name his alleged 'highly reliable sources.' In my opinion the sources exist largely in Mr. Prevost's imagination—but why the Beacon should give extended space to Mr. Prevost's imaginative activties is beyond my understanding."

Tenn. Junks Repeal Of Polltax, Proves U.S. Action Needed

WASHINGTON, July 24—Repeal of the polltax in Tennessee, passed by an overwhelming majority at the last state legislature, has been declared unconstitutional by the Tennessee Supreme Court. By a margin of one vote, the Court in a 3-to-2 decision denied a free vote to 3,000,000 Tennesseans, and to 200,000 young men now in the armed forces.

Blaming the Crump political machine in Memphis for this defeat, the National Committee to Abolish the Polltax stated here this week that the "will of the people has been set aside by a packed judiciary of polltax appointees.

BLAME JUDICIARY

"Thus in the one state of all the eight polltax states where repeal of the polltax by state legislation was thought possible, it has now been shown to be impossible by a polltax packed judiciary."

The committee declared that the one course left open "to guarantee a full and free democratic election in 1944, the election which will decide the shape of the war and the peace," is the enactment by the Senate of the anti-polltax bill passed by the House on May 25 by a majority of 265 to 110.

"Ten million American citizens, workers and farmers, white and black, fathers and mothers of our heroic fighting men are looking to the Senate to act swiftly," the Committee said. "The fate of American democracy rests in the hands of the Senate as surely as it does in the hands of our troops."

FDR Flays Race Riots As Anti-War

Washington, July 24—President Roosevelt denounced race riots as harmful to our national unity and a comfort to our enemies in a letter sent this week to Representative Vito Marcantonio of New York. The letter to Marcantonio follows:

"I share your feeling that the recent outbreaks of violence in widely scattered parts of the country endanger our national unity and comfort our enemies. I am sure that every true American regrets this.

"I have asked the heads of several government agencies, including the Attorney General, to give special attention to the problem."

CIO Man Gets Post as War Correspondent

Washington, July 24—Roi Ottley, publicity director of CIO's War Relief Committee, has been named a special war correspondent of LIBERTY Magazine, he said this week.

Ottley will go to North Africa, India and China to report "how colored working people feel about the war," he declared.

Aside from the reportorial assignment, Ottley will collect material for a forthcoming book, "Warriors All."

CIO's Position:—

NLRB Rider Does Not Give 'Clean Bill' To Company Unions

WASHINGTON, July 24—CIO's position on the National Labor Relations Board rider which sets a three-months protest limit in cases involving company unions was outlined this week by a special committee appointed by President Philip Murray. The committee held that the rider does not give company unions a "clean bill of health."

The rider forbids NLRB action in connection with complaints arising over agreements between labor and management that have been in existence three months or more prior to the filing of any complaint, thus seemingly giving a clean bill of health to collusive agreements that employers could make with company unions to check legitimate organization.

The CIO committee, composed of George Addes, O. A. Knight, Worth Lowery, Philip Van Gelder and General Counsel Lee Pressman, held differently, however. In a memorandum covering a conference between the committee and the NLRB, the committee reported:

"Where a charge is filed under the NLRB alleging the existence of a company union, the board should proceed with this case regardless of whether there is a contract outstanding between the company and the company union.

"Any other conclusion would be an invitation to companies to establish company unions and enter into contracts.

"Where there are agreements that cannot be disturbed in a complaint case because of the rider, there is nothing to prevent the board from accepting a petition for an election by a rival union and permitting such rival union to show that the outstanding contract is a collusive one and the election should be held."

The committee pointed out that the Board's refusal to hold an election in the face of an outstanding contract is based on an administrative ruling, not on any absolute requirement.

WOULD DENY RIGHTS

"The failure of the Board to follow this policy will deny to employes, where there are collusive contracts, an opportunity to choose their own collective bargaining representative in accordance with the basic policies of the NLRA," the CIO committee stated.

The CIO committee pointed out that Board fears are groundless that employers in these situations might refuse to bargain with unions. Under the rule of the National War Labor Board, the committee explained, administrative orders of the NLRB are final and the WLB would be compelled to direct recalcitrant companies to bargain with the certified union.

USA Wins Appointment Of Arbitrators to Settle Bethlehem Grievances

WASHINGTON, July 24—Demands of the United Steelworkers of America that Bethlehem Steel settle long outstanding grievances bore fruit this week as the union and the company, meeting with War Labor Board officials, agreed on the appointment of five temporary arbitrators to handle on a regional basis the cases in dispute.

The matter was brought to a head by USA Pres. Philip Murray, who demanded immediate action following a conference in Pittsburgh of USA directors from regions where Bethlehem mills are located.

The USA has "repeatedly urged the management of this corporation to join with the representatives of our union, through the use of the grievance machinery, to provide reasonably fast disposition of grievances," Murray said.

Reports of Bethlehem's refusal to settle grievances were made by virtually every USA-CIO district director at the Pittsburgh conference.

BMI Goes CIO After Long Battle

Denver, July 24 — Successfully combatting a campaign of anti-union terror reminiscent of the days when civil liberty was simply a philosophy to be openly violated by employers, the CIO Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Union this week clinched its organization of Basic Magnesium Inc. after a long struggle.

The firm operates the largest magnesium plant in the Nation and is the biggest industrial enterprise in Nevada.

This week the National Labor Relations Board certified MM&SW Local 629 as the bargaining agency for BMI employes.

Ask Runoff Vote at Glenn Martin Plant

Baltimore, Md., July 24—Petition for a run-off election at the big Glenn L. Martin aircraft concern will be filed by the CIO United Automobile Workers, the union announced this week. Although the UAW polled 40.4 per cent to 11.1 per cent for the Machinists' Union in an NLRB election held last week, 42.3 per cent of the workers voted for no union. Under Board ruling, a union to win must carry a majority of all eligible votes cast.

The UAW is asking for a run-off between the UAW and no union to determine the issue. The NLRB has scheduled a meeting for August 3 to determine what policy to follow in such cases where the "no union" votes total a plurality, and no one legitimate union has a majority.

CIO Starts Big Political Action Drive to Bring Issues to People

'GET INTO POLITICS': That's what Sidney Hillman, chairman of CIO's new Political Action Committee, told delegates to a CIO legislative conference this week at Philadelphia. Shown with him at the well attended affair are, other committee members, left to right: David J. McDonald, Albert J. Fitzgerald, Van A. Bittner and Sherman H. Dalrymple. The committee secretary, R. J. Thomas, was unable to be present.

Hillman Committee Urges United Labor League

PHILADELPHIA, July 24—CIO's biggest "push" for political action unlimbered its artillery this week in preparation for the vital 1944 campaign, when the fate of the nation literally hinges on the election of Federal representatives pledged to the Roosevelt Administration's policy of a fight for the "unconditional surrender" of the Fascist Axis.

CIO's drive to bring the home-front issues to the people was launched here this week by CIO's Political Action Committee, headed by Pres. Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, who presided over a regional conference of CIO leaders representing 2,500,000 organized trade unionists in Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Deleware and Maryland.

In support of win-the-war candidates in state and local 1943 elections and national 1944 elections, the Conference decided to work toward the formation of a National United Labor League "which will include all CIO, AFL, Railway Brotherhood and unaffiliated labor unions who agree with our objectives, and weld labor into the mighty political force which its numbers, strength, organizing ability and program entitle it to play in the life or of our nation."

The conference overwhelmingly declared that "united labor action should not take the form of a third party at this time. For even apart from the technical problems of placing a third party on the ballot nationally in 1944, such a party would today only serve to divide and divert the labor and progressive forces from our main task—unity for the election of progressive win-the-war candidates who fully support our Commander-in-Chief regardless of party affiliation."

The conference had as its purpose the perfection of political action, designed to bring into its orbit the broadest possible people's front, including members of the AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods, and church, business, professional, consumer, Negro and women's groups, as well as all other liberal forces interested in electing win-the-war candidates.

Associated with Hillman on the CIO Political Committee are: R. J. Thomas, president, United Auto Workers, and secretary of the committee; Sherman Dalrymple, president, United Rubber Workers; Van A. Bittner, assistant president, United Steelworkers; Albert J. Fitzgerald, president, United Radio, Electrical and Machine Workers; and David J. McDonald, Sec.-Treas., United Steelworkers.

A similar conference of Mid-West CIO leaders in Chicago was scheduled to be held late this week.

Hillman at Phialdelphia denounced the record of the 78th Congress on domestic issues, and urged conference delegates to work hard for defeat of those men in both Houses who have built up "a reactionary, defeatist and anti-labor record on the vital issues of inflation, taxation and labor legislation."

In applying a win-the-war measuring rod to all candidates, Hillman said that labor is not serving its own needs alone, but the most vital interest of the whole nation.

PEOPLE UNITED

"The overwhelming majority of the American people," he said, "are today united by their common purpose to prosecute the war as rapidly as possible to the point of unconditional surrender of the enemy."

"To gain this end, we must have a secure, stable and unified home front that will assure maximum production, high morale and the greatest possible support to our boys on the firing line."

"This can only be accomplished by a Congress that gives full support to the policies of our Commander-in-Chief, under whose wise and courageous leadership we have already made great strides toward victory."

Hillman warned the CIO conferees that there is grave danger of prolonging the war and that a true people's peace will surely not be achieved unless workers, farmers and other progressive forces organize now, solidify the home front and throw their full support behind the Commander-in-Chief.

Memo to FDR:

Labor Calls For Rollback Or Pay Hikes

Washington, July 24 — Calling upon President Roosevelt to insist that his administrators carry out the price rollback program in full, organized labor this week warned again that it will demand revision of the Little Steel formula if living costs are not rolled back; and will ask the removal of OPA Administrator Prentiss Brown if he does not do this job.

Speaking to the press after a White House meeting of the Combined Labor War Board, CIO Pres. Murray declared:

"The price control law passed by Congress on October 2, 1942 made a commitment to the American people that prices as well as wages were to be stabilized at the level of September 15.

"It is the considered judgment of all organized labor that this Congressional commitment should be carried out, otherwise we shall have no alternative but to ask the lifting of the Little Steel formula."

The CIO and AFL representatives presented a joint statement to the President, which reminded him of his own statement, in his July 2 message vetoing the anti-subsidy bill, that the rollback of food prices is necessary to carry out the mandate of Congress in the October 2 act, to stabilize wages and prices "so far as practicable . . . on the basis of the levels which existed on September 15, 1942."

CITE BROWN'S STATEMENT

But despite this, Price Administrator Prentiss Brown on July 15 "publicly stated that he has no present plan to subsidize a rollback of food prices beyond that which you had authorized in May of this year," the labor men declared.

"We are unable to find any steps being taken at the present time to carry out your objectives," they said.

"If your administrators have decided not to carry out in full the program which you proposed and which the Congress permits, it will of course be impossible for organized labor to continue in its support of the wage and price stabilization program as now formulated."

The joint labor statement emphasized "the desperate consequences to the American people of failure to hold the line on both prices and wages," and concluded:

"If failure to carry out the stabilization of prices in line with wage stabilization brings the consequences which you have stated must inevitably follow, organized labor cannot be held to account for that result which it did not seek and which it has exerted all of its efforts to avoid."

Act on Congress Now, Plea of CIO Political 'Pushers'

WASHINGTON, July 24—The CIO mobilized its organizing forces here this week to assist in bringing to practically every Congressional district in the nation a broad program designed to enlist the people in support of home-front, win-the-war policies.

Under the leadership of CIO's newly established Special Committee on Congressional Action, CIO Regional Directors were called to the Capital by Vice-President Allan S. Haywood, director of organization, to hear outlined a program calling for organized community action, particularly during the Congressional recess, on:

1. The rising cost of living.
2. Price rollbacks.
3. Taxation.
4. Social security.
5. Polltax repeal.
6. An end to labor-baiting.

The Congressional Action Committee and the Regional Directors will implement the work of the CIO Political Action Committee headed by Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, which has as its number one job the building of a labor league for action now and in 1944.

MURRAY OUTLINES JOB

At a press conference attended by congressional committee members—Chairman George F. Addes, James B. Carey, Julius Emspak and David J. McDonald—CIO President Philip Murray told reporters that CIO will take the lead in forming Congressional district committees including other labor organizations, churches, business, professional, consumer, Negro, women's auxiliary and other women's groups, "for the prime purpose of giving community attention to the vital domestic problems of the nation today.'

"It is not necessarily a labor program," Murray declared. "In reality, it is a people's program designed to strengthen morale of the people and designed to lend greater support to the armed forces abroad and to the President's objectives.'

The Congressional Action Committee declared that the invasion of Sicily and the developing military offensive of the United Nations demands "the highest degree of national unity behind our Commander-in-Chief," and added, in explanation of CIO's campaign for increased political activity, that:

SHARP CRITICISM

"No one watching the efforts of many members of Congress during these months to prevent effective price and rent control, or the complete lack of support given by these Congressmen to the President in his vital war policies, can fail to recognize that it is an unfortunate fact that these members of Congress seem to have lost touch with their constituents back home."

In letters to all CIO International and Industrial Union Councils (full text on page 5), the Committee urged that activities be pointed toward demonstrations and rallies on Labor Day, to mobilize the people for all-out support of a strong home front to help win the war.

"The urgency of this job is so great," the committee warned, "that each and every part of the CIO organization must be involved."

Political Action

The CIO from the first has gone all-out for victory. Close to a million of its members are in the fighting forces, and the rest are devoting themselves to all-out production and all-out effort in every other kind of war activity.

This emphatically includes all-out activity on the political field, upon which the whole course of our war effort depends.

That is why the CIO is now launching the biggest political campaign in its history. Its political action committee, under the chairmanship of President Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, fired the opening shot at the recent Philadelphia conference.

Congress, sad to relate, has been one of the weakest sectors in our home front. It has yielded to forces which "subordinate the war against the Axis to an offensive against the Roosevelt administration, organized labor and our national unity," as the statement adopted at this conference points out.

The CIO, therefore, is setting to work to remedy this situation by mobilizing public opinion to influence present members of Congress in a win-the-war direction, and by preparing for the election in 1944 of "an enlightened, progressive win-the-war Congress committed to full support of the policies and programs of our Commander-in-Chief."

The program adopted at the Philadelphia conference calls for an immediate start to mobilize CIO political action for the local and State elections in 1943, as well as for the 1944 elections;

For united political action with the AFL and railroad Brotherhoods, involving also farmer, consumer and other progressive groups;

For uniting all forces who support the Commander-in-Chief behind a single progressive win-the-war candidate for each office;

And for the ultimate formation of a national united labor league, including all sections of labor, to weld labor into a "mighty political force."

The conference opposed third party action as serving "to divide and divert the labor and progressive forces" from the main task of united effort to elect win-the-war candidates who fully support our Commander-in-Chief regardless of party affiliation.

The campaign thus launched by the CIO is not designed to serve labor's interests alone, but the vital war needs of the whole nation. As the committee points out, it can and should win the support not only of the 14 million members of organized labor, but of other millions among farmer, consumer and progressive groups.

NOT An Anti-Strike Act

Let's get the record straight on the Smith-Connally Act.

Some of labor's press critics are denouncing the CIO for allegedly attempting to "bulldoze" members of Congress for having "legislated against wartime strikes and stoppages."

This is the direct opposite of the truth.

Labor's complaint against the Congressmen who voted for the Smith-Connally Act is that they passed a bill designed to provoke and encourage wartime strikes, and to curtail labor's rights.

The act disregards labor's solemn pledge against any strikes or stoppages whatever for the duration of the war, and actually provides procedures for the calling of wartime strikes. Furthermore, it has provisions which encourage anti-labor employers to provoke stoppages for union-busting purposes.

Labor's big objection to the Smith-Connally act is that it stabs in the back our war effort.

It threatens war production by provoking strikes; insults and demoralizes loyal war workers faithfully observing their no-strike pledge; undermines the unions which are doing so much to boost production; creates national disunity, and strikes at the democracy for which we are fighting.

And incidentally, the CIO is not trying to "bulldoze" anyone. It is simply trying to arouse the American people to the vicious character of the Smith-Connally act and other war-disrupting measures passed by Congress, so they may let the members of Congress know how they feel and exercise their sovereign right as American citizens to vote for representatives who will reflect their wishes.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

THE present political activities and plans of the CIO are exciting a degree and kind of public press reaction that is reminiscent of the early organizing days of the CIO.

Then, as now, intelligent reporters recognized that something big was in the making.

Then, as now, big business publishers "viewed with alarm." They warned labor against what it was starting to do, misrepresented its purposes, and invented ridiculous bogeys.

Yet then, as now, all labor was proposing to do was to give full exercise to its democratic rights under the laws and constitution of the United States.

Then, as now, it was breathing new life and vigor into our democracy, in line with the best American traditions.

★ ★ ★

The founders of the CIO realized from the first that labor political action must go hand in hand with the industrial organization of the millions of unorganized workers.

That is why Labor's Non-Partisan League was formed, to throw the weight of the new labor movement behind the election of President Roosevelt and many progressive Congressmen in 1936.

This League was finally wrecked by the political differences between John L. Lewis and most of the rest of the CIO. But the idea behind it did not die.

The 1940 and, even more, the 1942 elections made labor feel the need for broad labor and progressive unity on the political field, and for adequate political machinery to bring labor's full strength to bear at the polls.

But it is the necessities of war, and the shocking record of war obstruction, labor-baiting and administration-baiting of the present Congress, that have finally brought matters to a head.

The CIO has reacted to this situation by two parallel moves:

(1) It has set up a Special Committee for Congressional Action, headed by George Addes of the UAW-CIO, for the immediate job of bringing the present Congress more into line with the will-to-victory of the American people.

This committee is stimulating the formation in every Congressional district of special committees, to include all sections of labor, farmers, and church, women's, consumers, and other community groups.

The purpose of this activity is to make the record of each member of Congress known in his district; to help him understand the wishes of his constituents in regard to cost-of-living and inflation control, taxation, labor legislation and other war issues; and to secure greater support in the next session of Congress for the administration's war program at home and abroad.

(2) The CIO has set up a Political Action Committee, headed by Sidney Hillman, to organize labor and progressive political action in the 1943 and 1944 elections; and to work toward a permanent national labor league to give maximum effect to the united political activity of labor.

This Political Action Committee has already held regional conferences of CIO representatives in Philadelphia and Chicago.

It is promoting united labor political committees in every state and community, which should also involve consumer, farmer and progressive groups in joint action.

And it seeks to reach an understanding with the AFL, railroad Brotherhoods and unaffiliated labor unions for united participation in the proposed labor league.

★ ★ ★

The following points are basic to an understanding of these big new labor political developments:

(a) The primary and immediate purpose of all this activity is the speedy winning of this war, by mobilizing united national support behind the win-the-war policies, both domestic and foreign, of our Commander-in-Chief, President Roosevelt.

(b) This purpose provides a basis for the broadest unity of popular political action. The CIO is not acting in any narrow factional spirit, nor even for exclusively labor purposes. Rather, it is seeking to unite all labor with farm, consumer, business and all other groups for win-the-war political purposes to which all patriotic Americans can and should subscribe.

(c) No third party intentions are involved. On the contrary, the CIO Political Action Committee holds that a third party at this time would "only serve to divide and divert the labor and progressive forces from our main task—unity for the election of progressive win-the-war candidates who fully support our Commander-in-Chief regardless of party affiliation."

Hillman Committee Urges United Labor Front, 3rd Party Ban

Our armed forces and those of our Allies are winning important successes on the war fronts of the world. As we stand on the threshold of the tremendous military undertakings which lie ahead, the firmest unity is required on the home front in support of the military offensive and behind the win-the-war policies of our Commander-in-Chief.

Yet forces within our Nation have chosen this decisive moment to subordinate the war against the Axis to an offensive against the Roosevelt Administration, organized labor and our national unity. This offensive threatens to divide and weaken our home front, creating disruption and confusion which will hamper our struggle on the battle fronts, prolong the war, endanger the realization of our goal of unconditional surrender and make impossible a true peoples' peace.

This offensive must be defeated if—after victory—we are to protect labor in the difficult transition period from a war to a peacetime economy, assure jobs to the boys who return from the battlefronts, extend our social security program to make proper provision for unemployment, sickness and old age, and lay the basis for a more secure and abundant life.

This offensive is being conducted both in and out of Congress. The record of the 78th Congress is deplorable. That Congress has obstructed needed measures to stabilize our national economy, denied adequate appropriations to vital war agencies and enacted a discriminatory, undemocratic and provocative anti-labor law. Its actions are endangering our national security in the interest of a private war against labor and the White House.

The CIO has perfected and announced a legislative program to meet the needs of the nation both in war and peace. The hard core of that program is full support for the progressive and win-the-war policies of our Commander-in-Chief, under whose great leadership we have already made great strides toward victory.

CIO Program Serves Needs of Whole Nation

The CIO program does not serve the interests of labor alone, but the most vital needs of our whole nation. Parallel programs have been adopted by the American Federation of Labor and the Railway Brotherhoods. These programs can and should win the full support not only of the 14,000,000 members of organized labor, but of other millions among farmer, consumer and progressive groups.

The realization of these programs requires an enlightened, progressive win-the-war Congress committed to full support to the policies and programs of our Commander-in-Chief.

It, therefore, is the task of labor, which has always been the backbone of support for the policies of the President, to intensify its efforts in the political field and organize the broadest and most effective labor and progressive support behind those candidates in the 1943 and 1944 elections who—regardless of party affiliation—have demonstrated their consistent and unequivocal support of President Roosevelt on all major issues, domestic and foreign.

United political action by the American Federation of Labor, the CIO and the Railroad Brotherhoods will not only vastly increase labor's effectiveness, but will stimulate and rally broad non-labor groups to our program.

3rd Party Now Called Blow to National Unity

United labor action should not take the form of a third party at this time. For even apart from the technical problems of placing a third party on the ballot nationally in 1944, such a party would today only serve to divide and divert the labor and progressive forces from our main task—unity for the election of progressive win-the-war candidates who fully support our Commander-in-Chief regardless of party affiliation.

United labor action on the political front will have immediate repercussions on Capitol Hill. It will isolate the reactionary and defeatist forces who are the spearhead of the offensive against the home front, give aid to the forces in Congress who consistently supported the President and convince the many honest but misguided representatives in both houses that their political futures depend upon a sharp reversal of their voting records.

This conference called by the CIO Political Activities Committee is preparatory. We fully approve and adopt the statement of our tasks and objectives outlined by the committee.

★ ★ ★

Immediate Mobilization Of Forces Needed

It is the sense of this conference that the following are our immediate tasks in the political field:

1. Immediately to start mobilizing the full force of the CIO for political action both in the local and State-wide elections in the fall of 1943 and for the crucial national campaign of 1944.

2. In each State and in each community to secure united political action with the AFL and Railway Brotherhoods, preferably through united political committees such as the Philadelphia United Labor Committee or through other means of collaboration.

3. To involve in such united labor actions the broadest possible consumer, farmer and progressive groups and organizations.

4. In the 1943 election and in preparation for 1944 to weld the unity of all forces who support the Commander-in-Chief behind a single progressive win-the-war candidate for each office.

5. To work toward the formation of a national united labor league which will include all CIO, AFL, Railway Brotherhood and unaffiliated labor unions who agree with our objectives and weld labor into the mighty political force which its numbers, strength, organizing ability and program entitle it to play in the life of our nation.

CIO's Blueprint for Action

CIO's blueprint for political action to help win the war is contained in the documents on this page.

On the left are recommendations of a Conference representing 2,500,000 CIO members from the Eastern Seaboard, who welcomed plans made by CIO's Political Action Committee—headed by Sidney Hillman—for creation of a National United Labor League, and for a ban on a third party as a drag on the unity needed to win the vital 1944 elections.

Below are recommendations of CIO's Special Committee on Congressional Action—headed by George Addes—and created to implement the work of the Political Action Committee, by stimulating particularly during the Congressional recess discussions between the people and their Representatives in an effort to change the defeatist slant of the Congressional majority to solid, win-the-war support of the Administration's home-front victory program.

Act Now While Congress Is Home To Bring Issues to People!

To All International Unions:

(A Similar Letter Has Been Sent to CIO Councils)

The undersigned constitute a special committee designated by President Murray at the July 7 extraordinary session of the CIO Executive Board to organize CIO so as to bring its maximum influence to bear on our Congressmen to change the present anti-labor Congress into a pro-labor Win-the-War Congress.

This is one of the most important jobs that has confronted CIO in its history. There is no need to repeat here the bad record of the Congress so far this year, nor to emphasize the danger to the Nation if that record continues. Our job is to see that the Congress that returns to Washington in September after the present recess is a Congress genuinely supporting the Administration's war program at home and abroad.

• • •

The Job To Be Done

The basic job before us is organization for politcal action in each separate Congressional district. This requires the establishment of special committees in each district to direct public attention and pressure to the local Congressmen.

These Congressional district committees should include, where ever possible, representatives of AFL, Railroad Brotherhood, farm organizations such as the Farmers Union, Church groups, women's groups, consumer organizations, professional organizations and other community organizations.

• • •

The Steps To Be Taken

This emergency Congressional district machinery must immediately undertake a program of specific action along the following lines:

(1) Make every CIO member, and resident in the district aware of the record of his Congressman.

(a) Through speakers and reports at local meetings.

(b) Through leaflets and posters placed in every union hall and plant.

(c) Through radio programs, rallies and every other available medium.

(2) Bring the weight of this public opinion home to the Congressmen. This requires a program of constant contact and establishment of relations with each Congressman by:

(a) Inviting him to meetings of local unions or industrial union councils to discuss specific issues and his record with respect to those issues.

(b) Arranging district - wide meetings jointly with the various community organizations in each Congressional district. It may be possible in some communities to involve certain local officials such as the Governor or the Mayor as speakers or sponsors, or as chairmen of such meetings.

(c) Arranging delegations representing the various organizations in the district to visit the Congressman in his office or home.

(d) Inviting the Congressman to participate in informal roundtable discussions with representative committees from his district.

(e) Sending resolutions and letters to the Congressman and circulating petitions in his district.

• • •

The Major Issues

The major issues around which these activities must center are those already well known to CIO members. These issues include the rising cost of living, price rollbacks, taxation, social security, poll-tax repeal and an end to labor-baiting.

Material on all of these issues is available for all local groups through National CIO headquarters.

• • •

The National Campaign

These activities in each Congressional district should be headed up toward demonstrations and rallies on Labor Day, which will make Labor Day, 1943, a day of national mobilization of the people's will for a strong home front to win the war.

These final rallies should be on the largest possible scale and should involve the greatest and most dramatic possible demonstration of his constituents' desires just before the Congressman returns to Washington.

• • •

The Urgency Is Great

The urgency of this job is so great that each and every part of the CIO organization must be involved. The Regional Directors of the CIO, the State and city councils are being called upon to devote their full energies to this campaign. The respective departments of the National CIO will, of course, cooperate fully.

Your International Union, however, has a very special and individual responsibility to which this committee must hold you.

It is essential that you communicate directly with your own local representatives and local unions directing them immediately to establish contact with other local CIO units in their Congressional district and, in cooperation with the Industrial Union Council and the CIO Regional Director, to secure the immediate establishment of a committee within their Congressional district for carrying forward the program outlined above.

The undersigned will expect a report by August 1, as to action which has been taken by your union to contribute to this No. 1 CIO job. Address reports to this committee, CIO, 718 Jackson Place, Washington, 6, D. C.

Fraternally yours,

SPECIAL COMMITTEE on CONGRESSIONAL ACTION,

Geo. F. Addes
James B. Carey

UAW Health Program Is Model for Unions

The CIO United Auto Workers of America is the largest union in the nation; it can boast of a million members. For their welfare, the UAW-CIO fights on broad fronts—for adequate price control, for fair taxes, for a decent standard of living, for greater participation in the common effort to defeat the Fascist Axis. The UAW-CIO, however, does not overlook the individual. For members in the concentrated Detroit membership area, the union has established a comprehensive health program providing adequate protection at low cost. A description of a UAW member's experience with quack "doctors" and the contrast of scientific treatment provided by the UAW's Medical Research Institute follows:

Brother Peter Mihalka, the second tool and diemaker in the Detroit Fisher plant of General Motors to join the United Automobile Workers in 1936, took inventory of himself and thought he was about at the end of his rope as a skilled metal trades worker.

About two years ago he began losing control of his hands—a crucial loss in a precision occupation. In May 1941 he went for the first time to see a private doctor about his trouble. The doctor failed to help him and he went to another, and still another, to all kinds of specialists including quacks.

In a couple of years he had spent over $3,000 on alleged medical care, all to no avail, as his trouble was getting worse. He was not only a good tool and diemaker. He was a good union man, so good that he joined the UAW as soon as it made itself felt in Detroit. He had been working recently in Buell Tool & Die, which proudly claims to be the first shop in town to have joined the UAW.

LAST RESORT

As a last resort Mihalka went to the UAW-CIO Medical Research Institute, set up by the union to prevent and check disease and to diagnose just such cases. Dr. Morris Raskin, medical coordinator of the institute, examined Bro. Mihalka, decided that a nerve—a local ulnar nerve, to be exact—was involved and sent him to the Mayo Clinic.

The clinic found what the medicos call a "tardy ulnar palsy," transplanted the nerves, and recovery began virtually at once. The tool and diemaker's skill, painfully acquired through long apprenticeship and careful journeyman experience, will not be lost to society. His earning power will continue for many years for his family. His faith in unionism will probably be lifelong.

In friendly cooperation with Federated Press the UAW-CIO Medical Research Institute put a reporter through the routine procedure of any union member for whom his local has made an appointment.

His medical history was entered on a form, height and weight measurements taken and then, stripped to the waist, he was tested for blood pressure, heart condition, vision, reflexes, etc. Urinanalysis, blood count, venereal blood test, lung x-ray and electrocardiography were applied. Further tests are given where preliminary examination indicates the need.

When the medical report is ready, two copies are sent to the local, one for the union and the other for the member, if the case is industrial . If non-industrial, one copy goes to the family doctor through the member.

In its first four months the institute had thoroughly examined 615 cases, with about 1,300 additional visits, according to Dr. James E. Davis, its medical director. In most non-industrial cases it was arguable that the condition had arisen out of the working environment.

Many unsuspected cases of tuberculosis, heart disease and high blood pressure were found.

LOCAL UNIONS CONTRIBUTE

The institute was set up by the UAW-CIO international executive board under instructions from the 1942 Chicago convention. It opened its doors January 20 of this year with diagnostic equipment and a carefully chosen staff.

Apart from international funds it is financed by voluntary per-capita payments of affiliated local unions and by per case payments by unaffiliated locals for such of their members as go there for examination.

The percapita tax for unions within 40 miles of Detroit is 1½ cents per member per month, between 40 and 110 miles it is 1 cent, and beyond that ¾ cent per member per month. The money saved by the more distant locals is expected to be spent by them on transportation for their members. The per case fee is $10.

The ordinary routine for a UAW member (or any CIO member in Michigan) who feels the need for examination is to tell his shop steward, who arranges with his local union office for an appointment for the member at the institute.

Affiliated locals have unlimited service for their members. One local of about 100 members, paying a total of $1.50 a month, had every one of its members examined by the institute, as they all work under known dangerous conditions.

Calif. CIO Names New Politics Head

San Francisco, Calif., July 24—Appointment of State Assemblyman Augustus F. Hawkins, veteran political figure, as new CIO state legislative director was announced here this week by the California CIO Council. Hawkins is a member of the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers.

Steve Murdock, San Jose newspaperman and secretary of the Santa Clara and San Benito Counties CIO Council, was named as assistant director.

The two will be entrusted with carrying out a legislative and political program based on support of the President, which was voted at a meeting of the California CIO Council's executive committee.

Collection of a legislative war chest of $100,000 to be built up by contributions from every CIO member in California, is also being undertaken.

This fund will be used to conduct campaigns to mobilize labor and the people to support actively the war policies of President Roosevelt, repeal the Smith-Connally Act, prevent increases in the cost of living, and secure the rollback of prices to the September 15, 1942, level.

Hawkins, who was elected on both Democratic and Republican tickets from the 62nd Assembly district in Los Angeles, is serving his fifth term in the Legislature.

CIO Backs Field Official in City Council Election

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24—Organized labor here has given the green light to rally the people behind the candidacy of Joseph J. Lovas, CIO field representative, who, if elected in the fall, will be the first CIO man to win a seat in the Common Council.

The CIO candidate, who has received the endorsement of both the Democratic and American Labor parties for councilman-at-large (four-year term), is now working with a campaign committee named by the CIO Council executive board.

Basing its action on a pro-labor, win-the-war platform, the board also recommended that the CIO Council endorse nine Democrats and one ALP candidate after the merits of each were examined in the light of that policy.

Shipyard Meet In September

Camden, N. J., July 24—The ninth national convention of the Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers will be held at the Commodore Hotel, New York City, the latter part of September, Philip Van Gelder, secretary-treasurer of the union, announced this week.

UE Completes Pact With Westinghouse

New York, July 24—A contract covering 75,000 workers in more than 50 units of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. scattered throughout the country has been ratified by the employes and signed by the company, the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers announced this week.

Terms of the agreement, published in the CIO NEWS last week, include job and wage protection for women workers, overtime pay for white collar workers, paid vacations, maintenance of membership and check-off of dues.

Mine, Mill Parley Sept. 13

Denver, July 24—A call to the 40th convention of the Intl. Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers to be held in Butte, Mont., Sept. 13, has been sent out from the union's headquarters here by Secretary-Treasurer James J. Leary.

President Reid Robinson stated that it would be the task of the convention to formulate a "program of victory" to overcome the fifth column "program of treason."

Congress Comes Home . . .

What You Do Now Will Shape What Congress Does to You —From Now Till '44

HOT OFF THE PRESS: Above, a reproduction of Page One of the CIO's latest pamphlet, especially timely now that Congress has taken a summer vacation. For "What to Do When You Call On Your Congressman," order the above from the CIO Publicity Dept., 718 Jackson Pl. N. W., Washington 6, D. C.—100 for $1, 500 for $4.25, 1,000 for $7.

Women Have Job To Do on Congress

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The Auxiliaries have an extremely important task to perform during the present CIO campaign for reaching Congressmen and Senators at home.

The opinions of women on home-front war issues will have greater influence now than ever before. Many Congressmen already have their eye on the 1944 election.

They have been told by party leaders that women voters will determine the results of the next elections. Because of this most Congressmen will pay close attention to what women have to say.

This is also one reason why it is important to involve as many women and women's organizations as possible

Our auxiliaries can play an important part in getting other women as well as our members to participate in this drive. We must never let them forget that the actions of congressmen will depend a good deal upon what we women do while they are at home.

IMPORTANT ISSUES

The most important issues include the following:

1. Price control and rollback: Most women want to reduce the cost of living. They should be urged to make their Congressmen feel responsible for this. We must make it clear that Congressmen who have opposed the CIO program have offered no real alternative to stop increases in the cost of living.

2. Taxes: The tax-check-off from wages has awakened many women to the importance of paying more attention to tax legislation. If present reductions seem high, those of next year may be even higher. More revenue is needed, but most Congressmen have opposed higher taxes on the rich and voted against the $25,000 salary limit.

We must tell women about the CIO tax program based on ability to pay, and that the time to talk to Congressmen about fair taxes is NOW.

3. Allowances for dependents of servicemen: Hundreds of thousands of wives and mothers of servicemen are interested in this legislation. We must tell them about the CIO proposals which would provide a decent standard of living for dependents.

The Senate passed a bill which incerases allowance for children very little, and provides only 36 cents to 55 cents a day for the complete support of a child. This legislation will come up in the House soon. Strong pressure on Congressmen is essential to get more adequate provisions.

4. Child Care: Proper child-care programs for children of working mothers are more urgently needed now than ever. Many local women's groups should be reached and urged to cooperate with us in asking their Congressmen to work and vote for adequate appropriations to meet present needs.

How to Divide Your Time on Canning Day

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

It's a good idea to divide the items for canning in one day between a vegetable that has to be processed in the pressure cooker and some fruit that can be prepared without the use of the cooker. Jams and jellies can be prepared in the open kettle on the stove.

Our canning group was lucky enough to get some berries this week, red and black raspberries and some blackberries. We paid $9 a crate—24 quarts—for perfect ones and $7 for mashed ones. From the good batch of berries we made whole berries in syrup for desserts. From the mashed ones we made delicious jam.

This same morning we bought a bushel of string beans. First we prepared the string beans as I described it in last week's column. The idea was to get the pressure cooker going while we were cleaning and fixing the berries.

Then we started on the berries. We picked them over carefully, washed them thoroughly, and lifted them out of the water into a sieve to drain.

Don't drain off the water in which the berries were washed. Lift the berries out of the water to be sure none of the dirt clings to the fruit.

MASHED BERRIES

Then we spread the berries in a shallow pan and mashed them real well with the bottom of a pint jar. The next step depends on whether you want to make jam the way our mothers did or the new way.

Mother used to put up the berries with the sugar and let it boil down till it was thick. Nowadays, we boil the fruit for one minute only, and have almost twice as many jars of jam as mother had using the same amount of fruit.

That's because we can now add pectin to the more juicy fruits and make them jell quicker. You remember, mother used to add apple to other fruits to give the fruit more body. It was the pectin in the apple that made the jam or jelly jell. You can make your own pectin from apple peelings and apple cores. You can also buy ready made pectin at the store. We used Sure-Jell. It was cheaper than some other and worked just as well.

EXACT DIRECTIONS

The advantage in buying the pectin lies in the exact directions enclosed in the package for making jam or jelly with every kind of fruit, giving the exact proportions of fruit, pectin and sugar.

Thin, runny jam or jelly means not enough pectin was present in the fruit to make it jell. Knowing the correct proportions will guarantee you good results.

We followed directions in the package. For raspberries—4½ cups of the berries, 1 package of Sure-Jell, 6 cups of sugar. Bring to a rolling bubbling boil and let boil for one minute. Stir constantly to prevent fruit from sticking to bottom of kettle. Then fill hot, sterilized jars ½ inch from the rim. Pour on melted parrafin and set aside to cool. When thoroughly cooled put metal lid on or paste brown paper over the mouth of the jar.

For the dessert berries we washed thoroughly the firm whole berries, packed them into a sterilized jar and covered them with boiling syrup made of 2 cups of water to 1 cup of sugar (2:1), then put on caps, sealed and placed in oven for 20 minutes 250 degrees. When done place jars on newspapers to cool away from draught.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

The United Steelworkers of America continues on the upward grade to organize the unorganized! Noel R. Beddow, Southern director, advises of an election won at Southern Steel Co., 99 for CIO to 19 for AFL and 21 for no union. Al Whitehouse, district director, reports a victory by USA at the Cincinnati Bickford Tool Co., 310 for CIO to 234 against. Pete Mosele, district director, reports an election at National Enamelling & Stamping Co., Long Island, with a vote of 140 for CIO to 14 for no union.

The IWA report the following election victories: Adolph Germer, director of organization, says that at Anderson Tulley, Vicksburg, Miss., Plant D, CIO won by 160 as against 9 for no union. At Plant J, CIO won by 93 as against 6 for no union. At Eleitit Sheldon Logging Co., Grass Lake, Calif., CIO polled 23 to 13 for no union. Clifford A. Baker, special representative, advises that the IWA was victorious at a consent election at the Underwood Veneer Co., Wausau, Wisc., by a vote of 205 for CIO to 61 for no union.

John B. Easton, director, advises that the Oil Workers won an election at United Fuel Gas, Virginian Gas & Oil and Associated Cos., where CIO polled 797 votes to 488 for a company union and 40 for no union. Brother Easton also advises of a victory at Atlantic Seaboard Oil Co., Boldman, Ky., where CIO polled 100 per cent of the votes cast.

8th Victory at Detroit Edison

Harold Straub, chairman, UWOC, sends in the election victory at the Marysville Power Plant, Detroit Edison Co., where CIO polled 105 votes to 71 for no union. This makes the eighth election victory in Detroit Edison Co. in a short time.

Sam Kolkey, international representative, reports a victory at Lowe & Campbell, branch of the Wilson Sporting Goods Mfg. Co., where CIO polled 170 votes to 72 for no union.

Morris Muster, president, UFWA, reports an election at American Seating, Grand Rapids, where CIO polled 695 votes to 455 for an independent union and 111 for no union. He also reports the winning of the following elections: Downcraft, Inc., Memphis, Tenn., by 60 to 0; Thompson-Mahogany, Moorefield, W. Va., by 73 to 13; Menasha Woodenware, Rockford, Ill., 42 to 26; Boring Mfg., York, Pa., 9 to 5.

George Craig, director, sends in the following election victories: Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., Sunbury, Pa., UERMWA-CIO, 432 as against 228; Schiller-Nolan Co., Philadelphia, UERMWA-CIO, 24 as against 6; Jos. H. Masser, Williamsport, Pa., IF&LWU-CIO, 46 as against 26.

Walter Smethurst, director of organization, Shoe Workers Drive, reports a victory at Moran Shoe Co., Carlyle, Ill., by 292 for CIO as against 40.

Shipyard, MM&SW Elections Won

John Green, president, IUM&SWA, reports the following victories: Atlantic Steel Casting Co., Chester, Pa., CIO 385 as against 142; Maryland Drydock Co., Baltimore: Guards Unit, CIO, 191 as against 2; Timekeepers Unit, CIO, 56 as against 12; Storeroom Clerks Unit, CIO, 16 as against 0; Drydock Operators Unit, CIO, 15 as against 0; Storeroom Window Clerks Unit, CIO, 26 as against 0; Departmental Clerks Unit, CIO, 18 as against 2. Casey Boat Works, Fairhaven, Mass., CIO 142 as against 40.

Paul R. Christopher, director, reports a victory in behalf of the MMSW at the Armour Fertilizer, Mt. Pleasant, Tenn., where CIO polled 167 votes as against 53. Van D. Jones, international representative, MMSW, was in charge.

The newly created committee for political action, composed of George Addes, David J. McDonald, Julius Emspak and James B. Carey, requested the Organization Department to call in its regional directors for the purpose of effectuating a campaign during the recess of Congress to activize the members of organized labor and friends in resisting the attacks on organized labor and on unity in the war effort that have emanated from Congress. The committee and the regional directors met in Washington, D. C., July 21, at the CIO National Headquarters and plans were laid to put this program into effect immediately.

Chinese Unionists Heroes Behind Guerrilla Lines In Fight to Kill Japs

CHUNGKING, July 24 (ALN)—"The Japanese have thrown 60,000 troops, supported by planes, against Chinese guerrilla positions in the Taihang mountain range, but the defenders have thus far repulsed attacks all along the line," an official Chinese communique announced this week. Behind such terse reports as this lies one of the most dramatic stories of the war in the Far East: the story of how Chinese workers are cooperating with the guerrillas in North China to keep at bay an estimated 300,000 well-equipped, well-trained Japanese troops.

Not only do workers keep the guerrillas supplied with arms, ammunition and uniforms, but they also, when the occasion demands, join forces with the guerrillas to defend their factories and arsenals.

The heroic story of the factory workers of Leningrad and Stalingrad, who in moments of crisis laid down their tools to fight shoulder to shoulder with the men of the Red Army, is daily being repeated on a small scale throughout North China.

When defense of their plants becomes impossible, the Chinese workers evacuate their machines and materials to a safe place. Arsenals and factories in North China are as mobile and elusive as the guerrillas themselves.

In the campaign in the Taihang mountains, for instance, members of the Federation of Taihang Range Unions and the Southeastern Shansi Federation of Unions are playing a considerable part.

During April and May, when the Japanese launched their fifteenth and sixteenth drives to exterminate the guerrillas in this strategic area, the union members were active in evacuating their "grasshopper" factories and in helping the guerrillas destroy enemy lines of communication.

Former members of the North China Railwaymen's Federation, now working in guerrilla industries, penetrated deep behind the enemy's lines to tear up railroad tracks, blow up bridges and sabotage locomotives.

Other unionists worked at night with members of the peasant unions digging up the roads along which the enemy's motorized transport had to pass.

Join Unions To Back War, Algerian Plea

LONDON, July 24 (ALN) — The Algerian Federation of Trade Unions has issued a call to all workers "without distinction of race, nationality, political or religious convictions to join unions so as to give maximum assistance to the allied armes," it was learned here this week.

Before 1940 the Algerian Federation was affiliated to the French Confederation of Workers (CGT) and had 35,000 members, of whom 15,000 belonged to the Algerian Railwaymen's Union.

"The workers of Algeria know that they cannot obtain any improvement in their living conditions without the total destruction of the Axis powers," the statement declared. "They thus have but one goal at this moment: to destroy the forces of Hitler, Mussolini and their allies in the Fifth Column."

Pointing out that "production in the factories, mines and fields, as emphasized by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and President Kalinin, is a factor of major importance to victory," the federation outlined the following program:

URGE GREATER OUTPUT

(1) Unceasing production of materials for the French and allied armies, and for the civilian population. "The greater the production in Algeria," the statement says, "the smaller the burden on allied sea transport."

(2) Full cooperation with the government to secure maximum efficiency in the road and rail transport industries—vital to the allied war effort in the Mediterranean—and in the postal and telegraph services.

(3) Encouragement of farmers to produce a maximum amount of food for soldiers and civilians.

(4) Discovery of "acts of sabotage by Hitler's agents in Algeria, in whatever high places they may be."

ASK WAGE RAISES

In order to achieve maximum production, "the workers must have their material living conditions assured," the federation added. "For this reason, the unions must demand wage increases to balance rises in the cost of living; equal pay for equal work; improvement in health facilities; and stern measures against black market profiteers and those who artificially increase the cost of essential commodities."

Mexicans to Urge World Congress Of Labor

MEXICO CITY, July 24 (ALN)—A program to deal with war and post-war problems of Latin American workers will be proposed by the executive council of the Confederation of Latin American Workers (CTAL), at its Havana meeting July 26 to August 1. "The council will propose a world labor congress for the purpose of studying problems affecting labor now and in the future," CTAL President Vicente Lombardo Toledano told Allied Labor News in an exclusive interview this week.

Affiliation with the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee will also be acted upon. "The Confederation of Mexican Workers (CTM) at its recent Congress voted for CTAL affiliation with the Anglo-Soviet committee," Toledano said. "A resolution to that effect will be presented to the council for its action."

The CTAL meeting is being held in Havana at the invitation of the Confederation of Cuban Workers and President General Fulgencio Batista, who said that the delegates would be treated "as our own workers."

ACTION ON ARGENTINA

Action will be taken on the banning of the Argentine General Confederation of Labor (CGT) this week by President Pedro Ramirez' government. "The attitude of those countries whose international position is dubious or where labor does not have freedom to organize will be amply treated at the council meeting," Toledano said, mentioning specifically Argentina and Paraguay.

The New York Times reported on July 14 that "the Argentine government dissolved the more radical of the two groups into which the General Confederation of Labor split some months before the downfall of the Castillo government." The split was caused by the refusal of Castillo-supporting Jose Domenech to accept the election to CGT leadership of Francisco Perez Leiros, CTAL vice-president, who favors a complete break with the Axis.

Declaring that relations with the CIO "are, as always, magnificent," Toledano praised the CIO's decision to send a fraternal delegation to Havana headed by Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman of the CIO Committee on Latin American Affairs and secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Chileans Ask Release Of Anti-Fascists In Argentina

SANTIAGO, July 24 (ALN)—Chilean labor and Popular Front parties have called on President Pedro Ramirez of Argentina to release the labor and anti-fascist leaders imprisoned by his government. In a statement issued this week, the national executive council of the Confederation of Chilean Workers (CTCh) said: "The CTCh has learned that many labor leaders have been arrested and jailed. Taking cognizance of the events that shook the political and social institutions of our sister republic of the Argentine, we consider it our duty to express complete solidarity with Argentine workers who have been unjustly arrested and persecuted and demand that the Argentine government release all workers and anti-fascist political prisoners."

Meanwhile protests are mounting over the confinement in the dreaded Rio Gallegas penitentiary of Victorio Codovilla, Italian anti-fascist living in the Argentine, and his threatened deportation to Italy. Referring to the deportation order, the CTCh said:

"If Victor Codovilla is deported to fascist Italy by the Argentine government, the entire Latin American labor movement will consider the move as an insult to the Argentine tradition of liberty and a provocation against democratic America, leader of the death fight against fascism."

Wallace Blasts Imperialistic Pirates, Calls for Free World

Demand Jobs For All in Canadian Post-War Program

OTTAWA, July 24—Adoption of a broad post-war program guaranteeing full employment was proposed by the Canadian Congress of Labor, representing 200,000 workers, in a brief submitted to the House of Commons post-war reconstruction and re-establishment committee this week.

Proposals by the Congress include:

1. Maintenance of present controls for a period of transition from war to a peace economy.

2. A comprehensive program of public works and national development.

3. Democratization of the controls and the planning and execution of the workers' programs.

4. Full employment, "in the plain, ordinary meaning of the term.

5. Social control of the economic system in whatever form may be necessary for full employment.

6. A post-war food and housing program to assure all Canadians an adequate supply of food and decent housing and the raising of rural standards of living.

7. Revival of international trade and provision for international social control of international monopolies and a system of international collective security.

The brief pointed out that a number of programs presented to the committee assumed that the preservation of what they call "free enterprise" is the main objective of war and peace.

"Most of those who use the phrase 'free enterprise,' we believe, mean private ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange, ordinarily and in our opinion, more accurately called 'capitalism'." It went on to say that "the plain fact is that we are living in an era of monopoly capitalism.

"We fully admit capitalism's past services to society. Indeed, we go further and state that capitalism was an absolutely necessary stage of social development.

"But we now confront a new situation and a new kind of capitalism. The early competitive capitalism was necessarily an expanding system, constantly extending the development of productive resources. . . .

"Broadly speaking, competitive capitalism was expansive; monopoly capitalism is restrictive. Capitalism has ceased to perform its indispensable historic function, and is now doing the very opposite."

CIO Hits Ban On Unions By Argentina

New York, July 24—The CIO Committee on Latin - American Affairs, speaking on behalf of 5,000,000 organized trade-unionists, yesterday protested to the Argentine Government against the order forcing the Confederacion General de Trabajadores de Argentina, representing the principal labor unions of the country, to disband.

Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman of the CIO committee, in a note to Don Felipe A. Espil, Argentine Ambassador at Washington, charged that the CGT was declared illegal largely because of its "political activity" which, he said, "consisted in supporting the cause of the United Nations and urging that the Argentine government break relations with our Axis enemies."

American labor is particularly disturbed, Potofsky informed the ambassador, because "together with the majority of our fellow-citizens we have entertained a high regard for your country and its people and had hoped that the new Government of President Pedro Ramirez would open the way for our closer cooperation and friendship."

Indicating the tie between North American and Argentine workers in their mutual desire to defeat the Axis, Potofsky wrote:

"The CIO, its affiliates and its individual members, have made and will continue to make every sacrifice for victory. That our brothers in Argentina should be persecuted and penalized for wishing to share in the world-wide struggle against the common enemy is to us almost inconceivable.

"I beg you to convey to your government our profound regret that it should have taken this action. And I shall be grateful to receive from you any further light on this matter, which can be conveyed to our members."

Vice-President Says FDR's Enemies Out To Wreck Nation

DETROIT, July 25—"Imperialistic freebooters" who can make possible another world conflict were mercilessly tongue lashed this week by Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, at a rally sponsored by the Detroit Committee for the America tomorrow.

The second highest officer in the nation called for a new world after the war that will guarantee to all the right of a free existence and adequate food, clothing and shelter to live a good life.

Wallace was introduced by President R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, which, with other CIO organizations and the AFL, was among the groups sponsoring the rally.

HITS FDR'S ENEMIES

Lashing out at enemies of President Roosevelt, Wallace said in a speech to be released after 5 p.m. Sunday that:

"There are powerful groups who hope to take advantage of the President's concentration on the war effort to destroy everything he has accomplished on the domestic front over the last 10 years.

"Some people call these powerful groups 'isolationists,' others call them 'reactionaries' and still others, seeing them following in European footsteps, call them 'American Fascists.'

"They are out to destroy first the President's domestic program, second the President himself, and finally they hope to control America and the world."

Wallace declared that the people of the world will never be satisfied with a peace which will merely lead them into the concentration camps and murders of Fascism.

"Hunger and unemployment," he warned, "spawned the criminal freebooters of Fascism. Their only remedy for insecurity was war. Their only answer to poverty and the denial of opportunity became the First Commandment of the Nazis: 'Loot thy neighbor'."

Warning that the world has "shrunk" in size and that the United States must participate in international decisions affecting the welfare of all peoples, Wallace declared:

"World leadership must be more concerned with welfare politics and less with power politics —more attentive to equalizing the use of raw materials of nations than condoning the policies of grab and barter that freeze international markets—more interested in opening channels of commerce than closing them by prohibitive tariffs—more mindful of the need for a stable currency among all countries than in high interest rates on loans."

HOME FRONT VITAL

Turning to the home front, Wallace declared:

"We cannot fight to crush Nazi brutality abroad and condone race riots at home.

"We cannot plead for equality of opportunity for peoples everywhere and overlook the denial of the right to vote for millions of our own people.

"We cannot offer the blueprints and the skills to rebuild the bombed-out cities of other lands and stymie the rebuilding of our own cities.

"We cannot assist in binding the wounds of a war-stricken world and fail to safeguard the health of our own people."

PRAISES LABOR

Wallace had high praise for labor's part in the war against Fascism, declaring that "97 per cent of labor has cooperated 100 per cent with our government in the war effort."

"More and more labor will demonstrate that it can cooperate with both employers and with agriculture in those measures which lead to increased employment, increased production and a higher standard of living," he said.

"The people of America know that the second step toward Nazism is the destruction of labor unions.

"There are midget Hitlers here who continually attack labor. There are other demagogues blind to the errors of every other group who shout, 'We love labor, but . . .'

"Both the midget Hitlers and the demagogues are enemies of America. Both would destroy labor unions if they could."

CIO Starts Political Action Drive

"Isolationist Republicans and their reactionary blood brothers in the Democratic Party are venting their hatred of President Roosevelt and labor at the expense of our national security," Hillman declared. "They have subordinated the nation's war against the Axis to their own private war against labor and the White House.

"The Smith-Connally bill—adopted in indecent haste over the President's veto—was enacted with cynical disregard of labor's continuous and unremitting effort on the production line and its energetic and wholehearted support of every phase of the war effort," Hillman said.

"Congress' utter disregard of the needs of the nation has been demonstrated in its sabotage of the President's anti-inflation program. It not only failed to adopt the necessary measures to roll back—or even to maintain—existing price levels, but through the Bankhead, Pace and other similar measures has deliberately sought to encourage runaway prices and an orgy of inflation.

"Labor's political action must not confine itself to the national campaign of 1944. Many state-wide and local elections will take place this fall. These will have important repercussions on Capitol Hill. The election of progressive, win-the-war, pro-Roosevelt candidates will do much to convince many honest but misled Congressmen that the tide is not running toward reaction and that their political futures depend on a sharp reversal of their voting records.

"Should reactionary elements succeed in electing a Congress as well as a national administration of their choosing, victory will be endangered—if it has not yet been won—and in any event we will have lost the peace.

"Such a Congress and such an administration would blackout the social gains of the New Deal which have made us an enlightened nation. They would seek to suppress every decent aspiration of the oppressed masses abroad. They would attempt to destroy our labor unions and return us to the industrial jungle which marked the depression years."

CIO Fights Anti-Labor Laws In Courts of Five States

WASHINGTON, July 24—The CIO was fighting cases in three States this week and was planning to start actions in two others to contest recently enacted anti-labor laws which CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman holds are unconstitutional.

Laws in Texas, Kansas and Colorado—which the CIO is fighting—and laws in Alabama and Florida—on which the CIO is planning action—are much the same in that all seek to provide restraints on labor organizations and on their rights to picket and to strike if necessary.

CIO's main argument, according to Assistant Counsel Gene Cotton, is that the laws are restrictions of the inalienable rights of freedom of speech and freedom of assembly. Since trade unions are the only effective vehicles for the mass expression of workers' grievances, drastic restrictions on their basic methods of operation are really restrictions on such constitutional rights, the CIO holds.

The laws follow a similar pattern, requiring unions to file statements of their affairs and to register the names of organizers, as well as limiting or prohibiting the rights of striking and picketing under certain circumstances.

CIO, AFL COOPERATE

One of the main features of the fight against the anti-labor legislation is the close cooperation of CIO and AFL, with either joint actions being filed or with identical cases being brought before the court, prepared by cooperating attorneys from both organizations.

Pressman is scheduled to argue the Colorado case before a state court July 28, and Cotton next week is to prepare the ground work for battles in Florida and Alabama.

Ask CIO Levy For Political, Publicity Work

Wilmington, Del., July 24—Urging labor to take the offensive to defeat the forces of reaction, the New Castle County Industrial Union Council here voted to ask the National CIO to levy a special assessment of 50 cents for each CIO member for a special legislative and publicity fund.

NMU Wins at Decatur

Decatur, Ala., July 24—By a vote of 97 to 70, the Natl. Maritime Union this week won an NLRB election at the Decatur Iron & Steel Co. shipyard. The NMU charged that the AFL managed to obtain as many as 70 votes only by open collusion with the company.

CIO Union Gets Chance to Fight Absenteeism

CLEVELAND, July 31—An American employer has recognized that CIO has come of age! Recognition this week took the form of a unique agreement between the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union and the Aluminum Co. of America, providing that the union is to be responsible for combatting absenteeism and reducing labor turnover in the plant.

The precedent-shattering agreement was announced by Dr. William P. Edmunds, Cleveland area director of the War Manpower Commission, who said that he felt certain "that labor would carry the ball and do a good job."

Provisions of the agreement, as outlined by MM&S Intl. Representative Herman Clott, include:

1. Absentees will be interviewed by union representatives in private offices provided by the company to try to uncover the basic reasons for absences.

2. The company will keep the union fully informed as to absences.

3. No employe will be given a job release until union representatives have discussed the matter with him and have tried to prevail upon him to stay on his job of producing vital war materials necessary for plane construction.

4. The union chief steward will meet with new employes to explain how the plan operates.

5. The workers, in collaboration with management, will investigate the possibility of using incentives and competition to attack absenteeism.

6. The all-worker committee which will administer the program will have the right to use company bulletin boards to post any publicity it finds necessary for its campaign.

Clott, in behalf of the union, said that it would do everything possible to aid war production and combat absenteeism.

CIO Plant's Pennies Provide $5256 For Navy War Relief

WASHINGTON, July 31—A shiny penny on the floor gave Leo Zebrolski, member of the CIO United Automobile Workers at the Eastern Aircraft Corporation's plant at Linden, N. J., an idea, and as a result the Navy Relief Society will receive a contribution of $5,256 from the union workers at the plant.

Zebrolski helps build the Gruman Wildcat fighter planes which Navy and Marine Corps fliers have used with such success against the Japs in the South Pacific.

One of the trim fighters had just come off the assembly line when Zebrolski, an electrical installer, saw the penny on the floor.

It gave him an idea. He pasted the penny to the side of the plane with a piece of tape, explaining to the woman welder nearby that this would be a good token for the pilot of the fighter plane.

The idea spread quickly. The woman welder pasted a quarter to the side of the cockpit and thousands of the plant's employes—factory and office workers—filed past and added to the contribution.

Donations soon became dollar bills, the highest a $20 bill which was pasted on by a worker who said he had three sons in the Navy. The Wildcat soon was covered with bills, and coins and oil cooler cans were placed alongside to catch the overflow.

When the drive, which Zebrolski had named the "Victory Ship Fund" ended, the money was removed so that the plane could be scrubbed before the final coat of paint was applied. Because the plane was destined for Navy and Marine Corps fliers, the Navy Relief Society was chosen as the recipient of the goodwill tokens.

No Truck with Fascism, FDR Pledges Nation

WASHINGTON, July 31—In a radio speech reiterating the United Nations' policy to fight for the "unconditional surrender" of the Axis, President Franklin D. Roosevelt pledged this week that the United States will "have no truck with Fascism in any way, shape or manner."

Making a round robin report on the conduct of the war to the American people, FDR lashed out at "those few Americans who grouse and complain about the inconvenience of life here in the United States."

They should learn, the President said, some lessons "from the civilian populations of our Allies—Britain, China, Russia—and of all the lands occupied by our common enemies."

Declaring that the most decisive fighting today is going on in the Soviet Union, President Roosevelt said:

"The world has never seen greater devotion, determination and self-sacrifice than have been displayed by the Russian people and their armies, under the leadership of Marshal Joseph Stalin.

"With a nation which, in saving itself is thereby helping to save all the world from the Nazi menace, this country should always be glad to be a good neighbor and a sincere friend in the world of the future."

PLAN FOR SOLDIERS

In dealing with the home front future, the President cited the great contributions made by members of the armed forces, whom he praised for gallantly carrying out their assignments in the drive to crush fascism.

Recommending a minimum program for their welfare after the war, he said that "the least to which they are entitled, it seems to me, is something like this":

1. Mustering-out pay to every member of the armed forces and Merchant Marine when he or she is honorably discharged, large enough in each case to cover a reasonable period of time between his discharge and the finding of a new job.

2. In case no job is found after diligent search, then unemployment insurance if the individual registers with the U. S. Employment Service.

3. An opportunity for members of the armed services to get further education or trade training at the cost of their Government.

4. Allowance of credit to all members of the armed forces, under unemployment compensation and federal old-age and survivors' insurance, for their period of service. For these purposes they should be treated as if they had continued their employment in private industry.

5. Improved and liberalized provisions for hospitalization, rehabilitation and medical care of disabled members of the armed forces and Merchant Marine.

6. Sufficient pensions for disabled members of the armed forces.

Wallace on Labor

DETROIT, July 25—In a hard-hitting speech lashing out at enemies of President Roosevelt—some of whom he dubbed "American Fascists"—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace this week told a large mass meeting of the Detroit Committee for the America Tomorrow that some of the same forces seek the destruction of American unions.

Praising labor's record in war production, Wallace said:

"Labor is beginning to do its part in enlightening the public. It is beginning to make crystal clear that 97 per cent of labor has cooperated 100 per cent with our Government in the war effort.

BLASTS ANTI-LABOR DEMAGOGUES

"And it is possible to get figures that show this even better, but I wanted to have these figures absolutely immune to any critics. And so I say, let that group which can show a more comprehensive effort throw the first stone.

"The people of America know that the second step toward fascism is the destruction of labor unions. There are midget Hitlers here who continually attack labor. There are other demagogues blind to the errors of every other group who shout, 'We love labor, but . . .'

"Both the midget Hitlers and the demagogues are enemies of America. Both would destroy labor unions if they could. Labor should be fully aware of its friends and of its enemies."

Counterattack Now Against Reaction, Murray Warns

WASHINGTON, July 31—Now is the time to begin the counter-attack against reactionaries in Congress, says CIO President Philip Murray in an article in the July issue of Ammunition, official publication of the United Automobile Workers' Education Department.

Denouncing the passing of the Smith-Connally Bill over the President's veto, and other irresponsible acts of Congress as "a serious threat to the war effort," President Murray said that Congress, instead of planning for a speedy victory through cooperation on the home front, has taken action which encourages labor troubles and inflation, permitting war profiteering, levying unfair taxes and interfering with the work of important war agencies.

"Although our sons and brothers are fighting shoulder to shoulder with allied brothers," he stated, "here at home their wives and children are facing a split command."

To mobilize the forces of the CIO against law makers who are playing the game of reactionary interests, Murray called for definite and carefully planned political action programs and permanent machinery set up for continuous action.

He urged labor to "encourage union members to run for office and to serve on local, state and national levels at every possible opportunity."

He said that he stressed the importance of public service and political action because he believed that "organized labor will continue to be a force in American life in proportion to the willingness of the labor movement, through its leaders, to assume leadership in the solution of national problems."

UOPWA Charges Pegler Anti-Labor, Anti-War

New York, July 31—Westbrook Pegler's column has revealed that he is "both against the government and against the war effort," President Lewis Merrill of the United Office & Professional Workers of America, said this week in answer to the latest attack against him by the poison pen artist of the Scripps Howard press.

"I naturally assume," Merill wrote Pegler, "that anyone such as yourself who does not feel that race riots or race prejudice are un-American and who apparently glories in it, is not going to be moved by any argument put forward by me or any other sincere individual seeking to eliminate divisive influences in the country and unite the entire American people behind the Commander-in-chief to win this war just as quickly as possible.

"You have earned a certain respect for your opinion because your column helped to make the public aware of some racketeers and corrupt practices in several unions. This is to the good. Even though the method you use can weaken the entire labor movement, nevertheless, I am one who feels that regardless of the immediate cost, every racketeer must be driven out of the labor movement so that the trade union movement can honestly serve the purposes of its membership and of the nation.

"It is too bad, however, that your penchant for exposing racketeers does not lead you to the much bigger racketeers, that is the exposure and fight against the biggest racketeers in the world, and I mean Hitler and his unsavory allies."

Come and Get It

Washington, July 31—The Federal Works Agency has $50,000,000 to spend now on child care facilities, that are vitally needed if America's working mothers are to stay regularly on the job of producing war materials to help beat the Axis.

Practically recommending that those who need child care facilities "come and get them," the FWA stated:

"An immediate expansion of the wartime child-care program appears necessary to provide industry with women workers essential in war production."

Thomas Hails Wallace As People's Man

Detroit, July 25—President R. J. Thomas of the million-strong United Auto Workers declared that Vice-President Henry A. Wallace is "second to none in voicing the true hopes and aspirations of America," in introducing Wallace to a huge mass meeting held here under the auspices of the Detroit Committee for the America Tomorrow.

Wallace, who warned the crowd that American Fascists are trying to hamstring the war effect, was praised by Thomas as an outstanding spokesman for "ideals of lasting peace, of economic plenty and of political and national freedom."

Thomas declared that the enemies of the people are also the enemies of the Vice President, and added:

"They do not hate Henry Wallace because he has a post-war program. They hate him because he is planning for human beings while they are planning for profits."

Strike Act Issue Raised by Dist. 50 Disruption

WASHINGTON, July 31—The question of whether or not a minority group in a plant can call for a strike vote under the Smith-Connally law was laid this week before Attorney General Francis Biddle. At the request of the National Labor Relations Board, President Roosevelt asked the Attorney General to decide the issue in the case of a labor dispute at two Allis-Chalmers plants in Springfield, Ill. Decision on the case has not been issued yet.

Although the CIO United Farm Equipment Workers won an election at the plant on June 5, 1942, by a vote of 931 to 211 and was certified as sole bargaining agency for the employes, District 50, United Mine Workers, has been trying to pressure the workers to leave the CIO, and to get them to pull a strike, cutting off production in these vital war plants where "Blitz-Buggies," the large armored vehicles needed on the fighting front, are being made for the Army. About 1700 workers are employed at the two plants.

In its efforts to raid the jurisdiction of the CIO union, District 50 took advantage of the fact that the company was stalling on signing a contract with the Farm Equipment Workers and begun a disruptive jurisdictional drive, and on March 1, 1943, filed a petition for an NLRB election.

SIGNED CIO PACT

On May 4 of this year, the company finally signed a contract with the CIO union, and on June 10, the Board dismissed District 50's petition for an election.

During all this time, the workers resisted all strike provocation and kept production rolling. On midnight of June 15, some 25 officials of the United Mine Workers threw a picket line around the Allis-Chalmers plant. When the employes reported for work the next mornnig, some were afraid to go through the picket line, others were confused and a temporary stoppage resulted.

The CIO union, however, rallied the workers and all were back on the job by the 17th, and District 50's strike attempt had failed. On July 2, exactly one week after passage of the Smith-Connally bill, District 50 filed with the NLRB a 30-day notice of intent to call a strike at the Allis-Chalmers plant, as provided by the law. The 30 days are up on August 4.

MURRAY ENTERS CASE

Meanwhile the national CIO and the Farm Equipment Workers are doing everything in their power to defeat this attempt to disrupt war production at Allis-Chalmers.

CIO President Philip Murray, in a statement directed to the Allis-Chalmers workers told them that they "have a grave responsibility to American labor and a solemn duty to American servicemen and the American people to perform today, in preventing a vote to strike in their plant.

"Despite all provocations, there must be no stoppages of war production in this crucial period," he asserted.

"I am confident that the Allis-Chalmers workers will stand firmly against the attempt of the enemies of labor to sabotage our victory drive. A decisive no-strike vote in your plant will go far toward smashing further attempts by anti-victory elements within our nation to use the Smith-Connally Act as a weapon to wreck our country's war production program."

ACA Delegates Flock To D. C., Hit Wire Merger

WASHINGTON, July 31—Nearly 50 telegraph experts, operators, repair men, telegraph office managers, etc., have gathered in Washington to testify before the Federal Communications Commission at hearings on merger of Postal Telegraph and Western Union Companies, which began this week.

The telegraphers have come from all major communications and war centers in the United States to offer evidence on the extent of telegraph service in their own communities. They are all members and officers of locals of the CIO American Communications Association.

The delegates will offer personal testimony to prove that the company-proposed merger plans "will disrupt wartime communications" inasmuch as the companies are abandoning facilities wholesale in all parts of the country and are violating both the Communications Act of 1934 and the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

In a statement to the delegates upon their arrival in Washington, Joseph P. Selly, President of the American Communications Association, said:

"We have charged that the companies are engaged in a conspiracy to violate the laws governing communictions in order to effect a merger program which will result in a financial killing for a group of Wall Street speculators at the expense of the war effort.

PUBLIC ENTITLED TO STORY

"Your own testimony on what the companies are doing is of vital interest, not only to the commission which has the authority to pass upon the merger plans, but to the public which is entitled to the facts on why telegraph service is steadily deteriorating and is rapidly approaching a breaking point.

"When telegraph carriers embark on a policy of reduced service for the sake of additional profits, at a time when all communications carriers are overburdened, when expansion rather than curtailment is needed to speed war production and service messages, the public is entitled to the full story."

Donald Ducked CIO But CIO Ducked Donald

Los Angeles, July 31—Donald Douglas' Aircraft Corp. here, this week sat down to do what he thought he never would have to —deal with a CIO-organized union in one of his four plants.

That is, some of Donald's playmates in management did.

Several weeks ago, the United Auto & Aircraft Workers won an NLRB election at the Douglas Vernon plant, key tool link in Douglas plane production.

This week, new UAW Local 339 presented their contract demands to Douglas management. The pact, when negotiated, will be the first signed by Douglas with any union.

BACK CIO POLITICAL ACTION: Above, a portion of the crowd of CIO leaders from mid-western states who gathered last week at Chicago to hear the CIO's Political Action Committee outline a plan for uniting all progressive forces in support of win-the-war candidates in the 1943 and crucial 1944 elections.

CIO Political Drive Shifts To High Gear

CHICAGO, July 31—Hailed as the great political arm of CIO, the CIO Political Action Committee, headed by Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, made Chicago history this week when 300 conferees representing 2,000,000 CIO members in 11 Midwestern States voted unanimously to support the election of candidates in national, state and city-wide contests in 1943 and 1944 who have demonstrated their consistent support of President Roosevelt on all major issues, domestic and foreign.

The conference adopted the committee's five-point program previously endorsed at the North Atlantic CIO political conference held in Philadelphia and vowed immediately to set up political organization "in every ward, district, county, city and state" to insure the election of progressive, win-the-war candidates for each office.

CIO representatives from Michigan agreed to support national CIO political policy and said they will do nothing that can be construed as setting up a third party, which in the view of President Philip Murray, the CIO Executive Council and the CIO Political Action Committee "would serve to divide and divert labor and progressive forces, resulting in the election of our political enemies."

BACK LUCAS BILL

The conference unanimously adopted a resolution supporting the Lucas Bill, in the U. S. Senate, providing that polls must be kept open until 8 p.m. in all Federal elections.

Early closing of polls, the conference pointed out, has the effect of disenfranchising many war workers who should not be penalized politically for the long hours they are spending in support of democracy's effort to crush fascism.

Ohio, Missouri, Indiana, Michigan and other states reported a considerable amount of CIO political activity as being already under way, including the all-important tasks of registering voters.

Hillman, R. J. Thomas and other committee members, as well as many speakers from the floor, stressed labor's political action as the No. 1 task of the trade-union movement.

Convinced that they can obtain political unity, the CIO Committee declared that contact would be established with the AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods in an effort to achieve joint action.

At the Chicago conference, the feeling was expressed on all sides that the revival of political activity on the part of CIO will help insure the successful outcome of the war and a democratic peace.

The committee announced that it would hold conferences at Birmingham, Ala., and in San Francisco, in order to perfect labor's political machinery for the 1943 and 1944 campaigns.

The Birmingham conference will be held August 14 at Room 306, Jefferson County Court House, according to Director of Industrial Union Councils John Brophy, who wired all regional directors and councils in the southeastern states urging attendance. Birmingham headquarters will be at the Hotel Tutwiler, Brophy said.

Colorado Labor Unites To Fight Anti-Union Law

By GRAHAM DOLAN

DENVER, July 28—"It is my firm belief based upon my lifelong experience, that any statutory provision which interferes with or prevents a labor union from establishing union security in its collective bargaining agreements is actually aimed at the very existence of labor unions." These words of CIO President Philip Murray were the opening shot of united Colorado labor in its suit for a permanent injunction against the state's infamous "Labor Peace Act," passed by a reactionary legislature in the spring.

The act severely regiments the operation of unions, restricts the rights to strike and picket and provids for opening union financial records for inspection with no guarantee that employers will not be advised of their contents. The law even holds that before an employer can enter into a pact with a union security clause included, three-quarters or more of his employes must have approved it by secret ballot.

In his statement, Murray said: "Unless labor organizations have the right to strike and to publicize issues an employer may with impunity disregard the requests and demands made by labor organizations in behalf of their members. In effect, the elimination or interference with these rights imposes economic slavery upon the workers because they can be told in so many words to put up or shut up.

WOULD KILL UNIONS

"Shorn of these rights, labor organizations would become wholly ineffectual and there would be no reason for workers to join them."

On hand to present the joint case of CIO and AFL unions was the largest array of legal talent ever assembled for a court case involving labor in Colorado. Headed by CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman and AFL Counsel Joseph Padway, labor's staff of attorneys represented a long list of key plaintiffs, which included:

The CIO and AFL, the United Steelworkers of America, the Intl. Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, Philip Murray, Reid Robinson, William Green, the Colorado Industrial Union Council, the Colorado Federation of Labor, Locals 557 and 611 of the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, David J. McDonald and others.

BOSSES BACK LAW

Attorney General Gail L. Ireland personally headed the legal staff for the defendants, who besides Ireland include the members of the Industrial Commission of Colorado.

President Murray's testimony was contained in an affidavit presented as evidence by Lee Pressman. The State objected to the entire document on the grounds that the arguments presented therein had nothing to do with claims that the anti-labor law was unconstitutional.

District Judge Charles C. Sackmann permitted the introduction of the affidavit without ruling on the State's objections. AFL attorneys announced that a statement by AFL President Green would be introduced later.

It became obvious from their objections that the Chamber of Commerce and the state Republican machine were basing their fight to keep the "Peace Act" on the statute books on the sole premise that restricting labor unions did not mean the act was unconstitutional.

Assistant Attorney General Hickman Walker was particularly disturbed by a section of Philip Murray's testimony on union security. In dramatic fashion, Murray's affidavit reviewed labor's struggle for recognition. Walker, who remembers Cripple Creek and Ludlow, didn't want to be reminded.

MURRAY ON SECURITY

"Union security," said Murray, "is a basic objective of every union. Union security means the establishment of a status which would place them beyond attack from employers who still yearn for the era when labor unions were non-existent.

"Labor unions well remember the severe struggle in which they engaged during the past 50 years to establish legal recognition. They recall the era of the yellow-dog contracts and the sweeping injunctions which made them renegades in society and illegal organizations.

"They recall the days when the concept of criminal conspiracy was applied to them making practically all of their activities illegal and making them illegal as well.

"Nor can labor unions forget the anti-union drive which followed the termination of World War I when large corporations and employers' associations throughout the nation openly and flagrantly undertook a drive to destroy all labor unions and unfortunately had considerable success."

As the hearing opened, it was indicated that it would last for several days.

Charge Co. Provokes Strike

Chicago, July 31—Charging the Electro-Motive Division of the General Motors Corp. of LaGrange, Ill., with attempting to provoke a strike, Local 28 of the United Office & Professional Workers of America, CIO, today telegraphed Donald Nelson of the War Production Board to investigate the actions of the company.

The telegram charged that the company "by intimidation, coercion, the firing of union leaders, refusal to negotiate a renewal of the union contract, and refusal to comply with a recent decision of the War Labor Board, is trying to force the union to strike so that the union will lose a maintenance of membership granted by the War Labor Board and incur the displeasure of the government and public opinion."

United Front Gives Bad Day Bad Day

Peoria, Ill., July 31—A real grass roots movement to persuade Congressmen to follow a win-the-war policy was inaugurated here last week when 11 labor and civic organizations joined forces to discuss with Congressman Stephan A. Day his record, and to present their program for support for the Administration's aggressive war policies.

Day dodged, squirmed and "demagogued" about his love for the people, but his record stared him in the face and kept his oratory from influencing his constituents. His only program was to have an investigation of every issue, to wave the Constitution, or to blame the bureaucrats.

His attack on the roll back and price control was met with a unanimous resolution in support of the Administration's program for price control and subsidies. In addition to these, the joint organizations' program urged support of the anti-lynching bill, an equitable tax bill, crop insurance, increased funds for the Farm Security Administration, and repeal of the Smith-Connally anti-labor Act.

Organizations represented at the formulation of this program included the CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods, United Mine Workers, Negro Cummunity Center, Jewish Community Council, and other civic and church groups.

UE Urges Backing For Win-War Politicos

Schenectady, N. Y., July 31.—The 120,000 members of the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers of America who vote in New York state were urged this week to support at the primary elections on August 10 those groups in the Democratic, Republican, and American Labor parties respectively which "stand nearest to leadership in the effort of the American people to win this war at the earliest possible date."

Cal. CIO Jumps Full Tilt Into Political Arena

Los Angeles, July 31—While thousands of CIO union members in Los Angeles were busy this week visiting their Congressmen and demanding an accounting of them on their voting records, CIO unions here swept behind the California CIO Council's legislative program to elect a win-the-war administration and and Congress in 1944 with cash on the barrel-head.

From Oil Workers Local 128 in Long Beach came a check of $300; from Shipbuilders Local 9 in San Pedro came a check for $1,000; while other locals were to act this week on executive board recommendations for contributions.

Law Guild Supports CIO Political Action

Washington, July 31—The National Lawyers Guild notified the CIO this week that the Guild accepted the initiative of the CIO Congressional Action Committee and would join with it in organizing Congressional District Committees throughout the country for the purpose of changing the present Congress to a win-the-war Congress.

Mail in That Political Dope Cowan's Plea

Washington, July 31—CIO regional directors and field representatives were urged this week by Legislative Director Nathan Cowan to get in reports at once about local political action designed to convince Congressmen that the people back home want a program that will help to win the war in the speediest possible time.

Speaking in behalf of CIO's Special Committee for Congressional Action, which designated Cowan as the man to receive and coordinate reports of activities, Cowan declared:

"We've had a large number of wires and letters from the field informing us that CIO members are getting splendid cooperation from the AFL and the Railroad Brotherhoods in the drive for a united effort to bring to the attention of the Congressmen the real wishes of the people."

Register To Vote

One of the tragedies of the 1942 elections was the lightness of the labor vote. We're paying the price for it now.

It's not enough to say: "We've learned our lesson. Wait till 1944. We'll certainly get out the vote then."

If that good resolution is to be put into effect, we've got to get busy RIGHT NOW.

A citizen who doesn't register in advance, according to his state regulations, just won't be able to vote when elections roll around.

One of the reasons for the light labor vote last year was the big movement of workers to new war jobs—resulting in many not being registered to vote in the new state to which they moved.

Eleven states require six months of residence to acquire the privilege of voting; 33 states require a year; and five states as much as two years.

It is therefore vitally important that you find out at once when, where and how you have to register to vote. Otherwise you may be too late.

Now's the time to start a campaign through your local union to give this information to every member, and to see that all are registered to vote in good time.

Who's Punishing Whom?

So the Smith-Connally bill was supposed to be an anti-strike bill, specially designed to punish John L. Lewis.

But look who pops up as the first man to make use of this new act for his own purposes.

It's none other than John L. Lewis himself, large as life.

And what's he using the act for? To call a strike in a war plant!

At the Allis-Chalmers plant in Springfield, Ill., Lewis' District 50 is attempting to raid the CIO Farm Equipment Workers' Union, which was chosen by the employes in a Labor Board election to represent them and which has a contract with the company.

Lewis has found the Smith-Connally act just what he needed to provoke a strike directed against the union chosen by the workers, and to disrupt war production.

He has proceeded, under the strike-provoking provisions of this alleged anti-strike act, to file strike notice and to call for a strike vote.

If your Congressman voted for the Smith-Connally act, ask him if he can still claim it is an anti-strike, anti-Lewis measure—or if he doesn't agree now with President Roosevelt's veto statement that it is a measure which "would give government sanction to strike agitations."

No Recess in This Fight

Don't forget the polltax during the present Congressional recess.

The anti-polltax bill has been passed by the House, and it cannot be acted upon by the Senate until Congress reconvenes. But what action the Senators will take depends on the impression we make right now on them while they're home.

Every member of the Senate Judiciary Committee should be contacted without delay, particularly by his own constituents, and urged to report out favorably the anti-polltax bill, as soon as the Senate meets.

The members of this committee are Senators Van Nuys, Ind.; McCarran, Nev.; Hatch, N. Mex.; Connally, Tex.; O'Mahoney, Wyo.; Chandler, Ky.; Kilgore, W. Va.; Murdock, Utah; McFarland, Ariz.; Austin, Vt.; Danaher, Conn.; Wiley, Wis.; Langer, N. Dak., and Burton, Ohio.

But even if your Senators are not on this committee, you should still contact them. Urge every Senator to promise to vote for cloture, to break the filibuster which the polltaxers will undoubtedly attempt, to prevent a democratic vote on the Senate floor.

The importance of national action against the polltax has been re-emphasized again by the experience in Tennessee, where an anti-polltax bill was passed by the legislature, only to be thrown out by the state supreme court.

State action is not enough. We must pass the federal anti-polltax bill, if this dangerous blot on democracy, this obstruction to our war effort, is to be wiped out once and for all.

The chances are excellent of doing this in the next session of Congress, if you ACT NOW.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

NOW'S the time to look over the record of your representatives in Congress.

You can get it at a glance from the voting records compiled by the UAW-CIO that are now being printed in The CIO News and other union papers.

The complete record of Senate and House votes on major issues is also available (along with other important information) in the pamphlet, "Keeping Score—To Win The War," which you may obtain through your union, or direct from the CIO publicity department, 718 Jackson Place N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

Now's the best time to check over this record, because it's available in such a handy form; because your Senators and Congressmen are home for the summer recess, and you have a chance to talk it over with them; because you may now help them improve their record in the next session; and because it's none too early to start thinking how you're going to vote in the next elections.

You can find out whether your representatives are representing you worthily by checking their votes on the Smith-Connally bill, on subsidies to roll back living costs, on the $25,000 salary limit, on the Ruml plan, on incentive payments to increase food production, on committees to bait and obstruct the administration, and on a dozen other similar measures.

These votes are all down in black and white now. The CIO tables show, after the name of every Senator and Congressman, just how he voted on every one of these issues.

A plus (+) sign is marked down for a vote for labor and a strong home front; and a minus (—) sign shows a vote against labor and our Commander-in-Chief's win-the-war program.

You can spend a profitable few minutes by finding out how many plus signs and how many minus signs there are after the names of your Senators and your Congressman. It's an easy way to learn the true political score.

The fall of Mussolini is the first substantial crack in the system of fascism against which we are fighting.

Mussolini was the first to subject a whole country to fascism. Hitler simply imitated his fascist ideas and gave them the German name of Nazism. Franco was another imitator, who installed fascism in Spain. And nearly every other country has produced less successful imitators of this same evil thing.

The different names given to fascism in different countries, and minor differences in national adaptations, should not blind us to the essential sameness of fascism wherever it sprouts.

Fascism means the crushing of the labor movement and the destruction of all democratic liberties. It is the dictatorship of a privileged minority directed toward suppressing the rights and aspirations of the common people.

Fascism maintains itself by regimenting the whole population for aggressive and imperialistic war—and the blood guilt for the present war rests on the heads of Mussolini, Hitler and all their fascist imitators and stooges.

So while we rejoice over Mussolini's downfall, we should also be spurred to renewed determination to destroy the whole foul anti-social system of fascism, wherever it has taken root.

This obviously goes for German fascism, or Nazism, and for the closely similar regime in Japan. But we should also be on guard to destroy any seeds of fascism in our own country.

There are such creatures as "American Fascists," as Vice-President Wallace has truly said. These include not only full-blown Fascists, but many secret sympathizers with fascism, who promote defeatism and disruption, and who would like to see fascist measures applied in the United States.

Jew-baiting, Negro-baiting and labor-baiting are fascist tactics that are all too common in the United States. Measures directed toward the destruction of the labor movement and of democratic political rights are fascist in character.

To guard our country against fascism, our first duty is all-out war effort to destroy the fountainheads of fascism in Germany, Italy and Japan. This includes strengthening and safeguarding our democracy internally by the full exercise of our democratic rights for democratic and win-the-war purposes.

Keeping close tab on Congress and joining wholeheartedly in the political activities now being pushed by the CIO are therefore important steps to carry forward the present struggle of all freedom-loving people for the final and total destruction of fascism.

Keeping Score to Win the War

Senators' Record On Vital War Issues

(Voting records of Senators on issues vital to everyone who wants to win the war are listed on the right for the enlightenment of CIO members engaged in informing citizens of their districts about the position of their elected representatives. The score, as compiled by the United Auto Workers Union, includes the records of members of the House of Representatives; these will be presented in succeeding issues. At the right of this page is an explanation of the symbols. Below are the issues numbered as per the tabulation to the right.)

1. Limits jurisdiction of NLRB, prohibiting elections at plants where contracts have existed between any group of employes and management for more than 90 days. Obvious stimulant of "back door" agreements with company unions. Passed by 40 to 25.

2. Smith-Connally anti-labor bill. Encourages stoppages by legalizing them. Limits labor's right to support financially certain political candidates. Passed by 63 to 16.

3. Vote to override President Roosevelt's veto of Smith-Connally bill. Passed by 56 to 25.

4. Farm labor deferment. Farm bloc bill to freeze labor to farms in "essential occupation" class, irrespective of value of crop to war effort. Passed 50 to 24.

5. Would boost prices. Bankhead amendment to agriculture appropriation bill. Vetoed by FDR in original form. Amendment later defeated 37 to 36.

6. Death sentence for Farm Security Administration, which has aided small farmers to increase food production, vitally needed for war effort. Backed by farm bloc. Death sentence defeated 53 to 25.

7. Increases soil conservation payments by $100,000,000. Money spent to induce farmers to rotate crops, save vitality of soil. Passed 49 to 20.

8. Appropriation for crop insurance, favored by small farmers who thus are able to increase production of food and other essential crops. Opposed by farm bloc (big, corporate farmers) because in interests of monopoly they want to keep production down, prices up. Crop insurance program defeated.

9. Amendment prohibiting use of Commodity Credit Corp. funds to aid rollback of prices. Aids big interests who want high prices, low wages. Passed 39 to 36.

10. Taft amendment providing for limited rollback of prices. FDR vetoed Commodity Credit Corp. appropriation bill (amended as in No. 9), saying it would tend toward inflation. The House changed its mind, agreed to appropriate funds for rollback. Taft amendment in Senate limited funds for rollback to $525,000,000. Funds are necessary to pay for subsidies. Limiting amendment defeated 33 to 31.

11. Prohibiting use of any Federal funds for price rollback—amendment by Tydings passed 36 to 28. Later, Senate receded from position and concurred with the House in withdrawing any prohibition against rollbacks.

12. Appropriations for domestic branch of Office of War Information. House voted no money, Senate restored part of funds needed. Amendment to increase appropriation from $3,500,000 to $5,000,000 defeated 40 to 34. Polltaxers and reactionaries decided OWI domestic releases were "too democratic."

13. Appropriation for National Resources Planning Board. House refused funds. Senate passed amendment providing an inadequate $200,000 for operation of this important post-war planning agency, rejected 43 to 31 an increase to $500,000. House-Senate conference later agreed to abolish agency.

14. Appropriation for National Youth Administration, providing training for war work. Amendment to continue operation passed 41 to 37. House-Senate conference, however, abolished NYA.

15. Lifting $25,000 net ceiling on salaries. Passed 74 to 3.

16. Federal income tax. 75 per cent Ruml plan, a pay-as-you-go gift to the rich which forgives taxes for them in huge proportions as compared with amounts forgiven for workers. To make up deficit caused by forgiveness, corporate interests are expected to push for sales tax, bearing more heavily on poor than on rich. Passed 62 to 19.

17. Extension of reciprocal trade agreements, making for better trading with other countries—low tariffs. Passed 59 to 23.

18. Bill of attainder to dismiss from government service Drs. Dodd, Lovett, Watson, accused of the nebulous charge of having been connected with organizations defined by Dies Committee as "subversive." No trial held. Agencies for which men work say they are able, patriotic. Senate first rejected measure, then approved 48 to 33.

What the Symbols Mean

Plus means a vote for labor. Minus means a vote against labor. P stands for pair.

There are two kinds of pairs, one which relates to a certain bill in which both parties specify on which side of this subject they will vote, and one called a "general pair" under which both parties vote on the opposite side of any question which comes up while the pair is in effect. A pair vote for labor is represented here by the symbol P, against labor by P. The general pair is represented by P. Actually a pair, either for or against, does not in any way affect the outcome of a vote. Being paired is no satisfactory excuse for absenteeism.

A is the symbol for absent. This means that the person is out of the Senate Chamber or the House.

Pamphlet Aid In Keeping Tab On Congress

The Senate voting records on this page, together with the voting records of all members of the House, are now available in pamphlet form in the CIO publication, "Keeping Score—To Win The War."

This pamphlet includes a special letter from Pres. Philip Murray; articles on what can be done to make Congressmen change their minds and their votes, and how to do it; practical information on registering to vote; and a full description of all major issues referred to in the voting record.

It is an invaluable manual for CIO legislative and political activity — particularly during the present Congressional recess.

Order at once from the CIO Publicity Dept., 718 Jackson Place, N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

Farm Union Warning

Price Control Enemies Still Manning Guns

WASHINGTON, July 31—Enemies of price control have served notice that they will continue to fight subsidies and to insist upon the removal of ceilings so that prices may rise to the natural level in the open market, President James G. Patton of the National Farmers Union stated here this week.

He named as enemies Frank E. Gannett, former vice chairman of the Republican party; certain processing and distributing interests, some farm groups and some politicians.

Accusing them of trying to put over a hoax on the American people, Patton said they have not succeeded in fooling working farmers. "Turned right side up, the demand for immunity from price control was, and is, a threat of a sit-down strike by farmers," he declared. "This threat was not carried out. Farmers planted more this year than last."

Although the demand for many vital foods is at least 23 per cent greater than the available supply, Patton said, enemies of the President's anti-inflation program are demanding higher prices for increased food production and wage freezing.

"As part of their program for high prices for scarcity, the farm horsemen of inflation opposed conversion, mobilization and expansion of all farm resources," he said. "Instead of equipping all farm families to produce war foods and fibers at maximum, they attempted to assassinate the Farm Security Administration in 1942 and again in 1943.

"Instead of mobilizing the vast under-employed farm labor resources of the nation for efficient use wherever and whenever needed, they supported legislation which immobilized farm labor by freezing it in 3,000 counties."

Among the allies of the pro-inflationary forces, Patton named the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, private banking interests, and John L. Lewis.

"Now when they see that food will soon become one of the greatest scandals of the war, they try to transfer their guilt to others," he said, and plan "to throw the blame on labor when, as now seems inevitable, labor is compelled to seek upward wage adjustments to meet rising prices."

Watchful Waiting Policy on Cost Of Living Front

By The CIO Cost Of Living Committee

Following the conference of the Labor Victory Committee with the President, labor circles in Washington have assumed an attitude of watchful waiting on the cost of living front. They are waiting to see whether sabotage in administrative quarters will not frustrate the President's new plans in the way that his plans and policies have frequently been frustrated in the past.

The inspired publicity barrage by Prentiss Brown that the OPA token rollbacks are going to make the President's new program unnecessary is certainly not reassuring. The plain fact is that without a large subsidy program there can be no rollback of the cost of living to last September levels.

What stands in the way of that large subsidy program is the behind-the-scenes commitment given by Prentiss Brown and Justice Byrnes to congressional leaders not to engage in further subsidies without securing congressional consent.

NEED TWO BILLION

There is no use, therefore, trying to magnify imaginatively the effect of the present subsidies and to persuade the American people that $400,000,000 will do the job for which the President said $2,000,000,000 would be required. It is not a rollback on paper that labor wants, but a rollback in actual food prices.

Also far from reassuring is the continuance of an inflationary attitude at the War Food Administration despite the recent change of regimes. The War Food Administration holds the whip hand on basic food prices because the OPA cannot put a price ceiling on direct agricultural products without its consent.

An indication of the temper of the War Food Administration was furnished recently when the OPA yielded to its pressure and placed a ceiling on hogs at $14.75 a hundred weight, a dollar or more above the current market price. The old War Food Administration had refused to allow any ceiling on hogs to be placed at all: the new War Food Administration consented to a ceiling at an inflationary level—a level which is likely to force a break in the retail ceiling on processed pork.

Since the purpose of a ceiling on live hogs was to prevent the retail price of pork from going up, there is little gain in finally securing WFA's consent to a live hog ceiling at a ruinously high level.

The character of the hog ceiling augurs poorly for the solution of the meat price problem. At the present time the OPA has a ceiling on beef prices without any ceilings on beef on the hoof. With rising livestock prices this causes a squeeze on some small packers, although not for the bulk of the industry.

A case is now up before the Emergency Court of Appeals to decide whether the present meat ceilings are fair and equitable for the packers in the absence of ceilings on livestock. If the OPA loses this case it will mean that the meat ceilings will have to be raised.

SEE WFA BARRIER

The logical solution of imposing ceilings on livestock at fair levels and thus preserving the present level of retail meat prices will undoubtedly be blocked by the War Food Administration.

Judging by the hog ceiling, if the WFA ever consents to ceilings in livestock it will be at such absurdly high levels as to force up retail meat prices.

In other words, while we are waiting for action in the promised rollback of prices, we are actually threatened with a rise in prices because the President's hold-the-line policy is completely flouted by the WFA.

• • •

The Smith Committee Investigating Executive Agencies has delivered itself of a report on rent control. The burden of the report is that the OPA rent department has successfully stabilized rents, but that it has committed the crime of taking the side of the tenant. The report recommends that the rent department be reduced to a skeleton staff.

This is a backhanded way of sabotaging a popular program. To make sure that the Smith Comtee does not attempt any monkey business for the real estate lobbies when Congress reconvenes, let all who have benefited from the rent program write their individual Congressmen and Senators that they will not stand for any attacks on the rent program.

Blood Donor Record

Jeannette, Pa., July 31—Out of 137 members of United Steelworkers of America Local 1194, 60 donated blood to the Red Cross during the first three weeks of June, Recording Secretary William Hoak, jr., said this week.

'Fighting 50' Still Battle For Rollback

Washington, July 31—The fight for subsidies and a rollback of prices is by no means over. That was the statement issued this week by the "Fighting 50"—liberal bloc of Congressmen dedicated to push for win-the-war action on the home front to support the Roosevelt Administration fight against the Axis on the battlefront.

Rep. Thomas A. Scanlon, chairman of the "Fighting 50," said that members of the group are taking the issue to the people. Congressmen plan to hold meetings in their districts during the recess to explain the need to curb inflation.

Discussing the food program as a whole, the group asserted that the basic approach to it must be one of assisting the farmers to increase production.

"Every expansion of our war effort and every advance of our armed forces will further increase the demand for foodstuffs," they warned.

The committee scored the attempts of the reactionary Farm Bloc to wreck the Administration's food production programs, and accused them of trying "to play politics with food instead of helping the farmers to meet their manpower and other problems."

Va. CIO Hails FDR, Pledges No Strikes

Huntington, W. Va., July 31—Delegates to the sixth annual convention of the West Virginia State CIO Council, meeting here this week, heard speeches by prominent CIO and political leaders, elected officials for the coming year and drew up a strong pro-war program which included a reiteration of the no-strike pledge, and 100 per cent support to President Roosevelt.

Council President John B. Easton and Ned Sims, a vice-president, were reelected by acclamation the first day.

CIO leaders who addressed the convention included Allan S. Haywood, National CIO Vice-President and director of organization, and Van A. Bittner, assistant to the President of the United Steelworkers of America.

Political leaders who spoke included Gov. M. M. Neely, Senator Harley M. Kilgore and Charles Sattler, West Virginia Commissioner of Labor.

New U. S. Paper Sets 5,000 Labor Groups as Goal

Washington, July 31—Five thousand Labor-Management Committees in war plants throughout the Nation by the end of 1943 is the goal of War Production Drive headquarters at WPB, says the first issue of The Labor-Management News which appeared this week.

Auxiliary Officer In Shipyard Job Sees CWA as Vital Need

By JULIA KATZ

National Director, CIO Women's Auxiliary

For the past two months I have been working as an acetylene burner in the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard in Baltimore. For the same length of time I have been a member of Local 43 of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America. You might think that a job in a shipyard and membership in a union of 28,000 men and women would make you forget about women's auxiliaries. Quite the opposite is true.

To begin with, the girl who works beside you, you discover, is a former member of a Steel Workers Auxiliary in Portsmouth, Ohio. Yes, sir, she is a union member! Your Shop Committeewoman tells you that she was raised on cornbread and unionism by her mother, who was president of a woman's auxiliary in a Kentucky mine camp. Before you've been in the shipyard very long you find scores of auxiliary "graduates" and you know how true it is that the auxiliary is the school for unionism.

Well, what do we think about auxiliaries, now that we are workers with many new problems and with a powerful union to bring them to? Believe me, sisters, we feel more strongly than ever that a union needs an auxiliary. We feel that because we, the women in those unions, need the help of auxiliaries.

CONDITIONS TOUGH

Ask one of the girls in the shipyard how she likes her job. Ask "Kentucky," or "Ohio," or "Tennessee' how she likes working in the shipyard and she'll say: "I like it fine. Every day that I'm here I know I'm helping to win the war." But the high cost of food, the impossible housing conditions, the lack of child care facilities, of medical, recreational and transportation facilities plus the difficult working conditions for women in the yard, make it hard for "Kentucky" and her fellow-workers to do their best.

We realize this, and we know how important the fight in Congress and in our community for a rollback in prices, for war housing, etc., is. We talk about these things at lunch and riding to and from work. We support our union's efforts to fight for conditions that will maintain our ability to produce.

But seven days a week in the shipyard; eight hours of work plus from two to four hours daily traveling to and from work; endless hours of household responsibilities for most of us when we get home; and keeping in touch with community agencies leaves little time and energy for checking on grocers' prices and doing the other day-to-day tasks which are necessary to achieve the CIO program.

Do you wonder we applaud the program of the CWA-CIO? Indeed, we regard every effort of the CWA-CIO and of our own auxiliary as a service in our behalf.

Pressure Cooker Vs. Water Bath—Merits Still Debated

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

There still seem to be some very strong and definite opinions regarding pressure cookers versus the water bath method for canning. Some even point an accusing finger at anyone who would betray a method of canning that has stood us in good stead for so many years—through thick and thin—in hot weather and cold.

This is the stand of quite a few women. They question the right of anyone to cast aspersions on the methods of canning that our mothers and grandmothers used.

In my column of three weeks ago, July 5, I explained in detail why in certain cases with non-acid vegetables, it was safer to use the pressure cooker than the hot-water bath. I based my information on studies and research of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. I explained that the main reason for using a pressure cooker was to be certain that 'botulinus bacteria' were killed.

Scientific experiments show that this poisonous bacteria, when in the spore stage, may or may not be destroyed at a temperature of 212 degrees, or boiling point, even if maintained at boiling point for five or six hours. But at 240 degrees, the temperature reached in a pressure cooker, this deadly botulinus bacteria is surely destroyed in 30 to 60 minutes.

POISONOUS BACTERIA

Botulinus is found in the soil. Non-acid vegetables, especially root vegetables and those that grow close to the ground, are most likely to be contaminated. Tomatoes and fruits contain acid and can safely be canned in a hot-water bath. The hot-water bath method of canning is definitely useful and safe when putting up acid fruits and vegetables. But let's not insist on ignoring the results of costly experiments, carried on by serious-minded agents of the U. S. government for the benefit of every one of us.

The case of pasteurized milk seems to me to be a perfect analogy. We all know that undulant fever, a disease difficult to cure and sometimes fatal, comes from unpasteurized milk. We also know of farmers and whole communities who drink milk direct from the cow.

I know of such a community where the milk is handled in a clean dairy and inspections of the premises and of the cows occur at regular intervals. The milk is not pasteurized. Yet every year there are one or two cases of undulant fever. The people in the community think nothing of it. They've never had pasteurized milk and they were satisfied to continue using the same kind of milk they used in the past.

If you were living in this same community and had the opportunity to use pasteurized milk, even if it meant paying more for your milk, what kind of milk would you choose for your child? Would you run the risk of exposing your child to undulant fever? The answer is obvious.

To those women who want to stick to the water bath method of canning simply because their mothers did it that way, I say, "Wake up. This is 1943!"

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

The Utility Workers Organizing Committee came through with another election victory at the Detroit Edison Co., Delray Power House, where CIO polled 138 to 98 for no union, as reported by Chairman Straub.

The IWA reports an election victory at the Goodman Lumber Co., Goodman, Wis., by a vote of 176 for CIO to 60 for no union.

Sidney Cohen, research director for the Oil Workers Organizing Campaign, sends in the following election victories: Sherwood Refining Co., Warren, Pa., CIO, 32 as against 4; Standard Oil Co. Refinery, Cleveland, Ohio, CIO polled 60 per cent of the votes; Pan American Pipe Line Co., Texas City, Texas, CIO polled 95 per cent and at the Southport Refining Co. Laboratory Dept., Mt. Pleasant, Texas, CIO polled 100 per cent. Because of military reasons, the exact figures at these plants are not available.

Robert C. Edwards, sub-regional director in Huntington, reports a victory at Electro Metallurgical Co., Alloy, W. Va., with 894 votes for UGCCWA, 389 for District 50, 143 for no union. This election victory will prove a springboard for further victories in the Kanawha Valley. Brothers John Boyd, CIO field representative; Joseph Rice, CIO field representative; Edward Cadle, UGCCWA field representative; Joy Joy, UGCCWA field representative; John B. Easton, regional director; Harry Colebank, CIO field representative, and Harry Norrington, CIO field representative, assisted in this splendid showing.

Ewald Sandner, regional director, reports the following victories: Behringer Sheet Metal Corp., Newark, USA-CIO 80, no union 2; National Pneumatic Tool, Rahway, N. J., UERMWA-CIO 898 to 490 for independent. Immediately following this election all independent union officers and members joined in a body with the CIO. United Products Corp., Wharton, N. J., UCAPAWA-CIO 509, no union 12; Maintenance department, UCAPAWA-CIO 16 to AFL 1. Field Rep. Leonard Goldsmith assisted in these victories. McCune Bros. Paper Corp., Whippany, N. J., certification made on basis of check of cards. Two hundred and sixty workers involved and negotiations for contract proceeding. Federal Paper Co., Bogota, N. J., certified on basis of check of cards. One hundred and fifteen workers involved. Negotiations proceeding. These two plants were organized by UPN&TWA Representatives Anthony Adamo and Harry O'Cleppo.

Reg. Dir. Pugh of Virginia advises that after many months the case of the Wortendyke Co. was completed, resulting in a fine accomplishment for the CIO. Among the outstanding gains were the union shop and check-off; 4 cents per hour increase, vacation clause and arbitration clause. Congratulations on your untiring efforts!

Grant W. Oakes, president, and Gerald Fielde, secretary-treasurer, UFE&MWA, advises that the National Richmond Defense case has now ended in complete victory for this International. Fourteen defendants who had received sentences have now been freed without having served the time involvd. All indictments originally against over 80 members of this union have been dismissed. The National CIO Richmond Defense Committee, under the chairmanship of Powers Hapgood, CIO regional director, rendered invaluable service in this two-year battle.

The writer attended the West Virginia State IUC Convention in Huntington, ably presided over by John B. Easton. A fine delegation was present and the convention unanimously supported the CIO policies all the way down the line. The delegates are determined to intensify organizing activities and pledged full support of our Commander-in-Chief in in the all-out war effort for an overwhelming victory of the Allied Nations over the Axis forces.

The Council is growing and overcoming all attempts made heretofore to impair it. Several fine NLRB elections have been won recently in the State and the drive in the Gas, Coke & Chemical industry in this area under the direction of Sub-Reg. Director Edwards and staff, supported by the regional director and staff, is progressing splendidly. The delegates at the convention are more determined than ever to build up a strong, militant CIO movement in this great state.

Following this convention I will attend a gathering of CIO representatives in Columbus on July 31, arranged by Sub.-Reg. Director George DeNucci.

Thomas J. Gallagher, organization director, Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, reports an election victory at the Merrill Stevens Shipyard, Jacksonville, Fla. Score: CIO 528, AFL 352, no union 92.

British Unionists Urge Public Own Transport System

LONDON, July 3 (ALN)—At its annual convention in Carlisle this week, the National Union of Railwaymen voted unanimously for public ownership of all forms of British transport after the war. "It is not the slightest good nationalizing railway transport and leaving unregulated road, sea and air transport," John Benstead, NUR general-secretary, said in moving the resolution. "As far as the railwaymen are concerned, we do not intend to return to the conditions of 1918 to 1939. Nationalization is essential if the transport services are to be run at maximum efficiency."

The NUR, largest of Britain's three railway unions, has 400,000 members.

In a vote which caused widespread interest in Britain, the NUR reversed the earlier decision of its executive committee against affiliation of the Communist Party to the Labor Party.

STAND ON GERMANS

The NUR delegates also voted against the foreign policy of "Vansittartism" (Lord Vansittart, former permanent under-secretary of the Foreign Office, advocates a policy of hatred of all the German people).

"There is no difference of opinion in the British labor movement that retribution of the direst character should be visited upon those responsible for the unspeakable Nazi atrocities now being inflicted on the peoples of the occupied countries," Benstead declared. "Neither is there any difference of opinion that the opportunity to build up again a great machine of aggression inside Germany should be eliminated. But I am not satisfied that the whole German people are ranged behind Hitler.

"Only ten years ago a substantial proportion declared themselves against the Nazi policy. One cannot imagine that they are still behind the regime that brought such disaster to them."

Warning that "in our treatment we must be careful not to sow dragons' teeth that will inevitably bring about a further world war," Benstead said: "I feel that the international trade union movement provides the means for breaking down the many evils which have brought about the present state of affairs in Europe.

"I cannot conceive — assuming that we have governments in Germany and Italy pledged to democratic thought and action—that we could forever ostracize the workers in those countries who desired to rejoin the international labor movement."

'Lampedusa Cohen' Is Union Man

London, July 31 (ALN)—R. A. F. Sgt.-Pilot Sidney Cohen, who achieved fame overnight when single-handed he captured the Italian fortress-island of Lampedusa, is a member in good standing of the National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers.

This fact became known when workers at the London factory of Simpson's Clothiers Ltd., where Cohen was formerly employed in the cutting room, this week formed a "Sidney Cohen blood donors unit." Already 53 workers have given pints of blood.

"Lampedusa Cohen" as his former shop-mates call him, is remembered as quiet, self-effacing and a good union man.

Columbians Demand War on Axis

Bogota, July 31 (ALN)—More than 30,000 Colombians participated in a gigantic demonstration at Bucaramanga this week urging a Colombian war declaration against the Axis as a sign of solidarity with the cause of the United Nations.

The mobilization, organized by the Allied Victory Committee, heard speakers representing the Confederation of Colombian Workers (CTC), the Conservative, Liberal and Communist parties demand that Colombia take its place among the democratic nations fighting fascism.

The meeting also condemned the sinking of the Colombia schooners Resolute and Rompar, in which 26 seamen lost their lives, as an Axis act of provocation against the Colombian people.

Because of the participation of labor and all the political parties, the demonstration is viewed here as a strong indication of the desire of all Colombians to play their part in winning the war.

CIO Leaders Rap Phoney 'Italian Democracy' Group

New York, July 31.—CIO leaders who are officials of the Italian-American Labor Council, which represents 300,000 American trade unionists of Italian extraction, this week dissociated themselves from the action of Luigi Antonini, president of the council, who participated in the formation of the American Committee for Italian Democracy.

Generoso Pope, Italian-American publisher, who is a member of the committee, has been charged with being a fascist sympathizer.

A statement released by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers—signed by Joseph Catalonotti, secretary of the Italian-American Labor Council and ACW vice-president; George Baldanzi, executive vice president of the Textile Workers Union and executive board member of the Labor Council; and August Bellanca, also a member of the Council board—declared that Antonini had no power to commit the Council to participation in the Pope committee and that he acted "solely as an individual."

Catalonotti said that the Italian-American Labor Council board had committed itself to an entirely different course of independent action, in the light of military and political developments in Sicily and Italy.

Beg Pardon, Says Army Paper to CIO

Washington, July 31—This is just for the record. The Stars & Stripes, U. S. Army paper, this week notified the CIO that it had corrected a story which said that the CIO was responsible for the recent coal strikes.

In a letter to CIO Publicity Director Len De Caux, Editor Robert Neville of the Army organ enclosed a clipping showing that the Stars & Stripes ran a correction. The clipping said:

"A CORRECTION. In its first story on the recent coal strike in the United States, the Algiers daily of The Stars & Stripes erroneously ran a headline which read: 'FDR Runs Coal Pits After CIO Walkout.'

"The coal strike was called by John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers of America. Lewis and the UMWA used to be in the CIO, but no longer have any connection with it. The CIO did not sanction the recent strike, and in fact appears to have been against it.

"At the last convention of the CIO, in fact, a resolution was adopted which sharply condemned Lewis and his 'disruptive policies' as interfering with the war effort.

"The Stars & Stripes, the staff of which has been in foreign service for the greater part of the year and for much of the time away from intimate touch with events at home, regrets that this confusion of the CIO and the UMWA was made."

Labor Delegates To Get Taste Of Army Life

Baltimore, July 31—"You're in the Army, Mr. Jones" will take on real-life meaning for about 40 CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhood representatives next week as they spend two days at the Army's near-by Fort Meade to find out what makes our fighting machine tick.

The labor delegates—men and women—were invited to sample Army life by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Commanding General of the Third Service Command, in order to acquaint them with the training which is enabling our fighting forces to win victories over the Axis.

The delegates—both white and Negro—will share actual field experiences, will live in barracks and eat in mess halls, and will wear Army fatigue clothes as they go through what is expected to be almost as rigorous a program as that endured by privates taking basic training.

Chi. School Gives Labor Courses

Chicago, July 24.—Courses designed especially to meet the needs of trade unionists are featured in the summer curriculum now being offered at the Abraham Lincoln School here.

Founded last March by a group of prominent trade union leaders, liberals and educators as "a people's school for a people's war and a people's peace," the school has completed its initial 12-week term with an enrollment of 1200 students and is now embarked upon an educational and cultural program for the summer months.

Among the courses offered under the general heading of "Organization for Victory" are: Labor's Role in Victory and Post-war Planning; Principles of Trade Unions; Wartime Trade Union Problems; Trade Union Leadership; Shop Paper and Bulletin Writing for Trade Unionists and Union Finances.

Some 75 instructors and guest lecturers, experts in their respective fields, are on the faculty. Among the CIO representatives on the list are three from the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers—Ernest De Maio, national vice president; John T. Bernard, field organizer, and Joseph D. Persily, president, Local 1114.

CAUTIONS YOU!

Millions of Government checks are being sent by the Army and Navy to dependents of soldiers and sailors. When checks are stolen those entitled to them may go without food or fuel or suffer other hardships.

The U. S. Secret Service wants your help against the check thief and forger. Here's how:

IF YOU RECEIVE CHECKS FROM THE GOVERNMENT

1. BE SURE some member of the family is at home when the check is expected.
2. PRINT your name plainly on your mail box and equip it with a lock.
3. CASH your checks in the same place each month. This will make identification easier.
4. ENDORSE your check only in the presence of the person you will ask to cash it

Chrysler Foments Strikes, UAW Charge

WASHINGTON, July 31—Chrysler Corporation, third largest company in the automotive industry, was accused today by R. J. Thomas, president of the United Auto Workers, of trying to incite violations of labor's no-strike pledge.

Thomas made his charge in a statement presented to the National War Labor Board in support of his union's request for creation of an impartial umpire system in the plants of the corporation and insertion of a maintenance of membership clause in the corporation's agreement with the union.

The UAW-CIO leader accused Chrysler of surreptitiously circulating a pamphlet falsely assailing the union and a report made by a panel of the WLB in which the union's demands were endorsed. The corporation's pamphlet, said Thomas, misrepresented the attitude of himself and other officials of the union on the problem of strikes.

Thomas urged also that all corporations be curbed in their expenditure of taxable profits for the purpose of attacking labor and the War Labor Board. In this connection, he said:

"I do not know whether it is within the province of this board, but somewhere along the line some governmental agency—possibly the Treasury Department—should look into this practice of corporations spending large sums of money to undermine labor and to undermine the War Labor Board.

"The pamphlets, newspaper ads and self-serving radio broadcasts, come out of funds which would logically seem to belong to the government as tax revenue. I do not believe Chrysler or any other corporation has any moral justification for spending huge sums of taxable profits on controversial issues.

"It would be fairer if this propaganda bill came out of the net profits of the owners of industry rather than out of gross income which is taxable by the Federal government."

CIO Economic Outlook Says 3 Square Meals a Day Mean More Than Slogans

WASHINGTON, July 31—Soldiers on the battle fronts and soldiers on the production front would like to have the abstract concept of freedom from want translated into a specific action program, says the current issue of the CIO Economic Outlook, released this week. The bulletin is published monthly by the National CIO's Department of Education and Research.

The CIO position on social security calling for an increase in the benefits of the present Social Security Act and an extension of its provisions to all workers is explained in the bulletin.

Pointing out that the CIO is now supporting the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill which has been introduced in Congress, the bulletin says that the dislocation caused by the war makes a unified federal unemployment insurance system particularly necessary.

"Whole new industries and new cities have been built in the last two years, and the workers and residents come from every village and cross-roads in America," it declared. "Workers should not be penalized or rewarded because of the accident of geography which places them in either a liberal or a backward state."

LIVING COST UP

The bulletin also contains a reprint of a speech by CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey on "Organized Peace." In it Carey says that the labor movement cannot tolerate isolationism, because like company unionism it "fails to reckon with the reality of world forces." The need for workers of different nations to cooperate has been greatly intensified under the mass production system, he states.

A final brief article on the continued increase in the cost of living says that it rose 13 per cent from May, 1941, to May, 1942, while from May, 1942, to May, 1943, the rise was 8 per cent. Food prices, the main contributing factor in the increase, have been going up about 2 per cent a month since February.

Equal Pay For Women Bill Is Law

Springfield, Ill., July 31—An equal pay bill for women was signed this week by Gov. Dwight H. Green. The bill makes it unlawful after July 1, 1944, for employers of more than six persons to discriminate against women in payment of wages when they do work equal to men's.

Complaints against employers, however, must be brought through the courts, and the maximum penalty is only a $100 fine. The law is not strong enough, labor leaders said. They promised to work for improvements at the next session of the legislature.

Exempt from the law are variations in pay for persons covered by union contracts. The law also makes exceptions for seniority, experience, training, skill, ability and "any other reasonable classification excepting difference in sex."

The measure was passed over the opposition of the Illinois Manufacturers Assn., which has indicated that it will contest the constitutionality of the law in the courts.

Hails CIO Plan For Better Race Relations

St. Louis, Mo., July 31—A plan for improving race relations put forward by the St. Louis CIO Council was welcomed here by Mayor William Dee Becker, who agreed to aid in carrying out the major part of it.

After meeting with the council's executive board and representatives of several CIO unions, the mayor agreed to name an official citizens' committee of white and Negro groups, from labor, church and other civic organizations to promote interracial understanding and to investigate housing, transportation, employment, health and recreational facilities.

He also agreed to write to President Roosevelt urging him to make a radio address to the nation on the subject.

The council's proposal was the first public program advanced by any group in St. Louis aimed to prevent the repetition in this city of the recent tragic race riots in Detroit and other cities.

Says Workers Aren't Letting Soldiers Down

Trenton, N. J., July 31—Replying to a letter from a soldier published in the Trenton Times-Advertiser, CIO member John L. Loux this week said that the impression left by the letter that workers are unpatriotic is all wrong.

Citing the facts that labor is working long hours, is buying bonds to the limit, and is contributing to Red Cross blood banks, Loux told the soldier through the newspaper that he should look elsewhere than among members of organized labor to find people who are hampering the war effort.

Thomas Flays Phoney Report On Detroit Riot

DETROIT, July 31—Charges by Detroit Prosecutor William E. Dowling that Negro organizations were responsible for the recent riots "sound like the hysterical alibi of a public official who either cannot or will not do his duty," President R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union declared this week.

Thomas said that the public official's irresponsible statements "are the most serious incitation to race riots we have had since the riots themselves. They contribute nothing toward the solution of Detroit's racial problem," he added.

"I have said before that all hoodlums, regardless of color, who were responsible for the tragic rits should be punished. If Dowling has any evidence pointing to Negroes as instigators of the riots, I am sure the decent people of the Negro community will join with the non-colored citizens of Detroit in approving the prosecution.

"If Dowling believes that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is responsible for the riots, it is his sworn duty to present evidence before a Grand Jury and not to run off at the mouth in public. I think the NAACP will welcome investigation of all factors in the situation, including its own role.

"It is up to Dowling to produce any evidence he may have against the NAACP, but frankly I am of the opinion that he is attacking that organization only to cover up his own ineffectiveness or unwillingness to act.

"The NAACP is an organization of which all Americans, regardless of race or color, may be proud. It includes among its warm supporters and members Wendell L. Willkie, Judge Ira W. Jayne, Justice Frank Murphy, General Theodore Roosevelt and Herbert H. Lehman.

"We must have a Grand Jury investigation of the causes and incidents of the tragic race riots. Thirty-five people cannot be killed in the streets of an American city without thorough investigation and punishment."

Wilkie Urges Square Deal for Negroes, Better Housing

NEW YORK, July 31—Warning that we must defeat Fascism at home as well as abroad, Wendell L. Wilkie this week declared that America must give a square deal to the one-tenth of her people who belong to the Negro race. In a speech broadcast on a nationwide hookup over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Willkie said:

"The most pressing need today, for black and white, is adequate and decent housing. If this cannot be secured through the operation of our private economy, it is an obligation that must be undertaken by government—preferably local, but if necessary federal."

Outlining a program of rights for Negroes, Willkie decared:

"They are entitled to protection under the law, and when their safety demands it, the prompt and vigorous enforcement of the law.

BAN DISCRIMINATION

"It is their right that there shall be no discrimination against them in the administration of the law, in Federal, State or local governments.

"They are entitled to the same opportunity to acquire an education—an education of the same quality—as that given to other citizens.

"They should receive the same per capita expenditure of public moneys for health and hospitalization as is allotted to other citizens.

RIGHT TO VOTE

"They have a right—as has every citizen—to the elimination of all arbitrary restrictions on voting through taxation or otherwise.

"Their right to work must equal that of any citizen and their reward should be the same as the reward of any other citizen for the same job.

"Their economic opportunity should not be limited by their color.

"They should have the rights of every citizen to fight for his country in any branch of her armed services."

CIO 'Labor for Victory' Broadcast Blasts Race Bias

WASHINGTON, July 31—Racial discrimination, an evil the CIO has been fighting for a long time, was the subject of the CIO's "Labor for Victory" radio program last Sunday. Four CIO leaders, two of them Negro and two white, took part in the discussion, which stressed the importance of taking all possible steps to meet a serious problem affecting our war effort.

James Carey, national CIO secretary-treasurer and chairman of the CIO Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination, in starting the discussion, declared that the war "requires the full use of all our strength in material, manpower and morale." In a period of war tension, he said, there is constant danger of emotional disturbances causing explosions that may harm war production.

CITES EVIL TREATMENT

Willard Townsend, Negro president of the United Transport Service Employes, listed some of the main points in the treatment of Negroes in armed service and in civilian communities which created tension.

"These arise from local transportation facilities to and from camps, violence against Negro soldiers in civilian communities and the reflection in those communities of the racial attitudes of those in authority in the armed services," he said.

John Brophy, CIO representative on President Roosevelt's Fair Employment Practice Committee, and director of Industrial Union Councils, said that "unless the causes of racial tension are remedied, and a number of other defects in our democracy are solved, the tempo of our war production can be slowed to the point of danger."

PATTERN OF CONFLICT

The pattern followed in race conflicts was explained by George Weaver, Negro director of the CIO's Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination.

"They always begin with the spreading of false rumors, a provocative incident and the development of mob psychology and hysteria," he said.

Len DeCaux, CIO publicity director, in introducing the subject and the speakers, pointed out that the shameful race riots of a few weeks ago had "upset our national unity," "made Americans fight each other instead of the Axis," and "disrupted war production."

Hillman Urges Italian Workers to 'Cripple And Destroy' Nazi Invader

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—With the resumption of the Allied offensive to knock Italy out of the war, Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, CIO, in a broadcast to Italian workers short-waved by the Office of War Information, urged them to "cripple and destroy" the Nazi war machine and help drive the German invader from Italian soil.

Hillman called upon Italian trade-unionists to "oppose those compromisers who continue to deal with the German enemy."

Declaring that the enslaved workers of Italy have awaited the present moment for 21 years, he asked them to strike boldly "against the Hun" to whom they had been sold down the river by the fascist regime.

"I say to the Italian worker: "you no longer stand alone. The American and the Allied soldier already stand on your sacred soil, killing Germans who would kill or enslave all of us. In us you have most powerful Allies who come bringing gifts—the precious gift of freedom and all the gifts of friends."

"As president of an American trade-union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, which is proud to count among its members many thousands of Italian extraction, I greet the workers of Italy in this historic hour of their lives.

WAITED 21 YEARS

"For 21 years the workers of Italy have lived and dreamed of this moment. The first victims of the brutal and cynical fascist regime, Italian trade-unionists never gave up the struggle and awaited, with strong discipline, the hour of their emancipation. They ate bitter bread in secret and heard no word of hope from the outside world.

"They received only crumbs from the fascist corporative state, paved Mussolini's highway of destruction with their own red blood and, finally, suffered the ultimate outrage of being sold into slavery to the Nazi and the Hun. Thus did fascist tyrants and Nazi beasts trample and enslave the Italian worker, the builder, the creator of modern Italian civilization.

LOVERS OF LIBERTY

"Now that the Italian worker has wrested the initiative into his own hands, we here in America know that he will break the chains that bind him. The Italian worker, the follower of Cavour, Mazzini, Garibaldi and Matteotti, loves liberty as he loves life and now he has awakened from the nightmare of fascist bondage to help destroy the Nazi beast still seeking to enslave him."

Frameup Victims Commuted

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 7—The sentences of 12 members of the CIO United Farm Equipment Workers growing out of arrests and police violence during a strike more than two years ago at a plant of the International Harvester Co., have been commuted by Governor Schricker.

Out of 82 persons originally indicted in 1941, 14 were convicted and given sentences ranging from $100 fine to 60 and 90 days in jail. In an appeal to the Supreme Court, the case of one of the defendants was reversed and he was declared not guilty. Conviction of the others was upheld. Two of the leaders were given 90 days, the other 60 days and all were fined $100.

The Indiana Governor commuted these sentences to one day in jail on July 20. Other indictments had previously been dismissed by the State's Attorney several months ago.

Among those whose sentences were commuted are Clifford Kerr, president of the union's Local 118 in Richmond, and Robert Foley, international representative, both of whom were sentenced to 90 days. Two of the defendants, Cecil Appleby and John Semeltulskis, are now in the Army.

The Richmond case aroused labor throughout the nation in 1941 because of the orgy of arrests and vandalism against the strikers. County and city police charged the picket line, beating up the strikers unmercifully, and the union's hall was wrecked by anti-union thugs.

CIO Fund Drive For Europe On

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 — A plan whereby 5,000,000 CIO members throughout the United States will give $1,293,400, through their war relief program, and in conjunction with the AFL, to European workers who have led the underground fight against Nazism and Fascism, and especially to their families and dependents, was approved last week by the Nat'l CIO War Relief Committee meeting in Philadelphia.

The assistance will not be limited to trade union leaders or members, it was pointed out by Irving Abramson, chairman of the CIO Committee, but it will be extended to all possible groups and individuals suffering at the hands of the enemy.

The peoples aided will be in Poland, France, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Austria, Germany, Norway, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Last year, Abramson said, the CIO and AFL jointly earmarked $2,000,000 for special labor projects in England, Russia and China.

Security Planning Needed Now

Washington, Aug. 7—Men in the fighting services and the workers in the mines, mills and on the farms need the strength which comes from knowing that a concrete program is being worked out for solving the problems of economic inequality, unemployment and war, says J. Raymond Walsh in an article on "Action for Postwar Planning." The article appears in the Summer 1943 issue of the Antioch Review.

CIO Textile Cleans Up In Durham

Durham, N. C., Aug. 7—The last major non-union textile plant in this city, the Durham Hosiery Mills, has now gone CIO and negotiations are under way for a contract with the Textile Workers Union covering employes in the company's cotton yarn division.

The TWU won a Labor Board election recently by a vote of 238 to 83. Only a few small textile establishments in the area still remain non-union and these are expected to line up soon.

Robeson Sings—Output Up

CHICAGO, Aug. 7—A stimulus to greater production was given to the employes of the Apex Smelting Co., largest aluminum smelter in the Chicago area, by the appearance at the plant on Saturday, July 24, 1943, of Paul Robeson, at a "Production for Victory" rally sponsored jointly by the management and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Mr. Robeson, in a short talk, emphasized the necessity for Victory by the United Nations and the stake of labor and the Negro people in victory. He urged upon the workers unrelenting effort to produce aluminum so essential to the implements of war for our sons, brothers and relatives at the front.

He pointed out everything that labor and the Negro people have fought for is tied up with victory over the axis, and the guarantee of a people's victory and a people's peace was the fullest unity of labor, the Negro people and all sections of America who believe in democracy.

Mr. Robeson literally held every worker spellbound at attention as they listened to his very simple worded plea for full support to the war effort. He closed his remarks by singing two songs, "Waterboy" and "John Henry."

Broaden Union Base of American Labor Party, Hillman Urges

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—Action to bring the unions fully into the American Labor Party and an end to all quarrels of "rights and lefts" was recommended by Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and chairman of CIO's political action committee, following a meeting with a group of CIO union representatives here this week.

Hillman's recommendation, which was made after ratification by leading Amalgamated Clothing Workers officials, also included a strong plea for an end to all "isms" of right or left within the party, and a pledge that the Clothing Workers would return to full participation in party work, if these basic improvements were made.

According to the Clothing Workers official organ, "The Advance," Hillman's proposal "was for the restroation of trade union control of the party and for freeing it of all 'isms' from the right or the left'."

Hillman further urged that the party broaden its base as much as possible by bringing in not only CIO unions but AFL, and the Brotherhoods as well.

"President Hillman pointed out that the original broad base and union complexion of the ALP must be restored," The Advance said, "with unquestioned trade union control, so that it may function as a genuine party of labor."

This would give the ALP a place of real political power in New York state and in the nation, which it could use "to present a unified political force against the tories and reactionaries who seek to destroy labor's gains, to impede the war effort and to rob us of the fruits of a democratic peace."

CANDIDATE: Mayor Vincent J. Murphy of Newark, N. J., united labor's candidate on the Democratic ticket for Governor.

N. J. Labor For Murphy

Newark, N. J., Aug. 7—Full labor unity is assured behind the candidacy of Vincent J. Murphy for Governor of this state, with the backing of CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods here for the Democratic standard-bearer.

Murphy, who is mayor of this city, is also secretary of the N. J. Federation of Labor. He has the support not only of the unions but also of the Democratic party in the state.

Workers Service Unit Set-Up

Cleveland, Aug. 7—A unique experiment in social work based on the joint action of CIO unions and social service agencies is being conducted here through the Workers Service Bureau, set up three months ago.

Robert M. Schmalz, president of Social Service Employes Union of the CIO United Office & Professional Workers, is in charge of the Bureau. Schmalz, who is supervisor with the Jewish Family Service Association here, has written up an account of the formation and activities of the Bureau, which appears in the July midmonthly issue of Survey, journal of social work.

Recognizing the need of social workers to contact organized labor and of unions to understand more fully how they could enable their members to take advantage of the services of social agencies, Schmalz tells how a committee of social workers who were also union members met in the fall of 1942 to work out an approach to this problem.

Text of Murray Letter to FDR On Strike Ruling

Dear Mr. President:

When the Smith-Connally bill was under consideration in Congress, the CIO expressed its opposition to the proposed legislation, for the reason among others that in the face of the pledge of organized labor that there must not be any stoppages of work for the duration of the war, the bill would encourage stoppages of work by providing the machinery whereby strike ballots could be held, to be followed by strikes.

In your message to Congress vetoing the Smith-Connally bill you expressed your objection for the same reason.

The act as passed by Congress over your veto provides that the representative of any group of employes may petition the National Labor Relations Board for a strike ballot. The CIO and all its affiliated organizations, consistent with their no-strike pledge, have adopted the procedure of discouraging any attempt on the part of their membership to request such strike ballots.

We have done so because we are still firm in our determination that during this war there must not be any encouragement given to the notion that there may be any stoppage of work for any reason.

The Secretary of Labor also requested the CIO and its affiliated unions, in the prosecution of this policy, to advise its local unions that any request for a strike ballot given to the National War Labor Board under the Smith-Connally Act, must be furnished, if at all, by the respective international union.

The CIO and its affiliated unions are following this policy in the endeavor to discourage local groups from acting precipitately in requesting strike ballots.

It is with utter amazement and consternation we were recently apprised of the opinion of the Attorney General that the Smith-Connally Act, as he interprets it, permits any group of employes in any plant—two or more employes—to furnish a notice for a strike ballot and be entitled to the same even though in that plant a union may be the certified bargaining agency and have a collective bargaining agreement with the employer which by its terms forbids strikes.

This opinion of the Attorney General could not possibly reflect the intent of Congress. The result of the Attorney General's opinion is sheer chaos. Unions certified as the exclusive bargaining representative by the National Labor Relations Board with collective bargaining agreements with employers are now faced, under the Attorney General's opinion, with the threat that any small number of disgruntled employes in a particular plant may as a matter of right submit a notice calling for a strike ballot.

Organized labor, determined to prevent for the duration of the war any stoppages of work, is faced with the ugly opinion of the Attorney General which actually encourages stoppages of work. This is a very serious problem created by the Attorney General through his interpretation.

In the face of recent announcements of Mr. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, and General Somervell regarding the recent decrease of production of war materials, when all our efforts should be directed toward eliminating the possibility of discord in industry and increasing production, we find the Attorney General with a complete and total disregard of our nation's needs, issuing an opinion reflecting a complete sense of irresponsibility.

I respectfully submit that the seriousness of the situation warrants the resubmission of the entire matter to the Attorney General and that an opportunity be afforded to organized labor to present to him the problems in the situation in the hope that an interpretation may be obtained more consistent with both the intent and desire of Congress and the war needs of the country.

PHILIP MURRAY,
President, CIO.

Shipyard Demands Rejected

Washington, Aug. 7 — Demands by the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers for a 9 percent general wage increase for the million workers in the nation's private shipyards under the zone standards, have been rejected by the War Labor Board. The vote was 8-to-4 with the Labor members of the Board dissenting.

The union's wage program was presented early last month at hearings before the Board on the wage review which it had agreed to conduct at the invitation of the Shipbuilding Stabilization Committee.

Workers involved by the WLB order are employed in 188 shipyards throughout the country and are covered by the Zone Standards Agreements established under the procedures of the War Production Board's Shipbuilding Stabilization Committee.

In another decision released by the WLB the same day, the Board announced that it had voted at the request of the CIO union to reconsider the question of the retroactive date set at July 23, 1943 for wage rates now being negotiated between the Bethlehem Steel Company and the CIO Shipyard Workers, to cover Bethlehem's eight Atlantic Coast yards employing about 45,000 workers.

CIO Band Tops In N. C.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 7—A weekly musical program by the TWUA-CIO Hillbilly Band broadcast over the local radio station is becoming very popular, according to local officers of the Textile Workers Union of America. The band furnishes the music for the weekly old-fashioned square dance held every Saturday in the Union Hall.

US, British & USSR Unity Needed Now, Citrine Says

KUIBYSHEV, Aug. 7—(ALN)—A plea for close cooperation between British, Soviet and American trade unions was made here this week by Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, writing in the current issue of War and the Working Class, new publication of the All-Union Council of Trade Unions.

Citrine, who has been in Moscow attending the third session of the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee, just concluded, writes:

"As the hour of victory draws near, British trade unionists want to achieve fullest collaboration between British, the Soviet Union and the U. S. A. so as to build the foundations for lasting peace. The British workers want the Soviet people to have peace and security in which to develop to the fullest extent the vast resources of their great land."

A leading subject discussed at the joint British-Soviet session was the question of extending the committee by drawing into it trade unions of North and South America and of those countries whose people are fighting on the side of the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition.

After hearing Citrine report on his trip to the U. S. last year, the committee adopted a resolution regretting "the rejection by the AFL of unity proposals" and pledging that "every effort will be made to effect collaboration with the American labor movement."

Action was taken to establish direct contact between individual trade unions in Britain and the USSR for the exchange of information regarding efforts to raise labor productivity and aid to the armed forces. Other points discussed were: methods of uniting the working people, irrespective of political views, for joint action against Germany; the organizational structure of Soviet and British trade unions; and working conditions in the two countries.

VISITED PLANTS

On his return to Moscow after visiting Soviet armament factories in the Urals and Western Siberia, Citrine issued the following statement: "We saw everything we wanted and were met everywhere with the utmost friendliness and utter lack of reserve."

CIO Ship Union Adds 3rd Win In Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 7—Continuing its sweep in Florida shipyards, the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers of the CIO recently won its third Labor Board election in the state and is now bargaining agency for 1,500 workers at the Merrill-Stevens shipyard.

The CIO union defeated the AFL by a vote of 528 to 362, with 92 voting for "no union." The victory came after a long hard-fought campaign during which the management invoked every known anti-labor device to prevent the CIO Shipyard Workers from organizing the employes.

CIO organizers and keymen were beaten up by company union thugs, and later when a company union outfit was outlawed by the National Labor Relations Board, the management called in the AFL. District Director Bill Smith said the campaign immediately preceding the election was marked with great bitterness because of the dirty tactics used by the AFL.

Biddle Ruling On Strike Vote 'Chaos'—Murray

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—CIO Pres. Philip Murray today expressed to President Roosevelt his "utter amazement and consternation" at the opinion of Attorney-General Biddle, holding that under the Smith-Connally Act any group of employes in a plant, no matter how small, may be entitled to a government-conducted strike ballot, even though a union in the plant may be certified as the bargaining agency and have a collective bargaining agreement forbidding strikes.

"This opinion of the Attorney General could not possibly reflect the intent of Congress," Murray said, in a letter to President Roosevelt. "The result of the Attorney General's opinion is sheer chaos.

"I respectfully submit that the seriousness of the situation warrants the resubmission of the entire matter to the Attorney General, and that an opportunity be afforded to organized labor to present to him the problems in the situation, in the hope that an interpretation may be obtained more consistent with both the intent and desire of Congress and the war needs of the country."

Murray pointed out that the CIO and all its affiliated organizations, consistent with their no-strike pledge, have adopted the procedure of discouraging any attempt on the part of their membership to request the strike ballots provided for by the Smith-Connally Act.

"Organized labor, determined to prevent for the duration of the war any stoppages of work, is faced with the ugly opinion of the Attorney General which actually encourages stoppages of work," Murray said.

"When all our efforts should be directed toward eliminating the possibility of discord in industry and increasing production, we find the Attorney General, with a complete and total disregard of our nation's needs, issuing an opinion reflecting a complete sense of irresponsibility."

Los Angeles CIO In Step With Political Drive

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7—The Los Angeles CIO this week was in full swing behind the national CIO's legislative program to send a win-the-war Congress back to Washington this year and elect a pro-war, pro-labor Congress and administration in 1944.

Back of the drive was a campaign to raise one dollar for every CIO member in southern California to finance legislative activity. Nearly $4,000 was raised or pledged in the initial days of the campaign and more unions are scheduled to act on the proposal within the next few days.

VISIT CONGRESSMEN

Meanwhile, CIO unions here were also busy visiting their Congressmen and demanding an accounting from them on their legislative records in Washington just before Congress broke up. Special heat was being placed on Congressmen who supported the Smith-Connally act and other anti-victory legislation and fought against a price rollback and an adequate subsidy for OPA.

Union delegations have been armed for their mass interviews with a special score-card prepared by the Los Angeles CIO Council's legislative department on local Congressmen's voting records with an explanation of each issue that was voted on.

While the delegations will seek to wheel back into line Congressmen who voted against the best interests of the people and the war, praise will be given those who upheld President Roosevelt's win-the-war policies.

The more than 200,000 CIO members in California are expected to raise a potent war chest that will sweep out of office California's reactionary and defeatist legislators.

CIO Political Action Group Reports On Sucesses In Drive

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Reporting on the first two weeks of activity by CIO's new political action committee, Sidney Hillman, chairman, told CIO President Philip Murray here that the workers were enthusiastically greeting the new drive and preparing for large-scale campaigns to make the Congress a true victory Congress throughout the country.

Hillman also revealed that the committee plans further meetings to follow up the successful turnouts in Philadelphia and Chicago, with Birmingham, Ala., scheduled for an early gathering.

In addition to approving the work the committee already accomplished, Murray indicated that permanent machinery would very soon be set up to expand and amplify its work, and to set up a permanent apparatus throughout the CIO for continuing it.

He also indicated that the committee headed by George F. Addes, UAW-CIO secretary-treasurer, would be confined mainly to work during the Congressional recess, lining up CIO and general public support in the drive to bring Congress into line with the needs of victory in the war against fascism. After the recess, it was understood, the committee would be absorbed into the broader group and the contacts it had made utilized in the general field of political action.

The main political action committee is headed by Hillman, with Van A. Bittner, assistant president of USA-CIO as vice-chairman; R. J. Thomas, UAW-CIO, secretary, and David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of USA-CIO, and Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, as additional members.

Sales Tax Strategy Cooking

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Heavy artillery for a general sales tax and other new burdens on low incomes in the 1943 tax bill was being lined up here this week in statements and prophecies by Congressional tax leaders.

Two main salvos were fired by Senator George (poll-taxer, Ga.) and Senator Taft, (R., O.) both of whom indicated their strong belief that a general sales tax was "inevitable." George accompanied his shots at the war workers already strained food budget with a lengthy dissertation on the wretched plight of the "middle class," which he said was being forced out of existence and could not be taxed any further.

Another form of the sales tax receiving favorable mention is the so-called "individual excess profits tax," which would tax away whatever already inadequate wage increases workers have secured since the beginning of the war.

George did not mention the fact that huge incomes, swollen war profits, tax exempt securities, etc., were still only very lightly touched by taxes in comparision to the burdens borne by the low income workers, farmers and office people.

In a counter blast at the sales tax generals, Senator Langer (R., N. D.) came out against it as a burden "on the backs of poor people" and demanded that the 75 percent version of the Ruml plan be repealed as a special bonus to the rich.

Advocates of the sales tax have a specious argument in the 75 percent Ruml plan, which they themselves pushed through, since it did create a serious revenue deficit that they claim can only be made up through a sales tax.

CORRECTION

In the July 26 issue of THE CIO NEWS, an article was carried on the UAW-CIO Medical Research Institute. The introductory paragraph, written in The CIO News Office, erroneously contrasted a UAW member's "experience with quack doctors" with the "scientific treatment" provided by the Institute. The story that follows, however, makes clear that the member went to good doctors and not merely quacks, and that the Institute itself does not practice medicine, but merely diagnoses and gives advice.

Fight For 'V' Congress, Green Urges

New York, Aug. 7—A unified campaign by all labor and progressive forces to prepare for the election of a real win-the-war Congress in 1944 was urged at a big Home Rally here attended by some 1500 white collar workers.

The rally was called by the New York locals of CIO United Office & Professional Wdrkers to launch a drive to solve the acute economic problems of the hundreds of thousands of white collar workers here.

John Green, president of the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, told the rally that labor had been "sold down the river to the war profiteers by Congressional reactionaries."

Recalling the fight put up by the CIO against this tory block throughout the last session of Congress, intoxicated by "the heady wine of reaction and spurred on by the whip of war-profiteering corporations and Wall Street farmers, took the bit in its teeth, and ran away into the very camp of the enemy."

LABOR'S JOB

A big job confronts labor in the coming months, he declared. Congress must be forced to change its ways and repair some of the damage done by the reactionary legislation passed.

Oil Workers Win

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 7—By a vote of 106 to 12 for no union, the Oil Workers International Union won an election at the Pure Oil Co. here.

ALLOY SCRAP IS A WAR MATERIAL— DON'T WASTE IT

Alloy steels are among our most critical materials today. When these steels are fabricated, the waste metal can be used to make more weapons of war if it is handled properly.

Separate your regular scrap — turnings, stampings, filings — by alloy content. Place the scrap in containers labelled with the known analysis or grade of the steel. Keep the various grades of alloy scrap separated in the scrapyard while waiting shipment back to the steel mill.

Better Americans

It has always been labor's contention that union membership makes better citizens.

To combine with one's fellows in a union, instead of trying to go it alone, is a social act. It leads to less narrow and selfish thinking and behavior in other fields as well.

The active unionist is usually active in community affairs. He finds through his union a channel for participation in all sorts of activities for the common good.

The war has proved this point many times over. Unions and their members have taken the lead in war relief, Red Cross work, civilian defense, blood donations, bond drives and every other kind of community war activity—in addition to their organized activities in the plants to increase war production, and their legislative and political work for win-the-war purposes.

Here's a sample of the results achieved—and further proof that unions help make better Americans:

Union members, who make up about one-half of the 27 million workers purchasing war bonds under the payroll savings system, are doing three-quarters of the buying, according to the Office of War Information.

Of the $425,000,000 allotted for bonds each month from wages and salaries, Treasury Dept. figures show that more than $300,000,000 come from the pay envelopes of unionized workers.

It is true that union members have no monopoly on patriotism. But it is also true that unions develop social characteristics in their members and stimulate greater patriotic activity.

That's why it will be found, not only in bond purchases but in every other kind of war activity as well, that union members have a better record than the unorganized.

Bill to Provoke Strikes

The disruptive, strike-provoking character of the anti-labor Smith-Connally Act is brought home once more by the ruling of Attorney-General Biddle that, under its terms, minority groups of employes may call for strike votes.

Biddle's interpretation was sought, because the Act's provisions for calling strikes do not specifically state that strike votes may be asked only by collective bargaining representatives of the majority of employes in a plant.

Before the Attorney-General's ruling was made, CIO Pres. Murray had urged the Natl. Labor Relations Board to refuse to initiate strike ballots at the behest of minority groups.

He pointed out that responsible labor unions are faithfully observing their no-strike pledge, and that to allow any minority group of employes, however small, to force Labor Board strike votes is "to adopt a policy of promoting and encouraging industrial strife."

But now Biddle has interpreted the will of Congress to be, in effect, that any little group of irresponsible troublemakers may receive government sanction for their strike agitations, through Labor Board recognition of their right to demand a government-conducted strike ballot.

It is most revealing of the attitude of Rep. Howard Smith, labor-baiting author of the act, that he hastened to applaud Biddle's interpretation as representing what the bill's promoters intended.

So now we have further evidence that the Smith-Connally Act is an instrument for provoking strikes to hamper war production, as well as an attempt to destroy labor's rights.

Under the Biddle ruling, it may be used even more than was at first thought as a weapon to undermine or raid responsible unions chosen by a majority of the workers, for the benefit of union-busting employers, strike provocateurs and other would-be disrupters of war production.

When the Smith-Connally Act was passed, the CIO Executive Board rejected its provocations to strike and strongly reaffirmed the CIO's no-strike pledge.

That is still the CIO position, and will continue to be its position for the duration of the war. But the Biddle ruling, with the added dangers to war production which it entails, will strengthen labor's determination in demanding complete repeal of this war-disrupting Act.

If your Congressman or Senators voted for the Smith-Connally Act, ask them if they fully realized all its strike-provoking characteristics that are daily being revealed; and if not, what they are going to do in the next session of Congress to repeal it.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

THE lines are now being drawn for one of the most important Congressional fights of this war. It will decide how some $16 billion of additional tax revenue is to be raised.

Taxes are the financial sinews of war. To aid victory, they must be sufficient and fairly distributed, without placing too much strain on any essential part of our war economy.

Yet a big campaign is now under way for special tax favors for the rich, and to place the full burden of increased taxation on the low incomes of essential war workers, regardless of effects on our victory effort.

★ ★ ★

Here are some samples of this campaign:

A series of full-page advertisements have been placed in the press about "seed money." They attempt to sugar-coat the idea that war profits are already taxed too much and can't be taxed any more without all sorts of dire results.

A number of Senators and Congressmen have followed up and added to this theme. Their propaganda, eagerly spread by the big business press, is that the wealthy are already taxed to the limit; that increased taxes will threaten the higher-income "middle class" with extinction; and that most of the increased tax revenue must actually come from the lower incomes.

Carrying the campaign still further, Sen. Taft has taken the lead for a sales tax, and a sales-tax bloc is already being formed in the House.

The propaganda is also well under way for a so-called "individual excess profits" tax. Its chief purpose is to soak wage-earners whose income has been increased because they were unemployed, on short-time or working at starvation wages before the war.

★ ★ ★

This whole campaign is based on the lie that all possible tax-juice has been squeezed out of the wealthy, leaving low-income groups as the only possible source of any substantial increase in tax revenue.

But what are the facts?

A recent OPA study shows that the average American family with an income of less than $1500 a year has only $2 left after meeting taxes and bare living costs. Those with incomes between $1500 and $3000 have an average of only $338 left for savings.

On the other hand, families with more than $10,000, after meeting all living expenses at luxury standards and paying all taxes, have an average of as much as $9,990 each left over.

Taking into account the number of people in each income group, we find that some 8% of the population——with $5000 and upward—had in 1942 a total of $14 billion surplus wealth that could go into savings or higher taxes, without affecting their high living standards.

On the other hand, 92% of the population—at the lower-income levels—had a total of only $11½ billion left after taxes and caring for their barest needs.

The lowest-income groups, of course, have no surplus whatever and cannot be taxed further without reducing their already low living standards to the starvation point.

In all logic and justice, where should Congress look for most of the increased tax revenue—to the wealthier 8%, who have a $14 billion surplus that can be tapped without causing any hardship; or to the lower-income majority, whose savings, after bare living expenses, are largely represented by life insurance and war bonds?

★ ★ ★

As to methods of tapping surplus wealth—

Corporation profits, even after increased taxes, have almost doubled since the war began, increasing by nearly $4 billion. An increase in the profit tax from the present 40% to 55% would have no dire results. And why should not all war profiteering be eliminated by taxation?

Then there's President Roosevelt's proposal for a $25,000 ceiling on individual net incomes, after taxes. Besides providing increased tax revenue, this would strengthen national morale—and nobody's going to starve on $25,000 a year.

On the other hand, sales taxation and other similar soak-the-poor measures would seriously lower the living standards of millions of war workers, damaging their health, morale and productive efficiency.

Then present tax loopholes can be closed, such as tax-free bonds and securities, separate income tax returns for wealthy couples, and special bonuses to certain businesses and estates and gift taxes can be increased.

Keeping Score to Win the War

House Record On Vital War Issues

First step in Keeping Score to Win the War is a knowledge of how your Congressman voted on vital war issues that affect the fighting front and the home front together.

In this issue of CIO NEWS, we print the record of the Congressmen in their votes on 20 issues of major importance to you, your fellow-workers and your neighbors, as war workers and as people who want to win victory quickly over fascism.

Study this record, keep it with you and use it when you call on your Congressman to ask him about his record and his performance in the House of Representatives since January, 1943.

(Symbols used in this list are shown in an adjoining column. Last week, Aug. 2, The CIO NEWS carried the voting record of the Senators on 18 issues. Tables were compiled by the United Auto Workers, CIO.)

1. Hobbs Bill. Disguised as an "anti-racketeering" measure, this bill would actually forbid most normal union activities by removing the exemptions in the existing Anti-Racketeering Act which protect such legitimate actions of unions. Passed April, 1943, after plugging by polltaxer Sam Hobbs (Ala.) by vote of 270 to 107, and is now in Senate, where it can be easily brought up.

2. Smith-Connally Bill. Disguised as an "anti-strike" bill, this measure actually promotes strikes by irresponsible groups through legalizing them, limits labor's rights to political activity in Federal elections. Passed June, 1943, by 231 to 141. CIO demanding repeal.

3. Over-riding FDR Veto. Three hours after FDR's veto, the House voted 244 to 108 to over-ride it, making war-crippling Smith-Connally bill legal.

4. Ramspeck Federal Pal bill. Gives overtime pay to U. S. employes after 39-hour work-week. Passed House May, 1943, by 273-119. Up to Senate now.

5. $25,000 Income Ceiling. In March, 1943, the House wiped out FDR's executive order holding net salaries after all taxes to $25,000 a year. Passed by 268 to 129.

6. Tax Bill. Forgives 75 per cent of 1942 taxes in special bonus to the rich; set up 20 percent withholding tax on wages. War needs for billions from big incomes and inflated profits were ignored, leaving huge deficit from 75 per cent forgiveness. Big campaign now on for sales tax and other burdens on low incomes to make up this deficit. CIO program calls for taxes on wealth, excess profits, closing loopholes, easing of burden on poor. 75 percent plum to rich passed by 256 to 114.

7. Incentives for Food Production. Three actions were taken here: (a) vote (229 to 90) forbidding use of funds in Agriculture Dept. appropriation for incentive payments to farmers for extra war crop production; passed on demand of "Farm Bloc" to increase monopoly, freeze small producer out, increase prices and (b):

8. House vote approving funds in Agriculture Dept. to pay farmers for rotating crops, thus (for example) cutting production of unneeded cotton, increasing production of needed peanuts, flax, etc. This vote (185 to 175) knocked out the vote above; followed by (c):

9. A third House vote again forbidding use of Agriculture funds for incentive payments for production of certain war crops, thus returning the circle to No. 7 vote above, knocking out incentives as of June, 1943. Pressure needed to restore incentives.

10. Crop Insurance. Knocked out funds (from same Agriculture appropriation) for crop insurance on certain crops, thus destroying protection for farmers and killing inducement to plant extra acreage needed for victory. Vote of 208 to 160 (June, 1943) again dictated by "Farm Bloc," rich Wall St. "farmers" who fear competition from working farmers more than they want to win the war.

11. Rural Electrification. Cut funds for Rural Electrification Administration which helped meet power shortages. Vote of 193 to 167 (June, 1943) dictated by private power monopoly which fears public ownership more than it wants to supply power for war production.

12. Home Owners Loan Corp. Kills HOLC, thereby endangering workers who own their own homes. Passed by 224 to 159, (February, 1943), at demand of real estate and mortgage holders' lobby.

13. Price Rollback. Vote of 229 to 97 (June, 1943) forbids use of War Agencies appropriations to make rollback of living costs to 1942 or any other level illegal.

14. Price Enforcement. Another vote on same bill made deep cuts in OPA funds (from $165 million to $130 million), making adequate enforcement of price control impossible. Passed by 185 to 147, this vote cuts out all attempts to hire inspectors for real enforcement.

15. OPA Wrecking. By 188 to 144, House limited policy-making employes of OPA to men with at least five years business experience, thus turning over top jobs to businessmen exclusively, shutting out all others. Part of same bill as above.

16. OWI Wrecking. By 218 to 144, House (in same War Agencies Bill) wrecked Office of War Information by abolishing Domestic Branch. OWI had job of getting out facts on the war, pamphlets, radio programs, etc., on nature of fascism, home front issues, etc. Wrecking is deliberate attempt to keep these facts from American people.

17. Smith Smear Committee. Sets up universal smear committee headed by polltaxer Howard Smith, with main target the work of vital U. S. war agencies. Smith (co-author of Smith-Connally bill) chose OPA's rent control section for his first attack in attempt to hi-jack more rent out of workers, wreck price control. Passed February, 1943, by 294 to 50.

18. Dies Committee. by a vote of 302 to 94, the House (February, 1943) gave the notorious unAmerican Dies Committee a new license to smear labor, sabotage U. S. war agencies and personnel, attack our Allies and generally carry on Goebbels' work in this conutry.

19. Blacklist. In May, 1943, the House voted (278 to 65) to forbid funds for employment of three men—Wm. E. Dodd, Jr., Goodwin Watson, and Robt. Lovett—by U. S. government on grounds they were "prematurely and excessively anti-fascist," which means they opposed Hitler before Pearl Harbor. This sets up a Federal blacklist for employes Congressional reactionaries don't like.

20. Polltax Repeal. In May, 1943, the House passed (265 to 110) the polltax repeal bill (HR 7) that would give the vote to 10 million white and Negro Americans. The bill is now before the Senate, where quick action is needed.

SYMBOLS—Plus means a vote for labor. Minus means a vote against labor. P stands for pair.

There are two kinds of pairs, one which relates only to a certain bill in which both parties specify on which side of this subject they will vote, and one called a general pair under which both parties vote on the opposite side of any question which comes up while the pair is in effect. A pair vote for labor is represented here by the symbolP, against labor by P. The general pair is represented by P. Actually a pair, either for or against, does not in any way affect the outcome of a vote. Being paired is no satisfactory excuse for absenteeism.

A is the symbol for absent. This means that the person is out of the Senate Chamber or the House.

Your Scorecard On Congress is Ready

"Keeping Score To Win the War," complete record on what every Congressman and Senator did during the time he was in the capitol between January and July is now ready for you.

In addition to listing 20 key votes on vital war issues, the newest CIO publication tells what you can do about it, how to do it, and why you should thus help bring a quick victory over the fascist Axis.

Order "Keeping Score To Win the War" now from the CIO Publicity Dept., 718 Jackson Pl., NW, Washington 6, D.C. 5 cents a copy, 100 for $4.25, 500 for $18.00, 1,000 for $30.00.

Every local and every CIO member should have one of these timely, informative pamphlets.

What the Symbols Mean

SYMBOLS—Plus means a vote for labor. Minus means a vote against labor. P stands for pair.

There are two kinds of pairs, one which relates only to a certain bill in which both parties specify on which side of this subject they will vote, and one called a general pair under which both parties vote on the opposite side of any question which comes up while the pair is in effect. A pair vote for labor is represented here by the symbol P, against labor by P. The general pair is represented by P. Actually a pair, either for or against, does not in any way affect the outcome of a vote. Being paired is no satisfactory excuse for absenteeism.

A is the symbol for absent. This means that the person is out of the Senate Chamber or the House.

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

James J. Matles, Dir. Org., UERMWA, reports the following election victories: National Rubber Co., Clifton, N. J., 217 to 118; Speer Resister Co., St. Marys, Pa., 108 to 17; salaried employes, Westinghouse, Newark, N. J., 549 to 184; Bronson Reel Co., Bronson, Mich., 77 to 40; Mason Machine Shop, Taunton, Mass., 63 to 13; U. S. Cartridge Co. (guards), St. Louis, 128 to 2; Amalgamated Electric Co., Toronto, Canada, 312 to 295; Hurley Machine Co., Chicago, 434 to 221; National Pneumatic Co., Rahway, N. J., 898 to 490.

Fullerton Fulton, Reg. Dir., Chicago, advises that the UERMWA was victorious in the election at Stewart-Warner Corp. by a vote of 3704 to 3138 for no union.

A. F. Hartung, Reg. Dir. Oregon, reports the following IWA victories: Bryon Lumber Co., Grants Pass, Oregon, 23 to 11; McCulloughs Logging Co., Springfield, Ore., 28 to 12; Barton Lumber Co., Medford, Ore., 11 to 2; Scott-Gilbert Co., Lehanon, Ore., 20 to 12.

George Craig, Reg. Dir. Phil., advises of the following election victories: National Accident Health Ins. Co., UOPWA 6 to 1; Ehret Magnesia Mfg. Co., URWA 125 to 41; F. B. Prophet Cafeteria Employes, Baldwin Locomotive, CIO 42 to 16.

GAS WORKERS WIN

Congratulations to Thomas Shane, Reg. Dir. for UGCCWA and his USA staff, Kemtpon Williams, Jos. O'Connor, Thos. Barrett, August Scholle and CIO Staff and Walter Narris, National Director, UGCCWA, on the results of the election held at Parke-Davis in Detroit, resulting in 922 for CIO; 129 for District 50; 212 for MESA, and 49 for no union.

The UGCCWA were also victorious in the election at Bird and Sons Roofing Co., Chicago, by a vote of 59 to 7. The results of the Parke-Davis election are very significant. District 50 had had a contract there and these workers were prevented from coming over to the CIO who originally organized them and they objected to going to District 50. District 50 had their so-called trump organizers there and spent money lavishly only to be repudiated.

This coupled with the United Shoe Workers' victory at Brown Shoe Co., in Mattoon, which resulted in a vote of 270 for CIO to 211 for District 50 should be sufficient warning that these workers want an organization of their own industry and not to be mixed up in a conglomeration IWW affair where nobody's business is everybody's business. Those who attempt to perpetrate this hoax upon the workers know this statement is correct.

The Gas, Coke Chemical Drive is rolling along and so is the Shoe Workers' Drive, in spite of attempted stabs in the back in Il Duce-style by certain individuals. These workers want unions of their own industries which is sound industrial unionism.

The Oil Workers Organizing Campaign has come through with two additional victories, as follows: Panhandle Carbon Co., Borger, Texas, OWIU-CIO won 75 per cent; Lonestar Gas Co., Compressor Dept., Shamrock, Texas, 85 per cent.

The affair at Columbus, mentioned in last week's issue of the CIO NEWS, was a bumping success. The organized workers, through their representatives, paid their respects to CIO Sub-Regional Director G. Geo. DeNucci for the spendid work he has done in that area. Raymond Walsh, CIO director of research and the writer addressed the gathering. Organizing in this area has gone along at a great pace.

POLITICAL DRIVE

The political activity program of the CIO is gaining momentum. Following the successful meetings in Philadelphia and Chicago, a conference is being called August 14 in Birmingham. The CIO Committee on Congressional Action is likewise creating real activity. Regional and sub-regional directors from all over the nation report much interest in the program of contacting congressmen and senators while Congress is in recess; putting to them labor's program and putting to them pointed questions on CIO's demand for support to the Commander-in-Chief and all-out effort for the United Nations and to put a stop to the vicious and unwarranted attacks upon labor.

Next week the Oil Workers International Union will be in convention at Fort Worth, Texas, and the following week the International Woodworkers meet in convention in Sacramento, Calif. The writer has arranged to be at both conventions. Organizing drives are going along in these two industries, with the cooperation of the CIO and the International Unions.

E. L. Sandefur, Regional Director for the state of Ne wJersey, reports the following victory: Unit one of the R. J. Reynolds Company, CIO 3598; Neither Union 236; AFL 20. Hugh Thompson, Regional Director of Buffalo, New York, sends in another victory for the Mine, Mill and Smelter workers union.

At an election held at the American Brass Company, Buffalo, N. Y., CIO won by a vote of 1,229 as against 664 for the Federated Industrial Union. The United Automobile Workers of America reports the following victory: Local 731 gained overwhelming majority in certification of UAW representation at Luscome Airplane Corp., Trenton, N. J. Results—92½ for UAW-CIO, against 7½.

Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers also reports a smashing victory in International Nickel in Canada, to the tune of 8,812 to 19. This company fought the union bitterly, provoking a long strike several years ago. Lew Michener, UAW regional director in California, adds a 628 to 112 victory for the union at Avion Inc. in Los Angeles.

World Labor Body Asked In Britain

London, Aug. 7 (ALN)—The main questions now facing the British Trades Union Congress are "how far is it possible to meet the demands for a second front in Europe this year" and "how can the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee be extended so as to include the labor movements of all the countries fighting the Axis," Sir Walter Citrine, TUC general secretary, stated on his return to England this week after attending the third session of the Anglo-Soviet labor committee in Moscow.

In an interview here, Citrine hinted that a new international federation of trade unions, to include the unions of the USSR, may soon be formed. The Soviet trade unions will be sending a delegation to the annual convention of the TUC in September, he announced, adding that this may be the occasion for further international labor unity talks. A fraternal delegate from the AFL is also expected to be present.

Giving his impressions of a five-weeks tour of Soviet industrial areas, Citrine said: "Russian efficiency is excellent and there is a striking lack of signs of malnutrition and fatigue." Since June 1941, he said, 100-300 per cent production increases in Soviet industries have been frequent.

In a special article published today in the British labor press, Will Lawther, president of the Miners Federation of Great Britain, hints further at the formation of a new trade union international. After declaring that the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee "has broken down political barriers and paved the way for future international labor unity," he states:

"More than that, my colleagues on the TUC general council have, I understand, made an appeal for the setting up of a World Trade Union Congress, which has been endorsed by representatives of the Soviet trade unions."

Union Weakness Helped Ex-Duce To Power in '22

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(ALN)—While today unity of Italian labor is proving a principal cause of the disintegration of Fascism, so, in Oct., 1922, labor disunity was Mussolini's chief aid in seizing power. In 1922 the Italian labor movement was strong in numbers. The General Confederation of Labor had 2,500,000 members, and the Italian Confederation of Workers—the trade union arm of the Catholic People's Party—1,800,000.

At the Nov. 1919 elections, the Socialist Party polled 1,880,000 votes as against 3,500,000 for all other parties, and won 156 seats in Parliament. The Catholic People's Party won 100 seats. At the April 1921 elections, the Socialist Party secured 123 seats, the newly-organized Communist Party 15, and the Fascist Party—despite its reign of terror—only 35. Mussolini polled only 4,000 votes, against 180,000 for his Socialist opponent.

The numerical strength of the labor movement, however, was offset by its organizational and political disunity. The General Confederation of Labor, split within itself, failed to cooperate with the Italian Confederation of Workers. The effect of this disunity was clearly seen in Sept. 1920, during seizure of factories in north Italy by the workers.

MUSSO STEPS IN

Mussolini was quick to exploit this internal dissension within labor. At the Fascist Party Congress in 1922, he declared: "We will punish only those who follow the Socialists and Communists, who still believe in the class struggle which threatens to destroy the nation.

"To those workers who abandon the class struggle and join the Fascist trade unions, and who, in the interests of the well-being of the nation, will strive by peaceful means to remove the antagonisms between the employers and employes, to such workers we promise peace, freedom and employment." He followed up this assurance by inviting L. Baldesi, secretary of the General Confederation of Labor, to join the government. Only pressure of the GCL membership prevented this from happening.

EXPLOITS DISUNITY

To carry out this mission, Mussolini had first to destroy the labor movement. This he could best do, he realized, by accentuating the split within labor. Consequently, while sending armed units of his Fasci di Combattimenti to smash union headquarters and kill militant workers, he at the same time invited conservatively-minded leaders of the labor movement to cooperate with his government.

CIO Leader Hails Unity of U. S., So. American Workers

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(FP)—Greater cooperation between the CIO's 5,000,000 members and the 4,000,000 Latin American workers affiliated with the Confederation of Latin American Workers was forecast by Chairman Jacob S. Potofsky of the CIO Latin American Committee in a speech before the Havana conference of the confederation. A summary of Potofsky's remarks was released here August 3 by the Council for Pan-American Democracy.

Labor and the win-the-war forces in the U. S., he said, "are not imperialistic-minded and we want to cooperate with you." Many North Americans, he continued, "are confused about Latin American problems and it is true that in certain circles prejudices against you exist."

Similar prejudices, he said, were once held against "our great ally, the Soviet Union, which was for a long time misunderstood. Time has shown the splendid contribution made by the Soviet Union to the cause of freedom and democracy. Time will also show the great contribution you are making to continental unity and victory."

Analyzing the domestic situation in the U. S., Potofsky condemned the policies of Pres. John L. Lewis of United Mine Workers (unaffiliated) and declared that the CIO was already organizing to support the war policies of President Roosevelt now and in the 1944 elections.

CIO Men Heroes of Labor In Attu Fight

San Francisco, Aug. 7—A story of the outstanding heroism under fire of two longshoremen in the Aleutians was printed here this week in the ILWU Dispatcher, fortnightly newspaper of the International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union.

C. G. Boozer and William Appleyard, members of ILWU Local 47, were the only winch-drivers aboard when the ship with the first American troops landed in Holtz Bay at Attu Island in the Aleutians. The ship carried 4,500 tons of explosives and supplies for Massacre Bay, Holtz Bay and Red Beach.

89 HOURS

"Boozer and Appleyard, both World War veterans and long past the age of go-get-'em vigor," reports the Dispatcher, "worked under enemy fire for 89 hours straight, without sleep, without relief. And no accidents."

"What's more, they had just finished two other long stretches of work. At Chilkoot barracks they worked 72 hours straight, and at Cole Bay they worked 62 hours, grabbed four hours of sleep, and then went back on the job for another little trick of 54 hours.

"In nine days, Boozer and Appleyard had a total of nine hours of sleep."

CIO's War Dead

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—War casualties of the U. S. Merchant Marine, including those dead and missing, total 4,727 for the period from September 2, 1941, to June 30, 1943, the CIO National Maritime Union announced here this week. The total casualties show 607 reported dead, and 4,120 missing.

CIO Gets Manpower To Save Tomato Pack

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 7—Some 500 Florida citrus workers, all members of the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing & Allied Workers, have arrived here to help process the tomato pack at the Campbell Soup Company.

The workers who were all unemployed because of the slack season in the Florida citrus industry, were recruited by the War Manpower Commission at the suggestion of the Labor-Management Committee at the Campbell Soup plant, and with the aid of Otis Nation, UCAPAWA vice-president. The union and the company cooperated on the project to insure the production of the canned tomatoes, most of which go directly to the armed forces.

Full protection for the workers is guaranteed by an agreement at present in force between the union and the company which has been extended to cover the Florida workers. They will also benefit by the recent wage increase granted to Campbell Soup employes by order of the War Labor Board, which sets the minimum hiring rate at 66½ cents an hour for men.

There was some doubt for a while as to whether the 500 men would be allowed to leave Florida, because of difficulties raised under the State's new Emigrant Agent Law which forbids workers to leave the state except under supervision of a government agency.

CIO Fights For Speedier Shipping

San Francisco, Aug. 7—The fight of the International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union to obtain an impartial chairman for the tri-partite agency administering the stevedoring industry on the West Coast, received new impetus this week as Paul Eliel, present chairman of the agency, loosed new insults against CIO longshoremen before the Senate Subcommittee studying manpower.

The agency, known as the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board, was set up as result of a plan to speed shiploading which was submitted by the union. Dean Wayne Morse of the War Labor Board was its first chairman. He was succeeded by Paul Eliel, who has built up an amazing record of always voting with the employer members of the Board.

"BUSY"

The hearings of the Senate Committee, presided over by Senator Sheridan Downey of California, opened on July 26. Eliel, who had made damaging admissions before a previous session, ducked the opening on the excuse that he was busy.

Senator Downey read such a strong lecture to his "observer," however, that Eliel showed up on the next day, but with a new excuse for not testifying.

He said that in light of President Roosevelt's instructions to government officials not to engage in controversies in public, he had been instructed by his superior not to testify, except along certain lines.

"Your reliance on this directive is indicative of your intellectual quality," Senator Downey snapped.

Eliel did not identify the superior who instructed him not to answer ILWU criticisms of his conduct. It was presumed to be Admiral Emory (Shoot-em-at-sunrise) Land.

Strike Vote Result Of Confusion, Lewis Disruption, CIO Says

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 7—Outcome of the strike vote taken among workers of the two Allis-Chalmers plants, the first to be held under the new Smith-Connally law, was the result of the confusion of the workers, according to Grant Oakes, president of the United Farm Equipment Workers, the CIO union involved in the case.

Blaming the disruptive activities of the United Mine Workers' District 50 for most of the confusion of the workers, Oakes said that the union doubted that the workers intended to strike. He called upon the CIO and all labor to bring united pressure to bear against shutting down war production at the plant which is making armored vehicles for the Army.

The balloting conducted by the National Labor Relations Board under the terms of the Smith-Connally law resulted in a vote of 1005 for, to 836 against authorizing a strike. The ballot read: "Do you wish to permit an interruption of war production in wartime as a result of this dispute?"

LEWIS CHISELING

The vote was asked by District 50 in disputing the right of the CIO Farm Equipment union to represent the 1700 workers employed at the two Allis-Chalmers plants, in spite of the fact that the CIO had previously won an NLRB election and had signed a contract with the company, effective to April 15, 1944.

Officials of the CIO union quoted an NLRB representative here as saying that the strike vote would not change the fact that the Farm Equipment Workers has been certified as sole bargaining agency and that no new election could be held until after the expiration of the present contract now in effect.

The day before the strike vote was taken, the War Labor Board approved a five-cent hourly increase in the rate of minimum pay at Allis-Chalmers, bringing it up to 67 cents, CIO officials here said.

The Board also ordered the plant to pay women pay equal to that received by men for the same kind of work. As there are some 800 employed in the two plants, union officials pointed out that this would mean an additional substantial pay increase.

The strike vote at Allis-Chalmers was taken following an opinion handed down last week by Attorney General Francis Biddle, holding that a minority group in a plant had a right to petition for such a vote.

N. Y. CIO Fights To End Misery in Harlem As Outbreak Cause

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—Full weight of New York's 500,000 organized CIO workers, members of the city CIO Council, was thrown behind Mayor La Guardia and other civic leaders in the campaign to avoid a serious outbreak of race violence following disorders in Harlem this week.

The disorders, in which several were killed and hundreds injured, in addition to millions in property damage, was described as not a race riot but as resulting from deep-seated dissatisfaction growing out of economic and social discrimination in the Negro areas of the city.

"The Harlem disturbances of August 1 have burned deeply into our minds the vital necessity of immediate, constructive action to prevent the recurrence of any similar incidents," the Council's Committee for the Abolition of Racial Discrimination said.

"The Harlem disturbances were not race riots. This was due primarily to the unrewarding, hard day-to-day work in New York of the CIO and other patriotic organizations such as the NAACP, the Natl. Negro Congress, the Negro Labor Victory Committee and the Natl. Urban League, to combat racial discrimination and to fight for genuine equality for all races as guaranteed by our national and state constitutions."

Segregation, discrimination, failure to control prices, bad housing and health conditions, and the appalling poverty of Harlem's citizens were the real causes of the outbreaks, the statement said, and any attempt to prevent them in the future must be based on removal of these basic causes.

Columbus Celebrates 6th Year

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 7—Delegates celebrating the Columbus CIO Council's sixth birthday anniversary at the Neil House, July 31, were told by J. Raymond Walsh, CIO economic director, that CIO favors modification of the Little Steel formula unless living costs are cut and that the Administration is now drafting a program to rollback the cost of living.

Addressing 350 at a banquet attended by Allan Haywood, CIO international vice president and organizational director, Walsh criticized earlier attempts to control prices as "fantastic" and then related some details of a meeting two weeks ago between labor representatives and President Roosevelt.

CIO On Guard For Workers, Haywood Says

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 7—Sceptics who doubted that the CIO could accomplish the tasks it had set out for itself were scored by CIO Vice President Allan S. Haywood in a radio address delivered here last week.

Tracing the development of this giant labor movement from its small beginnings in 1935, Haywood told the story of its spectacular rise, to a powerful union organization representing more than five million workers.

Today, Haywood said, "the world's greatest and wealthiest industries are under contract with the national and international unions of the CIO."

Oil Workers Meet in 14th Convention

FORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 14—Over 150 delegates, representing thousands of organized oil workers throughout the United States, are meeting here at the 14th annual convention of the Oil Workers International Union, CIO.

After brief introductory remarks by Secretary-Treasurer E. C. Conarty, and Vice-Presidents A. R. Kinstley and Sam Beers, International President O. A. Knight expressed the keynote of the convention when he stated: "We must weigh every convention decision on how it affects the winning of the war against Fascism. We must also give serious consideration to our membership, but our prime job here today is that of considering ways and means of helping to win the war.

"Of all the groups in America who have advanced ideas concerning the successful prosecution of the war, the CIO has been in the forefront, and has adopted a program which the Oil Workers Interntional Union supports completely."

Knight also called attention "to the remarkable progress made by the CIO under the inspiring leadership of President Philip Murray. Not only has the CIO achieved splendid numerical strength, but it has increased in its organizational effectiveness and present financial position."

On the second day of the convention, various resolutions were passed, among which were included a reiteration of the Oil Workers International Union's no-strike pledge, a condemnation of the Smith-Connally Act, as a piece of reactionary, anti-labor, anti-democratic legislation, and complete support of President Roosevelt and his win-the-war program. Full support was also pledged by the delegates to President Murray's policies.

Other speakers at the convention were William B. Taylor, national director, Organizing Campaign; Dr. Edwin A. Elliott, regional director, Labor Relations Board, and R. J. Thomas, president, United Automobile Workers, and vice-president of the CIO.

Thomas stated that the most important thing facing the convention was the winning of the war. With reference to John L. Lewis, Thomas said, "the only thing John L. Lewis thinks about is how the hell he can beat Roosevelt in '44. So far as my union is concerned, I am sure our convention is going to endorse Roosevelt for a fourth term, and we're going to throw in Wallace for good measure."

Thomas concluded with the statement that "this is a common people's war, a war for democracy, and the common people of this country are going to nail that fact down."

Report Urges Security

Washington, Aug. 14—What difficulties will arise when the country is faced with the job of getting 20 million war workers and some eight to ten million men returning from the war fitted back into a peacetime economy? How quickly can this shift from wartime to peacetime be accomplished?

These are the major questions taken up in the report of the Conference on Post-War Adjustment of Civilian and Military Personnel, made public last week by President Roosevelt. Members of the group, headed by Dr. Floyd W. Reeves of the National Resources Planning Board, were appointed by the President in July, 1942.

"Simple equity and sound economic policy alike demand that there be an early and clear understanding of what may be counted upon by our armed forces returning to civilian life, what that can tie to with confident expectation that they will not be let down," states the introduction to the report.

For those who will be demobilized from the armed forces, the report recommends:

1. Three months' furlough at regular base pay, not to exceed $100 a month, plus family allowances.

2. Unemployment insurance for 26 weeks, more, if necessary, for those who register with the U. S. Employment Service.

3. Special aid on readjustment and rehabilitation.

4. Free tuition and allowances for those who want to resume their education or take up some special course of training.

5. Credit for old-age and survivors insurance on the basis of military service.

6. Opportunities for farm employment and settlement for a limited number of service men, without making agriculture "a dumping ground for the industrial unemployed."

UAW-CIO Moves Convention Site

Detroit, Aug. 14—Discrimination against its Negro members caused the United Automobile Workers to change the place of its convention originally scheduled to be held in St. Louis, Mo., to Buffalo, N. Y., Secretary-Treasurer George Addes announced this week. The convention will open Oct. 4.

"Satisfactory and adequate commitments, free from all discrimination," have been obtained in Buffalo, Addes said, "and the International Executive Board has unanimously voted to change the site of the convention."

Murray Hails State Council

Washington, Aug. 14—CIO President Philip Murray praised the progress made by the Iowa-Nebraska CIO Council during the past in greetings sent to the Council on the occasion of the sixth annual convention which opens in Ft. Dodge, Iowa, Aug. 26.

"Your Council has a very important part to play in promoting our CIO movement in your great states, and mobilizing the membership for all activities that will aid the cause of speedy and total victory over the Axis," Murray said.

CIO Wins At Stewart-Warner

Chicago, Aug. 14 — Workers in Stewart-Warner, big radio plant here, voted 3,704 for the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Worker to 3,138 against, in a recent election held by the National Labor Relations Board.

Declaring that the election was held under great difficulties, the union charged that the company tried to prevent a CIO victory by wholesale firings, by moving whole departments out of Chicago when UE sentiment in them grew strong and by other "reckless violations of the law."

"Whole departments of non-production employes, not part of the bargaining unit," the union said, "were marched to the polls by supervisors and foremen with instructions to vote them if they could, even under challenge."

Sign Contract In Canada

Ajax, Ont., Aug. 14—An agreement covering 5,000 hourly-paid employes of the Defense Industries Limited's Pickering Works has been signed by the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, after many weeks of collective bargaining.

The contract gives the union sole bargaining rights; provides for overtime pay, paid vacations, seniority and calls for union-management committees on production, safety and health.

During the course of negotiations, the union and management conducted a joint survey of jobs and wage rates in the giant munitions plant and a sub-committee representing both parties worked out job classifications, later approved by the union members.

United Labor From 7 States Demands Rollback Action

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 14—Delegates from all branches of labor, totalling 154, in seven midwestern and southwestern states in an all-day price control meeting, here, voted unanimously to use the recess of Congress to put joint pressure on their Congressmen, through visits and meetings, to compel them to carry out the people's wishes on price rollbacks and other home front issues.

The campaign is part of a broad drive to win the price control and rollback fight, adopted with supporting speeches by many delegates from CIO, AFL, and Railroad brotherhoods.

Petitions to Congress in support of labor's five-point price control program, such as are being circulated in St. Louis and other cities, were also adopted as an immediate campaign measure for the seven states.

URGE REGISTERING

To implement labor's political power behind the drive, the delegates called upon all local unions in the seven states to start immediately a campaign for the registration of all their members for both primaries and general elections.

The meeting, called by OPA, was the first of its kind held anywhere in the country. Present were delegates from the three labor groups in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Louisiana, comprising the fifth OPA region, and from Iowa.

Max McCullough, regional OPA administrator in Dallas, called the meeting because of the price control work already done by the United Labor Committee in St. Louis. The morning session was conducted by the OPA with addresses on subsidies and the OPA program by OPA officails.

The afternoon session was turned over to the labor delegates, with all the district directors of OPA in the region present to hear labor's program of support, as well as its criticism of OPA weaknesses. William Sentner, general vice-president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, presided, as first vice-chairman of the United Labor Committee of greater St. Louis.

The need and desire for unity of labor in its political work in support of the war effort and home front stability for the war, was the keynote of the meeting. Speakers from the AFL, CIO and the railroad unions vied with each other in pledging cooperation in the drive to bring Congress into line with the needs of the war and the wishes of the epople.

Stop in at the USO-Variety Club Canteen, across the Plaza from the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, and sit down in a CIO chair and stretch out on a CIO couch or write a few letters at a CIO desk. A CIO lamp furnishes the light which falls on your book or newspaper. As you wait between trains, you can sit at a CIO table for a bit of food.

This unusual situation came about as the result of the cooperation of all locals of CIO unions in Allegheny County contributing to the fund with which furniture was purchased to make this Canteen one of the finest clubs for service men and women in the country.

David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer, USA-CIO, tells the story:

"This Canteen is a community enterprise," he said. "We selected as our part of it, the job of supplying furniture. Individual members of all CIO unions in the country contributed personal sums and we finally got $12,000 in the pot. This took care of all the furniture except certain special pieces which were donated by individuals.

"Each piece of funiture has been contributed in honor of a member or group of members of a local union who are serving in the armed forces. Eventually name plates will be placed on these pieces of furniture to commemorate these people."

CIO unions took care of the furniture which was selected and designed by members of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Society of Interior Decorators. Union labor was used in the erection of the building and paid for out of the treasuries of various AFL Building Trades Unions. The Business and Professional Women's Clubs take care of the library. The Garden Clubs landscaped the exterior and promised to keep the interior in plants and fresh cut flowers.

Entertainment is the job of the Variety Club and many new shows coming in to Pittsburgh theatres and night clubs are previewed by men in uniform at the Canteen. New movies are shown in the Canteen's auditorium which has 35 millimeter motion picture equipment.

The USO-Variety Club Canteen is one of the finest in the country. It has sleeping accommodations for both men and women in uniform, a fine check room and library from which books can be borrowed for that long trip to the next stop. All the attendants ask is that the books be put in a camp library or turned over to the next USO Club a soldier or sailor visits.

Ruby Heide

Elect Woman Leader on Coast

San Francisco, Aug. 14 — Mrs. Ruby Heide, first woman executive officer of a CIO Council on the West Coast, this week assumed her duties as secretary-treasurer of the Alameda County CIO Council. She was elected by acclamation to succeed her husband, Paul Heide, who resigned to become vice-president of Local 6, Intl. Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union.

Pert, pleasant and red-haired, Mrs. Heide is a union veteran who previously served as sergeant-at-arms and recording secretary of the Alameda Council.

20 Million On Low Incomes Hit by HCL

Washington (FP)—It will probably infuriate the pro-inflationists in Congress, but the Office of War Information has gotten out a release for newspapers on the shellacking that 20 million citizens are taking with every rise in the cost of living.

Here is the makeup of the 20 million on fixed low wages, pensions or allotments or meager government checks:

Dependents of men in the armed services, 9 million.

Aged persons on state public assistance rolls, nearly 2,200,000.

Disabled veterans, or their widows and dependent children, 1 million.

Retired and disabled firemen, state or municipal employes, 158,000.

Dependent children getting aid through public welfare funds, 739,000.

Blind, 53,000.

Retired workers or their widows and young children getting payments from the Social Security Board, 700,000.

Persons drawing annuities, 400,000.

Teachers, firemen, policemen, nurses in state and city hospitals, other municipal, state and federal workers on fixed salaries, 6 million.

This is the group of unorganized millions alluded to by the President in his message to congress when he vetoed the Commodity Credit Corp. bill with its anti-subsidy rider. He said they were in danger of becoming the forgotten men of the nation.

The OWI report does not take into account the 4 million who, the President said, were still receiving less than 40 cents an hour in wages.

Many young wives of army and navy men with small children are unable to take jobs because of the lack of child care facilities. They try to get along on $62, $72, $82 or more, depending on the number of children, a month. In states qualified for Lanham act funds wives can receive free maternity care.

CIO Auxiliaries Visit WAC's Training Camp

Washington, Aug. 14—CIO and AFL auxiliary women were among the 28 presidents of national women's organizations whom army bombers carried to Ft. Des Moines on August 3 for a three day visit to WAC installations.

Mrs. Faye Stephenson, president of the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO; Mrs. Herman Lowe, president of the American Federation of Women's Auxiliaries of Labor (AFL); and Miss Rose Schnelderman, president of the National Women's Trade Union League, represented labor on the tour.

See WACS

The tour was planned to give the visiting women first-hand contact with the training and work done by members of the WAC. They slept in the WAC barracks, and shared the Corps' mess hall. On August 5 the entire group visited Camp Crowder, Missouri, where the visitors saw WAC members at work.

They also saw the ceremony in which the WAACS were sworn into the regular army. "We saw thousands of women in formation, with their own officers, their own commanders," Mrs. Stephenson said.

"Women in the WAC are allowed to use initiative," she continued, "and as a result of their training at Fort Des Moines and at other WAC training centers there will be an even broader future for the women of this country following the war. Helping to recruit the full 600,000 women needed in the WACs is one of the immediate ways in which our CIO auxiliaries can help win the war. We must urge women to join up and thus release 600,000 soldiers for active duty."

CIO VISITORS: Faye Stephenson, president of the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO, shakes hands with Col. George W. Teachout, commander of Camp Crowder, Mo. Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, commander of the WACs, introduces her. Mrs. Stephenson was one of a group of presidents of national women's organizations who made a three-day tour of camps to observe WAC training.

How The Dutch Workers Struck At Nazi Terror

By Wellington Roe

A prominent Dutch laborite, whose name cannot be given because it would bring immediate reprisals against his family, which is still in Holland, recently escaped to England through the underground. He brought with him the first eye-witness account of what has happened to Dutch labor under the Nazis.

Labor unions in Holland, before Hitler's "supermen" crashed across the border to overwhelm the stubborn, fighting but out-gunned and out-manned Dutch Home Army and Goerings luftwaffe smashed Rotterdam to smoking rubble, were strong and independent. More than half the nation's workers were enrolled in trade unions.

The Nazis lost no time in attempting to break up this strong democratic group. It is one of Holland's glories that, although the German forces of the occupation abolished trade unions as such by absorbing them into the "Netherlands Labor Front," they never broke the spirit or the solidarity of the Dutch unionists.

It is true that the gains made by the trade unions throughout 30 years of effort have been wiped out by three years under the Nazis, but the union spirit lives on. Most of the underground leaders in Holland today—men who are exacting a terrible toll from their country's oppressors—came from the ranks of Dutch unions.

This is part of the story told by the Dutch unionist when he was interviewed in London early in August after his escape from the Nazi terror.

HARASS HITLER

Among his other statements—all backed by competent authority for he has long been close to Holland's labor circles—was that the Dutch workers have driven the Nazis from "one vain policy to another by their resistance to attempts to regiment the country's trade unions into the national-socialist scheme."

In the fall of 1941, the Nazis, despairing of forcing the Dutch unionists to accept a German as their "leader," dug up an ex-stoolpigeon and labor spy, one H. J. Woundenberg, to be the head of the "Netherlands Labor Front," which is known as the NVV.

One of his first acts was to "dare" dissenters from the Nazi-arranged labor front program to leave the trade unions which he had taken over. The Dutch answered with over 500,000 withdrawals in a fortnight.

Next he tried to bolster the labor front ranks by "inviting" ex-union members—read stoolpigeons, spies, etc.—to join. There were not many of these around, but he did catch a few. Then, on May 26, 1942, he "warned labor leaders" not to agitate against the labor front. That missed, too. The labor leaders merely went underground.

On July 24, 1942, Woudenberg appointed a batch of official labor spies to seek out worker's leaders and expose them to Nazi "justice."

The Dutch escapee said that "nothing much came of this either."

The Hollanders had learned that no amount of terrorism and threats could break them. They remained "brothers" even though the "labor front" now controlled the mechanics of their unions.

But if the Nazis have been having trouble with the members of the former Dutch unions due to organizational matters, unemployment funds, etc., they were thrown into panic by the events of late April and the first week of May this year. This was where the workers showed their unity—and this was where the Nazis learned that Dutch labor, far from being cowed, was fighting hard and intelligently.

The circumstances were that immediately following an order by Air Gen. Friedrich Christiansen, Nazi military commander in Holland, decreeing that all former members of the Dutch Home Army be sent back to war-prison camps (obviously the Nazis are having invasion jitters and want these trained men out of the way) the Dutch underground called for a national strike. This was to be in protest against Christiansen's command. The ex-service men were urged not to register, to go in hiding if necessary. Dutchmen were asked to help the former soldiers in every possible way.

STRIKE

The workers reaction came instantly. According to reliable reports from Holland, within half an hour after Christiansen's decree had been published, cities and villages throughout the Netherlands changed appearance completely. Factories, shops and public offices closed. Farmers left their fields. Busses stopped in the streets. Only automatic telephones operated. And only railroad, gas, light and water services continued.

Railway employes, however, spread warnings not to travel the next day because attacks would be made on troops and freight trains. Householders were warned secretly to prepare their meals at once and to fill their bathtubs with water. A few hours later, gas and water services were stopped.

Farmers, who were obliged ordinarily to turn over a certain number of cattle and pigs to Nazi authorities on the last day of the month, were warned by patriotic Dutch officials to give up nothing on the next day, April 30th, and to slaughter and hide the animals as quickly as possible.

The strike spread rapidly. Tax offices refused to accept money. Customs offices no longer levied duties. Law courts suspended all sessions.

Backing Bullets With Ballots

"Backing Bullets With Ballots" is CIO's newest publication on the home front job of making Congress work for quick victory.

Its a four-page, full tabloid size special supplement that can be distributed separately or put in with your union or local paper. It consists of 36 drawings telling the story of Joe Warworker and his wife, and what they found out about Congress and the need for political action to keep Congress in line with the Commander-in-Chief and with labor.

It will appear next week as a supplement to The CIO NEWS. Watch for it. Meantime, place your orders with the Publicity Dept., CIO, 718 Jackson Place, N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

Prices: 100 for $2.50; 500 for $10.00; 1,000 for $15.00.
Note to Editors: You can have mats of this supplement for $3.00 per full page, $12.00 for the whole.

UNITED ACTION: CIO, AFL and Brotherhoods, in New Haven, Conn., have a session with their Congressman, Ranulf Compton, to check up on his record on war issues. Joint meeting was the first of its kind in this city. Seated are: Ray Kilduff, secretary, New Haven CIO; Harold Feinmark, president, AFL; Congressman Compton, Nathan Sherman, editor, Union Times, AFL; William F. Donoghue, chairman, Railway Trainmen; John J. Murphy, legislative representative, of Firemen and Engineers; Edward McCrone, CIO Regional Director; Saul Kress, Business Agent, Painters Union, AFL, and Vincent Romeo, representative, UERMW, CIO.

CIO Convention Season Starts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—The national convention of the International Woodworkers of America which opens next Tuesday in Sacramento, Calif., will be followed by a number of other annual confabs of CIO international unions and State Councils, scheduled to meet during the later summer months.

According to information received at the National CIO headquarters, the list includes:

Arkansas Council, Benton, Ark., Aug. 21.

Iowa-Nebraska Council, Ft. Dodge, Ia., Aug. 26.

Wisconsin Council, Milwaukee, Sept. 3.

Minnesota Council, Minneapolis, Sept. 10.

United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, New York City, Sept. 12.

United Stone & Allied Products, Barre, Vt., Sept. 13.

Mine, Miil & Smelter Workers, Butte, Mont., Sept. 13.

United Rubber Workers, Toronto, Can., Sept. 20.

Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, New York City, Sept. 21.

State, County & Municipal Workers, Cleveland, O., Sept. 23.

United Automobile Workers, Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 4.

Indiana Council, Ft. Wayne, Ind., Oct. 15.

Servicemen Protected

Erie, Pa., Aug. 14—A military clause in a new contract signed between Local 74, United Rubber Workers and the Lovell Mfg. Co. here, guarantees that employes now in the armed forces shall at the end of the war be given their former jobs without loss of earnings or seniority.

Stay on Job, WPB Labor Men Urge

Washington, Aug. 14—War workers were urged to stick to their posts of duty on the production line to achieve the needed monthly gains in production of planes and other essential war supplies in a joint statement made by Clinton S. Golden, and Joseph D. Keenan of the War Production Board.

Golden, who is on leave from his job as assistant to the president of the CIO United Steel Workers, is vice-chairman for Manpower Requirements of the WPB, and Keenan is vice-chairman for Labor Production.

The labor representatives' statement followed the declaration by WPB Executive Vice - Chairman Charles E. Wilson that munitions output must be 40 per cent higher next winter, even though employment gains of only 10 and 15 per cent can be expected in the munitions industries.

"Next to the extreme cost of accidents and illness among workers, turnover is the biggest human handicap in our present efforts to hoist production to needed heights," they said.

CIO's 'V' Drive

Political Action Booms Throughout U. S., Report Shows

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—CIO members throughout the nation are taking the lesson of political action to heart and applying it on the home grounds, reports coming into the CIO Special Committee on Congressional Action show.

The reports, sent to George F. Addes, chairman of the Special Committee, show that CIO members are fully aroused to the role the majority of Congress has been playing in attempting to hogtie the nation's victory program, and are doing a job of rallying other labor and progressive groups to unite with CIO in the drive.

The Special Committee, whose members are, in addition to Addes, James B. Carey, CIO Secretary, David J. McDonald, secretary of USA-CIO, and Julius Emspak, secretary of the UE, was set up by President Murray early in July for this specific job. It is not meant to duplicate the work of the standing Political Action Committee headed by Sidney Hillman, whose task is to mobilize labor for long-term political work leading to the 1944 election.

LABOR ACTION

This Committee has already held conferences in a number of leading industrial areas, and is planning further meetings. In reporting last week to President Murray, the group pointed to huge turnouts in the conferences already held and to a widespread feeling of intense enthusiasm and interest on the part of workers as evidenced that labor is ready to do the same win-the-war job on the home front that it is doing on the production front.

In a circular letter sent this week to all CIO affiliates, the Special Committee urged a four-point program based on organization in the Congressional Districts that elect the Congressmen. The four-point outline declared:

1. "Organization on a Congressional District basis must be established," with joint committees in each district.

2. "Greater efforts must be made to bring in full cooperation of AFL and Railroad Labor units and other interested organizations in our political activity.

3. "It is essential that a clear, unequivocal statement of the position of the Congressmen on the major issues be received.

4. "Plans should be made for the continued operation after the recess of these Joint Congressional District Committees" to carry on the work when the Congressmen have returned to Washington, expected on September 14.

The letter also declared that the Special Committee was "extremely pleased that reports show substantial progress in a number one activity . . . However, we have only made a beginning and much remains to be done."

The committee added that it will meet again September 1 "to canvass any new progress we have made and the questionnaires which we expect to have received by that time. We are counting on your continued support of this program."

REPORTS IN

Several hundred reports from national unions, state and city councils, districts and locals received to date prove that this support has been forthcoming. The reports come from every section of the country, from every kind of industry, from every type of worker and his union.

Here are a few of the many hundreds, taken as a selection to show the national scope and the tempo of political action throughout the CIO.

From the Missouri State Council; four internationals in the state have put a full-time person on political work; unity of CIO, AFL and Brotherhoods is a reality; price rollback drives and petition campaigns in Kansas City especially successful.

In California, the CIO unions have voluntarily assessed each member $1.00 to raise a fighting fund for the political action drive and for the 1944 campaigns. California adds that every CIO member in the state is being vigorously urged to take part in the drive.

The Indiana State Council has issued a "Political Manual," explaining the issues and detailing the Indiana Congressmen's votes. In the same state, the Fort Wayne Council is planning a mass "Town Meeting" for September 1.

UNITY WORKS

The Minneapolis CIO has already had successful conference meetings with representatives from women's auxiliaries, from cooperatives, and from other consumer groups, plus AFL and railroad unions, who heard from Wisconsin's Rep. McMurray, a member of the "Fighting Fifty" dedicated to protecting the consumer in Congress.

Eleven committees in important upstate New York industrial cities have been set up, according to Buffalo CIO Director Hugh Thomp-

CIO Fights Dies Smear, Blacklist

Washington (FP)—Statements of protest from various national organizations were read here as federal workers and others met to condemn the firing of John Bovington and demand his immediate reinstatement as Office of Economic Warfare economic analyst.

Indignant over Bovington's dismissal by Chief Leo T. Crowley, they packed the membership meeting of War Agencies Local 203, United Federal Workers (CIO), where Bovington and Legislative Rep. Russ Nixon of the United Electrical Radio & Machine Workers (CIO) spoke. A petition was circulated for signatures which was to be presented to Crowley the following day, condemning "the use of Federal employes as footballs in the hands of anti-victory and anti-Administration forces."

For the first time since the furore over his dismissal, Bovington told the story of how Crowley asked him to resign because firing him would alienate "liberal elements."

Crowley called him into his office Aug. 2, two days after the Times-Herald (which always "breaks" Rep. Martin Dies' stories) ran its smear story calling Bovington a communist. What was particular grist for the Times-Herald mill was that at one time Bovington had been a dancer.

Before six of his subordinates, Crowley talked to Bovington, said the agency was under attack and suggested that Bovington write him a letter of resignation. Bovington asked him if he thought they should "retreat before Martin Dies." Crowley said Dies shouldn't be brought into the discussion.

United Action In Conn.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 14—The three major labor organizations in this district—the CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods-have formed a United Labor Legislative Conference of Greater New Haven, with the aim of informing the general public about the voting record of their Congressmen and Senators and giving the legislators a chance to reply.

All unions in the district will be invited to send delegates to a conference to be held August 28.

"We are firmly convinced that victory over the Axis powers can be speeded up by having a United nation behind our Commander-in-Chief and our armed forces," the group, stated. "Our activities are planned to do our share in making certain that the session of Congress which reconvenes in September is a win-the-war session."

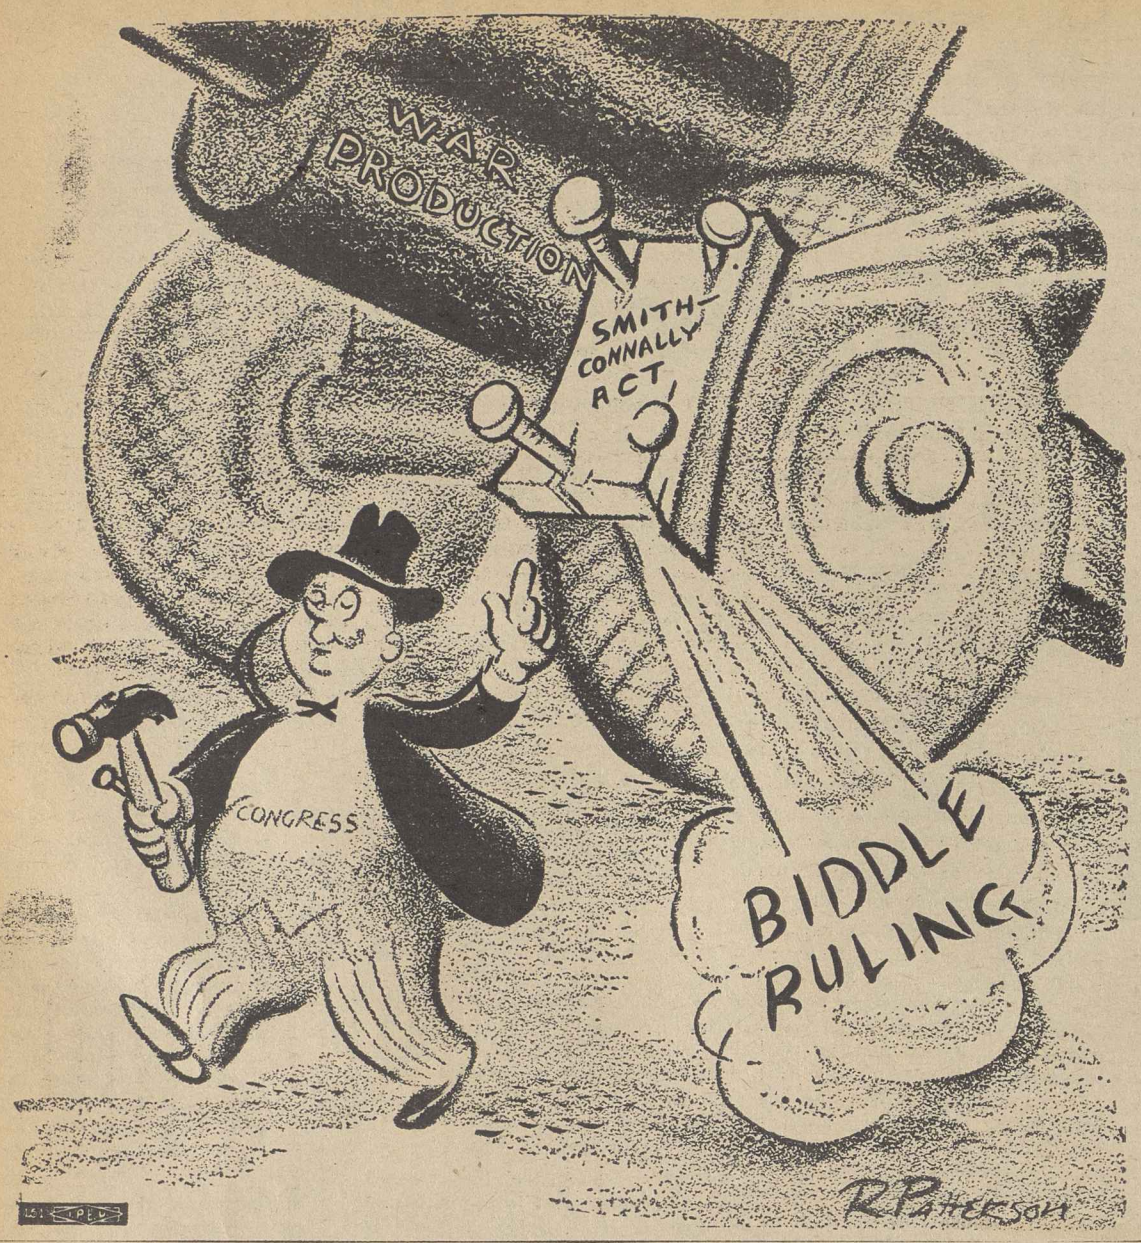
DON'T WASTE ALLOY-STEEL SCRAP

Save the scrap metal made in machining alloy steel. It is a war material. Save it for re-use. At the time the scrap is created—at the lathe, shears, planer, screw machine—separate it according to alloy content. Place the scrap in containers labelled with the steel's analysis or grade number. Once a container is filled, help to keep the alloy scrap separated in the scrapyard while it waits shipment back to the steel mill.

So You Fixed It, Eh?



Never Again!

We've said this before—but it's worth repeating. The tories and obstructers who were elected in 1942 won by default.

They won because only 28,070,183 Americans voted in those elections, as compared with 50,000,000 voters in 1940.

The absentees from the polls in 1942 included most of five million men in the armed forces, and most of five million families of war workers who moved to new communities for new war jobs. (And both of these groups have about doubled since then.)

A majority of both these groups would have voted for real win-the-war progressives—if they had voted.

Also absent from the polls, in larger proportion than other groups, were millions of war workers who didn't move, but who were working too hard and too long to take time off to vote, and who possibly didn't think it important enough to do so.

So many of the Congressmen now home are learning that the sentiment of their constituencies is quite different from the misleading impression created by the 1942 elections.

And millions of war workers, who've seen what the last session of Congress did, are learning that what happened in 1942 must never be allowed to happen again.

So labor's immediate political job is to see that all war workers, whether they've moved or stayed at home, are registered to vote, while there's still time—and that the lessons of 1942 are really learned by all.

'Take-Home' Wages

Much play has been made in the anti-labor press about some recent OPA figures purporting to show increases in workers' "real" weekly wages, as distinct from their stabilized hourly rates.

The resulting propaganda against rolling back prices or adjusting wages is dishonest for these among other reasons:

(1) The cost of living index used to determine "real" wages is admittedly inadequate to determine war living costs.

(2) Where weekly wages are higher, this is due almost entirely to the workers working much harder and much longer hours.

(3) The base from which weekly wages are supposed to have risen is a short-time standard of low earnings, in most cases insufficient for health and productive efficiency—on which many families only got by because sons or brothers (now in the armed forces) were also working.

But perhaps the biggest hoax of all in these figures is that while they are usually described as showing the "take-home" earnings, that is exactly what they don't show.

Before a worker takes home his wages these days, a 20% withholding tax is deducted (amounting, for instance, to $7 off the wages of a worker without dependents earning between $30 and $40). Then there are deductions for social security, payroll bond purchases, plant medical services and a number of other things.

So the actual take-home wages of the average worker—earning less than $37 a week, according to these figures—may be anywhere around $10 less than his earnings.

The only way to calculate real wages, therefore, is not only to take into account the FULL increases in living costs, but also to relate them to the money wages which the worker finally takes home, after all deductions—not to the misleading total which appears only on the company's books and does not reach the worker's pockets.

If this were done, it would soon be seen that real weekly earnings have not only not increased to the extent claimed, but on the contrary have actually decreased in many cases.

The dishonest use of the figures now being flung around is further shown in the contrasting way profit figures are publicized

The same papers that base their present propaganda on gross weekly earnings of workers, as if these were their actual net or take-home wages, always talk of industrial profits in net figures, after all deductions, not only for taxes but for "unforeseen contingencies," have been made.

It is obviously grossly unfair to talk of net earnings where coupon-clippers are concerned, and only to refer to gross earnings were workers are concerned.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

SO YOU didn't know you were profiteering, Joe Warworker?

Well, neither did we. But, my gosh, look at those editorials!

They say your real weekly wages have gone up by big percentages—so there's no need for subsidies to roll back living costs—and you ought to pay an "individual excess profits tax."

What's that? Such language! Well, it's true liars can figure. But these li . . . I mean, papers, quote government figures for increased weekly earnings between January, 1941, and March, 1943, against the rise in the living cost index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

You say that index is "phoney." Well, most statisticians agree it doesn't allow for "certain basic factors affecting war living costs." But I guess that means "phoney."

Anyhow, Joe, you'll admit your weekly wages are higher. If you're an average non-agricultural worker, these figures say you made about $37 a week in March, as compared with $26 a week in 1939—an increase of more than 40%.

Yes, it's true you can take nothing and double it, and still have nothing. And I don't suppose these li . . . I mean, publishers would know how to support a wife and kids on 37 bucks at present wartime living costs.

★ ★ ★

But let's look at your pre-war wages, Joe. All right, go ahead. I'll put down what you say.

You were working short-time and not making a living wage. You only managed to get by because Joe, Jr., was also working. But now he's in the army.

Sure, your weekly wages are higher, though your hourly wage has been frozen by the Little Steel formula. But the chief reason you're making more a week now is that you're working twice as hard and twice as long as before the war.

And what happens to your higher weekly earnings? There's a 20% withholding tax, deductions for social security, etc., and war bonds—and you finally take home little more than you did before the war.

Then food prices have about doubled, and you need more food to keep up your strength because you're working so much harder. And anyone who says you're a war profiteer is a . . .

★ ★ ★

I can't put down that last part, Joe, and I'm not a phoney myself to question you like this. I'm just getting you to bring out some points much better than any statisticians could, because you really know, while they're just dealing with misleading averages and percentages, not live human beings.

One reason these percentages are so wrong (whether or not they stand up statistically) is that they're based on past earnings that weren't even a living wage.

In 1941, 90% of the workers were earning less than $2,000 a year, and 82% less than $1,600.

The University of California's Heller Committee shows that $2,250 a year was necessary to maintain a family of four on a minimum standard, providing only 17 cents per person per meal; $34 a month rent; one overcoat in six years; one haircut a month; only two movies a month, and so on.

Yet most of the workers were living far below that standard in 1941. And even if real wages have increased since then (which is more than dcubtful), they'd still be insufficient for most war workers to maintain themselves at a proper health and efficiency level.

Don't be fooled by "averages." For every "average" war worker making the government's figure of $37 a week, millions are making much less.

And how these weekly paychecks shrink before you get them! Here's one actual case, of a married woman earning $30 a week. Withholding tax takes $4.60, 10% is deducted for bond purchase, and after the other payroll deductions for insurance, social security, hospitalization, etc., she takes home about $21 a week.

Before the war she earned $22, which she actually took home and spent at lower prices. Yet, some of our newspaper publishers would say her weekly wages had increased by 40%, and her "real" wagese by 14%—so she's now war profiteering and doesn't need any roll-back of living costs!

Just figure it out for yourself, and then go and tell some of the editorial writers, politely, they're liars who figure, even if their figures themselves don't lie.

Keeping Score to Win the War

House Record On Vital War Issues

(With this issue, The CIO NEWS concludes the voting record of the House of Representatives, begun in the issue of August 9. The Senate voting record was carried in the August 2 issue.)

First step in Keeping Score to Win the War is a knowledge of how your Congressman voted on vital war issues that affect the fighting front and the home front together.

In this issue of CIO NEWS, we reprint the record of the Congressmen in their votes on 20 issues of major importance to you, your fellow-workers and your neighbors, as war workers and as people who want to win victory quickly over fascism.

Study this record, keep it with you and use it when you call on your Congressman to ask him about his record and his performance in the House of Representatives since January, 1943.

(Symbols used in this list are shown in an adjoining column. Three weeks ago The CIO NEWS carried the voting record of the Senators on 18 issues. Tables were compiled by the United Auto Workers, CIO.)

1. Hobbs Bill. Disguised as an "anti-racketeering" measure, this bill would actually forbid most normal union activities by removing the exemptions in the existing Anti-Racketeering Act which protect such legitimate actions of unions. Passed April, 1943, after plugging by polltaxer Sam Hobbs (Ala.) by vote of 270 to 107, and is now in Senate, where it can be easily brought up.

2. Smith-Connally Bill. Disguised as an "anti-strike" bill, this measure actually promotes strikes by irresponsible groups through legalizing them, limits labor's rights to political activity in Federal elections. Passed June, 1943, by 231 to 141. CIO demanding repeal.

3. Ramspeck Federal Pay Bill. Gives overtime pay to U. S. employes after 39-hour work-week. Passed House May, 1943, by 273-119. Up to Senate now.

5. $25,000 Income Ceiling. In March, 1943, the House wiped out FDR's executive order holding net salaries after all taxes to $25,000 a year. Passed by 268 to 129.

6. Tax Bill. Forgives 75 per cent of 1942 taxes in special bonus to the rich; set up 20 per cent withholding tax on wages. War needs for billions from big incomes and inflated profits were ignored, leaving huge deficit from 75 per cent forgiveness. Big campaign now on for sales tax and other burdens on low incomes to make up this deficit. CIO program calls for taxes on wealth, excess profits, closing loopholes, easing of burden on poor. 75 per cent plum to rich passed by 256 to 114.

7. Incentives for Food Production. Three actions were taken here: (a) vote (229 to 90) forbidding use of funds in Agriculture Dept. appropriation for incentive payments to farmers for extra war crop production; passed on demand of "Farm Bloc" to increase monopoly, freeze small producer out, increase prices and (b):

8. House vote approving funds in Agriculture Dept. to pay farmers for rotating crops, thus (for example) cutting production of unneeded cotton, increasing production of needed peanuts, flax, etc. This vote (185 to 175) knocked out the vote above; followed by (c):

9. A third House vote again forbidding use of Agriculture funds for incentive payments for production of certain war crops, thus returning the circle to No. 7 vote above, knocking out incentives as of June, 1943. Pressure needed to restore incentives.

10. Crop Insurance. Knocked out funds (from same Agriculture appropriation) for crop insurance on certain crops, thus destroying protection for farmers and killing inducement to plant extra acreage needed for victory. Vote of 208 to 160 (June, 1943) again dictated by "Farm Bloc," rich Wall St. "farmers" who fear competition from working farmers more than they want to win the war.

11. Rural Electrification. Cut funds for Rural Electrification Administration which helped meet power shortages. Vote of 193 to 167 (June, 1943) dictated by private power monopoly which fears public ownership more than it wants to supply power for war production.

12. Home Owners Loan Corp. Kills HOLC, thereby endangering workers who own their own homes. Passed by 224 to 159 (February, 1943), at demand of real estate and mortgage holders' lobby.

13. Price Rollback. Vote of 229 to 97 (June, 1943) forbids use of War Agencies' appropriations to make rollback of living costs to 1942 or any other level illegal.

14. Price Enforcement. Another vote on same bill made deep cuts in OPA funds (from $165 million to $130 million), making adequate enforcement of price control impossible. Passed by 185 to 147, this vote cuts out all attempts to hire inspectors for real enforcement.

15. OPA Wrecking. By 188 to 144, House limited policy-making employes of OPA to men with at least five years business experience, thus turning over top jobs to businessmen exclusively, shutting out all others. Part of same bill as above.

16. OWI Wrecking. By 218 to 144, House (in same War Agencies Bill) wrecked Office of War Information by abolishing Domestic Branch. OWI had job of getting out facts on the war, pamphlets, radio programs, etc., on nature of fascism, home front issues, etc. Wrecking is deliberate attempt to keep these facts from American people.

17. Smith Smear Committee. Sets up universal smear committee headed by polltaxer Howard Smith, with main target the work of vital U. S. war agencies. Smith (co-author of Smith-Connally bill) chose OPA's rent control section for his first attack in attempt to hi-jack more rent out of workers, wreck price control. Passed February, 1943, by 294 to 50.

18. Dies Committee. By a vote of 302 to 94, the House (February, 1943) gave the notorious unAmerican Dies Committee a new license to smear labor, sabotage U. S. war agencies and personnel, attack our Allies and generally carry on Goebbels' work in this country.

19. Blacklist. In May, 1943, the House voted (278 to 65) to forbid funds for employment of three men—Wm. E. Dodd, Jr., Goodwin Watson, and Robt. Lovett—by U. S. government on grounds they were "prematurely and excessively anti-fascist," which means they opposed Hitler before Pearl Harbor. This sets up a Federal blacklist for employes Congressional reactionaries don't like.

20. Polltax Repeal. In May, 1943, the House passed (265 to 110) the polltax repeal bill (HR 7) that would give the vote to 10 million white and Negro Americans. The bill is now before the Senate, where quick action is needed.

SYMBOLS—Plus means a vote for labor. Minus means a vote against labor. P stands for pair.

There are two kinds of pairs, one which relates only to a certain bill in which both parties specify on which side of this subject they will vote, and one called a general pair under which both parties vote on the opposite side of any question which comes up while the pair is in effect. A pair vote for labor is represented here by the symbolP, against labor by P. The general pair is represented by P. Actually a pair, either for or against, does not in any way affect the outcome of a vote. Being paired is no satisfactory excuse for absenteeism.

A is the symbol for absent. This means that the person is out of the Senate Chamber or the House.

CIO Political Action Grows

son. In New York City, the Council has gone all-out on checking up its Congressmen through the already formed CIO Community Councils in each borough and district.

The Michigan CIO has sent out detailed maps of Congressional Districts, voting lists, and a leaflet on the need for political action by unions, reports progress in organizing conferences and meetings with Congressmen. The Maryland-D. C. Council has been busy rounding up Maryland's Representatives, setting up committees at the borderline of Washington itself, whose citizens don't vote.

Nebraska, Iowa, Texas, Washington State, Portland, Ore., Kansas, Massachusetts and many others report that united political action is an accomplished fact, with CIO, AFL and railroad unions working closely together. Connecticut reports a particular problem with an almost solidly anti-labor, anti-FDR delegation in the House of Representatives.

"WE LIKE IT"

Progress is also shown in the polltax South, where workers and farmers, both white and Negro, are not permitted to vote. The Georgia CIO has started a newspaper to aid the campaign. From Alabama, Regional Director Noel Beddow comments:

"Perhaps it does not seem like much to you who are accustomed to so much, but to a man who is broke a penny is a lot of money. We are getting some pennies now and we like it, and that is not all, for we are going to have some more pennies and even some dollars with our other small change."

In Kokomo, Indiana, the CIO Auxiliaries are giving a very practical hand by arranging to feed delegates to a mass conference meeting on a Sunday. Without this help, the delegates would do their political action on empty stomachs, because Kokomo restaurants are closed on the Sabbath.

New Jersey's record of political action includes backing of Vincent Murphy, united labor and Democratic candidate for the governorship, a wide circularizing of all members on Congressional records.

In some places, the labor voters had sharp words to say to their Congressmen, as in New Haven, Conn., where they told Rep. Ranulf Compton (R.) "that we felt he was voting with a one-track mind and that was to run down labor."

In others, as in Chicago, Rhode Island and other areas, the local CIO people active in political work could report a majority of their Congressmen on the win-the-war side, backing FDR and voting with the people on home front policies.

REGISTER TO VOTE DRIVE

Many states and areas are putting stress on the register to vote drive, notably in Ohio, where the state council has sent out attractively printed material and has organized strong pressure on all members to see that the labor vote is turned out, in contrast to the weak showing in the 1942 elections that permitted so many reactionary Congressmen to come to Washington.

Concrete action on unity between workers and farmers is reported from Colorado, where CIO, AFL, Railroad unions and the Farmers Union got together for joint action with their Representatives during the recess.

These reports—all showing positive action and all showing the enthusiasm and determination of the workers to make this Congress work for victory and to elect a real win-the-war Congress in 1944—can be duplicated a score of times, showing the same degree of interest in every CIO community in the Nation. As one United Steelworkers local summed it up in reporting:

"We are wholeheartedly behind this move. Unity for the election of progressive, win-the-war candidates, who fully support our Commander-in-Chief, is our aim."

Virginia CIO Holds Parley

Cloverdale, Va., Aug. 14 — The CIO has the grave responsibility of educating the rank and file of workers to the basic principles of unionism if labor is to stand the pressure of the lean days which may come after the war, Kermit Eby, assistant director of the CIO Education and Research Dept., said at a conference of the Virginia CIO Council.

The conference, held at the 18th summer session of the Southern School for Workers now meeting here, was attended by 25 members of CIO unions in various Virginia towns. Ernest B. Pugh, CIO regional director for Virginia and chairman of the State CIO Council, and his assistant Frank Grasso, were among those present at the conference.

CIO Redcaps Knock Out Discrimination Order of RR Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—An important decision concerning the denial to Negroes of their rights under the Railway Labor Act has been issued by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in a case involving the CIO United Transport Service Employes, the AFL Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and the National Mediation Board.

The Circuit Court upheld a recent decision of the U. S. District Court setting aside a ruling of the National Mediation Board which gave the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks authority to bargain collectively for a group of railroad porters despite the fact that they were barred from membership in the Clerks Union because of race and had overwhelmingly selected the CIO Transport Service Employes as their union.

HIT BOARD ORDER

The Circuit Court upheld the decision setting aside the board's "untenable and arbitrary" ruling and ordered the board to certify the CIO union as the bargaining agency for these employes.

In commenting on the decision, President Willard S. Townsend of the Transport Service Employes declared that it "is indicative of the changes taking place in the railroad industry as a result of intelligent organized pressure." He said the decision, more than any other action taken in behalf of Negro railroad workers, struck a decisive blow against those forces trying to eliminate the Negro from the railroad industry.

The decision arose from a suit filed in 1941 by the Transport Service Employes against the St. Paul Union Terminal, the Railway Clerks and the National Mediation Board after the board had arbitrarily certified the Clerks Union without an election, as the collective bargaining agency for the 45 employes of the St. Paul Terminal.

This was done in spite of the repeated protests of the Transport Service Union which had been designated by the employes as their bargaining agency. In starting court proceedings, the union set out to challenge the whole structure and legality of arbitrary agreements made between railroad management and the Brotherhoods coverig many crafts and classes of employment, under which a large number of Negro railroad employes were denied a voice in the operation of the agreements.

"Labor Political Action" is CIO's new pamphlet containing statements of the national committee set up to organize for a real victory Congress now and in 1944. Order from Publicity Dept., CIO, 718 Jackson Pl. NW., Washington 6, D. C.

Milk Trust Plans New Price Hikes

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—(FP)—One of the most expert and ruthless lobbies in Washington is in the midst of a summer campaign to raise the price of milk to consumers 2½ cents a quart, and butter, 17 cents a pound. It is the Natl. Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation.

Never known for his subtlety, Exec. Secy. Charles W. Holman, a protege of Herbert Hoover's who, like Hoover, advocates high prices and no subsidies as the only medicine to increase production, comes right out with his program in the NCMPF's news release of Aug. 11.

He tells how a special board of directors meeting in Chicago, July 17 and 18, outlined the federation's demands for increased prices, and how a committee of the federation met recently with War Food Administrator Marvin Jones. The committee told Jones that "price of 92 score butter at Chicago should be raised to 58.8 cents a pound if incomes of butterfat producers are to approach the income level of hog producers." This would be the wholesale price—now 41.75 cents.

AGAINST SUBSIDIES

The argument that dairy farmers should obtain subsidies to make dairying as attractive as hog-raising leaves Holman and the NCMPF cold. He was one of the most active lobbyists against subsidies in the closing weeks of Congress.

His news release says price increases "would be easily absorbed by the consuming public whose pockets are bulging with unexpendable funds as attested by the increased savings in banks." The increases, he says, "would have a decidedly anti-inflationary effect."

Cooperative Hospital Opens

Mooreland, Okla., Aug. 14—Two thousand farmers, a dozen doctors from neighboring towns, and some State representatives and senators, turned out to witness the recent dedication of the 35-bed Cooperative Community Hospital here. Governor Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma delivered the main address.

Organized by the 600 members of the hospital, the institution is patterned after the four-year-old Cooperative Community Hospital at Elk City, Okla.

Valley Forge, Pa., Aug. 14—Employes at the Magnesia Mfg. Corp. here voted better than 3-to-1 for the United Rubber Workers in a recent NLRB election.

Los Angeles CIO Auxiliaries On Price Checking

By Helen Daggett

Organizer, Los Angeles CIO Auxiliary Council

The price control and roll-back campaign is the main job the Los Angeles CIO Women's Auxiliary Council is concentrating on these days. Our program of activities is worked out in close cooperation with the CIO Council Consumer Service and we are assisting in the work of reaching thousands of CIO families which have not been organized into the auxiliaries.

We have recognized that first of all we had the responsibility of educating our CIO families to know the full meaning and importance of community price ceilings, and of providing them with all the information needed to make it possible for them to check prices and report violations. Our auxiliary monthly bulletin, War News, and the CIO Council Consumer News, a semi-monthly bulletin, have given directions on how to detect a violation and exactly how and where to report it.

The Labor Herald, State CIO newspaper, published the complete list of community ceiling prices (the only paper in this area to publish them). Now we are distributing as rapidly as possible the OPA Market Basket Price Book and our members are carrying this handy booklet in their purses to check prices of the things that they buy every day.

Sign Pledge

Hundreds of our CIO women have signed the housewife pledge: to pay no more than ceiling prices, to buy no rationed goods without giving stamps as required by law, and to report all violations. So far too few complaints have been sent in, although our price-panel members tell us that more and more complaints are coming in to the boards and are receiving attention from the price-panels.

Several weeks ago a group of auxiliary women went on a price-checking tour. We covered 30 stores, checking to see that price-lists were posted where customers could read them, and checking prices on a selected list of items. We found that where there was a price-panel functioning, stores were in compliance to a large extent. Where there was no panel operating, violations were widespread. This knowledge convinced us more than ever that it was essential to get as many of our CIO women as possible to serve as price-panel members or assistants.

At present nearly all auxiliary members who are not working in war plants, and many other CIO women are assisting their local price-panels. They helped on the recent survey of grocery stores made by the price-panels and they will soon be called upon to do a similar survey of restaurants. They are given credentials by the OPA and their checking is recognized by the merchants as an official inspection.

How to Can Your Vitamin C Supply

"Put up as much tomato juice as you can. Be prepared for the coming winter." This is the urgent plea of your government. Every one of us must put up her share—and now is the time to learn how to do it. It's simple enough. Just prepare tomatoes, fill jars, seal and store. No processing is necessary.

Tomatoes will soon be ripe enough for canning. If you have some in your own victory garden—eat them sparingly. You'll be glad to have a supply of Vitamin C on your shelf next winter when citrus fruits may be scarce and expensive.

If you have to buy tomatoes, get them at the wholesale market nearest you. You may have to get there at six or seven in the morning, but the savings in dollars and cents will be your reward. Buy several bushels of tomatoes at the wholesale price. Pick them firm and ripe. When you go shopping at your retail store and check the prices, you'll be glad you didn't buy them by the pound.

Steps in canning tomato juice

1. Use stainless steel knives and no copper, brass or iron pots or pans—to preserve natural flavor and color of tomatoes.
2. Use only fully ripe tomatoes. Don't use any with green, moldy or decayed spots.
3. Wash well. Remove core. Cut into small pieces. Do not peel.
4. Prepare 4 to 8 qts. at a time. Work quickly.
5. Precook tomatoes. Simmer until softened. Do not boil.
6. Put softened, hot tomatoes thru a fine sieve.
7. Add ½ to 1 teaspoon salt to each sterilized quart jar. Omit salt for infants. Don't add spices. It tends to darken the color and change the flavor. Add spices when ready to serve.
8. Reheat juice after putting thru sieve—just to come to a boil.
9. Pour into sterilized jars with salt added and fill to the brim.
10. Wipe rim with damp cloth and seal. No processing is necessary.
11. Turn jars upside down while cooling.

While you're working with tomatoes you might put some up whole—to add to stews or soups—or simply serve as a vegetable.

Tomatoes

1. Use firm ripe tomatoes—free from spots or decay.
2. Spread out in wire basket and dip in boiling water for about 1 minute—according to ripeness.
3. Plunge quickly into cold water, drain, peel and core promptly.
4. Pack tight into sterilized jars.
5. Fill with tomato juice and add 1 tsp. salt per quart.
6. Wipe rim with damp cloth. Seal.
7. Set in hot water bath—on a rack with water 2 inches above the jars. Boil for 45 minutes.
8. Remove and cool away from a draft.

Or, you can cut tomatoes in quarters, heat until boiling hot, and pack hot. Seal and set in hot water bath for five minutes. Remove and cool.

Canning tip

Check the seals of your jars every week or so. If any have come loose, you can process them over again before they become spoiled.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

We wish to correct an error contained in our column in last week's issue of THE CIO NEWS, i.e., we listed E. L. Sandefur as the regional director for New Jersey, whereas he is the regional director for the Carolinas and he is to be congratulated on his fine efforts of organization at the R. J. Reynolds Company.

Robert Oliver, in charge of the Textile Workers in the South, reports the election victory at the Wadesboro Cotton Mills, Wadesboro, N. C., where CIO received 431 votes to 13 for no union.

John J. Maurillo, Reg. Dir. UPN&TWA reports a victory at the J. & J. Rogers Co., Ausable Forks, N. Y., by a vote of 203 to 77 for no union.

Thos. J. Gallagher, Dir. Org. IUM&SWA, reports that an election at Luders, Stamford, Conn. resulted in 614 for CIO to 318 for no union. E. D. Hodson, Reg. Dir. Wilmington, Del., advises that the IUM&SWA was also victorious in the election at the Vinyard Shipyard, Milford, Del., by a three to one vote. There are about 500 workers in this shipyard.

USA WINS

Jos. Germano, district director, USA, and his staff, were victorious in the election at American Manganese Co., Chicago Heights, by a vote of 505 for CIO to 223 for no union.

Harry Haberthear, acting Reg. Dir. Cincinnati, reports that Waldo Stager, UERMWA representative, advises of the NLRB election at Lodge & Shipley Machine Tool Co., Cincinnati which resulted in 397 for CIO to 295 for neither. George Craig, CIO Reg. Dir. Philadelphia, advises that the UERMWA was successful in another election at the H. S. Getty Co., Inc. Philadelphia, by a vote of 70 to 36. Brother Craig also reports that the Textile Workers Union won the election at the Queen City Textile Corp. Allentown, by a vote of 142 for CIO to 126.

Paul R. Christopher, Reg. Dir. Tenn. advises that CIO Representative W. A. Sopeland sends in an election victory at the Muehlstein Rubber Plant in Memphis, where the URWA-CIO won by a vote 59 to 1. F. M. Dickenson is the URWA representative in this area and previously we had lost an election at this plant but we protested because of company interference and the Board ordered a new election. The votes proves that the workers want the CIO.

Ewald Sandner, Reg. Dir. New Jersey, sends in the following election victories: Independent Union of Mack Molding Co., Wayne, N. J., representing 350 workers voted unanimous by for affiliation to the URWA. John Baldante was the Intl. Rep. in charge. Sub-Regional Director Sweeney reports a victory at Montgomery Ward Department Store, Trenton, by a vote of 50 to 20 for no union. Brother Sandner also advises that the employes of Baker & Company's Newark and E. Newark plants, owned by the Englehardt industries, at a mass meeting attended by over 300 voted 4 to 1 to dissolve their Independent Mutal Welfare Assn. and to affiliate with the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, CIO. These two plants employ 900 workers and are engaged in the refining of precious metals. Representing the MMSW was Dave Brown, Intl. Rep.

URWA VICTORIES

L. S. Buckmaster, vice-president and Organizational Dir. URWA, sends in the following election victories: Nebraska Defense Corp. Meade, Neb. (Firestone), production unit, CIO 85.3 per cent to 14.68 per cent for no union; Ehret Magnesia Mfg. Co. Valley Forge, Pa., CIO 125 to 41 for indpendent and 8 for no union, and Scioto Ordinance Plant, Marion, Ohio, (U. S. RUBBER) plant protection firemen, CIO 70 per cent to 10 per cent for the AFL and 20 per cent for no union.

James A. Gaynor, Sec.-Treas., FAECT send in a 30 to 2 victory for the CIO at the Gould Aeronautical Div. of Pratt, Reid & Co., Inc., Deep River, Conn.

Geo. Brown, Asst. Dir. Org. IWA-CIO, advises that they won the election at the Ozen Lumber Co., DeLight, Ark., by a vote of 75 for CIO to 35 for no union.

CIO Tests Alabama Gag Law

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 14—CIO's suit against the anti-labor law passed at the demand of the so-called "Christian-American" group was filed here this week by Eugene Cotton, acting for CIO Attorney Lee Pressman.

The Alabama law is based on the familiar model passed in a number of other states, and includes severe restrictions on labor's normal rights and on the constitutional rights of freedom of speech and assembly.

CIO has also engaged Crampton Harris as local counsel. Harris represented the CIO in the successful court fight to secure portal-to-portal pay for miners won by the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. A similar suit was refused by the United Mine Workers at the time, though later John L. Lewis made much of the issue he had refused to take up.

In other states, notably Colorado and Kansas, the CIO and the AFL have worked together in testing the constitutionality of these anti-labor laws. In Alabama, however, the AFL has hired one Horace Wilkinson as its counsel.

Colorado Backs CIO, FDR, Murray

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 14—Complete and rapid mobilization of the CIO in Colorado for concentrated lobbying activities during the Congressional recess was the main theme of the annual convention of the Colorado Industrial Union Council here last week. In business-like fashion, delegates representing some 22 locals breezed through a two-day convention in complete unanimity on all major issues.

Highpoint of the meeting was the adoption of a resolution calling upon President Roosevelt to seek a fourth term. The action was taken following an address by CIO Vice-President Reid Robinson, who keynoted the gathering with an outline of the tremendous job facing labor and the other win-the-war forces if they hope to send the nation defeatists to the political showers.

Another important action was the unanimous adoption of a resolution favoring incentive wage systems and calling for the circulation of complete information on the subject to all locals.

Unions Ask 2nd Front Seek Equal Pay For Women Workers

LONDON, Aug. 14—(ALN)—Resolutions calling for maximum aid to the workers of Italy through the opening of a second front on the European mainland were passed this week by the Transport and General Workers Union at its tenth biennial convention in Edinburgh, and the National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers, meeting on convention in London. "Only on the mainland of Europe can the enemy be pursued and finally destroyed," the Transport Workers declared.

The TGWU, with one and a quarter million members, is Britain's largest union. The NUTGW has 250,000 members.

EQUAL PAY

On behalf of 300,000 women in war industries, the Transport and General Workers called for the rate-for-the-job for women doing men's work, adequate rates for normal women's work, and establishment of the principle of adult status for women at 18.

A similar resolution calling for equal pay for equal work, proposed by Anne Loughlin, national organizer of the Tailors and Garment Workers and chairman of the British Trades Union Congress, was endorsed by the NUTGW convention.

Addressing the convention of the Transport and General Workers Union, of which he was general secretary before becoming Labor Minister in May, 1940, Ernest Bevin declared that the "international labor movement will play an increasingly important part in world affairs" and that "all governments of the United Nations recognize that the International Labor Office must be used as a great international instrument to carry out the principles of the Atlantic Charter." The unprecedented smoothness of Britain's manpower mobilization, Bevin said, was due to the loyalty and cooperation of the trade unions.

PUSH PRODUCTION

In further resolutions, the transport workers called for "more effective use of shop production committees both now and after the war," public ownership of inland transport immediately after war, Britain's place in post-war transport to be assured by international agreement, immediate legislation for increased old age pensions, a minimum of 12 days' holiday a year with pay, and "full support for the farm workers in their fight to win a four pounds a week ($20) minimum wage."

The Tailors and Garment Workers convention similarly endorsed a demand for joint production committees in all shops, called upon the Trades Union Congress to renew its efforts to secure repeal of the 1927 Trades Disputes Act, and voted for the abolition of the TUC's "black circular"—a directive from the general secretary ordering all affiliates to bar Communists from holding office.

In an address to the NUTGW convention, Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, pledged that post-war planning of Britains economy would be done in consultation with labor and thanked the union for dontaing clothing valued at three million pounds ($15,000,000) to the Aid-to-Russia fund. Both union conventions demanded increased pensions for all disabled members of the armed forces, and immediate increases in servicemen's pay.

Invite US Leaders To So. America

Havana, Aug. 14 (ALN)—At its concluding session, the executive council of the Confederation of Latin American Workers (CTAL) invited U. S. labor leaders to visit Latin America in order to "strengthen cooperation between our two labor movements for the solution of mutual problems."

This action followed a resolution calling for a Pan-American labor conference to include the CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods and Canadian labor organizations. Earlier in the week the CTAL took steps to form a world labor congress and authorized CTAL president Lombardo Toledano to secure affiliation with the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee.

The council voted support of United Nations plans to punish Axis leaders, urged the intercession of Pan-American governments to induce Paraguay to free imprisoned labor and anti-fascist prisoners, and demanded freedom for Luis Carlos Prestes, Brazilian anti-fascist. Unconditional pardon for Pedro Albizu Campos, Puerto Rican nationalist leader recently released from a U. S. penitentiary, was also urged. The delegates further voted to set up committees to propagate the principles of the Atlantic charter in all Latin American countries.

POTOFSKY SPEAKS

Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman of the CIO Latin American Affairs Committee, supported the CTAL proposal for a world labor congress in the name of 5,000,000 CIO members. He reported how his committee had protested to the Argentine Ambassador in Washington when the Ramirez government disbanded the Argentine labor confederation, and how CIO delegations had visited Bolivian President Penaranda and Paraguayan President Morinigo to protest the persecution of labor leaders in their countries.

Ask India Freedom

London, Aug. 14 (ALN)—Two of Britain's most powerful unions, the Transport and General Workers with 1,250,000 members and the National Union of Railwaymen with 400,000 members, this week called upon the British government to grant freedom to India as a means of speeding up the war against Japan.

"We view with concern the present deadlock in India," the railwaymen voted at their annual convention in Carlisle, "and urge the government immediately to open up negotiations with the principal national representatives of India with a view to the establishment of Indian national government."

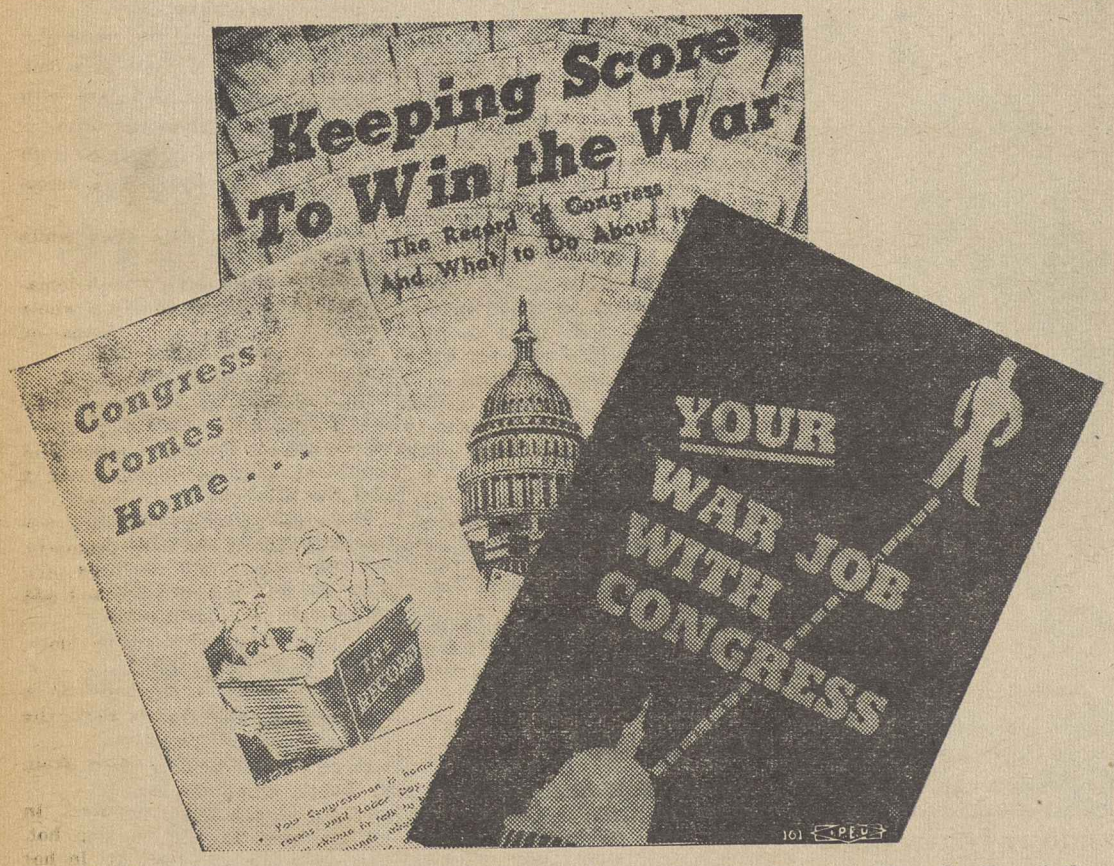
At its biennial convention in Edinburgh, the Transport and General Workers Union resolved: "Being anxious to promote the well-being of the Indian people and assist the realization of their aspirations for self-government, and recognizing that the fullest co-operation of India is essential for the defeat of the Nazis and Japanese, this conference urges upon the government the imperative necessity of taking immediate steps toward resumption of free and friendly discussions with representatives of the Indian people with a view to reaching rapid and satisfactory settlement of all outstanding questions."

Living Cost Down 8-10ths Of One Pct.

Washington, Aug. 14—In case you hadn't noticed the difference in your pocketbook, the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U. S. Labor Dept. says that living costs went down 8/10ths of one percent (.8%) from June 15 to July 15.

Meantime, Chairman William H. Davis of the War Labor Board, in announcing refusal of a wage increase to shipyard workers, made the claim that the stabilization program was operating on everything "except food."

Food is about 40 percent of the cost of living when you get into the workers' income brackets. The lower the income, the greater the percentage of it must go for food.



BASIC: CIO's three basic political pamphlets, "Keeping Score to Win the War," the record of the Congressmen and what to do about it (100 for $4.25, 500 for $18.00, 1,000 for $30.00); "Congress Comes Home" (100 for $1.00, 500 for $4.25, 1,000 for $7.00), and "Your War Job With Congress," which tells how to do work on legislation and how to make Congress swing in line with victory (6c ea., 100 for $4.50, 500 for $15.00) are all designed to help you do effective legislative and political work for victory. Dissent On Award To Transit Company For Discrimination

Washington, Aug. 14—On the basis that a charge accusing the Capital Transit Company here of discriminating against Negroes in its employment policy, should have been investigated, two labor and two public representatives of the War Labor Board dissented from the decision in the case granting certain changes in working conditions which affect wage rates.

The decision involved a joint request by the AFL Amalgamated Assn. of Street, Electric & Motor Coach Employes and the Transit Company for minor changes including vacation pay, and dinner trip payment.

"We believe that action by the Board on the entire matter should have been deferred, as requested by the Fair Employment Practices Committee," the minority of four stated, "pending a determination of the relation between the proposed adjustment and the charge that the Capital Transit Co. is practicing race discrimination in employment."

The dissenting opinion was signed by CIO representatives, John Brophy and Carl J. Shipley, and by public members Frank P. Graham and Wayne L. Morse.

'Victory Without Strike'

New York, Aug. 14—The background and outcome of the controversy between the CIO Transport Workers Union and the New York City Board of Transportation is given in a 32-page pamphlet, "Victory without Strike," published recently by the CIO union.

Written by Douglas L. MacMahon, president of TWU Local 100, the pamphlet tells the story of the TWU's victory on the city's transist system—without a strike.

Victory without Strike, by Douglas L. MacMahon; published by Transport Workers Union. 10 cents.

Ontario Elects CIO Leaders

Toronto, Aug. 14—Demonstrating the value of political action in no uncertain manner, organized labor went to the polls here last week and elected a labor Opposition of 34 Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation and two Labor candidates. Half the CCF candidates elected are trade unionists.

At least three CIO officials are included in those elected, namely, C. H. Millard, national director of USWA, Robert Carlin, Canadian Board member of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers' union who was elected from Sudbury, citadel of International Nickel and Nelson Alles, 28 and youngest member of the Legislature who is a member of UAW-CIO.

CIO SUCCESS

The election resulted in a decisive defeat for the Liberal Government whose premier until a few months ago was Mitch Hepburn who was elected in 1937 to "keep the CIO out." Among seven Cabinet ministers going down to defeat was one who said a year ago that he was in favor of having "all CIO organizers shot at sunrise."

Most of the success of the CCF in the election was attributed to the growing strength of the CIO industrial unions in large centers. Unity of labor in most ridings was credited with the success of the CCF in obtaining 34 seats when they had not previously been represented in the Legislature.

A minority Government will be formed by the Progressive Conservative party which won 39 seats and will be forced to depend on the Liberals with 13 seats for support in the 90-member assembly.

Because of the position of Ontario as the largest province in the Dominion, the election results are viewed with great concern at Ottawa where Dominion labor policies have been under fire since the war began.

CIO Takes Biggest Tobacco Plant Vote

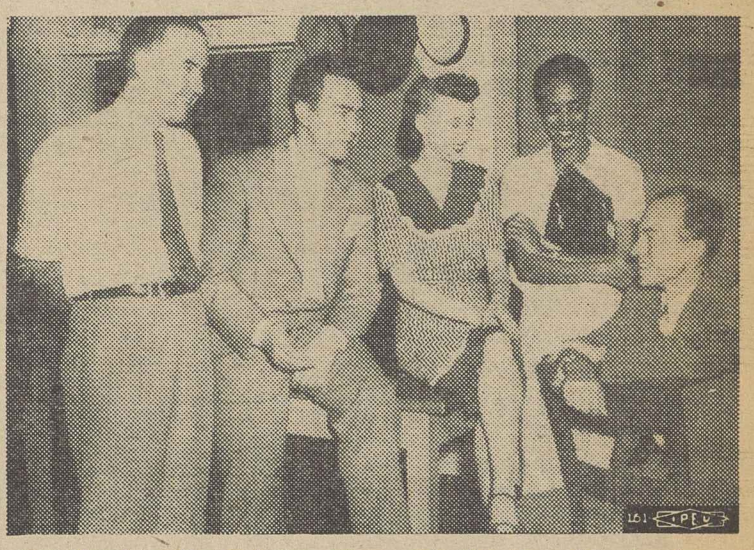
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 7—CIO tobacco workers won a big victory here when the Cannery and Agricultural Workers Union knocked off one big unit of the R. J. Reynolds Company by 3,598 to 236.

The election, held in the largest cigarette plant (Camels) in the world, puts the Cannery and Agricultural Workers out in front in the tobacco industry in this area and for the first time opens a real wedge in the area's anti-CIO front.

Though the vote was lost in a second unit of the plant by 2,829 for CIO to 2,856 for no union, the combined vote in the two was 6,427 for CIO, 3,092 for no union and 135 for the AFL, or better than two to one for CIO. The UCAPAWA is demanding a run-off election.

"It is clear that a new election will have to be held to determine whether the CIO or no union group has a majority in unit two," said Donald Henderson, president of the Cannery and Agricultural Workers.

"Since the workers in the plant as a whole voted two to one for CIO we have no doubt as to the outcome of the election."



THEY OUGHT TO SMILE: Camel cigarette workers and CIO leaders hear the result of the election at R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C. The CIO United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing & Allied Workers won the first bargaining unit by a vote of 3,598 for the CIO to 236 for no union and 20 for AFL. Left to right are E. L. Sandefur, CIO regional director; Harold J. Lane, UCAPAWA secretary-treasurer; Etta Hobson and Theodosia Simpson, both CIO Reynolds workers; and Donald Henderson, national union president.

How To Write For The Union

Washington, Aug. 14—Helpful information on how to write for union papers is given in two pamphlets recently published by CIO national unions. A 32-page illustrated booklet called "How to Write for Your Union Paper," written by Morris Watson, editor of the ILWU Dispatcher, official organ of the Intl. Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union gives valuable hints on the whole subject of news writing.

Beginning with an explanation of how news is created, what constitutes news value, and how to organize the facts and write the copy, Watson continues with some advice on the writing of feature stories and the use of pictures.

The other publication, issued by the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, called "Your Union is News" is a 4-page guide for the use of local publicity committees. It gives some suggestions on union publicity problems and some general rules to help a local reporter write up stories of union activities.

Those wishing to obtain copies of these pamphlets should write to the unions publishing them. They are:

Defeat '50'

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14—The CIO United Gas, Coke & Chemical defeated two independent unions District 50, United Mine Workers, and the Mechanics Educational Society of America at a Labor Board election held among workers at the big Parke-Davis plant here.

The vote was 920 for the CIO union; 212 for the MEBA and 129 for District 50.

Soldier Blasts Smith-Connally

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 14—Passage of the Smith-Connally law "was practically a punch in the mouth to the men in the Armed Forces here," writes Albert Zankl, a member of the Chevrolet local of the United Automobile Workers, who is now a soldier. He was "somewhere in North Africa" when the letter was written.

The letter which was received by Hugh Thompson, CIO regional director here, condemns the recently passed anti-labor law for putting "shackles on labor."

"Trade unionists here in North Africa," Zankl writes, "realize from the reading of the act that labor has its back to the wall. Therefore, we are depending on the men on the home front to fight to their utmost to maintain labor's gains in the past."

CIO On the Air

San Francisco, Aug. 7—CIO is back on the air again with a 15 minute program five days a week from 6:45 to 7:00 p. m. over station KYA.

The program, called "CIO Reporter" presents win-the-war facts with emphasis on political action, legislation, price control, support of President Roosevelt and CIO President Murray, national unity and the like.

The program was on several years ago, but was jerked when the then station owners got nervous fits over the fact that something labor said might be "controversial."

USA-CIO Wins

Cleveland, Aug. 14—The United Steelworkers of America recently won an election held by the National Labor Relations Board among workers of the Feick Manufacturing Co. here. The vote was 102 for the USA to 38 for no union. Negotiations are now under way for a contract expected to be signed soon, according to William F. Donovan, district director for the union.

The Feick Co. is engaged in war work, manufacturing oil separators and other airplane parts.

CIO Pledges Full Backing for 3rd War Loan Drive

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—All CIO members were asked to throw their full support behind the Treasury Department's 3rd War Loan Drive in a letter from President Murray released today. The letter said in part:

"There are very few of us who do not have sons or brothers or other close relations in the fighting forces. We know that in our great offensives in Tunisia, in Sicily, in the South Pacific, remarkable victories have been won.

"Expert observers returning straight from these battles tell us that thousands of lives are saved by the fact that our boys have the best equipment—and plenty of it. Fine workmanship, steady output and delivery of supplies where they are needed—all these things are being contributed by organized labor to help save the lives of our boys on the fighting fronts.

" 'We make the weapons and we help to pay for them' is a statement which American workers are proud to make. The war can only be won by invasion, and invasion is more expensive than defense. Therefore we must buy more War Bonds to help meet the increasing cost of our successful effort.

"Please urge all your members to increase their payroll savings allotments, and to buy additional bonds in the Third War Loan Drive in September. Every local union should have a War Bond Committee. We would appreciate being advised as to what your organization is doing along these lines."

Thomas Urges CIO Housing Representation

Washington, Aug. 21—CIO Industrial Union Councils and other CIO affiliates were urged this week not only to see that they are represented on advisory committees of U. S. War Housing Centers but also to make sure that their representatives do not sit on their hands.

The recommendation for action came from R. J. Thomas, secretary of CIO's Committee on Housing, who pointed out that the centers deal with problems vital to workers, such as conversion of dwellings for war plant employes, with finding housing, and with determination of eligibility for housing.

"There is danger," Thomas warned, "that other groups, such as Chambers of Commerce and real estate boards, have been taking an active hand while CIO labor has not been making its weight felt effectively."

TOUGH is what Uncle Sam's soldiers must be to take the pounding of war against the Axis—113 CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhood representatives swore to that this week as they rubbed scraped shins and strained muscles after a visit to Army camps throughout the country. Sample of what they went through in getting a taste of soldiering is shown above, at Fort Meade, Maryland. A blast of dynamite was the signal to start toward an obstacle course where union leaders had to crawl and creep under barbed wire and hurdle ditches in a simulated attack against the enemy. Women unionists assigned to WAC guides went through just as tough a day as did the men.

Murray Says:

Labor, Industry Must Cooperate to Win War, Peace

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 21—Cooperation of labor and industry to win the war and to solve problems of post war adjustment is an absolute necessity, President Philip Murray told an audience of workers and businessmen in a rally here.

"The labor movement is endeavoring as best it can to develop a better kind of relationship between the leaders of industry and of labor," Murray asserted.

"This spirit forebodes good things for our country in the years to come," the CIO chief said.

He pictured a new and improved system of collective bargaining at the war's end, saying, "The joint co-operation of labor and industry in the end will solve America's problems.

"The pushing and mauling and kicking around of each other is over. It is going to be a meeting of the minds, discussions over the council table and peaceful settlement of many aggravating situations that will grow out of the war."

He said that the CIO originated the idea of joint labor-management industry committees at the time England became involved in the war, but that industrial leaders would not listen to the plan. Murray said it finally was accepted by the War Production Board chief, Donald M. Nelson, and put into operation.

He deplored the lack of such committees in all plants of the nation, contending the idea could not grow without widespread cooperation. He contended it was this system which brought about increased production of war goods.

"There are dangers, if the thinking people of industry and labor evidence no desire to put their shoulders to the wheel," Murray asserted.

Nelson Hails Steel Workers' Victory Production Record

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—The Chief of U. S. War Production had high praise this week for the United Steelworkers of America.

Chairman Donald Nelson of the War Production Board announced that he had sent messages to Pres. Philip Murray of USA and CIO and to Henry A. Roermer, president of the Sharon Steel Corp. of Sharon, Pa., congratulating both labor and management on their splendid cooperation in achieving a new production record last month. Nelson said:

"This record was achieved in spite of hot summer weather which ordinarily is a deterrent to increasing production.

"The cooperation of the management, the employe and the United Steelworkers of America, in the Steel for Victory Drive designed by the War Production Board to increase steel production, is a mighty contribution to the war effort, and I want both the management and the employes to know how sincerely the War Production Board appreciates their splendid work in helping to win the war."

CIO Board Meets Sept. 1

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—The CIO Executive Board will meet at CIO headquarters here on Wednesday, September 1, President Murray announced in a notice to CIO national and international unions this week.

Last meeting of the Board was on July 7, at which the principal action taken was the setting up of the two CIO political committees—one to organize work on the Congressmen during the summer Congressional recess and the other, headed by Sidney Hillman, to mobilize broad political support for win-the-war candidates during the 1944 election.

Oil Workers Pledge Output Hike, Back FDR

FORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 21—The 14th anual convention of the Oil Workers Intl. Union concluded this week with the firm determination, expressed by over 150 delegates, to return to their jobs in the oil fields and refineries, and speed up the production of oil, gasoline and other petroleum products in order to win the war against Fascism.

After listening to addresses by various speakers, including CIO Vice-Pres. and Director of Organization Allen S. Haywood, and R. J. Thomas, vice-president of the CIO and president of the United Auto Workers, the convention launched into the consideration of its organizational problems.

All-out support was pledged to our Commander-in-Chief, President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The no-strike pledge of the union was reiterated.

An important resolution urging the War Manpower Commission to take steps toward obtaining war employment for Negro women in Port Arthur, Tex., was unanimously adopted.

The convention delegates unanimously called upon the administration to enforce dollars and cents price ceilings and roll back prices to the level of September 15, 1942. A resolution condemning the Smith-Connally Act and calling for its repeal was unanimously adopted.

HAYWOOD'S WARNING

Haywood, who was accorded a hearty welcome, pointed out the dangers, not only to the trade union movement but to the common people generally, inherent in the Fascist way of life. "If Naziism wins, there will be no trade union movement," asserted Haywood. "Workers will be slaves to the state."

Haywood blasted the defeatists at home, stating that, "So far as Smith of Virginia is concerned and his statement that liberty was born in Virginia, liberty stayed in the cradle of Virginia and never came out."

Haywood stated that the Smith-Connally Act "is the most dangerous piece of legislation passed during the war."

HITS BIDDLE RULING

Biddle interpreted the law to allow a minority in a plant to apply for a strike vote," Haywood said. "If a vote is taken in favor of strikes, we destroy labor's no-strike pledge—we have legalized strikes. Saboteurs can use the law to hurt production of vital war materials in America. This law is the best way to destroy labor and create chaos."

Haywood urged the Oil Workers "to organize and fight for the repeal of this dangerous piece of legislation."

He concluded with the enunciation of three major points:

"1. We demand that dependents of our soldiers shall not starve. They must receive a decent subsistence allotment.

"2. Every soldier should have the right to return to his job, if he wants it, with full seniority.

"3. Injured and disabled soldiers should have proper care for life, and a program of rehabilitation should be adopted.

"We will be satisfied to conclude the war with nothing less than the Casablanca terms of unconditional surrender, with Hitler, Mussolini, and Hirohito down on their knees," he said, and added, "with regard to our splendid Commander-in-Chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt, labor is going to back Roosevelt for a fourth term."

The delegates named a slate of officers to be submitted to the membership for a referendum vote, including: President, incumbent O. A. Knight, and Ben Shafer, Lawrenceville, Ill.; secretary-treasurer, incumbent E. C. Conarty; first vice president, incumbent Sam Beers and W. W. Allen, Long Beach, Calif.; second vice president, incumbent A. R. Kinst-

Registration To Vote Made Easy

Detroit, Aug. 21—This city's hundreds of thousands of auto workers, organized in the UAW-CIO, will have their problem of registering to vote made just about as easy for them as it can be—and no excuses will be accepted if they fail to do it.

Under an arrangement worked out by the UAW Legislative and Educational departments, the city will authorize local union people to set up registration booths in the union halls, and will deputize them to do the registering under the eye of the City Clerk's office.

In a letter sent out by Richard T. Frankensteen, head of the Legislative department, and Wm. H. Levitt, head of Education, local members were bluntly told:

"In the 1942 elections, only 25 percent of the eligible voters in Detroit voted. This disgraceful performance, repeated all over the country, has cost us dearly. We cannot afford to let the same thing happen again. If we fail to vote, we may soon find we can't vote."

How Dutch Workers Struck at Nazi Terror

By WELLINGTON ROE

(This is the second and final installment of a story telling how workers in Nazi-occupied Holland struck back at their German conquerors. This installment deals with a strike called by the Dutch underground after the Nazi military dictator decreed that all former members of the Dutch Home Army must be sent back to war-prison camps.)

All officials except those belonging to the Dutch Nazi party joined the strike and even the Nazis were driven from their offices a few hours later. At factories and shops, the few Dutch Nazis who came to work were driven off with whips and threatened wtih knives.

Toward evening of April 29th German police contingents began to arrive, particularly in industrial areas, in an effort to break the strike. The next day, when work was not resumed, the Nazi "polizeistandrecht" was proclaimed and the Nazi authorities began to arrest persons they considered responsible for the strike; some were kept as hostages.

By this time, it was reported, Dutch streets were almost deserted. The curfew, beginning at 8 and lasting until 6, was strictly enforced. Groups of more than five were forbidden to gather in the streets.

NAZI REPRISALS

It was forbidden, too, to stand in front of an open window during curfew hours. There were reports of German police firing on those seen looking out of closed windows. German police trucks, ranging the street, often stopped to fire their machine-gun indiscriminately.

Police tribunals composed of German military and police officials were set up throughout the Netherlands and condemned hundreds of Dutchmen in every city, and usually four to six in a village. In most cases the death penalty was inflicted.

The executions following the sentencing took place in some cases outside the Dutch cities, but in others were held in public squares with the public forced to look on. One father of five children was struck down by the Germans because he dared to cry, "stop."

Bodies of those executed were allowed to remain where they fell for a time in some places, and the sidewalks at many points were stained with blood for days.

In Hengelo, practically all activity ceased. When, in one large factory, the personnel attempted to leave the buildings, the German security police ordered continuation of work under threats to shoot down everybody attempting to leave the factory grounds. Nevertheless, all the workers marched out. None were shot.

CIVIL SERVANTS TOO

The strike extended to many administrative departments and services when civil servants joined in the demonstrations. Among these were employes of the Department of Trade, Industry and Fisheries, State Traffic Control, the Central State Bureaus for Vegetables and Fruit, for Flour, Dairy Produce and for Chemicals.

Many of the strikes lasted four or five days. The Nazis butchered thousands in their attempts to break the resistance, but it was not until Dutchmen known by the workers to be patriotic advised that the strike be ended, that work was resumed.

Even then there were islands of resistance such as in a mill in the textile district of Twente where the Germans hung three young girls in the spinning-mill yard and left their bodies hanging for a week as "an example" to others.

But the Dutch knew they had been through a dress-rehearsal for invasion—and that they had shown a remarkable solidarity. Their union unity had endured the most severe test in modern history; they are ready for "the day."

CIO Political Drive Takes Firm Hold In 'Grass Roots'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—CIO political action—out in the grass roots country where it counts—continues to roll along toward the objective of making the Congressmen from every state and every district realize that America's working men and women mean business when they demand a real victory Congress.

Reports from the field to George F. Addes, chairman of the special CIO committee set up to mobilize the people during the current Congressional recess, show this, as well as the nationwide response to the work of the CIO Political Action Committee set up under the chairmanship of Sidney Hillman.

Conducting the third of a series of regional conferences, the Political Action Committee was scheduled to meet this week in Birmingham, Ala., where representatives of thousands of war workers from CIO unions were called to a meeting to lay out plans for action in the deep South.

Detailed reports sent to Addes, who was appointed by Pres. Murray to head the recess action committee following the decision of the CIO Executive Board early last month, show that CIO members are taking their job of working on the Congressmen seriously, and are succeeding in mobilizing not only their fellow CIO members but large groups of AFL, Railroad Brotherhood, women's auxiliaries, farm and church groups as well.

TYPICAL EXAMPLES

Here are a few typical examples, culled from many hundreds of reports from internationals, districts, state and city Councils and local CIO unions, that show how the whole idea of political mobilization behind the win-the-war policies of Philip Murray, the CIO and President Roosevelt is taking root.

In Cedar Rapids, Ia., the three main organized labor groups—CIO, AFL, and Brotherhoods—met in joint conference to go over the record of their Congressman, Rep. Talle. The lesson of the meeting was summed up in the report, which said: "The general summary was that workers must go to the polls and exercise their democratic rights intelligently by electing candidates that have the welfare of the nation at heart. If we fail, apple vending on every corner is certain to make its appearance when peace returns."

In Indiana, the CIO Political Action Committee, set up to "cooperate with all other labor and progressive groups in organizing win-the-war action in local, state and county elections" is raising money to put real teeth in the election campaign.

OHIO REPORTS

From Ohio, a state Council leaflet issued by Jack Kroll, IUC president, declares: "It is no secret that Congressional Copperheads have launched only their first attack on labor in the form of the Smith-Connally bill." The leaflet quotes from a CIO Labor for Victory radio program song by Langston Hughes to clinch the point of political action — "Let's Hammer It Out Together."

The Michigan CIO state Council tells its members, in describing the job of the state action committee: "It will be their job to convince citizens outside the labor movement that the program we advocate is designed for all the people, and not for union members alone. They will cooperate with all other labor groups, farm groups, church groups, etc."

In a message to all Rubber Workers affiliates, URWA Secretary-Treasurer Charles E. Lanning reminds the members: "Apparently our laxity at the polls last November has taught us a lesson. Not one laboring man or any of his family or friends must stay away from the polls in the coming election."

Iowa-Nebraska reports good working unity with AFL and rail unions, with a committee set up for action and already provided with a constitution. In Ohio, register-to-vote drives have reached every CIO local in the state. In California, an elaborate campaign of leaflets, labor press publicity, and daily reporting through CIO papers and radio programs continues to roll up mobilization of the CIO war workers, plus a successful drive for a $1.00 assessment on each member.

New York's Transport Workers Union reports mobilization of members through the CIO sponsored Community Councils, and adds support for the proposals of Sidney Hillman and the CIO for broadening the base of the American Labor Party to include all trade union and progressive groups in the city and state.

Boston's CIO Council has taken Boston Common, some of America's earliest struggles for democracy, for a Labor Day political action rally. Congressmen have been invited—and according to the Boston report—will appear.

Womens organizations in Connecticut, where war industries are highly concentrated and where the state Congressional delegation's record is not too good, have "expressed their desire to join with labor for a better win-the-war Congress when it reconvenes."

SOUR NOTES

Some sour notes are bound to occur, as the Los Angeles CIO found in calling on Rep. Ward Johnson, who "is not only proud of voting against labor 18 out of 19 times, but has expressed himself in favor of a Federal sales tax."

A more positive note comes in the report on Congressman Thomas J. Lane of Massachusetts, who "pledged his continued support to labor and to the win-the-war policies of Pres. Roosevelt and asked that union members communicate their views more often to him," and who alibied for bad votes on farm incentive payments and crop insurances on the ground that he had not heard from the unions.

YOU BETCHA: That was the comment this week from scores of New Yorkers who welcomed the opportunity to get loads off their chests via letters to Congressmen. Providing the mechanism for doing just that were pretty assistants from the Screen Office & Professional Employes Guild, who take dictation in a "Tell-It-To-Your-Congressman" campaign that is being pushed by this and other UOPWA affiliates in cities throughout the nation.

CIO Urges

Ban on Sales Tax, High Levies on War Profits

See Text, Page 10

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Taxes are "a basic part of total mobilization for total war" and must be made to work for victory, CIO President Philip Murray said this week in urging all CIO members to get busy on their Congressmen for a win-the-war tax program to correct the blunders and losses of Congress tax finagling earlier this session.

Murray's call for action on taxes, not only while Congressmen are at home on recess but also when they reconvene in September, was coupled with a warning that a "selfish minority" was laying plans for a drive to put over the sales tax and other new burdens on the low-income groups.

Naming Senator George (poll-taxer, Ga.) and Representative Disney (D., Okla.) as mainsprings of the drive for the sales tax as opposed to "any increased taxes for personal high incomes or any increase in corporate taxes," Murray declared:

HITS PHONEY PROPAGANDA

"Their propaganda is to the effect that the low-income groups have an excess purchasing power which is supposedly adding to the dangers of inflation. This drive seeks to levy a national wage cut directed primarily against the low-income groups.

"The issue before us is whether we are going to permit a national wage cut to be imposed. Any such result would be a direct blow against the war effort."

Outlining a tax program that would avoid this setback to the war and would keep up the "health and productivity of the civilian population as demanded by President Roosevelt," Murray said that no tax program must be allowed to cut into the income of the $30-a-week married couple "whose income is barely enough to enable them to purchase their equitable share of our civilian production."

To secure a real win-the-war tax program from Congress this year, Murray called for:

1. Income tax exemptions of $800 for single persons, $1,500 for married persons, and $400 for dependents.

2. No sales taxes, on the ground that they "cut into the food and clothing budgets of war workers and impair the health and working efficiency of workers by preventing them from acquiring their minimum share of the limited supply of available goods."

3. Repeal of the Victory Tax of five per cent.

4. Increased rates in income tax levels starting at $3,000 "and increasing rapidly and progressively after $5,000," and scaled to hold net income after taxes to $25,000 a year.

5. Abolition of all special privileges, such as tax-free bonds, separate returns by husband and wife, depletion deductions for oil and mining companies.

6. An increase in corporate profit tax rates to 55 per cent, plus a 100 per cent rate on excess profits over five per cent of a $10,000,000 capital.

7. Increased rates and lowered exemptions on gift and estate taxes.

8. An "equitable Social Security tax adjustment" to provide for expanded social security as proposed in the amendments to the act sponsored by Senators Wagner and Murray and by Representative Dingell.

He called on all CIO members to use the remaining weeks of the Congressional recess to rally support for "a real win-the-war tax bill" from the Congressmen, to continue the campaign after the recess is over, and to urge a similar program on President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau.

5-20c An Hour Raises

Washington, Aug. 21—An arbitrator's award providing for increases ranging from 5c to 20c an hour for workers at the Los Angeles, Calif., plant of the Fruehauf Trailer Co. was unanimously approved by the National War Labor Board this week. All the approved increases are retroactive to November 1, 1942.

The approximately 500 workers in the plant are represented by the United Automobile Workers, CIO.

War and Taxes

The circular letter of President Murray calling for a real win-the-war tax program and urging all CIO members to get busy on their Congressmen comes as a welcome flash of light through a smoke screen of special interest propaganda thrown around the issue.

Within recent weeks, this smoke screen has been getting denser and denser. From the National Association of Manufacturers, from Senator Taft—one of their frankest spokesmen—have come blunt demands for a general sales tax on everything the workers and the rest of the plain people buy.

From Senator George of polltax Georgia and Representative Disney of Oklahoma come slightly less bald confessions of what they are after. Senator George adopts the line of heartfelt sympathy for the middle income groups and a slightly veiled hint that any new taxes must be taken out of the lowest income ranks—apparently on the ground that there are so many of them.

Senator Taft's latest contribution to the welfare of the nation and to the nation's war was a last-ditch fight to halt subsidies to roll back the cost of living. Senator George is remembered for his leading part in the fight to put over the Ruml plan—a fight that was three-quarters successful. Representative Disney was distinguished by his successful campaign in Congress to knock out the limit of $25,000 on annual incomes after all taxes are paid.

These men, and others like them both in Congress and outside it, are directly responsible for the serious threat to living standards and to war production that is now posed by the drive for the sales tax and for other new burdens on the war workers and the rest of the low income people of the country.

Their solicitude for the wealthy in the matter of the Ruml tax forgiveness plum, in going light on excess war profits, and in leaving loopholes for evasion of taxes leads directly to the big push for soaking the poor. After all, the deficit created by these acts of charity to big money must be made up—and, in the thinking of those responsible for the hand-outs, what better way than by hitting the wage earner, the farmer, the small income man and his wife and his family?

The program of the CIO calls for a sharp reversal of this dangerous trend, not alone as an act of justice but as a very necessary step toward making taxes "a basic part of total mobilization for total war."

To do this, the new tax bill must relieve the already heavy burden on the low income groups by repealing the mis-named "Victory Tax." It must increase exemptions in the lower income tax groups a sufficient amount of food and other necessities for health and full efficiency on the war job.

Needed revenue must be secured by increasing taxes on profits, by taxing big income down to $25,000, by increasing rates on the levels starting at $3,000 and increasing sharply above $5,000.

This is the way to make taxes work for victory, as every part of our national economy must work. The program of the CIO proposes these steps as the answer to the drive for the sales tax and as the means of clearing away the smoke screen of lies about excess income coming to workers.

President Murray has issued a strong warning to all CIO members to get active on the tax issue at once. The warning must be taken up and acted on. Failure to do so means new burdens, means new blocks placed in the way of all-out mobilization for all-out war and victory.

For Speedy Victory

Everybody wants the war over as quickly as possible—and every patriot wants the war to end in the total defeat and unconditional surrender of the Axis.

The CIO is dedicated to this single end above everything else. Every program it puts forth and every action it undertakes is aimed toward the final offensive and the early return of our men from the fighting fronts.

CIO's tremendous production drive in all the basic war industries of the nation is aimed at this target.

CIO's political action campaign to make Congress a true victory arm of the nation is aimed at this target.

CIO's drive for repeal of the polltax, for repeal of the Smith-Connally bill, for a fair and adequate tax program, for price control and the rollback, for real social security, for a united nation behind the Commander-in-Chief are all essential parts of the nation's desire for the speediest possible total victory in this total war.

The men and women of the CIO have no illusions that the struggle is almost over. They are not guilty of over-confidence, any more than our military leaders and our responsible political leaders think that the job is simply one of coasting from here on.

That is why the CIO, its leaders and its millions of members—their families and the people they live among and influence—are putting everything in their power into carrying on and increasing the fight for the survival of our nation and its liberties.

And to just the extent that this mighty power is poured into the tasks of war, so shall we shorten

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

In the absence of Len De Caux, the CIO NEWS this weeks reprints a speech broadcast by Legislative Director Nathan Cowan on a recent CIO Labor for Victory radio program, dealing with the record of Congress. Cowan's talk follows:

Labor has been shocked into greatly increased legislative and political activity by the record of the last session of Congress.

Despite the efforts of a splendid minority of progressive and win-the-war Congressmen, all too much time was devoted to administration-baiting, labor-baiting and politics-as-usual, and many actions were taken up which can only weaken our home front, divide our national unity and retard our war effort.

For instance, Congress actually pushed up the high cost of living and hampered price control by cutting OPA funds; by forbidding grade labelling; by voting to turn over OPA administration to interested businessmen; and by fighting the President's program for rolling back living costs through food price subsidies.

Then Congress prepared the way for making folks with low incomes pay more than their fair share of increased taxation, by forgiving millions to wealthy taxpayers through the 75% Ruml plan; by turning down the President's idea of limiting individual incomes to $67,000, or $25,000 after taxes. And a drive for a sales tax is now under way to make up for the failure of Congress to tax war profits and surplus wealth sufficiently.

Then again,instead of promoting national unity behind our Commander-in-Chief, Congress set up one committee after another to snipe at, play politics with, and hamper various administrative agencies.

You have heard on this program something about the campaign to influence members of Congress during the present recess. It is being pushed by a Special CIO Committee on Congressional Action, headed by George Addes of the United Automobile Workers.

Then the CIO has also set up a Committee on Political Action, headed by Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, to plan united labor political action for the coming elections and to prepare the groundwork for a united labor political league.

I want to stress three points about all this activity.

In the first place, it is in no sense an exclusively labor campaign. Rather it is an attempt to unite all labor with farmer, consumer, business and all other groups for purposes to which all patriotic Americans should subscribe.

Secondly, no third party intentions are involved. On the contrary, the CIO opposes a third party at this time as tending to divide the labor and win-the-war forces.

And finally, the main and immediate purpose of all this activity is to aid the cause of speedy and total victory, by mobilizing united national support behind the win-the-war policies, both domestic and foreign, of our Commander-in-Chief, President Roosevelt.

We urge all our listeners, whether labor or non-labor, to join with us in encouraging and supporting those members of Congress who have really fought to strengthen the home front; to let those with bad records know they will forfeit popular support unless they do better in the next session; and generally to join with labor in every kind of legislative and political activity that will help to give us a real victory Congress.

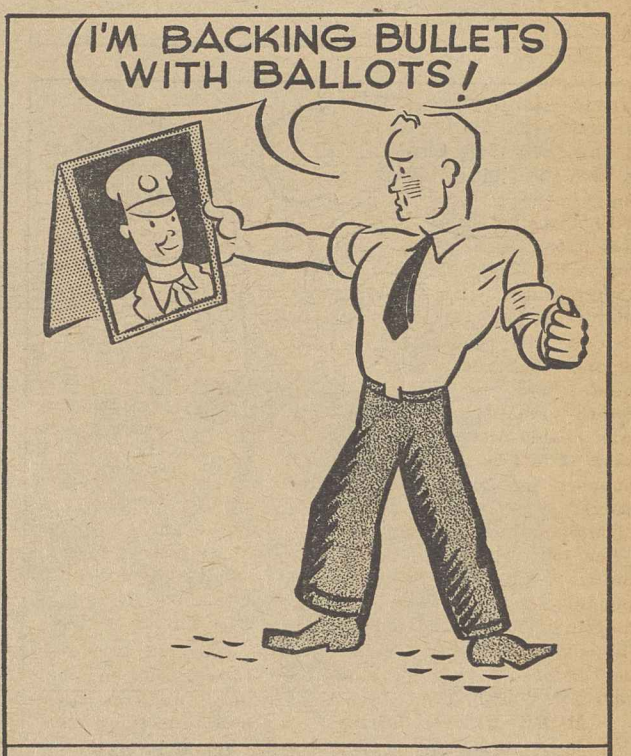
REMEMBER YOUR POLITICAL WORK IS REAL WAR WORK



FOR SPEEDY AND TOTAL VICTORY!

That's the Story, Joe Warworker; What Are You Doing About It?

That's the story—how Joe Warworker and his wife learned the need for action on the home front to back up action on the fighting fronts.

It's a story that is being learned by millions of American people, as they get together with their neighbors, their shopmates, their fellow-workers and everybody in their community, dedicated to the winning of the war and winning a just peace for the people of all the world.

The job you have to do, as a war worker, as an American, as a plain citizen who wants to see democracy and freedom live, is a simple one.

It is a job of political action. Political action is as simple and easy as getting together with your shopmates and your neighbors on any problem that bothers you or your community. You only have to do these things:

1) Know your Congressman's record—how he voted and how he acted on issues that affect you and your living standards and the job you do on the home front.

2) Get to know your Congressman, let him get to know you. After all, you send him to Washington to represent you and your interests—and the interests of your Joe Jr. who's fighting your war in Europe and in the Pacific.

3) Tell your Congressman what's on your mind and what's on your neighbor's mind—tell him what YOU, the voter, want done to keep democracy alive by winning the war in the shortest possible time.

4) Tell him that attacks on labor, raids on the family food budget, sniping at the Commander-in-Chief, will never win the war or satisfy you as a voter. Tell him that his job is to help build national unity against Naziism and to make Congress a real victory arm of the United States of America.

5) Above all, while you're doing this, get out and REGISTER TO VOTE—that's your No. 1 Job to guarantee a real Victory Congress in 1944.

The CIO is all out on the political road to victory. Everywhere in the nation CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods, Auxiliaries, farmers, church groups, professional and business people are organizing on the home front to back the attack that will win the war for freedom on the fighting front.

Every CIO union in the U. S. A. is taking part in the political action drive. This victory drive is just as much a part of your war job as making tanks and planes, as growing food or carrying the goods of war to the front.

Your sons or your brothers or your husbands in the armed forces EXPECT you to do this job. If you do it now, and do it right—you will speed the unconditional surrender of the Hitler-Tojo Axis and bring your Joe Jr. back to you.

What about it—Joe Warworker?

Keep the Score For '43 As Well As '44!

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

It's time to take stock. Congress reconvenes on September 14. How much have we done to see to it that our representatives come back to Washington convinced that the people want an all-out win-the-war program?

The Los Angeles CIO Auxiliary Council has done a lot. Before September 14 at least one auxiliary delegation will have called on every Los Angeles representative. They've already seen Jerry Voorhis and Ward Johnson and they've reported to the public on their interviews on the CIO radio program, "Our Daily Bread."

In Hopkins, Minn., UE Auxiliary 1138, arranged a joint meeting with their local at which Congressman Gale spoke. He didn't get very far in trying to defend his position in voting against subsidies, against adequate funds for OPA, and for Smith-Connally. The discussion was heated and at the end Gale said, "I feel as though you won't support me in my next campaign."

NMU auxiliaries have been doing a fine job. In New York, in addition to participating in delegations, they're circulating a petition to Congressmen in the neighborhoods. The signatures will be presented just before their representatives leave for Washington.

MORE DELEGATIONS

In Baltimore and San Pedro committees are arranging delegations to Congressmen. The Boston auxiliary has set up a special committee to see Senator Lodge. The main thing they'll talk about is the importance of rushing through the anti-poll tax bill. They want him to urge the Senate Judiciary Committee to report the bill as soon as Congress convenes and to vote for "cloture," the rule to close debate to prevent a filibuster.

All over the country auxiliary members are going with their unions to see their representatives. It's important for them to be there. Congressmen know that women's votes will determine 1944 elections in many places.

Our job is to convince Congressmen that women want price control, want roll-back subsidies, want a tax bill based on ability to pay, and that they'll vote for it. This is the most important thing we can do this summer to speed victory.

REGISTER TO VOTE!

Remember, one delegation won't do the job. We've got to hammer our message home. Send members your Congressman's home address and phone number. Urge them to write and telephone.

One way to prove our point is to get our members registered now and urge them to vote in local elections this November. Find out voting laws from your County Election Board and let all your members know.

A public register-to-vote campaign in union homes and a real turnout this November will add weight to your words to Congressmen. They'll take what you say now more seriously if they're convinced you'll say it with ballots in 1944.

Pep Up Meals With Pickles and Relishes

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

Cold sliced watermelon—a treat for anyone when the temperature is soaring! And spiced watermelon rind when the watermelon is nothing but an empty shell—you can have both treats and glory in the thought that you've made every bit of that watermelon count.

Here is the recipe I followed and found the results to be good.

SPICED WATERMELON RIND

1. Remove hard outer skin and red tissue leaving only firm white rind. Cut this in half-inch or larger cubes.

2. Soak overnight in salt water. (Three tablespoons to a quart.) Be sure that the water covers all of the rind.

3. Pour off brine next morning.

4. Cover with fresh water and cook till tender.

5. Make hot syrup of:
   - 2 cups vinegar
   - 2 cups sugar
   - 2 cups water
   - 1 lemon thinly sliced
   - 1 tablespoon cinnamon
   - 1 teaspoon allspice
   - 1 teaspoon cloves

6. Bring syrup to a rolling boil. Add cooked watermelon and boil vigorously till rind becomes glazed.

7. Pack hot in sterilized jars (glass tops preferred), cover with hot syrup.

8. Seal and cool away from a draught.

POINTERS ON PICKLES

Dill pickles, sour or sweet pickles — gherkins or mixed — all start out the same way. The cucumber must first soak in a brine of salt and water.

Brining changes pale green vegetables to olive green. Whitish parts of pickles are underdone. In soft water.

QUICK BRINING

1. Wash and sort according to size.

2. Place in 5 per cent brine for 24 hours. (cup salt to 10 cups water.)

3. Drain and prepare according to your favorite recipe.

Here is one recipe you might add to your list.

MIXED PICKLES

Roll salted drained pickles on cloth to dry off moisture. Pack in jars and cover with hot spiced vinegar—made of 1 quart vinegar, 2 tablespoons mixed pickle spices boiled for 5 minutes.

For sweet pickles add one-third to 1 cup granulated sugar to quart of spiced vinegar. Seal and place in hot water bath. Boil pints for 15 minutes; quarts for 20 minutes. Be sure the jars are covered with 2 inches of water, and are set on a rack, raised ½-inch from the bottom of the water bath.

Governor Blasts Disunity

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 21—A new and refreshing note on the "outside agitator" angle was furnished this week by Arizona's Governor Osborn in a speech before the Lions' Club here this week.

In the speech, Governor Osborn went after the hide of a visiting union baiter named Carney who had made the standard anti-labor speech blaming the workers for alleged losses in war production and saying that the war was being won "50 per cent by industry and 50 per cent by the armed forces," leaving out any mention of the war workers and the farmers on the production job.

"I don't object to political speeches, but I do object to unfairness and speeches which spread disunity, with their real purposes hidden under the guise of patriotism," the Governor said.

Governor Osborn recently met with CIO, AFL and Railroad unions in the state to form a Victory Committee which cooperates with him on all questions of labor relations and other issues of war production and wartime living conditions.

"Labor's Political Action" is CIO's new pamphlet containing statements of the national committee set up to organize for a real victory Congress now and in 1944. Order from Publicity Dept., CIO, 718 Jackson Pl., NW., Washintgon 6, D C.

N. Y. State CIO Backs Hillman Plan to 'Unionize' ALP

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Full endorsement of CIO's 900,000 members in New York State was given this week to proposals of Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, for reorganization of the American Labor Party on a trade union basis.

The endorsement came in a resolution of the state CIO Council Executive Board welcoming Hillman's proposal as a means of ensuring full participation in the ALP by unions of CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods and as a means of eliminating "ancient political feuds or the injection of extraneous issues" in the work of the party.

Hillman's proposal, made three weeks ago to a group of New York CIO union leaders, was endorced by the State Council in a resolution declaring that the Council "wholeheartedly approves and endorses the proposal to strengthen the ALP as set forth in Brother Hillman's communication," and was coupled with a recommendation to all state affiliates that they join in the work of the party.

In transmitting the proposal to the Council, Hillman wrote: "I know that I speak for President Murray and the CIO Political Committee as well as for myself when I say that we would welcome favorable action by the N. Y. State Industrial Union Council on this proposal.

"We feel that such action would lay the cornerstone on which we can proceed to build a strong, democratic and genuine party of labor in our state. I need not remind you of the importance of that task, not only to labor in the state of New York, but to the future course of the entire nation."

More and more Flying Fortresses are powered by Studebaker-built Cyclone engines

Clear-eyed, clean-hearted young Americans are up there in those Flying Fortresses—writing new chapters of a free world's destiny. Many of them were carefree school boys only yesterday. Today, they're pouring cringing fear into the souls of once boastful "supermen." To these gallant youngsters—and to their expert crews below that keep them flying—we of Studebaker pledge ourselves to go on producing more and still more of the mighty Wright Cyclone engines for these devastating Boeing bombers. We'll "give more than we promise" in the best Studebaker tradition. Meanwhile, civilian needs must and will wait . . . until Studebaker completes this wartime assignment . . . until the finer Studebaker motor cars and motor trucks of the brighter days of Victory can be built.

Full Text of CIO's Tax Program

Heavy Taxes on War Profits, Light Levy On Poor Urged

The full text of CIO's tax program is contained in a letter sent this week by President Philip Murray to CIO national and international unions, regional directors and state and local industrial union councils. The letter, reproduced below, urges greater taxes on mounting war profits, abolition of privileges which allow many of the rich to escape their just burdens, repeal of the Victory Tax, and sharp opposition to any form of proposed sales tax. Tax exemptions, the CIO says, should be raised so that low income families will be guaranteed a minimum budget which will assure them an adequate standard of living. The full CIO program follows.

When Congress reconvenes this September one of its important and immediate tasks will be the consideration of tax legislation for 1944. A few Congressmen, such as Senator George and Representative Disney, have already begun to campaign for a sales tax and opposition to any increased taxes for personal high incomes or any increase in corporate taxes.

Their propaganda is to the effect that the low-income groups have an excess purchasing power which is supposedly adding to the dangers of inflation. This drive seeks to levy a national wage cut directed primarily against the low-income groups.

The issue therefore before us is whether we are going to permit a national wage cut to be imposed. Any such result would be a direct blow against the war effort.

President Roosevelt has said that "Total war is a grim reality. It means the dedication of our lives and resources to a single objective: Victory." We have dedicated our fullest efforts and energies and resources to the achievement of that single objective. The tax legislation for 1944 must be consistent with such objective.

Through universal and effectively enforced rationing of all basic commodities combined with a strict control of prices, we seek to establish a fair apportionment among all our people of our available national supply of food and clothing and other goods.

Fair Deal for Poor

The national tax program must not be permitted to defeat the fundamental aim of price control and rationing. There can be no justification for a tax program which deprives any civilian of that minimum amount necessary to enable him to buy his allotment of the limited amount of food, clothing, and other necessities in which we must all share in this critical period.

If we are to maintain the "health and productivity of the civilian population" as demanded by President Roosevelt, there can be no attempt to cut into the income of the $30-a-week married couple whose income is barely enough to enable them to purchase their equitable share of our civilian production.

CIO Plan Based on Aiding U. S. Drive for Victory

The CIO tax program is calculated to raise the funds necessary to win the war and to raise them in the manner which will contribute most toward the winning of the war. This program, in brief, provides for the following:

1. Exemptions:—The tax laws should be amended to exempt from taxation all single persons earning $800 or less, all married couples earning $1,500 or less, with an additional allowance of $400 for each dependent.

This minimum amount will guarantee to low-income groups that under an effective rationing and price-control system they will be able to obtain their share of the available basic goods necessary for life and productive efficiency.

On the basis of the government's estimate of the total available goods and services for the entire population during the coming year it should be obvious that for industrial workers living in industrial centers they will need at least the above tax exemptions to buy their minimum share of available basic goods and meet their minimum obligations for rent, medical needs and insurance and for other essential services.

2. Sales tax:—The sales tax, or any other similar form of taxation, must be firmily opposed. Such taxes cut into the food and clothing budgets of war workers and impair the health and working efficiency of workers by preventing them from acquiring their minimum share of the limited supply of available goods.

3. Repeal of the Victory Tax:—The Victory Tax, which imposes a flat 5 per cent burden on all wages down to the worker earning only $12 a week, with no regard to living costs, family obligations and dependents, should be repealed.

4. Income taxes.

A. Increased rates:—To the extent that increased revenue must be obtained to finance the war and is not raised by other portions of the tax program, rates in all upper brackets starting at $3,000 and increasing rapidly and progressively at $5,000 must be moved sharply upward. The increased taxes should be such so that the maximum net income, after taxes, should not be permitted to exceed $25,000.

B. Abolish special privileges.

(1) State and local securities. The interest from state and local bonds should be taxed.

(2) Joint returns. Require joint tax returns by husband and wife so that wealthy families may not divide their income in such a way that a husband and wife each pay only the rates applicable to lower-income brackets.

(3) Depletion deductions. The oil and mining industry should no longer be given the special disgraceful privilege of making an unwarranted deduction for so-called "depletion."

5. Corporate taxes.

A. General taxes on corporate profits.

Taxes on corporate profits should be increased to 55 per cent. This is the figure which the Treasury proposed last year but which Congress cut down to the present figure of 40 per cent.

All available figures show an all-time high in the profits of war industries, after taxes, for 1943 as against all preceding years. The Department of Commerce reports that profits after taxes for the first quarter of 1943 amounted to a billion eight hundred and twenty million dollars, approximately 18 per cent above the first quarter of 1942.

Even these profits do not reveal the actual profits due to the establishment of increasingly large "contingency reserves," provision for rapid write-off of costs of expansion of war plant facilities, and the payment of excess salaries and bonuses to company officials.

B. Taxes on excess corporate profits.

(1) For the duration, no corporation should expect to earn more than 5 per cent on its first ten million dollars of invested capital and 4 per cent on all amounts above that. We therefore propose a 100 per cent excess profits tax on profits above these levels. Appropriate allowances can be made for those small business concerns with less invested capital.

(2) There are many very large corporations which have over the years always had substantial earnings but, because of the tremendous invested capital, figures of these corporations' earnings have never in peace times reached the 4 per cent or 5 per cent level. The tremendously increased earnings of such corporations during the war—clearly war profits—should be taxed more heavily than normal profits.

(3) Under the present law 10 per cent of the taxes placed on the excess profits of corporations are to be returned to the corporations after the war. This constitutes an unwarranted discrimination in favor of those corporations which are showing swollen war profits. We propose, in lieu of this discriminatory provision, that post-war tax refunds to corporations be limited and determined by the real need for rehabilitation after the war.

6. Estate and gift taxes:—Taxes on estates and on gifts should be merged into a single system of graduated rates drastically increased over present levels and lowered exemptions. The present provision, allowing gifts completely free of taxation up to $3,000 in any one year for each person receiving such a gift, should be replaced by a provision limiting the tax-free amounts to a small fixed total for any one person making gifts.

7. Social Security tax:—The expanded Social Security program as embraced by the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill now pending in Congress is not merely a necessity for post-war reconstruction, it is a war necessity today to strengthen and toughen the morale of our armed forces and of our civilian population by the immediate assurance of the nation's present dedication to the freedoms for which the war is being fought. To the extent that additional funds are needed for such a program, adequate provision should be made immediately for an equitable Social Security tax adjustment.

Workers Must Act Now For Win-War Tax Plan

As war workers and taxpayers we must get started now for action on the kind of tax program the country needs for victory. Our CIO unions, our auxiliaries, our civic and fraternal organizations, our church groups should be pressed into action now. Our friends and our members—all must work on this vital program.

The congressmen are still at home. We must, in each State and each Congressional District where there are CIO members, get in touch with the two Senators and the Congressmen now to urge them to back the CIO tax program. They must also be written to in Washington to seek their support for a real win-the-war tax bill.

Write 'Em Letters

Letters should also be written to President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Each international and national union of the CIO should rally its membership behind this campaign for a win-the-war tax program. Each State Industrial Union Council should endeavor to do the same among the CIO membership within its jurisdiction.

If we delay in our action the selfish minority in Congress will gather their strength to work against any win-the-war tax program and instead will impose tax legislation which will levy greater and greater burdens upon the war workers who are least able to pay.

Taxes are a basic part of total mobilization for total war. It is now your task to make them work for victory.

Sincerely yours,
PHILIP MURRAY,
President.

Form New Production Council

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 21—An area council of labor-management committees—first of its type in the nation—has been established here. Over 15 such groups from neighboring plants in this section have joined in the Council of Labor-Management Committees of the Niagara Frontier Area.

This city-wide Council marks an important step in L-M cooperative action, and stems from the need to solve urgent L-M problems involving key plants in the steel, rubber, aircraft, radio, automotive, lens, battery and engine industries, as well as the community which serves the great masses of war workers in this area.

The Civilian War Front

Ickes 'Icky' as Plot to Boost Price of Fuel Oil Is Bared

By THE CIO COST OF LIVING COMMITTEE

The OPA Labor Policy Committee recently revealed that Harold Ickes, petroleum administrator for war, is backing the oil companies in their atempts to put over a "big steal" formula on the American people. The oil companies want a 35-cent-a-barrel increase on crude oil. Their excuse is that this is necessary to encourage the drilling of new wells. The OPA has refused to give in to the attempted hold-up and the OPA Labor Policy Committee denounced Mr. Ickes for giving governmental aid and comfort to these predatory private interests.

Mr. Ickes has not replied to this attack. Obviously Mr. Ickes finds it very difficult to defend the proposition that in order to reward the pioneer who drills new wells it is necessary to give speculative windfalls to the oil producers who are not going to drill new wells and who are already making high profits from sources of oil production.

One reason for Mr. Ickes' embarrassment is the fact that, when the oil interests last year tried to put over the same kind of steal in regard to oil produced from public lands, Mr. Ickes—in his capacity as Secretary of the Interior—unmasked the fraud and prevented its consummation.

OIL COS. BACK BILL

Under previous law all lessees of public oil lands were required to pay sliding scale royalties varying from a minimum of 12½ per cent to a maximum of 32 per cent, depending on volume and price.

Using the excuse of encouraging the drilling of new wells, the oil interests sponsored a bill in Congress drastically lowering the royalty structure and thus increasing the speculative profits of people who had no intention of drilling new wells or discovering new fields.

Mr. Ickes fought the bill stubbornly, and succeeded in amending it so that it provided incentive rewards, in the form of a lowering of royalty fees, only to the pioneers who actually discover new oil sources. The amended bill, protecting the public interest in the manner demanded by the Secretary of Interior, was enacted into law and approved on December 24, 1942.

In objecting to the bill, as sponsored by the oil lobby and as passed by the Senate. Mr. Ickes wrote (under date of Dec. 8, 1942) as follows:

"Its effect would be not only to invite an avalanche of applications for oil leases by promoters and speculators but in actual practice it would serve to retard rather than to stimulate the discovery and development of new oil reserves.

"These promoters and speculators would acquire oil leases not with the bona fide intention of developing the lands but solely in the hope that they would derive benefits as a result of the discovery of new oil or gas fields by honest and legitimate prospectors.

"Thus, the bill would reward those who are not entitled thereto equally with the pioneer who made the initial discovery of a new oil or gas field."

The steal which the oil interests are trying to put through by way of a general price rise is, of course, many times as great as that which they attempted to put through in regard to royalties on public lands. But the method is the same. It is to demand a reward for everybody on the block on the same basis as the one fellow who deserves reward because he is performing a public service.

The way to defeat that steal is to follow the principle laid down by Mr. Ickes—as Secretary of Interior and not as Petroleum Coordinator for War—confine the incentive rewards to the people who actually pioneer in the discovery of new oil fields.

The OPA is ready to adopt this principle—give an incentive price to oil produced from new fields. But the oil interests, with the backing of Mr. Ickes as Petroleum Administrator for War, have refused to accept that proposal. They want the drones and the speculators to be rewarded equally with the pioneers. Otherwise they don't want to play.

When will Ickes as Petroleum Administrator for War adopt the principles and policies of Secretary Ickes?

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

The Oil Workers Organizing Campaign sends in an NLRB victory at the Cities Service Oil Co., Production Dept., Pampa, Texas, with a vote of 85% for CIO.

Frank J. Bender, Reg. Dir., Baltimore, reports an election at Bartlet Hayward Corp., as follows: UERMWA-CIO, 258; IAM, 217; neither 32.

Adolph Germer, Dir. Organization, IWA-CIO, advises that the CIO won an election at Broken Bow, Oklahoma, by a vote of 215 to 12 for no union.

Thos. J. Gallagher, Org. Dir. IUM&SWA, sends in the following election victories: Geo. B. Lawley's Son, Newport, Mass., CIO 1917; no union 93; Independent, 340; Allen Boat Co., Inc., Harvey, La., CIO 57, 35 for no union.

Reid Robinson, Pres., MMSW, reports the following victories: American Brass Co., Buffalo, N. Y., CIO 1229 to 664 for independent; Phelps-Dodge Corp., Tyrone, N. M., CIO 21 out of 25 elegible to cast ballots; in a run-off for two crafts at Santa Rita and Hurly, N. M. (properties of Kennecott Copper Corp.), MMSW-CIO came out ahead; the operating engineers voted 133 to 117 for CIO; the machinists' vote was 35 to 33 for CIO. The MMSW-CIO was certified as bargaining agency for guards and watchmen at the Euclid Case Plant of Chase Brass & Copper Co., Cleveland, after a cross-check of cards. Production workers at this plant won an election earlier this year.

S. H. Dalrymple, president, URWA, reports that through a recognition agreement approved by the NLRB, the URWA won bargaining rights for plant protection employes of the Loewenthal, H. Muehlstein and A. Schulman Cos., Akron, Ohio.

E. L. Sandefur, CIO Reg. Dir., the Carolinas, reports an election victory at the American Tobacco Company cigar plant, Charleston, S. C., UCAPAWA-CIO, 1067 to 293 for the AFL and 114 for no union.

The Oil Workers International Union held a convention last week in Fort Worth, Texas. The writer addressed the gathering and took occasion to reply to the speech made by Senator Connally, co-author of the Smith-Connally bill, pointing out that minority groups and individuals who interfere with war production play right into the hands of the enemy. The writer called upon the workers to demand repeal of the bill in the interests of war production and the rights of labor. The convention overwehlmingly supported CIO policy and expressed determination to push the organizing drive, headed by Wm. B. Taylor.

Tim Flynn, Reg. Dir. in Texas, reports setting up two sub-regional offices, in Houston, with John E. Crossland as the sub-regional director, and in Dallas, with A. R. Hardesty as sub-regional director.

The writer stopped off in Denver and conferred with officials of the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers and the CIO Representatives. On Sunday, August 15 addressed a CIO general meeting in Salt Lake City which was well attended, and the leadership of President Murray and the policy of the CIO enthusiastically acclaimed. Following this, I went to Ely, Nevada, where I addressed a pre-NLRB election meeting of the MMSW, which has been opposed by 16 AFL craft unions. The workers are confident they will come out victorious and resented the splitting policies of the crafts which they realize full well can only weaken them and cannot serve them effectively. From there, I went to Sacramento to attend the convention of the International Woodworkers of America.

All through my trip, I find an overwhelming sentiment for the CIO!

Just As Bad As Ever!

Chungking, Aug. 21 (ALN)—When Edward V. Rickenbacker, president of American Airways Inc., was in Chungking late last May on a mission for President Roosevelt, he spent much of his time complaining how American workers were "idling" while men in the armed services were "fighting like hell."

At talks before specially-invited groups, he boasted that he had had anti-union legislation passed in seven U. S. states and put on legislative slates in 16 others. Unless "something is done about it," he said, the U. S. will emerge from this war "as communistic as Russia was twenty years ago."

Cuban Workers Can Help U. S. Win War, Says CIO's Potofsky

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—While the industrialization of Cuba is proceeding at an accelerated pace, the island republic has a surplus of skilled mechanics and agrarian workers which can be utilized in helping meet our own manpower shortage and in aiding our war efforts on behalf of the United Nations. That was the statement made this week by Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman of the CIO Committee on Latin-American Affairs and secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, on his return from Havana.

Potofsky made his report at a reception in his honor by the New York State CIO Council and the Greater New York Council. The chairman of the CIO Latin-American Committee, as observer, had attended the Havana conference of the Confederation of Latin-American Workers July 26-Aug. 1.

He said that he was particularly impressed by the determination of all Cuban elements, including the trade unions, to prosecute the war against the Axis.

He declared that idle Cuban labor is anxious to make its contribution by aiding the war efforts on the American mainland.

"I was advised in Havana," Potofsky said, "that at least 30,000 Cuban mechanics and agrarians are immediately available to help meet our own manpower shortage.

PEOPLE LIKE FDR

"The transportation problem from Cuba, it is felt, is no greater than that from the Bahamas and it is believed that satisfactory wage and working conditions can be established to the mutual satisfaction of all parties concerned."

Both the United States and President Roosevelt are extremely popular with the Cuban people, Potofsky said.

GOOD NEIGHBORS

"Our good neighbor policy has dissipated a good deal of the fears of exploitation, as in the past, but these fears can be completely dissolved by joint participation of native and foreign capital in future industrial undertakings," Potofsky said.

"Coupled with these joint efforts must be accepted the enlightened position of advancing the standards of living in Latin-America. The days of extreme economic exploitation must be regarded as a thing of the past.

"Latin-American countries have a long way to go to improve the hygienic and working conditions of their laboring and agricultural masses. The trade union movements of these countries, patriotic and devoted to the Four Freedoms, look to North American labor to help them."

U. S. Output Aid—60,000 Mexicans

Mexico City, Aug. 21 (ALN)—More than 60,000 Mexican farm and railroad workers have already crossed the Mexico border into the U. S. to aid the North American labor shortage, the Mexican Labor Department reported this week.

Thousands of Mexican workers from the agricultural states of Jalisco and Guanajuato continue to flock to Mexico City in hope of obtaining work in the U. S., where wages average $3 a day compared to the daily wage of 2.50 pesos ($.50) for unskilled labor in Mexico.

Because of limits set by the U. S.-Mexican agreement, many of these workers cannot enter the U. S. and even find themselves unable to return to their homes.

TEXAS DISCRIMINATION

One possible solution suggested here is to accept a request of Texas Governor Coke Stevenson for 70,000 agricultural workers. But Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla this week pointed out that "discriminatory conditions" still exist in Texas and that until they are remedied, Mexico will not send workers there.

In a letter to Gov. Stevenson, Padilla said: "In many parts of Texas Mexicans cannot attend public gatherings without being subject to vexations, complaints and protests. There are towns where my fellow countrymen are forced to live in separate districts. Just a week ago the daughter of a Mexican consul was refused service in a public establishment."

When Texas officials clear up the situation, Padilla added, "the Mexican government will gladly let our workers share in the tasks of Texas agriculture. They would go with the same enthusiasm they have shown in other states where they are not subject to discrimination."

FEPC Counsel

Washington, Aug. 21 (FP)—The Fair Employment Practices Committee announced appointment of Bartley C. Crum of San Francisco as chief counsel in its forthcoming hearings, September 15-17, on alleged employment discrimination by railroad companies.

Security Act Praised, New Act Needed

Washington, Aug. 21—Praise for the present Social Security Act—which celebrated its eighth anniversary this week—and a strong plea for passage of the liberalizing amendments now before Congress was expressed by Van A. Bittner, chairman of the CIO Social Security Committee in a statement issued here. Bittner's statement said:

"The United States has advanced in the war against poverty as well as against the Axis. But the fight on the battlefields is more nearly won than that for the people's welfare. While exerting every effort for victory abroad, the nation must plan for the future security of returning soldiers and for heroes of the production lines.

"The present Social Security Law represented a tremendous step forward, but passage this year of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell amendments is essential for protection of individual Americans and of the nation."

Auxiliaries Bare Phoney Pay Talk

Washington, Aug. 21—Large figures used to show big increases in average wages and to justify opposition to a rollback of living costs were sharply rebuked by the CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries in a letter to the Washington Post here this week.

The letter was in answer to a Post editorial which opposed the subsidy plan for the rollback on the ground that industrial wages had gone up 29 per cent, and that therefore war workers were not suffering from price increases.

The letter, signed by Auxiliary Secretary-Treasurer Eleanor Fowler, pointed out that the 29 per cent increase blandly ignores all deductions from a worker's paycheck, including such items as taxes, social security, bonds, medical services, etc. These are passed over, the letter said, despite the fact that newspapers always report corporation profits with every possible deduction—and some far-fetched ones—squeezed out of them.

The newspaper figures also present a false picture because they do not show real annual earnings, which, even on a basis of 52 weeks' work a year, run below $30 a week, in many industries as low as $19.50. For example, Social Security Board figures (the most accurate available) show that 82 per cent of U. S. workers got less than $1,600 a year in 1941, 90 per cent less than $2,000.

Such earnings, the Auxiliaries pointed out, are far below the minimum health and decency standards worked out by the Heller Committee of the University of California at 1942 prices, which showed that it took more than $2,600 a year to barely support a family of four.

Order Sun Ship Talks with CIO

Chester, Pa., Aug. 21—The Sun Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. this week was ordered by the Natl. War Labor Board to bargain collectively with the Intl. Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, CIO, and to begin negotiations with the union immediately on the terms of a contract. Approximately 28,000 workers are included in the bargaining unit.

An election held recently in the yard was won by the union.

Here's A New Angle On Smith-Connally

Washington, Aug. 21—According to one radio station manager, CIO members can't criticize Senators or Congressmen or recite their anti-FDR, anti-labor voting records because the Smith-Connally Act forbids political activity by unions.

This novel interpretation of the act—which should please its authors — was offered by one John Moses, manager of station WHKC in Columbus, Ohio, when he refused to allow Richard T. Frankensteen of the UAW-CIO to give the CIO views on the record of Senator Taft and Congressman Vorys.

According to Frankensteen, the station manager used David Lawrence, once described by CIO Pres. Philip Murray as "one of the most vicious anti-labor baiters in the U. S.," as his authority for this broad view of the Smith-Connally Act's powers.

The case has been presented to the Federal Communications Commission for its information and action.

Back War Despite Foul Conditions

Havana, Aug. 21 (ALN)—Recognizing that "the privileged geographical position of Cuba permits rapid transportation of the minerals needed by large U. S. war industries," a national conference of Cuban mine workers last week pledged "to produce more and more to win the war," despite "brutal and humiliating working and living conditions in Cuban iron, copper, manganese, chromium and nickel mines."

The meeting, first of its kind in Cuba, was organized by the Confederation of Cuban Workers (CTC) and attended by more than 50 delegates from the mining areas of Oriente, Camaguey and Pinar del Rio.

In a report handed to Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman of the CIO Latin American Affairs Committee, who was in Havana last week, CTC officials told of "inhuman working conditions in the properties of the U. S.-owned Cuban Mining Co. and the Nikaro Nickel Co.," and solicited CIO aid in solving "the grave problems of the mining industry."

Jaime Denis, a delegate, said, "The Cayaguan mine administrator uses Hitlerite methods to increase production, but when the workers want better food, especially meat, he prohibits chauffeurs from transporting it in company-owned trucks. The only way we can get meat in is by bringing it ourselves by boat."

Connally Bill Proved Monkey Wrench

Washington, Aug. 21—The Smith-Connally Act is proving to be a monkey wrench in the nation's war effort, President John Green of the Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers said this week in condemning use of the law by the AFL to raid the IUMSWA.

In telegrams to President Roosevelt and other high government officials, Green charged that the AFL Operating Engineers Union was attempting to "take over" crane operators employed at the Bethlehem Fairfield shipyard in Baltimore, where the IUMSWA has a contract covering more than 28,000 workers.

Green charged that the AFL had been rebuffed repeatedly at Fairfield in attempts to "raid" the crane operators, but now is grasping at the straw provided by Attorney General Biddle's interpretation of the Smith-Connally bill, which permits minority groups to petition for a strike vote.

In a telegram to Roosevelt, Green pointed out that the IUMSWA is maintaining its no-strike pledge, that it is not in favor of a stoppage, and that the "NLRB has gone beyond the destructive opinion of Attorney General Biddle and in this case is breaking up a plant-wide unit which was certified by the NLRB itself two years ago."

He added that if the cranemen are called out by the AFL under the Biddle interpretation, production in a shipyard vital to the war effort will be seriously curtailed.

U. S. Food Plan Report Supports CIO Position

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—U. S. food production, unless real conversion from non-essential crops to war crops is achieved, will be far from adequate for war needs, not only for the duration but for some years afterwards, a report to Secretary of Agriculture Claude A. Wickard revealed this week.

The report, which was not designed for release to the public, was given to one newspaper and following that news break a summary released to the general press. The summary pointed up a situation that the CIO and its affiliated Cannery and Agricultural Workers began talking about some months ago, when the CIO put out a plan calling for immediate conversion and total mobilization of all our own and all United Nations food resources for war.

Thus, the report to Wickard calls for cuts in production of short staple cotton and tobacco, in both of which the country has a huge surplus, and use of cotton and tobacco land, labor and machinery for food production.

This was a central point of the CIO food production plan, which added something left out in the Agriculture Dept. summary—that the "farm bloc" in Congress was directly responsible for continuing to keep resources tied up in non-essential crops.

The summary report also called for a system of production incentives and subsidy payments to boost food production, as the CIO has been demanding for several months, urged strict rationing and government distribution of food to crush the black market, an end to farm bloc freezing of farm labor on non-essential crops, and other points long stressed by the CIO.

In addition, the summary report pointed out: "Ration cards do not guarantee that low-income consumers can afford to buy the legitimate allowance; special efforts are essential to assure that this group gets the nutrients needed to make their best contribution to the war effort."

This also has been a major point in CIO's plan for full use of all food resources for victory.

Give Labor Voice in Play Councils—OCD

Washington, Aug. 21—Representatives of organized labor, minority groups and the foreign-born should be given a place in planning community recreation for workers in war industry centers, the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense has informed its 15,000 local Defense Councils.

NMU Starts Drive For War Bonds

New York, Aug. 21—Announcing the opening of a nationwide drive by its membership and their families for $500,000 in war bonds to purchase a submarine-chaser, M. Hedley Stone, treasurer of the Natl. Maritime Union, disclosed today that a Buffalo member of the union, Charles Eggleston, has turned into bonds a $5,250 compensation award he has just received.

Injured in a ship accident last August, in which he lost 80 per cent use of one leg, Eggleston, like all merchant seamen who Keep 'Em Sailing and Deliver the Goods, understands the imperative need for increasing bond purchases.

Stone said that the regular Port of New York membership meeting this week officially opened the drive and that similar bond rallies will be held shortly at union meetings in 50 additional ports throughout the country where there are NMU halls.

Florida Jails CIO Organizer, Flouts U. S. Employment Policy

ORLANDO, Fla., Aug. 21—In one of the most brazen anti-union legal actions ever brought in this state—and that's saying a lot—Organizer Otis G. Nation of the United Cannery, Agricultural & Allied Workers (CIO) is being held in $2,000 bond charged with violating Florida's new emigrant agent law.

Specifically, he is accused of recruiting workers here for work in Campbell Soup Co. canneries in Camden, N. J. The charges are brought at this time because the citrus growers are anxious to stop union organization here before the picking season starts. If found guilty, Nation faces two years in prison or a fine of not more than $5,000.

Even the Ku Klux Klan has been brought into the picture, making mysterious telephone calls to organizers and writing unsigned letters to prospective union members.

The recruiting charges grew out of efforts by War Manpower Commission representatives recently to relieve the acute shortage in New Jersey canneries by sending idle workers to Camden from southern states. On August 1, 438 idle citrus workers left Orlando aboard a special train under the sponsorship of WMC officials and Campbell representatives.

Nation was arrested shortly afterward. According to the emigrant labor law, anyone recruiting labor in Florida for work outside the state must have a license. Object of the law, of course, is to prevent the low-paid citrus workers from leaving for better paying jobs elsewhere—a mild but effective form of peonage.

At a hearing before Justice of the Peace E. G. Duckworth August 13, Nation said he had simply referred idle members of his union to WMC and Campbell people when the recruiting drive started.

"The fact is," Nation said, "that labor is badly needed for tomato picking in New Jersey, where crops are beginning to rot in the fields. And at this particular time we have here hundreds of citrus pickers who cannot be employed until October 1, when the fall citrus crop begins to ripen.

"The WMC has guaranteed the return of the 438 pickers here before that date. This charge brought against me is simply another move on the part of the growers' association to hold back the progress of unionism in Florida and thus keep wages down. They are even willing to obstruct the war effort to serve this end."

CIO Shoe Workers Plug Feed 'Em, Shoe 'Em Plan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—A program guaranteed to satisfy the needs of feet and stomach of the American people on both home and fighting fronts was advocated this week by the United Shoe Workers of America.

The program was presented in a letter to President Roose-velt signed by USWA Pres. Frank McGrath, who advocated that the federal government purchase and slaughter 5,000,000 cattle to give the people both beef to eat and essential leather badly needed for the war.

SOUNDS WARNING

McGrath warned the President that a critical situation exists in the shoe industry because of a shortage of leather, and said that it "may gravely imperil our war effort."

McGrath declared that the critical shortage can be traced primarily to the efforts of large cattle owners and packing houses to break OPA wholesale and retail ceilings.

He said that funds for purchase of the cattle to break up the combination against the war are obtainable immediately through Reconstruction Finance Corp. subsidiaries.

Pointing to a reported 50 per cent decline in finished leather inventories as compared with a year ago, McGrath wrote Roosevelt:

"The development of large-scale offensives by the armies of the United Nations and the consequent greater use of infantry makes it imperative that sufficient footwear be produced, first, to meet the demands of our armed forces and those of our allies, and second to assure sufficient production of civilian shoes to maintain high morale on the home front."

McGrath said that such a purchase program would be of threefold benefit: 1) It would guarantee the immediate needs of the military and Lend Lease; 2) It would make available large supplies of beef to civilian consumers at regular OPA prices, tending to check black market operations, and 3) It would improve home front morale.

Help Spike Plot To Kill Sales Of 'Under Cover'

New York, Aug. 21—Attempts of Frank Gannett, publisher of Gannett, newspapers, and Joe Kamp, active head of the Constitutional Educational League, to suppress the expose of American fascists in "UNDER COVER," were thrown for a loss here as the Book Find Club announced this week that it had chosen "UNDER COVER" as its September selection.

"UNDER COVER" reveals the inside story of American fascists, naming all those from the terroristic Christian Front phalanx to top Congressional figures.

Back Job Fight Of Bovingdon

Washington, Aug. 21—Chapter 14, Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists & Technicians (CIO), has sent a letter to Director Leo T. Crowley of the Office of Economic Warfare asking that he reconsider his dismissal of John Bovingdon and reinstate him.

Such action "would strike a blow for freedom and rout those forces which seek to divide and disunite the American people," said the letter, signed by Pres. Leo Zwell.

Support CIO Auxiliaries, Murray Urges

Washington, Aug. 21—CIO Auxiliaries can play a leading part in mobilizing American women behind CIO's win-the-war policies and behind the Commander-in-Chief, President Murray said this week in a circular letter to all affiliates urging full support to the organization of wives, mothers and sisters of CIO members.

This important aid will be necessary in CIO's drives on the cost of living, on political mobilization, and in the election campaigns, Murray wrote in praising the CIO women's group for "doing a fine job of giving support locally and nationally to our CIO program."

"The Democratic and Republican parties have already started to enlist the active cooperation of women in the 1944 election campaign," he said. "We must also think in terms of depending to a large measure on the help of our CIO women in making our present election campaign plans.

"These women belong to many community organizations — church groups, women's clubs — through which they can help us to carry the CIO program to the community as a whole. I urge our CIO affiliates to cooperate with and support the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries in its work to mobilize the women in our homes and in our communities behind the CIO program."

CIO Heroes

U. S. Hails Courage Of CIO Longshore Fire Fighters

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28—The resourcefulness and courage displayed by six members of the CIO Intl. Longshoremen & Warehousemen's Union who extinguished a gasoline fire aboard a munitions ship in the harbor were resoundingly praised this week by representatives of the War Shipping Administration.

The near-disaster took place several months ago, publication being delayed for security reasons.

As the vessel was being loaded with ammunition, a gasoline-driven moble crane was being refueled while in operation at the dock. The gas tank overflowed, and because the crane's exhaust manifold was very hot, a fire started and quickly spread to the pier.

WSA representatives said in a letter to the CIO longshoremen: "You, through your resourcefulness and courage in extinguishing a fire probably averted a very serious disaster. This action on your part was in the face of a very real and serious danger. Acts of heroism such as yours on the home front are no less to be commended than acts of heroism on the fighting front."

The men commended were: T. Atkinson, Laurence Ebe, H. E. Hargett, H. F. Hargett, John Powell and John Martinez.

N. Y. CIO Convention

New York, Aug. 28—The N. Y. State Industrial Union Council will hold its 1943 convention at the Hotel Statler, Buffalo, October October 29 and 30, it was announced this week by Pres. Louis Hollander.

PICKETING PEGLER: Hundreds of CIO and AFL unionists in New York joined the picket line as members of the Natl. Maritime Union paraded around the New York WORLD-TELEGRAM building where Westbrook Pegler, anti-union and anti-war columnist, turns out his poison. The line formed after Pegler's diatribe against merchant seamen. (Federated Pictures)

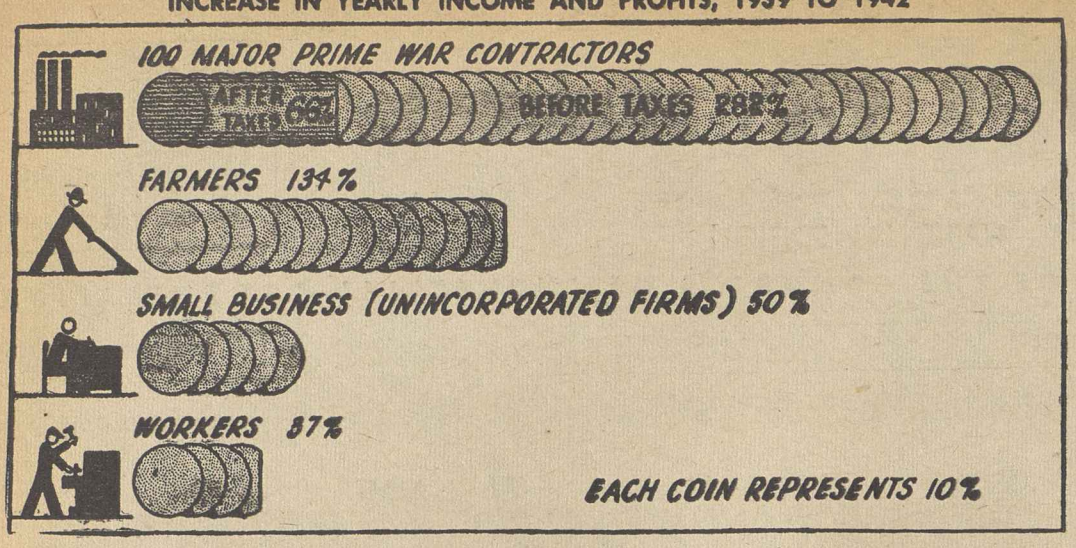
U. S. Policy Forces Rent Evictions

Detroit, Aug. 28—Vigorous protest against the Home Owners Loan Corp. policy of sanctioning conversion of average-size dwellings to accommodate childless couples, with the resultant eviction of families with children, was voiced by Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, following a survey by UAW's War Policy Division.

"Eviction of families with children from an average-size family house in order to cut that house in halves or quarters for occupancy of childless couples increases the owner's income but in no way solves the housing problem," Thomas said.

"It is a matter of national record that the greatest housing need is for average-size family dwellings which will accommodate couples with two or three children."

Thomas said the UAW survey had disclosed specific cases of families with children, long-time residents of Detroit, who have been evicted because the HOLC permitted the owners to re-model their small homes into additional units.



This chart, from Labor's Monthly Survey, based on information from OPA and U. S. Commerce Dept., shows the tremendous increase of war profits which rose from $724,000,000 in 1939 to $1,200,000,000 in 1942, after deduction of taxes. The average yearly income of industrial workers, excluding government and farm workers, rose from $1,268 in 1939 to $1,733 in 1942, before deduction of taxes. (Federated Pictures)

CIO's Political Action Hailed By Woodworkers

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 28—Full support for CIO policies on labor political action and a renewal of the no-strike pledge marked the convention of the Intl. Woodworkers of America, just concluded here.

In the report to the convention, the international officers, headed by President Worth Lowery, urged that all locals and all women's auxiliaries get behind the CIO political drive as their No. 1 job to insure a victory Congress in 1944 and a united nation behind Pres. Roosevelt.

"In this second year of world conflict the IWA finds its members firmly united upon the IWA-CIO program in support of the winning of the war," Lowery said in his keynote speech.

The renewal of the no-strike pledge pointed out that, "we will not be provoked into taking any rash action that will prolong the winning of the war for one hour."

Lowery was re-elected president without opposition. Two candidates, E. E. Benedict and Edward Laux, were nominated for secretary-treasurer. Elections are by membership referendum.

The convention spoke out strongly in condemnation of disruptive tactics of John L. Lewis, saying in a resolution: "Labor must be wary of any person or element who seeks to substitute for sane and democratic processes wilfull and revengeful dictation."

It also passed a resolution condemning racial discrimination as a block to all-out mobilization for war.

Murray Tells Story of CIO's War Contributions

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 28—This town was still talking this week about the first convention of District 33 of the United Steelworkers of America, which brought top heads of the union and industrial leaders together to obtain a clearer understanding of what the labor movement means to the nation.

Labor and the industrialists—and thousands of ordinary people in this community—learned from CIO and USA Pres. Philip Murray just what the labor movement means. It is not, Murray said, the selfish organization that columnists like Pegler picture it, but instead is dedicated to the interests of the nation, and currently has as its main goal the utmost possible contribution toward the winning of the war.

"Labor," Murray told the people, "does not want to be selfish in this war. It does not want to exact special privileges while men are dying. But labor wants, and it means it when it says it, equality of sacrifice in this war. It wants profiteering driven out of American industry.

"Any man or any group of men that try to profiteer out of this war are just as vicious and treasonable as a saboteur or a forthright enemy of this country."

NO-STRIKE PLEDGE

Declaring he intended to stand firmly by CIO's no-strike pledge, Murray said:

"Neither you nor I can afford to violate that pledge. In the CIO, we are building an instrument not for today alone but for posterity."

GREATEST LEADER

"I know of no other movement in the economic sphere that can do more for the individual and nation than the union movement," he said.

Among resolutions passed at the convention was one recommending that President Murray represent labor at the peace table at the conclusion of the war, and saying that he "has proved beyond doubt to be the greatest labor leader that our nation has ever had."

Another resolution pledged all-out production in steel mills, iron ore mines and fabricating plants, and urged the "speeding of invasion of the continent of Europe, attacking the heart of the Fascist Axis and destroying it, bringing the war to a speedy conclusion, thus avoiding the loss of many lives of our Steelworker brothers in the armed forces."

Curran Ships Out; State Dept. Still Snoring

New York, Aug. 28—Pres. Joseph Curran of the Natl. Maritime Union this week shipped out after the U. S. State Department showed a decided lack of haste in complying with the NMU's request that Curran be given a passport so that he could go abroad to establish contact with trade union movements in Great Britain, the Soviet Union and North Africa.

CIO Asks Right To Testify on Radio Gag

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Rights of CIO unions to radio time along with other groups will be set forth here if the Federal Communications Commission, U. S. agency with power over radio, grants a CIO-filed petition to testify on the proposed sale of the Blue Network of radio stations.

The petition, filed with the FCC by CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman, asks for the right to intervene on the ground that labor has not been getting an even break on the air waves, and would like to state its case publicly.

ANTI-LABOR OWNER

The Blue Network, formerly owned by NBC and RCA, was sold to Edward Noble, a former assistant Secretary of Commerce and head of the Lifesaver Corporation. Noble's company got into trouble with the Labor Relations Board in June, 1940, when it fired eight workers for a joining a union, but the case was settled before it got to the National Board.

At first, Noble was reported to be backed by the McGraw-Hill Corp., a huge industrial magazine publishing concern with decidedly anti-labor and reactionary interests. McGraw-Hill is the author of a long series of advertisements about "seed-money," which not too subtly put across a plea for lowering taxes on war profits and on the rich, on the ground that "seed-money" must be left untouched.

Pointing out that any business concern can buy radio time for its purposes, while organized labor is barred from buying time by the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters' code on the ground labor programs are "controversial," the CIO declared that operation of radio in the public interest calls for:

(1.) More free time to labor unions in the form of regular weekly sustaining programs.

(2) No blanket restrictions on a union's right to buy radio time, such as are now in effect under the "no controversy" rule.

(3) No gag on unions' right to ask people to join them, as under a new code ruling against giving or selling time for a program involving solicitation of membership.

(4) Some set-up to give unions relief when they are arbitrarily barred from either free time or paid time.

"Decisions to exclude labor from the air are made either by the individual broadcaster, the owners of the network, or the commercial broadcasters represented in the code committee of the NAB," the CIO said.

"In none of these bodies is there representation of the public, including labor, nor is there any machinery for appeal or relief from unfair and discriminatory actions of the code committee."

Cox Committee Has New Angle on Smear Jobs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—The technique of smearing labor, of sabotaging government agencies doing important war work, and shielding fascist agents, developed by Congressional "investigating" committees, is not new, but several new angles have been added by the Cox Committee currently doing a job on the Federal Communications Commission.

This Committee, set up early this year over the protest of CIO and a minority of Congressmen, has equalled or outdone Dies, Smith or any other witch-hunter in open and unabashed flouting of the national interest in time of war.

The background of the probe itself set the key for the Committee's methods, when it is remembered that Rep. Eugene E. Cox, a polltaxer from Georgia, was found to have taken a $2,500 fee from radio station WALB of Albany, Ga., in connection with an application the station had before the FCC.

PERSONAL MOTIVE

Congressmen are not allowed to take fees for using their office to influence government decisions, and the matter has been turned over to the Attorney-General for investigation.

But that's only the background—Cox's own personal motive for going after a key U. S. war agency, its chairman and its employes. It helps to explain Cox calling the FCC "a nest of Reds," "the nastiest set of rats in this entire country," and similar names in Congressional speeches.

Far more serious is the Cox Committee's continued defense of individuals that the FCC had banned from foreign language radio broadcasting on proof that they were fascist agents with direct fascist connections.

Take for example one Stefano Luotto, broadcasting in Italian from 1931 to 1942 from New York and Chicago stations, until the FCC and other authorities caught up with him. According to a public statement by Cox, Luotto (and his brother) "have the sympathy of the public and have been unfairly treated and persecuted."

Who is this Luotto that Cox defends? According to the record, Luotto was a leading member of three pro-fascist groups; the Committee of 1,000, the Dante Alighieri Society and the Italian Barbers Assn. He helped raise money for the ex-Duce's war on Ethiopia, praised the ex-Duce in practically every broadcast, brought fascist big-shots to the microphone, praised Italy's entrance into the war, and on at least one occasion paraded down New York's 43rd Street in full fascist uniform.

Luotto is only one of several such characters that Cox and Eugene L. Garey, committee counsel, sympathized with in public hearings and bitterly denounced the FCC for ruling him off the air.

He represents a whole school of anti-U. S. radio figures that the FCC has been going after since Pearl Harbor—and yet Cox, receiver of the above-mentioned $2,500 fee—had this to say about the FCC's work in choking Axis propaganda off the airwaves:

PHONEY CHARGES

"Mr. Fly of the Communications commission is guilty of a monstrous abuse of power and is rapidly becoming the most dangerous man in the government. He maintains an active and ambitious Gestapo and is putting shackles on the freedom of thought, press and speech without restraint . . ."

The methods of the Cox Committee—and its co-workers like the Dies and Smith committees—were most neatly summed up in a set of publicity rules submitted to the Cox group by its lawyer for their guidance in running the probe. First rule was this:

"1. Decide what you want the newspapers to hit hardest and then shape each hearing so that the main point becomes the vortex of the testimony. Once that vortex is reached, adjourn."

SMEAR TECHNIQUE

And this one, No. 5: "Do not space hearings more than 24 or 84 hours apart when on a controversial subject. This gives the opposition too much opportunity to make all kind of counter-charges and replies by issuing statements to the newspapers."

NEW WORLD—NEW LIFE: With faces turned happily toward the future and away from war-torn Europe, these little refugees get their first glimpse of America from the rail of a ship steaming into New York harbor. Dimes and dollars contributed by CIO members through the National CIO War Relief Committee helped save them.

Board Sets New Run-off Vote Policy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—A new Natl. Labor Relations Board policy on run-off elections was announced this week by the Board. Where the original poll is inconclusive because neither a union nor "no union" received a majority, only one run-off will be held, and it must be requested within 10 days of the original election.

Here's the setup under the new regulations, assuming for instance that two unions and "no union" are competing:

If "no union" gets the largest vote, but only a plurality instead of a majority, workers will be entitled to vote for or against the union that has received the largest vote. Formerly there would be no run-off, and the case would be dismissed.

If three unions are competing with a "no union" vote, and if the "no union" vote is second, workers will be entitled to choose between the two top unions. Formerly they chose among the three unions.

While the regulations provide that the ballot in the run-off election shall provide for a selection between the two choices that receive the largest and second largest number of valid votes cast, neither any union nor the "no union" designation shall be placed on a run-off ballot unless it received at least 20 per cent of the valid votes cast in the original election.

The change in NLRB policy follows a public hearing held here August 3, in which labor organizations and employers offered suggestions about proposed changes.

The first run-off election to be ordered under the new policy was at the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft plant near Baltimore, Maryland, where "no union" polled 42.3 per cent, the United Auto Workers Union 40.44 per cent, and the Intl. Assn. of Machinists and a company union each less than 20 per cent.

The NLRB said the run-off, at the largest factory in the state, will be between the UAW and "no union." The vote will be held within 30 days of August 26.

Political Action Hits 'Deep South' In Birmingham Parley

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 28—Labor political action came to this big war center this week as representatives of thousands of steelworkers, iron miners and other war workers heard Van A. Bittner and R. J. Thomas, vice-chairman and secretary of the CIO Political Action Committee, and Sherman H. Dalrymple, member, speak in the third of a series of regional conferences.

The two previous conferences, held in Philadelphia and Chicago, showed tremendous potential strength in labor that needed only to be mobilized to be effective, and the same experience was reported from Birmingham.

The response showed that Birmingham, with all the problems of political action faced in the South, due to discrimination against Negro and white workers and farmers through the polltax and other bars to action, is ready to become a spearhead for something new in Southern history.

'MAJOR OPERATION'

"A major operation is needed," Thomas said at the meeting. "We must get out and organize our districts. Criticism of Congressmen alone cannot change their votes. We must be in a position to apply the pressure of labor votes and to do that we must get labor's vote out."

Bittner warned his listeners against complacency, pointing out that labor's failure to get out and vote in 1942 had let the present anti-war and anti-labor majority of Congress slip into power.

Two main objectives must be kept in mind, he said: 1) "to consider our particular political problems in the South and to seek to solve them by united action" and 2) "to back the war program of the President not only as citizens but also as members of the CIO."

Bittner's speech briefly reviewed the sabotage record of the majority of Congress during the first six months of the 1943 session, saying that the majority had tried to block the President's win-the-war program at every turn and had succeeded far too often.

Dalrymple spoke on the practical need for money to finance political action, urging local unions to assess themselves and to raise funds by every other possible means.

CIO Executive Board Meeting Postponed

Washington, Aug. 28—The CIO Executive Board meeting scheduled for this city on September 1 has been postponed, President Philip Murray announced this week. Time and place of the meeting will be set later.

Sees Crisis In Clothing Ration Ban

Washington, Aug. 28—A serious crisis in clothing distribution will result unless rationing is put in effect immediately, Russ Nixon, UERMW representative, said here this week.

Nixon, who is a member of CIO's Cost of Living Committee and of the OPA Labor Advisory Committee, also hit out at the drive of industrialists for re-conversion now to civilian production, despite the fact that there's a war on, and urged the War Production Board to halt it in its tracks.

Clothes rationing will enable war workers to secure their fair share of clothing, Nixon pointed out.

CIO Congress Action In Home Stretch As Recess Ends

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—With the Congressional recess ending within two weeks (Sept. 14), CIO political activity on the home front gained new speed this week, reports from the field to the CIO recess action committee show.

Here in Washington, U. S. Federal government employes have set up some 20 State Legislative Clubs composed of government workers, members of the United Federal Workers, CIO, who want to tell their Congressmen from their home states what's on their minds. Accent will also be put on registering to vote.

In Jefferson City, Mo., more than 250 delegates from CIO unions representing 110,000 workers met to form a 1944 victory election committee to elect Congressmen committed to a win-the-war program all down the line.

In Arizona, where AFL, CIO and RRB unions have long had a United Labor Victory Committee, a drive has started for registration and for votes on election day, and support was given to progressive Governor Osborn for his reply to a labor-baiter (see CIO NEWS, Aug. 23).

AUXILIARIES HELP

Wives and sisters of CIO members are being rapidly mobilized in the political action drive by the Congress of Womens Auxiliaries of the CIO, according to a report from Eleanor Fowler, CWA-Secretary-Treasurer. Auxiliary accent is on the price control and food supply section of the home front, with strong support for CIO's whole victory program.

Alameda Co., California, has a new secretary, Mrs Ruby Heide, believed to be one of the first woman to hold such a post, who has been rounding up the locals for a strong drive during the recess and also pointing to 1944.

The National Maritime Union, whose members are almost constantly at sea running the submarine lines, has sent orders to all port officials to round up every member for joint action with CIO and other unions.

"All of us of the Steelworkers are going to work hard so that when the elections are over, the Steelworkers will be able to hold their heads high for a job well done," USA-CIO Representative Fred Schnitzer writes from Local 2194 in Harrison, N. J.

RAISE FUNDS

Powers Hapgood, writing from Indiana, reports that their first political action conference raised $4,000 in cash and many pledges to finance state work. Pennsylvania has set a deadline of September 10 for CIO members to get together with their Congressman on home front problems.

A frank report on a Boston Congressman comes from Local 3 of the Office and Professional Workers, who said of Rep. Curley (D); "In general he indicated he was not interested in whether the issues were in support of the war and Pres. Roosevelt's policies, but rather whether they fitted in with the best interests (as he saw them) of the Democratic party machine." Local 3's conclusion is that Rep. Curley must be visited by a good many more such delegations.

Of another and somewhat similar case, Noel Beddow reports on Rep. Newsome (D) of Birmingham, Ala., "John had more excuses why he had to leave immediately after his 20 minute talk than Hitler will have as to why he lost the war."

And to show Philadelphia's Congressman Gallagher (R) how the workers live and how desperately they need price rollbacks to keep the cost of living down. State, County and Municipal Workers' Fred Allesandrini has invited him to dinner—which, on Allesandrini's income of $1860 a year from a state job, is pretty slim for him, wife and three kids.

St. Louis CIO Plan Would Aid Race Harmony

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 28—CIO proposals for guaranteeing racial harmony in this state were discussed this week by a committee from the St. Louis CIO Council with Governor Donnell, who expressed appreciation for the picture given him and indicated that he would give serious consideration to the CIO's suggestions.

The CIO plan was aimed at preventing another Detroit, with the loss of many lives and literally millions of man-hours in vital war industries. The CIO urged that in case of a serious disturbance, Federal troops be called in immediately, inasmuch as local white police do not have the confidence of Negro residents.

Hillman Demands Changed Congress to Win War, Peace

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28—"The reactionary, defeatist and anti-labor record" of the present Congress shows that it cannot be trusted to win the war or take part in writing the peace without a considerable change in character and the elimination of many present members," Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, said here this week.

Hillman's speech, made at a political conference of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, hit out sharply at the majority of Congressmen for their sabotage of the war and home front, and called for a real victory Congress through labor political action in 1944.

He also said that labor was going to stay away from any third party ideas at this time, since the job was to elect candidates who backed Pres. Roosevelt's win-the-war leadership, and not to create confusion by injecting the third party issue.

"Should reactionary elements succeed in electing a Congress as well as a national administration of their choosing, victory will be endangered—if it has not yet been won—and in any event we will have lost the peace," he said.

Such a Congress and such an administration would blackout the social gains of the New Deal which have made us an enlightened nation. They would seek to suppress every decent aspiration of the oppressed masses abroad. They would attempt to destroy the effectiveness of our labor unions and return us to the industrial jungle which marked the depression years.

GUARANTEE VICTORY

"Labor, by its gift for organization and its voting power, must not only guarantee victory over the Axis but make impossible a return to apple-vending days and the beginning of a World War III."

Hillman urged labor to think about the elections in some states and many cities in 1943, which are just as important as the Congressional elections in 1944 and are good training ground for political action leading to the big election.

He also pointed out that election of win-the-war candidates in the elections this year would serve notice that the anti-war, anti-labor tide in the Congress up until now had turned, and that those who were swimming with it now could reverse themselves.

The House vote for the polltax repeal bill (HR 7, now in Senate Committee) shows that organized and united labor political action can move even the most reactionary and defeatist Congress, he explained, saying:

PROGRESSIVE FORCES

"There are progressive forces in Congress who have steadfastly fought against this unremitting sniping and have supported the win-the-war program of the Commander-in-Chief. But they have been heavily outnumbered and out-voted by the defeatists and reactionaries in combination with those vacillating representatives in both Houses who swim with what they think is an anti-Roosevelt and anti-labor tide.

"That proper organization of the forces of progress can score important victories even with a Congress of this complexion was demonstrated when the broad campaign led by labor secured the passage of the anti-poll tax bill by the House in record time."

Who Wants Big Business For Boss?

The Gallup Poll (American Institute of Public Opinion) is an institution financed by big-business publishers, to check up on the effectiveness of their own propaganda. Its findings are usually most encouraging to its sponsors.

For instance, big-business concerns are reducing their taxable incomes these days by spending millions and millions on full-page advertisements to tell the public what they are doing to aid the war.

The newspaper reader is warmed with glowing pictures of the patriotism of corporations turning out so many tanks, ships, planes, etc., for our armed forces.

No tactless reference is made to profits that have increased so enormously (even after taxes) over pre-war levels—and still less to corporation practices that hold up production.

As to the fact that working people, usually unionized, do the actual producing, this too is generally overlooked in the ads.

On the other hand, the news columns do not overlook labor if anywhere any small group of workers is guilty of the slightest misdemeanor; and the editorial columns are full of attacks on labor.

What's Wrong With This Picture?

So—if all you know is what you read in the big-business press—you're liable to have a mental picture of big-business executives and coupon-clippers rolling up their white shirt-sleeves and soiling their manicured hands to produce an endless stream of tanks, planes and ships; while the million-many organized workers stand sullenly by cocking snooks at the patriotic big businesseers.

Needless to say, a little reflection will reveal there's something wrong with this picture.

Oh, to be Bossed by Big Business

Nevertheless, the enterprising Gallup Poll has been able to discover enough believers of what they read in the papers to make the claim that 45% of the American public prefer big-business control of government to labor-union control, as against only 26% who prefer labor to big business.

Of course, a breakdown shows the upper income group most enthusiastic for big-business control, while the lower-income groups lean to labor. And one may wonder whether the many millions with low incomes don't outweigh the few thousands with high incomes, and whether the methods used by the Gallup poll really result in a true picture of public opinion.

Danger to Democracy

But supposing there are any substantial numbers of Americans who crave to be bossed by big business, and who fear the democratic influence of the organized workers, this is indeed a sorry state of affairs.

For if our democracy means anything, it is the working people and associated low-income groups who represent the great majority and who should exert the predominant influence over government. On the other hand, control of government by a tiny big-business minority is a complete negation of democracy.

The chief lesson of this Gallup poll, therefore, is not the pat answer of Barnum that "there's one born every minute." But rather it is the danger to democracy of big-business control of the press and other means of misinforming public opinion.

Labor's answer must be to build a greater labor and people's press; to increase its efforts to inform public opinion in every possible way; and above all to expand its political activities so that democratic influences may prevail over those of big business.

The Real Political Test

For, fortunately for our democracy, the big-business press is not all-powerful. We recall quite a few elections (not unrelated to Pres. Roosevelt and his New Deal) in which the voters have effectively repudiated all the promptings of the big-business press.

After all, elections are a much better test of American public opinion than all the little selective polls conducted by big-business publishers for their own comfort and edification.

And we still doubt whether the American people will knowingly vote for frankly big-business candidates in preference to candidates of labor and the common people.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

GREEDY fingers are reaching out for your wages today and snatching for your family's food.

They want to take from those who have little, to make things easier for those who have much.

That's the tax issue before Congress in a nutshell.

It's just as simple and real as a corporation trying to cut the wages of low-paid workers, to add to the dividends of its stockholders.

Don't let your Congressman, or anyone else, talk you into thinking taxes are too complicated for ordinary folks to understand.

As a union man, you wouldn't let the boss befuddle you with complicated financial details into agreeing you should have less than a living wage, so he may make more profits.

As an American and a taxpayer, don't let any politician get away with the argument that living necessities must be taxed away from essential war workers, to ease the tax burden on the higher-income groups.

★ ★ ★

There are just two kinds of taxes—taxes that fall heaviest on low incomes, and taxes that are based on ability to pay.

The sales tax, for instance, would be a wage cut for the poorest in the land. It would make them pay, say, 10% more for what they buy; while the richest would pay no more than that same 10% on their purchases.

The so-called "individual excess profits tax," similarly, would tax a low-paid worker on the difference between what he earned before the war and what he earns now; while it would not touch the wealthy who were equally wealthy before the war.

Then there's that trial balloon devised by the Chamber of Commerce and recently floated by Senator George (though he would not allow his name to be used in the press).

This is a proposal for allowing tax deductions for increased war bond purchases. It would mean a handsome gift of 15% off taxes for profiteering corporations or wealthy individuals who could afford to put 30% of their incomes into war bonds—at the expense of low-income folks who cannot afford to buy so much in bonds without starving their families.

★ ★ ★

In opposition to all such soak-the-poor proposals, the CIO advances a tax program which clearly shows how necessary additional taxation can be obtained from higher incomes and war profits, on the basis of ability to pay.

The greatest source of taxable income is obviously in the hands of the higher-income groups. Much more can be taxed from them without impairing their health or substantially reducing their living standards.

On the other hand, taxation of the lowest-income groups is taken out of their food and living necessities, endangering their health and efficiency as war workers.

The CIO therefore proposes to exempt from taxation all single persons earning $800 or less, and all married couples earning $1,500 or less, with an additional allowance of $400 for each dependent.

At the same time, it would increase the income taxes of those earning more than $3,000, with rapid progressive increases after $5,000, to the point where no wealthy individual would be allowed to retain more than $25,000 a year net, after taxes.

Another obvious source of increased taxes, based on ability to pay, is corporation war profits, which increased by nearly two billion in the first quarter of 1943, even after all present taxes were paid.

The CIO would increase the tax on corporate profits from the present 40% to 55%, as proposed by the U. S. Treasury last year. It would also impose a 100% excess profits tax on war profits above a reasonable level of return on investment.

There are numerous other practical proposals in the CIO tax program for raising the extra tax revenue needed for victory from those who can best afford to pay, through closing present tax loopholes, through abolishing special tax privileges and through tapping surplus wealth wherever it is found.

One simple touchstone should be applied to every current tax proposal: will it harm our war effort by cutting into the bare living standards of low-paid war workers and farmers?—or will it help to bring speedy victory by raising all the revenue we need from those who can best afford to pay?

Here's What You Have To Do Now To Register To Vote In Vital '44!

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 — Full registration to vote and full use of the right to vote even if you're out of your state is the first step toward a real win-the-war Congress in 1944. Every voter must carry out this step or have only himself to blame if we get another Congress like the one we got in 1942.

For the use of our readers, THE CIO NEWS has prepared a summary of the requirements in all 48 states, based on a study made by the OWI last September.

The study includes provisions for absentee voting. Many thousands of voters have moved to war jobs in new areas. If they are still too recent arrivals in their new locations to be able to register, they should look into the absentee voting requirements of their own states, and make sure to vote there.

ALABAMA

Register in person at Board of Registrars in county (at the courthouse) precinct or ward where you live, during 10 days of January after the fourth Monday, except in Jefferson, Mobile and Montgomery counties.

Absentee ballots from probate judge of your county, must apply not more than 20 or less than five days before election date.

Annual polltax of $1.50, cumulative.

ARIZONA

Register in person before Justice of the Peace or county recorder before five p.m. of the fifth Monday before election.

Absentee ballots from the county recorder, must apply before same time as above. Servicemen: same provisions.

ARKANSAS

Not required to register.

Absentee ballots from county clerk 10 days before election. Servicemen: same as above.

Polltax of $1.00 must be paid before October 1 before election.

CALIFORNIA

Register in person or by mail with county clerk of your county, any time during 39 days before election. Mail registration requires affidavit in duplicate.

Absentee ballot from county clerk, must apply not more than 20 or less than five days before election. Servicemen: same provisions.

COLORADO

Register in person with county clerk, by mail if absentee, up to 10 days before election. Members of same family, provided they live together, can register for one another.

Absentee ballots from county clerk not earlier than fourth Monday before election and not later than noon of the Saturday before election. Servicemen: same provisions.

CONNECTICUT

Register in person with town clerk between fourth and third Saturdays before election.

Absentee ballot from town clerk not more than three months before election day. Servicemen: same provisions.

DELAWARE

Register in person only through local registration board between second Thursday in August and third Saturday before election day.

Absentee voting not permitted, though constitutional amendment allowing it was approved at 1941 legislative session, it must be approved again during 1943 session to be effective.

FLORIDA

Register in person with county registration supervisor between first Monday in August and second Saturday of the month before election or with district registrar between first Monday in September and second Saturday of the month before election. For primaries, county registration books open from first Monday in February through first Monday in March.

Absentee ballots from county judge or town clerk not more than nor less than three days before election. Servicemen: same provisions.

GEORGIA

Register in person on special forms from tax collector or county tax commissioner, filling out forms in his presence six months before election.

Annual polltax of $1.00, due each January 1. Absentee ballots from county registrar by registered mail not more than 60 or less than 10 days before election. Servicemen: same provisions.

IDAHO

Register in person or by mail with county auditor or town clerk. Registration during primary and general election years only, from first Monday in March to 9 p. m. Saturday before primary, and from Saturday before general election.

Absentee ballots from county auditor or city clerk. Servicemen: same provisions.

ILLINOIS

Register in person before county clerk any day except Saturday, Sunday and legal holidays up to 28 days prior to election.

Absentee ballot from county clerk, by mail or in person for Federal, State and local offices. Servicemen: same provisions.

INDIANA

Register in person before circuit court clerk any day from first business day in December to the 29th day before primary; registration resumed May 15th following primary to 29th day before general election.

Absentee ballot from clerk of circuit court for Federal, State, local general and primary elections. With exception of Government employes, two resident property-owing voters must sign application. Servicemen: Same provision (considered Government employes).

IOWA

Registration required only in cities of 10,000 or more. Register in person before commissioner of registration up to and including 10th day before election.

Absentee registration before commissioner of registration up to and including 10th day before election; may vote in general and primary elections for Federal, State and local offices. Servicemen: same provisions.

KANSAS

Register in person if resident of town of 2,000 or more at office of city clerk any time except 10 days before election; register in person if resident of town of 55,000 or more at office of Commissioner of Elections any time except 20 days prior to election.

Absentee ballot in state by affidavit executed at any polling place on election day. Outside state, by filing affidavit in duplicate with county clerk. Servicemen: Same provisions.

KENTUCKY

Register in person with county court clerk any time except 59 days before election. Change of party affiliation may be made by letter to county clerk. Servicemen: Same provisions.

LOUISIANA

Voter must register every four years.

Civilian may not vote by absentee ballot. Prospective absentee may vote not more than 10 days nor less than two days prior to election. Servicemen: May vote in absentia by applying any time before election to clerk of district court of home parish; if from parish of Orleans, apply to civil sheriff.

MAINE

Register in person before Registration Board any day except the 12 business days prior to election of resident of city over 50,000; if resident of city less than 50,000 and over 25,000 register in person before Registration Board not more than 16 days nor less than 6 days before election. Registration permanent.

Absentee ballot from city clerk at any time. Servicemen: same procedure.

MARYLAND

Register in person on 6th and 4th Tuesdays and Wednesdays before election. Registration is permanent except when legislature orders new registration. People from other states must declare their intention to become citizens of the state one year before election, and can register at the same time if no election is scheduled for a year from that date.

Absentee voting not permitted for civilians. Servicemen: May vote in absentia providing Governor issues a proclamation to this effect.

MASSACHUSETTS

Registration required and is permanent providing voter continues to reside where registered, or has expressed intention of retaining residence while absent.

Application and absentee ballot abtained from Secretary of the Commonwealth of city clerk. Servicemen: Same provisions.

MICHIGAN

Register in person or by mail to city clerk any time except 20 days before election. Registration permanent if one votes once every 2 years and does not change his residence.

Absentee ballot from municipal clerk not more than 30 days nor less than two days before elections. Servicemen: Same provisions.

MINNESOTA

Register in person or by mail any time up to 20 days before election to Commissioner of Registration.

Application and absentee ballot from county auditor not more than 30 days and not less than one day before election for Federal, State and local offices. Servicemen: Same provisions, except they may apply at any time.

MISSISSIPPI

Register in person not less than four months before general election.

Absentee voting not permitted for civilians. Servicemen: May vote in absentia for federal, state, and local offices but not in general elections, by absentee registration in person or by mail to county registrar or circuit clerk.

Polltax which cannot exceed $3 per capita. Servicemen exempt.

MISSOURI

Registration required in some parts of state and not in others. Where required must be made in person at municipal election board on 4th Saturday before election day in all cities of 300,000 to 700,000; at county clerk office in towns of less than 300,000.

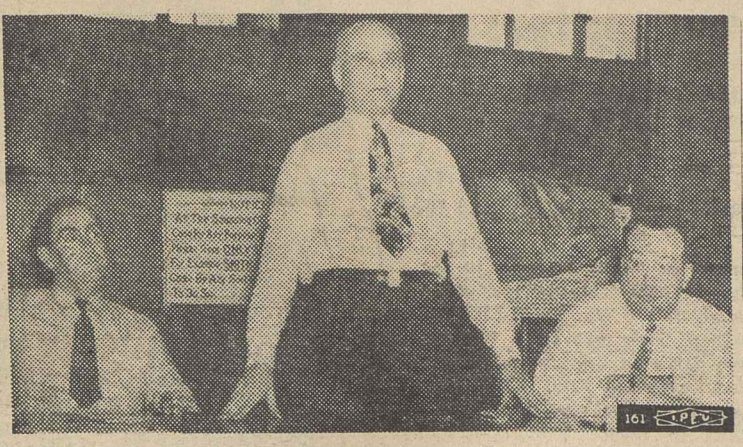
Absentee ballots valid only if marked within state. For federal, state and local offices and primary and general elections application and affidavit submitted to Board of Election Commissioners, Kansas City, not more than 30 nor less than five days before election. Servicemen: Apply in person or by mail not more than 15 nor less than 5 days prior to election.

MONTANA

Register in person before county clerk or deputy register any time except 45 days prior to election. Permanent if one votes in each general election. Must re-register after voting in absentia.

Absentee application and ballot from county clerk any time before 30 days preceding election. Servicemen: Same provisions except that in addition to application must send statement signed by Commanding Officer confirming service in armed forces on day of election.

Regulations for other states will be covered in the next issue of The CIO NEWS.



TALKING POLITICS is a good honest occupation when practiced by CIO members who represent the democratic wishes of the people. Practicing the occupation this week was Van A. Bittner, above, who addressed a meeting called by CIO's Political Action Committee at Birmingham to rally labor and liberal forces in the South for support of CIO's win-the-war program. With him are Sherman H. Dalrymple, left, and R. J. Thomas, secretary of the national committee, which is headed by Sidney Hillman.

Packers, Cattle Trust Seek Price Control Exemption

By THE CIO COST OF LIVING COMMITTEE

Just as the meat problem is being solved through abundant marketings of livestock, the big meat packers and livestock interests have launched a desperate propaganda campaign for the removal of all price control from the meat industry and for the restoration of the "horse sense" principle of supply and demand. The campaign was launched through full page advertisements in all the big newspapers, accompanied by press releases from the Livestock and Meat Council which warned the public that even the military would be without beef "unless the confidence of cattle producers in future government production policies is restored."

BASIC MEAT FACTS

The basic facts in the meat situation are these:

Meat prices are today controlled through ceilings at wholesale and at retail, but without ceilings on livestock.

The OPA has tried and tried to get the consent of the War Food Administration for the imposition of livestock ceilings, but except for hogs this consent has been refused.

The plain fact is that the War Food Administration and its parent organization, the Department of Agriculture, serve as pressure groups for the producer interests, and are interested not in controlling prices but in raising prices.

WFA SQUEEZES PUBLIC

Because of the refusal of the War Food Administration to consent to livestock ceilings and because of direct encouragement to the cattle growers to hold out for higher prices, the general public was caught in a squeeze all spring and summer.

The cattlemen held back their cattle on the ranges and reduced their marketings to a minimum. A serious meat shortage thus resulted. The big meat packers and their allies, the cattle growers kept blaming the OPA for this shortage and hoped to stir up enough public clamor to succeed either in dismantling price control or (what amounts to the same thing) transferring price control to the War Food Administration. They put on a tremendous drive in Congress, but the President stood firm.

In the meantime the public, thanks to meat rationing—which did not make more meat supplies, but which did succeed in equalizing the scarcity—tightened its belt and proceeded to wait out the strike of the cattle growers.

PRESS WAS SILENT

(If labor in wartime had conducted a six months strike on the same basis as the cattle growers, you can imagine what would have happened: there was never a word from the newspapers in condemnation of the cattle growers.)

As a result of the patience of the public, the cattle growers overplayed their hand. The cattle could be kept on the ranges only during the summer months. As the ranges dried up, marketings began to increase. Now we face a relative abundance of meat.

If the public takes advantage of the present situation to press for the adoption of livestock ceilings at fair prices we can be assured of a good meat supply at fair prices—prices, that is to say, fair to the cattlemen, fair to the packers and fair to the public—for the duration of the war.

The game of the cattlemen and the big meat packers is to prevent this from happening. They want the removal not only of all price ceilings, but of all controls on marketing. They want, in other words, freedom to manipulate the market even in a time of relative abundance. Later on they want to force prices to the roof, as they succeeded in doing during the last war.

SWEETHEART NECKLINE: War workers will look their best in this simple but smart fall frock. Dainty ruching, inserted around the neckline and running along the side-button fastening, adds to its charm. Pattern No. 8481 is in sizes 10 to 20. Send 15 cents in coin, your name, address, pattern number and size to Federated Press Pattern Service, 106 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. Enclose 1 cent postage.

Washington, Aug. 28—Results of the drive of the anti-price control gang in Congress to kill grade labelling are seen in OPA orders released this week permitting merchandising of 19 commodities without any indication of its quality.

In other words, the vote of the majority of Congress earlier this session took away from every consumer the protection he once had from chiseling on quality and consequent cheating on prices, practiced throughout industry.

The commodities are important ones, such as butter, eggs, beans, rayon stockings, tobacco, antifreeze, lumber, canned goods and the like.

From now on the consumer will have absolutely no way of knowing whether the commodity he buys is of standard quality or inferior. OPA's provision that manufacturers can continue voluntary labelling will have no effect whatever on industry-wide practices of quality chiseling.

Thomas Asks Federal Trial Of Rioters

Detroit, Aug. 28 — Federal prosecution of the those responsible for the recent Detroit riots was urged this week by Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union in an address before the Double-V Committee.

"Now that it appears that we are not to get a local grand jury investigation, I think it is imperative that the Federal government step in and do the kind of job which apparently our local politicans do not have either the courage or the desire to do," Thomas declared.

"Prevalence of racial hatred and the outbreak of racial violence on our home front weakens our entire war effort. If this violence is not to recur from time to time, our Federal government, through its appropriate agencies, should act at once forcefully to eliminate the basic causes of racial friction."

2-1 Rubber Victory

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 28—A nearly two-to-one victory was won here this week in an NLRB election by the United Rubber Workers Union at the U. S. Rubber Co. The vote was: URW—1,720; "no union"—924.

Backs Repeal Of Chinese Exclusion Act

Washington, Aug. 28—CIO's support of legislation to repeal the Chinese Exclusion Act will be upheld by Monroe Sweetland, director of the National CIO War Relief Committee, in a nationwide broadcast of America's Town Meeting of the Air on September 2 at 8:30 p. m. EWT.

Sweetland will be joined in advocating repeal of the measure by Rep. Walter Judd of Minnesota. Opposing them will be Rep. John Bennett of Michigan, and E. B. Libonati, Americanism chairman of the American Legion.

Repeal of the act has been advocated by increasingly large sections of organized labor and the American public during the six years that China has been waging its heroic struggle against the Japanese.

Hundreds of prominent liberals, labor leaders and daily newspapers such as the Washington Post and the New York Times have branded the law as a needless affront to one of our foremost United Nations allies.

Axis propagandists, and particularly the Japanese radio, have constantly dinned into the ears of the people of India, Burma, Thailand, China and other Asiatic nations that the very existence of the exclusion law is evidence that the United States bears no real friendship for the peoples of the Orient and that they should therefore succumb to Japan's "New Asiatic Order."

CIO Labor Day Talks

Washington, Aug. 28—A schedule of CIO leaders' Labor Day speeches was announced this week, with no word at press time, however, regarding the exact plans of Pres. Philip Murray and Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey.

Vice-Pres. and Director of Organization Allan S. Haywood will address a Tarentum Industrial Council rally at Tarentum, Pa. Van A. Bittner, assistant to the president of the United Steelworkers, will speak at a Bethlehem, Pa., USA rally September 5.

Others scheduled include: Regional Director Frank J. Bender, at a joint CIO-AFL celebration at Rockford, Ill.; Regional Director Fullerton Fulton, at a PWOC rally at Omaha, Neb.; Regional Director Powers Hapgood, at a joint CIO-AFL meeting at Sioux City, Iowa; Lee Pressman, CIO General Counsel, at Milwaukee; and Len De Caux, CIO publicity director, at a CIO rally at Duluth, Minn.

Women Leave War Jobs As WMC Stalls

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, Congress of Women's Auxiliaries

Many more women than men are leaving war jobs, Paul V. McNutt, director of the War Manpower Commission, told his press conference yesterday. This is one of the serious current manpower problems. And is the WMC planning to do something about it? "No, there is nothing you can do with women but try to persuade them," said Mr. McNutt.

This flippant approach by a top government official to a serious national problem is shocking. Women aren't leaving industry because their patriotism has worn thin. They're leaving because they can't meet pressing home problems.

First comes child care. Here something has been done. $10,500,000 of Federal funds were allocated for child care centers to communities in the last fiscal year by the Federal Works Agency to care for 75,000 children 2 to 5 and 105,000 school age children.

PROGRAM INADEQUATE

About $20,000,000 of the new appropriation for community facilities in war areas is estimated to be available to continue and expand this program. When you consider that about a million children are estimated to need care, the inadequacy of the present Federal program is obvious.

Child care is not the only problem which women workers can't meet themselves under war conditions. Consider shopping, for instance — especially food shopping. By the time most women are through work most stores are closed and those which are open have exhausted their supplies of meat, butter and many other scarce foods.

In England they have a number of plans to meet this problem. Special time off for shopping is one. Priority cards entitling women workers to leave orders for their fair share of scarce foods is another.

ILLNESS INCREASED

As far as I know no serious attempt has been made in the United States to enable working women to buy the ingredients of a healthy diet. The result—chronic fatigue from inadequate nutrition, increased illness and absenteeism and finally quitting of jobs.

Then there's laundry. "If you want these shirts in less than three weeks, don't leave them here," my laundry man says. And I'm lucky. He's still open. At long last we hear that three Federal agencies are trying to do something about the laundry problem.

First of all they're urging speed on the processing of applications for wage increases in laundries. That's a forward step. But don't be hasty in condemning the patriotism of women who have spent evenings over the laundry tub and all day Sunday on the ironing—in addition to everything else—and literally exhausted their health in the process.

PLANNING NEEDED

Total up a day which includes 8 or more hours on the job; an hour or two or three standing on busses and cars getting to and from work; standing in line for a hasty bite in a cafeteria or gulping a sandwich and coffee in a corner; standing in line for half an hour to an hour at the grocery; the evening routine of cooking, dishes, cleaning; repeat that day six days a week, and it isn't hard to understand why women are leaving jobs. They're worn out. The amazing thing is that they stand it as long as they do.

Patriotic appeals and flippant remarks are no solution. National planning to lessen home burdens of women workers is what is needed.

Save Cucumbers For Winter Pickling

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

If you have a large crop of cucumbers in your Victory garden here's a way to keep them until you're ready to make your favorite pickles and relishes.

STEPS IN BRINING

1. Get underipe cucumbers and weigh them.

2. Scrub them clean and pack them in wooden, stone-ware or enamel containers.

3. Cover with 10% brine. That means 1 part of salt to 9 parts of water. If you're measuring with a cup—1 cup of salt to 9 cups of water.

4. Place a plate on the pickles to weight them down and keep them completely under the water. Plate will also be under water.

5. Cover the container with cheesecloth.

6. Next day place ½ lb. of ordinary table salt for every 5 lbs. of cucumbers on the plate in the water of container. The salt will gradually dissolve in the water and keep the solution at 10% strength. Don't dump the salt around the sides of the container because the salt would go to the bottom too quickly and make the solution at the bottom too strong while the solution at the top will be too weak.

7. You have to keep the cucumbers brined for 5 or 6 weeks—each week add 2 oz. of salt to every 5 lbs. of cucumbers.

8. Skim off scum but don't disturb the pickles.

9. Fermentation is complete when bubbles stop coming to the top.

10. When ready to use, wash cucumbers in changes of warmish water till a sample tastes only slightly salty. You can eat them as salt pickles or put them up as dill, sweet or sour pickles. For quick brining of small quantities of cucumbers—pickles can be prepared without fermenting, as described in last week's column.

POINTERS ON BRINING

1. Never use copper or brass kettle for making pickles because the acids form poisonous salts.

2. To prevent spoilage be sure to keep the brine at least one inch above the pickles.

3. If the pickles have to be kept longer than 6 to 8 weeks increase the strength of the brine to 15% (1½ cups salt to 10 cups water) after six weeks.

4. Cucumbers sometimes become hollow and float in the brine. Don't throw them away. Cut them up to make mixed pickles and relishes.

5. Brining is best not more than 24 hours after cucumbers are picked.

6. Scum will appear on the top of the cucumbers as they stand in the brine. Skim it off as soon as you notice it. Don't let it collect because it will spoil the top layer. If you find the top layer is already damaged, simply remove the cucumbers and cover the rest with a little more fresh brine.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

Hugh Thompson, Reg. Dir., announces an election victory at the Wurlitzer Plant in North Tonawanda, N. Y., by the UERMWA, 583 for CIO to 155 for no union.

Frank Cronin, Acting Reg. Dir., reports an election victory at International Milling Co., Sioux City, Iowa. CIO polled 47 votes as against 9.

G. Geo. DeNucci, Sub-Reg. Dir., sends in the following victories: Diamond Milk Products Co., Columbus, URWDSEA-CIO 35 to 23 for no union, with Intl. Rep. of the Dairy Workers Division, Charles Scott, in charge of the campaign; Columbus Dispatch Printing Co., ANG-CIO, 73 to 23 against, with ANG Rep. Steve Ripley in charge.

Ewald Sandner, Reg. Dir., sends in the following election victories: Magnetic Pigment Co., Trenton, N. J., MMSW 55, no union 30; N. J. Shipbuilding Co., Perth Amboy, IUM&SWA-CIO—616, AFL—496, Independent—112. Field Reps. William Bell and George Morton report a victory at Marine Fabricating Co., Perth Amboy. The management, by a card check, agreed to recognize the CIO as bargaining agency, and a contract is being negotiated. This plant employs 700 workers. The Avery Steel Co., Perth Amboy, also recognized the CIO as bargaining agency and is now negotiating with the IUM&SWA; 75 employes involved.

George Craig, Reg. Dir., advises of an election victory at the Warren J. Steel Silk Mill, Bristol, Pa., by the Textile Workers Union, with a vote of 124 for CIO as against 47.

Sidney Cohen, Research Dir., OWIU Organizing Campaign, sends in results of an NLRB victory at Danciger Oil Co., Borger, Texas, where CIO won by a vote of 46 as against 3.

Secretary Carey and I addressed the Intl. Woodworkers Convention in Sacramento last week. The convention endorsed CIO policies and expressed a vote of confidence in President Murray and the CIO and voted to renew the organizing campaign with the CIO in charge under the directorship of Adolph Germer. President Lowery was nominated for reelection without opposition. The delegates demonstrated a genuine spirit of unity and are the real type that make up the CIO.

From there I went to Portland and Seattle to address the representatives of the CIO unions there.

All along my trip I found the CIO representatives actively supporting the war effort and on their toes in organizing. All along the tour, I found a healthy sentiment prevailing which speaks well for the future of the CIO and proves that the workers have confidence in our great movement.

Reg. Dir. E. L. Sandefur reports a nearly two-to-one victory by the United Rubber Workers Union at the U. S. Rubber Co., Charlotte, N. C. Score was: URW, 1,720; "no union," 924. Congratulations!

Labor Vote Wins Big Majority In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 28—(ALN)—The overwhelming victory of Prime Minister John Curtin's Labor government in this week's general election, the first in three years, is primarily due to the solid support given him by the Australian Council of Trade Unions, representing 800,000 of Australia's 1,000,000 trade unionists. The importance of the trade union vote may be seen from the fact that Australia's total vote is 4,500,000. Eight hundred thousand soldiers' ballots are still to be counted.

Almost complete returns show that the Labor Party now holds 53 seats in the House of Representatives, compared with 36 out of 75 in the last House. Curtin's government until now depended on the support of two independents.

In the Senate, the government holds 18 of the 36 seats, and will have 22 Senate seats in July, 1944, when newly elected Senators will be eligible to sit.

CABINET IN

All cabinet members were re-elected, Curtin himself winning by a 2-1 vote compared with his scant majority of 641 in the election held three years ago.

Candidates of both the United Australia Party and the Country Party, representing big business interests, were overwhelmingly defeated, including former Prime Minister A. W. Fadden, a leading critic of Curtin's government. Former Prime Ministers Robert G. Menzies and W. M. Hughes, also opposition leaders, were re-elected, though their majorities were considerably less than in 1940.

Following the removal of the threat of imminent Japanese invasion, the business-dominated UAP endeavored to take advantage of hardships resulting from the wartime measures of the Federal government, and through Fadden moved a "no-confidence" vote against the government. The motion was defeated on June 24, but Curtin announced the general election.

Commenting on the election results, Curtin said: "The people, through the ballot box, broadly endorsed the administration of my government at a period in which the nation was in grave peril. I deeply appreciate this demonstration of confidence and all members of the government will do their utmost to justify the trust reposed in them."

British Hit Bungling In Aircraft

London, Aug. 28 (ALN)—The Ministry of Aircraft Production, headed by Sir Stafford Cripps, was charged this week by the British Trades Union Congress with "large-scale bungling in its expansion program."

Claiming that the transfer of workers was resulting in serious waste of labor, the TUC declared: "We have warned Sir Stafford Cripps that the unions cannot agree to further transfers of workers to places where there is not proper billeting accommodation and where men and women are working less than a 50-hour week."

Pointing out that many workers in the aircraft industry are being transferred to districts where the work week is only 47 hours, an Amalgamated Engineering Union official told Allied Labor News:

"We do not consider that the 50-hour week is excessive under present wartime conditions. Until all the workers in a given district are employed this number of hours, we feel that no attempt should be made to bring workers from other areas into places that are already suffering from insufficient housing accommodation and a serious transport problem."

It was recently computed that 250,000 houses in Great Britain had been lost due to enemy bombing, plus a further 1,250,000 that would have been built during the past four years had it not been for the war.

Between the outbreak of hostilities and the end of 1942, it was estimated that 5,000,000 persons changed their homes, some of them several times. Deterioration, lack of building materials and shortage of labor, are additional causes for the housing problem.

CIO War Relief Marks 2nd Year Of Giving

Washington, Aug. 28—Two years spent in raising millions of dollars for domestic and foreign war relief needs by CIO members will be marked next month by the National CIO War Relief Committee.

The huge funds contributed by 5,000,000 CIO members through their War Relief Committee in the two years of its existence already constitute one of organized labor's outstanding contributions toward a smashing defeat of Axis tyranny and the establishment of democratic freedom through the world, according to Chairman Irving Abramson.

Last year CIO members dug deep into their pockets to give more than $20,000,000 for war relief purposes. More than $7,000,000 was raised for the Red Cross.

INTERNATIONAL AID

Welding a deeper international fraternity with the workers of other lands, the CIO together with the AFL earmarked $2,000,000 for special labor programs in England, China and the Soviet Union.

With more than 1,000,000 CIO members in the armed forces, the CIO Committee has undertaken a large variety of special projects for the comfort and convenience of servicemen and women in camps from coast to coast. These projects have included day rooms, recreational and athletic facilities, musical instruments and numerous items of camp equipment.

Today the members of the CIO and AFL are the largest source of financial support for the USO, the Red Cross, and British, Russian and Chinese war relief.

More than 35 per cent of all CIO members are now contributing one hour's pay a month to their local community war chests. From here their gifts are channeled in countless directions.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

Part of every relief dollar given by a CIO member during the past year has gone to local community welfare agencies in his own city—to hospitals, clinics, orphan homes, to the Boy Scouts or the YWCA. Another part went to the Red Cross, the USO or the United Seamen's Service. Still another part has gone to War Prisoners Aid and the U. S. Committee for Care of European Children.

Finally, part of the CIO relief dollar ended up with agencies serving our United Nations allies—British, Chinese and Russian war relief, Greek War Relief, Norwegian, Belgian, Polish and Czechoslovakian war relief, to name a few.

In scores of cities throughout the country this year, CIO contributions to local community war chests have proved the difference between success and failure in achieving campaign goals. This was due to a great extent, according to Abramson, to the fact that in countless communities organized labor was for the first time given specific credit for its gifts where in the past collections had been credited to the employer.

The $20,000,000 contributed to war relief by CIO members last year is only a "starter," according to Monroe Sweetland, national director of the committee. Plans for 1943-44 envision total contributions far exceeding last year's achievement.

In addition to their war relief contributions, CIO members have purchased more than $1,500,000,000 worth of war bonds.

CIO Leader Hails Irish Unions' Blast At Nazi Axis

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 (ALN)—The stand against fascism taken by the Eire Trades Union Congress at its recent annual convention in Cork was hailed here today by Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union. News of the ETUC's anti-fascist vote, first reported by Allied Labor News, was delayed owing to strict Eire censorship. The De Valera government prohibited a report of the convention from being cabled outside of Eire or from being printed in the Eire press.

At its Bundoran convention last year, the ETUC rejected a similar anti-fascist resolution proposed by the Belfast Trade Council.

CENSORSHIP

"Despite the strict censorship which has been clamped down on labor news by the Eire government, the Irish people in America have reason to rejoice at the stand taken by the Eire Trades Union Congress at its convention in the city of Cork," Quill said in an interview with Allied Labor News.

"The Congress, for the first time, went on record by a vote of 54 to 29 on where the Irish people stand in the fight against fascism. It hailed the struggle of the democratic peoples of the world against fascism—the destroyer of all trade union rights and liberties—and pledged eternal vigilance against the fascist danger at home and abroad.

"To my mind this expresses the true will of the Irish people who cannot be content sitting on the fence while the people of the democratic countries are shedding their blood, and even their very lives, to fight the greatest of all menaces—the nazi-fascist tyrants.

"This is an indication that the sacrifices made by such great Irish working-class leaders as James Connolly and others were not made in vain."

2 New Political Action 'Musts' Issued by CIO

CIO has two new political action pamphlets off the press this week, both of them required reading for every worker and his wife who are concerned about what Congress will do to them and to the country the rest of this year—and what we can do for a real victory Congress in 1944.

The two newest guides to action are:

1. "Labor Political Action," with a foreword by Pres. Murray, which contains speeches of Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Committee on Political Action, and the committee's statement of July. (12 pp., 100 for $2.25, 500 for $6.75, 1,000 for $13.00.)

2. "Your New Taxes—Wage Cut or War Aid?" a leaflet on the new tax bill that will come up first thing when Congress reconvenes in September. (Illustrated, prices on request.)

Order both from: Publicity Dept., CIO, 718 Jackson Pl. NW, Washington 6, D. C.

Carey Flays Anti-Victory Congressmen

Lima, Ohio, Aug. 26—Attacks on Congressional enemies of the victory drive and of labor were made by CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey in a radio speech here this week.

Carey's speech, which was extemporaneous, went over the air without attempted censorship, though a week earlier Richard T. Frankensteen was censored when he tried to talk about the record of Senator Taft, tory Republican from Cincinnati.

"I cannot commend you in your choice in the House of Representatives in Washington. There is no question about his attitude. The record of your Congressman is perfect. He has not voted at any time for the interests of the people—a perfect black record," Carey said.

"Since the trade union is the only organization in the world which does not pick its own members, it is up to those people who built the organization to continue it. The employer selects members for the union, it signs them with the union.

"The CIO and all trade unionists are doing a great job in turning out the material through which we will win the war, but the work of the union does not stop with victory in the conflict. It goes even further. We must make certain that we understand questions facing the nation."

Win Rubber Vote

Los Angeles, Aug. 28—The United Rubber Workers Union this week won an election among plant protection employes of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. plant by a vote of 28 to 8.

Hits Slowdown Slur On Dockers

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28—An official slapdown of malicious charges that the CIO Longshoremen were slowing down on their war jobs and that efficiency was much below the east coast, brought thanks and gratification from Harry Bridges, CIO Longshoremen's president and California regional director.

Brides' union, the ILWU, was the author with other CIO maritime unions of a wartime shipping plan that would greatly speed loading and transport of materials. The plan was offered to the government some time ago by the maritime unions and by CIO Pres. Philip Murray.

"We are extremely gratified that charges of deliberate slowdown, of absenteeism and of inefficiency made by Chairman Paul Eliel of the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board and F. P. Foisie of the Waterfront Employers Assn. were found to be without foundation in the unanimous opinion of Senator Downey's committee," Bridges said.

The Downey Committee, which has been looking into waterfront conditions following release of the CIO war shipping plan, said that CIO Longshoremen, far from slowing down as charged by employer agents, "are almost universally working to the limit of their capacities."

Ask 2nd Front Now

New York, Aug. 28—Urgent requests for the immediate establishment of a second front in Western Europe were wired this week to President Roosevelt, at Quebec, by executive groups of the United Office & Professional Workers Union and Local 65, United Retail, Wholesale & Warehouse Workers.

"Been working much overtime lately, Mr. Schuster?"

WLB Hits Monty-Ward, Grants Union Security

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—The Natl. War Labor Board this week sharply criticized the anti-union attitude of Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., in a decision which granted maintenance of membership, arbitration procedure, a voluntary checkoff and seniority protection to the United Retail, Wholesale & Warehouse Workers, representing 800 workers at stores in Denver, New York and Detroit.

In an opinion on the case which upheld the constitutionality of the War Labor Disputes Act, Dean Wayne L. Morse said for the WLB that a "take it or leave it" attitude on the part of employers in collective bargaining with unions is "fast becoming passe."

Addressing his remarks directly at objections made by Montgomery Ward officials because of a WLB panel decision which the Board substantially upheld, Morse declared:

"Such arbitration procedure does not violate the managerial rights of the employer, but, rather, protects both the employer and the union from arbitrary, capricious, and dictatorial acts which either may seek to practice upon the other.

"It is the observation of the War Labor Board that in most cases in which employers have opposed arbitration as a last step in the grievance procedure, the facts show an unwillingness on the part of the employer to cooperate wholeheartedly with the union in collective bargaining. The instant case is no exception to that observation."

Dean Morse said that as the War Labor Board saw the company's position it was that "even though it may enter into a collective bargaining agreement with a union as required by law, it reserves the right to defeat the aims and objectives of such an agreement by relegating to itself the authority of interpreting and applying that agreement as it sees fit.

CRITICIZES CO. STAND

He added that "employers who take the position that their employes must work under a collective bargaining agreement as the employer dictates, irrespective of honest differences of opinion as to whether the employer's interpretations are in conformity with the terms of the collective bargaining agreement, are likely not to fare so well before an arbitrator. Such a 'take it or leave it' attitude on the part of the employers is fast becoming passe, and fortunately so, in American industry.

"As long as unions are not free to strike and by means of striking seek to improve their economic force, it is not fair to permit employers to settle grievances any way they choose and at the same time policy places mutual responsibilities and obligations on both management and labor. By its very nature it is a restrictive policy insofar as the exercise of peace-time industrial relations practices are concerned.

"It is not a 'one way' policy which only disarms labor of its economic weapons and leaves management free to settle grievances any way it chooses and not to settle them at all if it so chooses."

Blame Police For Detroit Riot Deaths

Detroit, Aug. 28—The shame of Detroit's recent riot was laid in large part this week directly on the "willful inefficiency" of the police, who killed 17 Negroes and not a single white person. The blame was placed by the Natl. Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, in a 36-page booklet entitled, "What Caused the Detroit Riot," which stated:

"The faces of between 800 and 1,000 white rioters engaged in assaulting, killing, kicking or otherwise violating the law against the persons of Negroes, or engaged in willful destruction of property such as the overturning and burning of the automobiles of Negroes are clearly identifiable, but few if any of them have even been arrested.

"The trouble reached riot proportions because the police of Detroit once again enforced the law under an unequal hand. They used 'persuasion' rather than firm action with white rioters, while against Negroes they used the ultimate in force: Nightsticks, revolvers, riot guns, sub-machine gune and deer guns."

No-Strike Pledge Not A Stick To Beat Labor-WLB

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—The Natl. War Labor Board told an employer this week in plain English that he could not use labor's no-strike pledge as an excuse to smash unions, which the WLB classified as vital to successful prosecution of the war.

The point was made by Wayne L. Morse, public member of the WLB, who spoke for the Board in ordering Bernard A. Moran, president of the Atlantic Iron Works Inc., at Greenpoint, Brooklyn, N. Y., either to sign a contract with the Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers or have his yard seized by the government. Moran said he would choose the latter alternative.

The contract, as approved 10 weeks ago by the WLB, would provide for arbitration of grievance that cannot be voluntarily adjusted and for a maintenance of membership clause.

Morse, in discussions with Moran, said that labor's no-strike pledge implies "a protection of American unions from attempts on the part of certain types of American employers to destroy unions during the war.

"I think," he said, "that one of the most disastrous things that could happen to this country would be the destruction of American unions, because I think we are going to have to rely upon organized labor and other elements in the country to protect us from different forms of government that some classes within the country seek to impose upon this country.

"I think" Morse continued, "that the nearsightedness of certain employer capitalists in France in thinking that they could better get along with the Fascist regime under Hitler's domination than they could with organized labor was partly responsible for the fall of France.

"I am just putting up a warning flag to American employers that are taking the attitude you are taking," Morse told Moran.

Connally Bill Won't Crack Wagner Act, Labor Board Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—The guiding principles of the Natl. Labor Relations Act are not going to be thrown overboard by strikes or threats of strikes under the anti-labor Smith-Connally Act. That was the ruling handed down this week by the Natl. Labor Relations Board in a case involving a local of District 50, United Mine Workers Union, at the Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co., at Springfield, Ill.

The NLRB denied an application by District 50 for an election at the plant for the same reason an original denial was issued—because a contract is in existence between the company and the CIO United Farm Equipment & Metal Workers. The pact expires April 15.

District 50 renewed its request for an election to determine representation after it had filed notice for a strike vote and 1,005 employes voted "yes" and 836 "no" in a strike ballot August 4, the first held under the War Labor Disputes Act.

The union held that the strike referendum must be construed as having established its majority status, and that the board then was called upon to reverse its decision. The NLRB replied:

"The implications of District 50's position are of the utmost important and extend beyond the confines of this particular case. If upheld, it would mean that the Board's exercise of the discretion conferred upon it by Congress through the National Labor Relations Act . . . would be made dependent upon the outcome of strike ballots. . ."

The NLRB, as an agency of the government, should not allow itself to be influenced in the conduct of its proceedings by any pressure brought to bear on it through strikes of threats of strikes, it ruled.

The War Labor Disputes Act does not deal with employe representation, said the NLRB. The only issue in the case, it said, was "whether, in the interests of stability and the collective bargaining relationship, the Board should entertain a representation proceeding in the face of the company's existing contractural relationship with the CIO. . ."

Here's Dope on Income Tax Due in September

(Ed. Note: The following article explaining the procedure for filing the "declaration of estimated income and victory tax" due September 15 was specially written for The CIO NEWS by the U. S. Treasury Dept. It outlines the steps required of wage earners and others with estimated incomes for 1943 above $3,500 for married couples, $2,700 for single persons. Read it carefully for guidance in making out your return, if you come in these groups.)

Income tax liability for the most part is being met currently through "withholding"—that is, through deductions from wages. Approximately two-thirds of all the individual income tax payers of the country are now enjoying this benefit. They include, generally, all those whose sources of income are limited to wages or salaries subject to withholding and whose annual earnings do not exceed $2,700 for single persons and $3,500 for married couples.

Those who, because of higher earnings or because of income from sources other than wages or salaries, do not have their income tax liability fully discharged by withholding are about to become acquainted with another current tax payment procedure. It is the filing, on or before September 15, of a declaration of estimated income and Victory tax.

With the filing of each declaration, payment of at least half of any estimated tax balance will be made.

To make the September 15 declaration task an easy one, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has prepared a simple form which requires only a few minutes time to fill out. It is officially labeled Form 1040-ES. With it goes a simplified instruction and work sheet for use in estimating the tax on incomes of not more than $10,000.

Forms Mailed

Copies of the declaration form and the simplified instruction sheet have been sent to persons who filed income tax returns last March. An alternative instruction and work sheet can be had from any Collector of Internal Revenue by anyone wishing to make a more detailed calculation of his tax debt.

Only about 15,000,000 persons, the Treasury Department estimates, are subject to the declaration filing requirement. The withholding plan which became effective last July 1 discharges fully the current income tax liability of some 30,000,000 others.

Putting the declaration plan into effect will have the result of placing all taxpayers on an even footing under the new "pay as you go" tax law—wage earners, business men, professional people and all others, be their individual income taxes large or small.

Who Must File

Those required to file the declarations and make a payment on the balance of their estimated tax above credits are, generally:

(1) The recipients this year or last year of gross incomes from wages subject to withholding in excess of $2,700 for single persons or $3,500 for married couples;

(2) Those who have incomes this year or had incomes last year requiring the filing of an income or Victory tax return, with more than $100 of these incomes derived from sources other than wages subject to withholding;

(3) Those required to file an income return on 1942 incomes and whose wages subject to withholding for 1943 are reasonably expected to be less than their similar wages for 1942.

The requirements are stated more fully on the instruction sheets now being sent to taxpayers.

What To Do

Where declarations show an estimated tax liability for 1943 in excess of credits, half of the excess is to be sent to the Collector of Internal Revenue along with the declaration, and the other half remitted on or before December 15.

Credits to be taken on the declaration include all amounts withheld from the taxpayer's wages or salary for the entire year (this figure probably can be obtained from your employer), and any payments which the taxpayer made to his Collector last March and June on account of his 1942 taxes.

The reason why single persons earning more than $2,700 from wages subject to withholding and married persons earning more than $3,500 must file the estimates is that their higher earnings probably will bring them under the second or higher surtax brackets of the income tax. Withholding does not cover the taxes accruing in surtax brackets above the first.

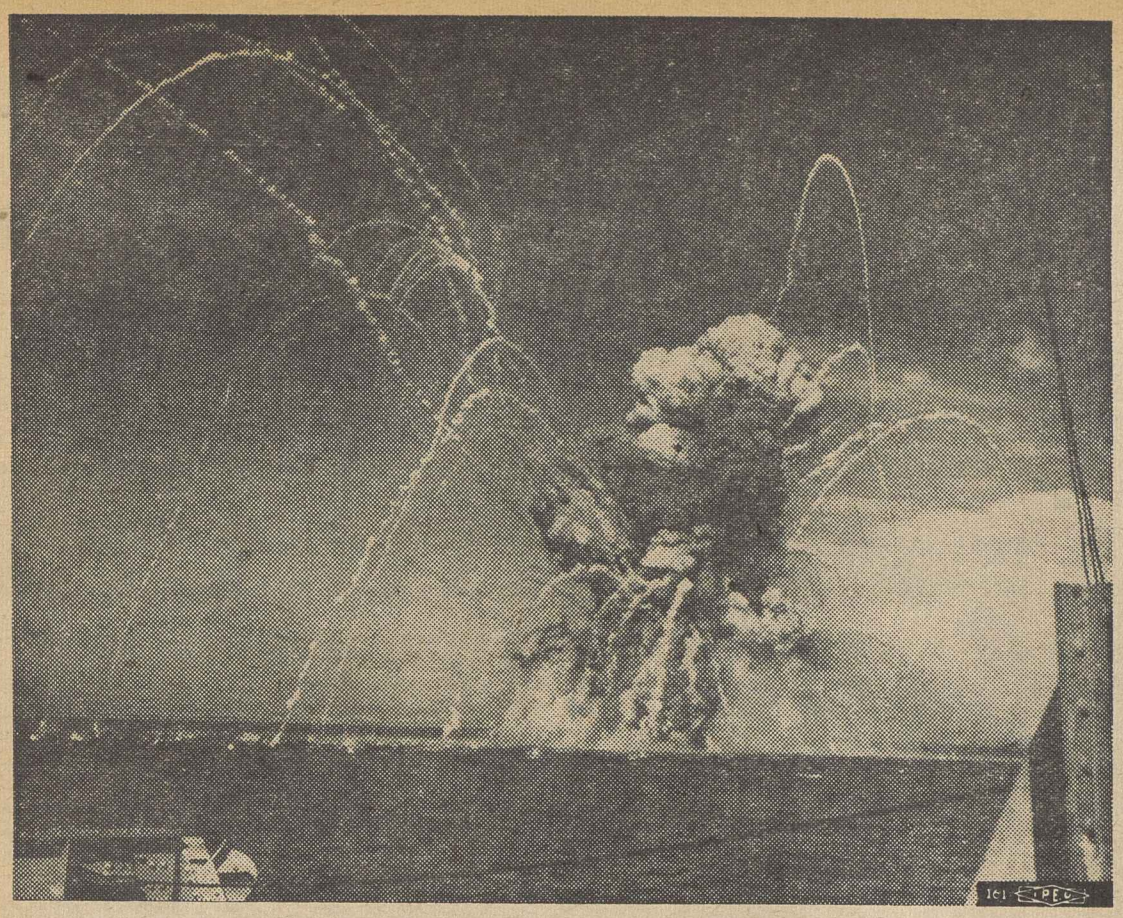
On Current Basis

Professional people and certain other classes—for instance, agricultural labor, ministers of the gospel and domestic servants — are required to file the estimates, if their incomes reach the ordinary income or Victory tax return levels, because their earnings are exempt from withholding. The declaration plan puts them on a current basis along with everybody else.

The marital status of a taxpayer is determined, for purposes of the declaration, as of the date on which the estimate is made. A taxpayer who becomes liable for an estimate after the first filing date, because of a change in income or marital status, must file a declaration on or before December 15.

It is not expected that the average taxpayer required to file an estimate will hit the amount of his 1943 tax exactly "on the nose." Most persons will have adjustments in small amounts, one way or another, when their final returns on the year's income are made next March 15, as usual.

Some still will owe the Government a little; there will be cases of persons entitled to a refund from the Government. However, in the usual case this settling up on March 15 will be a minor matter.



AND PEGLER SMEARS THE SEAMEN!

A fraction of an ounce of the kind of explosives going off (above) would probably scare the pants off the typewriter admiral of the Scripps Howard press, whose current poison campaign is directed at the CIO Natl. Maritime Union. The picture is a sample of what NMU members have to take when ammunition ships they sail on are hit by Nazi dive bombers, as this one was during the invasion of Sicily. Coast Guard caption failed to say whether a single seaman was saved.

NLRB Blasts Connally Act As Strike Provoker

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—Proof that the Smith-Connally Act provokes strikes rather than prevents them, as pointed out by labor people in opposing passage of the bill, was furnished this week in a study by the Natl. Labor Relations Board showing big majorities for strikes in the votes that have been taken.

According to the act, notice of intent to strike must be filed and a strike vote taken 30 days before action. This was described by the sponsors of the bill as a "cooling-off" period, during which workers thinking of strike action would presumably change their minds.

Actually, as NLRB records show, a majority has voted to strike in every poll taken so far under the Smith-Connally act. The Board has taken votes in some 13 cases and in each from 60 to 100 per cent of the voters have voted for a strike.

Altogether, the NLRB says, 180 notices of intention to strike have been filed, and some 75 withdrawn to date. In addition, the Board points out, the law requires it to take the vote on the 30th day, which forces the Board to drop other essential work for the long-drawn out process of taking the poll.

N. Y. TIMES CRITICISM

Following publication of the vote, the New York Times, never overly hostile to anti-union legislation, came out with a strong editorial describing how "ill-considered and mischievous many of the provisions of the miscalled Anti-Strike Act appear to be," and calling for their repeal.

Number one item on the legislative program of the CIO, the AFL and all organized labor goes a step beyond even the New York Times "bold" stand in calling for repeal of the entire act as a hindrance to war production.

The NLRB analysis contained an interesting sidelight, showing that CIO unions by far are living up best to the no strike pledge labor made after Pearl Harbor.

DISTRICT 50 DISRUPTION

Of the 180 strike petitions, 111 were filed by AFL unions, 37 by CIO, 31 by the small number of "independent" unions, and one by a group of employes without reference to a union.

Largest filer among the independents was, as might be expected, John L. Lewis' disruptive branch of the United Mine Workers—District 50.

CIO-WLB Men Back Portal Pay

Washington, Sept. 4—Portal-to-portal pay for coal miners should be granted on the same basis that other miners receive it, CIO members of the Natl. War Labor Board said in a dissenting opinion on the case released here this week. The pay, to compensate for hours spent underground travelling from the mine entrance to the working place, was denied by the majority of the WLB.

The four CIO members, Van A. Bittner, John Brophy, Delmond Garst and Carl J. Shipley, held that court decisions granting the award to other miners, the WLB decision granting time and a half to coal miners after seven hours, and union contracts in coal providing for time and a half, should apply in making the decision.

U. S. Big Boss During War, Says WLB

Washington, Sept. 4—War powers of the President and the Congress of the United States supersede, during the war, acts of state legislatures in labor relations matters, the War Labor Board declared this week.

"No law of a state which is aimed at inserting conditions in a collective bargaining contract between an employer and the bargaining agent of the employes can be said to supersede any order of the War Labor Board regulating relations between employer and employe in time of war when the power to issue that regulation flows from the war powers of the United States," Wayne L. Morse, public member of the Board stated in an opinion.

This opinion was written in a case involving a State law, the Wisconsin Employment Peace Act, which provides that an agreement for union security is invalid unless "three-fourths or more of the employes in such collective bargaining unit shall have voted affirmatively by secret ballot" in favor of the union security clause.

L-M Companies Top Nation's Bond Sales

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—Labor-Management committees, originally proposed by CIO President Philip Murray, not only have been a factor in boosting production but now are revealed to be of substantial assistance in increasing the sale of War Bonds.

Proof took the form of a statement published in Labor-Management News, official organ of the War Production Drive, made after a survey of 18 industries employing more than eight million workers.

Sixteen of the 34 corporations which are the national payroll savings leaders in these industries have labor-management committees, the News stated.

"An indication of the leadership of companies with joint committees," the paper said, "is found in the fact that while L-M committees are set up in only about one-seventh of the firms in these industries, they are found in nearly one-half of the corporations setting the War Bond pace."

The auto industry, almost 100 per cent CIO organized, leads the nation in dollar volume of payroll savings, the paper stated. Other top industries, many of them likewise strongly CIO, include: agricultural implements, electrical equipment, rubber, shipbuilding, telephone and telegraph, and aviation. Most of these industries have numerous labor-management committees.

Mid-West CIO Goes All-Out In Political Drive

FORT DODGE, Ia., Sept. 4—The Iowa-Nebraska CIO Council is going to be neck deep in politics during the 1944 campaign and plenty proud of it. That was evident this week as several hundred delegates from both states met at the sixth convention of the organization.

Main political slant came from President Ben Henry of the bi-state Council, who was re-elected without opposition. In his main speech he lashed out at the Congressmen from Iowa and Nebraska for their bad labor records.

"Every congressman that I have talked to about the Smith-Connally anti-strike law said he voted for the measure in order to 'handle' John L. Lewis," Henry declared. "They simply don't know what this law will do.

"Instead of 'handling' John L. Lewis, the measure has put him in a much stronger position. Congress hasn't averted strikes; it has simply legalized them."

Warning anti-labor congressmen that "the CIO is calling a halt to that kind of representation," Henry said that the voting record of Iowa and Nebraska representatives in Congress on 20 bills affecting labor was pretty black. The best record, that of an Iowa congressman, was seven for labor on these measures and 13 against.

100% BAD CONGRESSMAN

"One congressman was 100 per cent against us," Henry said.

Delegates approved a joint report of the political action and legislative committees which called for full support of the political and legislative program of CIO President Philip Murray and the Natinonal CIO.

Some of the main recommendations of the committee approved by the convention were:

1. Setting up a political fund formed by a one cent per member tax on Council members.

2. Formation of joint political action committees in all congressional districts composed of representatives of the CIO, AFL, railroad brotherhoods and other labor groups.

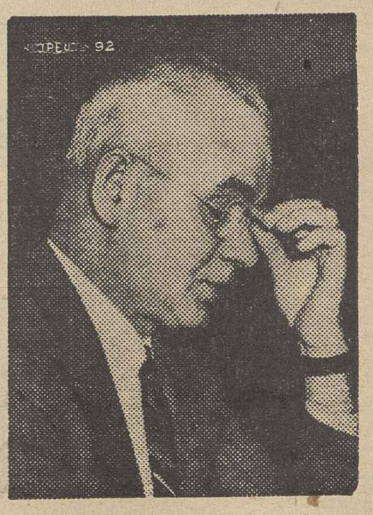
3. Employment by the executive board of a suitable personnel to carry out the political action program.

Officers elected for the coming year, besides President Henry, include Orvel Champ of Ottumwa, Iowa, secretary-treasurer succeeding Tom B. Hadden, and the following vice presidents: Ray Teeple, Wilbert Allison, James McDonald, James Provenzano, Horace Gates, Waler Wagner, Robert L. Olsen, Homer Silvers, Frank Hudson, R. A. Hayes, Nels Peterson and Eugenie Davidchik.

Redouble Production Effort, Murray Urges

DETROIT, Sept. 6—Home front fighters must redouble their efforts in war production and every war activity now that "the armies of the United Nations are on the march, when one offensive leads to another in an ever-broadening sweep," CIO President Philip Murray said here today in a national radio broadcast celebrating Labor Day.

"On this Labor Day, the organized workers take pride in the fact that free Americans have broken all records in war production," Murray said. "They also pledge themselves to ever-greater effort to meet every demand of our world-wide offensive."



PHILIP MURRAY

Murray's speech, delivered in a joint broacast with AFL President William Green and War Manpower Director Paul V. McNutt, held a sharp warning against complacency and a plea for still greater effort "to speed the day when our boys will return victorious to their homes and their loved ones."

He reiterated CIO's no-strike pledge, which he said would hold "despite the provocations of misguided legislators and anti-labor laws." At the same time, he urged his listeners "to make their influence felt" on Congress and "to elect in the future only such representatives as will truly reflect the people's will for all-out united effort to win the war and win a people's peace."

But all of labor's productive efforts by themselves are not enough," he added, "for labor's ability to produce depends upon management and government as well—upon nation-wide and industry-wide planning, upon a proper allocation of supplies and war contracts, upon the correct distribution of all our manpower and material resources, and upon the building of a sound and healthy war economy."

In concluding his radio speech, delivered in addition to an address at a huge open-air mass meeting in Detroit's Cadillac Square, Murray called for active work to make this country one in which returning soldiers "will be assured a decent livelihood and good working conditions, with freedom from want in a world society freed from the constant fear of future wars."

Murray to Headline N. Y. Rally; Carey to Speak At Chester Labor Day

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—CIO President Philip Murray will speak at a big win-the-war political rally here on September 12 at Madison Square Garden, on the opening day of the national convention of the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers.

Meanwhile, CIO Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey announced that he will be the main speaker at a CIO Labor Day rally to be held September 6 at Chester, Pa.

With Congress reconvening shortly, these CIO addresses and other major speeches of CIO leaders listed last week will let the legislators know in an impressive way what labor expects of Congress.

Every Congressman in New York will be invited to attend the UE meeting and be introduced. President Albert Fitzgerald of the UE and Mike Quill, president of the CIO Transport Workers Union, will be among the principal speakers.

Vice President Wallace and other government leaders have been invited to speak.

Duke Ellington will lead the list of stars of stage and screen who will appear on the entertainment program.

Clothe the Army, Slogan of CIO Union Bond Drive

New York, Sept. 4—With the slogan, "Clothe the Army," the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, CIO, are planning a drive to sell $2,500,000 a month worth of 3rd War Loan Drive bonds to their members.

The idea back of the drive is to keep the American soldier the "best-dressed in the world," ACWA officials explained. Almost all U. S. Army clothing is now made by CIO workers, ACW Secretary-Treasurer Jacob Potofsky said.

It takes about $1,600,000 worth of clothing to keep an army division outfitted, Potofsky said, on the basis of $110.01 per soldier.

CIO Heads Cite Output Gains, Pledge Renewed Effort to Back Soldiers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—CIO leaders in Labor Day statements this week pointed with pride to the production achievements of CIO workers and promised in their name that these records would be broken and re-broken in the home front drive to keep American and other United Nations soldiers supplied with the guns and tanks and ships and planes they need to smash the Axis.

From President Philip Murray (see full statement elsewhere) came the promise that "American labor dedicates itself above all to increased and intensified effort to support the glorious offensive of our armed forces and to speed the day of total victory over the Axis."

"The success and advances of the armies of the United Nations," Murray said, "must lead to no let-down of effort on our home front. On the contrary, every such advance increases the tempo of conflict and leads to ever-greater demands on war production and supplies.

"American labor must match every forward step by our fighting men with increased effort and enthusiasm to bring our boys home victorious at the earliest possible moment and with the least possible casualties."

Other statements came from:

Allan S. Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization—"On this Labor Day we truly feel proud of the achievements of the CIO, its affiliated unions and membership. Our movement has given to our government and armed forces a record, unequalled by any nation in the field of production in this global war to preserve and extend our democratic ideals and to overcome the forces of aggression.

"Let us rededicate ourselves to the task of organizing the unorganized in order that we can best serve our country and our people in this war period and take our proper place in bringing about a durable, just and lasting peace for all peoples."

Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey—"Today men, women and young boys and girls who have never worked before are holding jobs in industry and on the farm. We must do all we can to welcome these new members of the working family and guide them in the right direction.

"We must show them the splendid record of organized labor, such as the proud ones of each of our individual unions. We must show them our progress not only in respect to production, but in respect to the war effort as concerns our members in the armed forces and our contributions to the War Relief Committee, the Red Cross and other defense and volunteer organizations."

Van A. Bittner, assistant to the president, United Steelworkers of America—"We are producing, with a force never known before in the industrial world, all the necessities of war. We, who are here on the home front, are giving of our earnings in the purchasing of war bonds, and we shall continue to do so in greater volumes than ever.

"Nothing shall stop us in bringing this war to a victorious issue with the unconditional surrender of the Axis forces that our boys may be home at the very earliest possible day."

John Brophy, director of industrial union councils—"We are united in our determination to support 100 per cent, both at home and abroad, the policy of our Commander-in-Chief for the unconditional surrender of the Axis forces, which are responsible for the deaths of millions of our brother workers, and for the destruction of the democracies which served to guarantee them their rights to join trade unions and to bargain collectively for their mutual benefit.

"We know one cause, one goal—total victory over the forces of destruction so that the peace to come will be a real peoples' peace, devoted to the welfare of the common man and guaranteeing him a fair share of the material welfare and the freedom which have been denied him by the Axis dictators."

CIO Leaders Hail Work Of Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—Achievements of the CIO's Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination were praised this week in a Labor Day statement issued jointly here by James B. Carey, chairman of the Committee and secretary-treasurer of the CIO, and Willard Townsend, secretary of the Committee and president of the United Transport Service Employes of America.

The committee, Carey and Townsend reported, "has brought home to CIO members, and often to management as well, the forcible fact that a war to establish the four freedoms requires these same four freedoms behind the firing line, in the shops and mills and factories where the munitions of war are turned out."

"The Congress of Industrial Organizations is, in every sense of the word, founded upon the principles of democracy," the committee stated. Today, every nerve and sinew of our great organization is directed toward the elimination of the scourge of fascism both in America and abroad.

"While the CIO from its inception has opposed any discrimination on basis of prejudice against minorities in American life, this line of thinking was expressed more realistically when the National Executive Board, composed of elected representatives of the 5,000,000 CIO members (over 500'000 of them Negroes) voted in August, 1942, to set up a National Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination, on a motion by Willard S. Townsend.

"Within a few months, this committee has fostered a program of education, in cooperation with the International Unions of the CIO, so that the membership understands better why industrial unionism and racial discrimination cannot exist side by side.

"It has brought home to CIO members, and often to management as well, the forcible fact that a war to establish the four freedoms requires these same four freedoms behind the firing line, in the shops and mills and factories where the munitions of war are turned out."

30% Production Hike Goal Of Jersey CIO

Newark, N. J., Sept. 4—An extra case of shells will do a lot more to help lick the Axis than promises. Realizing that, CIO members in Northern New Jersey this week began a campaign to increase the flow of munitions by 30 per cent between now and November.

Plans include publication of a Labor Victory Manual to give union members a medium for exchange of ideas for increasing production, and to stress elimination of avoidable absenteeism.

Prizes in War Bonds will be offered to the three union workers, CIO or AFL, who develop the best production short-cuts. Prize winners will be selected by a committee representing the CIO, management and government.

Full Post-War Employment Goal of Church Council

New York, Sept. 14—That full employment is the unfinished business of the American people was the Labor Day declaration this week of the Federal Council of Churches.

The council pointed out that war-stimulated employment is "artificial and transitory," and urged government, management, labor and the Church to consider full employment as a prior claim in planning for post-war reorganization of our national economy.

"Maximum production and maximum employment will be required in the post-war world as safeguards against the injustice and frustration which breed racial tensions and social desperation," the council stated.

CIO Will Back War 100 Pct. 'Till Axis Crushed—Murray

By PHILIP MURRAY

On this Labor Day, American labor dedicates itself above all to increased and intensified effort to support the glorious offensive of our armed forces and to speed the day of total victory over the Axis.

The successes and advances of the armies of the United Nations must lead to no let-down of effort on our home front. On the contrary, every such advance increases the tempo of conflict and leads to ever-greater demands on war production and war supplies. American labor must match every forward step by our fighting men with increased effort and enthusiasm to bring our boys home victorious at the earliest possible moment and with the least possible casualties.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations is proud of the record it has established in the past year in promoting the increased war production which has broken all world records; in faithful adherence to its no-strike pledge, despite all provocations; and in every field of war activity.

NO EFFORT TOO GREAT

No effort or sacrifice on our part is too great to back up our fighting men. In the months ahead, the CIO will not rest on past achievements, but will set ever-higher goals of war endeavor in every field of its activity.

The CIO has grown in strength and influence during the past year, because its patriotic aims and activities reflect and implement the heart-felt desires of American working people. It has won numerous Labor Board elections and many new collective bargaining agreements and has expanded its membership to the highest point in its history. This basic union work must and will continue, for it is only through organization that working men and women can achieve the maximum results in constructive war activity.

On this Labor Day, the CIO is also resolved to increase its legislative and political efforts to strengthen our home front under the leadership of our Commander-in-Chief. To make our home front a solid base for our whole victory effort, we must fight off the dangers of inflation; we must have a tax system that will provide the sinews of war without damaging the productive efficiency of low-income groups; we must preserve our democracy and legislate in the spirit of national unity; and we must back to the limit the win-the-war policies of our Commander-in-Chief in both domestic and foreign affairs.

CONGRESS REMISS

Unfortunately, the last session of Congress was remiss in many of these respects. It hurt national unity by much labor-baiting and administration-baiting politics-as-usual. It encouraged inflation by hampering and opposing administration efforts to roll back living costs and control prices.

It adopted, over the President's veto, the anti-labor Smith-Conally Act, despite warnings that this was a strike-provoking bill that would undermine labor morale and hamper war production.

The CIO therefore deems it an important war duty to impress on the members of Congress the American people's desire for an end to such disruptions of our national unity, and for a real effort in the next session of Congrss to strengthen and solidify our home front, so that this may truly become a victory Congress.

For these and all other win-the-war purposes, the CIO urges the closest unity of action between all sections of labor and all groups of our population who set the cause of speedy victory ahead of all selfish considerations.

Political Action To Back Labor Demands Needed

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—The old-fashioned idea that labor unions should stick to strictly "economic" action and leave politics to their betters was vigorously knocked on the head this week in a letter by Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO political Action Committee, to the New York TIMES.

Hillman's letter took up a TIMES editorial giving labor that piece of hoary advice in criticizing the Hillman proposal that the Amercan Labor Party broaden its base to include all trade unions on a regular dues-paying basis, and thus become a major political force in New York and the nation.

"It is surprising, to say the least, to encounter, so archaic a conception of the limits of trade union activity seriously suggested in a TIMES editoral in the year 1943," he wrote.

"It disregards a whole century of trade union history fully recorded and now daily augmented in the news columns of your own paper."

Labor has learned through long experience that its so-called strictly "economic" program needs the aid of political action, Hillman added, citing the list of social gains made by labor in the past few years, "which were brought to fruition only through labor's active and increasing participation in the political life of the nation."

Labor has also learned what happens when it relaxes on the political job, he said, citing the results of the 1942 elections. It doesn't intend to make that mistake again, he added.

Register to Vote Is First Aim of CIO Political Drive

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—Making sure that every worker and his wife register to vote is the No. 1 task of the CIO, Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, said following a meeting of the committee in CIO headquarters here this week.

"The 5,000,000 CIO members and their families are a mighty potential political force," Hillman said in a letter sent from the meeting to CIO affiliates. "But that force can be realized only if all of our members and their families register and qualify as voters.

"A worker who fails to register is as much a drain on labor's political strength as an unorganized worker on its economic strength. Reports to our committee indicate that in previous elections the CIO has already failed to exert its maximum political strength, in large part because its members had failed to register and were therefore ineligible to vote."

The Political Committee, in addition to laying plans for nation-wide register to vote drives, heard reports showing that "political action by labor for 1943 and 1944 is catching on like wildfire" and that there are demands for political conferences from all over the country.

REGIONAL OFFICERS

Hillman announced that he expected to make a national tour lasting from four to six weeks to speak at these meetings and to set up a system of regional offices, some 15 of which are planned. Each of these offices will have a director and paid staff.

Asked about cooperation with the AFL, Hillman told newspapermen that no approaches had been made on the national level, but that the committee would seek to get together with AFL unions and Railroad Brotherhools as well on local levels. National cooperation, he indicated, would come later.

Backing of local candidates in 1943 and 1944 elections will be left up to the local political groups, he explained, and the national committee would not attempt to tell the localities whom they should endorse.

Attending the meeting, in addition to Hillman, were the committee's vice chairman, Van A. Bittner, Albert J. Fitzgerald, head of the UE, and Sherman H. Dalrymple, president of the Rubber Workers.

"Labor is concerned with political action because labor wants to win the war first, and to assure a just peace," Hillman said at the end of the meeting. "Political action by the nation's millions of workers is imperative to achieve these ends. We intend to see that this political action is organized."

$27,000,000 A Month—UAW Bond Record

Detroit, Sept. 4—Members of the CIO United Automobile Workers are "bond-barding" the Axis at the rate of $27,000,000 every month, R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW, said here in an appeal to the workers to support the Third War Loan Drive.

He pointed out that according to U. S. Treasury reports this is more than any other union in the country is spending for bonds.

"As president of the UAW-CIO," he said, "I urge every member to make a special contribution to the Third War Loan Drive. Let's keep our place as leader in the field of organized labor."

CIO Political Action Hits DuPont Empire

WILMINGTON, Sept. 4—United political action with AFL, CIO, Brotherhoods and scores of civic group getting together, came to this war town this week with a conference featured by an address from Van A. Bittner, vice-chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, at a mass meeting in Wilmington High School and a legislative conference at CIO Hall.

About 200 delegates were present at the conference, which was led by CIO Regional Director E. D. Hodson, and many hundreds more were at the larger meeting in the school. With the slogan, "National unity behind a win-the-war legislative program," the meeting was devoted to two jobs—organizing pressure on Delaware's Congressman and two Senators and laying plans for broader action in the 1944 campaign.

The program announced at the meeting covered six points: Repeal of the Smith-Connally Act; taxes based on ability to pay, and high levies on war profits; repeal of the polltax; rollback to cut the cost of living, and real social security through passage of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill.

Typical of the non-labor organizations joining with CIO, AFL and Brotherhoods in this action are such as Consumers League, B'nai B'rith, Friends School, Arden Co-op, American Assn. of University Women, University Club, Pulaski Legion and many more.

First step in the Wilmington drive will be a strong campaign to get all war workers and all other citizens to register to vote in 1944.

British Labor Meet Reveals Strong Support For All-Inclusive United Action

International labor unity will be a major issue before the convention of the British Trades Union Congress, meeting in Southport this week.

But cabled extracts from the convention report of the TUC general council would seem to indicate that much travel has failed to broaden the viewpoint of Sir Walter Citrine on this subject.

The report relays much misinformation about the CIO, attributed to AFL leaders with whom Citrine associated almost exclusively on his visits to the United States.

Fears For Prestige

This includes ridiculous propaganda claims as to CIO membership, a description of the CIO as a "breakaway organization," and the expression of AFL fears that "the prestige of the CIO and the Railroad Brotherhoods would be increased" by their inclusion in any arrangement for international labor unity.

Although recounting efforts by the TUC's delegation to the United States to make the AFL change its mind about including the CIO and the Brotherhoods, the report declares "the TUC recognized the question of American representation was one for the AFL to decide."

Only With AFL

The report concludes:

"To sum up, it is the opinion of the General Council that the only practical course open to the TUC is to continue its collaboration with the AFL, through the joint committee, pending establishment of a better relationship between American organizations which, it is hoped, will ultimately permit the collaboration we originally set out to achieve."

In other words, the international labor unity which is so imperative to aid the war effort of the United Nations and the winning of a people's peace should be postponed indefinitely, according to this report, because some AFL leaders are fearful of their prestige in relation to the CIO and the Railroad Brotherhoods; because they grudge to shake hands with the labor movement of our fighting ally, the Soviet Union; and because some TUC leaders are afraid of hurting the sensitive feelings of these AFL prima donnas.

It is encouraging to note that other British labor leaders, who studied the CIO at closer hand than did Citrine, brought back different impressions.

Jack Tanner and Bryn Roberts, for instance, in the same TUC report, note CIO's five million membership and say "there were very evident signs that the CIO movement is now strongly established."

New Efforts Called For

Moreover, Roberts has introduced a resolution, with the support of such powerful unions as the miners, engineers and railwaymen, that calls for "new and energetic efforts" for international labor unity.

This resolution urges that the TUC take the initiative in calling an international conference of representatives of the AFL, CIO, Railroad Brotherhoods, Soviet trade unions, CTAL, Dominion unions and other bona fide labor movements, to further the war effort, and to determine the attitude of international labor on the peace settlement and post-war social and economic issues.

American labor will watch with interest for the decisions of our British brothers on the vital issue of all-inclusive united action by the labor movements of the United Nations, which the CIO has made one of its major goals.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

TRADE UNIONISM has suddenly found some unwonted champions—provided it is "pure and simple."

Mighty daily papers are digging into their morgues for tintypes of "pure and simple" unionists.

Forgetting they once lambasted such unionists for allegedly pure and simple wage and hour demands, they now dwell with nostalgic unction on the merits of unions that eschew all political action.

The august New York Times editorially imagines that unions are "economic not political institutions" which must deal with pure and simple economic issues in a non-political vacuum.

Even Pegler may cease for a moment to seethe in his own bile and blossom out with an essay of sweetness and light, if he chances to discover this kind of unionism that even he can praise—a kind that never existed, does not exist today, and could not exist in the future.

★ ★ ★

The myth of "pure and simple" unionism has been revived, of course, to make propaganda against the political action campaign of the CIO.

Actually there has never been a union so pure of all earthly taint that it hasn't felt the walloping of quite political anti-labor sheriffs and mayors, or suffered the political impact of anti-labor injunctions and laws that treated unionism as a "criminal conspiracy."

And what labor leader could be so simple as to imagine his union could make progress, or even exist, without some kind of political action to establish labor's rights and to bolster its economic demands?

Sidney Hillman, chairman of CIO's political action committee, recently undertook the monumental task of educating the editorial writers of the New York Times on labor history.

He pointed out, in a letter to that paper, that workmen's compensation, abolition of child labor, sanitation and safety measures, social security, recognition of collective bargaining rights, and minimum wage and maximum hour standards, are all "economic measures" that were only obtained through labor political activity.

Particularly today, he noted, wages and hours of work, the prices a worker must pay for food, clothing and housing, and the amount of money he has left after taxes are all largely determined by legislative and executive agencies of government.

By failing to take political action therefore, a union fails to carry out its basic task of protecting the economic interests of its members.

But those who view with alarm labor's increasing political activities, are also fortifying a second line of defense.

If compelled to admit unionists have the right to vote and can use it to advantage, they retreat to the position that such labor political activity may be all right if it is unorganized, unfinanced and ineffective.

After all, even Pegler would approve of a union that had no dues and no members and engaged in no activity.

That is why there is so much press disappointment that the Smith-Connally Act has failed to destroy all of labor's rights to engage in political activity.

And that is why there is such lively interest in the anti-labor press as to how unions propose to finance their political activities.

Labor's enemies are seeking desperately for some device to by-pass the Constitution of the United States and to deprive American working people of the right to engage in political activity in any organized or effective fashion.

★ ★ ★

If we go further than the above ABC's of political action, and start to spell out words, one great and glaring fact emerges that should be obvious even to a New York Times editorial writer—namely, that the present war has advanced the political consciousness of American working people to a point from which there is no returning.

It has shown that every one of labor's gains, and the very life of its unions and their members, are at stake in this war against Fascism.

Labor's decision to make the winning of this war its first and all-important task is a political decision of the highest order. To carry it out demands the broadest political activity and statesmanship of national and even world-wide proportions.

Labor has set its hand to the political plough, and all the forces of ignorance, reaction and defeatism will not make it turn back.

Here's What You Have To Do Now To Register To Vote In Vital '44!

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 — Full registration to vote and full use of the right to vote even if you're out of your state is the first step toward a real win-the-war Congress in 1944. Every voter must carry out this step or have only himself to blame if we get another Congress like the one we got in 1942.

For the use of our readers, THE CIO NEWS has prepared a summary of the requirements in all 48 states, based on a study made by the OWI last September.

The study includes provisions for absentee voting. Many thousands of voters have moved to war jobs in new areas. If they are still too recent arrivals in their new locations to be able to register, they should look into the absentee voting requirements of their own states, and make sure to vote there.

(Concluded from the August 30 issue of THE CIO NEWS)

Note: this tabulation is necessarily condensed. All voters should secure fuller information from their local authorities and from their unions.

IN THE GRIP OF FEAR

CIO Scores 1st Congress Bullseye

San Francisco, Sept. 4 — First score at the polls in CIO's political action campaign was marked up here this week with the election to Congress of win-the-war Democrat Clair Engle, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Harry Englebright, who was a Republican whip in the Federal House.

Engle's victory was directly due to hard political work by the CIO, with some AFL support, and to the fact that he made strong commitments of support to the policies of FDR and the labor movement on price rollback, economic stabilization and other victory measures.

BAITING FIZZLES

Republican campaign managers relied heavily on CIO-baiting for their election material, which boomeranged even in Engle's district, one of the areas where CIO had the smallest membership. Their propaganda included large newspaper ads asking the question, "Do you want the CIO to represent you in Congress?"

Evidently the voters did, because they gave Engle 11,165 votes to his nearest competitor's (Englebright's widow) 9,621. The CIO campaign was under direction of Frank Thompson, president of the Sacramento CIO Council, who gave it full time.

FDR Hails Labor Output Record as 'Magnificent'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—High praise for the patriotism of American workers and commendation for their efforts to boost production were voiced this week by top government officials, with President Franklin D. Roosevelt leading the list. In a special Labor Day statement, the President said:

"It is altogether fitting that these groups of free Americans are working together today, many laboring on round-the-clock shifts, that our fighting men on land, on sea and in the air may have the weapons with which to bring about a victory as speedily as possible.

"To make time and thus save lives and suffering, our American workers, employers and farmers will need not only to maintain their production pace but to increase it.

"Their record to date has been magnificent and in keeping with the true American spirit of all-out effort for those fighting so valiantly and so successfully in all parts of the world.

"That increased production will be forthcoming. It will be given gladly for love of country and for liberty, as it has been given since Pearl Harbor, to set up a record that never has been equaled.

PROUD OF ACHIEVEMENT

"We well may be proud of that achievement for it has done much to make possible the success of the armed forces of the United Nations. Its continuation will spell the defeat of our enemies—the preservation of our way of life."

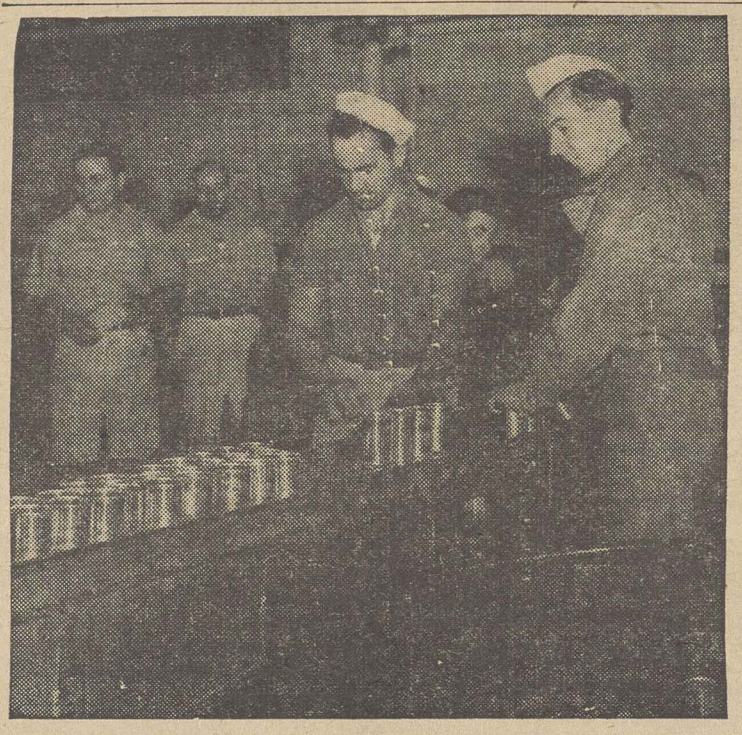
Other Labor Day statements came from:

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins—American workers "promise, to the enslaved workers of Axis-dominated lands," that increased American production "will help to break their shackles and that another Labor Day will find millions of them once again enjoying the blessings of freedom such as is the heritage of American working men and women and for which our people can be so thankful today."

Donald M. Nelson—"American labor knows that the armed forces' early smashing successes would have been impossible without the unending and ever growing stream of war material that has been pouring from American factories. They have every reason to be proud of the production achievements of the last two years."

James V. Forrestal, under secretary of the Navy—"The might of American war production is making itself felt on every front in this global war. That might exemplifies the patriotism and loyalty of American working men and women. It expresses their hatred for the tyranny and oppression of the Axis governments."

Paul V. McNutt, chairman, War Manpower Commission—"American workers have made possible a record of production that has never been equalled in the history of the human race. They are putting behind our armed forces, and to a considerable extent the forces of our fighting allies, a weight of planes, guns, ships, munitions, food and other war essentials that has made victory a mathematical certainty."



JOIN CANNING CREW: Members of the armed forces responded to an appeal by the Campbell Soup Co. plant in Camden, N. J., when a manpower shortage threatened spoilage of the big eastern tomato crop. As this sailor and soldier worked at Campbell's, Vice-Pres. Otis G. Nation of United Cannery Agricultural Packing & Allied Workers (CIO) faced criminal charges in Florida for daring to enlist UCAPAWA members there for the Campbell plant. (Federated Pictures.)

Speed Day of Western Blow to Crush Nazis, Auxiliary Head Urges

By FAYE STEPHENSON
President, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

This year's Labor Day slogan, "Producing for Attack," has a fine sound in women's ears. Let's redouble our efforts to speed the day when Hitler's armies will be caught in a gigantic vise of simultaneous attack from east and west. That, we feel, is the way to a quick victory for the United Nations.

There are so many ways this Labor Day in which we as women can help to build our nation's striking power. Already 30 per cent of our factory workers and four-fifths of our new industrial workers are women. And those percentages will increase. Two million new women workers are needed this fall according to the War Manpower Commission.

We face a double job in recruiting those new workers. We must find them and we must develop services in our communities which will enable them to stay at work. We must see to it that child care problems, shopping problems, laundry problems, eating problems are solved.

Those of us who cannot take jobs can make a big contribution to increasing production by hammering home the importance of government and community action to relieve the terrific burden women workers now carry. Unless they get relief most women cannot give their most efficient work to Victory.

ARMED FORCES' NEEDS

There is need for women in the armed forces, now, as well as on the production front. 600,000 women is the goal of the Women's Army Corps fall recruiting drive. Every new WAC releases a soldier for active duty. Women from 20 to 50 are eligible. Here is a way to make a very direct contribution to speeding the attack.

Whether we work at a job or volunteer our time on the home front all of us have another big responsibility — the responsibility for political activity. President Philip Murray in his letter to CIO affiliates on the importance of auxiliary organization said:

"The Republican and Democratic parties have already started to enlist the active cooperation of women in the 1944 election campaign. In public statements they have called attention to the importance of women's votes in 1944 because of the large number of men who have gone to serve in the armed forces of our country. We must also think in terms of depending to a large measure on the help of our CIO women in making our election campaign plans."

CAN SPEED VICTORY

Every CIO woman must understand the issues which face our nation and make her voice heard through participation in the national campaign of labor to back the win-the-war policies of our Commander-in-Chief now and elect a real Victory Congress in 1944. Each of us can make some contribution to that campaign—and it is one of the big ways in which we can speed Victory.

Labor Day this year is a challenge to American women — a challenge to each and every one of us to consider whether we are doing our full part in backing the attack, in hastening the unconditional surrender of Hitler's forces.

CIO Dockers Demand Jobs at End of War

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4—Jobs when peace comes! That was the demand raised this week by the General Executive Board of the Intl. Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union, with the belief that if a wartime economy can provide full employment, so can a peacetime economy.

A program for peacetime subsidization of industry, agriculture and government enterprise until all workers are returned to private employment after the war included recommendations that:

"All members of the armed services must, after demobilization, remain on the Government civilian payroll with pay and subsistence allowance until they have returned to employment in private industry. They will be welcomed back to union ranks with full seniority and all rights and benefits, and the unions must accept responsibility for seeing that they are returned to employment.

"All service men requiring rehabilitation must be given training at Government expense, wherever possible within their former industry, so that they shall remain among their former friends and coworkers.

"The war budget must be continued as a peace budget. Subsidization of industry, agriculture and Government enterprise must be continued to provide for the production, systematic distribution and consumption of civilian goods for the people until such time as the transition to private employment for all those able to work is complete, and until all those unable to work are provided with the necessities for decent living.

"The unions must continue to accept full responsibility and to exert full efforts for old and new workers in industry to the end that they shall be continued at useful work."

UAW Rejects GM Demands As Unjust

Detroit, Sept. 4 — Walter P. Reuther, vice-president of the UAW-CIO and director of its GM department, announced today that the union has flatly rejected the 16 counter-demands made on it by General Motors Corporation.

"The so-called counter demands made by the corporation on the union are for the most part a rehash of untenable and unjustified demands which the corporation first put forward in 1941 and 1942. Some new 'demands' have been added in an effort to capitalize on wartime, anti-labor falsehoods which GMC and other corporations have promoted," Reuther said.

"The counter-demands are nothing more than political propaganda against the GM workers. They are intended to throw a smokescreen around the union's constructive proposals. They are not sincere collective bargaining demands, and I am completely confident the War Labor Board will again uphold the union's rejection."

Send Kids To School, U. S. Urges

Washington, Sept. 4 — When Johnny and Janie say they want to quit school to keep that "vacation job," tell them the best place they possibly can be to help win the war is back behind the old scarred desk learning the "three R's."

That was the advice handed out to parents this week by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Dept. of Labor, particularly if the kids are 16 years of age or less. Said the Dept. on the subject:

"Labor Day flashes the go signal for a campaign to send most of these young workers back to school. We need more trained men and women. All of us, children and adults alike, must play the most effective part we can in this war, but for the million or more children under 16 at work this Summer there can be no question that the best place now is in school.

"School is also the place for a large proportion of the 16- and 17-year-old Summer workers if they are to be prepared to make their best contribution to the war and to reconstruction and peace-time needs."

Order Equal Pay For Women

Washington, Sept. 4—Equal pay for women doing work comparable in quality and quantity to work performed by men was unanimously ordered this week by the War Labor Board for employes of the Celotex Corp. plant at Marrero, La. Some 2,300 employes at the plant are represented by the United Celotex Workers, CIO Local Industrial Union.

99 Ways to 'Stretch' Meat—Don't Rush!

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

We've just gotten three new government leaflets on wartime meals that come in very handy. They're prepared by the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture. They're full of good advice and recipes.

"99 Ways to Stretch the Meat" tells you how to stretch your meat ration to give your family an adequate diet. The suggestions aren't limited to meat, either—there are some good hints on unrationed items like fish and eggs, peanuts and soybeans.

"Fats in Wartime Meals" will be a help in using the rest of your red points as economically as possible—and saving fat to turn in for the fat salvage campaign. Remember—the government asks us each to make every effort to save one tablespoon of fat each day. Salvaged fat ends up in munitions to speed victory.

"Root Vegetables in Wartime Meals" answers all your questions on how to cook carrots and beets, parsnips, turnips and onions so as to save every vitamin and every mineral. It has a page of recipes too.

Have you tried beet soup, for instance, or panned carrots and apples?

For all these leaflets write to the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

MORE ON HOME CANNING

One of the most compact little guides to home canning that we have seen also comes from the government. "Wartime Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" tells everything you need to know about putting up your fruits and vegetables. It has a table which shows how much you can expect to get from a bushel of various foods—which we have found very useful in planning what to buy at the market. Tomatoes, for instance, should net you 15 to 20 quarts to the bushel; peaches, 18 to 20; pears, 20 to 24.

It's a thoroughly practical leaflet even giving you advice on how not to burn your fingers in getting jars out of a water bath if you don't own a jar lifter or a pair of tongs. Order for 5 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C.

There are two new sets of posters you might like to have, too, to brighten up an auxiliary room or use in connection with a nutrition talk. They are "Fight Food Waste in the Home," a set of ten posters showing how to store food and avoid waste, and "Get the Good from Your Food," also a set of ten showing how to prepare fruit, vegetables, meats, fats, eggs and poultry to get the most out of them.

They're all printed in black and red ink on heavy white paper and they cost 25 cents a set.

Order by name from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.—and don't send stamps—they're no good to the government.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

William B. Taylor, Organizational Dir., Oil Workers Organizing Campaign, announces the winning of an election at the Standoline Pipe Co., for the State of Texas, receiving 125 votes out of 185. He also reports a victory at the Shell Chemical Co., Torrance, Calif., CIO 92 per cent, 8 per cent against; Root Refining Co., El Dorado, Ark., 85 for CIO, 34 against.

Thomas J. Gallagher, Organizational Dir., IUM&SWA, reports the winning of the election at the Welin Davit Boat Corp., Perth Amboy, N. J., with a vote of 429 for CIO, 83 for AFL, and 5 for no union.

Adolph Germer, Director of Organization, IWA-CIO, advises of the winning of an election at Hartwell Handle Co., Memphis, Tenn.: CIO—91; AFL—11. He also reports the winning of an election at Consumers Cooperative, Swisshome, Oreg., CIO 14, no union 11.

Hugh Thompson, CIO Reg. Dir., sends in the following election victories: Buffalo Batt Felt Co., Depew, N. Y., Textile Workers—CIO 36, to 6 for no union; Thoma Paper Box Co., UPN&TWA-CIO 37, to 16 for AFL.

Rubber Workers' Victories

The United Rubber Workers won the following elections: U. S. Rubber Co., Charlotte, N. C., CIO—1710, against 924; Goodrich Synthetic Rubber Co., Louisville, Ky., CIO—184 to 53 for AFL.

E. L. Sandefur, Reg. Dir. for the Carolinas, sends in the following election victories: Winston Leaf Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C., CIO 620 to 19 for no union; Piedmont Leaf Tobacco, Winston-Salem, N. C., CIO 899 to 38 for no union.

Ralph W. Tillotoon, Field Rep., Erie, Pa., advises that the USA won an overwhelming victory at the plant of the Universale Cyclops Steel Corp. by an almost 3-to-1 victory—CIO 304 to 135 for no union.

Paul R. Christopher, Reg. Dir., Tenn., advises that Tom Jones, CIO Field Rep., and C. W. Danenburg, So. Dir., for UGCCWA, report a victory at the Reid Chemical Co., Nashville, by a vote of 65 for CIO to 3 against.

UAW Wins 90% Majorities

Paul E. Miley, Reg. Dir., UAW-CIO, advises that the CIO won elections in Manufacturer's Brush and Empire Plow Co., both of Cleveland, and both by a majority of 90 per cent or more. Intl. Rep. Charles Rigby and John Mitchich, Bus. Rep. of the local, directed the drives and will proceed immediately with negotiations. In a recent election among the guards at Baldwin Co., Cincinnati, the UAW-CIO was designated as bargaining agency by a percentage of 10 to 1. Intl. Rep. Jack Methard was in charge of the drive. Harry Haberthear, Acting Reg. Dir. Cincinnati, advises that Methard reports an election victory at the Trailer Co. of America and Highland Body Mfg. Co., Norwood, with a vote of 775 for CIO to 37 for AFL.

James J. Matles, Dir. Org. UERMWA, reports the following NLRB victories: Lodge & Shipley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, 379 to 50; Bartlett Hayward Co., Baltimore, Md., 258 to 217; Simpson Co., Evansville, Ind., 50 to 7; Aircraft Products Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., 57 out of 72 by card check; National Tool Co., Cleveland, Ohio, 256 to 125; General Dry Battery Co., Toronto, 74 to 10; Ahralloy Canada Limited, Orillia, Canada, 121 to 40; Witte Engineering Co., Kansas City, Mo., 73 to 55; Ralph Shipman Co., Sunbury, Pa., 62 out of 93 by card check; North American Phillips Co., N. Y., 645 to 56; Supercharger Plant, G. E., Fort Wayne, Ind., 1511 to 144; Elliott Addressing Machine, Cambridge, Mass., 222 to 107.

Wilbur E. Bade, Dir. Organ., American Newspaper Guild, reports a victory in the circulation department of the Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch by a vote of 73 to 23.

Harold J. Straub, chairman, UWOC, reports the winning of an election at Plant Protection, Detroit Edison Co., by a vote of 100 for CIO to 14 for no union. He also advises that two independent unions voted to affiliate with the UWOC. Clerical and physical workers at Klings Co. Lighting Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., numbering approximately 400 employes, and also the employes at Luzerne Co., Gas & Electric Co., Plymouth, Pa., realizing the futility of belonging to an independent union, voted to disestablish it and join the UWOC. This victory in Plymouth was recouping from an election lost about six months ago to the independent union.

The United Shoe Workers of America report the victory at the Intl. Shoe Co., St. Charles, Mo. Out of 146, the USWA received 97 as against 21.

CIO Leaders Break With Phoney Italy Group in New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—In a direct break with Luigi Antonini, official of the AFL Ladies Garment Workers, 60 Italian-American union leaders this week set up the Free Italy-American Labor Council, headed by Joseph Catalanotti of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers and George Baldanzi of the Textile Workers.

The break resulted from Antonini's persistent dealings with Generoso Pope, Italian-American publisher, and other "pre-Pearl Harbor fascists" through the American Committee for Italian Democracy. Slamming hard at Antonini for deals with "men who justified every fascist crime," Catalanotti said in announcing the new group:

"By adopting a new name, we also put an end to any possible confusion in Italian-American labor ranks. They know where we stand—we will not whitewash or make deals with men who justified every fascist crime and who are now jumping on the Allied bandwagon, because there is no other place for them to go.

"Anti-fascists the world over must know that no premiums are going to be paid to men who made a good thing out of fascism and who abandoned it only when the going got tough."

The new group, which has representatives of 200,000 workers from the Amalgamated Textile Workers, Barbers, Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, Carpenters, Furniture Workers, Shoe Workers, Fur Workers and others, has a program including:

Work among Italian-Americans, education on the meaning of this war and of fascism, exposure of all "pre-Pearl Harbor fascists," and aid to victims of Italian fascism. The group proposes "to expose and oppose those who seek to separate the future of Italy from the future of all peoples and nations enslaved by the fascist and Nazi barbarians."

Rank and File for Intl. Unity Against Citrine 'Sit Down' Policies

LONDON, Sept. 4 (ALN)—Sharp disagreement between the British and Soviet delegates to the third meeting of the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee, held in Moscow last July, arose over the issue of "an immediate second front on the European continent" and over the Soviet delegation's proposal "that the committee should be extended to embrace the trade unions of North and South America," the general council of the British Trades Union Congress reveals in its report to the annual TUC convention opening this week.

The British delegation was headed by Sir Walter Citrine, TUC general secretary, and the Soviet delegation by Nikolai Shvernik, secretary of the All-Union Council of Trade Unions.

Strong criticism of the TUC general council for its stand on international labor unity will be forthcoming at the convention from a number of Britain's most powerful unions. The following resolution, proposed by Bryn Roberts, secretary of the National Union of Public Employees—who visited the U. S. last year and attended the CIO convention in Boston—has the support of the miners, engineers and railwaymen:

"The TUC believes that the continued absence of effective collaboration between the allied trade union movements will have tragic consequences for the workers and is of the opinion that despite old prejudices and past falures, new and energetic efforts should be made to institute such collaboration.

"The Congress accordingly requests the general council again to take the initiative by inviting representatives of the Soviet trade unions, AFL, CIO, Railroad Brotherhoods, CTAL, Dominions' labor movements, trade union groups of the occupied countries and from any other bonafide trade union movement to attend an international conference for the purpose of creating the necessary machinery to enable effective collaboration:

"(1) to further the war effort, (2) to determine the attitude of international labor in the anticipated peace settlement, and (3) to decide labor's international policy respecting postwar social and economic issues."

TUC Report

Tracing the course of recent international labor unity negotiations, the TUC general council's report states: "Early this year a meeting was held in the U. S. with a view to setting up an Anglo-American trade union committee representative of American labor as a whole. Despite all efforts, we were unable to obtain any measure of agreement on this question of representation among the American trade union organizations themselves, and we accordingly formed a joint TUC-AFL committee.

"The TUC general council did not believe, when accepting the original proposal of the AFL for formation of an Anglo-American trade union committee (in July 1942), that our request for inclusion of the CIO and Railroad Brotherhoods would be refused. The request was made repeatedly by letter and cable and it came as a shock to the TUC to learn that the AFL had decided not to invite other labor bodies.

"Following protests from the CIO and Railroad Brotherhoods last summer, a cable was sent to Mr. Green urging that these bodies be included out of respect for the TUC. By the time the TUC met at Blackpool in September 1942 no reply had been received. After the Blackpool conference a letter was sent to the AFL again appealing for inclusion of all groups. No adequate reply was received and the TUC felt it had been placed in an embarrassing position.

AFL vs Unity

"The AFL reply stated that they were ready to discuss peace with the CIO but that only recently, after pressure had been brought to bear on the CIO, had it been possible to secure agreement for opening unity negotiations. The exact membership of the CIO is unknown, and the AFL estimated the CIO membership to be no more than two and a quarter million.

"The CIO was described as a 'breakaway organization,' and it was stated that if the CIO had been told by the TUC that it was their duty to get back into the AFL, this would have helped the AFL to bring about resumption of peace negotiations. The AFL said that they had never expected to be asked to include representatives of the CIO in the joint committee with the TUC.

"Regarding the Railroad Brotherhoods, the AFL asserted that their combined membership is no more than 340,000—compared with the membership of 1,100,000 in AFL railroad unions."

Giving further details on the AFL's reply to the TUC, the report says: "It was alleged that the TUC was asking the AFL to continue the divisions within the American labor movement. If the AFL acceded to the TUC's request, it was said, the prestige of the CIO and and the Brotherhoods would be increased. After this the TUC continued to exert the utmost pressure to secure a reversal of the AFL's attitude, but without success.

"In February of this year a TUC delegation contacted the CIO and the Brotherhoods and explained that while the TUC recognized that the question of American representation was one for the AFL to decide, they had nonetheless repeatedly and publicly expressed their desire for inclusion of the CIO and Brotherhoods.

TUC 'Hopes'

"The CIO representatives stated that the American government treated the AFL and CIO on equal terms, and they declined to furnish the delegation with total CIO membership figures, although they gave the membership figures of the larger CIO unions. They suggested that when the TUC found that it was not possible to get a committee representing all of American labor, the TUC should have stopped at that. They objected to the TUC discussing with the AFL matters directly concerning the CIO.

"To sum up, it is the opinion of the general council that the only practical course open to the TUC is to continue its collaboration with the AFL, through its joint committee, pending establishment of a better relationship between American organizations which, it is hoped, will ultimately permit the collaboration we originally set out to achieve."

Turning to the July meeting of the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee, the report states: "At the first session Sir Walter Citrine gave a detailed description of the attempts to induce the AFL to participate in an Anglo-Soviet-American trade union committee.

The reasons underlying the decision of the TUC general council to accent the AFL's proposal for the formation of an Anglo-American trade union committee, and subsequent efforts to widen the body to include the CIO and Brotherhoods, were fully explained. At the June 29 session a draft resolution was agreed upon, expressing regret at the failure of the AFL to support the proposals and recording the committee's determination to pursue its efforts to secure collaboration with American trade unions."

Second Front

Referring to the "draft declaration presented by the Soviet delegation for publication," the TUC report says: "Apart from minor amendments, the two principal matters which the British delegation felt unable to accept were: a declaration that the creation of a second front on the European continent was imperative this year, and the Soviet proposal to extend the committee to embrace the trade unions of North and South America and the occupied countries.

"As agreement was not reached on the major points—the second front and extension of the committee—it was decided that the proposed declaration should not be published until the matter had been considered by the TUC general council."

Blasts Citrine For Stalling Intl. Labor Unity

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—Sir Walter Citrine, secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, is "playing the game of reactionary AFL leaders" and hindering "international collaboration between the labor unions of Great Britain, the U. S. and the Soviet Union," Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, charged this week.

Emspak's charge came with publication of Citrine's report to the TUC convention in Southport, England, which quoted AFL propaganda against the CIO and tried to explain away the blocking of international unity on the ground that the TUC had to accept the AFL's point of view.

The Citrine report was made in connection with the July meeting of the Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Committee, in which the Soviet delegation was sharply critical of the failure to include all bona-fide unions of the United Nations in world labor unity.

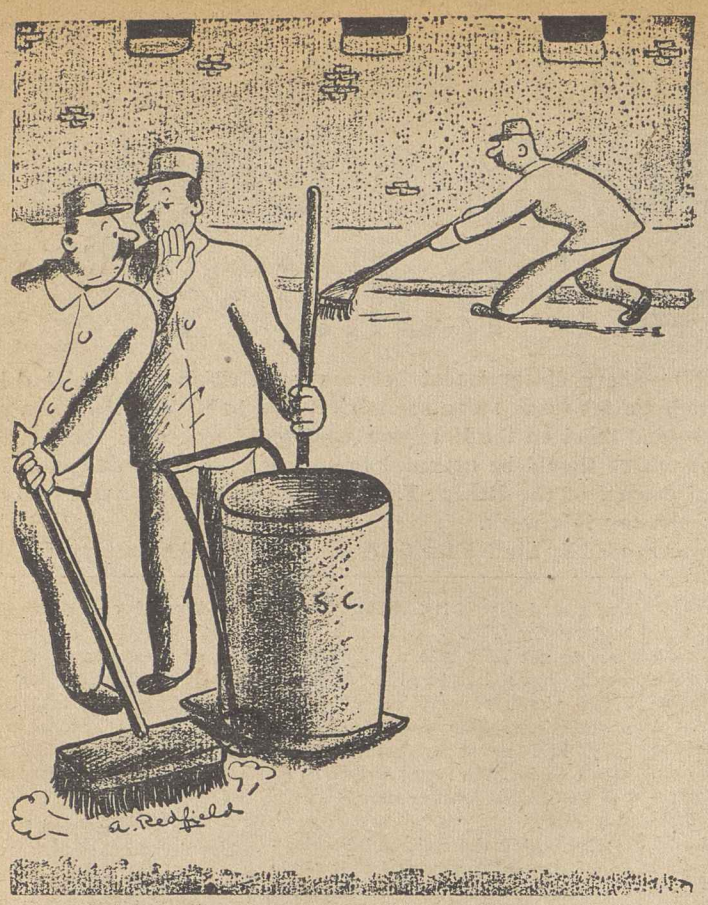
Earlier in the year, following Citrine's visit to ths country, CIO President Philip Murray told a group of foreign newspaper correspondents that the CIO was disappointed with the attitude of TUC officials on the unity question, saying at the time:

MAIN BARRIER

"The main barrier to United Nations labor unity is the traditional attitude of some of the leaders of the Trades Union Congress, who prefer to adhere to aged relations with the AFL rather than assume the hazard of relations with all the labor movements of the world."

Telling of CIO's readiness for world labor unity against the Axis, Murray added: "We suggested our readiness to join with the labor movements of all the United Nations then in constructive collaboration for the successful prosecution of the war. This is also our attitude today."

If You Don't Register, You Can't Vote



"Joe's asked to be transferred to Capitol Hill. He says with the Cox Committee in session, there's more work over there."

Brother, Can You Spare A Line? Soldiers Need CIO Letters to Boost Morale!

NEW YORK Sept. 4—Brother, if you don't think that your fellow unionists on the fighting fronts are hungry for CIO news, you'd better peek over the shoulder of the Army Welfare Committee of the Local 16, United Office & Professional Workers of America. Sample of what they get from the boys overseas is the following letter, from Sgt. Bernard Liebman, who said:

"I just got my copy of the June issue of Memo, the first I've received in about four or five months, and it was one of the most welcome pieces of mail I've received in a long while. After several months here in North Africa I've become pretty well news-starved and news from the Union is just what I need.

"The news of the war is getting better all the time and we are helping to make it—our squadron dropped Paratroops on Sicily the first night of the invasion.

BIG JOB TO DO

"We still have a big job to do but we all feel that we are well on the way, with the result that we are thinking more of what is going on at home, and the most encouraging news to me is that my fellow Union members at home are carrying on their part of the job in the best possible way.

"I have had a chance to get around North Africa quite a bit—from Casablanca to Tunis—and the thing that has impressed me most is the strength of Allied unity as it is expressed by American, British, and French soldiers here. They all seem to understand that we are in this struggle together for the benefit of all. Perhaps the lesson of unity is the most important thing we have learned here and I hope that it will not be lost on the people at home.

"It is hard to express just how much I appreciate hearing of what you are doing and I hope you will continue to send Memo and anything else that will bring me news of our Union.

"I realize that I was never an active enough Union member but the Union has never been far from my mind in all the year I have been away from it. It always was and remains the backbone of what I hope to find when I come back home.

"We will keep them flying over here—you keep up the good job you are doing; that is the sure road to Victory."

Ohio, N. Y. Push Drives For Political Registration

New York, Sept. 4—The drive to register to vote for a victory Congress is being taken seriously by the CIO here, as the Council's campaign for 100 per cent registration not only of CIO members but of all citizens gets under way.

According to Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers and chairman of the city CIO Political Action Committee, the Council will spend about $50,000 and the energies of thousands of volunteers in the drive to get New York's three million eligible voters on the voting lists.

Similar plans are being carried out by the Ohio CIO State Council, where each affiliated member is getting a complete supply of information, registration blanks and the like from the Council's headquarters at Columbus.

As part of its big campaign, the New York Council will use more than 2,500,000 pieces of literature, plus 40,000 posters. hundreds of thousands of "CIO Registration Cards" for all CIO members, 50 radio broadcasts and 60 street meetings to push the drive.

More than 10,000 CIO stewards are being mobilized to take care of every union plant, shop and office in the area.

Cannery Workers Go To Town!

Winston Salem, N. C., Sept. 4—The United Cannery, Agricultural Packing & Allied Workers of America is going to town south of Mason-Dixon. Latest UCAPAWA victory was by 95 per cent, among 1,800 employes of two tobacco leaf concerns here.

At the Winston Leaf plant, the vote was 620 for CIO, 19 for no union. At Piedmont Leaf, it was 899 for CIO, 29 for no union.

Last month at the Reynolds' "Camel" factories, the CIO union won a total of 6,427 votes to 3,092 for no union and 135 for AFL.

Drive on to Wreck U. S. Rent Control

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—War workers already worried over the cost of food and clothing will soon have a new worry—a sharp rise in rents—if the present drive toward junking rent control continues unchecked.

This anti-war campaign, designed to increase the landlords' cut in the profit pie, was started some time ago by the notorious Rep. Howard Smith (polltaxer, Va.) who set up a committee to attack the OPA's rent control division by the familiar smear technique.

The drive is being pressed on two main fronts: 1) legal, through court decisions attacking the whole basis of rent control (and, in fact, all of price control), and 2) by wrecking within OPA itself.

First major victory in the inflation drive on rents came with a decision by a Georgia judge named Bascon S. Deaver that the rent ceiling section of the price control act of 1942 was unconstitutional.

Deaver's decision was full of resounding quotes about "permanent constitutional liberties" and the like, and must now be appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court for a final ruling.

SMITH WIELDS AXE

In OPA, the axing job done by Smith for the real estate industry is bearing fruit with the slashing of OPA regional rent control offices from 700 to 150, leaving one clerk only to handle rent troubles in the other 550 offices, the firing of rent control attorneys from national OPA, and other moves designed to make enforcement almost impossible.

Meantime, reports from crowded war industry centers continue to show the need for more, not less, rent control, while landlords take heart from these developments to jack up rents that war workers must pay to continue on war production jobs.

20-1 Vote OK's Switch From AFL to CIO

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 4—Employes of the Trailer Corp. of America don't have any trouble making up their minds now. This week they voted by a 20-to-1 majority to switch from the AFL to the CIO United Auto Workers Union.

The workers formerly had belonged to the UAW-CIO, but went AFL in 1938. The UAW-CIO said that the AFL attempted to stop the 1943 election by using a closed shop contract to fire CIO leaders in the plant, by trying to provoke strikes and by pressuring the Natl. Labor Relations Board—all to no avail.

The workers knew what they wanted, and got it.

UAW Pushes Plan For Good Food In War Plants

DETROIT, Sept. 4—Eating facilities inside or near war plants are inadequate or insanitary in areas including more than 400,000 workers out of 500,000 surveyed, George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer of the UAW-CIO, said this week in releasing a study made by the UAW War Policy Division.

According to Addes' report, more than 75 per cent of the workers questioned in the survey complained about meals on the job on four main grounds: "not enough facilities, not enough food and that available of poor quality and exorbitant price."

To correct this situation, which is "undermining the health and lowering the stamina of war workers," the UAW report calls for: 1) lowering of point values on rationed lunch meats; 2) sufficient food supplies to in-plant and near-plant eating places, and 3) provision of hot lunches in all plants with 250 or more workers.

Percentages found in the survey showed that 11 per cent of the workers couldn't buy any kind of food in their plants; 17 per cent could only get sandwiches, no hot food in their plants; 17 per cent had no places to eat whatever, and in general that 80 per cent of the workers questioned felt nearby eating places were unsatisfactory.

You Can't Crack Hitler In the Puss if You're Ready for the Junk Heap

DETROIT, Sept. 4—You can't crack Hitler in the puss if you're ready for the physical junk heap. Acting on that theory, the CIO United Auto Workers Union Medical Research Institute this week opened its first health conference, held here.

Chief purposes were to discuss problems of industrialized medicine, unemployment compensation and welfare work, and to inform local union leaders and state and country officials of the work of the institute.

Chief speaker was UAW Pres. R. J. Thomas, who took a sideswipe at the nose of management by declaring that too many corporations take the position that health matters are subjects over which they have exclusive right—"and most frequently they insist on this right only to neglect it," Thomas added.

Thomas proposed that union contracts include clauses establishing joint health and safety committees, and that the committees be made responsible for weekly inspections and recommendations to correct unsafe and harmful conditions of work.

Analysis of the causes of illnesses and accidents, discussion of programs with management, promotion of health and safety campaigns, and the administration of group insurance or health plans should also be part of the committees' work, Thomas suggested.

FEPC Hits AFL Jim Crow Local

Washington, Sept. 4—Immediate return to work of the Negroes in the West Coast shipyards who have been dismissed for refusal to pay their dues into an auxiliary union local of the AFL Boilermakers, is being sought, the Fair Employment Practice Committee said here this week.

The AFL has insisted that the auxiliary local which has been set up for Negroes meets all requirements and that dismissal of Negro workers who fail to pay dues is justified.

The FEPC stated that it had received assurance from the Negroes that they are willing to pay their dues but want full union membership. They insist that the auxiliary local setup does not provide them with full membership.

Farm Union Head Urges 2nd Front

Chicago, Sept. 4—In a telegram to President Roosevelt, Grant Oakes, president of the CIO United Farm Equipment Workers, urged the opening of a second front in Europe "capable of significantly relieving pressure on the Eastern front," and offered the union's "unconditional support of every action taken by you to achieve a swift United Nations victory."

CIO Heroes Take 'Sighted Sub, Sank Same' Attitude

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—Three CIO members wounded in the North African and Sicilian campaigns, who are convalescing here at Walter Reed Hospital, object to being regarded as heroes. When interviewed recently, they told the facts with "sighted sub, sank same" simplicity.

Pvt. David H. Jones, a member of the CIO United Steel workers of America from Warren, Ohio, maintained that he had done "nothing out of the ordinary" when he threw a hand grenade at a shack housing a machine gun and captured 12 Nazis, or when he "played dead" after his leg was shattered by a bullet, gave himself first aid, and went on with the fight.

His body wasted by fever, Jones has been lying in bed for two months. His shattered right leg with a steel pin through it has been elevated at a 45-degree angle.

Sergeant Arby Barnes from Wauson, Ohio, before the war worked at the Toledo plant of the American Can Co. He was helping unload an ammunition ship near Gela, Sicily, when an enemy torpedo struck it.

"Some of the men were blown against the bulkheads," said Sergeant Barnes. "They were stunned and the flames were reaching them. I just dragged a couple out, that was all." He doesn't mention the severe burns he received while doing it.

Then there is Private Alec Mclyncovich, a CIO steelworker from Windsor, Pa., recovering from a hole in his back "you could stick your fist in." The fragment that made it came very close to his heart.

When questioned, Mclyncovich said: "Now listen, you ain't going to make a hero out of me. You talk about the First Division."

The stories of the three CIO members were obtained by the War Department's Industrial Service Division, Labor Branch.

MISSING IN ACTION: 1st Lt. Jack Reiter, a member of a New York local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, was reported this week as "missing in action" after a raid somewhere in the Middle Eastern area. A navigator of a Liberator B-24 bomber, Reiter, of 1013 Bryant Ave., the Bronx, was a veteran of 38 bombing missions. He skimmed trees and roof tops to help bomb the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania and participated in the first American raid on Rome.

CIO Victory

Colorado Court 'Knocks Out' Anti-Labor Law

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 11—Labor won its first victory in the fight against state anti-union laws in a decision this week of the Colorado state court throwing out certain sections of a law passed by the legislature last year.

According to Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, who argued the case before the Colorado court, the verdict upholds constitutional rights of freedom of speech, press and assembly in knocking out the incorporation of unions feature of the act.

"The importance of the decision of the Colorado court is its confirmation of CIO's contention that labor unions are not business organizations but are organizations of workers exercising basic civil rights such as freedom of speech, press and assembly," he said. "This argument of the CIO was expressly upheld by the court when it held the incorporation features of the statute unconstitutional."

The court's verdict, handed down by Judge Charles C. Sackman, did uphold sections of the act prohibiting strikes by minority groups and secondary boycots.

In upholding these parts of the act, the court left the way open for further appeals to the State Supreme Court and ultimately to the U. S. Supreme Court, Pressman pointed out. These appeals will be taken at once by the CIO and the whole question of a state's power to outlaw normal union activities will come before the highest court in the nation.

"Since activities such as picketing and boycots are also expressions of the basic freedoms of speech, press and assembly, we have similarly argued that state legislation may not prohibit such activities when performed in a peaceful manner," he said.

BEAUTIES FROM BRASS: Contestants in event to select "Miss Bridgeport (Conn.) Brass," won by Miss Virginia Plaskann, who received a $100 War Bond and became eligible to compete for the title of "Miss National Defense" in a nation-wide contest being sponsored by the War Production Board.

Home, War Fronts One, Decision Of Wisc. CIO

By ALFRED HIRSCH

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 11—Realization, with President Roosevelt, that the home and war fronts cannot be separated featured the deliberations of the pioneer state industrial union council when the sixth annual convention of the Wisconsin State CIO was held here on September 3-4.

On the home front the convention took favorable action on the national CIO's political action committee proposals which have already been put into practice here. The convention supported CIO's stand against creation of a national third party as harmful to the war effort.

It endorsed further action to implement the rollback of prices and called upon Wisconsin Congressmen to repeal the Smith-Connally bill.

Some discussion preceded passage of a resolution endorsing incentive pay as a means of increasing production. The resolution contained adequate union safeguards against possible exploitation of incentive pay plans by employers less interested in defeating our fascist enemies than in destroying the unions.

CALL FOR 2nd FRONT

On the war front, the convention called for a western front now to break Hitler's power in 1943 and thus shorten the war. (The slogan "Back the Attack for Victory in 1943" was emblazoned over the speakers' platform.)

Other resolutions called for closer relations between the United Nations' coalition, greeting the decision for a joint United States-British-Soviet Union conference on the conduct of the military front and urged international labor unity.

The speech of UAW President R. J. Thomas in which he condemned those who are attempting to divide the United Nations was warmly received.

NO-STRIKE PLEDGE

Thomas also reiterated labor's no-strike pledge. The convention passed a resolution to that effect, at the same time pledging ever-increased production.

Allan S. Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization, also spoke, stressing labor's devotion to the war effort, as exemplified in its amazing production results.

Monroe Sweetland, director of the National CIO War Relief Committee, pointed out the CIO's impressive contributions in this field.

Thomas White of the UERMWA was unanimously re-elected president. Mel J. Heinritz, who was nominated by Walter J. Burke, for the past 4½ years the state CIO's secretary-treasurer, succeeds him in the position. Burke will return to full time work as field representative of the United Steelworkers of America.

Crackdown Seen On Job Discrimination In R. R. Industry

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—A crackdown on job discrimination in the railroad industry may be the outcome of hearings to be held here September 15-18 by the Fair Employment Practices Committee. The hearings will involve charges of discrimination lodged against 23 railroads and 14 unions affiliated with the AFL and the Railroad Brotherhoods.

Most of the cases involve the question of discrimination against Negro workers. A few cases involve workers of Mexican origin.

Chief among the practices coming under the scrutiny of the committee is that of considering Negro railroad workers "non-promotables" through agreements between unions and railroads restricting the percentage of Negroes who may be employed in certain categories.

"These agreements, together with enactment of union regulations limiting or barring non-white membership," it is charged, "tend to reduce sharply the number of qualified Negroes employed by the railroads despite an increasing need for such labor," the FEPC stated.

"Numerous complaints received by the FEPC have been investi- [illegible] a steady decline in the number of non-white railroad workers which has taken place during recent years as a result of such practices."

Other charges to be taken up at the hearings are that railroads have refused to hire or upgrade Negroes, have ignored their seniority rights, have unfairly deprived them of full-time employment and have maintained differentials in wages.

War Wreckers Taken to Cleaners

New York, Sept. 11—"Washington war wreckers" were taken to the cleaners this week in a pamphlet of that title, written by Federated Press' Washington correspondent, Virginia Gardner.

The stories of Congressional tories in the pamphlet have been taken from Miss Gardner's column, Washington Scene.

40c an Hour—or Less!

Wages High in War? U.S. Says Plenty Aren't!

By HOLLACE RANSDELL

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—Here's something to answer that story about the high wages workers are getting in wartime.

According to figures released here by the Wage-Hour and Public Contracts Division of the U. S. Dept of Labor, some 650,000 workers in industries covered by the Wage-Hour law were being paid less than 40 cents an hour during the past year, when the 40-cent minimum was established.

In addition to these, many workers in other fields not covered by the law such as domestic service, agriculture, fisheries and the service industries, are being paid less than 40 cents.

"Despite a public impression that all war time wages are high," said Administrator L. Metcalfe Walling, "the War Labor Board under the wage stabilization program found it necessary to issue its General Order No. 30 allowing employers without specific permission from the WLB, to raise rates to 40 cents an hour.

"This was done because the board was flooded with requests from employers and employes who had previously not been paying or receiving this much."

About 12,500,000 workers employed in industries for which a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour was established during the past year are covered by this minimum. That Administrator Walling is doubtful that this provision is being enforced is shown when he says:

"Extension of the 40-cent minimum wage in the past year to industries employing so many people at traditionally low wages poses a difficult problem of enforcement at this time when war economy has cut our inspection staff by between one-fourth and one-fifth."

CIO NEWS 'Comic Strip' Gets Big OK

Washington, Sept. 11 — CIO's original venture in the comic strip technique of presenting a serious subject was still receiving plaudits this week—and orders were still flooding the CIO NEWS office for mats of the strip, entitled "Back Bullets with Ballots."

The publication, which is a four-page, full tabloid size affair, may be obtained either in mat or printed form by writing to the CIO NEWS, 718 Jackson Pl. N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

Price for a complete set of mats is $12. Prices for printed copies are: 100 for $2.50; 500 for $10; and 1,000 for $15.

Cut-Price Policy O. K., Says OPA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—The Office of Price Administration admitted this week what everyone has known for a long time—that the cost of living has got to be reduced. Statement on the subject came from Acting OPA Administrator Chester Bowles, who said that a War Labor Board analysis of the move-ment of hourly wage rates since last fall confirms the need of carrying through the Administration's program for a reduction in prices.

Bowles pointed out that wage rates—the basic rate paid to a worker for each hour of work or unit of output—have been stabilized effectively by the WLB He said:

"We still have to bring about a reduction of 4.5 per cent before prices are brought into line with stabilized wage rates."

INTERPRETATIONS WRONG

He declared he felt it necessary to make this statement because "some people had drawn erroneous interpretations from OPA data on hourly and weekly earnings that had no direct bearing on the program for reducing the cost of living."

These people, he declared, had "jumped to the conclusion that OPA saw no necessity for reducing prices because average weekly and hourly earnings had increased more rapidly than the cost of living. Asserting that only hourly rates can and should be stabilized, Bowles said:

"To attempt to freeze total weekly earnings would be both unfair and disastrous. It would be unfair because men cannot be expected to work harder, at higher skills and more hours per week for the same weekly pay.

"It would be disastrous because it would wreck the policy of getting maximum production from our limited manpower. Businessmen would rightly object if, in the field of price control, their total earnings were frozen regardless of how many units of goods they produced and sold."

Mine, Mill Parley Sept. 13

Butte, Mont., Sept. 11—Some 250 delegates from centers of the metal mining and fabricating industry throughout the United States and Canada are arriving here in the copper capital of Montana for the Golden Jubilee convention of the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers which opens Monday at the Miners' Union Hall.

"In normal times the Golden Jubilee convention of a great international union such as the MMSW would be a gala occasion, calling for much festivity," a statement issued by the union declared. "But in this second year of our nation's death struggle with world fascism, the spirit of the delegates will be one of intense devotion to the crucial responsibilities facing organized labor and the workers in our industry in particular."

Among the matters which will be subjects of discussion and action at the convention are:

A salute to the tremendous organizing advance of the union's affiliates in Canada which the union says has placed "the MMSW in the leadership of Canadian labor."

A special welcome to the Casting Division delegates, who will be taking part in their first MMSW convention following formal completion during the past year of the merger between the MMSW and the former National Association of Die Casting Workers.

LABOR DAY UNITY: Symbolic of the unity needed among all branches of the trade union movement and our soldiers fighting abroad was the Labor Day donation of blood to the Red Cross by CIO and AFL leaders in Boston. While making his contribution, AFL Central Labor Union Secretary Harry Grages chats with (l. to r.) John J. Del Monte, AFL CLU vice-president; James H. Durkin, Massachusetts CIO vice-president and UOPWA representative, and Jack Hurvich, president of the Boston CIO Industrial Union Council and representative of the United Steelworkers. Mrs. George N. Crosland is taking the donation with the assistance of Red Cross Gray Lady Mrs. Virginia Murray.

Sabotage Nazi War Machine, Murray's Message to Italy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—Sabotage the Nazi war machine! That was the plea extended this week to Italian workers in a short wave broadcast by CIO President Philip Murray, who hailed the surrender of the Italian armies as an outstanding victory for the United Nations.

"More than 5,000,000 American workers," Murray said in a broadcast arranged through the Office of War Information, "members of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, together with their duly constituted leadership, welcome the confirmation of the surrender of the Italian armed forces to the Allies.

"This single act gives to the workers of Italy a high patriotic duty to perform. The Italian worker can and must be a potent factor in winning the peace he has so long desired. His cooperation with his liberators, the Allies, must be linked with a grim determination to do everything within his power to frustrate the efforts of his true enemies, the Nazi Germans.

"By helping to sabotage the German war machine, Italian workers can help to save Allied lives by shortening the battle of Italy. If the Italian worker performs his patriotic duty to the utmost, he will have the lasting respect of great labor organizations—such as the CIO—which is proud to number among its members hundreds of thousands of Americans of Italian origin."

CIO Convention Slated for Philly; Starts November 1

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—The 1943 CIO Convention will be held at Philadelphia, beginning Monday, November 1, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. That was the announcement made this week by CIO President Philip Murray, as he sent the Convention Call to CIO affiliates, containing this key for Convention deliberations:

"We are determined to spare no effort to intensify the prosecution of the war in order that the armed forces of the United Nations may quickly strike the decisive blows against the tottering Axis forces to achieve their unconditional surrender."

The complete convention call follows:

The indivisibility of the struggle in which we are engaged on the military, political and economic fronts becomes more apparent daily. Military victories will not suffice to create the kind of a world to which we look forward. As we work and fight, we must also build a people's world free from want and fear. After guns have been silenced, our enemies must be confronted by a demonstration of democracy at work.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations supports the President of the United States both as the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy and as a fighter for a world in which justice and peace are triumphant.

We are determined to spare no effort to intensify the prosecution of the war in order that the armed forces of the United Nations may quickly strike the decisive blows against the tottering Axis forces to achieve their unconditional surrender.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations, more powerful in numbers and more influential in leadership than ever before, must continue to construct a more influential political base to help translate our resolutions and aims into action.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations renews its pledge to fight for maintenance of full employment for all workers; price control; taxation in relation to ability to pay; industrial reconversion in the people's interest; social security to share social risks; and, in the international sphere, a world order based on law and human rights.

CONSTRUCTIVE PEACE

To fulfill its hopes for and efforts towards a constructive and lasting peace, the Congress of Industrial Organizations welcomes the opportunity to cooperate with all men of good will—in the labor movement, on the farms, in business and the professions, and among the consumers of America.

In furtherance of our objectives and in accordance with the provisions of our Constitution, you are hereby notified that the Sixth Annual Convention of the Congress of Industrial Organizations will be held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, commencing 10 a.m., Monday, November 1, 1943. Convention headquarters will be located in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

The CIO Executive Board will meet at 10 a.m., October 28, 1943, at Convention Headquarters, Philadelphia.

Article VII of the CIO Constitution provides the basis of representation and the manner of election of delegates.

To Picket Pegler Over The Nation

New York, Sept. 11—Picketing of Westbrook Pegler will be transferred to other cities where the union has hiring halls, the CIO National Maritime Union announced here this week.

"Our picket line here has served its purpose," said Joseph Stack, NMU agent. "We have made plain to the people of New York that Pegler's attacks on the NMU are a compound of slander, distortion and lies designed to hurt the war effort of labor in general and the NMU in particular."

CIO Regional Political Offices to be Set Up

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—Chairman Sidney Hillman of the CIO Political Action Committee today announced approval by the CIO Executive Officers of the Committee's plans for national and regional organization.

His announcement followed a meeting of the CIO Political Action Committee with the CIO Executive Officers, including the President, Secretary-Treasurer and Vice-Presidents of the CIO.

The organizational set-up of the Commitee provides for headquarters in New York City, a small Washington office, and 14 regional offices as follows:

Region I, covering the New England states; with headquarters in Boston.

Region II, New York State; New York City, headquarters.

Region III, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland; Newark, headquarters.

Region IV, Pennsylvania; Pittsburgh, headquarters.

Region V, Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Region VI, Michigan; Detroit, headquarters.

Region VII, Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana; Chicago, headquarters.

Region VIII, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Florida; Birmingham, headquarters.

Region IX, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Nebraska; Minneapolis, headquarters.

Region X, Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas.

Region XI, Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana; Dallas, headquarters.

Region XII, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

Region XIII, California and Nevada.

Region XIV, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Arizona and New Mexico; Denver, headquarters.

The Committee's national headquarters staf will include an Assistant to Chairman Hillman on Organization. Each regional office will be headed by a regional director.

To establish the machinery for CIO's political action campaign, Chairman Hillman and other members of the Committee will shortly start on a coast-to-coast trip, in the course of which regional conferences will be called in the cities visited, during the rest of September and the month of October. The itinerary includes Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis and Cincinnati.

The members of the CIO Political Action Committee are Sidney Hillman, chairman; Van A. Bittner, vice-chairman; R. J. Thomas, secretary; S. H. Dalrypmle, Albert J. Fitzgerald and David J. McDonald.

SAYING "YES" to CIO War Relief requests for funds is easy when the asking is done by Miss Frances Monega, who recently was elected "Miss CIO" at a Lorain, Ohio, rally. Checking in her collections is Robert Keys, president of the Lorain County Industrial Union Council.

They Still Vote Strong For CIO

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 11—Production workers in the new General Electric plant here turned in a landslide vote for the CIO in a recent NLRB election. The vote was 1,511 for the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers to 144 against.

The UE previously won bargaining rights at the other two GE plants in the city, and now has established itself in every GE plant in the state.

Transport Victory

Chicago, Sept. 11—The CIO United Transport Service Employes this week won sole bargaining rights for the 500 cooks, waiters, pantrymen and car porters employed by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, in a National Mediation Board election held here. The vote was 198 for CIO, to 167 for the AFL Hotel & Restaurant Workers.

The election victory which followed a drive among dining car employes started several months ago, UTSEA officials say "will become the opening wedge for the complete organization of the nation's 20,000 dining car workers under the banner of the CIO."

New drives in the Chicago area are now under way on the Milwaukee, Burlington, Northwestern and Sante Fe railroads.

Office Workers Go CIO

Portland, Me., Sept. 11—Office and clerical workers of the New England Shipbuilding Co. turned in a five-to-one vote for the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers in a National Labor Relations Board election here. The vote was 361 for the CIO to 74 against.

CIO local officials say this is the first vote to be held among office workers in Maine.

Win 4c an Hour Pay Increase

Washington, Sept. 11—Some 3,000 production workers at plants of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. and the Kelly-Springfield Engineering Co. at Cumberland, Md., were granted a four-cent hourly pay increase by the War Labor Board this week. They are represented by the CIO United Rubber Workers.

In addition to the general increase, craft workers in the tool and engineering maintenance division received pay boosts averaging 6.7 cents an hour. Both increases are retroactive to Feb. 12, 1943.

Talking of Swings

Many American politicoes interpreted the 1942 elections as a popular swing against labor and the New Deal—though the fact was that 22 million voters failed to vote, and most of these election absentees were labor and progressive voters in the war plants and the armed forces.

But in Australia, where there are few, if any, election absentees and where special provisions are made to get all men in the armed services to vote, the recent elections showed a big swing to labor.

The labor government there won a sweeping majority, increasing its representation in the federal house from 36 to 53. And the vote of the fighting men was overwhelmingly pro-labor.

In Canada, too, recent elections have shown a tremendous swing in favor of labor and progressive candidates—notably in Ontario, where many CIO and other labor men were elected for the first time to the provincial legislature.

In other democracies there have also been election swings to labor. And in Great Britain, where there has been no general election since long before the war, there is every indication an election would show a greatly increased labor vote.

People in the United States are no different from their fellows in the other fighting democracies. They want a strong and progressive win-the-war government. They know that labor is the backbone of our war effort and a strong force for democratic progress.

The war is bringing about a swing in political sentiment here too. It is up to labor to organize and become active politically as never before, to make sure this swing takes its logical course, here as in other countries, in favor of labor, victory and social progress.

Unpopular Act

If there is any satisfaction in saying, "We told you so," labor today can have that satisfaction in full in regard to the Smith-Connally Act.

The daily press, which pushed for legislation of this type, now admits the Act hasn't worked out right.

Employers who wanted a club against labor don't like this clumsy bludgeon now they have it.

And even the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers, which put on the drive for an anti-labor law, is now reported to be preparing to disown its baby.

The statement of CIO Pres. Murray denouncing Attorney-General Biddle's interpretation of the Smith-Connally Act received an almost uniformly favorable press, according to the Twohey Analysis of Newspaper Opinion.

All the papers that commented emphasized Murray's point that the Act creates chaos and disrupts war production by giving legal sanction to strike agitations by a handful of trouble-makers in any plant, providing for strike ballots even in plants where the union chosen by the majority of employes has a collective bargaining agreement forbidding strikes.

Press attitudes have also been influenced by a Natl. Labor Relations Board survey revealing the difficulties created by the strike-provoking provisions of this alleged anti-strike law.

But, while big business and its press are now critical of the Smith-Connally Act and generally demand a change, there is an important distinction between their attitude and that of labor.

Their demand is for amendment or "strengthening" of the Act, or for the substitution of even worse anti-labor legislation. The labor movement, on the other hand, unanimously demands the complete repeal of the Smith-Connally Act and an end to all such labor-baiting and production-disrupting attempts.

The next session of Congress will unquestionably have to do something about this vicious measure. It is up to labor and all the win-the-war forces to see that Congress undoes the wrong done in the last session, and that it doesn't make a bad matter worse.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

CONGRESS is returning to do business at the same old stand. But let's hope it won't be doing business in the same old way.

The Congressmen have had a chance to find out what the folks back home are thinking. But some of them are bum reporters.

One Congressman, for instance, reports one thing above all else is on the minds of his constituents. Guess what. No, it's not winning the war and getting the boys back home. Give up? He says it's gas rationing!

Another declares millions of people "are more incensed at the government than at Hitler and Japan."

Yet another speaks of "two wars"—one against the Axis and the other (in the same breath) against "Washington bureaucracy."

★ ★ ★

We'll bet they didn't get these ideas from labor folks back home. For these Congressmen were met by labor delegations who told them very differently.

And we doubt if they got them from anyone else—except perhaps some personal friends who agreed with all they said just to stop them talking.

But such Congressmen, in the last session, acted as if the people who elected them were more concerned about personal inconveniences, petty politics and selfish sectional interests, than about winning this war.

And now they're still claiming, in the face of all evidence to the contrary, that that's what the folks back home wanted them to do.

But more honest Congressmen admit, and even the self-kidders know in their own hearts, that the American people want speedy victory above all else; that they don't mind necessary discomforts and inconveniences, to help bring back our boys earlier; and that they want Congress to legislate in the spirit of national unity, not to play politics-as-usual.

The Congressmen who have been home know too—and CIO committees have helped them to this knowledge—that the working people, and many, many others as well, don't like the record of the last session of Congress on:

High Cost of Living. Congress drove prices up by harrying and hampering OPA and cutting its funds; by forbidding grade labeling; and by fighting administration attempts to roll back living costs through subsidies—while offering no alternative plan whatever for controlling and rolling back prices.

Taxes. Who but the very rich could applaud the rejection of the President's proposal for a $25,000 limit, after all taxes, while wages of workers and fighters are pegged—or the Ruml plan gift to the wealthy, to be taken out of the hides of the poor?

Labor-Baiting. The Smith-Connally Act, unanimously opposed by labor, is now unpopular with the press, with many employers and even with the NAM, it's rumored. Its disruptive and strike-provoking character has been proved by events.

Administration-Baiting. The shenanigans of the Dies Committee, the Smith Committee's drive against rent control, and the Cox Committee's unscrupulous grudge fight against the FCC, have not endeared the Congressmen who voted for them to people who want national unity, not petty factional politics.

★ ★ ★

The new session of Congress can undo some of the wrong-doing of the last.

It can really get to work on the high cost of living, by voting subsidies and backing other administration plans for controlling and rolling back prices.

It can raise taxes on the basis of ability to pay, by increasing profits taxes; by higher income taxes on the higher brackets; by closing present tax loopholes; by rejecting the sales tax; and by exempting from taxation incomes below $800 (single) and $1,500 (married).

It can repeal the Smith-Connally Act.

It can complete passage of the anti-polltax bill (already passed by the House).

It can pass the Wagner-Murray-Dingell social security bill.

It can become a real Victory Congress by backing our Commander-in-Chief in every necessary step, domestic and foreign, to win this war.

If your representatives are still unconvinced of the need of such a program, there is still time to convince them. But if we let up on the work begun during the recess, Congress may do none of these things, but on the contrary, may carry on in the spirit of the last session to even worse labor-baiting and disruption of our victory effort.

Back to Work With Congress

★ ★ ★

You've Got a Job to Do!

By C. W. FOWLER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 — Congress is coming back to work this week, following the summer recess during which the Congressmen heard from the voters on war front and home front issues in meetings over the country organized by CIO political action groups.

Judging from reports sent to national CIO headquarters, the war workers have done a pretty good job of telling the facts of life to their Representatives on Capitol Hill.

The real test of the effectiveness of this recess work will come, however, when we see what Congress does with the issues facing it on its return. And the nation's verdict on this Congress, to be given in the 1944 elections, will be based on how well Congress meets this test in the second half of the 1943 session.

Here are the major issues that the Congress will be faced with when it reconvenes September 14:

* * *

TAXES

The 1943-44 tax bill is still to be written, since the first six months debate in Congress merely resulted in the 75 per cent version of the Ruml Plan, which gave a special plum to the rich and left a huge revenue gap to be filled.

The reactionaries who want to fill this gap with a general sales tax on everything you buy at the grocery store and the clothing store have been busy during the recess, laying plans for a full dress sales tax drive.

The CIO's win-the-war tax program, issued during the recess, calls for higher taxes on swollen profits and big incomes, repeal of the mis-called "Victory Tax," higher income tax exemptions to protect minimum health and efficiency living standards, no sales tax, holding war profits down to five per cent and keeping incomes down to $25,000 a year net, and plugging loopholes that allow loss of hundreds of millions of dollars a year to benefit the rich.

ACTION

Hearings will be held beginning August 20 by the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Doughton (D., N. C.), chairman, and the Senate Finance Committee, Sen. George (polltaxer, Ga.), chairman, as soon as the Congress reconvenes. Write to these committee chairmen, find out if any of your Congressmen are on these Committees and write to them, and write to your own Congressmen and Senators.

* * *

SMITH-CONNALLY

Repeal of the Smith-Connally Act, which was passed over President Roosevelt's veto and over the protests of all labor, is a prime must on the Congressional list.

The bill has been denounced by all sections of the country as strike-provoking, as an insult to labor, and as a wedge against national unity needed for all-out war production. Even some daily newspapers have joined the outcry against the Act, declaring that its "bad features" at least should be repealed.

ACTION

Write to your Congressman and two Senators, demanding that they work and vote for repeal of the Smith-Connally Act, as a means of undoing the harm it has already done and avoiding the tremendous potential harm it can do to war production.

* * *

POLL TAX REPEAL

HR 7, the polltax repeal bill, is a must for quick action in the Senate. The bill passed the House twice in earlier sessions, and is now bottled up in a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Sen. McFarland (D., Ariz.), chairman.

The bill should be immediately reported out of this subcommittee without amendments. Last year, an identical bill was OK'd by a Senate subcommittee after 18 months of hearings, so there is no possible excuse for further delay.

ACTION

Write to Sen. McFarland and your own two Senators demanding an immediate, favorable report on HR 7 without amendments, so that it can reach the Senate floor for debate and vote.

Polltax Senators will try to sabotage the bill by a filibuster. Your answer to this is to demand that your Senators vote for a cloture rule, which requires a two-thirds majority and which will cut off debate and thus choke the filibuster. The bill will pass the Senate, if the filibuster is blocked.

* * *

COST OF LIVING

The first six months of this Congress saw bold and successful attacks on the program of holding down the cost of living, which must be counteracted by Congressional action now.

These attacks included attempts to wreck price control by slashing OPA enforcement funds, by riddling the OPA staff with "business men" representing special interests, and by forbidding grade labelling as a means of protecting the consumer from quality chiselling.

At the same time, the Congress was forced to pass at least a modified form of subsidies to help achieve the rollback of prices to 1942 levels, and a new Congressional group called the Committee for the Protection of Consumers (the "Fighting Fifty") was formed among progressive Congressmen.

Cost of living will be a major issue as soon as Congress re-convenes, and renewed efforts to secure a real rollback either through subsidies or through government purchase and re-sale of basic necessities must be carried through successfully if we are to protect our own living standards and our efficiency on the war job.

ACTION

Demand that all attacks, either through legislation or through "investigating committees" (read, smear committees) on price control cease, and that Congress supply the OPA and other agencies with the funds they need to protect the people from inflation.

Urge your Congressman to join and support the "Fighting Fifty," if he has not already done so. Urge full support for the rollback program, for repeal of the ban on grade labelling, and demand an end to smear attacks on price control.

* * *

A deliberate attempt to cut down production of war foods in this country was made by the "farm bloc" in Congress—which represents monopoly food trusts, not working farmers. This was done in attempts to kill the Farm Security Administration, which brings small farmers into war food production, by killing insurance to guard farmers against losses on certain vital war crops, and by killing incentive payments to induce greater war food production.

ACTION

Demand action by Congress to push full war food production, restoration of full funds to FSA, restoration of crop insurance and incentive pay for farmers, and an end to attempts to wreck price control and food output by monkeying with farm prices or farm labor.

* * *

VOTING HOURS

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) has a bill in the hopper (S 1089) extending voting hours in national elections from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. This is a real war measure, since the fact that many thousands of war workers were unable to vote in 1942 due to inability to get to the polls in time was largely responsible for the high percentage of phonies in the present Congress.

ACTION

S 1089 is now in a subcommittee of the Senate Committee Elections (Sen. Green, D., R. I., chairman) and should be reported out favorably for debate and vote. Write to Sen. Green urging a report, and to your two Senators for support and favorable vote.

* * *

AID TO SOLDIERS' DEPENDENTS

The CIO is preparing to push a bill sharply increasing the amount of government aid to wives and children and other dependents in the armed forces. Watch The CIO NEWS for further announcements on this, and get ready to urge your Congressmen to support it.

* * *

Senators Wagner and Murray and Representative Dingell have a bill in the hopper to broaden and greatly increase unemployment compensation, old age, sickness and disability assistance, and to include men in the armed forces, agricultural workers and domestic workers in the social security picture. CIO is supporting this bill (S 1161 and HR 2861), through its Social Security Committee (Van A. Bittner, chairman) and in fact helped to prepare the measure.

Hearings on the bill will start soon in both House and Senate. Watch The CIO NEWS for names of committees and hearing dates. Meantime, write your Congressmen for support.

* * *

WATCH THOSE COMMITTEES

Debate and votes on the floor are not the sole test of whether your Congressman is doing his job of helping to win the war. A great deal of work is done in Committees. Both in the regular committees and the special committees set up during this session and in the past, much of it has been dirty work.

For example, much of the wrecking attack on the cost of living control question was carried out in hearings before the House Appropriations Committee on the appropriation for OPA. A similar wrecking job was tried on rent control in the smear committee set-up under the notorious Rep. Smith (polltaxer, Va.). The Senate Agriculture Committee was the nursery for a whole series of sabotage blows directed at food production. The committee chairman, Sen. Smith (polltaxer, S. C.), is a leader of the monopoly "farm bloc."

Keep your eye on the skullduggery in these committees as well as the work done on the floor during debates and votes. Even if your own Congressman isn't a member of a particular committee, he's able to influence them by talking to Congressmen who are.

And above everything else in your home front activity—be sure to register so you can vote in '44.

Keep Telling 'Em, And Don't Forget—Register to Vote!

Congress is coming back to Washington after a six weeks' work-out in the home territories.

During that six weeks, the Congressmen heard plenty about the job they've been doing—or not doing—to help win the war on Capitol Hill. They know now, if they didn't know before, what's on the people's minds and what's expected of them by the voters.

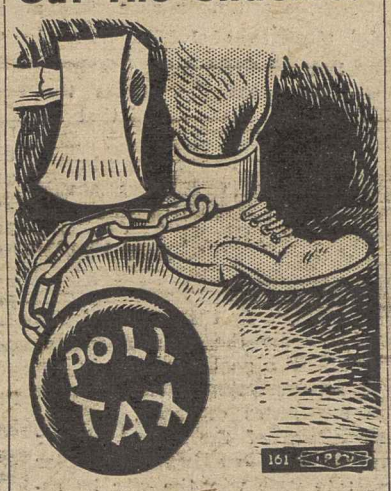
To keep this knowledge fresh in their minds, the war workers and all the plain people have to keep up the educational work—because training a Congressman is pretty much a continuous business.

The meetings in the grass roots country, the personal contacts between the war workers and their Representatives, and the lessons that the Congressmen have had a chance to absorb, are all to the good. They'll be lost, however, if the teachers don't keep on with the lessons.

Start up again the old habit of writing to your Congressman and your two Senators. Tell them about CIO's win-the-war program and tell them that CIO voters, their families and their friends are still on the job.

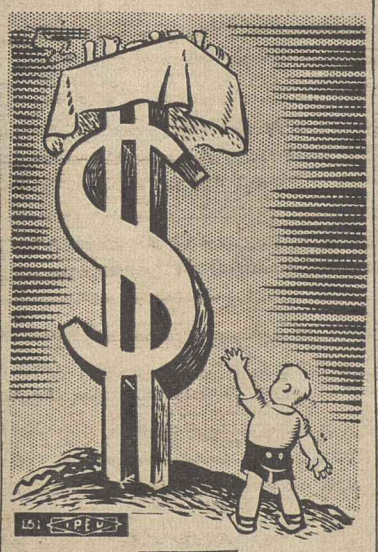
And be sure you register so you can vote in 1944—all the political action by labor that we can mobilize won't matter a row of beans if workers don't vote in the coming elections.

Cut the Shackle!



Pull on BOTH of Them!

Lower, Please!



CIO Auxiliary Program

Mobilize Women For Political Action

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—CIO women this week pledged to do their part to step up the tempo of labor political action. The pledge came from the CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries Natl. Executive Board, which decided here that the most important job facing CWA is mobilization of women in CIO families to participate in labor's national political drive—especially the 1944 elections.

The board also stressed the importance of the campaign for the rollback of prices to September, 1942, levels and urged pressure on Congressmen to join the "Fighting 50" Congressional bloc to battle for an effective price control and rollback program.

Strong protest to OPA Administrator Prentiss Brown against the curtailment of machinery for enforcement of rent control was unanimously voted by the auxiliary leaders. Hundreds of local OPA rent-control offices have been closed.

Acting on reports of strong producer pressure for increases in price ceilings on milk and crude oil, the executive board voted to urge Economic Stabilization Director Vinson to direct OPA to refuse any increase in these price ceilings. They urged him to arrange to meet increased production costs by use of Commodity Credit Corp. and Reconstruction Finance Corp. subsidies to producers.

DEMAND GRADE LABELING

In line with the action taken to maintain grade-labeling requirements on meats as "necessary to the maintenance of effective retail price control, they also urged Vinson to direct the OPA to restore those requirements in the 19 price orders from which they have been deleted because of the Taft Amendment to the Commodity Credit Corporation Act.

They pointed out that effective retail price control on eggs, butter, dry edible beans, fresh pork sausage, rubber heels and all the other consumer commodities involved in these 19 price orders is impossible without grade labeling to enable the consumer to know that she is getting the quality for which she is paying.

QUOTE MURRAY

The resolutions on Political Action adopted by the board quotes a letter of CIO President Philip Murray to all CIO affiliates in which he says:

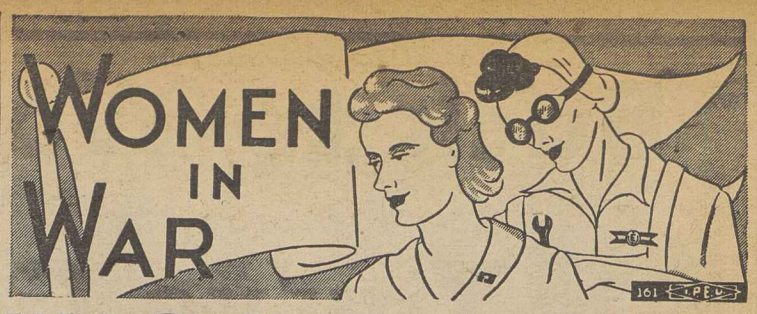
"The Republican and Democratic Parties have already started to enlist the active cooperation of women in the 1944 election campaign. In public statements they have called attention to the importance of women's votes in 1944 because of the large number of men who have gone to serve in the armed forces of our country. We must also think in terms of depending to a large measure on the help of our CIO women in making our election campaign plans."

The auxiliary resolution continues:

"The executive board of the CWA pledges its full support to the CIO campaign for political action. We realize that victory may be speeded by correct decisions in Congress in the next few months and retarded by wrong votes. We realize that the Congress we elect in 1944 will have a big voice in the making of the peace and that winning the election will help to win the peace.

"We feel that one of the most important ways in which our women can contribute to the realization of the CIO Victory Program is to participate in every phase of the political action drive of their unions."

The resolution concludes by calling upon all CIO auxiliaries to discuss political action at every meeting, to conduct campaigns for registration of every member, to work with their unions to involve all the women in the union families, and to participate in the work of Labor Congressional District Committees in their areas.



WAC Success Sets Goal for Auxiliaries

By ELEANOR FOWLER

The achievements of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps are a guide and inspiration to their sister organizations in the labor movement.

Remember the wise-cracks when the WAACs were first set up—not much more than a year ago? The WAACs ignored them and went right ahead. In the first year their services proved to the Army that women could play an important role in assuming responsibility in a wide variety of noncombatant positions.

Congress originally authorized a total strength of 150,000 WAACS. One year of their work convinced the Army that four times that number were needed, and that the job these women were doing was of such vital importance to winning the war that the Corps should cease to be called an auxiliary and become an integral part of the Army itself.

MURRAY HAILS AUXILIARIES

The result is that the WAACS have become the Women's Army Corps with a goal of 600,000 in the current recruiting drive. We, in the auxiliaries of labor, are not only proud of the record of our army sisters—we have a similar goal: to help win the war by assuming many of the home front wartime responsibilities of our unions.

The constant understanding and aid of President Philip Murray of the CIO is speeding our development. His letter to CIO affiliates in August pointing out the important job auxiliaries can do in the legislative and political action campaigns of labor concludes by saying:

"Our present auxiliaries, coordinated through our Congress of Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO, have been doing a fine job of giving support locally and nationally to our CIO program. But they need the active support of our unions to reach out to the millions of unorganized women in our CIO homes and stimulate them to action. Our auxiliaries should become an established part of our union machinery."

The unions of the CIO recognize the truth of President Murray's words. The National Maritime Union is sending their national auxiliary organizer, Mrs. Terry Penman, on a tour of all ports beginning this month.

MORE RECOGNITION

The recent conventions of the Int. Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and of the Intl. Woodworkers of America commended the job their national auxiliary organizations have done and pledged full aid to their growth.

The Executive Board of the Farm Equipment and Metal Workers of America mapped out plans to bring the question of auxiliary organization to the attention of every local as "a prime necessity in carrying out our full responsibility to the war effort."

The CIO auxiliaries are proving their importance by mobilizing their membership and organizing constantly more CIO homes to do a job on price control rollback, on legislative pressure and on the 1944 election campaign.

Just as the WAACS through their accomplishments, have become a recognized part of the Army of our nation, the goal of the auxiliaries of the CIO is to become, in President Murray's words, "an established part of our union machinery."

'Pistol Packin' Mama' Helps Hike Production

By FRED d'AVILA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—You can take it from the War Production Board, brother—"Pistol Packin' Mama," "It Can't Be Wrong," and other top-flight song hits are real wows when it comes to boosting production on Sundays, Mondays and always.

The first real survey on the impact of muusic on production was conducted recently by War Production Drive Headquarters, which sent music expert Wheeler Beckett into the hinterland to gather the statistics.

Beckett found that 80 per cent of 100 plants visited reported that music improves morale, and an even 50 per cent were dead certain that it helps increase production as well.

Complete results of the survey are contained in a report, "Music in War Plants," which will serve as a useful guide to Labor-Management committees that wish to conduct in-plant music programs.

Evidence from the survey shows that the principal value of music in relation to efficiency is not in speeding up workers, but in relaxing unnecessary tensions and creating a pleasant atmosphere for work.

Among those particularly receptive to the music were new women employes unused to factory routine, Beckett said.

Beckett reported that the musical programs are most successful in those plants which give the workers a choice in selecting the pieces to be played. In addition, his survey showed:

1. Music is as successful in noisy departments as in quiet ones.

2. The kind of music is of vital importance—variety is essential.

3. The correct moment to use music varies with the plants, and different kinds of music tie in better at various times of the shifts.

The WPB declined to comment on the rumor that "Put Your Arms Around Me" is the favorite song at quitting time.

The Do's and Don't's For Home Canners

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

1. First, don't let the children play around the kitchen while you are canning.

2. Don't have any draughts in the room.

3. Keep your sterilized jars in hot water or in the oven till needed.

4. Don't pour boiling hot liquid into hot dry jars all at once. Pour the first ladle full very slowly. Pouring it all at once may crack the bottom of the jar.

5. Don't seal your jars till the rim is wiped clean.

6. Place jar in a deep pan while filling with hot food. Be prepared for any spills.

USE COOL WATER

7. Start with cool water in water bath when using cold pack. Putting cold or even warm jars into boiling hot water bath may crack jar and waste the food.

8. Be very careful to let the steam in pressure cooker escape completely before removing cover.

9. Let pressure cooker stand uncovered a few seconds before removing jars. Jars may explode in pressure cooker or even after they are taken out and set on the table.

KEEP JARS APART

10. Be sure to set hot jars from pressure cooker on several thicknesses of newspaper. Set jars at least 2 inches apart. Don't move for 24 hours.

11. Don't fill kettles more than half full when using open kettle method. Allow enough room for a good rolling boil.

12. If you use water bath method boil food 10 minutes as soon as jars are opened.

13. If jars show signs of spoilage, don't taste to make sure. Throw the whole thing away.

TOMATO PRESERVES

If you're putting up tomatoes whole or as juice, put aside a few firm ripe ones to make a delicious preserve that will take the place of butter on both biscuits and toast and topped off with a glass of cold milk will make a nourishing afternoon snack for the children.

RECIPE

5 lbs. of tomatoes (3 medium tomatoes to a pound), 8 cups sugar, 1 orange, 1 lemon.

Dip tomatoes in boiling water till skins can be removed easily. Core and cut in quarters. Drain off liquid. Keep for household use. Add sugar. Let stand over night. Next morning drain off syrup by putting tomatoes into a large collander set over a pan.

Cook syrup in the pan until it spins a thread. Meanwhile slice the orange and lemon into paper thin slices. When the syrup is ready add the tomatoes, orange and lemon slices. The orange and lemon give it a nice tart flavor and furnish the pectin that will make the tomatoes jell.

Cook over low flame until the tomato is transparent. To speed up the cooking divide the tomatoes and syrup in two kettles. This helps keep the color bright. When tomatoes are transparent pour into hot sterilized jars or glasses. Wipe the edges carefully. Pour on hot parrafin.

Tip the jar to be sure the parrafin seals the sides completely. When cool cover with metal lid. Be sure to store in cool, dry place. Warmth and moisture may break the eal and cause spoilage.

Explains Need for 2nd Front

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 11—The opening of a real second front in Europe now is a military need as well as a natural result of the tremendous amount of war materials produced by American labor and awaiting use against the Nazis, CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman told a Labor Day rally here this week.

Pressman outlined the CIO's domestic war program on price rollbacks, taxation, and production, and called on CIO members in this state to realize that winning the war comes before all grievances that unions or individuals may have.

Howard J. McMurray, one of two Milwaukee congressman, and the only man in Wisconsin with a "perfect win-the-war voting record," warned the people present of their responsibility in seeing to it that members of the present Congress do not put the 1944 election campaign ahead of victory in the war.

Harold Christoffel, president of the Milwaukee Industrial Union Council, was chairman of the meeting.

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 11—The Oil Workers Intl. Union has obtained a union shop and improved seniority provisions in a renewed contract with the Ashland Oil & Refining Co., Catlettsburg, Ky.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

C. H. Gilman, Reg. Dir. in Georgia, reports the winning of an election for the Retail, Wholesale & Department Store Employes of America, at the Colonial Stores, Inc. (Rogers Bakery). The count was 23 for URWDSEA-CIO, 3 against. James R. Cochran, URWDSEA Rep., and H. W. Denton, CIO Rep., were responsible for this victory.

G. Geo. DeNucci, CIO Sub-Reg. Dir. for Columbus, Ohio, advises me of an election victory at the Permacrete Products Corp. of Columbus, Ohio. The vote was CIO 14, no union 11. Int'l Rep. Charles Scott, URWDSEA, was in charge.

Paul R. Christopher, Reg. Dir. for Tennessee, reports that CIO is now collective bargaining agency in two more Tennessee plants. The American Federation of Hosiery Workers won an NLRB election at the Bryan Hosiery Mills in Chattanooga, 58 to 17. The Gas, Coke & Chemical Workers, as a result of a cross-check, won bargaining rights in Knoxville at the Anacin Mfg. Co. The cross-check showed that CIO had 146 members among 270 eligible employes.

Walter Harris, Dir. of Organization, UGCCWA, reports winning an election at the Koppers Co., Tar & Chemical Division, St. Louis, Mo., UGCCWA 32 to 0 for no union.

Shipyard Victories

E. D. Hodson, Reg. Dir. for Delaware, reports the following victories: Employes of the Slater System at the Dravo Shipyard Cafeteria voted 76 to 0 for Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers Industrial Union, Local 1337. Three different bargaining units at Dravo Shipyard voted for Local 36, Marine & Shipbuilding Workers. Vote was: Timekeepers 75 for IUH&SW, 0 for no union; Weld Checkers 58 for IUM&SW, 1 for no union; Janitors 127 for IUM&SW, 4 for no union.

Frank Cronin, Acting Reg. Dir. for Nebraska, advises that an election was won by the Steelworkers at the Eaton Metal Products Co. The election, for production and maintenance workers, involved 310 eligible voters. The results were: 69% for USA-CIO; 26% for no union; 5% for the Structural Iron Workers (AFL).

An independent union of auto workers at the Spicer Co., Pottstown, Pa., voted unanimously to affiliate with the UAW-CIO. This independent union has been in existence since 1933. Reps. R. Rittenberry and Merlin Bishop of UAW-CIO were in charge of the transaction.

Wisconsin Backs CIO Policies

The Wisconsin State IUC met in convention at Milwaukee September 3 and 4. It was the best attended convention since the movement was organized. A spirit of let's get the job done prevailed. I had the pleasure of addressing the delegates. The convention, like other conventions, unanimously approved the policies of the CIO.

This week the members of District 6, Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers concluded an election for Board members. Brother Mankowski was the choice of the membership. The District is now united and has more members than at any other period in its history. A remarkable degree of harmony prevails among the officers, representatives, and members. Robert J. Davidson is to be complimented on the splendid job done in this area. Through the pathway of hard experience these workers have learned that their union means all to them and from expressions made at the conference held Tuesday of this week, which I had the privilege to attend, they are detrmined to see to it that nothing divides them in the future. They are determined to go on building their union. Congratulations to all the staff and local represetatives and members who rendered splendid cooperation in bringing these results about.

Cites Contrast In British, U. S. Union Policy

Washington, Sept. 11—The minor recognition granted the war contribution of American labor is in sorry contrast to the major recognition accorded British unions, CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman said this week in a speech at a dinner given by the Washington Chapter of the Natl. Lawyers Guild in honor of Sir Donald Sommerville, attorney general of Great Britain.

"We must recognize that the development of labor law or the relationship of labor to the entire war effort depends entirely on the extent to which labor and its representatives are afforded the full opportunity of participating in the formulation and administration of our national war policies," Pressman said.

"As long as organized labor is treated as a tolerated nuisance only to be cuddled when necessary but not to be recognized as an important democratic institution with a valuable contribution to make, we leave the door open to those elements and groups in our national life who still cherish the desire to destroy unions, impose a reactionary regime, and effectuate a negotiated peace with the Axis.

"In Great Britain, representatives of organized labor and of the Labor Party have been fully integrated into the entire national war effort," Pressman declared. "Not merely has representation been afforded to the leaders of labor, but labor unions and their members have been made a part of the entire war effort in the administration of all important policies."

FIGHTING UNION FAMILY: Not to be outdone by her two brothers in the Army, Janet Marie Brown, a member of Local 610, United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers at Pittsburgh, this week is receiving her "boot training" at New River, N. C., as a newly enlisted private in the U. S. Marine Corps, Women's Reserve. Both her brothers are UE members and her mother was a union member for 23 years.

Says Poles United Against Nazi Conquerors

Washington, Sept. 11 — Workers and farmers in Poland, despite the unbelievable cruelty of the Nazis and the slaughter of millions of people, are united and determined in resistance to the invader, according to A. Adamczyck, Polish labor leader and member of the exiled government now touring this country.

Pointing out that Poland is the only totally occupied country where the Nazis did not set up a phony labor front organization, Adamczyck said that the Germans were unable to find any Quislings as they found them in other countries.

Adamczyck said communications from the Polish underground tell of continued acts of sabotage against the Nazis, and a great thirst for information on American and British trade unions exists even under the occupation.

Citrine's Anti-Unity Policies Criticized By CIO Leaders

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—Sharp criticism of the attitude toward the CIO expressed in Sir Walter Citrine's report to the British Trades Union Congress convention and a reiteration of the CIO's desire for allied labor unity marked comments of CIO leaders on the report released this week.

The Citrine report, in an endeavor to cover up for his failure to promote United Nations labor unity and for his close collaboration with reactionary elements in the AFL, described the CIO as a "break-away" organization, declared it had less than three million members, and went out of the way to insult the Railroad Brotherhoods by saying they had only 340,000 members.

The total picture of the report added up to an obvious desire on Citrine's part to play along with the AFL and to keep the CIO, the Brotherhoods and the Latin American unions out of the world unity set-up.

R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW-CIO and vice-president of the CIO, said in commenting on the report: "It boils down to this: Is the British TUC, because of the arbitrary attitude of the AFL, willing to continue to ignore more than six million American workers who desire to cooperate with their British trade union brothers?

SPEED CALLED URGENT

"I hope the Southport convention (of the TUC) will take steps to terminate the situation . . . The developments on the international scene are too swift and too serious in their implications to permit a further delay of maximum cooperative mobilization of British and American labor on problems of war and peace."

In cabled greetings to the TUC convention, Frank McGrath, president of the United Shoe Workers, urged the TUC to "take steps to extend the Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Committee to include the AFL, the CIO, the Railroad Brotherhoods, the CTAL (Latin-American Confederation of Labor), the labor movements of the Dominions as well as representatives of the bona fide union movements of the occupied countries."

Harry Bridges, president of the Longshoremens and Warehousemens Union, wired: "It is the desire of the workers of all the United Nations to collaborate for maximum effectiveness to win the war and achieve political influence to win the peace. To say that the CIO, Brotherhoods and Latin-American unions do not exist is as foolish as King Canute's back-up order to the waves."

Donald Henderson, president of the Cannery and Agricultural Workers, cabled that the UCAPAWA "greatly feels the need for international unity on the labor front as well as strengthening the coalition between the U. S., Britain and the USSR" and that it "hopes the TUC takes steps to initiate a congress of all anti-fascist labor organizations."

Allied labor unity will "strengthem the basis of coalition warfare and immeasurably shorten the war and save millions of lives," Lewis Merrill, president of the Office and Professional Workers, said in his message.

Similar statements and messages were also sent by Michael Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union; by Abram Flaxer, head of the State, County and Municipal Workers, and others.

As THE CIO NEWS went to press, no replies from Sir Walter had been received.

CIO, AFL Leaders Hail Chile Workers' Part in War on Axis

SANTIAGO, Chile (Delayed) (ALN)—"We will not fail to inform our organizations of Chilean labor's splendid contribution to the cause of the United Nations," members of a U. S. labor delegation visiting Chile declared this week after viewing Chilean labor in action and conferring with the heads of the Confederation of Chilean Workers (CTCh).

The visiting North American labor leaders who were under the auspices of the U. S. Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, are David J. McDonald, secretary of the United Steelworkers; Edward J. Brown, president of the Intl. Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL); and Samuel C. Phillips, vice-president of the Intl. Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen.

They were received by CTCh General-Secretary Bernardo Ibanez and Reinaldo Nunez, acting assistant secretary.

PLUGS FOR COOPERATION

At a reception tendered the U. S. leaders and labor representatives from Peru and Uruguay, Phillips advocated greater cooperation between labor of the two continents to hasten the war's end and insure a durable peace. He said he was particularly happy to see President Roosevelt's photograph in CTCh headquarters and declared that U. S. labor shares the desire of Chilean workers for economic and social improvement.

In an interview with the Chilean press, MacDonald called attention to fifth column intrigue in Latin America and urged fuller U. S. cooperation to prevent the spread of Axis propaganda.

"If we want democracy to survive in the Western Hemisphere, we have to do something about it much more positive than sitting back hoping our South American friends won't 'fall' for anti-democratic propaganda," he said.

Accompanied by U. S. Ambassador Claude Bowers and Ibanez and Nunez, the delegates were also received by President Juan Antonio Rios.

MacDonald, Brown and Phillips are attending the second congress of the CTCh. Among others who are expected to attend are Vicente Lombardo Toledano, president of the Confederation of Latin American Workers (CTAL), and delegates from Cuba, Uruguay, Colombia, Peru, Bolivia and Argentina.

Hunger and Death Stalk India Miners Fleeing Japanese

KUNMING, China, Sept. 11 (ALN)—Dirty, weather-beaten and ragged, more than 200 Nepalese miners, who escaped from the Japanese in Burma, are this week returning by freight planes to their homes in northern India. About two thirds have already gone.

The story of these hardy workers—they are of the same stock as the far-famed Gurkha fighters and several of them are ex-servicemen of the Gurkha regiment—is one of tremendous heroism in the face of unparalleled hardships.

Originally, they worked with more than 10,000 other laborers from various parts of India in the great Mawchi and tungsten mines in Central Burma in the vicinity of Toungoo. The mines were British-owned and the labor, mainly recruited from India's most backward tribes, was cheap—25 rupees a month for eight hours a day underground. When the Japanese approached in the spring of 1942, the 1,000 Nepalese among them struck out for freedom.

JUNGLE PERILS—HUNGER AND MALARIA

The way to India was cut off, so the Nepalese headed for China. Five hundred proved unable to cope with the hell of mountains, jungle, hunger and malaria that faced them on the way and turned back. The remaining 500 pushed on. They reached China after more than half a year, and after half of them had perished on the way.

In China it was a long time before anyone would be found to take responsibility for them, so the authorities fed them, gave them old Chinese Labor Corps uniforms, and put them to work on military construction. Finally, after more months of waiting, the British government of Burma, now established in India, sent a former Burma official named Orchard to take charge. After more months passed, passage was arranged to India over the "aerial Burma Road."

Most of them left in their cotton Labor Corps uniforms, some in remnants of the one-time military dress. A few carried Kukris —deadly curved Gurkha knives—which had served them well in hiking through the jungle and had been always in readiness in case the Japanese should try to stop them.

Orchard praised the faithfulness and hardiness of these Gurkha workmen. When questioned about their health, he stated that they were practically all suffering from malaria and other diseases. But when asked whether it had been part of his duties to provide them with fresh clothing and with mosquito nets, he seemed surprised that such a question should be asked and answered: "No."

A Review of Roi Ottley's Book

New World a-Coming

Roi Ottley is the 37-year-old director of publicity for the CIO Natl. War Relief Committee. His book, "New World A-Coming," recently won for him a $2,500 award, given for books published in the Life-in-America series by Houghton Mifflin Co. He also won an award from the Rosenwald Foundation for further study. Ottley, who formerly was an editorial worker at the New York AMSTERDAM-STAR NEWS, is leaving the War Relief Committee shortly to accept an assignment from LIBERTY magazine to report on the activities of Negro soldiers in the North African war theatre.

BY GEORGE L-P WEAVER

Director, CIO Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination

Harlem is a community within itself—incredible, flamboyant, penthouse to horrible disease-ridden slums. Roi Ottley has drawn it in sharp and unforgettable lines. His book has been 10 years in the writing, and is a careful reporter's guide to the obscure corners and crevices of a black world that too few whites know.

This book is primarily written around Harlem, but it necessarily covers many sides of "Black America" and its leaders. To understand the current racial conflicts that have been brewing for the last few years the reading of this book is a must. It should be especially interesting to trade-unionists as it is concerned with the masses, not individuals.

Sketches of Leaders

Ottley has given us thumbnail sketches of the important Negro leaders of mass movements that have left their imprint on "Black America" from World War I to World War II. He starts with Marcus Garvey and his black nationalistic movement and ends with a chapter on the controversial "Black Cabinet," the group of highly trained Negro advisors that have caused the poll tax bloc in Congress to see red.

He starts with Garvey and moves on to Father Divine, and ends up with an analysis of the much disputed career of Rev. Adam Clayton Powell, Jr. Ottley also places Joe Louis in the peculiar, but affectionate niche that he occupies in the hearts of most Negroes.

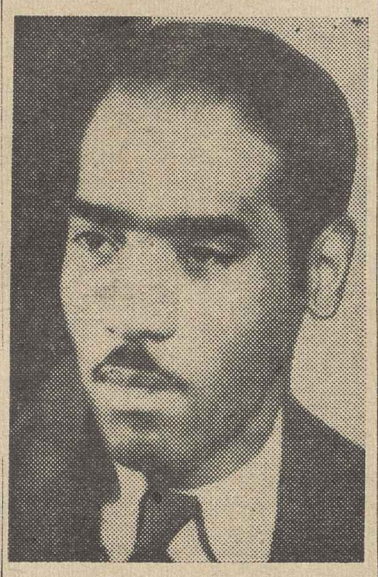
This book answers many questions rising from a growing and deepening democracy. How does it feel to be a Negro today? What is the Negro's attitude toward his white employer, toward the white man's assumption of superiority, toward the white man's institutions? Do Negroes want American democracy? Are his moral standards the same as other American citizens in comparable environments?

Gives Answers

He answers these questions in sharp and enjoyable prose. His chapter on the slum-shocked is a keen observer's reaction to the prohibitive cost of the blindness and neglect of our large cities. Add the bitter effects of racial discrimination to this blindness—the result: slum-shocked.

Do you know there are upwards of five thousand black Jews in Harlem? There are, according to Ottley.

This is the type of book one is apt to read at one sitting. The style is interesting—biting, yet humorous, with an objectivity that many people think a Negro is incapable of when he is writing about Negroes. Ottley explains the phenomena of "race" in a manner that is readily understandable, and does not arouse the fears that intense nationalism generally arouses.



ROI OTTLEY

His Book Has Been Widely Praised

As he says in the foreword, "Race, indeed, is the most compelling force in Negro life today. To a certain extent this book is a study of black nationalism (and indeed, black chauvinism). I have explored its ramifications in Negro life, its progress in very recent years, its vagaries, and its effect upon the Negro's thinking as he views the future cast of the world—waiting for the new world a-coming."

Seek Democracy

Underneath is the Negro's intense search for democracy—the search for honest intent on the part of America's leaders. Though he lays his scene in modern Harlem, the problems are as old as the world. The writer gives you the feel of what it is to be a Negro; how the Negro looks at his unhappy past, and the uncertain future. How desperately Negroes are trying to find some manifestations of the "Four Freedoms" and other glowing phrases that he hears so much of these days.

This reviewer's criticism is in the last chapter—the ending is anti-climactic. If Negroes are depending as heavily on President Roosevelt as Ottley seems to think they are, then they are more politically naive than the rest of his book has led us to believe.

The resurgence of the southern bloc in Congress can be traced pretty definitely to the failure of the workers to get out to the polls last Congressional election. Northern Negro workers are equally guilty.

This reviewer seriously doubts the effect of a sweeping and broad statement on the race question by President Roosevelt unless we as a people are prepared to back him up.

Leadership Needed

This type of leadership is needed, but we workers also have a responsibility—elect a Congress that also believes in democracy—a Congress that will lend aid and support to the type of leadership that President Roosevelt is capable of offering.

Every worker should read this book. It will help us to better understand our Negro fellow worker. It will help dispel the fallacious reasoning that is too often prevalent; that is, the arbitrary assumption that Axis agents manufactured the recent riots. This reasoning may appear to relieve the nation of a grave responsibility, but actually, as Ottley so well explains, it is only a convenient avoidance of facts.

The fundamental cause of these conflicts has not been "zoot suits," the acts of hoodlums of any race, the migration of prejudiced Southern whites, or the rise of native raclalists. Although each of these elements played an important part, the primary cause of these outbreaks, one feels after reading this book, was the existence of long-neglected issues in interracial relations.

As Ottley closes: "The Negro's cause will rise or fall with America. He knows well that his destiny is intimately bound to that of the Nation. America stands today as a symbol of freedom. The loss of this symbol will mean the loss of hope for white and black alike.

"This war, undeniably, belongs to the Negro as well as to the white man. To this extent, it may be called a 'People's War'—for in spite of selfish interests a new world is a-coming with the sweep and fury of the Resurrection."

"Madame asked that you be careful, Senator. She said that even though they call you the NAM commando, there is such a thing as overdoing it."

CIO to Hit Road With Musical Show

Washington, Sept. 11—CIO planned to hit the road November 2 with a full fledged musical extravaganza, "Roll Up Your Sleeves," which in theatrical form will express labor's program for helping to win the war.

Announcement of the show came from CIO President Philip Murray, who said that proceeds will go to a fund which will pay for a tour of the show before the armed forces, and for war relief purposes.

"Roll Up Your Sleeves" is a professionally written, composed and produced musical. It was taken to CIO by Leonard Keller, a composer, when he was working in the Cadillac-Allison plant in Detroit.

Irving Abramson, president of the New Jersey State CIO, and chairman of the National CIO War Productions, completed arrangements today with the William Morris Agency to coordinate the performance.

Henry Meyers, Edward Elisou, and Jay Gorney, motion picture stage writers and producers of "Meet the People," will assemble the program.

Professional talent will be recruited from New York and Hollywood and it will be augmented by factory workers wherever their appearance in the show will not interfere with their war work.

Kermit Bloomgarden, of the Herman Shumlin Office, will be general manager of the venture. Philip Loeb will stage the show, while Howard Bay will design the production. George Ryerson has been engaged as labor coordinator, and James Proctor will serve as general press representative.

Plans are being rushed to play the show in Philadelphia or Washington during the week of November 2nd.

Buttress Equal Pay for Women Principle

Washington, Sept. 11—The principle of equal pay for women doing work comparable to that of men got a boost from two directions this week.

At Springfield, Illinois, the reactionary Illinois Manufacturers Assn. lost a round to labor when Governor Dwight H. Green signed an equal pay bill making it unlawful after July 1, 1944, for employers of more than six persons to discriminate against women in payment of wages when they do work equal to men's.

Labor leaders complained, however, that the law lacks teeth, inasmuch as the maximum penalty for violations is $100 fine. Exemptions for seniority, experience, training, skill, ability and any "other reasonable classification except difference in sex" also allow unscrupulous employers some loopholes.

In Washington, D. C., the War Labor Board upheld the equal pay principle in a decision ordering its application to wage rates paid by the Celotex Corp. plant at Marrexro, Louisiana.

Praise Win-War Leadership Of Murray

San Francisco, Sept. 11—Praise for the "outstanding and constructive leadership" of CIO President Philip Murray was unanimously voiced this week by the Executive Board of the Intl. Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union, meeting here. In a resolution on Murray, the Board said:

"His timely and statesmanlike action of recently establishing a National Political Action Committee of the CIO, chaired by Sidney Hillman, and the special National Committee on Congressional Action, chaired by George Addes, is enthusiastically welcomed by the ILWU."

CIO War Worker Killed

New York, Sept. 11—A CIO girl from a fighting family went to her death this week in line of home front duty, on her way by train to help harvest crops for the victory food program.

The girl was Miss Mildred Cohen, treasurer of Social Service Employes Union Local 19, UOPWA. She was killed in the Lackawanna train wreck August 30 in upstate New York.

Ill health had forced her to give up a job, but nevertheless she had planned to spend a vacation period working with the women's land army.

Army Gives Labor '21-Gun Salute'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—The Army this week gave labor a "21-gun salute." The cheering section was led by the entire personnel of Bolling Field, Col. Thomas W. Hastey, commanding.

The "salute" was carried in The Beam, enlisted men's news-paper, which gave six of the 20 pages in its current issue to show good will to the men and women on the production lines.

"This exchange of visits," says The Beam, "made it possible for hundreds of soldiers and workers to learn first hand of each others' problems and to better appreciate the contribution the others are making to bring the war to an early and victorious conclusion.

"Soldiers have found out that eight, ten and 12 hours on an assembly line is no more fun than an overnight hike with full pack and equipment.

"On the other hand workers who have run a tough obstacle course, spent a week-end drilling under a tough sergeant and crawled on their stomachs with live ammunition flying two feet over their heads know that the men in the service are ready to match the best the Axis can throw at them."

Post-War Job Pamphlet

New York, Sept. 11—A post-war job crisis with seven to 12 million unemployed workers has been predicted by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. To help meet this challenge, the Public Affairs Committee has prepared a summary released this week, of the findings and recommendations of the Natl. Resources Planning Board on post-war jobs and social security.

The summary, "Jobs and Security for Tomorrow," by Maxwell S. Stewart, contrasts the American emphasis on jobs in its postwar thinking with the insurance approach contained in the British Beveridge plan.

"The idea that every man who wants to work and is capable of working shall have a job," Stewart says, underlies the entire plan of the American social security program, as opposed to the British approach of "emphasizing insurance and the pooling of risks in dealing with insecurity."

The pamphlet may be obtained from the Public Affairs Committee, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City, at ten cents a copy.

CIO's 3rd BIGGEST UNION ASKS FOURTH TERM FOR ROOSEVELT

HEROES IN DENIM were members of Local 42, Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers last week, as they left their regular war jobs to help save victims trapped by the wreck of the Congressional Limited, at Philadelphia. CIO workers from the Cramp shipyards were aided by others from the USO Labor Plaza. Blazing shipyard torches helped to cut away passengers like Miss Christine Nix, above, last known person to be brought out of the wreck alive.

UAW Victory Seen At Md.'s Biggest Aircraft Factory

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 18—The CIO United Auto Workers Union this week predicted victory in the largest, tightest, and most thrilling Natl. Labor Relations Board election this state has ever seen—the Glenn L. Martin aircraft ballot conducted last week. The plant is the largest in the state.

The victory was considered absolutely certain despite a 5.2 per cent challenged vote, with the possibility that "no union" might pick up enough doubtful tallies to crowd out a slim UAW majority.

The score to date—with no challenged votes counted yet—was:

UAW-CIO	49.2 per cent
No union	45.5 per cent.
Void	1 per cent.
Challenged	5.2 per cent.

Until the halfway mark was reached in the count, the UAW ran behind by 400 votes, according to UAW Asst. Aircraft Dir. Nicholas Dragon. From that point on, the UAW forged consistently ahead.

Plant in Bill Green's Town Goes CIO 2-1

Cochocton, Ohio, Sept. 18—CIO Rubber Workers in AFL President Bill Green's home town defeated the AFL by a 2-to-1 majority in a recent Labor Board election when employes at the Firestone plant voted 225 to 121 for the United Rubber Workers.

At a previous election held at the big Firestone bomb-loading plant in Meade, Neb., production and maintenance workers voted 85.32 per cent for the URW.

Cannery Workers Win By 6-1 Vote

Philadelphia, Sept. 18—Seasonal workers in the big California Packing Corp. canneries at De Kalb and Rochelle, Illinois, recently voted 626 to 112 for the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing & Allied Workers of America, in a Natl. Labor Relations Board election.

You Figure It Out

Profits Soaring; NAM Says 'Boost 'Em Higher'—Guess Why!

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—Profits are going up, up, up, and the only way to make certain that workers will have plenty of jobs after the war is to let profits go still higher. That was the "reasoning" indulged in by the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers this week before a Congressional committee conducting hearings on the renegotiation of war contracts.

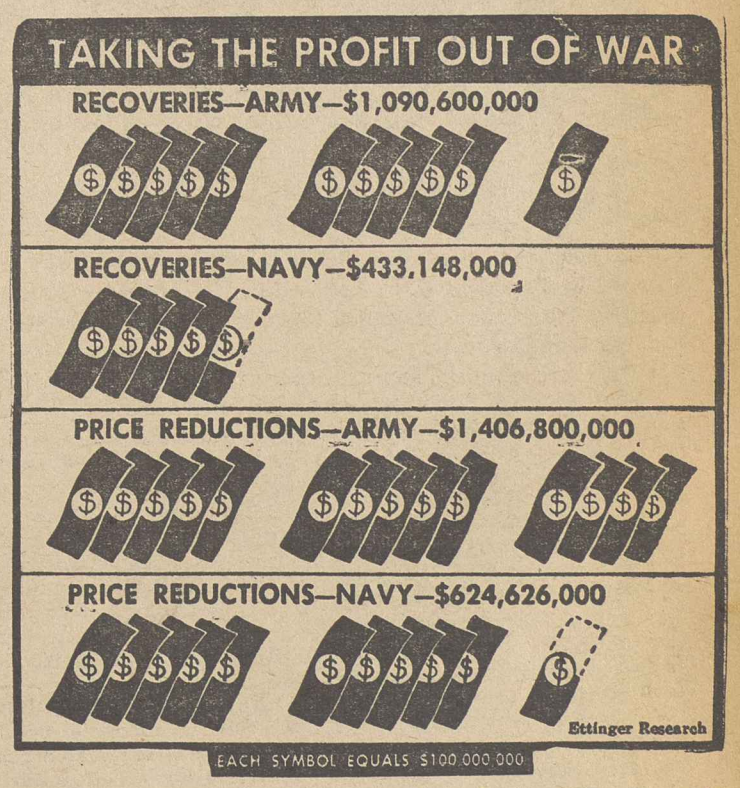
NAM spokesman who cried long and loudly about the need for creating financial reserves must have been somewhat embarrassed this week by a report from a brother employers' organization, the Natl. Industrial Conference Board, which revealed that industrial profits for the first half of this year were 11 per cent higher than for the same period last year.

The 11 per cent increase was chalked up by industry despite government renegotiation of contracts, which so far has saved the public a cool $4 billion that would otherwise have further padded the profit figures.

The 11 per cent increase was based on industry figures for net profits. Besides these, enormous reserves (close to $2,000 million) were set aside for taxes.

The Board study was based on finanical reports from 322 industrial corporations, which showed a combined net income after taxes of $654 million for January to June, 1943, inclusive. Profit of the same companies for the same period last year was $585 million.

The board reported that auto companies led the profit pack. Nine companies had increases over last year of 33 per cent. Six concerns which listed tax reserves separately averaged 38 per cent over last year—even after reserving two thirds of their income for taxes.



War profiteering is being cut down by our government through renegotiation of war contracts by the price adjustment agencies in the War and Navy Depts. and the Maritime Commission. Renegotiations have resulted in the elimination of $3,555,174,000 of excess profits through June 30, 1943. In the chart above, figures for the Maritime Commission are included with those of the Navy Dept. (Federated Pictures.)

Hillman Asks Unity To Elect Win-War PoliticalCandidates

DETROIT, Sept. 18—A plea for political unity to aid the election of win-the-war candidates was the chief point raised here this week at a two-day CIO meeting by Sidney Hillman, chairman of the national CIO Political Action Committee. The plea came at the concluding session of the meeting, and was addressed to more than 100 Michigan CIO leaders present.

At the same meeting, R. J. Thomas, secretary of the committee and president of the UAW-CIO, announced that the committee had selected August Scholle, CIO national representative and regional director, to direct political action in Region 5, which comprises all of Michigan.

Hillman's pleas for unity met with an enthusiastic reception by the assembled Michigan leadership. Among them were the presidents of the big Detroit UAW locals, state executive board members, officers of the state council and most of the county and city councils throughout Michigan.

Hillman said he was not surprised at the response, inasmuch as he had found the same condition all along the route of his present tour that will take him over the country.

"I have seen the labor movement grow for more than three decades, and at times I have seen it slip back," Hillman told the leadership. "It has slipped back repeatedly because as soon as we had attained a goal a division would take place within our own ranks. Some issue was always allowed to come up to separate us, and then we would wind up with 17 parties.

"Members come up to me and say that the whole trouble is with our no-strike pledge. If we could only revoke that everything would be all right. I don't believe it. It is my opinion that if we revoked the no-strike pledge, it wouldn't change the situation one little bit. Things would go on just the same, and Congress would act just the same.

"The way we can change things is to get into action on the political front. That will change the things that cause strikes.

"If we do not unite now in political action, we will lose everything. We can't blame Congress; we can only blame ourselves."

Stone Convention

No Union Wage Scales Under Hitler, CIO Leader Warns

BARRE, Vt., Sept. 18—Labor's vital stake in the war was stressed by President H. C. Ledyard in his opening speech at the fourth convention of the United Stone & Allied Products Workers, meeting here this week.

"There are no union wage scales under Hitler," the union's president declared. He urged the members to take an interest in political action, not only on a local but a national scale, and called for greater organizational activity to reach the 185,000 workers in the stone and allied industries who are potential members of the union.

In a joint report to the delegates, Pres. Ledyard and Secretary-Treasurer John C. Lawson emphasized the pressing need for more extensive political action by labor.

"Each new day drives home to us the realization that if labor is to remain an important political factor in our nation, we must become increasingly active in legislative and political matters," the report stated.

Predicting a vicious anti-union drive after the war, the report said: "If working men and women are to protect and advance the progress made organizationally and on the legislative front, we have got to adopt a new outlook on matters political."

BACK NO-STRIKE PLEDGE

Strongly endorsing labor's pledge of no strikes during war time, the report pointed out that some 80 per cent of the union's members are engaged in the production of war materials.

"We have a responsibility to the men and women in the fighting forces of our nation and its Allies. We can best fulfill that responsibility by staying on the job, doing our bit to the limits of our capacity to produce materials needed in the manufacture of the implements of war."

A total of 148 companies are now under contract with the union. The majority of them provide for a union shop, the report stated.

4th Term Urged By Minn. CIO

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 18— Unanimous recommendation of a fourth term for President Roosevelt and full support for CIO's legislative program to swing Congressional support for the Administration's win-the-war program were voted here by the sixth annual convention of the Minnesota CIO State Industrial Union Council, which wound up a three-day session this week.

One of the major decisions in the campaign to change the character of Congress called for the establishment of a weekly, state-wide CIO paper that will reach practically every CIO member in Minnesota.

A resolution addressed to President Roosevelt congratulated him and the armed forces on the conduct of the war, and urged that "everything possible be done as rapidly as possible to expand the invasion of the Allied nations to the end that France, Denmark, Belgium and Norway may not suffer complete destruction at the hands of the Hitler police, and Nazism may be driven from the face of the earth with all possible speed."

The convention asked that CIO Pres. Philip Murray be given a seat at the peace table.

The delegates reiterated their no-strike pledge.

The Convention outlined plans for unity with all forces to assure the election of progressive Congressmen in 1944, and specifically scored attempts to form a labor party. Indicative of the drive for unity was a banquet which featured among its guests leaders from the AFL and from various farm and political groups.

Re-elected respectively president and secretary-treasurer of the Council were Sander Genis of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and Leonard Lageman of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers.

L. A. Rally Sparks CIO Politics Drive

Los Angeles, Sept. 18 — A new note in political action was introduced here last week by the Los Angeles CIO at a mass rally at the Shrine auditorium.

It took the California CIO's booming political action campaign out of committees, union meetings and Congressmen's offices—and spread it big as life on one of the world's largest stages.

Leo Krzycki, vice president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, spoke as personal representative of Sidney Hillman, National CIO Political Action Director. His speech was followed by a hard-hitting, factual presentation by Russ Nixon, legislative director of the UER&MWA, on how Congress has failed to measure up to its wartime responsibilities and has struck out at unionism in an attempt to balk unconditional victory over the Axis.

Convention Hears:

Mine, Mill Battles Training for Fight Against Fascism

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 18—Fifty years of struggle for industrial democracy in this country have well fitted the Intl. Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers for its present main task of helping to defeat fascism. Pres. Reid Robinson of the IUMM&SW declared this week in his annual report to the union's international convention. The IUMM&SW this year celebrates the 50th anniversary of its founding here in Butte by a group of hard-rock miners' unions.

Describing the phenominal growth of the IUMM&SW since its reorganization in 1933, Robinson's report to more than 300 delegates showed that just ten years ago the union had but six functioning locals with a total of 1,557 members. Today, the president revealed, there are several hundred functioning locals with more than 100,000 members. More than 21,000 members have entered the armed forces; of these many already have lost their lives.

BACK WIN-WAR POLICIES

Robinson's report included discussion of the following subjects, with recommenidations for action by the convention on many of them:

1. Endorsement of CIO's position in support of President Roosevelt's win-the-war policies.

2. Necessity for swift, aggressive action by the United Nations to follow up the fall of Italy and other Allied victories.

3. The growing need for united labor political action to turn back the tide of reaction and make Congress a force for winning the war.

4. Reiteration of the no-strike pledge and rededication to labor's primary war task of all-out production.

5. Further recommendations for solution of manpower problems including greater use of women and racial minorities.

6. War production wage plans as a means of increasing workers' earnings and pushing production organizational plans of the international union for the coming year.

7. The industrial and political emancipation of Canadian workers.

8. Building the women's auxiliary.

9. A review of contract gains of the past year made through the War Labor Board and prospects for the coming period.

President Robinson said: "This convention must leave no room for doubt as to where our international union stands on the question of support for President Roosevelt and his historic efforts to achieve victory over the Axis. There can be no ifs or buts on the subject of supporting the victory policies of the President. The nation has arrived at that stage in the war where sharp-shooting, disruptive defeatism must be obliterated completely from the national scene."

Secretary-Treasurer James Leary, in his annual report, analyzed membership gains of the union during the past year and discussed the serious problem of labor turnover in the nonferrous metals industry.

He reiterated his support of President Roosevelt and CIO President Philip Murray and the win-the-war program of both leaders.

CIO Rubber Union Parley Opens On Win-War Note

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 20—"Winning the war and winning it decisively is still the basic question before the labor movement today." That was to be the keynote report made by Pres. Sherman H. Dalrymple to the delegates of the United Rubber Workers' eighth annual convention which is scheduled to open here today.

A gain of 63,000 members in one year—greatest in the union's history—was reported by Vice-Pres. L. S. Buckmaster. Membership now exceeds 160,000, he said.

Dalrymple's report reminded the delegates of the job they have to do, adding, "To use the language of the picket line, one can truthfully say that Hitler is the biggest strike-breaker of them all, and we must smash his anti-labor, democratic tactics if we are to survive."

He declared that it is the responsibility of the labor movement "to mobilize our people solidly behind our President in his policies to win the war, both on the fighting front and the home front; to develop in our people an understanding of and a loyalty to our great democratic institutions; to build our labor organizations even stronger as fighting forces for democracy, looking not to selfish, petty gains, but to the far horizons of security and freedom for all our people."

PRAISES WLB

High praise was paid the War Labor Board by the rubber union leader as being "the only war agency in which labor has equal representation."

"Everyone will admit that the Board has weaknesses, but these weaknesses can be corrected through strengthening the agency, not by undermining it," he said.

Lashing at "anti-democratic defeatist forces," who stampeded the Smith-Connally Act through Congress, Dalrymple pointed out that through this measure they hope to cause strikes in order to "crack down on the legitimate organizations of labor which they know full well are the bulwarks of our nation's war effort."

"If all of us understood that only our country's enemies benefit from stoppages, I am confident that we would have none of these strikes, stoppages and slowdowns which took place in some of our local unions during the past year," he said.

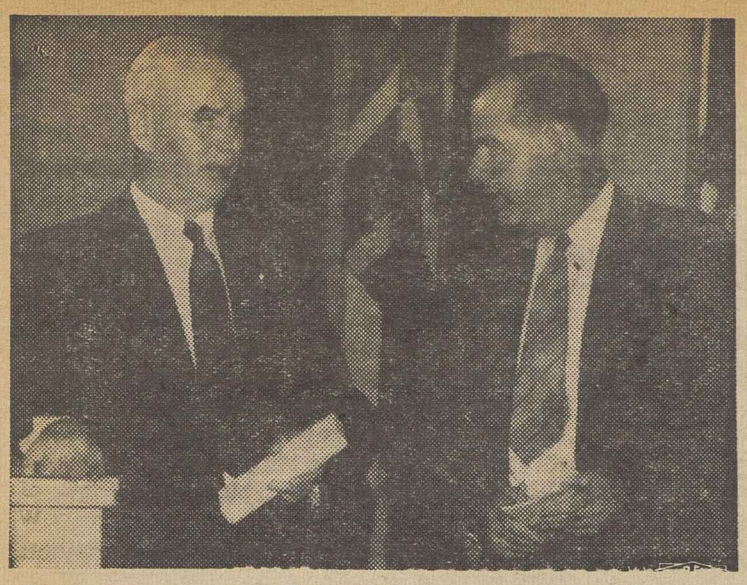
TRIBUTE TO MURRAY

In a tribute to Pres. Murray of the CIO, Dalrymple stressed that "CIO policies under his leadership have brought labor greater esteem and greater influence than it has ever had before.

Genl. Secy-Treas. Chas. Lanning called for greater cooperation with the laboring people "not of this country alone, but those of our Allies as well," and for greater collaboration and understanding among the United Nations.

To Train Foremen

Washington, Sept. 18—In-plant training courses for 625,000 foremen to improve safety conditions in War plants are being started this month, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced this week. The courses will be directed by many of the 40,000 war plant supervisors who have completed safety training courses conducted in 116 engineering colleges.



HEADS UP: All were at the CIO Electrical Workers convention this week as CIO Pres. Philip Murray, left, was introduced to the delegates by UE Pres. Albert J. Fitzgerald.

Peace with Victory

Murray Urges Free Union Rights For Europe's Workers

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—An international charter to guarantee to all workers in Axis and occupied countries the right to join labor unions of their own choosing was advocated by CIO Pres. Philip Murray, in a speech to more than 15,000 people at the opening session of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers convention, in Madison Square Garden.

Demanding a place for the CIO at the peace table, Murray stressed the importance of international labor collaboration to win the war and preserve future peace.

"We would like to know the labor movements of other countries," Murray said. "We would like to know, just like our government would like to know, what those people are thinking about, and what we can do to help our government effectuate the kind of peace that will prevent future wars.

"No group anywhere is able to make a more substantial and constructive contribution in that direction than organized labor."

The CIO president described labor union rights as "essential to the economic rehabilitation of Europe." He urged that the "democratic countries proceed forthwith toward the preparation of a charter to definitely guarantee to all the workers of Europe, in the first instance, the right to join labor unions of their own choosing."

Warning against mass unemployment after the war, Murray called for passage of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell social security bill and urged that the government convene a conference of employer, labor and government representatives, "to see what they can do through joint thinking to avert disaster" and to meet America's post-war needs.

The CIO leader attacked the Austin-Wadsworth labor conscription bill, declaring there was no need for such "extreme measures," and adding:

"If this Congress is going to conscript human beings in industrial plants, then in the name of common sense, why not conscript property and wealth? It is the duty of America to conscript its wealth when it starts to conscript human beings."

Murray stressed again and again the "prime obligation" of labor to win the war and the sacredness of labor's unconditional no-strike pledge.

"Don't let strikes mar your path to victory," he said. "Prevent those who seek to disturb uninterrupted production from doing so by telling them that if they are good citizens they won't do those things whilst their country is at war."

He said that Congress had "flagrantly violated" its commitment to stabilize prices as well as wages at September 15, 1942, levels, a commitment which he said was just as sacred as labor's no-strike pledge."

Murray emphasized the educational character of CIO's political action campaign. He also called for tax legislation that won't "extract taxes from the pocketbook of a man who is not making enough wages to live decently upon."

Flag Rally, Fun Highlight UE Parley

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—A colorful demonstration in Madison Square Garden marked the opening of the ninth convention of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers.

It was featured by impressive flag ceremonies, parades, a union band, and entertainment by Duke Ellington, Kenneth Spencer and other outstanding artists of stage and screen, as well as by speeches by Philip Murray and other labor leaders.

Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the UE, declared that his union now speaks for 600,000 war workers and has 110,000 members in the armed forces.

Fitzgerald revealed that James J. Matles, organization director, was about to be inducted into the army and had absolutely refused to allow the union to make any request for his deferment.

Julius Emspak, general secretary-treasurer, related that UE plants, employing 310,000 workers, have won 107 government awards for outstanding production achievements, "proportionately more than any other comparable group in the country."

UE Convention

CIO's 3rd Biggest Union Hits Strikes, Urges 4th Term, Western Front

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—Reporting record union growth, which makes it one of the biggest and strongest unions of war workers in the country, the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers of America at its ninth convention this week adopted a program relating its every activity to winning speedy and total victory over the Axis.

The 700 delegates, by unanimous or nearly unanimous votes in every case, endorsed President Roosevelt for a fourth term; approved the incentive principle of increased earnings for increased effort; denounced any violation of labor's no-strike pledge; called for a western front; and adopted concrete proposals for greater international labor unity.

Pres. Albert J. Fitzgerald, Secretary-Treasurer Julius Emspak, and Director of Organization James J. Matles were all re-elected unanimously and by acclamation. The duties of Matles, who is about to be inducted into the army, will be divided among other officers, while he is on leave from the organization.

The convention report of the officers was a triumphant record of organizational progress, revealing a dues-paying membership more than 49 per cent greater than last year, with 298,000 new members initiated during the year.

970 CONTRACTS

The UE now has 970 collective bargaining agreements, covering 575,000 workers, in an industry which manufactures one-fifth of all war equipment made from metal.

Eighty-three per cent of the employes covered by UE contracts are covered by closed shop, union shop or maintenance of membership contracts.

Wage increases amounting to $27,100,000 have been negotiated for 155,000 members during the past year; and agreements awaiting War Labor Board approval provide for an additional $14,000,000, covering 100,000 workers.

4th TERM RESOLUTION

The resolution endorsing President Roosevelt for a fourth term described him as the "outstanding figure" around whom the American people can rally for "full economic mobilization of the home front, full-scale military offensive against our country's enemies and insistence upon unconditional surrender."

To further international labor unity for winning the war and winning a people's peace, the convention urged:

(1) An exchange of accredited delegates between the UE and the Amalgamated Engineering Union of Great Britain and the Metal Workers Union of the Soviet Union, with other metal-working unions to be urged to join in this move.

(2) An exchange of rank and file delegates from UE shops with similar delegations from union shops in Britain and the Soviet Union.

(3) CIO initiative in urging and arranging an international conference of delegates from the British, Soviet, United States and other western hemisphere trade union movements.

(4) CIO invitation of fraternal delegates from British, Soviet and Western Hemisphere trade union movements to the coming CIO convention.

In regard to incentive pay, the UE convention pointed out that the electrical and machine industry under contract with the UE "is largely operating under wage payment plans which provide for increased earnings for increased effort."

In approving union advances and safeguards in line with this principle, the convention urged all locals to "take full advantage of the policies and patterns" embodied in such contracts; and that all new plans to provide increased pay for increased effort should be submitted to the International for approval and guidance so they may include proper safeguards.

The resolution on a western front declared that the recent victories of the United Nations "have created favorable conditions for the military defeat of the Axis this year."

It called upon the United States government and the governments of the other United Nations "to speed the day when the full weight of the military power of the United Nations will be brought to bear against the western as well as the eastern and southern gates of Hitler's European fortress."

The UE condemned "the calling of strikes, such as those called by John L. Lewis, as harmful to production for victory, contrary to the true interests of the United States and the true interests of working people."

In other actions, the convention called for an aggressive political action campaign; for real price rollback to stabilized wage levels; for a tax program based on ability to pay; for repeal of the politax and of the Smith-Connally act.

The UE took particularly strong action against all forms of discrimination against Negroes and other minorities, calling for more power for the FEPC, treatment of acts of discrimination as a criminal offense, and an end to naturalization discriminations against certain races.

After an afternoon's discussion, a resolution directing UE delegates to the CIO convention to support James B. Carey for re-election as CIO secretary-treasurer was voted down by a roll-call vote of 2211 to 780.

HOT STUFF: That's what UE's guys and gals thought of Duke Ellington, as the well-known band leader (center) smilingly welcomed the plaudits of convention swing fans. Duke's a union man himself!

Labor Draft Dangers

The big push is now on for passage of the Austin-Wadsworth labor draft bill. It has been given No. 1 priority in House and Senate committees, and Army and Navy officials and the press are beating the drums for it.

The CIO opposes this or any other similar labor draft bill, not only because it is unjust, coercive and undemocratic, but more importantly because it is used as an excuse to evade a real solution for war manpower and production problems.

No less an authority than Bernard Baruch also opposes labor conscription for similar reasons. In a report to War Mobilization Director Byrnes he emphasizes what the CIO has long been trying to explain to Congress—namely, that real or alleged manpower shortages and other production bottlenecks are due to faulty planning, lack of correlation in letting contracts, allotting raw materials, making plants available, etc.

To apply forced labor, without correcting these real and basic evils, is as one-sided and ineffective as to attempt economic stabilization by freezing wages alone, while leaving prices and all other factors uncontrolled.

The Austin-Wadsworth bill does nothing to remedy the lack of planning and other conditions that are causing artificial manpower shortages. It does nothing to remedy bad housing, poor eating arrangements, lack of child-care facilities or discrimination by employers against Negroes or women.

All it does is to take labor by the scruff of the neck and freeze it to present jobs under present conditions—whether or not the jobs are essential to winning the war.

True, the bill says workers should not be allotted to areas where housing and other similar conditions are bad. But it does nothing to correct these conditions.

We have already had painful experience with one labor draft—the amendment to the Selective Service Act freezing farm labor to farm jobs, regardless of what they are.

Under this freeze, more than a million farm workers have been kept tied down to cotton and tobacco growing and harvesting—though we have two years' supply of these items in the warehouses, and though short staple cotton (the kind we grow) is no good for war purposes.

This labor draft, put over by the so-called "farm bloc," keeps more than a million workers from being used for the production of essential war foods of which there is a real shortage.

The basic approach of the labor draft bill is wrong, and it cannot be sweetened with amendments. To dragoon labor in this fashion will do downright mischief to war production.

It diverts attention from the only real solution —over-all planning of war production that takes all factors into consideration and deals with the root causes of bottlenecks and shortages.

The CIO will fight the Austin-Wadsworth bill as a danger and an obstacle to all-out war production—and as a diversion from the main goal of total and planned mobilization of all our resources for victory.

Special Privilege

The Natl. Industrial Conference Board, an employers' research organization, reports that 322 industrial corporations made 11.6 per cent more in net profits, after all taxes had been paid, in the first six months of 1943 than in the first six months of last year.

These lush profits, which are typical of the war profiteering throughout most of industry, come chiefly from the public pocketbook through war contract payments.

As CIO Pres. Murray points out, they represent "special privilege" for one group, at a time when "blood is being spilled and lives are being lost, when the world is undergoing the rigors of the most terrifying war in history."

What is wrong with Uncle Sam, who paid out this money, taking back some of this money in increased profits and excess profits taxation? And what is wrong with limiting such special privilege by a $25,000 limit on individual net income?

Ask your Congressmen if these steps aren't preferable to trying to extract more taxes from essential war workers who are not making enough for a decent and healthy living.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

"THE business of the UE is today the business of America."

This statement of an officer of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers was borne out again and again at the union's ninth convention. He might also have said the same of the whole CIO.

There is no separation between labor and the rest of the American people—any more than between the backbone and the rest of the human structure.

The young delegates who applauded and even jitterbugged to Duke Ellington's music at the opening UE demonstration were typical young Americans.

Most of the problems with which the convention dealt are common to most Americans.

The main business of the convention was the main business of the whole American people—to work out ways and means of winning this war as speedily and completely as possible.

★ ★ ★

The UE, it may be added, also does a mighty big share of the business of America these days.

The 600,000 American workers for whom it speaks produce one-fifth of all war equipment manufactured out of metal.

They have delivered nine billion dollars worth of such war material and munitions to the armed forces, without any interruption of production.

The union has contributed 110,000 of its members to the armed services.

One hundred and seven government awards for outstanding war production have been presented to UE-organized plants employing 310,000 workers.

The UE has grown phenomenally during the past year.

It has won Labor Board elections covering 143,000 employes.

It has initiated 298,000 new members during the year.

It now has 970 collective bargaining agreements covering 575,000 workers.

It represents a substantial cross-section of America.

★ ★ ★

What do all these Americans want, when they have their democratic say in convention?

Nothing that is not for the good of all America.

They asked no special privilege for themselves, beyond the privilege of doing more than the rest, if they can, for our victory.

It is hard to imagine a more public-spirited platform and program than that adopted by the UE. Comparison with the platform of such groups as the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers, for instance, would be odious—for the NAM.

★ ★ ★

Main actions of the UE convention were for more war production, for a stable war economy, for greater political activity, for national and international labor unity, and for maximum united effort of our whole people to speed the United Nations' offensive to total victory.

All these are leading items on the agenda of the whole American people—they are "the business of America."

For more production, the UE concentrates on the training of the hundreds of thousands of new workers who have entered the industry; on extension and improved functioning of the 300 labor-management committees in its plants; on conversion of the machine tool industry; and on more effective labor participation in governmental production planning.

For a stable economy, the UE wants adoption of the CIO tax program, to raise the most with the least ill effects on production and national welfare. It wants effective price control and rationing, with a rollback of prices to stabilized wage levels.

For national unity to win the war, the UE wants an end to racial discrimination, in industry and out; repeal of the polltax; and greater political activity to unite the people behind the Commander-in-Chief and to end the home-front disruptions of the present majority in Congress.

For United Nations unity, the UE wants a get-together of all the labor movements; an end to sniping and suspicion against our allies; and a combined offensive to crush the Nazis from east, south and west.

No one could attend this convention without realizing the great advance in American labor's political consciousness, brought about by the war.

The basic economic activity of labor was not neglected. But the war has expanded every economic issue into a national political issue as well. And labor's main task, to win this people's war, calls for a broadly political and patriotic approach to every question.

All of which is another way of saying that the business of the UE and the CIO is today the business of America.

Servicemen's Wives, Kids Need More Money

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—The wives and kids of more than half a million of our fighters against the Axis are existing today on government dependency allowances far below even the minimum maintenance budget of WPA days. They are the direct dependents of our men in the armed forces.

Another half million servicemen with what the army calls "collateral or Class B" dependents—parents, other relatives, etc. —have the same worries about their families on their minds.

Here are the cold figures prepared by a sub-committee of the National CIO Legislative Department that is now pressing for a rise in dependency allowances to at least tolerable levels:

In San Francisco last year (December, 1942) a minimum of $108 a month was listed by WPA as necessary for subsistence of a wife and two children. According to the Heller Committee of the University of California, which prepared a scientific study of how little people can live on, the absolute minimum was $89 a month.

$72 A Month

Yet under present government allowances, the wife of a man in the armed forces with two children gets $72 a month to live and keep her children on.

And under the bill backed by the War Department and passed by the Senate July 8, 1943 (S 1279), the soldier or sailor's wife with two children will get $79 a month—an increase of only $7. This is $29 under the WPA figure; $10 under the Heller Committee budget.

Even this proposed increase of $7 a month is more apparent than real, when you take into account the official increase in the cost of living between June, 1942 and June, 1943. Look at the breakdown:

According to the U. S. Department of Labor, the cost of living went up 7.2 per cent in that period. This means that the real value of the increase under the proposed bill (S 1279) for a soldier's wife with two children, is only $1.82 a month. The rise in the cost of living eats up the rest.

When the present law providing $72 a month was passed, the Senate Military Affairs Committee said in reporting favorably on the bill: "The purpose of this legislation is to provide for the payment to the dependents of the four lower grades of enlisted men . . . sums which will enable them to at least partially defray their living expenses."

"Partially" means that the Committee, headed by Sen. Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina, trusted that soldiers' wives would have some outside sources of income beyond their allowances. What are the facts about outside sources of income among soldiers' wives?

According to a study by the U. S. Department of Labor and the Deuartment of Agriculture, ("Study of Family Spending and Saving in Wartime"), the overwhelming majority of families of men from 18 to 37 (the draft age limits) are wholly dependent on the man's earnings for support. By count, 70 per cent of such families have less than $200 a year from any other source.

This means that our servicemen's families have $72 a month to live on, plus the extra average of $200 a year that a little more than two-thirds are lucky enough to command.

And this applies to 500,000 families of direct dependents, plus 500,000 families of "collateral or Class B dependents."

Why don't these mothers of soldiers' children go to work, get war jobs, get some of these high wages that we hear about in war factories, aircraft plants, etc?

Official Figures

Here again the figures dug up by the national CIO put some light into a dark corner of the home front. According to these figures taken from official U. S. sources:

In October, 1942, two-thirds of the children of servicemen were estimated to be under six years old; one quarter under one year old. Many millions of women are now prevented from taking war jobs because they cannot leave their young children, due to the universal lack of child care facilities.

In fact, aircraft and other war production has been suffering because of the inability of mothers of young children to find care for them. Scores of companies have called attention to this factor in the labor-power shortage. There is no reason to believe that service men's wives who are mothers of young children are getting any priorities on child care to enable them to go to work in war factories.

For minimum standards to ensure tolerable living conditions for the families of our men now taking the offensive against the Hitler Axis, the CIO proposes:

$55 a month for a wife with no children; $35 for the first child, totalling $90 a month for a wife with one child; $30 for each additional child, or $120 a month for a wife with two children.

Murray Says:

Connally Law Is Botched Job, Should Be Killed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—Congress botched the job when it passed the Smith-Connally anti-strike act, and should remove this halter from the neck of the nation's productive war effort. That was the statement made this week by CIO Pres. Philip Murray, who pointed out that under the law "two workers in a plant of 20,000 may force a strike vote among the 20,000 workers."

In a letter to Congressional leaders, Murray pointed out that at the time the Smith-Connally bill was up for consideration labor organizations warned that the bill was ill-advised and was actully calculated to interfere with the progress of American war production.

"We pointed out that at a time when the responsible bodies of organized labor had given and were fulfilling, as they are today, their no-strike pledge, the bill proposed to set up legalized machinery whereby irresponsible elements might force strike votes and thereby give the appearance of legal sanction to interferance with war production."

Murray said that the few months that the law has been in operation have proved labor's fears well founded.

NO-STRIKE PLEDGE

"The responsible bodies of organized labor have reiterated their determination to stand firm on their no-strike pledge," he said. "The new statute, however, has in practice rendered performance of that pledge even more difficult.

"In the light of the experience of these last few months a very serious duty falls on the shoulders of Congressional leaders. The situation does not permit arguments as to wherther error is to be admitted or as to where blame is to be placed. This nation is at war and cannot permit such considerations to stand in the way of a policy which will mean the removal of obstacles to victory.

"The Smith-Connally Act has proven itself to be such an obstacle. Spokesmen for large business groups and prominent metropolitan newspapers throughout the country have recognized this fact and have urged Congress to repeal this legislation.

"I trust and hope that the leadership of this Congress will prove its stature by undertaking the task of removing the Smith-Connally Act from the statute books, so that organized labor in America may move forward unimpeded in its consistent and devoted drive to ever-increased production."

Even Business Magazine Doesn't Like Connally Law

New York, Sept. 18—A conservative business magazine this week took down its hair and admitted that the Smith-Connally anti-strike law has proved to be just as bad as the CIO said it would be before the law was passed.

The magazine, BUSINESS WEEK, also took a sideswipe at suggestions that the law be kept on the books in amended form.

"This explanation," BUSINESS WEEK stated, "is dangerously simple. It assumes that a different drafting into law of the Connally-Smith intent would assure the attainment of the desired end.

"This might be true but it is by no means certain. It is dangerous doctrine because it focuses on the mere language of the law that attention which business should be giving to the theory behind it."

The magazine admitted that many of labor's criticisms of the law before its passage had been borne out in practice. The law has fomented strikes, has encouraged wildcat stoppages, and has "been responsible for a resurgence of political activity in the AFL and CIO which promises to make itself felt distinctly in 1944," BUSINESS WEEK declared.

Morale Shot? Register to Vote And Get a Lift

Keep Your Eye on Congress

The Congressmen are back at work this week, with your demands for real win-the-war action still ringing in their ears.

They have a great deal of work to do—and a lot of damage to undo—before they get back on the victory beam. Getting them to do this work is YOUR job, now and tomorrow.

Here's a listing of the bills and other action they must be persuaded to take up. YOU can do the persuading; and you can make it stick, if you keep at the job constantly.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Taxes	The big push is on for a sales tax, either straight or disguised as "individual excess profits tax," "forced savings," "induced savings," etc. There's also a drive for straight across the board raises in income taxes on lowest levels.		Hearings begin soon. Write your Congressmen at once for real CIO and win-war tax program based on ability to pay, war needs.
Smith-Connally	This bill must be repealed to ensure an end to strike provocations and to knock out an insult to labor that is also a wedge against national unity.		Write your Congressmen to work and vote for repeal.
Polltax Repeal (HR 7)	Brings 10 million Americans into democracy.	Passed House, now in Senate sub-committee headed by Sen. McFarland (D., Ariz.).	Write McFarland and your own Senators for immediate favorable report, cloture vote if needed to kill filibuster.
Social Security (S 1161, HR 2861)	Extends benefits and increases payments, services.	Hearings to begin soon before Senate Finance Committee.	Write your Congressmen to support.
Lucas (S 1089)	Extends voting hours in national elections from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m., making it possible for more war workers to vote.	Now before Senate Elections Committee for hearings.	Write your two Senators for support.

COST OF LIVING

The majority in Congress did a great deal of damage to price control by slashing enforcement funds (OPA), salting "businessmen" in OPA policy jobs, forbidding grade labelling because it would stop quality chiseling on foods, etc., and holding back on subsidies to make rollback of prices possible.

This damage must be undone by restoring funds for control enforcement, permitting grade labelling, repealing requirement of businessmen only in policy jobs, and by a full program of subsidies and other means to make a rollback possible. Start your campaign with your Congressmen NOW.

FOOD PRODUCTION

At the bidding of the miscalled "farm bloc" (which represents monopoly, not working farmers) food production was killed by sabotaging crop insurance and incentive pay for extra output, by refusal to aid conversion to war crops, and by attempts to kill off Farm Security Administration that helps small farmers to produce.

This damage must be undone by restoring these cuts, taking steps to ensure full war food production.

(NOTE: Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) has announced a bill to restore crop insurance to induce bigger planting, protect farmers against loss. Watch The CIO NEWS for further details.)

DIRTY WORK IN COMMITTEE

With Congress back, the special committees (and some of the standing ones) that have been smearing and harassing war agencies and Administration war work will start up again.

Keep your eye on this gang, including the notorious Smith (polltaxer, Va.) committee out to sabotage rent and price control, the Cox (polltaxer, Ga.) committee out to wreck war communications, and, of course, the unspeakable Dies (polltaxer, Tex.) committee, which is still alive.

And above everything else—register so you can vote in 1944.

OPA Pledges New Try at Price Rollback

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—A new attempt to roll back food prices will be started at once, Chester Bowles, newly appointed general manager of OPA, announced this week.

The price rollbacks will be confined to apples, oranges, potatoes, lard, vegetable oils and peanut butter, Bowles said. He indicated the rollback would be achieved by a combination of subsidy payments and government purchase and resale, to cost about $100,000,000 annnually.

In addition, Bowles said that tighter enforcement of price control would result in another cut in prices. This will be accomplished by increasing the work of volunteer price panels, on which labor and consumer groups are represented.

Labor participation is essential in making these price panels effective, as was discovered when a special drive was put on in New Orleans involving hundreds of union and auxiliary members. The New Orleans drive netted a substantial cut in living costs through stricter enforcement.

Bowles also announced that considerable shifts were still going on in OPA, largely as a result of Congress's order to staff the policy-making sections with businessmen.

Thus, the deputy administrator in charge of pricing comes from the American Sugar Refining Co., the head of the food price division comes from the Kroger Grocery chain, the head of the general merchandise division is from the Interstate Department Stores in New York.

While declaring that he hoped to hold down the use of subsidies to "an absolute minimum," Bowles also said: "This issue of limited subsidies must be squarely met if the progress we have made during the past few months in the control of prices is to be continued."

The pro-inflation gang in Congress, led by the "farm bloc," put up a bitter fight against the use of subsidies before the summer recess, and succeeded in holding down the subsidy program to less than half a billion dollars. At least two or three billion is needed.

MORE TO COME: CIO members last year gave $20,000,000 to war relief. This year there's more to come, through the Natl. CIO War Relief Committee, a participating member of the National War Fund, starting its drive on Oct. 1. Above, Miss Irene Rak, staff member of the CIO Committee, examines some posters to be displayed in CIO union halls.

Labor Draft for Aircraft Workers Called Nonsense; Need Industry Output Plan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—Talk of a labor draft for aircraft workers as an aid to production adds up to pure nonsense. That was the gist of statement made this week by Vice-Pres. Richard T. Frankensteen of the CIO United Auto Workers Union. Frankensteen said that real "overall planning for total production" is what the industry needs.

He pointed to unsolved engineering problems, to design changes, to faulty material supply, and to delayed reconversion or retooling of plants, as the major causes for the industry's recent production failures.

"Where both management and government have failed to take a whole series of steps to solve the manpower problems, to develop arbitrary administrative controls over labor is to throw upon labor the full burden of sacrifice and adjustment for the derelictions of others," Frankensteen declared.

Directing his statement to army, production, manpower and War Labor Board officials, Frankensteen said:

"The Office of War Mobilization has clearly failed to meet the emergency. In the face of the multiple and complex problems weighing down on the aircraft industry, the only contribution from the OWM has been the proposal of a labor priorities scheme and the implied threat of national service legislation."

Frankensteen outlined a broad program of suggested action, including in part:

An immediate labor-management-government conference on production problems; elimination of waste; pooling of technical "know how"; redistribution of contracts and concentration of civilian production; wage adjustments to equalize aircraft rates with those paid in shipyards; and action to combat absenteeism by meeting the housing, medical and child care needs of the workers.

FDR Blasts Ouster of 3 As Illegal

Washington, Sept. 18—President Franklin D. Roosevelt this week took off the gloves in his fight against Congress' attempt to dismiss from Federal service three government employes because of political opinions which they are alleged to hold. He pointed out that the three have been given no chance for fair trials.

The President's challenge came in his first message to Congress, just returned from vacation, and concerned the cases of Robert Morss Lovett, secretary of the Virgin Islands; and William E. Dodd, Jr., and Goodwin B. Watson, employes of the Federal Communications Commission.

The House of Representatives this summer voted to remove the three by use of a rider tacked onto an important deficiency appropriation bill, which both the Senate and the President finally had to approve in the interests of providing funds for vital war agencies. Describing the action as an illegal bill of attainder, President Roosevelt said in his message to Congress:

"There is no suggestion that the three named individuals have not loyally and competently performed the duties for which they have been employed. They are sought to be disqualified for Federal employment because of political opinions attributed to them.

"The clause permitting them to remain in government employment after November 15, subject to Presidential appointment and Senate approval, was inserted only after the Senate had refused to accept a provision requiring their immediate removal from government employment and their permanent disqualification for the Federal service."

President Roosevelt pointed out that he and the Senate yielded on the compromise only "to avoid delaying our conduct of the war."

He declared that the Supreme Court has defined a bill of attainder as "a legislative act which inflicts punishment without judicial trial," and added that, "No judicial trials have been held; no impeachment proceedings have been instituted."

Wage Pamphlet

New York, Sept. 18—A Guide to Wage Payment Plans, Time Study and Job Evaluation in the electrical industry has been issued in a 127-page pamphlet by the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers.

Church View on War

Boston, Sept. 18 — "The daily liberty of our workers to live a self-sufficient life is one of the things we are fighting for," writes Leverett Saltanstall in an article, "Free Labor: Asset of Democracy" in the September issue of the Christian Register, national Unitarian monthly.

CIO Pushes Drive For Md. Registration

Baltimore, Sept. 18—The CIO Maryland & District of Columbia Industrial Union Council is pushing a drive for the registration of voters, in preparation for the crucial 1944 elections. Thousands of leaflets have been distributed by the council and affiliated unions with the warning, "Don't cheat yourself out of an opportunity to vote in the 1944 Presidential election."

Phoney Wage Boost Story Used to Plug For Sales Tax

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

Congress is back in Washington and we've got a big job to do. There's been a lot of publicity given in the last month to figures which are said to show how much workers' incomes have increased since the war. War Mobilization Director Byrnes quoted some of them on a national broadcast about a month ago to prove that wages have gone up much more than living costs. These figures are used to fight subsidies, the argument being that we don't need them, that workers can afford increased prices. The figures also are used to boost the sales tax, under the theory that we should increase taxes on the increased low incomes, because they spell inflation.

The fact is, of course, that hourly wage rates have hardly increased at all in the last year and that the vast majority of American workers do not yet earn enough for a decent American standard of living. What we have to make our Congressmen see is that we must protect the health of our working people and their ability to produce if we want speedy victory. Protecting their health requires that they have enough income to buy the essentials of life.

That is why we want our Congressmen to fight the sales tax and to support increased exemptions from taxes. A married couple cannot keep up their productive strength on less than $1,500 a year —and $400 for each dependent. A single person needs a minimum of $800. People who earn less than that should pay no taxes. They need every cent to buy the necessities of life.

HEALTH AT STAKE

High prices also cut into the productive efficiency of our workers' families. Unless prices are rolled back to a year ago, or wages increased to meet price increases, the health of millions of Americans will suffer. And that means that the war effort will suffer because production will suffer.

That's why we ask our Congressmen to vote for subsidies to roll prices back. That's why we ask them to join the Committee for the Protection of the Consumer—started last June by the "Fighting Forty"—those brave members of the House of Representatives under Thomas Scanlon who joined together to fight for the President's economic stabilization program.

Don't give your Congressman any peace until he joins that bloc and puts up an active fight for its policies. They stand for full enforcement of price control, grade labeling, rollback of prices to September, 1942 and maintenance of that price level through subsidy where necessary.

SALES TAX DANGER

One of the main reasons that there's real danger that Congress will pass a sales tax, and defeat the subsidy program is that Congressmen and Senators from seven southern states do not represent the people in their districts, because the polltax deprives 10,000,000 Americans of their right to vote.

So while you're writing to Washington to your representatives on Capitol Hill, be sure to write to your Senator to ask him to use his influence to see that the Senate Judiciary Committee reports the Anti-Poll Tax Bill and that it comes up in the Senate.

Ask him also to vote for cloture, the rule to close debate, so that those Southern polltax Senators can't interfere still more with the prosecution of the war by staging a filibuster.

Housewives Discover The Useful Soybean

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

There are few housewives today who haven't heard or read something about the soybean—the new find in inexpensive food that gives more than double its money value in good nutrition, and the variety of ways it can be used. Nutritionists sings its praises but the fellow who with raised eyebrows has to eat it asks, "How does it taste?"

The soybean is not a new find as a source of food. It has long been the main item in the Chinese diet.

The secret in making any food taste good is always in the preparation. If the food value is there to begin with, a little seasoning will make all the difference in the taste. Because the soybean is such a good source of protein, fat and vitamins in the diet, and because we are all so food conscious nowadays, it should be no surprise that the Government and institutions interested in developing the soybean industry work hard to find better methods of processing to make the soybean tastier and more acceptable as part of a daily menu—with good results, it seems.

Consumers Union in this month's issue of "Consumer Reports" points out that in a special taste test carried on by Consumer Union technicians, people prejudiced against the use of soybeans were chosen as tasters. They were surprised to find that the soybean didn't taste bad after all, except that it tasted a little flat.

Consumer Union points out that this isn't surprising because the soybean is used for special diets and, therefore, it is seasoned only slightly, or not at all. However, soybeans can be seasoned like any other vegetable to suit your taste.

Housewives can fit the soybean and other soy products into everyday menus because there are so many ways it can be used. The soybean can be used fresh or cooked like peas or lima beans; can be dried or pre-cooked and then dried; can be made into cereals; and can be mixed with other ingredients to make a meat substitute or sandwich spread. Soybean oil is used for cooking or salad dressing. The bean or flour is used in all kinds of baked goods from bread and crackers to sweet dessert cookies.

TUC Convention Report

World-Wide Unity Meet Urged by British Unions

SOUTHPORT, England, Sept. 18—(ALN)—A call for a "world conference, representative of the organized workers of all countries, to promote the widest possible unity in aim and action of the international trade union movement" was made by the 75th annual convention of the British Trades Union Congress, meeting here this week.

The convention, one of the liveliest on record, was attended by 800 delegates representing a TUC membership, at the end of 1942, of 6,240,411—an increase of 591,767 over the past year.

Membership has since risen substantially and is now estimated to have exceeded the 1920 record of 6,500,000.

In seconding the international labor unity resolution, which was put forward in the name of the TUC general council, Bryn Roberts, secretary of the National Union of Public Employes, declared that "it will be welcomed by millions of trade unionists everywhere."

Public attention centered on the debates on international labor unity and the need for "an immediate second front in Europe" —made particularly sharp by the clash between Sir Walter Citrine, TUC general secretary, and Isidore Nagler, AFL fraternal delegate, on the one hand, and fraternal delegate Nikolai Shvernik, secretary of the All-Union Council of Soviet Trade Unions, on the other.

BRYN ROBERTS

"World-Wide Union Unity Will Be Welcomed Everywhere"

Among decisions of vital importance to the basic structure of the British trade union movement was a unanimous vote that in effect provides for favoring the industrial form of organization over the craft form.

In the vote the delegates called for "a re-examination of trade union structure in order to achieve desirable amalgamation and so avoid uneconomic overlapping and competition." Similar resolutions were rejected by the 1941 and 1942 TUC conventions.

In the face of resolutions put forward by the Society of Painters, National Amalgamated Union of Shop Assistants, Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen and the Assn. of Engineering and Shipbuilding Draughtsmen, and backed by the large miners, engineers and railwaymen's unions, the general council agreed to withdraw its Circular 16—known as the "Black Circular"—which barred Communists from holding office in local trade councils. The 1942 TUC convention voted by a majority of 413,000 to retain the Black Circular.

Industrial Unionism

These and a number of other votes—notably those on India and Vansittartism — represented not only a sharp defeat for the general council but also a fundamental shifting of power within the TUC away from the big general unions toward the engineers, miners and railwaymen's unions, which today more than ever are organizing along industrial lines.

The debate on international labor unity centered around the proposal made by Shvernik, in his speech to the convention, for the extension of the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee "to include the trade unions of North and South America and of all countries fighting with the United Nations against Hitler Germany."

Such over-all extension, Shvernik said, would not only assist and strengthen the war effort of the United Nations, but would also "render more active assistance to the peoples of the enslaved countries in their struggle against the fascist terror."

Citrine Replies

Replying to the Soviet delegate, Citrine stated that "for practical reasons" extension of the Anglo-Soviet committee was not possible. "By extending the committee we should be establishing a new international," he said. "That may be a necessary and desirable end, but this is not the way to do it. The proper way is to hammer out basic questions of principle, because we shall find there diametrical differences. We have found that in the case of America."

Stressing that the TUC wanted to continue with the Anglo-Soviet committee and to "draw into its ambit the trade unions of America," Citrine said that the general council was "exploring the possibilities of convening a world conference, since by that means they could build a durable organization."

In his speech to the convention, AFL fraternal delegate Isidore Nagler, a vice president of the Intl. Ladies Garment Workers Union, pointed out that the AFL had refused to agree to changing the TUC-AFL committee because it "did not want to perpetuate the division still unfortunately existing in the American trade union movement." He added that there are "solid grounds for hoping that the CIO will at last return to the great family of labor which represents the bulk of American trade unions."

Dealing with the question of the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee, Nagler said: "We cannot believe that any organic link with the Soviet trade unions is desirable, because frankness requires recognition of the fact that the Soviet trade unions are not free trade unions but are organizations of the state.

"Links with the Soviet trade unions would not help the war effort, but would increase ideological differences and conflicts and would carry this division into the ranks of labor in our country. Nevertheless the AFL is for wholehearted cooperation with Soviet Russia in pursuing the war to victory."

Shvernik Gagged

In the session following Nagler's speech, Citrine caused a sensation by announcing that Nikolai Shvernik, on behalf of the Soviet delegation, had strongly objected to the allegation of the AFL delegate that "the Soviet trade unions are not free unions" and had asked for permission to make a statement in reply. On being informed of this, Citrine added, Nagler said that he would insist on making a further statement. It was decided that neither statement should be made to the convention.

The convention's call for a world labor conference, contained in an emergency resolution proposed by the general council, declared: "On behalf of the organized millions of working people whom the TUC represents, we make our claim to a place in the settlement of the terms and conditions of peace and a share in the formulation of national policy to insure economic security, social justice and higher standards of living for all.

To this end Congress requests the general council to give immediate attention to the possibility of convening a world congress with representatives of the organized workers of all countries, as soon as war conditions permit, with the object of considering the most pressing problems both of policy and organization which affect the interests of working people, and thereby to promote the widest possible unity in aim and action of the international trade union movement."

Second Front

A further clash between Citrine and Shvernik took place on the issue of the second front. While paying "full tribute to the Anglo-American victories in North Africa, Sicily and Italy," and while acknowledging the Anglo-American support given to the Soviets by "airforce operations and supply of arms and foods," Shvernik stated:

"In the understanding of the Soviet people, the opening of a second front means joint blows against Hitler Germany—because Germany, not one of her vassals, is the main lair of fascism. If Germany were forced to divide its forces and bring to the western front one-third or at least one-quarter of its strength, it would basically change the balance of power. When we speak of a second front, we do not mean military operations which divert eight or ten enemy divisions.

NIKOLAI SHVERNIK

"The Sooner There Is A Second Front, The Sooner The War Will Be Over"

"Victory over Hitler Germany depends on when operations are launched on the continent of Europe. The sooner there is a second front, the sooner the war will be over and the lower the number of casualties of the Allied nations. Nobody can dispute that only the absence of a second front saved Hitler from defeat in 1942. Only because Hitler was not troubled about his western rear could he transfer 32 divisions to the east.

In reply, Citrine told how the British delegates to the third meeting of the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee in Moscow last July had stressed that they were "not competent to decide about high tactical operations." Referring to the constant questions put to the delegation by the Russians as to when the second front would be opened, Citrine said: "There seemed a complete underestimation in Soviet Russia as to the happenings in Italy and the totality of the Allied war effffort."

Shortly before the vote on the second front issue was taken, Citrine took the floor again, declaring that he had an "important announcement" to make. "A major amphibian operation is now in progress across the English Channel," he said. On the basis of this information, the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen withdrew its second front resolution, which had the support of the AEU, MFGB, NUR and other unions.

Next day, however, the government announced officially that the large-scale activity in the Channel was not an "operation" but an "exercise." In the light of this official statement, Citrine's announcement of the previous day was branded by the ASLEF and other delegates as "the biggest hoax in TUC history." Only by this "trick," they said, was the convention prevented from going on record for an immediate invasion of western Europe.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

A great CIO day at Baltimore, Saturday, September 11. The workers of the gigantic Glenn L. Martin plant in a run-off election chose the UAW-CIO. This climaxes a long hard-fought campaign. On the same day the UAW-CIO won an election at the American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation by a vote of 235 for CIO to 41 for AFL. The United Steelworkers decided to make it a prominent day by winning the election at Rheems Mfg. Co., by a vote of 447, to 41 for no union.

Heartiest congratulations to Regional Director Frank Bender, Board Member Starling of the UAW-CIO, District Director Atallah of the USA, Nicholas Dragon, representative and organizer of the Aviation Division, UAW-CIO, and representatives of the State and City Councils.

I am writing this from Montreal, where I am attending the Canadian Congress of Labor Convention. A remarkable growth is recorded, having trebled their membership in three years' time, now representing more than 200,000 Canadian workers. More than 600 Canadian delegates were in attendance from all areas. The interesting thing is the group of delegates in uniform from the Montreal police and fire departments who are organized and affiliated with this organization.

Like their fellow workers of the U. S., our Canadian brothers are for all-out war effort, fighting against repressive legislation, fighting for labor's full participation in the nation's affairs, and they are determined more than ever to roll the program along of ORGANIZING THE UNORGANIZED.

I had the pleasure of addressing the delegates who are keenly interested in methods and progress of the CIO in the U. S. Officers of the Canadian Congress of Labor, President Mosher, Secretary Conroy, Executive Secretary Dowd and staff are doing an effective job. Greater progress can be looked for in Canada. We shall bring a new deal to the workers in the Dominion. All our CIO unions report progress and are forging ahead.

Several weeks ago I reported in my column that I attended a meeting at Ely, Nevada with the employes of the Kennecott Copper Corp. Nevada mines division. Last week an election was held at the plants of this company, resulting in the CIO winning by a substantial majority of the major divisions. In the main division the vote was CIO 543, AFL 215. The CIO won the common laborers, 225 for CIO to 24 for AFL. The other results were: Culinary workers, CIO 23, AFL 9; Teamsters, CIO 10, AFL 6; Iron workers, CIO 22, AFL 3; Bricklayers, CIO 3, AFL 2; Operating engineers, CIO 163, AFL 46; Watchmen, CIO 18, AFL 0; Electricians, CIO 17, AFL 29; Pipefitters, CIO 7, AFL 19; Carpenters, CIO 10, AFL 37; Painters, CIO 3, AFL 15; Boilermakers, CIO 12, AFL 25. The big bulk is with the CIO and the smaller group will have to struggle along. We hope that it will be a real lesson to them in industrial unionism as they are helpless in their present position.

James Robinson, Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Field Rep., reports another victory for the CIO at an election held at Alcoa. Results: MMSW-CIO 223, AFL, 181.

Francis Carmichael, New England CIO Reg. Director, advises that his staff has been successful in swinging an independent union into the CIO, applying for a charter from the United Steelworkers. The plant is the Franklin Machine and Foundry, Providence, R. I.

T. F. Brennan, CIO Field Representative in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., reports the winning of an election held at the Spruce Mfg. Co., Scranton, Pa., result: CIO 57, no union 14.

Claude R. Kramer, CIO Field Rep., advises that the Paper, Novelty and Toy Workers won a NLRB election at the Thoma Box plant by a vote of 37 for UPNWA-CIO to 16 for PS&PM-AFL. Ernest Pugh, CIO Reg. Dir. for Virginia, reports another victory for the UPNTWA. At the Wilson Paper Box Co. they won by 33 for CIO to 17 against.

Adolph Germer, Director of Organization, Intl. Woodworkers of America, advises that the IWA won an election at the Clear Lake Camp of the Irwin & Lyons Logging Co. by a vote of 337 for IWA-CIO to 15 for no union.

George DeNucci CIO Sub-Regional Director, reports that Bill Green was beaten by the CIO in his own home town. An NLRB election held at the Firestone Rubber Co., Coshocton, Ohio, gave the United Rubber Workers-CIO 225 to 121 for AFL. Intl. Rep. Wisdom of the Rubber Workers handled the situation.

Paul R. Christopher, CIO Reg. Dir. for Tennessee, advises that the Textile Workers Union of America won a victory at the Bemis Bros. Bag Co. by a vote of 136 for TWUA-CIO to 15 against.

William B. Taylor, Director of Organization, Oil Workers Organizing Drive, sends in the following victory: Continental Oil Co. Refinery, Wichita Falls, Texas, 66 for OWOC-CIO to 12 against.

The Packinghouse Workers Organiziging Committee stacked up another victory as reported by Pete Mosele, CIO Reg. Dir. The result of a run-off election between the PWOC-CIO and a company union at the Hygrade Co. plant of Newark, New Jersey, resulted in 269 votes for the CIO and 198 for the company union. This will make the fifth plant of this company under the jurisdiction of the PWOC-CIO.

Seasonal workers in the big California Packing Corp. canneries at DeKalb and Rochelle, Illinois, voted 626 to 112 for the Cannery, Agricultural, Packing and Allied Workers, CIO.

TO WIN THE WAR by winning the peace as well was the goal expressed by Vice-Pres. Henry A. Wallace and Pres. Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers at a huge Chicago rally, endorsed by labor. Left to right: Hillman, Wallace and Samuel Levin, president of the Illinois State Industrial Union Council.

Chi. Hails Battle For Democracy Pledged By Wallace, Hillman

CHICAGO, Sept. 18—Members of CIO unions here turned out en masse to join 20,000 of their fellow citizens who jammed the Chicago Stadium last Saturday night to hear Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and other prominent speakers. The meeting was sponsored by the Chicago United National Committee to Win the Peace.

The big turn-out at the meeting, the first great demonstration held since the CIO's Political Action Committee was set up, showed what the CIO can do in Chicago, said Michael Mann, secretary of the Chicago CIO Council. It impressed Vice President Wallace, who in his opening remarks said, "it makes my heart feel good, for the Common Man is really here tonight."

Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO's Political Action Committee, spoke on labor's stake in the war and in the peace to come, in a speech preceding Wallace's address.

"As we advance upon the European continent," Hillman declared, "we must encourage the free and untrammeled activity of the people's movements.

"We must oppose at home grandiose plans for a new, American imperialism. We must use the Atlantic Charter as a basis for a secure and peaceful post-war world. In the last analysis, the nature of the peace will be determined by the people.

"They have it within their power to fashion it after their own needs and aspirations. Organized and united, no force on earth can stop them short of their goal."

WALLACE'S WARNING

Vice President Wallace warned that a World War III may come unless a stout fight is waged for a democratic peace. He listed seven freedoms which he said must be guaranteed to the common man if the peace that follows the war is to endure.

Taking one of the Four Freedoms stated by President Roosevelt, freedom from want, Wallace said this should free the common man from worry about a job, a dependent and poverty-pinched old age, unnecessary worry about sickness and hunger and from strife between workers and business and other groups.

It should give freedom from strife between races and creeds, from fear of bankruptcy caused by the over-production of necessary materials, and "freedom for venture capital and for inventors of new ideas to expand production of needed goods without fear of repressive cartels, excessive taxation or excessive government regulation."

"Above everything we are fighting for peace, but the peace will not last long if it doesn't bring to the common man everywhere these seven freedoms," Wallace said.

Blast R. R. Race Bias As Anti-War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—Racial job discrimination in the railroad industry is seriously hampering the war effort. That was the report made this week by representatives of the Fair Employment Practices Committee at hearing which opened here to discuss the problem of the railroads' denial of equal job opportunities to Negro workers.

Msgr. Francis J. Haas, FEPC chairman, presided at the hearings, which involved charges against 22 railroads and 14 unions affiliated with the AFL and the Railroad Brotherhoods for discrimination against employment of Negroes.

Bartley C. Crum, FEPC counsel, said that with some 80,000 more workers needed in the industry, "there exists an untapped pool of labor among thousands of able-bodied Negroes, whose full skills, and sometimes even their services, are denied to the railroad industry by dint of a long and unhappy history of discrimination against Americans whose skins are darker than those of other Americans.

"In common sense, why must we look to women and prisoners of war, when willing workers are available?" demanded Crum. His remark was aimed at Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, who had proposed that women, Mexican workers and war prisoners be recruited to meet the shortage.

Dr. Herbert Northrup, author of "Organized Labor and the Negro," was the first witness to appear before the committee. He attacked the National Mediation Board and the National Railroad Adjustment Board for permitting discrimination against Negroes.

Hits Steel Cos. For Stalling On Grievances

Cleveland, O., Sept. 18—A charge that collective bargaining has broken down in the plants of the Republic Steel Corp., American Steel & Wire Co. and the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. was made this week by Dir. William F. Donovan of District 28, United Steelworkers of America.

"It seems to me," Donovan said, "that there is a concerted effort on the part of all the steel companies today not to settle any more grievances than they have to regardless of their merit, and to force us to go either to arbitration or to the War Labor Board to get redress."

Food Production Just Issue to Be Evaded, Is Packer's Outlook

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—Food production for victory is just an issue to be evaded in the opinion of the California Packing Corp. (Del Monte products) and several "farm bloc" organizations lined up with the firm. They showed their attitude clearly this week when they contended at a War Labor Board hearing that the Board cannot take jurisdiction over a labor dispute involving members of the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing & Allied Workers on the company's Rochelle and De Kalb, Ill., farms.

The dispute arose when the company refused to recognize the farm workers who organized with the cannery workers into UCAPAWA late last year. Since then, NLRB elections have been held in the Rochelle and De Kalb canneries and contracts have been negotiated. The some 150 year-round farm workers are seeking a signed contract covering union security, grievance settlement machinery, seniority, wages and hours and other working conditions.

"The issue in this case is clear," UCAPAWA President Donald Henderson testified. "If the Board does not take jurisdiction, these farm workers will be prevented from working at top efficiency on a vital war job. Those who oppose WLB jurisdiction are in effect advocating a strike, since they offer no alternative means of settling this dispute peacefully."

CO. ATTORNEY REBUKED

Preston B. Kavanagh, Cal Pak lawyer, was rebuked by WLB Chairman William H. Davis when he asserted that the no-strike pledge did not concern agriculture. Davis explained to him that the no-strike policy is the national policy of the United States as well as of organized labor, designed to insure uninterrupted production during this time of national peril.

Cutting through the corporation lawyer's arguments that the WLB has no jurisdiction over agricultural workers because they are excluded from Wagner Act protection, Davis said: "Your argument that it is forbidden by the Wagner Act does not impress me at all; no one in this country can question the right of workers to bargain collectively."

Cal Pak's fight against the Union is a typical last ditch stand against collective bargaining, CIO Counsel Lee Pressman pointed out in the hearing.

Pointing out that Cal Pak is a big canning corporation whose stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange, Pressman showed that Cal Pak is no ordinary "farmer," but a large-scale corporation employer whose workers are faced with problems of wages, working conditions and grievance settlement, like any other workers.

Representatives of the Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange, the National Farmers Cooperatives and the National Milk Producers Federation joined the corporation in urging the War Labor Board to keep hands off.

Women, Bless 'Em, Can Do Darned Near Anything!

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—Women can do darned near anything! If you don't believe it, consult the U. S. Dept. of Labor. This week Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins revealed that American women have successfully "invaded" the highly complicated machine-tool industry, hitherto considered the exclusive domain of the sex addicted to chewing tobacco.

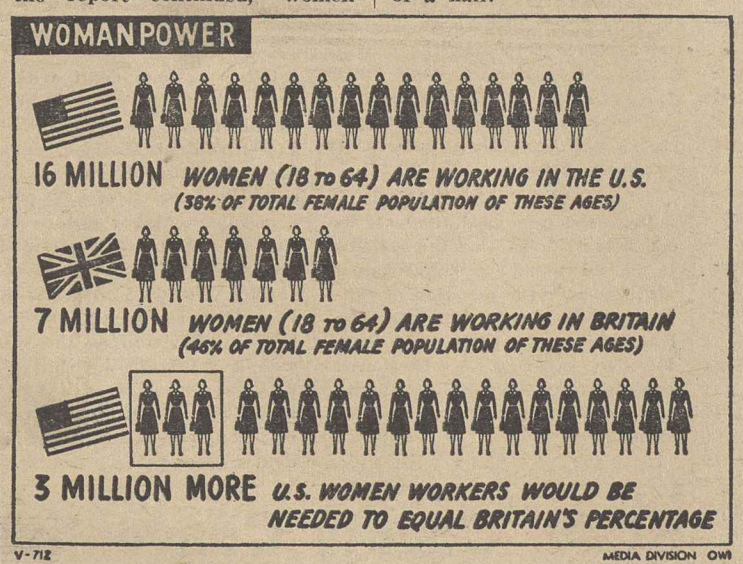
Does the industry regret the "invasion"? Not on your life, Madame Perkins declared.

Up 'til Pearl Harbor, management was rather snooty about hiring women. But came the draft—and with it willingness to attempt training of the so-called weaker sex for jobs involving the operation, for instance, of 3,000-part turret lathes.

The influx of women into this trade has been one of the most striking labor adjustments of the war economy, the Labor Dept. declared, and though production of machine tools has now fallen off, the proportion of women in the plants is still increasing.

Agents of the Women's Bureau of the Labor Dept. report that a survey of machine-tool plants employing 45,000 workers—about one-fourth of the industry—showed that 2.1 per cent were women. This ratio has increased since the survey, and is doubly significant because the field was barren of women prior to the war.

"Though they have been in the industry a relatively short time," the report continued, "women are doing accurate work on jobs requiring, for example, machining to a tolerance of .002 inches, or a fifteenth part of the diameter of a hair."



Farmers, Labor Unite To Fight for Price Control, Subsidies

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept 25—If you don't think that farmer-labor unity can be achieved on a working basis, you ought to pay a visit to this community, which has formed a United Farm, Labor and Social Security Committee to demand, among other things:

1. Subsidies to protect farmers and small business men and to reduce the cost to consumers of food and other vital farm products.

2. Grade labeling.

3. Dollars and cents ceilings on all cost of living items at their September, 1942 level.

4. Continued rent control.

5. A strong Office of Price Administration.

A petition circulating these demands is signed by representatives of CIO, AFL, Farmers' Union, Railroad Brotherhoods and the General Welfare Federation of America (representing old age pension and social security groups).

Discussing grade labeling, which met death at the hands of a combination of food trust interests, the OPA and Congress, the petition says:

"The profiteers in food and clothing have been able to 'high pressure' Congress to forbid OPA from forcing canning and packing plants, mill and other processors to label all cans, packages and goods showing the customer just what he is buying.

"Without labeling, rationing and price control become more than a joke. They become a national tragedy. Are you not entitled to know what you are buying when you are paying your own money and skimping on your rationing stamps,"

How About A Story, Pegler?

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 25—A total of 745,000 members now belong to the 1,800 locals of the United Steelworkers of America, according to the union's latest Audit Report released publicly this week.

An itemized account of income, expenses, resources and liabilities is listed in six statements contained in the report, giving the lie to the labor-baiters who would have the public believe that unions keep their finances a deep dark secret.

Covering the months from Dec. 1, 1942, to May 31, 1943, the financial report shows that the USA-CIO, one of the two largest CIO unions, had a total income of $2,925,598.82 and total expenses of $2,054,270.70, giving an excess of income over expense of $871,328.12.

The report is submitted by the union's head officials, President Philip Murray, Secretary-Treasurer David J. McDonald, and the two assistants to the president, Van A. Bittner and Clinton S. Golden.

Christian-American Assn. Raids Arkansas With Anti-Union Program

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 25—The so-called Christian American Assn. is tightening the grip of one of its tentacles around a corner of this state in an attempt to secure passage of anti-union legislation like that which has disgraced the statute books in Kansas and other states.

The activities of the organization were exposed this week by the Arkansas Labor Journal, published by the Arkansas State Industrial Union Council.

The Journal said that agents of the Association have been reported circulating petitions, urging the State legislature to pass a law which, to the non-discriminating, would appear to be a neatly worded bit of "justice."

For instance, the law would prohibit the refusal of employment to anyone because of membership in a union, but also would prohibit refusal of employment because of resignation from a union (thus neatly eliminating the possibility of a solid union shop).

It would prohibit any contract excluding from employment members of a union, but again would backfire by prohibiting denial of jobs to those who refuse to join a union.

The last clause of the proposed law, as outlined by the Journal, is the frankest of the lot—it would prohibit compelling any person against his will to pay dues to a union as a condition of employment.

Smear-Labor Scheme Flops In Jersey

Camden, N. J., Sept. 25—A nice little scheme by the newspapers to smear the whole of union labor on the dues question flopped here this week, due to energetic action by local CIO people.

The smear hit the front pages with a bang when somebody found out that a small AFL local union was asking soldiers, who had volunteered to help out on the tomato pack, to pay a portion of union dues.

The somebody was, oddly enough, the state leader of the Farm Bureau Federation—"farm block" group that represents monopoly, not the working farmers, and is responsible for much of the price-hiking drive in Congress.

The plot was exposed by Irving Abramson, N. J. CIO president; Ernest Kornfeld, CIO representative; Anthony Valentino, president of the big CIO Cannery Workers Local 80 at Campbell's Soup, and the publicity man for Campbell's.

They pointed out there was not a single case of a CIO union requiring soldiers to pay dues.

Following their quick work, the newspaper stories began to make it clear that only one small AFL local, and not the entire N. J. labor movement, was responsible.

CIO Rubber Workers Mobilize for All-Out Production Program

TORONTO, Ont.—Rubber workers of the nation were mobilized on an all-out tire production program by the CIO United Rubber Workers convention meeting in this city.

In a statement submitted to the delegates the union's Executive Board pledged "maximum production" to produce the 30,000,000 passenger tires called for in the government's program for 1944.

The convention called upon unions and management in the industry to make all available equipment ready for use and to use rubber workers at their maximum skill. A detailed program has already been submitted to the government.

Efforts of tire companies to locate new plants during war time outside of existing production centers were branded "injurious to the war effort."

"Construction of these plants would consume strategic materials, use vitally needed manpower and cause managerial attention to be diverted from producing the goods with the equipment now available," the Board's statement declared.

HAIL JEFFER'S WORK

The Board also expressed appreciation to Rubber Administrator Jeffers for "the outstanding work he has done in putting the synthetic rubber program on a going basis."

The URWA convention endorsed the action of CIO and URWA officers in enforcing the no-strike pledge. The temper of the convention was expressed by one delegate who declared, "We've had enough of John L. Lewis!"

In other resolutions the delegates:

HAILED the "constructive and patriotic" leadership of CIO Pres. Philip Murray and denounced newspaper dope stories that the union was about to leave the CIO.

PLEDGED support to Pres. Roosevelt "to help you carry out your pledge of 'unconditional surrender' of Germany, Italy, Japan and their satellites."

URGED the CIO "to take all necessary steps to establish international labor cooperation with direct participation by CIO, AFL, and railway labor unions and the unions of other United Nations."

ENDORSED Pres. Roosevelt's program to take care of returning servicemen and adopted a 5-point program supplementing the President's proposal.

BACKED the program of the CIO Political Action Committee in organizing support for progressive, pro-labor candidates in the 1943-44 elections.

CALLED upon the Govermnent to initiate "a vigorous price roll back program."

VOTED DOWN a proposal to scrap incentive wage systems in the rubber industry. Incentive wage systems have been established in the industry for many years and most union contracts are based upon them.

REJECTED proposals to withdraw URWA members from serving on the War Labor Board.

SOUNDS KEYNOTE

In his keynote address to the 315 delegates, Pres. S. H. Dalrymple, U. S. Marine twice cited for gallantry for action in World War I, declared:

"Pledges are not enough. We must do more. We must do more because we have an obligation to our country, an obligation to our brothers on the battlefield who are bleeding and dying to preserve the institutions of free men.

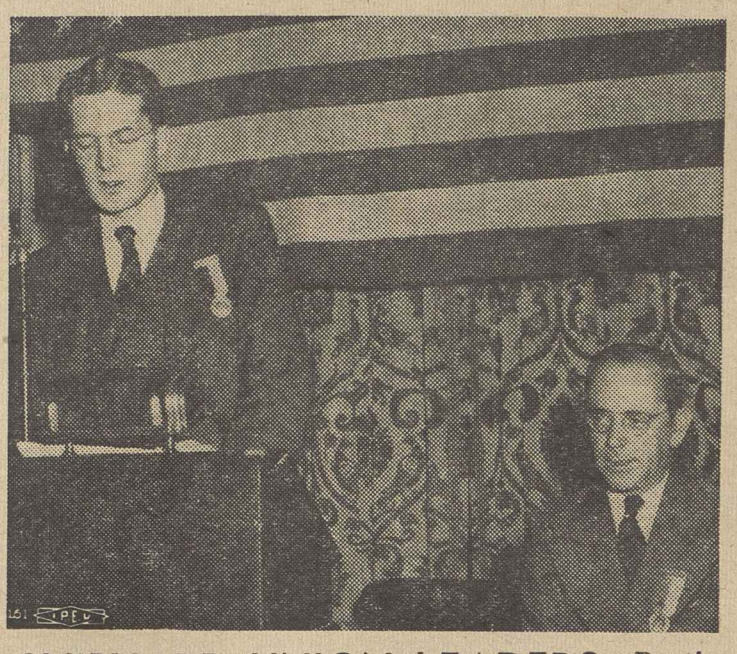
"I say to you, as soldiers of production, we must assume our responsibility of winning the war—which is to produce huge surpluses of necessities of war."

The URWA president praised the War Labor Board for having taken "steps to protect bonafide labor organizations which were never taken before in any other country."

He said that the union security provisions granted by the WLB have "stabilized and made possible the further growth of labor organizations during this war."

Shipyard Workers Pledge Speed-Output Drive

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—America's shipyard workers realize the vital job they have to do to help win the war and are determined to speed up construction of vessels needed to transport troops, supplies and arms to the battle fronts. That was the statement President John Green made in his opening address to more than 600 delegates attending the ninth convention of the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, in session here this week.



SHIPYARD UNION LEADERS: President John Green (right) listens as Secretary Philip Van Gelder reports to the CIO Shipbuilding Workers' convention.

"We must make greater efforts to more fully utilize the manpower available, to cut down absenteeism, and to cooperate with management whenever possible in overcoming the faults and hitches in the production process," Green declared.

James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, who addressed the convention, also stressed the "tremendous responsibility" of the shipyard workers in particular and labor in general in straining to the utmost to speed victory.

Warning that America may be faced with the problem of finding jobs for 35,000,000 at the end of hostilities, Carey urged that labor be given a "direct voice" in setting up a post-war program.

ROOSEVELT'S PRAISE

A telegram from President Roosevelt read to the delegates commended the shipyard workers "for a job well done" and urged them "to continue with ever increasing pace, your work in the nation's shipyards."

"The chances your sons, brothers and husbands have of coming home are in direct proportion to the work you put in on your jobs. You must win your battle before they can finish theirs," the President said.

Action taken by the convention on international labor unity was tied to the question of the post-war program. A resolution adopted unanimously by the delegates pointed out that "a just and lasting peace requires the greatest collaboration of the free trade unions of all the world."

The convention:

1. Urged speedy action toward "establishment of cooperation and unity between the trade union movements of the United Nations."

2. Instructed the Executive Board to establish direct connection with the trade unions of other United Nations.

3. Authorized the board to select two of its members "to visit the free trade union movement anywhere possible in the United Nations."

On Thursday, delegates voted unanimously to endorse a fourth term for President Roosevelt, and pledged "to sustain and encourage our Commander-in-Chief and our armed forces in their policy of an offensive now," and "to back the attack with increased production, bond purchases and political action against the defeatists, appeasers, and a negotiated peace."

Other resolutions passed unanimously called for an intensive War Bond drive to raise $97,000,000 for the purchase of a battleship; protection of the rights of ex-servicemen; a substantial increase in the allotment to servicemen's dependent; active support for the anti-poll tax bill, and a drive to complete organization of workers in the big non-union shipyards.

The tremendous strides made by the union since the last convention were listed in the Officers' Report submitted to the delegates by President Green, Secretary-Treasurer Philip Van Gelder, and Vice-President George W. Wright.

Acting as bargaining representative for some 400,000 men and women compared with 200,000 a year ago, the union has 73 agreements in force.

It won 44,370 votes in 53 Labor Board elections, to 18,704 votes for the AFL and 16,521 for independent unions.

Unity Against Axis Is Keynote Of Metal, Mine Parley

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 25—Unity to bring about the unconditional surrender of fascism was the keynote of the Golden Jubilee convention of the Intl. Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, which adjourned last week.

The question of a united front against the main enemy was never in doubt, from the opening address by President Reid Robinson to the standing ovation of the 327 delegates for his closing plea for unity on the war.

The unity train, as some delegates termed it, picked up speed each succeeding hour of the historic meeting and disputes on inter-organizational problems of the MMSW were only a whistle stop on the streamlined trip to solution of the major problems of manpower, production, wage stabilization and legislative and political action.

Informed that the forthcoming convention of the national CIO undoubtedly would consider the question of complete support for re-election of President Roosevelt, the delegates enthusiastically voted to inform the CIO convention of the solid support of the MMSW membership for the Commander-in-Chief and his win-the-war program.

Some outstanding policy actions were taken by the convention, not the least of which was support of President Roosevelt in any attempt to bring about an immediate land invasion of Western Europe.

Throughout the entire convention, only two roll call votes were required—both of these on the question of unity of membership and leadership. One roll call was simply to refer to the International Executive Board a resolution on union administration. This carried and a later roll call, urging complete unity of purpose on the war and agreement to seek the counsel and advice of CIO President Philip Murray in cases of disagreement of leadership in the future, was passed with a whoop and holler by almost 4 to 1.

SUPPORT MURRAY

Delegates regarded the vote as concrete evidence that the MMSW is in no mood to countenance division over the question of support of its leadership and the leadership of Philip Murray. Further evidence of this was contained in the resolution paying tribute to Murray's leadership.

Incentive pay plans with union participation; unqualified opposition to discrimination against Negroes, Latin-Americans and women; reaffirmation of the no-strike pledge; plans for the solution of the manpower shortage; support of the War Labor Board; condemnation of John L. Lewis as a traitor—all of these actions and others dealing with the problem of increased production were adopted, for the most part, by unanimous vote.

Other actions dealt with support for national and international labor unity, praise for Vice-President Wallace, demands for adequate defense housing, complete support of CIO policies, greetings to labor unions of the United Nations, expansion of organization, establishment of the former National Association of Die Casters as a permanent "Casting Division" of the MMSW, and a full-scale legislative and political program dealing with anti-labor laws, price control, taxation, poll-tax and the President's seven-point program.

Longshoremen To Run Army Warehouse

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25—The CIO Intl. Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's union this week shattered precedent by undertaking complete operation of a warehouse for the U. S. Army—first union ever to assume such responsibility.

Army officials sought union aid after manpower shortages made efficient operation of government warehouses difficult. The union will supply a full crew, including gang bosses, for the warehouse.

The Army will pay the union for all overhead, such as salaries of office help, bank charges, social security deductions, taxes and other incidentals. The union assumes full responsibility for carrying out job placements and making salary payments.

State, County Convention Plans War Role for Workers In Government Employ

CLEVELAND, Sept. 25—Three hundred delegates representing local government workers in cities, counties and states from coast to coast, assembled in the State, County and Municipal Workers convention here this week to formulate a program on their role as war workers.

The officer's report presented by President Abram Flaxer pointed out that only through spreading the organization and the tremendous gains made by the union to the other unorganized locals, would the union actually be fulfilling its role as war worker.

"The union," Flaxer said, "is a war weapon today. That weapon must be sharpened by organizing the unorganized, spreading the union, helping to solve production and manpower problems through labor-management committees."

The union, numbering 38,500 members, recruits about 1,200 members monthly. Through their wage drives they won pay increases for 308,000 workers amounting to $73,000,000. This meant that every union government worker through his activities won gains for ten other unorganized government workers.

Today the standards in the local government service have been raised by 18.3 per cent where the SCMWA is organized, and only by 9 per cent on a national average.

Ask 2nd Front

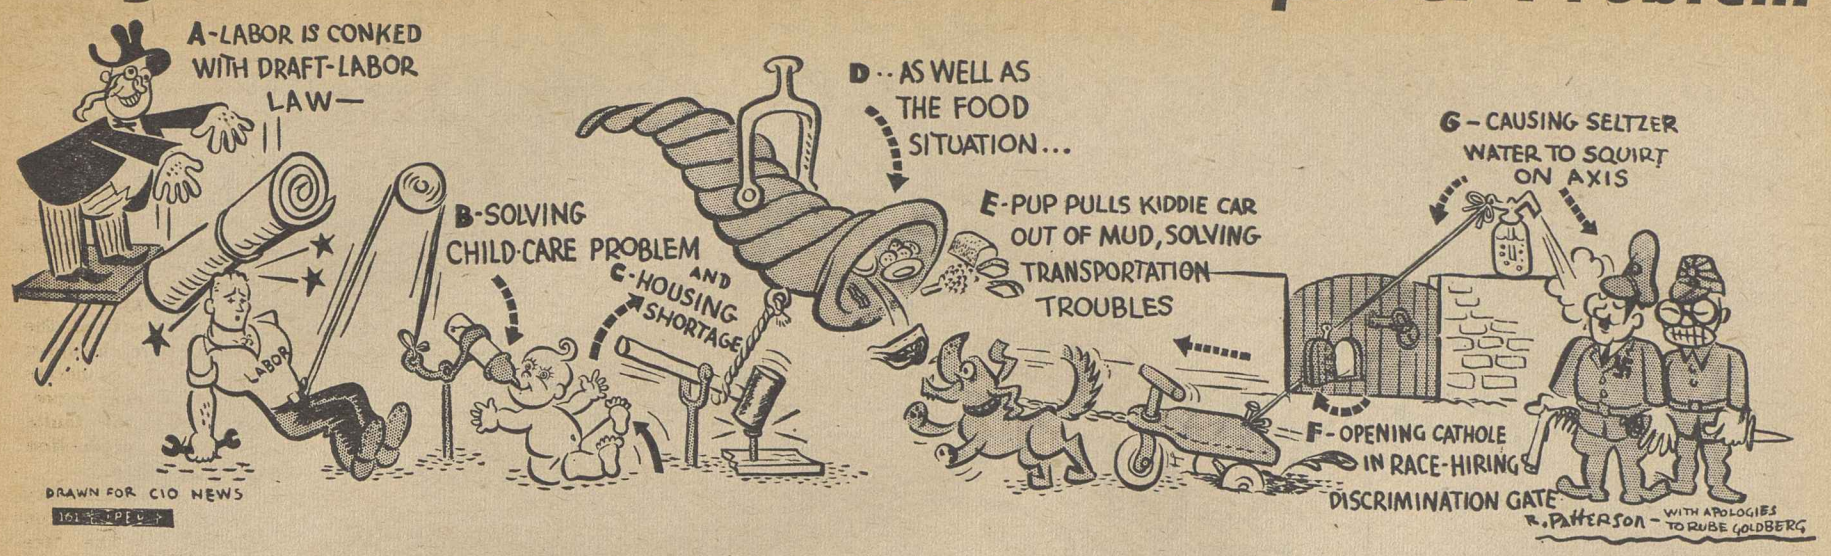
Boston, Sept. 25—The Boston CIO wants a 2nd land front in western Europe now "to bring victory in 1943 and at least cost while our Russian allies are slugging Hitler in the east." The resolution was unanimously adopted at the regular Council meeting.

Act Now On Security Bill, N. Y. CIO Urges

New York, Sept. 25—Action by N. Y. Congressmen on the new social security act was urged by the city CIO Council here in a letter to the N. Y. delegation in the House.

"We regard the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill (S 1161) as one of the most important measures to come before you this year," the Council said.

Congressman Jerk 'Solves' the Manpower Problem



U. S. Wants Women in War Jobs But Does Little To Keep Them

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—Women workers are leaving their war jobs at an alarming rate, U. S. officials have pointed out. At the same time, millions more are needed right now to keep up with and increase war output schedules. What are the reasons? According to a study prepared by the CIO Women's Auxiliaries, and submitted to the Women's Advisory Committee of the War Manpower Commission, these are:

1. Inability of women war workers to get their food shopping done, due to early shopping hours when they cannot go to the stores, and scanty or completely lacking supplies when they can get around to them.

This can be corrected by having stores open at night, by setting aside certain supplies for war workers only, and by designating certain stores in factory areas where only war workers can buy.

The same system, the Auxiliaries point out, should be used for banks, beauty parlors, doctors and dentists, ration boards, etc.

2. Lack of child care facilities and lack of knowledge by women that they exist where they do exist; plus frequent statements by the Manpower Commission and other government agencies that mothers should not work.

3. Inability to get laundry done, due to manpower shortages in laundries which in turn are due to low wages in the industry. For example, a recent study in New York showed that the rate of absenteeism among women doubled on Mondays, because they had to stay home and wash their clothes.

4. Inadequate eating places in plants (which affects men workers, of course, as much as women) and difficulty in planning good meals at home after a hard day's work at the plant.

This should be met, the Auxiliaries told the Commission the way it is met in England by the "British Restaurants," where workers can get a good meal at low cost or even pick up pre-cooked meals to heat up and serve at home.

Big Push on Yet For Compulsory Labor Law

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—The big push for a compulsory labor law—known more delicately as a "National Service Act"—is still on in Congress and the newspapers, though this week its anti-labor sponsors took several sharp ones on the chin.

From Bernard Baruch's suppressed report, which was put into the Congressional Record early this week, came material stoutly contradicting the need for a labor draft and putting the finger on lack of planning and other conditions as the real cause of manpower shortages.

Testifying before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, Baruch added further weight to the opponents of a labor draft in discussing the Wheeler bill to defer the drafting of fathers into the armed forces.

James S. Patton, president of the Natl. Farmers Union and spokesman for organized working farmers, as opposed to the Wall Street kind represented by the "farm bloc," issued a long statement attacking the present freeze of farm labor as one main cause of area shortages.

BLAMES INEFFICIENCY

Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower Commission head, testified that "there is no manpower shortage" in his appearance at the Senate Committee, but that inefficient use of labor does create artificial shortages.

Other Manpower Commission officials followed up McNutt's testimony by pointing out that incentive wages, better upgrading, better engineering, an end to waste and labor hoarding, etc., would do much to solve shortages.

In his statement, Patton made a strong plea for repeal of the law that freezes cotton and tobacco workers on the land, despite the fact that we have a two years' supply of short staple cotton and the further fact that it has no military value.

DESCRIBES CHAOS

"Instead of mobilizing all farm labor for use whenever and wherever needed, under reasonable wages and working conditions, it has broken the U. S. into 3,000 little counties with the county agent as a little king, subservient in most instances to the largest farmers in the country," he said.

Patton's argument against the labor draft, similar to those made by the CIO, pointed out that 1,300,000 workers are tied down to unessential jobs on the land or even to idleness, while war factories and war food producing areas are falling behind on production for lack of manpower.

In other words, the experience we've already had with the freezing of labor shows how much harm it can do to war production.

UNSOLVED PROBLEMS

Meantime, employers still continue to refuse to hire Negroes, discriminate against women; and nothing is done to correct inadequate housing, child care, health, feeding, etc., that actually create manpower shortages in certain areas.

And, as a payoff, the CIO Shipbuilding Workers reports that the New England Shipbuilding Corp. is laying off literally thousands of workers "in the tightest labor market in the east"—in order to evade seniority and other provisions in the union contract.

CIO in Politics to Stay, Hillman Tour Reveals

CHICAGO, Sept. 25—While geared for the 1944 national elections, the concept of organized labor as a permanent political force within the American scene began clearly to emerge this week during the whirlwind tour of Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, en route to the West Coast to complete CIO's political machinery.

In Detroit, unity was promptly established between the Wayne County CIO Industrial Union Council and the Labor Progressive League.

Both groups agreed to the establishment of an administrative committee with both equally represented, until such time as a merger could be effected through the calling of a convention.

Meanwhile, the CIO Political Action Committee announced that August Scholle, president of the Michigan State CIO, as its regional director for the State which constitutes Region V.

Returning to Chicago, Hillman presided over a tri-State conference of Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin CIO delegates to set up Region VII.

The conference voted to ask the CIO Councils of the three States to designate a political action committee of 15, to initiate statewide permanent political organizations of labor in each state to be known as the "United Labor League" or by some other appropriate name.

AFL and Railroad Brotherhood locals unions are to be invited to participate in the organization of each United Labor League, with full representation.

Each United Labor League is to urge affiliation by city, county and other local unions in the community, Congressional district, ward and precinct.

At an appropriate time, a political convention will be held in each state.

Win WLB Pay Award

Poultney, Vt., Sept. 25—A wage increase of three cents an hour has been awarded to the 142 employes of the Staso Milling Co. by the War Labor Board, retroactive to April 1. The employes are represented by the United Stone & Allied Products Workers of America.

Massey to 'Head' CIO Radio Show

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—Raymond Massey, noted actor, will be the main attraction of CIO's Labor for Victory radio show, under the auspices of the CIO War Relief Committee, at 1:15 p.m. EWT Sunday, October 17.

Massey will act as narator, and will be supported by other stars in the entertainment field.

CIO's October 3 program will feature production problems, with the Federation of Architects, Engineers & Technicians discussing the role of technicians in the war effort.

Both programs will be heard over NBC's Red Network.

Vigilantes' Noses Rubbed In Dirt

Las Vegas, Nev., Sept. 25—Anti-union goon squads and vigilante law enforcement officials got their noses rubbed in the dirt here this week as a district court judge dismissed a framed-up felony case against Robert R. Hollowwa, Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers organizer.

The case previously had ended in a mistrial, and the judge in finally dismissing it said that he doubted that any jury would convict Hollowwa under the existing facts.

Prior to a Labor Board election which was won by the union, Hollowwa and other CIO men repeatedly were attacked while peacefully distributing leaflets. Deputy sheriffs pointedly ignored the violence.

When CIO men began carrying guns in self protection, however, the law became alert, and Hollowwa was arrested and charged with illegal possession of a gun, which he did not know was in a car that he was riding in.

Voting Made Union Duty

San Francisco, Sept 25—Here's one concrete way to help win elections for labor:

Two locals of the Intl. Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union have democratically decided to make voting a union duty.

All members eligible to vote will be liable to penalties if they fail in this duty. All applicants for membership who are eligible voters must produce proof that they have registered.

The Least We Owe

The least we owe to our fighting men is the assurance that their families will be properly cared for, when the breadwinner goes off to fight for his country.

But as things stand, many servicemens' families are reduced to a pauper level and have to rely on public relief or assistance from low-income relatives to supplement the inadequate allowances made by the government.

Only $72 a month is now allowed to a serviceman's wife with two children. This is below recognized public relief standards, which show that anywhere from $89 to $108 or more is necessary for a wife and two children to enjoy a minimum living standard.

A bill has been passed in the Senate and is now awaiting action in the House to increase dependents' allowances. But it provides no increase for wives, and only $18 a month for the first child and $11 a month for additional children.

For a wife and two children it would provide only $79 a month which, as CIO Pres. Murray points out, is "more than $10 a month below the absolute minimum of necessity."

The CIO is therefore taking the lead in calling upon Congress to make decent provision for the families of our fighting men.

It asks legislation to provide $55 a month for a serviceman's wife, $35 for the first child and $30 for each additional child—as "minimum standards for tolerable living conditions."

Such action will become increasingly urgent with the drafting of fathers. Urge your representatives in Congress to act promptly, so Uncle Sam will do right by his fighting men and their families.

Food For Production

If an army "moves on its stomach," so, too, does war production.

Proper and adequate food for war workers is as essential as any of the materials that go into guns, tanks, planes and munitions.

Ill-health, absenteeism, lagging energy are some of the results of improper feeding that directly curtail the supply of war materials for our armed forces.

Yet a recent survey by the UAW-CIO, covering 142 war plants employing more than half a million workers, reveals a shocking lack of proper eating facilities.

Only 28% of these plants have cafeterias or counters serving hot food and meals to the employes; and 55% of these are revealed to be unsatisfactory, because of overcrowding, cold or bad food, lack of seats, slow service, unsanitary surroundings and other similiar conditions.

In one aircraft plant, for instance, there are some 2,000 workers per lunch period all trying to get served in one cafeteria in 20 minutes.

High prices, stale or mouldy food, lack of meat and other nourishing foods are among the many other grievances listed.

Due to overcrowded conditions and inadequate service, 60% of the workers eating in the plants covered have to wait 15 minutes or more to get served. With lunch periods in most plants only 15, 20 or 30 minutes, this means food has to be bolted and cannot be properly digested as the workers rush back to their jobs.

Great Britain, with longer war experience, is far ahead of the United States in providing proper feeding for war workers. There every plant employing 250 or more workers is required by the government to provide adequate eating facilities, in line with definitely established standards.

CIO unions are working aggressively to meet this feeding problem—which has become one of the most serious war production issues confronting labor and the nation. A number of government agencies are also giving it serious attention.

But both labor and government agencies constantly run into apathy, unwillingness or obstruction on the part of employers who do not appreciate the seriousness of the problem, or who shrink from the effort or expense involved in solving it.

It is therefore high time that action be taken to treat the provision of proper feeding facilities as an integral part of the production standards imposed on all concerns holding war contracts, as is done in Great Britain.

As part of the assurance it gives the government that it can provide war materials on time and in sufficient quantity, every concern should be required to show that adequate arrangements have been made for the proper feeding of its war workers.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

THERE were some million-dollar questions in a recent exclusive little quiz program in Washington.

The Quiz Kids were Pres. Mark Woods of the Blue Network and Edward J. Noble, who wants to buy the network. Their questioners were members of the Federal Communications Commission.

The show was not broadcast. There were only a score present, and most of the press ignored it.

But if they'd heard it, most radio listeners would have been surprised at the answers.

★ ★ ★

Here are some of the questions and answers, in substance:

Q: Would you sell time to the Ford Motor Co. to put on W. J. Cameron as their commentator, having knowledge of his viewpoint and record?

A: Yes, we sell time to corporations to put on commentators with distinctive viewpoints.

Q: Would you sell time to the CIO to reply, or to put on its own commentator—say, even the same Cameron?

A: No. We're in the advertising business. We sell time for the sale of goods, not for the presentation of viewpoints.

Q: Hasn't Cameron a viewpoint?

A: Yes, and we would not attempt to control what he had to say—just so his views were his own, not those of the Ford Co.

★ ★ ★

Q: Don't most corporations these days buy time for goodwill rather than to sell goods?

A. Yes, they want to keep their names before the public, to tell what they're doing to win the war, and to build up goodwill for post-war days.

Q: Would you sell time to the AFL to keep its name before the public, to tell what it's doing to win the war, and to build up goodwill. A: No.

Q: Would you sell time to General Motors to say what a good job it was doing to win the war? A: Certainly.

Q: Would you sell time to the UAW-CIO to say what a good job it was doing to win the war? A: No.

★ ★ ★

Q: Why don't you sell time to labor and similar groups?

A: If we sold time for the presentation of ideas, the wealthier groups would have all the advantage. So we give time free to both sides.

Q: You discriminate in selling time for advertising. Couldn't you also discriminate in selling time for ideas, so both sides would get an even break?

A: (We don't believe that one's been answered yet.)

★ ★ ★

The above answers are not peculiar to the Blue Network. They reflect the policies of the whole radio industry, as set forth in the code of the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters.

The networks may differ on the amount of leeway they give to commentators; and quite a few local stations just disregard the NAB code.

But, by and large, the industry will sell time to corporations for almost anything, yet refuse to sell time to unions on the grounds any labor program is "controversial."

So Fulton Lewis on Mutual can campaign daily against price rollbacks, but the UAW-CIO is refused the right to buy time to campaign for rollbacks.

H. V. Kaltenborn on NBC can make all the anti-labor cracks he likes, but labor can't buy time to give the real facts.

★ ★ ★

As to the argument that this policy protects the poor against monopoly of the air by wealthier groups—wealthy corporations already monopolize most radio time and get their ideas across through goodwill programs and business-sponsored commentators.

Moreover, there is no reason why the sale of time to labor should preclude the granting of free time. The law requires that radio stations be operated "in the public interest." As a public service, they should certainly grant more free time than they do to present all viewpoints on public issues, regardless of ability to pay for time.

But that is no reason for the present blanket refusal to sell time to labor under any circumstances; or to refuse to grant either paid or free time for solicitation of membership.

Why should not labor have the same right as business to sell its services over the air?

Finally, labor has no recourse or representation when discriminated against by biased station owners. That is why the CIO is asking the FCC to consider machinery for relief from discriminatory denials of radio time.

Labor Demands Freedom Of Air—CIO

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—Labor's claims to freedom of the air, without present restrictions and discriminations in regard to radio time, were expressed to the Federal Communications Commission this week by Len De Caux, national publicity director of the CIO and editor of The CIO NEWS.

The labor case was presented in a public hearing before the FCC on the proposed sale of the Blue Network to Edward J. Noble, millionaire president of the Lifesaver Corp.

Both Noble and Mark Woods, president of the Blue Network, were questioned at length by the Commissioners on how they proposed to treat labor and other popular groups under the new ownership.

They stated they would sell time to the Ford Co. to put on such a commentator as W. J. Cameron, but would not sell time to the CIO, the AFL or any other similar group to reply or to put on their own commentator.

They also declared they would sell time to any corporation to build goodwill by telling what it was doing to win the war, but would not sell time to any labor organization for the same purpose.

FREE TIME BUNK

"We don't want to sell time for ideas," was the burden of Noble's answers to most of the questions asked by Chairman Fly and Commissioner Durr.

Both he and Woods asserted it was their policy to give time free for such purposes. But tables they presented to show the amount of time given by the Blue Network to both CIO and AFL revealed only an infinitesimal proportion of radio time devoted to labor.

Fly demanded that Noble let the Commission know as soon as possible what he proposed to do to make the Network more responsive to the people's needs for greater freedom of the air.

In his testimony, De Caux pointed out that "labor gets little time over the air and is frequently denied the right to buy time or to obtain free time, while the airwaves are largely monopolized by programs sold to employing and business interests."

He criticized the code of the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters for refusing to sell time to labor, on the grounds its programs are "controversial"; and attacked a new code ruling that denies either paid or free time for programs involving "solicitation of membership."

SERIOUS CLAUSE

"This clause is particularly serious where labor unions are engaged in organizing campaigns for the purpose of increasing their membership," De Caux said. "Commercial concerns are free to advertise their goods and services over the radio, but labor under this clause is denied the right similarly to advertise its services."

In answer to a question by Eugene Cotton, CIO assistant counsel, Woods said that in line with this policy his Network would refuse to sell or give time to the UAW-CIO to tell the pub- of the services it renders to its membership.

De Caux also pointed out that there is no labor or public representation in determining issues of censorship or whether or not time should be granted, such decisions resting exclusively in the hands of station and network owners.

On behalf of the CIO he advanced the following recommendations:

(1) That more free time should be given to labor "particularly in the form of regularly recurring sustaining programs."

(2) That labor unions "should suffer no blanket restriction on their right to purchase radio time."

(3) That there should be no blanket restriction on the unions' right "to use the radio for the solicitation of membership or in organizing campaigns."

(4) That the FCC should consider establishing "machinery for the relief of labor and other organizations in cases where there is a discriminatory denial of their right to buy or receive free time on the air."

Keep Your Eye on Congress

Three major issues are before Congress this week; manpower, polltax, and a new one —developed on CIO initiative—the issue of increased allotments to wives and children of soldiers.

Manpower is before Congress with the big push for a compulsory labor law still going on. Polltax repeal was in the Senate Judiciary Committee as The CIO NEWS went to press, with the possibility of a favorable report and an early vote in the Senate—if the filibuster is blocked.

The soldiers' dependents allotment increase is being put into a bill by Rep. George Sadowski (D., Mich.) after Pres. Murray called on Congress to raise shockingly low standards now in effect.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Sadowski (no number yet)	Increases allowances to soldiers' wives from present $72 a month (wife and 2 kids) to $120.	Will be referred to House Military Affairs Committee.	Write your Representative to support; Rep. May (Chmn., Military Affairs) for favorable report.
Polltax Repeal (HR 7)	Brings 10,000,000 Americans under democratic rule.	Action this week in Senate Judiciary Committee.	Wire your Senators to vote for cloture to kill filibuster, oppose amendments, vote for bill.
Smith-Connally Repeal	Several bills are in preparation; watch CIO NEWS for latest developments.		Write your Representative, Senators to support.
Lucas (S 1089)	Extends voting hours for war workers.	Senate Elections Committee, awaiting hearings.	Write your two Senators to support.
Austin-Wadsworth (S 666, HR 1742)	Compulsory labor law.	Both these bills are technically quiet now, but a real offensive is going on for such a law.	Wire Senators and Representative against Austin-Wadsworth or anything like it.

KKK Rides Again

Orlando, Fla., Sept. 25—The Ku Klux Klan, nightshirts and all, is riding again in Orange County, center of the orange industry in the state.

The riding was done in connection with the trial of Otis Nation, vice-president of the CIO Cannery and Agricultural Workers, for helping the War Manpower Commission to get workers up north to save the tomato pack in New Jersey.

It was also aimed at terrorizing Negro workers who are joining the CIO in big numbers, since the Klan parade spent a long time in the Negro quarter of Apopka, an orange center in the county.

During the parade, one of the Klansmen shouted to a Negro worker: "Hey, you n*er, we've got your union button and know you're a member of the CIO."

Soldiers stationed nearby aren't taking kindly to the Klan revival, and a number of them stopped the hoodlums, telling them: "Take those damned hoods off. You should be saving that gasoline for war use—it would help a lot more than it is the way you're using it."

Church and Labor

New York, Sept. 25—Ministers of the Gospel were urged to rub shoulders with organized labor, in an article given prominence in a recent issue of TOGETHER, news letter of the Council for Social Action of the Congregational Christian Churches.

Among recommendations were: Discussions on collective bargaining and manpower mobilization, enlistment of labor in joint community activities and cooperation with labor on legislative affairs.

Teachers Go CIO

New York, Sept. 25—A charter of affiliation to the CIO State County & Municipal Workers of America was to be presented this week to the New York Teachers Union.

CIO Asks More Aid For Army Families

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—The CIO wants soldiers' wives and kids to have enough money to eat and live decently with, President Murray told Congressional leaders this week.

This minimum, he said in a letter to House Majority and Minority leaders, "would require the payment of $55 a month for the support of a serviceman's wife, $35 for the first child and $30 per month for each additional child."

Murray's letter was followed up with the introduction of a bill by Rep. George Sadowski, (D., Mich.) to increase allowances to these figures. In putting in his bill, Sadowski said:

"The plea of CIO President Murray for decent allowances to the dependents of our fighting men is one that Congress should act upon immediately. This is the least that we owe our fighting men; the knowledge that those they've left behind are being adequately provided for."

Murray's letter came as the issue hit the papers with an announcement from Joseph Martin, Republican whip in the House, that his party would seek to increase the allotments. Martin's announcement however, was carefully vague on the amount the Republicans thought necessary.

In writing to Martin and the other House leaders, Murray added an appeal to head off the possibility that the issue would be taken up merely for its vote-getting value, without any real steps being taken in the interests of servicemen's families.

"It is not enough however, merely to give lip service to the principle of increased support for servicemen's dependents without making certain that the support will be at adequate levels. Unfortunately the statements as reported do not appear to contemplate standards of benefit payments compatible with the needs of the families of America's fighters."

Murray also pointed out in his letter that present allotments give a service wife with two children only $72 a month, which is far below health and decency standards.

"The lowest estimate that has been made by any agency engaged in the study of living costs as to the amount needed for the support of a wife and two children is $89, while other estimates have ranged up to $108 and even higher."

Under the CIO plan, the minimum for a wife and two children would be $120 a month, with $30 a month extra for each additional child.

In The CIO NEWS of Sept. 20, figures worked out by a special committee of the CIO Legislative Dept. were cited to show that more than half a million soldier's families would be helped directly by an increase, with another half million of what the army calls "collateral or Class B dependents"—fathers, etc.—would also be benefited.

Earlier this session, a bill passed the Senate with the meager increase of $7 a month for a wife with two children, making the total $79. This is another thing that Pres. Murray had in mind when he protested the idea of merely giving lip-service to the needs of the soldiers' families.

Sign Check-off Pact

Cleveland, O., Sept. 25—A contract providing for maintenance of membership and the check-off system of collecting dues has been signed between the United Steelworkers of America and the Valley Mould & Iron Corp.

UAW Leaders Protest Radio Chain Censorship

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—Two sharp protests from leaders of the UAW-CIO were worrying the big radio chains this week, while the Federal Communications Commission probed into radio's treatment of labor as compared to its handling of employer interests.

The protests came from R. J. Thomas, UAW president, and Richard T. Frankensteen, vice-president, and both involved censorship and suppression of labor programs.

Thomas' protest was directed at the refusal of nine radio stations in New York, Washington, Cleveland, Los Angeles, St. Louis and Chicago to accept UAW transcriptions on the need for a price rollback.

Typical transcript of the series suppressed went this way:

(Sound, policeman's whistle, with cars grinding to a halt.)

COP: "Hey, bud, whatcha tryin' to do—wreck this town? Go on! Roll it back to the safety line!

ANNOUNCER: "Yes—and roll back PRICES to safety, too! Roll them back to May, 1942—when your wages were frozen by government order! How? Write your Congressmen today!"

Frankensteen's protest, sent to the FCC, involved censorship of a speech he gave over WHKC of Columbus, O., in which the manager deleted the parts of the speech devoted to the Congressional record of Senator Taft (R., Ohio).

Canada CIO Plugs Political Action, Pledges No Strikes

MONTREAL, Sept. 25—Direct political action through the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation was taken by the fourth convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor (CIO) last week when it endorsed that party as the "political arm of labor" and urged that all affiliates join it. The convention also reiterated its no-strike pledge.

Pres. R. J. Thomas of the UAW and Allan Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization, were loudly applauded during their speeches when they reiterated that even if labor had to bear the full brunt of the war, it was a people's war and nothing must be left undone to win it.

Pres. Thomas praised his own union for doubling its Canadian membership during the year and also referred in particular to the gains of the United Steelworkers.

Referring to the post-war period, he urged the fullest co-operation between the trade union movements of all countries.

"Labor must get together at the peace table," he said. "But unless we all get together in the United Nations, we are not going to have a voice at the peace conference and we are likely to have another war."

He deplored the attitude of the AFL in connection with the united participation in the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee.

Resolutions adopted by the convention urged the payment of a $1,000 bonus to war veterans; favored application for admission to the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee; urged raising of income tax exemptions; urged establishment of a comprehensive housing scheme whereby houses would be built for use and not for profit, and recommended continued action to bring about unity between all Canadian labor groups.

Other resolutions urged enactment of collective bargaining legislation and the outlawing of company unions; asked reinstatement of J. L. Cohen, K. C., as labor representative on the National War Labor Board; urged the guarantee of equality in wage rates, health and working conditions to Quebec workers; recommended that the Government take complete control of and operate the coal mining industry, and urged legislation making two-week annual holidays mandatory.

Pres. A. R. Mosher and all executive committee members were re-elected. This included Saul Spivak, Amalgamated Clothing Workers; Pat Conroy, Tom Johnston, C. H. Millard and S. Barrett.

GI AND JUST RIGHT: One of the members from CIO and AFL ranks in New Jersey who recently tasted the rigors of Army life at Fort Monmouth, N. J. After the fittings, the boys went through the Army routine, laughingly dubbing themselves the 4B Brigade—bald heads, bridge-work, bay windows and bi-focals.

Claim Curran Essential To War Effort

New York, Sept. 25—If Joseph Curran is not essential to war production, the Natl. Maritime Union, which he heads, "would like to know who is."

The query was made to N. Y. Natl. Selective Service Director Col. McDermott, who ruled that Curran's draft classification should be changed to 1A from 2B.

"We are informed that thousands of employers have been deferred by their local draft boards without any action by McDermott," the NMU said. "Does that mean he is convinced that their work is more essential to the war than Curran's? Or does the difference in treatment lie in the fact that they are employers and Curran is a trade union leader?"

Labor's Cash Has Loud Ring In Welfare Circles

Washington, Sept. 27—A revolution in American philanthropy has been quietly taking place since the war, brought about by the millions that organized labor has given to war relief.

Kermit Eby, assistant research and educational director for the Natl CIO, makes this point in an article on Organized Labor and Philanthropy in the Sept. 8 issue of the Christian Century.

"Instead of depending solely on Lord and Lady Bountiful of Upper-Crust-on-the-Hudson," he writes, American philanthropy must now take into account "Joe and Mary Smith of, say Packinghouse Workers Local No. 284."

Ask N. Y. Rent Freeze

New York, Sept. 25—The CIO Fur Workers Joint Council this week asked the Office of Price Administration to freeze rents here as of March, 1942, levels.

FEPC Blames Railroads, AFL and Brotherhoods For Race Bias in Industry

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—Concluding several days of hearings on anti-Negro discrimination in the railroads, the Fair Employment Practices Committee here put the blame squarely on the employers and on 14 AFL and Brotherhood unions for failure to use Negro workers despite serious labor shortages.

As the hearings ended, Frank R. Kent, reactionary newspaper columnist, let loose a vicious blast at the Committee and at the whole principle of the fight to end discrimination and Jim Crow.

Replying to this attack, John Brophy, CIO member on the FEPC, told the CIO NEWS:

"Kent's unprincipled attack is primarily aimed at an important war agency of the U. S. Government, which is trying to aid war production by forcing the removal of barriers to full employment of all our people, regardless of color or race.

"The FEPC was charged by the President with this task. To say, as Kent does, that the FEPC 'created' the issue of discrimination is completely untrue. The FEPC is doing its duty in looking into and trying to correct a bad situation that already exists. Discrimination costs war production and the services of millions of loyal Americans. It must be ended if we are to mobilize all our people in this gigantic task."

Earlier in the hearings, Frederick N. Myers, vice-president of the Natl. Maritime Union, told the Committee that the NMU was living proof that Negro and white workers get along perfectly well together, blasting the white supremacy myth that racial friction cannot be overcome.

"Negro and white seamen work side by side, eat together in the same messroom and are quartered in the fo'c'sle, and die together on the high seas in defense of America," he said.

"Many stories could be told about Negro seamen who, at the risk of their own lives, have saved their white brothers in time of peril. A common saying in our industry is that a Japanese or German torpedo is not marked 'for whites only'."

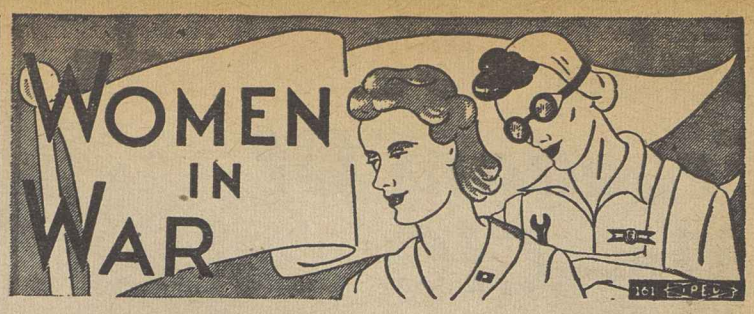
'Click' Does Piece on CIO

Washington, Sept. 25—If you want to see what a typical CIO city looks like, get a copy of Click magazine, on the stands this week.

The magazine has a six-page layout, mostly pictures, on the CIO in Cleveland, the whole thing put under the title: "The CIO—Aggressive Champion of Laboring Millions."

In addition, the story carries a brief question and answer box in which President Murray disposes of four common queries on the CIO and its functions in the war.

The piece also carries a page of pictures of nine typical Cleveland rank and filers, showing how the CIO takes in workers of all races and all national origins, without discrimination.



War Output Slowed By Backward U. S. Child Care Policy

By ELEANOR FOWLER

The Federal Works Agency has prepared a report on its program for care of children of war working mothers under the Lanham Act. The agency's records show that not quite half of the 3,385 child care centers which have been approved have actually been opened, and that centers which were open as of August 11 were being used to less than half of capacity.

General Flemming, FWA Administrator, concludes from these figures that "mothers have not taken jobs or continued to hold jobs in the numbers anticipated" and "that the need for child care services up to this time largely has been met insofar as Federal financing could meet it."

We beg to differ with the General. The lack of use of many of the facilities does not prove that mothers are not working in large and increasing numbers—we know from government figures that is not true. Then why aren't the facilities being used?

In the first place, constant emphasis on the official government policy that women with children under 14 should not be working has resulted in failure to advertise and popularize child care facilities. Federal, state and local officials have been so afraid that the opening of child care centers might encourage new mothers to take jobs that they have adopted a hush-hush attitude about them. A tiny paragraph on the inside pages of the paper is often the only public announcement.

ENGLAND'S EXPERIENCE

In England they found that women not only had to know there were child care centers—they had to be educated to the importance of using them. And in England child care centers are free except for a nominal charge for food.

Here mothers are expected to pay from $2 to $7 a week—the Los Angeles area average is $4.75 for nursery school, $3.85 for school age supervision—which is a substantial weekly pay cut to send their children to centers they know nothing about. No wonder the centers aren't full!

The papers carry reports these days of the need for new women workers to make the weapons for victory. It's high time for the War Manpower Commission and other government agencies to put aside their horror of mothers working and to put on a real publicity campaign on the value of and need for child care centers.

FEAR SLOWS PROGRAM

Failure of many local communities to open centers even after need has been shown and federal funds granted is in large part a reflection of this fear of encouraging mothers to work. School Boards are not anxious to assume responsibility for the care of children of working mothers. Even after they have been pressured into making application for funds they postpone and postpone putting plans into operation.

The delay does not mean mothers are not working. It does mean a lack of aroused public opinion in the community to demand speed in solution of a pressing war problem.

Time, Labor And Money Saving Ideas

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

There's a new book on the market that every busy housewife ought to look through for helpful hints on running your house in streamlined order—using all the home ideas to save time and energy as well as more than a few pennies on your budget.

You'll find short cuts and simple hints on baking, cooking, cleaning, washing, stains, sewing and generally helpful suggestions on making your house more attractive.

Here are some suggestions on cooking:

To Remove Fish and Onion Odors: Put a handful of salt, or 3 tablespoons of vinegar or a few drops of ammonia in the dishpan while washing fishy dishes and pots and pans.

To Tenderize Tough Cuts of Meat: Dip meat in vinegar before cooking. Salt meat when ready to serve. Salting before cooking toughens the meat and extracts juices.

Save Rinds of Orange, Lemon and Grapefruit: Wash rinds and dry them in oven. Store in glass jars. Chop them up fine for orange flavoring in puddings, custards and fruit cakes.

Cool cooked chicken thoroughly before covering and storing. Harmful toxins may develop if chicken is covered and stored while hot.

For Flaky Pie Crust: Brush a little sweet cream over the top crust of a pie before you put it in the oven.

Crust on Rolls: To prevent a hard crust from forming on top of rolls, brush them with butter as soon as you remove them from the oven.

Eggs are more digestible if you let them stand for 5 minutes in boiling hot water to cover, instead of boiling the eggs for 3 minutes.

To Keep Left-Over Egg Yolks: Place egg yolks in cup and cover with water. They will keep for 2 or 3 days.

Tartar Sauce: For a good tartar sauce to pep up your fish dinners, add chopped olives or chopped gherkins to mayonnaise.

Baking Apples: Prick apples with a fork before putting them into the oven to bake and skins will not crack open while baking.

Wash Flour Sieves in Soda Water: Add a little bicarbone of soda to the water.

Need Sour Milk in a Hurry? Add 1 teaspoon of vinegar or lemon juice to 1 cup of sweet milk. This is a good way to stretch thick sour cream. Add the soured sweet milk to the sour milk and stir.

For further information on the book, write to CIO Auxiliaries, 1019 15th St., N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

Victory Workshop

New York, Sept. 25—Victory Workshop, a cooperative art project sponsored by the Artists League of America, held its first trade union exhibit last week at the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers Convention. Two pictorial wall newspapers were features of the show.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

The UAW-CIO has passed by 100,000 members the goal of one million members that we called upon it to achieve. This, in addition to some 300,000 members in the armed forces, makes the UAW equal to any other organization in the world. Congratulations to officers and members! Now for the second million!

Reg. Dir. Fullerton Fulton in Chicago reports that the Shoe Workers won an election at Florsheim Shoe. The AFL had been in control there for many years and the workers were very dissatisfied. The vote was 1022 for CIO, 804 for AFL. Julius Crane, USW Field Rep. was in charge.

CIO Still Going Strong

Edward F. Gray, UAW-CIO Reg. Dir., reports a victory among time keepers of a plant governed by Local 731, with a vote of 73 for CIO, 22 for no union.

Ewald Sandner, Reg. Dir., in Jersey, reports an NLRB victory at Hygrade Packing, Newark—269 for CIO, 198 for AFL. Reps. Meyer Stern and William Ricks were in charge.

W. A. Copeland CIO Rep. in Memphis, sends in the following election victories: U. S. Bedding, CIO 93, AFL 68; Memphis Furniture, CIO 379, AFL 32. Credit is given to all CIO and affiliated organizations' representatives in Memphis for their cooperation.

UAW-CIO won a significant victory at the Cleveland Fisher Body plant among 550 factory office workers. CIO received 96% of the votes. A substantial group of General Motors white collar workers are now represented by the UAW-CIO. Further elections among white collar workers are to be held soon among auditors and uniformed guards. According to Paul E. Miley, Reg. Dir., Rep. John Troeter and Exec. Board member of Local 45, Charles Sannder, headed the drive. The workers were welcomed by Charles Beckman, president of this local.

IWA-CIO Victories

Triangle Lake Lumber employes at Eugene, Ore., voted 21 for the IWA-CIO to 14 against. George Brown, Asst. Dir. Organ. IWA-CIO, reports victories at the Pacific Woods Products, Grants Pass, Ore., 19 to 4; Penokee Veneer, Mellen, Wisc. 137 to 19; and Irwin Lyons Co., Clear Lake, Ore., 37 to 15.

Michael Livoda Sub-Reg. Dir., Denver, reports a victory for the Oil Workers Union at the Texas Refinery Works, Craigs, Colo., 25 for CIO, 8 for a company union.

George Craig, Reg. Dir., in Philadelphia, sends in a victory at the Land Title Bldg. Corp. CIO received 96 votes, no union 3.

Roy Atkinson, Wash. State Reg. Dir., and President Zonarich of the AWA, report a victory at the Aluminum Plant, Spokane, Wash.—CIO 819, AFL 281. This victory in Spokane is expected to intensify organizing activities for CIO in this area.

This week I am to address the SCMWA convention in Cleveland and the URWA convention in Toronto.

A number of our regional directors are arranging meetings for the Political Action Committee throughout the country. The slogan to organize the unorganized is still the most important objective and we are making splendid progress. Let's keep the ball rolling. Upon our ability to do this job rests the success we shall make in all our other efforts in behalf of the workers and our nation. Organize now!

British Workers Hail Call for World Labor Conference

LONDON, Sept. 25 (ALN)—The decision of the British Trades Union Congress at its annual convention to call a world labor conference "to promote the widest possible unity in aim and action of the international trade union movement" was widely welcomed this week by British workers, who at the same time demanded that the decision be carried out immediately.

The AEU Journal, official organ of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, declares in an editorial in its latest issue: "As the terrible logic of war unfolds, as the spirit of revolution quickens on the continent and the more reactionary elements in the ruling classes of Britain and America hasten to complete their post-war plans for retaining their privilege and power, it becomes a matter of increasing urgency for the trade unions of the Allied nations to find a common voice with which to express their will nationally and internationally on all major issues affecting the workers."

Similar editorials appear in a number of other leading union journals, including that of the National Union of Public Employes, whose secretary, Bryn Roberts, seconded the TUC general council's resolution on international labor unity at the Southport convention.

The NUPE's own resolution on international unity, calling for "a conference of representatives of the Soviet trade unions, AFL, CIO, Railroad Brotherhoods, CTAL, Dominions labor movements and trade union groups of the occupied countries," was withdrawn in favor of the general council's resolution. Roberts' speech to the convention, which has been praised as expressing the opinion of the vast majority of British workers, follows in part:

WORLD CONFERENCE

"In sacrificing my own union's resolution for the rather similar emergency resolution of the general council, I am confident that the intention expressed in the resolution to convoke a world conference of world labor—including the CIO, AFL, Railway Brotherhoods and CTAL—will be welcomed by millions of trade unionists throughout the world, including the overwhelming mass of American workers.

"Everyone, I believe, was depressed by the section in the general council's report on international labor unity negotiations. The pettiness and bickering revealed there constitutes a grave reflection on international labor, out of keeping with the high purpose for which the peoples of the United Nations are fighting and dying.

"I venture to stress that it is desperately urgent for the general council to implement its intention once again to take the initiative in achieving a wider measure of collaboration.

"Let us admit that in the fifth year of the war the collaboration so far established is one of deceptive make-believe. On the American side it is marked by growing dissension and mistrust. On the Russian side, by our acquiesence in the anti-Soviet policy of the AFL—which I hope will not be sustained—we ourselves imply that the Russians are not sufficiently worthy for us to insist upon their taking their rightful place in the councils of international labor.

NEW APPROACH

"There is no way out of the present fantastic maze other than to make a new approach to international unity. By making this approach, the TUC would free itself from the charges now made so bitterly against it of being responsible for the exclusion of any given section. Such an approach would enable all those who desire to collaborate to do so, thus placing the onus upon those who do not so desire."

S. American Labor Seeks Hemisphere Union Conference

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25—A Pan-American labor union conference on problems of war and of international labor unity was urged this week by the Confederation of Latin-American Workers (CTAL), in invitations sent to U. S. and Canadian labor organizations.

The invitation, sent by Lombardo Toledano, CTAL president, comes from some 15 Latin-American national labor unions affiliated to the CTAL, and follows the decisions of the CTAL's recent meeting in Havana, Cuba. Jacob S. Potosky, chairman of the CIO Latin-American Committee, was CIO fraternal delegate at the meeting.

In the call, the CTAL said that "all questions relating to jurisdiction or to affiliation with American or non-American labor organizations would be excluded from such a congress."

At the same CTAL meeting, Toledano was instructed to seek CTAL affiliation with the Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Committee, and this week the request was sent to the British unions and the Soviet unions that make up the group.

"The time has come to establish close ties with labor in the two great non-American countries that have contributed so much to the defeat of fascism—Britain and the Soviet Union," Toledano said.

"Through such ties, we hope to make it possible for world labor to present its opinion on problems related to the fight against fascism and to the coming peace."

Trainmen Accept Bid To World Labor Meet

Cleveland, O., Sept. 25—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen will cooperate in the world labor congress proposed by the Confederation of Latin American Workers, Pres. A. F. Whitney told CTAL Pres. Vincente Lombardo Toledano this week.

British Metal Workers Invite U. S. Cousins To Visit England

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—British metal workers would like their counterparts in the United States to come over and get acquainted. The invitation to do that came this week from the British Section of the Intl. Metalworkers' Federation, and was extended to five CIO and five AFL unions and to one independent.

CIO unions invited included: Auto, Steel, Electrical, Shipyard and Farm Equipment Workers. The invitation came from Lincoln Evans, secretary of the British union, and said in part:

"The British metalworkers have felt for some time that there should be more direct and intimate contacts with our fellow trade unionists in the United States employed in the same indusries.

"We believe that this contact is not only necessary during the war, but of vital importance during the years of reconstruction that will follow.

"We think it is true to say that the American and British trade union movements will be the spearhead of organized labor in the post-war reconstruction period, and we are firmly convinced that the attitude of millions of trade unionists not only in Europe but all over the world will be influenced by the policies adopted by the trade union movements of both countries."

AFL unions invited included: Boilermakers, Electrical Workers, Molders, Pattern Makers and Sheet Metal Workers. The independent organization was the Intl. Assn. of Machinists.

Tells of Polish Underground

Chicago, Sept. 25—A description of the fighters of the Polish underground, carrying on ceaseless warfare against the Nazi invaders, featured a talk given this week before members of the CIO in this area by Alojzy Adamczyk, former chairman of the Polish Trade Union Congress and an executive board member of the Intl. Federation of Trade Unions and of the Intl. Transport Workers Federation.

Speaking under the auspices of the Chicago Industrial Union Council, Adamczyk told of the sufferings of his people back home, and urged that American trade unionists take a key part in establishing a peace that will prevent a recurrence of the fascist terror.

Guild Election

New York, Sept. 25—Reports of a referendum election in the American Newspaper Guild this week showed that administration candidates were re-elected to all posts of the international executive board except the west coast vice-presidency. That post was won by George Hutchinson, circulation district manager of the Los Angeles Express, over William Schulze of Seattle.

Officers re-elected were: Milton Murray, president; Sam Eubanks, executive vice-president; William W. Rodgers, secretary-treasurer; Walter Engels, George Harris, W. A. Copeland and Kenneth Crouse, regional vice-presidents, and Joseph Walsh, Gordon Cole, William J. Farson, Floyd Healey and Milton J. Lapine, vice-presidents at large.

GET OUT THE VOTE is message of New York CIO Council's leaflet (page one, above) on how to register. It will be handed out to the city's 500,000 CIO members. The leaflet tells the who, when, where and how of becoming a registered voter for victory.

Civilian Rural Health Service Is Sick Baby,

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 25—One of the sickest community babies in the nation is rural health service. That was pointed up here this week by a nine-county survey of medical service made by A. R. Mangus of the State Agricultural Experiment Station.

As quoted in the Ohio Cooperator, Mangus said that the supply of doctors is not adequate to care for rural health needs, and is far below that which would be required to cope successfully with, for instance, an influenza epidemic like that which threatened the nation at the end of the last war.

In the area studied, there were only 91 physicians left at the end of 1942 to serve a population of 230,000. The number of doctors has dropped almost 50 per cent while the population has remained about constant since 1923.

At that time, 20 per cent of the doctors were over 65 years old. Today more than half are over 65. Many of the older physicians are only partially effective.

Adequate health service standards as established by the War Manpower Commission call for one doctor for every 1,500 population. The area studied had only one doctor for every 1,874 people at the end of 1942.

Other rural areas in Ohio have an even less favorable ratio, Mangus said.

Deadline For Service Gifts

New York, Sept. 25—That Christmas gift for your buddy overseas must be mailed before October 15 if he's in the Army and before November 1 if he's in the Navy, the services advised this week.

According to Yank, Army newspaper, here's what the boys would like to have: Cigarette lighters that won't go out in a strong wind, shock-proof wrist watches, hunting or Boy Scout knives, small inexpensive cameras with an ample supply of film, playing cards, subscriptions to popular magazines or home town and union newspapers, and pocket size books.

Don't send perishables or food. In choosing a gift, consider the climate where the receiver is stationed—rust proof metal, for instance, is advisable for the tropics.

Help Save Jews From Death-Murray

Columbus, O., Sept. 25—CIO Pres. Philip Murray this week appealed to the ruling forces of the United Nations to help save "helpless Jewish victims from mass extermination." In a message addressed to the 46th annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America, Murray said:

"Time and again the desperate cries of the Jewish people of Europe have reached us here. Time and again, Americans of all walks of life, creeds and colors, have declared their horror and revulsion at this abominable crime upon defenseless people.

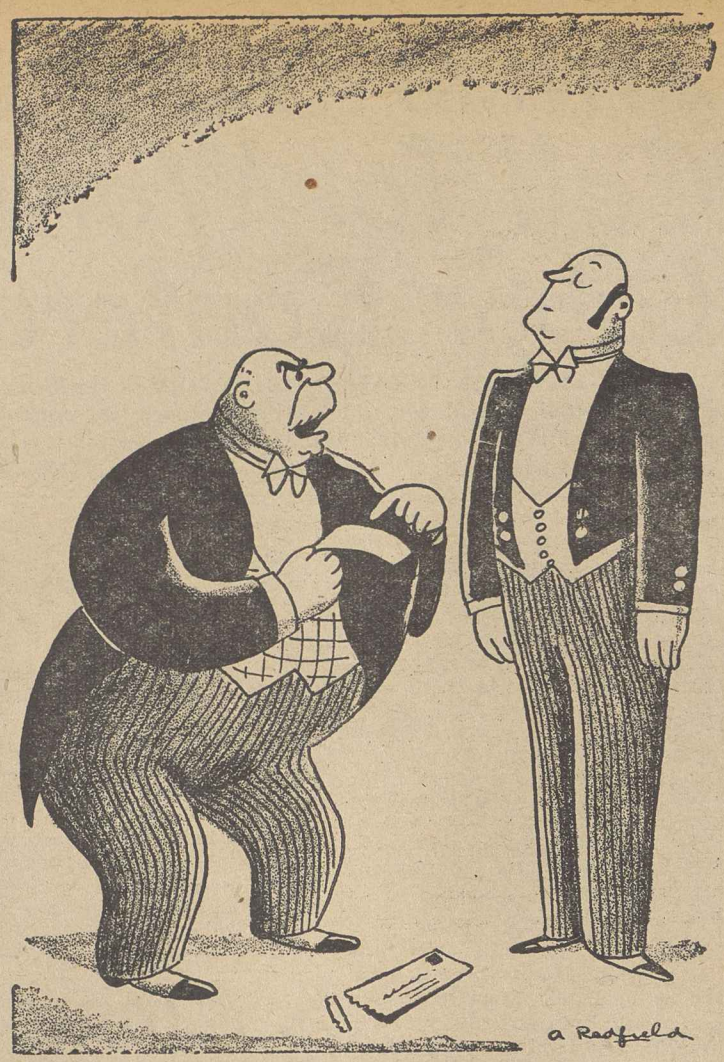
PLEA FOR REFUGEES

"We appeal to all countries, Allied and neutral, to admit to all territories under their control, on the largest possible scale, the Jewish refugees who may still succeed in escaping, no matter how. from the Nazi hell.

"The United States is an important and influential member of the United Nations. It is for us to take the initiative. Now is the time to attempt the salvage of human beings who are still alive, who can still be saved.

"Let us once again uphold the traditions, the policies and the principles on which our great American democracy is based. Let our country show the way and let all other United Nations and neutral countries join in this great effort of human beings.

"American labor on its part in answer to the mass horror that is being inflicted on our brothers and sisters in Europe pledges again to redouble its effort for the utter destruction of Nazism and all its legions of death throughout the Axis. We shall fight on until the enemy has surrendered unconditionally."



"But, Hodgkins, this is an outrage. Who'll draw my bath? You march right over and tell this draft board that you're essential."

Act Now to Kill Polltax, Murray Urges Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—A plea for quick action on the polltax repeal bill (HR 7) was sent to the Senate Judiciary Committee today by President Philip Murray.

Murray pointed out that Axis propaganda is making "telling use" of the existence of the polltax as "a defect in our democracy," and urged Sen. Van Nuys (D., Ind.) as Judiciary chairman, and the members of the committee to give the bill a quick, favorable report.

"The disfranchisement of millions of voters because of polltax restrictions has been a political evil at all times," Murray wote. "In its effect on the morale of important sections of our country it is an obstacle to our military efforts in wartime."

As The CIO News went to press, the Judiciary Committee was being called into a meeting to consider the bill, already passed in the House. Following committee action, the bill faces a probable filibuster by polltax Senators.

Labor and progressive people who want the bill passed are urging their Senators to vote for cloture, which cuts off debate and kills the filibuster. Cloture requires a two-thirds majority, so every Senator has to be wired to act at once.

So Your Boss Contends The Cost of Living Hasn't Gone Cloud Shooting?

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—This is just for the record, in case your boss tries to give you a song and dance about how the cost of living hasn't risen as much as some people say it has. The figures are from the U. S. Office of War Information and show the comparative rise in the cost of essential items in large cities throughout the nation:

Carey, Pegler in 2-Round Bout in 'Ladies Home Journal' Articles

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—A two-round bout in print between CIO Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey and Westbrook "I-hate-'em" Pegler will be a feature of the October issue of the Ladies' Home Journal.

Title of the article will be, "Is Pegler Fair?" Carey's answer of course is "no," and he sets out to prove it with testimony that the poison pen columnist finds difficult to answer except by his usual invective.

Carey points out that Pegler tells all that is bad about labor and practically nothing that is good.

"Despite Pegler," Carey wrote, "employers and unionists are learning to live together and like it. The diehards who still seek to invoke the old weapons against unions are a dwindling tribe. As collective bargaining becomes firmly intrenched, as employers recognize that unions are here to stay and have an authentic contribution to make to American life, the conflict and turnmoil which have frequently marred the industrial scene will diminsh.

"Meanwhile, we have a war to win. Without pretending that the record has been spotless, I am ready to defend the war achievements of trade-unionists against those of any other group in the nation.

SACRIFICES UNTOLD

"Union men have taken a beating from the Peglers of the press; the sacrifices they have made—the toll of industrial accidents, the tribulations of life in trailer camps outside war centers, the pressure of lengthened work weeks—have rarely been recited.

"Less than 1 per cent of war production has been impaired by strikes. We have accepted drastic controls on wages, despite continued increases in the cost of living, despite an 18 per cent increase in war profits, after taxes, in the first quarter of this year over the same period in 1942.

"These are the truths about organized labor that Pegler never tells."

DRAGS IN JOHN L.

In reply, Pegler drags in everyone from Mrs. Roosevelt to John L. Lewis. He blames Carey for never taking the initiative against two racketeers in the AFL—obviously beyond the control of a CIO official.

In typical "peglereze," the Scripps-Howard columnist claims that some CIO unions have "reduced the worker to the status of the coyote, the coon and the skunk, paying a bounty for every scalp that the organizers brought in."

In proof of Pegler's anti-labor bias, Carey said:

"Between February 1, 1943 and April 30, 48 of Pegler's columns were published in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Twenty-two embodied attacks on real or imagined crimes of organized labor. None criticized business or industrial leaders."

An added attraction to the Carey-Pegler bout is a three-page picture spread of the Carey family, with the Journal choosing him as typical of the new ranks of labor.

White-Collar Workers' Pay 35% Below War Par, Says Office Union

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—The low-paid white-collar worker is the war's forgotten man, and needs a 35 per cent increase in salary to make up the difference between his often frozen pay check and the rapidly rising cost of living.

That was the statement made this week by Pres. Lewis Merrill of the United Office & Professional Workers in a printed discussion of a "Salary Policy to Win the War," which called for relaxation of the Little Steel formula to permit an upward adjustment of pay scales.

Merrill pointed to the fact that the real wages of "non-manufacturing workers, including salaried workers, have dropped 2.9 per cent since January, 1941. He said that the unduly heavy sacrifice being borne by the white-collar group is creating conditions which are against the national interest and which are a serious threat to war production.

To meet this acute situation, the UOPWA's chief proposal is the relaxation of the Little Steel formula to permit a general increase of approximately 35 per cent for salaried employes.

Merrill pointed out that the spread between white-collar pay and the increased cost of living developed far before the Little Steel formula went into effect.

The union also recommended that a white-collar division be set up by the War Labor Board to deal with the special problems of this type of worker.

CIO Electrical Union Fights Anti-Semitism

New York, Sept. 25—How a militant CIO union fought anti-Semitism in a vital New England war plant employing 25,000 workers is told in the current issue of New Currents, Anglo-Jewish monthly.

The union was the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, which called two special meetings to show the workers, mostly Catholic, that anti-Semitism, reaction and fascism are all cut from the same bolt of cloth.

Following distribution of anti-Jewish poems in the shop, the UE Workers' Council not only passed a resolution providing for the expulsion from the union of members connected with publication and distribution of the material, but also took pains to point out that:

Anti-Semitism is tied up with attacks on Catholics, with attacks on Negroes, with attacks on labor, with attacks on political minorities, and with attacks on the win-the-war program of the Roosevelt administration.

Wallace Visit

Chicago, Sept. 25—Members of Local 20, United Retail, Wholesale & Dry Goods Store Employes of America were still talking this week about Vice-President Wallace's visit to the union headquarters during his tour of this area last week, following his widely heralded speech before a mass meeting here.

Milk Price Hike Seen As U. S. Threat

Washington, Sept. 25—Strong protest against a threatened rise in milk prices in this area was sent this week by Sidney R. Katz, CIO Council secretary-treasurer, to Secretary of Agriculture Claude A. Wickard.

Katz's protest was called forth by a persistent drive on the part of milk producers to jack up prices in recent weeks. The drive was seen as a wedge for a nationwide increase. It would add further profits to an already huge "take" that the big dairy associations are making.

Katz pointed out that milk is an essential food not only for children but also for adult war workers. He urged the use of subsidies to protect both the consumer and the farmer and to keep up health standards.

The big producers have been damning subsidies as a means of holding down prices, largely, though not admittedly, because subsidies help the smaller and higher-cost producer when properly administered.

Meantime, OPA's new general manager, Chester Bowles, told a press conference that a milk price rise would be "calamitous" and would upset the whole price stabilization and rollback program.

'Mobilize Women to Back War'

Washington, Sept. 25—The job of union wives is to mobilize women for political action and to back the men on the offensive fronts, the CIO Womens Auxiliaries declare in the call to the third annual conference issued this week.

The conference will take place in Philadelphia, Nov. 1, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel at the same time that the CIO holds its sixth convention.

"The Congress of Womens Auxiliaries of the CIO recognizes the important tasks our women must assume in this coming year," the call says. "Our goal is, in the words of President Murray, 'to reach out to the millions of unorganized women in our CIO homes and stimulate them to action.'

"We must organize them behind the CIO program to strengthen the home front through effective price control, taxation based on ability to pay, expanded social security, and mobilize them in the national drive to elect a true people's Congress in 1944."

Army-Labor Conference

Washington, Sept. 25—The U. S. Army is going to take labor on an escorted tour through an area that up to now has been well covered by a military smoke screen.

At a conference to be held here September 27 and 28, top military leaders will tell top labor leaders just what is expected from the Army's partners on the production front.

The labor delegation will be headed by Presidents Philip Murray of CIO and William Green of AFL.

Scheduled to address the conference are Under-Sec. of War Robert P. Patterson and General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff. In a call to the meeting, Patterson said:

"As our troops begin large-scale operations on the continent of Europe, we are calling together the representatives of those on whom we depend for the instruments of war so that they may know precisely the military job that lies ahead."

CIO Takes Army Aid Plea To Congress

CIO's demand for a decent standard of living for wives and kids of Servicemen was formally presented to Congress this week, while signs increased that some Congressmen are anxious to dodge the issue by favoring a measly $7 a month increase over present low dependency allowances. CIO's program would raise allowances for a wife with two children from the current $72 a month to $120.

UAW Biggest Union in Nation And Still Growing

DETROIT, Oct. 2—The CIO United Auto Workers Union—largest in the nation—flexed a collective muscle this week as it heard a pre-convention report by Sec.-Treas. George F. Addes that the UAW is in the healthiest financial condition of its history, with more than a million members in good standing as of July, 1943.

The giant of American labor has enjoyed a growth second to none, Addes reported. He pointed to the fact that the 1943 membership exceeds by more than four times that of 1940.

Addes said the union's total assets amount to $1,622,622.85, with nearly $700,000 invested in U. S. War Bonds.

Submitting details for consideration of the membership, Addes said: "Although the financial condition of our Union is of vital concern to every member, winning the war must continue to remain uppermost in all our thoughts.

"The pledge made by free American labor to outproduce the slave labor of the Axis powers has been more than kept. Voluntarily adhering to their no-strike pledge, the workers of America have been at their benches or machines turning out the weapons of war.

"War production output has been limited solely by the ability of management and government to supply the necessary machines and raw materials. By the sweat of their brows, the workers have made this Nation the arsenal of democracy.

"Whatever may be the false words of the propagandists, there can be no conflict between the interests of labor and the interests of the war. For labor's whole fate is bound up with the fate of the nation in the present conflict.

BACKS FDR

"Without labor's power there can be no victory, and without victory labor would face annihilation. Those who would set the cause of victory over against that of labor betray both labor and the Nation.

"We owe our fullest support to those who are earnestly striving to equitably stabilize the nation's economy, place our country on a 100 per cent war footing and thus make possible a speedy and decisive victory.

"We must continue to give wholehearted support to our Commander-in-Chief, President Roosevelt, a leader who has repeatedly demonstrated that he has the interests of the common people at heart and is out to once and for all completely smash the war lords and tyrants of Germany and Japan."

UAW Wins Martin Poll

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2—The tightest and largest Natl. Labor Relations Board run-off vote ever held in this state was listed officially this week as a victory for the CIO United Auto Workers Union. Involved was the right to represent the thousands of workers employed at the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft factory — biggest manufacturing plant in Maryland.

Final tally, as announced by the NLRB, was:

UAW-CIO ..... 50.46 per cent.
No union ..... 49.2 per cent.

R. J. THOMAS
Fights Arrest for Soliciting CIO Membership

Thomas vs Fascist State Law—First Round Is Draw

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 2—Citizens of this city were treated to a ring-side seat this week at a win-the-war fight by the head of the largest union in America against a fascist-like state law that prohibits solicitation of union membership without a license.

The lineup was the State vs. Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, and the first round was a draw.

The battle started when Thomas solicited membership in the Oil Workers Intl. Union at a rally held in nearby Pelly. The State clipped him with a left by arresting him, and a Texas judge added a right cross by fining him $100 and sentencing him to three days in jail.

Thomas squared up the round by furnishing $400 bail, to walk the streets a free man. He said that he will challenge the constitutionality of the license law right up to the highest court of the land, if necessary.

The UAW-CIO leader's address was a deliberate challenge of the constitutionality of the statute. Outcome of the fight will affect similar legislation in four other states: Colorado, Kansas, Alabama and Florida.

Criticizing the law, Thomas said: "We're not going to let any selfish interests here in America—in Texas or anywhere else—sneak behind our backs and put on the people of this country the same kind of restrictions and bans that Hitler put on the German people.

"And we're going to fight it tooth and nail, wherever that happens. Because we know if it can happen in the legislature of Texas and several other states, it can happen in Michigan. And if it can happen in the states, then it can happen in congress—and even if we lick Hitler, we will have lost the very things we are fighting for."

CIO Farm Union Officer to Ship Out

Chicago, Oct. 2—Gerald Fields, secretary-treasurer of the CIO Farm Equipment Workers, will enter the U. S. Maritime Service for training in the officers' candidate school, the union announced this week.

FD Blasts Patterson, Hearst, McCormick Press As Anti-War

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Hearst-Patterson-McCormick yellow press journalism was placed virtually in the category of aid to the Axis this week by no less a person than the nation's Commander-in-Chief, President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He did not directly label Intl. News Service (Hearst), the Washington TIMES-HERALD, the N. Y. DAILY NEWS, and the Chicago TRIBUNE as disruptive propaganda rags, but he made it plain in a press conference that he agreed with editorial opinion which thus described the gutter sheets.

The occasion was the fuss raised by these papers in particular around the rumored transfer of General George C. Marshall. Discussing rumors published by Intl. News Service, President Roosevelt read them to correspondents, and then read from the text of an editorial in the N. Y. HERALD TRIBUNE, which contained the meat of the criticism. The editorial said:

"The mixture of unauthenticated 'news,' rumor, guesswork and innuendo which has exploded a teapot tempest around the figure of General Marshall is a brilliant example, first, of how to obstruct the conduct of the war and, second, of the vices of that whispering - gallery journalism into which we seem to be sinking. . . ."

This editorial was followed by another, published the next day, which declared:

"The best newspaper men resent this sea of hint and humor in which they are compelled to work if they are to fulfill their function. The mediocre ones swim along in it, too often without realizing how STONE ON NO. 4—SET OCT. 1 insubstantial it is in reality.

EXPLOITATION CHARGED

"And the worst and most irresponsible deliberately exploit it—as the Patterson and McCormick newspapers are constantly doing—to create the maximum of division and obstruction and baseless suspicion in the conduct of the war and of affairs.

"The result is such an episode as that concerning the chief of staff . . . conditions are partly at fault; Washington officialism is very, very badly at fault. The press and radio are not without blame. But there will be no real cure until the public learns to demand facts which are facts and not simply the echoes from a whispering gallery."

Rubber Workers Back FDR To KO Axis

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 2—Another of CIO's largest unions this week backed President Franklin D. Roosevelt for a fourth term in office. Support came from the United Rubber Workers, who this week concluded their convention here.

By a three-to-one majority on show of hands, the delegates voted to sustain President Sherman H. Dalrymple's power to remove members who initiate work stoppages. Supporters of his position demanded that he be upheld to make labor's no-strike pledge truly effective.

Urging the delegates to take a clear-cut stand on the issue, Dalrymple said:

"If you want officers with responsibility but no powers, if you want a union that permits stoppages and slowdowns, then get those kind of officers but I'm not one of them."

SUPPORT FDR

In other actions the convention pledged full support to President Roosevelt "to help you carry out your pledge of an 'unconditional surrender' of Germany, Italy, Japan and their satellites," but took the position that the union should not make a direct call for the immediate opening of a second front.

The parley endorsed proposals for collaboration of labor unions of the United Nations, and instructed union departments to combat all racial discrimination.

Dalrymple was re-elected for his ninth consecutive term as president. Also re-elected were Vice-Pres. L. S. Buckmaster and Sec.-Treas. Charles E. Lanning.

Elected to the general executive board were: H. R. Lloyd, Ed L. Barnes, Joseph Mackenzie, J. T. Rupert, Harold House, W. I. Vaught, Thomas F. Burns and Cheorge Cummins.

NO. 1 CANDIDATE of New York's CIO is Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers and a former City Councilman. Mike is running again for the Council, and New York's 500,000 CIO members are working to get him in.

State, County $1,800 A Year Minimum Is CIO Demand

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2—A general $1,800 yearly minimum for local government workers was demanded in the program of the State, County & Municipal Workers, drawn up at the convention held here last week.

Mayor George J. Harter, blind mayor of Akron, Ohio, speaking in support of decent minimum salaries for public employes, pointed out that Akron bonds were sold at a premium carrying the lowest interest rates in the entire country.

"I bring this out," he said, "to show you that it is possible to pay decent wages to those providing the public services and still satisfy those who pay the bill."

In a resolution calling for a second front, the convention voted to "urge our government to speed the day when our American boys, together with our British allies, now poised on the shores of England, strike across the channel to deal a death blow at the heart of Nazi Germany and assure a speedy and complete victory over the Axis."

The convention also went on record as opposing the Hatch Act which forbids government employes to take part in political activity. The party indorsed the CIO's political action program.

The no-strike pledge was reaffirmed and the "take-it-and-like-it-or-quit" employers who aimed to provoke strikes by their attitude were condemned as "traitors to our nation."

In a resolution on international unity, the convention instructed the national officers "to establish friendly relations with the Government Workers Unions of Great Britain, the Soviet Union and other United Nations," and asked that CIO President Philip Murray be notified "that we support his actions for world labor unity and compliment him on his leadership in this direction."

President Abram Flaxer and Secretary-Treasurer Henry W. Wenning were re-elected without opposition.

Ship Union Re-Elects Green, Van Gelder; Hits Connally Act

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—President John Green and Secretary-Treasurer Philip Van Gelder were unanimously re-elected at the closing session of the Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers' convention held here last week.

John J. Grogan, Hoboken, N. J., was named vice-president to succeed George M. Wright of Kearny, N. J., who declined to run for re-election. Wright was chosen to serve on the new general executive board.

Repeal of the Smith-Connally Act was urged by CIO Vice President, Allan S. Haywood, in a speech to the delegates. Declaring that employers as well as labor had found out the Act did not prevent strikes, Haywood said that if labor wanted to take advantage of that law, it could force every industry into the government's hands.

The convention voted to uphold the action of the executive board in removing Irving Velson from the offices he holds in the union on the basis of an amendment to the constitution passed last year, barring Nazis, Fascists and Communists from holding office. The vote was 402½ to 203½. Velson denied the charge that he was a Communist.

Cowan's Son Killed in Action

Washington, Oct. 2—This is the kind of a story a guy hates to write because it is about a swell fellow who got killed fighting the Axis.

The fellow's name was James Cowan. He was 23 years old. His father, Nathan Cowan, heads the CIO legislative department.

Only last April young Cowan visited his father at CIO headquarters. He told of 14 months that he'd fought the Nazis as a master sergeant in Uncle Sam's Air Corps. In his rather shy way, he made friends with everyone in the CIO office.

This week his father was notified of James' death. He is survived also by his mother and by three brothers who are fighting the Axis, and who can be counted upon to repay Jim's death bullet by bullet in the march on Berlin.

Alabama CIO Re-Elects Beddow

Birmingham, Ala., October 2 — Noel R. Beddow, regional CIO director, this week was re-elected as president of the Alabama State Industrial Union Council, at the organization's fifth annual convention which ended here late last week.

The convention also elected 13 vice-presidents. The Council is expected to fill out its official family with approval by the Executive Board of Beddow's re-appointment of Carey Halgler as secretary-treasurer.

The convention opened on a win-the-war theme, with Beddow warning that labor must eliminate all stoppages in the interests of victory. He called for a place at the peace table for CIO Pres. Philip Murray.

So much time in the two-day session was taken by delegates to discuss organization problems that they voted to refer to the Executive Board resolutions dealing with absenteeism, the no-strike pledge, lowering of the voting age to 18 years, and the social security bill.

Murray Hails Defense Of Warsaw

Washington, Oct. 2—The unsung workers who gave their blood and lives defending Warsaw were hailed this week by CIO Pres. Philip Murray in a broadcast beamed at Poland by the Office of War Information.

Singling out for special praise one of the city's union leaders, Mieczyslaw Niedzialkowski, Murray said:

"Today, four years have passed since the defense of Warsaw came to a close. On this day, I should like in the name of American labor, to pay tribute to the anonymous defenders of Warsaw; to its splendid inhabitants; to the workers who were led to the defense of Warsaw by the immortal Mieczyslaw Niedzialowski!

"The defense of Warsaw became —next to the defense of Madrid, London, Leningrad, Sevastopol and Stalingrad—one of the most splendid symbols of heroism and sacrifice."

Missouri CIO Backs FDR, Urges Win-War Political Action

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 2—Another representative group of CIO leaders, speaking as elected delegates of the rank and file, this week joined the growing list of CIO organizations which have urged that President Roosevelt be elected for a fourth term.

Latest support came in the form of unanimous endorsement from close to 350 delegates attending the annual convention of the Missouri State Industrial Union Council, which ended here last week.

The FDR resolution declared that "Hitler's friends are making last desperate efforts to defeat the unconditional surrender program of the United Nations," and are seeking to disunite the war effort by "disruptive attacks on the president."

The convention placed considerable emphasis on practical steps for carrying out the national CIO political action program. Steps were taken to raise funds immediately from the CIO locals, and a resolution was adopted advising Sidney Hillman "of the eagerness of the CIO in Missouri to cooperate with his committee and its representatives for this region."

The convention called for legislation to assure every soldier's family of a minimum income of $30 a week for the first dependent and $10 a week for each other dependent, without deduction from the soldier's pay.

Other resolutions: Reaffirmed the no-strike pledge; demanded repeal of the "infamous Smith-Connally act"; called for a representative body of labor in the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union and other United Nations; urged President Roosevelt to reorganize the State Department and remove undemocratic elements; asked dismissal of Attorney-General Francis Biddle; urged encouragement to democratic forces in Italy and demanded full right of Italian workers to form trade unions; and asked repeal of the Chinese exclusion act.

The convention called upon OWM Director James F. Byrnes to carry out his job of over-all planning "in consultation with a representative committee of labor, management and agriculture as called for by the Pepper-Kilgore-Tolan bill." Byrnes was censured for giving encouragement to those in Congress who want to increase the tax load on the low incomes.

The convention urged defeat of the Austin-Wadsworth compulsory labor bill.

Lloyd McBride of the United Steelworkers was re-elected president, and James A. Davis, United Auto Workers, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Bittner 'Talks Turkey' To Management

New York, Oct. 2—A plea for labor-management cooperation was combined with sharp criticism of management's stand on the Smith-Connally law in a speech this week made by Van A. Bittner, assistant to the president of the United Steelworkers of America, before a conference of the American Management Association.

Bittner declared that the sponsors of the Smith-Connally bill deluded the American people into believing that it would prevent strikes. He pointed out that experience has shown that the law "is actually an invitation to every worker in America to break the no-strike pledge of organized labor and strike on 30 days notice."

Bittner criticized the stand of management's representatives on the War Labor Board against the union shop, and declared that, "Management should not only recognize that labor has the right to organize for the purpose of genuine collective bargaining but management should enter whole-heartedly with labor in bringing unionism and collective bargaining into every industry in America.

"Labor's Political Action" is CIO's new pamphlet containing statements of the national committee set up to organize for a real victory Congress now and in 1944. Order from Publicity Dept., CIO, 718 Jackson Pl., NW., Washington 6, D. C.

CIO Blood Donors Fight Segregation

Washington, Oct. 2—CIO blood donors from national headquarters here don't like the racial nonsense of segregating blood plasma, and told the Red Cross so in making a mass blood donation this week.

"Since segregation has absolutely no basis in biology or any other science, we urge you to abandon this practice," the CIO employes said in a statement presented to the Red Cross at the time of the organized donation.

Security 'Must' For U.S. Unity, Wagner Says

New York, Oct. 2—A united nation to win the war and meet post-war problems is a must in the "armament of a democracy," Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) said in a recent radio speech urging support for the amendments to the Social Security Act now before Congress.

"There is no nationwide program touching the lives of millions of our people which is so well understood and widely accepted as the principle of social security," Wagner said.

"Every test shows that the extension and improvement of that plan now along the lines of this bill, (the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill) meet with overwhelming public approval.

"If you believe, as some mistakenly do, that the end of the war is in sight, then there is every reason for immediate action. If you hold with our responsible military leaders that a hard struggle lies ahead, then it is likewise essential to make an immediate start."

Wagner's appeal, broadcast over the Blue network, came as strong forces in Congress were working to delay even consideration of the proposed changes in the Security Act.

New Orleans Forms Political Unity Group

New Orleans, Oct. 2—The United Labor Committee of Louisiana, first group ever to combine the CIO, AFL and Railway Brotherhoods for political action, has laid out preliminary plans to carry its program to all affiliated groups, according to the New Orleans News Digest, labor paper.

Other bona fide groups of organized labor will be invited to join the organization.

CIO Convention Schedule

Washington, Oct. 2—October is a favorite convention month. Here is a list of CIO conventions scheduled for this month, according to information received at National CIO headquarters:

United Automobile Workers, Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 4.

Packinghouse Workers, Chicago, Oct. 13.

Indiana CIO Council, Ft. Wayne, Ind., Oct. 15.

Transport Workers Union, New York City, Oct. 20.

California CIO Council, Fresno, Calif., Oct. 21.

Kentucky, Ashland, Ky., Oct. 23.

New York State CIO Council, Buffalo, Oct. 29.

Food Subsidy Fight Still Rages to Cut Costs, Aid Farmers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—More funds for subsidies and support prices to help hold the cost of living in line and to boost food output will be asked from Congress in the next few weeks, according to indications from Pres. Roosevelt and administration leaders.

The request will come with a bid for $500,000,000 for the Commodity Credit Corp., U. S. agency that finances large scale purchase and re-sale of food products.

It was also reported that Pres. Roosevelt will soon send Congress a message pointing out the need for subsidies and incentive payments both to hold living costs down and push food production up.

The CCC is already starting a subsidy program to head off an increase in the price of milk, which the dairy monopolies have been clamoring for all summer. The big dairies, however, don't want subsidies, since these enable their smaller competitors to stay in business and to increase their output. Milk to them is something to be sold at a profit, not drunk by children. The less milk, the higher the profit.

Testifying at the House Ways and Means Committee, which handles the appropriations, U. S. Food Administrator Marvin Jones explained that the $500,000,000 would be used to give farmers higher prices in 1944 without passing the extra burden on to the consumer.

It is this point that has the "farm bloc" boys, who represent monopoly, not the working farmer, so excited. Their idea of the proper price structure is straight across-the-board increases in living costs, and to hell with inflation.

Earlier this session, labor, and especially the CIO, put up a strong fight against the farm bloc plans to wreck the CCC by denying subsidy funds, and won a partial though significant victory. The same fight will have to be made again.

Nazi Prisoners Used to Try To Break CIO Union

ELWOOD, Ind., Oct. 2—This is one for the book! An American employer is using Nazi prisoners in his canning plant to try to break a CIO union local which is supporting the war against fascism 100 per cent!

The plant is the local Frazier Packing Co., which is using 100 prisoners to relieve a "labor shortage" which the United Cannery, Agricultural Packing & Allied Workers Union claims is non-existant.

The Union said that it will press unfair labor practice charges against the firm, through the Natl. Labor Relations Board, contending that local union labor which has been available to the management has been turned down in favor of Nazi employes.

UCAPAWA officials said that the "super-men" from the fatherland are not only treated to special consideration as employes, but also apparently are allowed to scrawl expressions of their distorted philosophy on company property.

Company property has been decorated with swastikas, iron crosses, and slogans such as, "Heil Hitler," and "Germany Today, Tomorrow and Forever."

The Union said that the Nazis work eight hours a day, are given a five minute rest period every hour, get one hour for lunch, and are treated to fresh tomatoes and catsup. American union workers slave 12, 14 and up to 17 hours per day, get half an hour for lunch, and are treated to no "tomato surprises."

The Nazis were brought to the plant when it was expected that the local crop would be large enough to require their services. When the crop proved to be smaller than expected, the Nazis still got the jobs, despite the fact that there were plenty of good Americans waiting to fill them.

Be Kind To War Profiteers Department

DENVER, Oct. 2 — Frankest statement of the month for big business apologists of war profiteering came this week from Chariman Maurice H. Karker of the War Dept. price adjustment board, which handles renegotiations of war contracts.

According to the Natl. Union Farmer, Karker told a meeting of the Associated Industries in Cleveland recently that:

"In reaching a conclusion in renegotiation proceedings we allow an adequate margin of profit, plus a margin of generosity, plus a margin for good measure. No manufacturer can say the plan is anything but fair."

Conn. In Politics And How!

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 2—Labor political action is a success here, as seen in the report of the United Labor Legislative Conference which has CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods in it.

The committee has sent out 10,000 copies of an open letter to Rep. Compton, one of the state's bitterest anti-war and anti-FDR Congressmen, is running an all-out register to vote drive, and is holding a mass conference on further action here Oct. 4.

Scratch One Polltaxer

Washington, Oct. 2—Scratch one polltaxer—but don't get so excited that you forget all about the other ones in Congress.

The scratch is Eugene Cox (polltaxer, Ga.) who was finally forced by outraged public opinion to resign as chairman of the war agency baiting committee that's been trying to gum up the Federal Communications Commission.

EUGENE COX
His Resignation Caused No Sorrow

The Cox committee was set up by Congress earlier this session to enable Cox to do two things: 1) hamper the work of a vital war agency and 2) get even with the FCC for turning up evidence that Cox had taken an illegal $2,500 fee from a radio station that had a case before the Commission. Congressmen are forbidden by law to take such fees.

There's a catch to the technical K. O. on Cox, however, since it is reported here that another polltaxer, Rep. Colmer of Mississippi, will take his place.

Knocking Gene Cox off one perch is good. Knocking off all the polltaxers would be better—and the way to do that is to pass HR 7, the polltax repeal bill now in the Senate.

Hey, You FCC Heads—Take a Look at This!

New York, Oct. 2—The big radio stations here don't want the people to register to vote.

They've shown their distaste for the voters by flatly refusing a CIO Council request for paid time to urge people to register, which must be done this week.

When it was pointed out to one of them that the time would be bought and used for public service—something the radio chains frequently talk about before the Federal Communications Commission—the answer was, "Write us a letter." The letter, of course, couldn't get to the station in time before registration ended.

Stations involved in the refusal are WEAF, WJZ, WOR, WABC, WNEW and WHN. Seven smaller stations (WINS, WLIB, WBNX, WMCA, WHOM, WQXR and WEVD) took the CIO's money—which amounted to nearly $1000.

CIO Takes Army Aid Plea To Congress

BY C. W. FOWLER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—CIO's demand for decent living standards for the wives and kids of servicemen was formally presented to Congress this week, while signs increased that certain Congressmen are anxious to dodge the issue in favor of a miserly increase of $7 a month over present low allowances.

The demand was made under tragic circumstances, for Nathan Cowan, CIO legislative representative who was to present it in testimony to the House Military Committee, learned the day of his scheduled testimony of the death of one of his four sons in military service. It was presented instead by Tom Owens, legislative representative for the United Rubber Workers, who has a son of his own in the Air Corps.

CIO support went to the bill (HR 3343) put in by Rep. George Sadowski (D., Mich.). Sadowski's bill increases the basic allowance to a wife with two children from the present $72 a month to $120 a month.

The Sadowski bill is also supported by the CIO Women's Auxiliaries, who were not permitted to testify by Rep. Andrew J. May (D., Ky.), chairman of the Committee. The Natl. Lawyers Guild also announced its support.

WAR MEASURE

"This bill is a war measure," Owens said. "No argument of cost or added expense can be legitimately used against it. The only question we have to face is this: Shall the government of the United States afford the wives and children of its front-line fighters a minimum of decent living?"

According to testimony prepared by the CIO Auxiliaries, the $120 a month for a wife and two children "is a very modest standard of living," that allows only 17 cents per person per meal, $25 a month for rent, one warm coat every three years, $3.50 for medical care, etc.

Yet even this modest budget seems too much for certain Congressmen, who have been reported as saying that the increases would "spoil" soldiers' families. Commenting on this, the testimony prepared for Cowan said:

"It is hard for me to believe that anyone could make so cynical and heartless a statement. It is impossible to believe that these gentlemen would say such things to a man in the armed forces."

SADOWSKI'S TESTIMONY

In testifying on his bill, Rep. Sadowski pointed out that Canada gives $99 a month to mothers with two children, which is in addition to whatever allotment the soldier makes from his own pay.

Sadowski and Cowan pointed out that the bill would strengthen both the home front and the fighting fronts, which, as President Roosevelt has pointed out, cannot be separated.

"In this bill," Cowan said, "the Congress has an opportunity for quick and decisive action that will help to win the war and will greatly enhance the prestige of our government, including the Congress itself.

"It has a chance to help the brave women and children of our heroic fighters for freedom. It seems to us, gentlemen, that the Congress could scarcely ask a better opportunity. In the name of the CIO, therefore, I urge that speedy and favorable action be taken on this bill."

Quick action is needed for support of Sadowski's bill, because the bill that passed the Senate last July (S 1279) with a stingy increase of only $7 a month is receiving strong support from the War Dept. and from a number of Congressmen.

Letters and wires should go to Rep. May, chairman of the House Military Committee, and to your own Congressmen, demanding action on HR 3343.

Vets Hear Murray Pledge On Army Aid

New York, Oct. 2—The Veterans of Foreign Wars convention heard this week from CIO Pres. Philip Murray that the most militant section of the labor movement is taking a leading part in the campaign to increase the allowances granted to the dependents of servicemen.

Murray assured the veterans that the CIO's interests "run beyond the interests of its own members."

He said that the CIO also has laid plans to help protect the jobs of men returning from service, and will urge the United States to provide weekly allowances for disabled veterans and their families and full protection for the kin of killed or wounded soldiers.

The veterans took a stand like CIO's in urging "relentless and unremitting conduct of the war" until the unconditional surrender of the Axis. A resolution said:

"We favor nothing short of unconditional surrender. We demand nothing less than a complete disarming of our enemies when victory has come."

Polltax Stalling

Labor and all progressive win-the-war forces are keeping close watch on the anti-polltax bill passed by the House and now before the Senate.

There is no question that the vast majority of the American people want this vital war measure passed at once. There is also little doubt that a majority of the Senators will vote for it, if the issue is squarely placed before them.

The only hope of the polltax clique therefore lies in stalling, confusing the issues, parliamentary finagling and backstairs intrigue.

The three chief dangers to the bill are that it will be bottled up in the Senate Judiciary Committee; filibustered on the floor; or dropped through some "gentlemen's agreement."

The recent decision of the Judiciary Committee to delay reporting out the bill until hearings are held on its constitutionality, is both disappointing and dangerous.

Prolonged hearings of this kind were held last year and led to a favorable committee decision.

All such delays play into the hands of the polltaxers, who hope to keep the anti-polltax bill from the floor until near the end of the session, so they can again filibuster it to death.

Let the members of the Judiciary Committee hear from you again and again, until they favorably report the bill. They are Senators Van Nuys (Ind.), chairman; O'Mahoney (Wyo.), Chandler (Ky.), Austin (Vt.), Burton (Ohio), Connally (Tex.), Danaher (Conn.), Hatch (N. M.), Kilgore (W. Va.), Langer (N. Dak.), McCarran (Nev.), Murdock (Utah), McFarland (Ariz.) and Wiley (Wis.).

And be sure to urge your Senators to vote for cloture to kill the filibuster which the polltaxers will undoubtedly attempt when the measure comes to the floor—and to be on guard against any backstair agreements to sidetrack the anti-polltax bill.

CIO And Servicemen

CIO's concern for the welfare of servicemen and their families was emphasized by Pres. Philip Murray in a recent speech before the Veterans of Foreign Wars in New York.

With a million of its members in the armed forces, the CIO has a direct obligation to represent and advance their interests.

But more than this, the CIO has always taken the lead in promoting the broadest interests of all working people, whether in uniform or overalls, and whether or not they are actually members of its organization.

Furthermore, because it has made winning this war its No. 1 task, the CIO regards the welfare, morale and security of our fighting men and their families as one of the first goals for which it must work.

That is why the CIO has taken the initiative in promoting the Sadowski bill, to increase the present starvation allowances for servicemen's dependents to something approaching a security and decency level.

At present, a soldier's wife with two children gets only $72 a month, which is not even enough for the barest living. Under the Sadowski bill, this would be increased to $120—with $55 for the wife, $35 for the first child and $30 for each additional child.

The CIO is also taking steps, as Murray told the Veterans, to protect the jobs of all men returning from service, and is pushing for early passage of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill to assure them of more social security.

It will urge the government to provide educational opportunities for veterans, weekly allowances for disabled veterans and their families, and full protection for dependents of killed and wounded soldiers.

Hearings have begun on the Sadowski bill before the House Military Affairs Committee, which is also considering a bill passed by the Senate for no more than a $7 increase in allowance for a serviceman's wife and two children.

Write to Chairman May of the Committee and to your own Congressman urging passage of the Sadowski bill (HR 3343), instead of the miserable Senate bill. That's a practical way to show real solidarity with our fighting men.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

DO YOU realize you own quite a bunch of steel plants, aluminum plants, oil refineries, rubber plants—and a few other trifles (besides your household belongings), such as some 520 aircraft plants costing close to three billion dollars?

Yes, we do mean you, buddy. So don't look around to see if we're talking past you to some Rockefeller or Morgan.

You're not the sole owner, it's true. But you're part-owner, along with millions of other ordinary Americans.

The money we've all paid in taxes has gone into buying, building and equipping these and many other war plants—and Uncle Sam has spent some tens of billions of our money for such purposes.

They're our property. The profit-proud corporations that operate them are just our agents, managing plants that don't belong to them.

★ ★ ★

You'd never guess this, to listen to the big-business crowd talking about our property.

They're already trying to decide for us how we're going to dispose of our plants after the war.

We mustn't use them to compete with their plants, they say, nor sell them to new companies that would compete with them.

We must either close them down and take the financial loss—not to mention the loss of jobs to those of us who are employed in our plants; or we must sell them for a song to the monopolies, so they can do their own closing down.

★ ★ ★

How can we protect our huge investment in all this industrial equipment? How can we avoid being gypped by the big-business crowd?

How can we make sure our property is used for our benefit, during as well as after the war—to produce the maximum of war material now, to produce the maximum of consumers' goods after the war, and to maintain maximum employment for American working people?

We have the power to elect the board of directors that decides what shall be done with our property—and that's the Congress of the United States.

We must demand that the present Congress require maximum efficiency in the operation of all America's industrial equipment for winning the war. That calls for national planning and centralized administration of all aspects of production.

Then we must see to it that those minority stockholders in America, the big-business, profits-first, public-be-damned crowd, don't seize control of the next Congress.

What can we do about this right now? Well, for one thing, keep close tab on your present Congressmen, and be sure to register to vote!

★ ★ ★

Here are some more reasons for keeping your eye on Congress:

There's quite a bunch there that want to take milk from your children and food from your table.

They're the high-cost-of-living crowd, who demand higher prices and higher profits, regardless of inflation.

For instance, they're fighting for higher milk prices right now.

The administration wants to give the farmer a better price for his milk, but to keep the price down for consumers. It has a program of subsidies to do just this.

But the HCL Congressmen—who have repeatedly managed to dominate Congress—insist on higher prices for consumers and stubbornly oppose subsidies.

★ ★ ★

Then there are Congressmen who say they're afraid the families of our fighting men will be "spoiled," if they get anything approaching enough to live on, while their breadwinner is away risking his life for us.

So they bitterly oppose the Sadowski bill, backed by the CIO, to increase the present miserable allowances for soldiers' wives and children.

★ ★ ★

Keep your eye, too, on those Congressmen who falsely claim the wealthy are taxed to the limit, and who are plotting every kind of tax to take food from the tables of essential war workers.

And don't forget the polltaxers. One way to restore Congress to the people is to give the right to vote to all citizens. But there's deliberate stalling in the Senate on the anti-polltax bill already passed by the House.

This is our country. We own much more of what's in it than most of us imagine. Congress is supposed to be ours too. Let's throw our weight about a bit more and make Congress really represent us.

Labor Leaders Learn:

You Can Bet Your Bottom Dollar On U. S. Engineers

BY FRED d'AVILA

"You can bet your bottom dollar,
"Where's there trouble they will holler,
"For the 'castles on the collar,'
"For the corps of Engineers!
"Men to build their bridges,
"Guys to blast the ridges,
"Heady, ready rough-necks, fighting Engineers!"

That, brothers and sisters, is a bald understatement of the impression made this week by a rambunctious gang of U. S. fighters on more than 200 of the nation's leading labor leaders and industrialists, who gathered at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, to hear what makes the Army "tick" and to learn what they could do to help make it march even faster for the promised invasion of Europe.

The industrialists and labor leaders—the latter led by Presidents Philip Murray of CIO and William Green of AFL—heard a lot of speeches that gave them the score on the tremendous amount of production needed for victory. About 10,000 words were pounded into their ears about the strategic demands of this global war.

The orators—like Under-Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson and General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff—knew their stuff. But the real clincher of the two day conference was the demonstration of actual warfare that shocked the ear drums of the visitors and caused the hair to bristle on the backs of their necks and their mouths to plop open with admiration.

They saw friendly, bungling looking tanks that have paraded up city streets turn into angry tigers, spitting fire and roaring full tilt at 50 miles an hour almost into their faces.

DARING DEMONSTRATION

They saw a daring demonstration of the guts it takes to stop these monsters. Combat engineers snaked field mines across their paths, crippling their treads. Others fired "bazookas" and rifle grenades to smash the moving pill boxes as they roared viciously at fortified positions held by our troops.

From a dozen well-placed fox holes, the U. S. engineers demolished the enemy. No tank was too tough, no risk was too much to take. The tank crews slammed their many-ton weapons against log barriers, only to find themselves hopelessly trapped and fair game for the ground troops.

The anti-tank demonstration was but a prelude to a realistic war game, the crossing of a river well fortified by enemy troops, who were entrenched in pill boxes and behind trees, and who menaced our forces with deadly cross fire from machine guns and mortars, and with bombing from the air.

EAR DRUMS SHOCKED

The softening up process was like a slap in the face to the spectators, as explosion after explosion caused huge "air pillows" to "bounce" across the river. Blast after blast shocked the ear drums. Eyes were blinking in expectation of the next shock as the visitors wondered audibly how long any enemy could take such a sustained and damaging pounding.

Suddenly, seemingly out of nowhere, the combat engineers roared into view, manning four assualt boats that churned up the river and swerved swiftly to port to make perfect landings 20 feet up the enemy held banks.

In quick succession, despite vicious counter-fire of the enemy, our troops wriggled and squirmed their way through barbed wire and into position, to pour fire and smoke bombs and hot lead into the enemy pill boxes.

300 MILES AN HOUR

Enemy planes screamed overhead, followed by the buzz of American fighters which skimmed the treetops over the visitors at 300 miles an hour in their chase to exterminate their opponents.

In the furious fire and excitement, the engineers moved with unbelievable swiftness and coordination to throw pontoon bridges across the 100-foot-wide river, to repair the heavy pontoon bridge that had been blasted by retreating troops, and to force their way across despite constant sniping.

The demonstration left the labor leaders and industrialists literally speechless for a few moments, and then the air was abuzz with admiration for the troops—the guys who'll slog it out in Europe against der Fuehrer's "supermen" and beat them man for man.

War, the visitors decided, is a damned tough business, And everyone of them, I'm sure, went away with the impression that there's nothing too much that he can contribute to the cause of victory.

U. S. Report Favors Bill To Kill Polltax

Washington, Oct. 2—The United States won a strategic victory in the war for democracy this week, but the enemies of democracy succeeded once again in putting off a final decision.

The strategic victory came with the favorable report of a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee on HR 7, the polltax repeal bill.

The postponement of the final battle on this issue came with a plan of the full Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. Van Nuys (D., Ind.) to stall the chance for a final Senate vote for another month. This was done by moving to hold a debate on the "constitutionality" of the bill, scheduled for Oct. 25.

The bill, of course, is constitutional. Hearings were held in the last Congress for 18 months on this question, and were decided in favor of the bill. The new debate, as Rep. Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) pointed out, is merely "the beginning of the filibuster," and an obvious attempt to weaken the people's demand for passage.

The "debate" will not be confined to Senators, Van Nuys announced, and the Committee to Abolish the Polltax, composed of CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhood and other organized groups, will "secure the most eminent legal talent in the country to demonstrate the constitutionality of HR 7."

Meantime, the Committee urged the people not to leave it up to the eminent legal talent alone. Keep the wires and letters pouring into your Senators; demand immediate action on HR 7 and an end to stalling.

Rent Control Wreckers Get Setback

New York, Oct. 2—Forces seeking to wreck U. S. rent control received a severe setback this week when the Office of Price Administration decided to extend enforcement to New York City.

The extension was hailed by the Greater N. Y. Industrial Union Council, which served notice on landlords that it would cooperate wholeheartedly with OPA officials in seeing that the law is enforced. A freeze of rents as of March 1, 1943, levels, will go into effect November 1.

The Council said that it will set up special machinery to fight in court every eviction or attempt at eviction of tenants who refuse to pay increases imposed above the March levels.

The Council acted when it heard that many landlords were planning to threaten eviction of tenants, using this device to jack up rents prior to the November deadline, with the hope that the higher rents might get by OPA investigations.

CIO Win-War Tax Plan Before House Committee

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—An eight-point win-the-war tax program endorsed by CIO and six other national organizations was offered to Congress here as hearings were scheduled to begin in the House Ways and Means Committee Oct. 4.

In a joint statement issued this week, President Murray; James G. Patton, head of the Farmers Union; A. F. Whitney, Railroad Trainmen; Katharine Armatage, League of Women Shoppers; Robert W. Kenny, Natl. Lawyers Guild; Elizabeth Christman, Women's Trade Union League; and William H. Hastie, Natl. Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, called for:

1. Higher income taxes on upper and middle levels, plus a $25,000 ceiling on incomes after taxes.

2. Income tax exemptions at $750 for single persons, $1,500 for married couples, with $400 for dependency.

3. Higher taxes on corporation profits, with a profit limit of four to five percent and all loopholes closed.

4. Repeal of the mis-called "victory tax."

5. Closing all loopholes such as separate returns, tax exempt securities, etc.

6. Steeper rates and lower exemptions on estate and gift taxes.

7. Steeper taxes on luxuries and non-essentials.

8. No sales tax or anything approaching a sales tax.

Meanwhile, forces favoring a sales tax and other new burdens on war workers and low income groups generally were gathering strength for a big push when hearings start.

RICH GET OFF EASY

At the same time, they plan to pass lightly over the special privileges to the rich now allowed under tax laws. Rep. Doughton, (D., N. C.) announced that the committee had decided not to discuss tax exempt bonds, separate returns and depletion allowances, which cost the country hundreds of millions a year.

A proposal to bar committee discussion of the sales tax was turned down, Doughton added. Rep. Taber, (R., N. Y.), Republican leader on the Ways and Means Committee, wants a flat 10 per cent sales tax on everything. Senator Byrd, (polltaxer, Va.) wants the same thing.

In releasing the joint program, the seven labor and progressive leaders declared:

"This program is necessary in order to siphon off the most dangerously inflationary incomes, and at the same time to prevent further inroads on the already ominously low standard of living of the men and women fighting the war in the factories, the fields and the workshops.

"Such a program, through its fairness and its adherence to democratic tax principles, will contribute immeasurably to victory on the battlefields and on the home front."

Ford Output Flop, UAW Local Says

Detroit, Oct. 2—Official spokesmen for the 35,000 workers now employed at the Ford Willow Run Bomber plant declared today in a letter to President Roosevelt that the production record in the plant is "one of the outstanding failures of this war."

The letter, signed by Glenn R. Brayton, president, and Walter Quillico, plant chairman of the Bomber Local 50, UAW-CIO, was also sent to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and to Senator Harry S. Truman, with a request for an immediate and full investigation.

The letter charged:

1. That the plant is decentralizing and shifting to other plants the manufacture of small parts and assemblies—work which it is doing best—while planning to make the plant a final assembly plant. "It is in the final assembly that the company has fallen down," the letter alleges.

2. That although the present huge plant is idle at least six hours a day, the management is constructing an additional large building without any prospect of obtaining adequate manpower.

3. That the company's labor relations and personnel policy is retarding production, and that government officials assigned to the plant are "afraid of the power of the Ford Motor Co."

A seven-point program is proposed by the union leaders to improve production in the plant. Among the proposals are that the government set up a tri-partite committee, representing government, management and labor, "to have full responsibility for the plant's efficient operation."

CIO Warehouse Victory

Baltimore, Oct. 2—A 309-to-297 run-off election victory was scored this week at the Montgomery Ward Mail Order House, bringing approximately 1,000 more workers into the fold of the Intl. Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union.

Keep Your Eye on Congress

Hearings begin this week—Oct. 4—on the new tax bill in the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Doughton (D., N. C.), chairman. The push is on for a sales tax, and must be counter-attacked at once.

On CIO's urging, the House Military Affairs Committee (Rep. May, D., Ky., chairman) is holding hearings this week on HR 3343, which increases compensation to dependents of men in the armed forces to decent living standards. (See story, page 3.)

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Sadowski (HR 3343)	Raises compensation to soldiers' wives and kids from $72 a month to $120 (wife and two children).	Hearings on in House Military Committee, with pressure for meager increase of $7 a month in bill already passed Senate (S 1279).	Wire Rep. May (chmn., House Military), all committee members and your Representative for HR 3343, against S 1279 as substitute.
Polltax repeal (HR 7)	Brings 10 million Americans into democracy.	Senate Judiciary Committee to debate "constitutionality" of bill already declared constitutional, in move to stall action. Debate set for Oct. 25.	Wire your Senators protesting this delay, demand quick action on vote, oppose filibuster by cloture rule.
Tax Bill	Your new taxes.	Hearings begin Oct. 4, House Ways and Means Committee. (Rep. Doughton, D., N. C., chmn.)	Tell your Representative and Senators: no sales taxes, no new burdens on the poor; taxes on ability to pay.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

The UAW-CIO was elected bargaining agent for the 150 employes of Johnson & Jennings Foundry, Cleveland, by a three to one majority, according to Reg. Dir. Paul E. Miley, Charles Rigby and John Michitsch, who were in charge of the drive.

Reg. Dir. Paul R. Christopher, in Tennessee, reports an NLRB election at Columbian Iron Works, Chattanooga, as follows: PRODUCTION UNIT: USA-CIO 147, AFL 72. MISCELLANEOUS UNIT: USA-CIO 44, no union 1. FOUNDRY UNIT. USA-CIO 82, AFL 4. USA Reps. O. S. Baxter, W. B. Frazier and William Dunn were in charge.

Reg. Dir. James Dean, in Oklahoma, advises that another precedent has been broken in the State. Workers at Dierks Lumber Co's. Mill at Broenbow voted 215 to 12 for CIO.

The Farm Equipment & Metal Workers tell of overwhelming victories in the plants of the Great Lakes Forge, Int. Harvester, Deering Works, United Specialties and West Pullman Office workers during the past weeks, involving approximately 2,000 workers.

Wm. B. Taylor, Dir. Org. Oil Drive, reports two successful elections, as follows: Corpus Christi, Texas, 68% for CIO, 32% against; Gulf Plains Corp., 67% for CIO, 33% against.

Walter Harris, Dir. Org. UGCCWA Drive, reports victory at the Atlas Powder Weldon Springs Ordnance Plant, St. Louis, as follows: out of 1,510 eligible to vote, CIO received 673 votes, AFL 258, no union 149. Joe Appelbaum conducted the drive and was assisted by District 8 of the UGCCWA and CIO Rep. Reilly. Some time ago we lost an election at this plant and protested on the grounds of unfair practices. A new election was held and these are the results.

Frank Bender, Maryland Reg. Dir., reports Montgomery-Ward election, as follows: ILWU-CIO 309, 297 against.

138 to 1 Victory Won by UE!

Reg. Dir. Joseph Walsh, Wilkes-Barre, advises that the Lummus Co. workers at Honesdale voted 138 to 1 for UERMWA-CIO. Intl. Rep. Peter Busch and Organizer Joseph Stensky did a fine job in this part of the State which is virgin territory for unions.

Hugh Thompson, Reg. Dir. Buffalo, advises that the Textile Workers Union won at Sheble & Wood, Inc., Salamanca, 119 for CIO, 8 for no union.

Walter Smethurst, Dir. Org. Shoe Drive, reports an election at Int. Shoe Co., Buford, Georgia, 536 for CIO to 144 for no union. CIO Reg. Dir. Gillman was in charge, assisted by Reps. Rupert Thrasher, Earl Allen and H. W. Denton.

The UOPWA reports the following victories: Bethlehem Ship, Hoboken, N. J., CIO 78 votes, AFL 7, no union 36. Raimund Mine, Republic Steel Corp., Bessemer, Ala., CIO 22 as against 1. This organization is at present conducting an organizing campaign among 6,000 salaried employes at the Curtiss-Wright plants in Buffalo.

Norman W. Allen, USA Staff Rep., reports the Bethlehem Lebanon Forge Co. (Bethlehem Steel) subsidiary eltection as follows: CIO polled 290 votes to 26 against.

Last week I addressed the SCMWA in convention in Cleveland. They had a splendid gathering and supported the CIO program in its entirety. From there I went to Toronto to attend the URWA convention—the first international convention held in the Dominion. This organization reports splendid growth both in the U. S. and Canada. The convention backed CIO policies and gave support to their officers for their stewardship and President Dalrymple and associates were re-elected unanimously. They laid plans for organization in the synthetic rubber field.

From there I proceeded to the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers convention in New York City. They had the largest convention in the history of their union. They report remarkable growth in membership. The delegates returned to their homes determined to come back to their next convention with even greater gains in membership. President Green and Secretary-Treasurer Van Gelder were reelected unanimously and Brother Grogan was elected to serve full time as vice president. Brother Grogan had just led the Democratic ticket in New Jersey in a primary which demonstrates the change that has come about in organization in that state.

Auxiliaries Urge Bigger Allowances

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Speedy action on the question of increasing dependency allowances for families of servicemen is on the order of the day in the House of Representatives.

So far the members of the Military Affairs Committee of the House, which is holding hearings on the bills, are far more worried about how to prevent anyone who doesn't really need help from getting any money than they are about how much service families need to maintain a decent American standard of living.

There is serious danger that what happened in the Senate will be repeated in the House with a totally inadequate bill rushed through before the people have made themselves heard.

STANDARDS TOO LOW

The Senate bill—which the army says is a minimum—provides $68 for a wife with one child, $79 for a wife with two children, $11 for each additional child. We know that isn't an American standard of living. It's below even relief standards in many places. The families of the men who are risking their lives for the victory of democracy must not be expected to live as paupers.

This is a plea for action. Don't let that Senate bill go through. Let your Congressman know that you support H. R. 3343 introduced by Congressman George Sadowski of Michigan which provides:

1. $55 for a wife, $90 for a wife and one child, $120 for a wife with two children, and $30 additional for each additional child.

2. The same scale of allowances for parents, brothers and sisters who are dependent on the servicemen for support.

3. An induction allowance to give the family of a new recruit as soon as he reports for duty the full monthly allowance to which his dependents are entitled.

4. A fund to provide special assistance to families faced with serious illness or disaster and to aid dependents who for special reasons of ill health or disability need more than the regular allowance each month.

This is the CIO program. It is a minimum program. Wives and children of our men in the armed forces will only be able to meet basic living expenses on these allowances. It allows only 17 cents per person per meal, the simplest inexpensive clothing, the minimum replacement of household goods.

The protection of the health and growth of a generation of American children requires that these minimum allowances be paid. The maintenance of the morale of our armed forces depends upon it.

Write your Congressman today. Tomorrow may be too late.

46 Million Workers In United Nations Ask Intl. Labor Unity

By ANTHONY JENKINSON

Editor, Allied Labor News

More than 46 million United Nations workers, through their elected representatives, have gone on record during the last three months for all-inclusive, immediate international labor unity. This fact, of major consequence to the whole outcome of the war, has passed unnoticed by the U. S. commercial press.

The focal point of this development is the Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Committee, formed in September, 1941, at the suggestion of the British Trades Union Congress. The committee has so far held three meetings; at the third meeting, the Soviet delegates proposed that the committee be extended "to include the trade unions of North and South America and of all countries fighting with the United Nations against Hitler Germany."

Labor bodies in many parts of the world have voted to affiliate with the Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Committee. The Confederation of Latin American Workers (CTAL), with 4½ million members, voted at its executive council meeting last July.

The Australian Council of Trade Unions, whose one million members constitute 1/7 of the entire population of Australia, voted to affiliate at its Melbourne convention, also in July. The Trades & Labor Congress of Canada, representing a quarter million AFL workers, voted to affiliate at its 59th annual convention in Quebec Sept. 6-10. The Canadian Congress of Labor (CIO and national unions) at its Montreal convention Sept. 13-17 also urged the need for international labor unity.

CIO for Unity

So far as U. S. labor organizations are concerned, the operating railroad brotherhoods and the CIO are both on record as supporting full international labor unity. In cabling his union's acceptance of the CTAL's recent proposal for a world labor congress, Pres. A. F. Whitney of the Bro. of Railroad Trainmen (unaffiliated) declared that such a congress "would be a powerful force to win a really democratic and, therefore, a definite and permanent peace."

The fifth convention of the CIO resolved "to continue to take all necessary steps to establish international labor cooperation with direct participation by the British and Soviet unions, the AFL, CIO and railway labor, and the unions of the other United Nations, including our Latin American allies."

Since then, many CIO leaders, including Pres. Philip Murray, have stressed the need for international labor unity. "All-inclusive united action by the labor movements of the United Nations is one of the major goals of the CIO," The CIO NEWS stated in an editorial Sept. 6.

Why are the vast majority of United Nations workers in favor of immediate international labor unity? The answer, based on an analysis of reports from Allied Labor News correspondents in United Nations capitals, is this:

The workers are becoming increasingly aware that without international labor unity, victory in the war against fascism will be delayed and the peace, when it finally comes, will be dominated not by representatives of the common man but by powerful and predatory business interests.

Workers realize that:

1. International labor unity is the only weapon strong enough to counteract those forces in Britain and America interested in prolonging the war. British and American big business, slow to convert from peacetime to wartime production, has now developed a stake in a long war.

Key to Victory

2. It is now generally recognized that the key to a quick victory over Germany and Japan is coalition warfare — particularly combined military action by British, the U. S., the Soviet Union and China. Effective coalition warfare, however, is impossible without political unity among the United Nations. It is precisely here that the most urgent need for international labor unity arises.

3. A rapid victory over Nazi Germany and Japan requires full Allied collaboration with the anti-fascist peoples of the occupied countries and of the enemy countries themselves. Powerful forces in Britain and the U. S. are opposed to such cooperation. Far from encouraging anti-fascist movements in the occupied countries, they seek to control if not to obliterate them altogether. By establishing direct contact with the underground labor movements, Allied labor can offset these reactionary influences.

4. Production and manpower problems in Britain, the U. S. and others of the United Nations have by no means yet been solved. Chaos in the British aircraft industry, the TUC recently charged, is delaying the offensive against Nazi Germany. Similar lack of coordination in war industry is handicapping the U. S. war effort.

Essential to Peace

If international labor unity is necessary for a rapid victory, it is even more necessary if the common people of the world are to win a peace of their own making. This may be seen for the following reasons:

1. Anyone who wants to can talk about the need for postwar cooperation among Britain, the U. S., the Soviet Union and China—but such cooperation will remain only talk unless it is based firmly on international labor unity.

2. The cartels, designed to exploit the workers of the capitalist countries just as much as the workers of the colonial and semi-colonial countries, can only be smashed by the principal labor movements of the world acting together.

Before this war, Standard Oil and I. G. Farbenindustrie were able to make their deals primarily because German and American labor failed to unite against them. The postwar world will surely be carved up by Royal Dutch Shell, Standard Oil, Dunlop Rubber Co., U. S. Rubber Corp., and other trusts unless world labor acts together.

3. The workers of Britain and the U. S. will be able to win their fight for better conditions, and for public ownership of basic industry, at much less cost if they act together. Corporations like General Motors, General Electric and Ford are international in character: they have big interests in Britain as well as in other foreign countries.

Consider this single fact: the Ford Motor Co. of Britain, employing over 50,000 workers, still refuses to recognize the Amalgamated Engineering Union, even though the AEU has won a majority at the main Ford Britain plants. Ford in Britain would be forced to give way far more quickly if the Detroit workers went to the aid of their British brothers.

Can Halt Exploitation

4. International labor unity will prevent the postwar exploitation by British and American capital of India, China, Africa, Latin America and other colonial and semi-colonial areas. The Indian workers and peasants by themselves would have a hard fight to win their country's freedom. But backed by Britain and American labor they can be assured of victory.

This in turn will react to the benefit of the British workers—particularly Lancashire cotton spinners, whose wage standards are chronically depressed because of the cheap labor in Bombay textile mills.

The practical way in which the workers of one country can aid the workers of another has recently been demonstrated in the case of Bolivia where, thanks largely to action taken by the CIO Latin American Committee, tin miners are to get a wage increase. Since Bolivian tin is both owned and used primarily in Britain and the U. S., British and American labor should act jointly on behalf of Bolivian workers.

Anglo-Soviet Group Joined By Canadian CIO

Montreal, Oct. 2 (ALN)—The Canadian Congress of Labor (CIO and national unions), at its fourth annual convention concluded here this week, voted to join the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee in order to "assist in making a policy that may be the basis for winning the war and securing a peace which will establish for all people freedom of speech, assembly, religion and freedom from want."

Four hundred and fifty-five delegates, representing over 200,000 workers, attended the convention.

In other unanimously-adopted resolutions, the convention called for the invasion of Western Europe "at the earliest posible moment," for the removal of Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell as having "betrayed the interests of labor," and for "unity of action between bona fide labor bodies on issues confronting the labor movement."

THOMAS, HAYWOOD SPEAK

The convention gave thunderous applause to the speeches of R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW, and Allan Haywood, CIO director of organization.

Thomas warned that no nation is great enough to stand alone, and Haywood criticized AFL's Bill Hutchinson for helping to prevent international labor unity.

School First Job For Children, U. S. Agencies Warn

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—The most important job that our children have is getting an adequate education, and they should not be allowed to take part time jobs that interfere with their studies. That was the warning issued this week by the U. S. Office of Education, the War Manpower Commission, and the Children's Bureau of the Dept. of Labor.

"In areas in which acute labor shortages exist, it may be necessary to enlist the held of in-school youth for non-agricultural employment," the agencies said in a joint statement. "The services of these youth," the agencies warned, "must be utilized in such a way as to insure their effective contribution to manpower needs, the protection of their health, welfare, and educational opportunities."

Ask CIO Start L. A. Health Plan

Los Angeles, Oct. 2—The word "health" is spelled with capital letters in the minds of CIO members here. This week a conference of nearly 200 CIO union delegates laid a request before the Los Angeles CIO Council for the establishment of a permanent health division, with a full-time executive working with a special Council health committee.

Steel Workers Set New Output Record

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 2—Under the leadership of Pres. Philip Murray the patriotic members of the United Steelworkers of America have once again piled up an unprecedented production record, to back up the fighting forces of the United Nations as they launch their final assault against Fortress Europe.

Murray reported this week to the USA's executive board that the government's request of the USA and management for an additional two million tons of steel during the last six months of the year is certain to be realized. October, he said, will be a record month.

In a congratulatory report to the USA membership, the executive board said:

"The daily rate of production in August, 1943, after allowing for new facilities, was 5,290 tons above that of the daily rate of August last year. Continuing at this rate through the last half of 1943, 810,000 tons of steel will be produced over and above that produced from the same facilities in the last five months of last year.

"In September the daily rate of production is exceeding that of August. October is going to be an unprecedented production record month in the steel industry.

"Pledged to get the government an additional million tons of steel this year to speed the end of the war, the steelworkers, in cooperation with management, are producing it."

'After Victory, What?' Is CIO Discussion

Washington, Oct. 2—What will happen to labor when the war is over? Will workers in war industries be thrown out of their jobs by the millions? How can unions hold their own after the war? What is going to be done with government-owned plants and equipment? How can industry get back to peacetime production with the least stress and strain?

These are some of the vital problems discussed at a conference, attended by research directors of a number of important CIO national unions, held here this week at national CIO headquarters.

At the morning session, J. Raymond Walsh, director of the Dept. of Research and Education, and his assistant, Mrs. Katherine Ellickson, led a round-table discussion on what is going on in Washington in the way of post-war planning.

This was followed by brief reports by the research directors of the various CIO internationals on their unions' policies and the problems their industries face.

Red Caps Win Job Fight

Chicago, Oct. 2—A three-year fight between the CIO United Transport Service Employes and eastern and southern railroads over the 10c fee charged passengers for handling hand-baggage by Red Caps was finally settled this week, the union announced here.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has reaffirmed a previous decision sustaining the union's position that the red caps' service is an integral part of passenger service necessary for the maintenance of an orderly station and the quick movement of passengers to and from trains.

The union stated that "the decision of the ICC makes the Red Cap an essential employee and places him on an equal level with all other necessary non-operating employes in the industry."

CIO Gives Most For War Funds

Washington, Oct. 2—CIO's war relief program will reach into almost every corner of the nation during the next two months.

Through the program of the Nat'l CIO War Relief Committee, which is cooperating with the National War Fund and thousands of local Community Chests, the CIO's 5,000,000 members this year will throw their organized strength and contributions behind the War Fund Campaign to raise $125,000,000 for domestic and foreign relief.

MAIN GIVER

CIO members last year gave more than $20,000,000 for war relief purposes. At least $7,000,000 went to the Red Cross; nearly $4,000,000 to the USO. Organized labor became the largest single source of funds supporting British, Russian and Chinese war relief.

With the opening of the National War Fund drive and Chest campaigns in nearly every major city in the nation during early October, CIO unions from coast to coast have pledged their full support.

This year, as never before, unions will receive specific credit for their own contributions, where in past years they have been credited to corporations and industries.

Endorsements of the CIO's war relief program and the Community War Chest drives have come from every section of the country, with CIO Pres. Philip Murray leading the list. He said:

"Organized labor, including our own Nat'l CIO War Relief Committee, recognizes the National War Fund as the instrument through which its gifts for the distressed of the world, both here at home and in Allied lands, can most quickly be put to work for those needs with which it is most concerned.

"This great union of services avoids confusion of effort, needless duplication, and channels labor's mighty contribution to the war and peace efforts with a minimum of fund raising expense."

Labor Unites To Aid Jewish Victims Of Axis

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Organized labor united this week to urge that the United States "bring immediate aid and succor to the Jews of the Nazi-occupied countries." The plea was in a letter to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, signed by CIO Pres. Philip Murray, AFL Pres. William Green, David Dubinsky of the Intl. Ladies Garment Workers, and Adolph Held, chairman of the Jewish Labor Committee.

The letter, presented to Secretary Hull by J. Raymond Walsh of CIO, said in part:

"Free American labor, which feels a kinship with the victims of Nazi terror, has been horror-stricken by the slaughter being carried on against the Jews.

"We, therefore, take this occasion to urge the government of the United States to warn—through shortwave radio and all other available means of communication—all those guilty of aiding the Nazi leaders in their inhuman campaign of exterminating the defenseless Jewish population of Europe, that they will be held accountable as war criminals and will be punished for every innocent life they have taken.

"Time and again the desperate cry of the Jews languishing in the ghettos, death-chambers, and concentration camps has reached us here. Time and again the President of the United States, the Secretary of State, and Americans of all walks of life, of all creeds and colors, have declared their revulsion at the abominable crimes perpetrated by the Nazis upon a defenseless people. But to no avail.

WARNS GERMANS

"The United States, therefore, must warn the German people that the United Nations have decided to establish the identity of those Germans who are responsible for the acts of savagery against the Jews and other peoples; that as each of these criminal deeds is committed, it is being investigated, and evidence is relentlessly being piled up for the purpose of justice.

"American labor seeks no mass reprisals against the enslaved people of Germany. But the murderers of our fellow human beings, the ring-leaders and their aides, must be named, apprehended, and tried in accordance with the judicial process of criminal law."

In another letter to the Jewish Labor Committee, Murray extended best wishes for a common victory over the Fascist enemy, and said that "American labor was the first to recognize that the attack on the Jews was the forerunner of a similar assault on labor, religion and ultimately against mankind itself."

Curran Gagged By State Dept. At North African Port

NEW YORK, Oct.2—Joseph Curran, leader of the Natl. Maritime Union, vice-president of the CIO and able-bodied seaman, was not allowed to step ashore when his ship reached a North African port recently.

Curran said the ban, which amounted to "ship arrest," was imposed by orders of the State Department, and was backed up by soldiers with tommy guns, who had orders to shoot him if he tried to go ashore.

Curran's trip, which he made as a crew member, was carried out after the State Dept. had refused to give him a passport to visit ports in Britain, North Africa and the Soviet Union. The trip was authorized by the NMU at its recent convention, and was for the purpose of investigating at first hand how seamen are being treated abroad.

It was also made with the approval of CIO President Philip Murray, who wrote to the State Dept. saying: "I have given my approval to Mr. Curran's mission and I am requesting that he be given permission to travel on a special passport."

Describing his trip at a press conference here, Curran pointed out that bad treatment of American seamen abroad was a serious blow at vital supply lines.

SEAMEN MALTREATED

"Ever since the war began, merchant seamen, survivors of torpedoings, sinkings and bombings, have been brought into various ports throughout the world," he said.

Many who were seriously injured or suffering from exposure were in urgent need of hospitalization and medical care and didn't get it. Others while awaiting repatriation, were treated brutally by consular officials."

The NMU president called these conditions to the attention of President Roosevelt, he said, and received a White House letter urging him to "have specific instances brought to the attention of the governmental agency concerned with sufficient information to identify the ships, the names of the seamen involved, the ports where the instances occurred and such additional factual information as will enable a proper and thorough investigation to be conducted in each case."

JOSEPH CURRAN

TO PROMOTE UNITY

Curran's instructions from his union were to promote labor unity among the workers of the United Nations, in addition to probing shabby treatment of merchant seamen, he said.

At the same time, he pointed out that the NMU was currently negotiating for a new contract with the shipowners, in which these conditions were a major grievance the union was trying to correct.

Implying broadly that the State Department's tommy-gun threats were timed with these negotiations, he commented that "the shipowners' influence reaches into some strange places."

"There are forces that don't want to see this war end with an early victory, and a postwar world that will include strong unions," he added.

While Curran was away, his local draft board changed his classification to 1-A, despite CIO protests. The union is now handling the matter, he said, and an appeal will be taken.

Maryland Mixup Proves Connally Law Wrong-Way Bazooka

By FRED d'AVILA

BALTIMORE, Oct. 9—If further proof is needed that Congress gave birth to a "wrong-way bazooka" when it passed the Smith-Connally law, this is it!

The law this week became No. 1 Villain in a four-act play involving among other issues the questions of racial discrimination, freedom of speech, the right of a phoney company union to demand a strike vote, and the win-the-war, no-strike policy of the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers Union.

Involved are more than 7,000 employes of the Point Breeze plant of the Western Electric Co. Chronologically, here's the script:

A short while ago the Western Electrical management contended that it had found a baby on its doorstep—the Point Breeze Employes Assn.—and raised its hands in horror at the suggestion that perhaps the child might be management's offspring.

Not so horrified but much more practical was a Natl. Labor Relations Board examiner, who ordered the disestablishment of the association, declaring that without doubt it was a company union.

The association sought to establish its authenticity, at least among Western Electric employes, by playing on their racial bias. The association demanded that the company provide separate toilet facilities for Negro and white workers.

Faced with a refusal, association officials ran to the NLRB (which had ordered the association disestablished because it was a company union) and asked for a strike vote under the Smith-Connally law.

The day of the election the CIO Electrical & Radio Workers Union, which had been pressing an organization drive at the plant, applied for permission to address the workers by sound truck. City officials denied the UE a permit, despite the fact that UE Organizer Leon Deane pointed out that the sound truck would be used to urge the workers not to strike.

CIO ORGANIZERS ARRESTED

Despite the ban, the voices of UE organizers boomed out over the amplifying system on election day, only to be muffled seconds later by arresting policemen.

The election was held. Less than 50 per cent of the employes participated. Only 60.5 per cent of those participating favored strike action.

The phoney employes association immediately gave the NLRB 30 days' notice of intention to strike. The NLRB told the UE that the association had a perfect right under the Smith-Connally law to ask for a strike vote—as can any minority group in practically any war plant in the United States.

If the strike is called, it will be the first in Maryland under this abortive law, which helps to foster instead of to prevent industrial disturbances—something the CIO pointed out long ago while Congress was considering its passage.

CIO Backs the Attack with War Bonds—Millions More of 'Em

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—"Back the Attack with War Bonds" is more than just a slogan to CIO. Proof of that was the statement made this week by CIO Pres. Philip Murray to the Treasury Dept. that reports to date show CIO members contributing more than $6 million to the Third War Loan Drive. And there's lots more! Spot news on the bond front included the following reports:

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union guaranteed the purchase of at least $5 million in bonds during the drive.

At a huge bond rally at Jersey City under the auspices of the State CIO Council, $6 million worth of bonds were purchased out of union treasuries, and $56,000 worth more were bought at a dinner in honor of President Murray.

The Natl. Maritime Union has gone over the top in its special War Bond drive for a $500,000 submarine chaser.

The Treasury Dept. announced that members of the Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers are buying a total of $37½ million bonds in bonds a month.

TO BUY BATTLESHIP

The IUMSWA at its recent convention voted to start a campaign to sell enough bonds to raise the $97 million needed for construction of a battleship.

At the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyard in Baltimore, members of the IUMSWA issued a challenge to workers in all other shipyards in the country to engage in a contest to determine which group could purchase proportionately the largest amount of War Bonds.

The recent convention of the United Rubber Workers Union voted to urge members to increase their present $30 million a year in bond purchases to $40 million.

RIFLES FOR SOLDIERS

In Milwaukee, the United Steelworkers of America and the Heil Co. jointly are backing a plan, through their labor-management committee, to raise enough funds to place a Garand rifle in the hands of every Heil Co. employe now in the armed services. So far $64,000 has been raised—70 per cent of the goal.

Meanwhile, the Treasury Dept., which has enthusiastically welcomed CIO's participation in the War Bond drive, announced that any local union, any city, county or state industrial union council, or any international union is entitled to a Minute Man flag or pennant if at least 90 per cent of its membership is buying War Bonds under the payroll savings plan.

An even higher honor—the Treasury T flag—will be awarded to any labor organization where at least 90 per cent of the members are buying bonds under this plan to the extent of at least 10 per cent of the total payroll.

If you believe your organization is entitled to one of these awards you should send the necessary information to the Labor Section, War Finance Division, U. S. Treasury Dept., Washington, D. C.

Congress in Dither Over Army Dependency Fight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—The fight for decent living standards for the families of the men in the armed forces, initiated by the CIO three weeks ago, took on the aspects of a horse-race this week, with the House and the Senate trying to see which could come out with a compromise bill first.

Following the activity of the CIO and its Women's Auxiliaries, the Senate hastily passed a bill raising the benefit to a wife and one child to $80 a month, $100 for a wife and two children, and $20 for each additional child.

The House Military Affairs Committee, which had been holding quiet hearings on S1279, (which passed the Senate last July), jumped into action after the CIO and the Auxiliaries got busy, to report out its own bill, which is not nearly as good as the Senate bill.

This bill, reported as amendments to S 1279, would give a wife and one child $75, wife and two children $95, and $15 for each additional child.

Meantime, the CIO - backed Sadowski bill (HR 3343), which would give a wife and two children $120 a month, $90 for wife and one child, and $30 a month for each additional child, has been sidetracked by the House Military Committee.

The Committee also plans early action on its bill, slated for some time this week, and the House members will need to be told very quickly that the standards of the Sadowski bill must be incorporated in any measure that is finally passed.

ACTION NEEDED

CIO members should concentrate their wires on the Congressmen with this demand—whatever bill is passed, must come up to the "very modest budget" provided in HR 3343.

Earlier in the week, President Murray sent a rush call to all CIO affiliates urging them to back the Sadowski bill, offered by Rep. George Sadowski, (D., Mich.).

He also urged Congress in a letter to all House members to support HR 3343, asking them to work for its provisions in whatever bill finally hits the House floor.

"We regard this bill as one of the most important war measures to come before Congress and look to its passage as a means of strengthening the home front behind the offensive fighting front," Murray wrote.

Bread, Beans, Margarine Standard of Living Up 16% Over Last Year

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9—A bread and beans and margarine standard of living—rock-bottom minimum for a decent existence—costs a family of four 16 per cent more this year than it did last year. That was the report submitted this week by the well-known Heller Committee of the University of California.

This year's figure is up from $49.63 a week to $57.33, the Committee showed in a detailed study that has become accepted as a guide to minimum living needs throughout the nation.

This wartime budget leaves a deficit of $192 a year on a stabilized wage of $2,800 a year, the Committee pointed out. Living costs have risen about 20 per cent since the outbreak of the war.

The new budget was worked out with as many reductions as consistent with "healthful and decent living," the Committee added. Despite these reductions, still further cuts must be made to meet the new figure. Here is the breakdown:

	A YEAR	WEEKLY AVERAGE
Taxes	$334.23	$6.43
War bonds (10% of income)	300.00	5.76
Food	916.85	17.63
Clothing	256.67	4.94
Housing (rent and water)	408.00	7.85
House operation	115.97	2.23
Furnishings	15.75	.30
Miscellaneous	644.32	12.39
	$2,991.79	$57.53

Packinghouse Parley Opens Oct. 13

Chicago, Oct. 9—From the meat packing centers of the country, delegates of locals affiliated to the CIO Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee are heading toward Chicago for the union's constitutional convention which opens here October 13.

The convention will take steps to set up an international union in the packing industry to be known as the United Packinghouse Workers of America, CIO, and draw up a program to guide the organization's activities in the future.

Reporting on the proposed program to come before the convention, PWOC Sec.-Treas Lewis J. Clark mentioned the tremendous gains made by the union since 1937 and called for "unity of action in all fundamental issues that confront our organization."

Bill to Admit Chinese Takes First Hurdle

Washington, Oct. 9—In a surprise move that caught the anti-United Nations people off guard, the House Immigration Committee this week reported favorably on Representative Magnuson's (D., Washington) bill (HR 3070) to repeal the ban on immigration of Chinese to this country.

Magnuson's bill puts Chinese citizens under the quota system, and, if passed, would result in admitting 105 Chinese annually to the United States. Representative Allen (D., Louisiana) has been the chief enemy of this move toward greater United Nations solidarity. The leaders of the AFL also opposed it, while the CIO has been backing it.

Letters should go to all Congressmen demanding passage of the bill.

Privation of Servicemen's Dependents Told In Letters to Murray

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—CIO Pres. Philip Murray has received a flood of letters jam-packed with human misery, that show perhaps better than anything else could the extreme urgency of increasing the allowances granted to dependents of men in the armed forces.

From Bessemer, Ala.; from Salisbury, Md.; from New Beth-lehem, Pa.; from Chattanooga, Tenn.; from Pyote, Tex.; from scores of other cities and hamlets, the painful story of privation has been told.

Frequently scrawling almost illegibly, the writers have urged President Murray to continue CIO's fight for adequate allowances so that the families of our fighting men will not go hungry. And he in turn has promised each of them that the CIO will continue to press for a minimum allowance of $55 for a wife, $90 for a wife with one child, and $30 for each additional child.

Paragraphs from some of the letters—exactly as they were written—tell the story. Their authors—who shall remain anonymous—said:

"I received a check for $112 on December 2, which paid me only for one month. I have six children, five in school, and it is hard to live on this amount on this high cost of living—it won't hardly buy food for seven in family, to say nothing of other expenses . . ."

UNABLE TO WORK

"I have been under doctor's care for six years, unable to do any work. My wife has been paralyzed twice and is an invalid. Our boy, 31 years old, the only one we had to take care of us and keep our little home going and give us something to eat, was called in the Army away from us and all we get is $47.

"Forty-seven dollars a month and neither of us can make a dollar, so you know how much we have to live on after we pay $15 a month rent for a little place to stay, buy our fuel to keep warm, our light bill, insurance, and we have to have medicine from the doctor every week which costs $2, so you know we cannot live on that if it was not for our good neighbors . . ."

"At the present I am working at a salary of $18 per week, and I have three children and two of them are in school.

"As my health isn't good, doctors have advised me to stop working. My allotment is $82 a month. The rent I pay is $24.75, as I live in one of the government housing projects.

"With the bills I have to pay and feed three children and myself, I find it can't be done, and send two children to school as they should go . . ."

BABY 10 MONTHS OLD

"My husband is in the service; I have got two children. It sure is hard to try to get along on $72 a month. When I pay rent, light bill, gas bill, laundry, insurance, and buy milk for the children, I do not have any money left. And we have to have coal and clothes.

"As I am under a doctor's care, I am not able to work, and besides my baby is too young to leave. My youngest baby is 10 months old, the other one is four years old . . ."

"I was reading in the newspaper where you had introduced a measure urging minimum allotments of $90 a month for a wife and child and $30 each for additional children which I truly hope will be paid, but what I am regarding is the present allotment which wives with children like myself are now getting.

"My husband joined the Army Air Forces on the eighth day of last September and I received a check for $112 on December 2, which paid me only for one month. I have six children, five in school, and it is hard to live on this amount on this high cost of living—it won't hardly buy food for seven in family to say nothing of other expenses which one has to pay."

NMU Man Praises Red Cross Club

Cairo, Oct. 9—Merchant Seaman Benedict Braze, member of the CIO Natl. Maritime Union, called the Red Cross Club here "the nicest place I've seen yet." The club is one of the many overseas establishments maintained by donations of the American public to the Red Cross.

Keep Your Eye on Congress

Hearings on the new tax bill started this week in the House Ways and Means Committee (Rep. Doughton, D., N. C., chairman) with the U. S. Treasury proposals for lowering income tax exemptions, increasing excise taxes and adding to the amount withdrawn from your pay envelope. (See story, page —.)

President Murray has asked for time to present CIO's win-the-war tax plan during the hearings. Watch The CIO NEWS for developments.

The House Military Affairs Committee has recommended a compromise bill to increase aid to dependents of men in the armed forces. The compromise would give $90 a month to a wife with two children. The Sadowski bill (HR 3343), which CIO is supporting, would give $120. Early action in the House is expected.

The food front is very active this week, with the miscalled "Farm Bloc" that doesn't represents farmers, fighting against subsidies for the price rollback and against incentives for full food production.

Polltax repeal is still waiting for that debate on the "constitutionality" of HR 7, which is set for Oct. 25.

BILL	WHERE IT GOES	WHAT IT DOES	ACTION
Tax bill.	Your new taxes.	Hearings on in House Ways and Means; Pres. Murray to testify soon.	Keep after your Congressmen for real victory tax plan based on ability to pay.
Extends Commodity Credit Corp. life (no number yet).	Gives half billion for subsidies for rollback.	Hearings on in House Banking Committee. Farm Blocers fighting rollback, demanding sky-high prices for food monopoly, not for farmers.	Wire Chairman Steagall (polltaxer, Ala.) and your own Representative for support of CCC funds for rollback.
Aid to servicemen's dependents.	CIO-backed proposal raises aid to wife and 2 kids to $120, in HR 3343. Compromise report urges $90 a month.	House Military Affairs will report compromise for quick action on House floor.	Wire your Representative to support amendment to raise benefits to $120 level, as in HR 3343 (Sadowski bill).

Murray Urges United Nations Labor Meet

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 9—An international conference of the trade union movements of all the United Nations at the earliest possible date, was urged by CIO Pres. Philip Murray in an address before the convention of the UAW-CIO.

Murray said he would seek authorization from the national CIO convention in November to issue invitations for such a conference.

"American labor wishes to join with the labor movements of all the United Nations for constructive international labor collaboration for winning the war and for the economic rehabilitation of the world," the CIO leader declared.

"We must also see to it that labor is represented at the peace table to prevent any future bloodbaths."

Murray criticized Sir Walter Citrine, British trade union leader, for entering into an agreement to give exclusive recognition to the AFL and to freeze out the CIO and the Railroad Brotherhoods.

He said that Citrine's report had been "substantially repudiated" by the British Trades Union Congress, when it authorized the calling of an international conference as soon as possible of British, Soviet, American and other representatives of the organized workers of all countries.

In his speech, Murray stressed the "primary interest" of American labor in winning the war, and the necessity for it to "continue to roll up its sleeves" and to observe faithfully the no-strike pledge.

"There must be no indulgence in the pre-war luxury of strikes for the duration of the war," he said.

"But despite labor's complete spirit of self-sacrifice," he added, "despite its willingness to park its economic weapons behind the door for the duration, labor has not received a square deal."

Murray explained that the President's seven-point program had not been carried out, that "discriminatory tax legisaltion" had been enacted, and that the "Congressional commitment of Oct. 2, 1942, to stabilize prices as well as wages" had not been fulfilled.

He demanded a rollback of prices to the level of Sept. 15, 1942, "through subsidies or any other steps that may be necessary."

The CIO president listed seven legislative "musts" that "cannot be postponed," as follows:

(1) Repeal of the Smith-Connally Act.

(2) Stabilization of prices and limitation and stabilization of profits.

(3) Repeal of the "Peonage Act" which "freezes farm labor in most of 3,000 counties."

(4) "We the people of the United States must make plain that we do not propose again to secede from the world as we did after World War I. . . . We must insist that our representatives in the State Dept. and the armed services and in all other government agencies deal with representatives who have the confidence, the respect and the authority of the working people" in countries freed from Nazi and Japanese domination.

(5) Mobilization and full utilization of manpower "under a voluntary system."

(6) Enactment of the anti-poll tax bill.

(7) Enactment of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell social security bill. Extension of social security to include more than 100 million of our people and insure them against the hazards of unemployment, sickness, disability, dependency and death.

UAW Backs FDR, Urges Win-War Program; Thomas, Addes Re-elected

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 8—In one of the closest union elections on record, George F. Addes nosed out Richard T. Leonard for re-election as secretary-treasurer at the UAW-CIO convention. The vote was 3,748 for Addes and 3,676 for Leonard—a 71 majority.

R. J. Thomas was re-elected president by acclamation, and election of other officers had not yet taken place as The CIO NEWS went to press.

Interest among the more than 2,000 delegates centered on the contest between the forces headed by Addes and Vice-Pres. Richard T. Frankensteen on the one hand and those associated with Vice-Pres. Walter P. Reuther and Leonard on the other, which came to a head in the election for secretary-treasurer.

Roll Call Vote

Excitement reached a pitch in long and noisy demonstrations for the rival candidates and in the closely contested roll call that lasted several hours.

The first major clash occurred between the two groups on the issue of incentive pay, which found Reuther, Leonard and their followers supporting a majority committee resolution denouncing incentive plans and unqualifiedly opposing their extension. Addes and Frankensteen supported a minority resolution that reaffirmed the union's traditional opposition to incentive plans and instructed officers not to promote them, but left local unions free to introduce them subject to a specified list of safeguards.

All officers were asked to state their position on these two resolutions, and the executive board members were found to be almost equally divided on the subject.

Long Debate

The issue was vigorously and lengthily debated in two sessions, and the majority report was finally declared carried by a close standing vote.

The resolution adopted took a "firm position against the extension of incentive plans, because we believe that piece work will neither bring our nation maximum war production nor provide workers with an adequate annual wage."

It stated that such plans would "create new labor grievances and add to labor unrest" and instructed all international union representatives to conform strictly to the resolution's policy, but left local unions free to continue existing "piecework systems" in keeping with minimum standards set by the executive board.

Back FDR

Subsequent to the vote on incentive plans, a minority report unqualifiedly endorsing President Roosevelt for a fourth term was withdrawn, and both groups united behind a majority resolution pledging a campaign for the re-election of President Roosevelt and Vice-President Wallace—on the basis of an aggressive effort on the part of the President and his administration "to fulfill a progressive home front program."

This resolution, adopted by an almost unanimous vote, attacked "reactionary southern democrats" for undermining the home front "through the emasculation of the sound and progressive policies of the New Deal." It declared it would be "impossible to mobilize the same degree of continued enthusiasm" for Roosevelt "if the present Democratic Party policy of appeasement of the foes of progress and labor continues."

Roosevelt and administration progressives were urged to fight foes of the New Deal and labor in both the Democratic and Republican parties, and union support was pledged to Roosevelt for rolling back prices, ending war profiteering, revising the little steel formula, democratic rationing and other steps to strengthen the home front.

The officers' reports revealed the UAW-CIO at the peak of its strength as the country's largest labor union, with a dues-paying membership of 1,077,889 as of July, and 1,473 plants employing more than 1,200,000 workers under contract.

Patterson's Warning

An urgent warning against too much optimism and an appeal for intense productive effort were voiced by Under-Secretary of War Robt. P. Patterson in an address to the convention.

He declared that "there is no solid basis in fact" for impressions that "the war is all over but the shouting."

"It is the considered opinion of General Marshall and our other military leaders that there is a long hard struggle ahead," Patterson declared.

"Thus far in this war the United States army has paid a low price in casualties as compared with our allies. The Russians have borne the brunt of German power for more than two years, and they have done so at a cost of 10,000,000 Russian soldiers killed, wounded or captured.

"The time is at hand when we will be striking heavy blows, when we will carry an increasing part of the burden."

Farm Leader Talks

Murray Lincoln, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau, also addressed the convention, appealing for better understanding between farmers and labor and more joint activity, particularly through consumers' cooperatives.

Another outside speaker was Irving Abramson, chairman of the CIO War Relief Committee, which was endorsed by the convention.

A deep impression was made on the delegates by three soldiers, all wounded in the Sicilian campaign.

In introducting them to relate their experiences, Lieut. Col. E. B. Gallant stressed three points:

"(1) Adequate ships and landing craft must be available to transport troops and supplies on the initial assault.

"(2) Adequate supplies must be provided to support these troops in battle.

"(3) American soldiers fighting under the most difficult and trying conditions, with their lives at stake, are entitled to what they need, when they need it and where they need it."

The international note was repeatedly sounded at the convention, not only in Murray's speech and the action on international labor unity, but also in resolutions adopted on post-war Europe, on allied military collaboration, on freedom for India, and in greetings from foreign labor movements.

Cabled greetings were received from Pres. Lombardo Toledano of the Latin-American Confederation of Workers, from Pres. Fidel Velasquez of the Mexican Confederation of Workers, from Pres. Chu Hsueh-Fan of the Chinese Assn. of Labor, and from a number of unions in Britain and Australia.

Supporting a conference between Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin, the convention called for "complete understanding among the United Nations in order that their combined power be so directed as to bring about the earliest possible unconditional surrender of the common enemy."

Deals with "Darlan and his Vichy fascist friends" and "refusal to attack either the King of Italy or his pro-fascist General Badoglio" were criticized in another resolution, that called for a commission to study terms of peace, including labor, farm and church representatives, and advocated "the greatest possible federation of free nations."

India Freedom

Cooperation with British labor in calling for re-opening of negotiations between the British government and the Indian National Congress looking toward "India's immediate freedom and participation as a full-fledged ally in the war," was also urged.

Organization of American ex-servicemen was the subject of a special resolution, which called for "contacting all progressive sections of existing servicemen's organizations with the objective of creating a bona fide progressive servicemen's organization."

The convention called for a comprehensive war manpower program, coordinating the manpower agency with production and procurement, and insuring "the full mobilization and utilization of all workers" under fair labor standards.

Other resolutions adopted called for subsidies to roll back prices, grade labeling, simplified and stricter rationing, labor-sponsored canteens for servicemen, and an end to anti-labor draft discriminations through joint labor-management committees on deferments.

Under an amendement adopted to the UAW-CIO constitution, all officers and representatives, international and local, will hereafter be required to register and vote in elections for civil officers, or face disciplinary action.

'Live' Tax Testimony

In planning to present the war worker's case on taxes to Congress, the CIO has made a very simple suggestion that should be effective. The suggestion, sent to all CIO affiliates, is to have the expert testimony backed up by working men and women from the war plants who will come before the committee and tell Congress how they're making out with their paychecks.

For example, they can tell the Congressmen what's left of the paycheck after paying the rent, the doctor, the light company and the gas company, after buying Johnny's shoes, and after the withholding tax has been taken out at the pay window.

The expert testimony from CIO representatives is needed, because the House Ways and Means Committee has been hearing so far exclusively from the other kind of experts—the experts who can prove that the low income groups have too much money and that the "inflationary gap" can only be conquered by a bold and ruthless pincers movement on the workers' living standards.

But the presence of men and women straight out of war plants, telling the Congressmen what its like to live in war industry towns on stabilized wages, should make the statistics come alive.

It should also help to convince the Congressmen that plans to lower income tax exemption levels, to jack up the withholding tax, to increase taxes on things workers buy, while ignoring inflated profits, fat war income and tax loopholes, won't go over so well with the voters.

The war workers and the other low income people of America are worried about their taxes. They want to pay their share, because they know the offensive against Hitler costs money.

They also want to make sure that the tax program will leave them enough income to pay their bills. This is no simple question of "soak-the-rich" versus "soak-the-poor." Its a matter of helping or hindering the victory drive.

The CIO plan to bring this home to the Congressmen, in the most direct manner possible, is a sound one. It should make a lasting impression on Capitol Hill, where the people don't often call.

CIO Ship Plan

CIO has been talking for months, and even years, about overall planning for total war. President Murray and the leaders of CIO unions covering almost every war industry in the country have repeatedly offered plans to government and in industry—only to get the usual cold shoulder in almost every instance.

Now comes an agency of Congress, the Senate Sub-committee on War Mobilization, which has looked into one of CIO's war industry plans and has found its recommendations good. Further than that, this sub-committee actually says that labor should be asked to sit in with government agencies controlling this industry.

The industry is shipping. The plan recommended by the Senate Sub-committee, headed by Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.), is one submitted by President Murray and the heads of four CIO maritime unions. It calls for full and efficient utilization of a vital war resource—U. S. and other United Nations' shipping.

The CIO investigation of the industry exposed serious bottlenecks in shipments of arms and supplies to our fighting fronts and to our allies. The Kilgore report finds that these flaws are real. The CIO plan made extensive recommendations for improvements. The Kilgore report finds that these recommendations are good, and urges them on the War Shipping Administration and other government agencies in charge.

And the Kilgore report gives credit to the CIO unions, making a strong plea that they be included on policy-making bodies with full and responsible representation.

President Murray's report was filed by him and the four CIO maritime unions seven months ago. One of its main points was the need for efficient use of shipping to back the attack of our own forces and those of the rest of the United Nations.

Now the Kilgore sub-committee recognizes the worth of the CIO plan on shipping. One more step has to be taken before the plan is put to full use—the War Shipping Administration and other U. S. shipping agencies have to be converted.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

THE UAW-CIO is still the most amazing of unions. It breaks records, kicks over precedents and spreads all over the lot in a manner that seems to ignore all human limitations.

Labor students always predicted that industrial organization of America's big modern industries would produce a new kind of union—bigger, more democratic, broader in scope, and with more far-reaching social and political aims than any previously existing unions.

The UAW-CIO is this new unionism, as advertised, but exceeding all expectations.

With more than 1,075,000 members, it is by far the largest union in the country.

The scope of its activities is almost as broad as life itself.

Its locals and conventions grapple with every conceivable social and political issue.

And when 2,000 vociferous and uninhibited delegates debate their differences and work out their policies at a UAW-CIO convention, it is an example of democracy in action which is hard to parallel.

★ ★ ★

The rapid growth of the UAW-CIO is little short of miraculous.

It started almost from scratch in 1936 and went into the hundreds of thousands within a year.

After some ups and downs, and a lollapaloosa of a factional fight which would have wrecked a less lusty union, the UAW-CIO was able to report a steady dues-paying membership of 300,000 to its 1941 convention.

By 1942, average monthly dues-paying membership had increased to more than 500,000. In the 14 months up to June 30, 1943, the average rose to more than 715,000. In July actual membership shot well over the million mark. And the union now has 1,473 contracts covering more than 1,200,000 workers.

For the information of the Peglers, who speak of workers being "herded" into unions, more than 800,000 workers have been polled by secret ballot by the Labor Board since July, 1939, as to whether or not they wanted the UAW-CIO, and have voted for it by more than four to one.

★ ★ ★

It takes some hundreds of pages of the officers' reports, with little excess wordage, to list the multifarious activities of this amazing union.

These include, of course, the basic union activities of organization, contract negotiation, handling of grievances, War Labor Board cases, etc.

But they also range far beyond wages and working conditions to cover almost every economic, physical, social, recreational and political concern of the members and their families.

For instance, the UAW-CIO has an active Consumer Division to work against high living costs, for a rollback of prices, for better feeding facilities in plants, etc.

It has a Housing Division to fight for more and better housing for war workers, for rent control and for long-range planning for better living conditions.

It has a Medical Institute to care for the members' health; an Unemployment Compensation Department; an Education Department, which works with hundreds of local education committees and conducts the most extensive educational activities; and a Recreation Department that organizes social activities, entertainments, sports and athletics and special vacation plans.

In addition, the UAW-CIO has Legislative, Legal, Publication and Publicity, Research, Women's Auxiliary and other departments of broader scope—and a War Policy Division to deal with many special war problems of production, manpower, child care, war relief, the armed forces, etc.

★ ★ ★

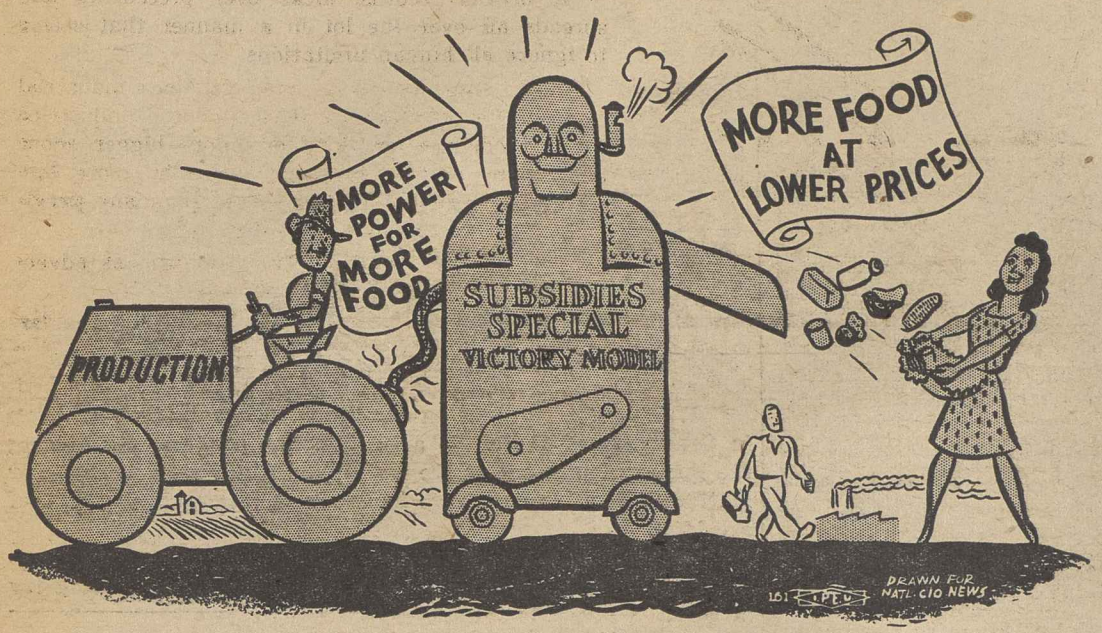
All of this huge apparatus of the country's big-best labor union is at present geared to one supreme purpose—the winning of this war.

The million members of the UAW-CIO are all war workers in the most direct sense—producing tanks, planes, guns, munitions and all kinds of other war materials.

Their union is not only the chief instrumentality for protecting their economic, physical and social welfare, it is also the chief instrumentality for mobilizing their efforts for increased war production.

Finally, this union, like the other unions of the CIO, is the most democratic possible channel through which all these workers can make their voices heard and their influence felt in shaping their country's policies for winning the war and winning the peace.

Subsidies Mean Food for Victory



Subsidies a 'Must' For Price Rollback

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—CIO's demand for subsidies to make the food price rollback a reality was made clear to the House Banking Committee this week in testimony prepared for presentation on behalf of CIO by Russ Nixon, Washington representative for the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

Pointing out that labor has accepted wage stabilization in the confidence that price stabilization would accompany it, Nixon reminded the Committee that prices have gone steadily up and that the rollback is now a must on the war program.

Urging full application of subsidies to this problem, Nixon warned that labor is watching "the price actions of the government item by item," and that unless total stabilization is achieved, it will be forced to reopen the whole question "on the basis of the facts and not the theory of the question."

The CIO recognizes no real difficulty in reconciling the needs of the farmers for proper prices and the needs of the workers for a break on living costs, Nixon added, and is asking for support of CCC as the best means of getting over this problem.

"The CIO recognizes the needs of the farmer and sees in the intelligent operations of the CCC the means of meeting farmers' needs without increasing the cost of living," he said.

"There is no inevitable dilemma in the twin objectives of encouraging farm production and avoiding inflation through rising food prices. The CCC and its potential activities break that dilemma."

CIO Leads Fight For Win-War Taxes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—The final drive for a new tax bill is shaping up here this week, with the House Ways and Means Committee suddenly galvanized into action, with the Treasury proposals in, and with every dime-a-dozen salestaxer in the country popping up on page one of your newspaper.

The CIO got into action at the same time, opening with a letter from President Murray asking for time to testify and frankly criticizing those parts of the Treasury plan that would dig even deeper into the low income levels.

The Ways and Means Committee, (headed by Rep. Doughton, D., N.C.) is anxious to get the whole thing over with as quickly as possible, threatening to close hearings by October 16 and generally taking the line that extreme speed is needed.

In his letter to Rep. Doughton, Murray put the finger on the main contradiction in the Treasury's position, pointing out that its demand for a lowering of income tax exemption levels scarcely fits in with Secretary Morgenthau's statement that taxes must not hit the people "who cannot meet their tax bills and still maintain a standard of living which will permit them to continue to help in the effective prosecution of the war."

In addition to proposing a general lowering of exemptions from the present $1,200 for married couples to $1,100, and from $350 for dependents to $300, the Treasury also proposed raising the withholding tax and abolishing the "Victory Tax." It did not deal with tax loopholes, such as tax-free bonds, etc.

In a letter to the committee, Murray said:

"We feel it is urgent for your committee to recognize the force of Secretary Morgenthau's statement that no unduly heavy tax burden must be put on the people whose incomes are so low that 'they cannot meet their tax bills and still maintain a standard of living which will permit them to help in the effective prosecution of the war.' "

"It is also true that these people, who are the majority of the nation, do not have what the Secretary called 'excess spending money.'

"It would be incorrect, therefore, to make any further cut in the income tax exemptions for married persons and dependents as has been proposed by the Treasury.

By proposing to lower exemptions still further, the Treasury contradicts its own announced purpose of protecting the health and efficiency of the war workers and other low income groups."

Murray also called on the Committee for a "quick rejection of all proposals for a sales tax or for substantial increases in consumer taxes on the goods that low income groups buy."

"The five million men and women of the CIO are ready to pay their proper share of the tax bill they know we must meet in order to carry on the offensive against our enemies," Murray concluded.

Boost Production

Washington, Oct. 9—Workers may be rewarded by cash or bonuses for suggestions designed to increase production, without approval by the War Labor Board, if the awards are actual compensation for the suggestions and are not hidden wage increases, the WLB General Counsel ruled this week.

Price Gougers' Blitz

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Not all the skullduggery aimed at your food budget goes on in Congress, and the alert citizen who wants to protect himself has to keep an eye on the capital agencies, too.

ITEM: This week, Sen. Harry F. Byrd (polltaxer, Va.), a millionaire apple grower has just worked a little trick on apple prices that will increase their cost to you from nine cents a pound to 11 cents.

How did he do it? By going to the War Food Administration, headed by Marvin Jones, and getting him to order the OPA to change its regulation on apple prices from the lower price to the higher price. OPA was helpless, because Jones's outfit must approve all prices relating to food.

ITEM: the milk monopoly is making serious headway on its plan to hike milk prices another three or four cents. This gang, that regards milk not as something for children to drink but solely as a source of profits, is getting much sympathetic attention in Congress and out of it.

So far, the "Fighting Sixty," Rep. Scanlon's group of Congressmen pledged to price control and other consumer-protection measures, has fought the milk hike, as have the United Shoe Workers, CIO, whose president Frank McGrath said bluntly: "Shoe workers making $30 a week has a hard enough time keeping their families going as it is."

AND NOTE: If the monopoly boys get away with price hikes on milk and apples, they'll get away with price hikes on everything—and we'll have inflation in a big enough way even to satisfy Hitler.

Would Aid Working Farmers—Opposed By Monopolies

BY C. W. FOWLER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—After a fairly long vacation, the food price and production problem is back in the Congress committee rooms this week, with prospects good for an early and broad offensive by the "Farm Bloc" boys who work for monopoly, not for the farmer.

The fight comes up on the subsidy question in the appro-priation now before the House Banking Committee to extend the Commodity Credit Corporation, U. S. agency that buys and distributes food and other essential commodities.

The administration, with CIO backing, is trying to get half a billion dollars from Congress for CCC, which would use it to continue and expand subsidy payments to make the price rollback a possibility.

The inflation crowd is fighting the appropriation and the whole idea of subsidies, just as it fought earlier in the session and lost in a technical decision that kept CCC and the subsidy principle alive.

The same crowd also opposes the idea of incentive payments to farmers to promote production of essential war crops, claiming that this means "political control," "regimentation" and other equally dradful things.

COUNTER OFFENSIVE

In answering these attacks by the mis-called "Farm Bloc," the "Fighting Sixty," a new group of progressive Congressmen who aim to help the worker, the consumer and the farmer by enforcing price control and subsidies, opened its counter-offensive with a statement from its chairman, Rep. Thomas D. Scanlon, (D., Pa.)

"The current request for $500,000,000 for the CCC must be speedily granted, with none of the strings that certain forces in Congress tried to attach last July in order to forbid the use of subsidies to roll back living costs or even to hold the line," Scanlon said.

"By using subsidies, we are able to protect both the farmer and the public. By using incentive payment plans, crop insurance and similar measures, we can increase sharply the production of food vital to the war."

Scanlon also pointed out sharply that not all Congressmen are against subsidies and incentives, as the Farm Bloc agents in Congress claim, declaring that his group is proof that "Congress is not unanimously opposed to subsidies for price control and to incentives for food production."

"Our group intends to carry on this fight, beginning now with the appropriation for the CCC, until we have won this most important battle on the home front—the battle against inflation and food scarcity."

An Editorial

What Subsidies Mean to You

The fight for a food subsidy and incentive program is on again in Congress.

This is the same fight that labor and the President fought last July. We won a partial victory then that preserved at least the principle of the subsidy to make the rollback of living costs possible.

Now the same forces that fought the plan are fighting it again—led by the mis-called "Farm Bloc" that represents not the farmers but the food monopoly.

Why do the labor movement and President Roosevelt want the subsidy plan to roll back food prices, and the incentive payment plan to increase food production? Here's the answer:

1. Subsidies on food prices mean that the war worker and all consumers get their living costs reduced, because the difference between food production costs and a lowered price to the buyer is made up.

2. Subsidies mean that the producing farmer gets a good price for his produce, that the cost of the rollback does not come out of his hide, and that he stays in war production at top producing levels.

3. The incentive plan, under which farmers get certain extra payments for producing vital war crops, aids production just as the incentives already paid to copper mine owners and many other business men aid in production of vital war materials.

4. Extra food production is needed to help win the war and to help feed the people after the war is won. We are not now producing as much food as we could and certainly not enough for war needs. Unless we start now to produce more, we will not have enough in hand for the needs of victory or of the postwar situation.

The stock arguments against subsidies and incentives brought out by the Congressional "Farm Bloc"—led by the polltaxers—center around three points: 1) they're "un-American"; 2) they cost too much, and 3) they mean "political control" of farmers.

1. This "un-American" smokescreen is the oldest weapon in the anti-New Deal, anti-victory arsenal. Subsidies help roll back living costs and incentives held increase food production. They're no more "un-American" than any other win-the-war action of the government.

2. Price increases—which the "Farm Blocers" want—cost a great deal more than subsidies. For every $1 spent on subsidies, the public saves from $4 to $12 on living costs—as proved in England and Canada.

3. The real meaning behind this one is not fear of "political control"—the "Farm Blocers" in Congress practice enough of that themselves not to be afraid of it on principle. The real fear is that subsidies and incentives will bring smaller producers into competition with the big monopolies, will force conversion to war crops, and will increase food output and cut costs.

MONOPOLY'S GRIP

The food monopoly boys don't want all-out production. If they did, they wouldn't try to freeze out the small farmer the way they do. They really want restricted production—even in wartime—for bigger profits.

The CIO and the farmers are united on winning the war. The CIO supports subsidies for the rollback and urges incentives for production as war measures that will bring an earlier victory for all of us.

It's up to the CIO and the producing farmers to make their weight felt in Congress on this vital part of the whole victory program.

CIO Push Forces Breach in Radio's Anti-Labor Front

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—CIO pressure this week forced at least a partial breach in the hedge-hog defense erected by national radio chains against sale of time to labor organiztions for discussion of so-called "controversial" issues.

The breach was visible by use of binoculars when reading the statement submitted this week to the Federal Communications Commission by Edward J. Noble, of New York City. Noble has purchased, subject to Commission approval, the stock of the Blue Network, Inc.

Noble's statement, which was submitted at the request of Chairman James L. Fly of the Commission, said in part, and for the record:

"I am prepared to say that my policy, stated in general terms, will be to refrain from adopting any restrictions which will automatically rule out certain types of programs on the basis of the identity or personality of the individual, corporation, or organization sponsoring or offering them.

"I propose to meet each request for time with an open mind and to consider such requests strictly on their individual merits and without arbitrary discriminations.

"With regard to the sale of time in addition to the sustaining time already provided for the discussion of controversial issues, consideration will be given to the use of a limited amount of time for this purpose insofar as consonant with the maintenance of listener audience and interest and thereby of the usefulness of the network as a medium of public discussion."

Lea New Head Of Ex-Cox Committee

Washington, Oct. 9—The ex-Cox Committee, once headed by Eugene Cox (polltaxer, Georgia), who was forced to resign for illegally taking money from a radio station, has a new chairman, Representative Clarence F. Lea (D., California).

This is the committee, which under Cox and its attornety, Garey, has been trying its best to sabotage the Federal Communications Commission, which has responsibility for all war communication lines, radio, etc., throughout the nation.

Representative Lea has a bad record of voting against labor and New Deal measures. So far, he has given no sign of whether or not he will fire Garey, who has used his post as committee counsel to try to protect Fascist radio commentators that the FCC had ruled off the air.

Boy! What A 'Break' Labor Gets on Air!

Washington, Sept. 25—Here's an example of what big radio chain owners mean when they claim that labor gets an even break on the airways.

During hearings on the sale of the Blue Network, a company witness submitted a table showing that labor had been on the air approximately 1,000 minutes during the past 20 months.

The 1,000 minutes was well watered, because, for example, an hour's program on problems of child's care, in which one labor spokesman appeared for a minute or two, was put down as 60 minutes on labor; similarly on War Bond programs in which labor leaders appeared with others.

Now here's some arithmetic on this claim, even if we grant that 50 per cent of the time said to have been given to labor was actually labor's own time:

Twenty months at 30 days each total 600 days. The broadcasting time at 12 hours a day (actually, it's much more) totals 7,200 hours or 432,000 minutes.

Now divide that by 500 minutes, and you get five minutes out of every 4,320 for labor—or one out of every 864.

And that's what the radio chains call an even break for labor.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACTS OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, AND MARCH 3, 1933

Of The CIO NEWS, published weekly at Washington, D. C.

Inflation Is Threat Unless Congress OK's Subsidies

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

We've got a big fight on our hands. The subsidy issue is up in Congress and the whole administration program for holding the line—which is one of the main planks in labor's win-the-war platform—depends on a vote in Congress to permit payment of subsidies.

The opponents of the subsidy program have two main arguments. First they talk about how much it will cost. They try to persuade people that subsidies will simply add to our tax burdens.

The fact is that it will cost us —in taxes—a great deal more not to have subsides—and that's the point we must hammer home.

Don't be fooled by the argument that the saving of two or three cents a pound on meat to each individual consumer which is made possible by a federal subsidy is not worth the millions it costs. It does not make sense to talk about the individual items in the program separately.

INFLATION PERIL

If we don't roll prices to the consumer back to the September 1942 level, wage rates must go up. If wage rates go up, prices of most manufactured goods, including planes and tanks and guns, will go up and farm prices will go up. Then wages must go up more, everything more. Net result—inflation.

The government's war budget is $100 billion this year. A general 1 per cent increase in prices would cost the government—and that means the taxpayers—$1 billion. And you can't stop inflation at 1 per cent.

But $1 billion earmarked for subsidies by Congress right now can prevent any general price increase and save the government billions of dollars, in addition to the saving to the individual consumer. Government figures show that each $1 spent for subsidies will save all of us $4 to $12 in increased costs.

But wages don't have to go up if there are price increases, the opponents of subsidy say. People are earning so much they can afford to pay higher prices. In other words they want to substitute wage cuts for subsidies. That won't work. Wage rates have been stabilized.

It is true that weekly earnings in some industries have increased because of longer hours. But it is also true that some 10,000,000 Americans live on fixed incomes—including state and federal employes—and that for them and for workers in all the service trades, real wages are already 8 per cent to 10 per cent less than in January 1941.

OPA's figures show that in 1942 more than half of American families had annual incomes below $2,000. That is not enough to maintain a family of four in health and decency. Cutting low incomes by permitting price rises and holding the line only on wages would undermine the health of millions of workers and hinder Victory.

In addition to that, every price increase costs the tax-payer money. The government buys about 55 per cent of our national production. If prices go up, the government's bill goes up—and the tax burden goes up.

If we don't consider the consumer at all, and think simply of the public treasury, it will cost the government less to pay subsidies to stabilize prices than to pay the price increases we'll get without subsidies.

Auxiliaries to Honor First Ladies of Nation, CIO

Washington, Oct. 9—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Philip Murray, wife of the CIO president, will be the honor guests at a luncheon to be given by the CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries in connection with their third annual conference which opens November 1 in Philadelphia, it was announced today. Mrs. Roosevelt will address the luncheon.

Delegates from women's auxiliaries from all parts of the United States and from Canada, representing the wives, mothers, daughters and sisters of CIO union members, will do honor to the first lady of the United States and the first lady of the CIO on this occasion. The luncheon will be held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, November 3.

Mobilizing the women in CIO families for active participation in the CIO political action drive, and especially in work for the election of labor's candidates in the 1944 election campaign will be one of the central issues discussed by the CIO auxiliaries in their four-day sessions.

Intensification of the rollback campaign to bring the cost of living down to September, 1942, levels, and vigorous enforcement of OPA regulations will be another theme of the conference.

Fur Union Publishes Victory Booklet

New York, Oct. 9—"Victory Will Be Ours," an illustrated booklet explaining the part the Intl. Fur & Leather Workers Union is playing in the war against fascism, was released this week.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

This Monday I addressed a meeting in Pittsburgh of volunteer organizers from the Mesta Machine Co. These men are engaged in highly skilled operations and all the employes are skilled men. Frank Burke of the USA is in charge of the drive and there is every indication of a successful outcome. All of these volunteer organizers work at this shop, are enthused over the progress made, and are determined to win a complete victory with the USA.

From there, I journeyed to the UAW-CIO Convention in Buffalo. This great organization represents considerably more than a million dues-paying members and is still growing.

Economic Outlook Says

Silk Shirt Tales Are Bunk, Labor Just a Stepchild

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Labor has really received only a step-child's share of the nation's war prosperity despite the notion of high wages noisily proclaimed by press and radio.

This is the answer to the question, "Has Labor made a 'good thing' out of the war?" says the current issue of The Economic Outlook issued this week by the National CIO's Department of Research and Education.

A survey based on Department of Commerce figures shows that while the national income increased 109 per cent from 1939 to 1943, net income of agricultural proprietors has risen 216 per cent, and net corporate profits after taxes have risen 107 per cent.

How figures can be made to lie is demonstrated by the CIO analysis of the total use of compensation of employes, including salaries and wages, which is given as 105 per cent. Unlike the total for profits, which are those after taxes, the employe compensation figure does not take out taxes.

Neither does it show that the number of individuals in the wages and salaries group is vastly greater in 1943 than in 1939, whereas in the case of the other factors of production, the number of income receivers has remained practically unchanged.

When these two things are taken into consideration, the CIO survey shows, the increase in wages and salaries is only 38 per cent.

The Economic Outlook also contains a table listing the wartime profits of 29 selected companies which shows that 14 of the 29 made ten times as much in 1942, before taxes, as they averaged in 1936-39.

"Almost all multiplied their prewar income before taxes, by four," says the Outlook, and "in several cases the percentage increase was numbered in the thousands." It gives some striking examples:

The American Car & Foundry Co., during the pre-war period, averaged only $72,000 after taxes. In 1942 its profits after taxes, jumped 9,700 per cent to over $7,000,000.

The Budd Mfg. Co. jumped 2,100 per cent from less than a quarter million to over $5,000,000 profit after taxes.

The American Type Founders, Inc., went from $130,000 to over $2,000,000, an increase of more than 1,500 per cent.

In a third article, the Outlook analyzes Government cost of living figures and urges that the program to rollback prices to September 15, 1942, level be put into effect.

Gag Fascist Propaganda Rag Chileans Urge

SANTIAGO, Oct. 9 (ALN)—Declaring that "this war, marked by the subjugation of millions of people by the Axis, is different from all wars heretofore known to humanity," the second national congress of the Confederation of Chilean Workers (CTCh), meeting here this week, called on the Chilean government and people to "contribute more effectively to the war effort of the United Nations."

In a series of resolutions on the war, delegates representing 500,000 trade union members urged the government to modernize and democratize the armed forces, removing all military leaders opposed to democracy, and demanded that "in the interests of defense and national security, the government confiscate the means of production and propaganda sources owned by Nazi-fascist, Japanese and other fifth column firms."

In order to strengthen labor's participation in the war, the CTCh voted to support the projected amalgamation of the Socialist parties into "a great national party of the working class" and indicated that it will affiliate with the new party. The working class has the historic duty to institute a more just world," the convention declared. "It therefore must take the lead in destroying Nazi-fascism and give leadership to the anti-fascist movement."

The congress voted "solidarity with the Argentine workers, who are striving for democracy and for the independence of their unions" and strongly protested the Argentine government's dissolution of the General Confederation of Labor. Resolutions condemning limitations of freedom of thought and action in Argentina, Brazil, Bolivia, Paraguay, Ecuador and Peru were presented to their respective embassies.

Summing up the results of the Congress, La Hora, Radical Party newspaper close to President Rios, said: "The democratic demonstration is significant in that it deliberated on all the important subjects facing Chilean workers today. The sessions demonstrated a high patriotism and cultural level."

Bernardo Ibanez and Salvador Ocampo were unanimously re-elected CTCh general secretary and assistant general secretary.

Soviet Labor Leader Denies AFL Stand On Russ Unions' Freedom

MOSCOW, Oct. 9 (ALN)—The assertion that "the Soviet trade unions are not free but are organizations of the state," made by Isidore Nagler, AFL fraternal delegate to the recent British Trades Union Congress, was strongly denied this week by Nikolai Alexeyev, spokesman for the All-Union Council of Soviet Trade Unions.

Declaring that Nagler expressed the views of "such reactionary AFL labor leaders as Matthew Woll, David Dubinsky and William Hutcheson, as well as of John L. Lewis," Alexeyev said:

"Nagler's speech not only expressed enmity for the Soviet trade unions but also deliberately attempted to disrupt their efforts to draw into the orbit of the Anglo-Soviet trade union committee the trade unions of North and South America, Australia and the workers of the occupied territories of Europe.

"If, as Nagler said, it is true that the Soviet trade unions are not democratic but merely state organizations, how can one explain the fact that they have stood the severest tests in the war? How can one explain the fact that the Soviet trade unions have done enormous work in mobilizing and organizing the war effort of the Soviet people, who have been inflicting resounding blows upon Hitler's war machine?

"If the Soviet trade unions did not enjoy the confidence and support of their members, how could they have headed the mass movement of labor emulation? How could they have done so much to meet the daily material and cultural needs of the workers under the difficult conditions of wartime? The Soviet trade unions have been able to cope with their manifold and difficult tasks only because they enjoy the support and initiative of their 28,000,000 members.

"Needless to say, all Soviet trade union organizations are built up on the democratic principle of elections by secret ballot. From top to bottom they are subjected to close check-ups, since all trade union bodies must regularly make reports to the rank and file."

Build 160 Cargo Ships

Washington, Oct. 9 — Merchant shipyards of the nation delivered 160 cargo vessels totaling 1,652,651 deadweight tons during September, the Maritime Commission announced this week.

To Visit England

Chicago, Oct. 9—Pres. Grant Oakes of the CIO United Farm Equipment & Metal Workers this week cabled acceptances of an invitation from the British section of the Intl. Metal Trades Federation to visit England to discuss common problems of the war and post-war period. Similar invitations have been extended to ten other unions.

Warn Basic Magnesium Stalling May Harm War

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Oct. 9—Tortoise-like action of the War Labor Board may cause a serious interruption of war production at Basic Magnesium, Inc., unless something is done to speed up a case involving members of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union, the organization charged this week.

Re-affirming its no-strike position, the union pointed out through E. E. Ward, executive officer of the BMI local, that the company is continually provoking workers "in obvious attempts to drive them from the plant or to create work stoppages or other disturbances."

The union won an NLRB election May 7 and was certified as exclusive bargaining agency for the bulk of the workers July 15. The entire case was certified to the WLB July 27, after the company refused to recognize the MM&SW, Ward said.

"Since then, the WLB, although acknowledging that it has the right to take jurisdiction, has preferred to quiver before real or fancied threats of the AFL's John P. Frey and Congressional reactionaries, and has failed to act," Ward declared. "Other governmental agencies are powerless or hesitate to do anything until the WLB has acted."

First WAVE Killed In Action Was UE Member

Philadelphia, Oct. 9—The Service Flag of the Wilkening Manufacturing Co. now has a gold star, reports Local 155, United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers. It represents Elizabeth Korensky, former member in the Boring Dept., who enlisted in the Waves last March. She was killed in the explosion at the Norfolk Naval Air Station, the first Wave to be killed while on active duty.

WRITING ON THE WALL: Above, a reproduction of a wall newspaper exhibited at the Victory Workshop show at the recent CIO Electrical Workers Union convention in New York City. The poster was designed by members of the Artists League of America and represents an effective and economical way of teaching—it was printed by a stencil process which costs very little.

CIO Maritime Plan Wins Nod From Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—The United States has plenty of shipping now to back the attack on Hitler, and can be even more sure of its supply lines if CIO maritime union plans for full use of all war shipping resources are carried out.

This is the conclusion of a U. S. Senate investigating body— the Kilgore sub-committee on War Mobilization—submitted this week to the full Senate Military Affairs Committee.

The report completely bears out the study of war shipping and the plan submitted by President Murray and the leaders of four CIO marine unions more than seven months ago—last April—which exposed scandalous waste of ships, manpower and production facilities then going on, and outlined steps to end it.

It gives strong praise to the efforts of the CIO marine unions, particularly the Natl. Maritime Union, the Intl. Longshoremen and Warehousemen, and Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, to "Keep 'Em Sailing" to all the United Nations' offensive fighting fronts.

SHARP WARNING

The Kilgore report, however, sounds a sharp warning against a current trend back to peacetime profits as usual, pointing to shipowners' demand for diversion of new tonnage to non-essential cargoes. This, the report says, indicates a danger of a portion of the United Nations' 50 million tons of ships being "dissipated on peacetime commerce," rather than meeting "the tasks imposed by great new offensives."

Here are a few of the points originally made by President Murray and the four CIO marine unions that the Kilgore report agrees with completely.

The Kilgore report agrees with the CIO that one central war shipping agency, rather than the dozen or more now in existence, is a prime need. It agrees with the CIO's basic position that full representation on this central agency and all others should be given to maritime labor.

It reinforces the demand of the Natl. Maritime Union, now in negotiations with the shipowners, for stabilization of conditions in the industry and an end to widespread inequalities in wages and other working conditions.

BACKS CIO POSITION

The Kilgore report backs up the CIO marine unions' demand that training of merchant seamen be improved and that the War Shipping Administration stop pouring scores of thousands of unskilled men into the industry and start a real system of skilled training and up-grading.

It underscores the demands of the CIO Longshoremen for stabilization of the labor supply, a lack that is now responsible for more waste of manpower in ship-loading than any other factor.

The report hits out at notoriously bad labor usage on the East Coast docks, controlled by Joe Ryan of the AFL Longshoremen.

Writing on the "shape-up," which forces East Coast longshoremen to line up in crowds at one pier, waiting for a nod from a strawboss, while at another pier a ship is delayed for lack of labor, the report says:

"There are, for example, more than three times as many longshoremen in New York than in San Francisco, while the tonnage handled in New York is nowhere near triple the San Francisco tonnage.

"Except on the West Coast, longshore labor is still completely casual. . . . The shape-up system of hiring is wasteful and inefficient; it has been condemned for over 30 years; it should be tolerated no longer."

Hillman Sparks Coast Political Action Front

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9—Labor's West Coast political front blazed into action this week following a visit from Sidney Hillman, chairman of CIO's Political Action Committee. Hillman provided the spark at labor meetings here and in Los Angeles and Seattle which is expected to start a chain of "explosions" that will blast out of office those politicians who have voted against the people and against the war.

During a four-day visit to the San Francisco area on his trip to set up 14 regional CIO political action committees, Hillman warned that labor has an urgent responsibility to organize politically for the 1944 elections.

Hillman said that labor in 1944 has a great opportunity to score for victory in war and to lay plans for the kind of peace which American workers are fighting for.

NO TEMPORARY BATTLE

He told a meeting of the San Francisco CIO Council's Political Action Committee that labor is not in the fight on a temporary basis, but intends to remain politically active long after the 1944 election.

The Los Angeles meeting took important steps toward unified labor political action at a broad meeting of CIO, AFL, and Railroad Brotherhood representatives which Hillman addressed.

The breadth of the meeting was indicated by the number of ranking Democratic party leaders present, including U. S. Senator Sheridan Downey.

URGES UNITY

Hillman told the Los Angeles meeting that labor unity now would lay foundation stones for concerted labor action in developing international labor unity, and for preventing a post-war return to apple stands and breadlines.

"We have the numbers to do the job—all we need now is the organization," Hillman declared.

At the Seattle meeting, which was Hillman's first on the west coast since he left Minnesota on his nation-wide tour, Hillman told CIO representatives from Washington, Oregon, Idaho, and Montana that the duty of the CIO political action chairman for that region shall be to achieve as much political unity as possible between CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhood, and other progressive groups.

The group voted wholehearted approval of CIO's political action drive, recommended that each State CIO Council set up its own political committee to cooperate with regional and national organizations, and set up a regional advisory committee to coordinate the work.

OTHER FRONTS ACTIVE

Other sections of the country swung into action this week, following the lead set by the Hillman Committee.

At Louisville, Ky., the first united labor organization for political action was formed, bringing together representatives of CIO, AFL, and independent unions.

At Chicago, President Grant Oakes of the CIO Farm Equipment Workers headed up the union's political action drive following a meeting with Hillman and other CIO leaders. Oakes warned that labor's gains might be wiped out in an hour by a reactionary Congress unless labor mobilizes all its forces to elect pro-union candidates in 1944.

At New Haven, Conn., a United Labor Legislative Conference, composed of CIO, AFL, and rail union representatives planned distribution of thousands of copies of an "open letter" to anti-Administration Congressman R. M. Compton, laid out an intensive campaign for participation in the coming city election, and set up a special committee to push the registration of new voters.

Nearly Half of War Relief Funds to Go To Armed Forces

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Nearly half of the $125,000,000 which the Natl. War Fund expects to raise for war relief in every major American city during October and November will go to U. S. servicemen and women—1,000,000 of whom are CIO members.

CIO members, who gave $22,000,000 to war relief last year, have pledged, union by union, through their Natl. CIO War Relief, their full support to the present campaign.

More than $67,000,000 of the $125,000,000 total will go to such agencies as the USO and United Seamen's Service which provide for the health, comfort and recreation of the armed services and merchant seamen.

USO will receive $61,227,000, and $2,320,000 will be allotted to War Prisoners Aid. Almost $5,000,000 will be given to United Seamen's Service in which the CIO has a special interests, because most merchant seamen are CIO Natl. Maritime Union members.

The Natl. War Fund was set up by executive order of President Roosevelt to amalgamate the fund raising campaigns of 17 major war relief agencies. It will conduct drives through state and community war chests, where they exist, and organize campaigns in other areas.

The money raised will be devoted to the armed services, foreign relief, and domestic welfare agencies.

CIO War Relief Show On NBC Sunday

Washington, Oct. 9—A coast-to-coast radio hookup with nationally known screen and stage stars will tell the nation about the CIO's contribution to war relief at 1:15 p. m. EWT on Sunday, Oct. 17, on CIO's "Labor for Victory" program.

Heading the cast of the program over NBC's Red Network will be screen stars Ralph Bellamy and Helen Twelvetrees. Joining with them will be Josh White, popular guitarist at N. Y.C.'s "Cafe Society"; Paul Johnson, singer, and Joe Rhines' orchestra.

Boy, Will 'Peg' Be Hot When He Sees This!

Washington, Oct. 9—Boy! Will Pegler be hot when he sees this!

The check-off method of collecting dues this week received the official blessing of the Natl. War Labor Board's Shipbuilding Commission, with the following bouquet added by Chairman William E. Simkin:

"The check-off," he declared, "is a legitimate aim of a self-respecting union developed toward maturity. The cost and inconvenience to the company is not a serious burden when compared with the potential advantages which may be gained by such a system. Nor is the check-off an infringement of the proper rights of individual employes when each new employe is advised that is a condition of employment."

The opinion was written in connection with a case involving the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers and the N. Y. Shipbuilding Corp. of Camden, N. J.

The Commission directed the company to check off a 50 cents monthly deduction to be contributed to war relief, as well as the regular union dues.

Detroit OK's Labor Backed Nominee

Detroit, Oct. 9—Detroit workers have already made one substantial down payment on political action and are looking ahead to more victories for labor-backed, win-the-war candidates for public office.

The down payment came with a landslide primary majority for Frank Fitzgerald, candidate for mayor in the November 2 elections, who was endorsed by CIO, AFL and all unions in this war industry city.

Fitzgerald won by 97,000 votes while his nearest rival, incumbent Mayor Edward Jeffries, trailed with 60,000. The victory was won in defiance of a huge newspaper campaign that tried to scare the voters against anyone backed by labor.

UAW Man Runs For City Council

Toledo, O., Oct. 9—CIO workers here are pushing the campaign of Tom Burke, vice-president of Local 12, United Auto Workers Union, who is conducting an aggressive drive for election to the City Council.

Back UE Man For City Council

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 9—Labor in the major industrial plants of Dayton is backing Myron Smith, one of the able leaders of the Delco local of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, for City Commissioner. He has been endorsed by the Montgomery CIO Council.

First Prison Terms For Wage-Hour Law Violators

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Here's a "first edition" clipping for your scrapbook! Three bosses this week received prison sentences for violating the wage-hour law—first such to be served. They were only small fry in industry, operators of a shirt shop in Northampton, Pa., but the offenses for which they were convicted were pretty contemptible.

The shop, run by three brothers named Dasher, held army contracts for shirts. The Dasher brothers chiseled the workers out of minimum and overtime pay by locking the time clock so that overtime work could not be recorded, and also falsified records.

This trick brought them prison sentences as well as record fines totaling $22,500. Federal Judge H. E. Kalodner, who sentenced them on guilty pleas to a 62-count indictment as second offenders, also ordered them to pay back wages of $35,000 to 400 employes.

Harry Dasher got six months in federal prison. His brother Nathan received a six months' suspended sentence and a $15,000 fine. The third brother, Isadore, was sentenced to three months and was fined $6,200. In January 1942 the Dashers were fined $250 each as first offenders.

"Congress very wisely provided a fine only for first offense under the Wage-Hour law, but a jail sentence for second offenders," Judge Kalodner said in imposing sentence.

"Congress foresaw that if employers can make more money cheating labor, a fine as high as $50,000 would not deter them in such chiseling practices."

CIO to Congress:

'Tax Big Profits, Not Poor People, To Help Win War'

CIO rank and file workers, led by Pres. Philip Murray, took the tax issue to Congress this week. Their main aim was to plug for passage of a win-the-war tax bill, which would tap surplus war profits. They pointed out that a sales tax would aid the Axis because the funds raised by it would come from the pockets of workers who in a period of rapidly rising prices are making only enough money to buy life's necessities.

YANK Is Frank

Army 'Mag' Socks Lewis, Praises U. S. Labor

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Flipping a sharp left at John L. Lewis' "kisser," the outspoken Army magazine YANK this week voiced high praise for "the average American worker who is doing his job" and who "knows only too well that there is a war going on."

"When John L. Lewis pulled his coal mine strike, the men in the Army got sore and nobody could blame them," YANK said editorially in its October 8th issue. "It seemed criminal for workers at home to be walking out of their jobs at a time when the nation was in danger and Americans were dying on the fighting fronts.

"Remembering Lewis, plenty of soldiers still feel that the average American worker is interested only in making money and doesn't know that there is a war going on overseas. There's been a lot of talk and latrine rumors about war production slipping and the U. S. home front being in a terrible mess.

"Strangely enough, that impression of the American worker as a goldbricking money-grabber does not jibe with the facts and figures of U. S. production in the last few months, revealed by President Roosevelt in his recent message to Congress."

Citing the terrific production record credited by the President to American workers, YANK said:

WORKERS "DOING JOB"

"It seems strange that America was able to accomplish this terrific task of production if the average worker at home was interested only in getting a raise and didn't know or care about the war overseas.

"The truth is, of course, that absentees and goldbrickers crop up in the factories and mines and shipyards—just as they do in the armed forces—but they represent only a very small minority.

"The average American worker is doing his job. And he knows only too well that there is a war going on."

CIO Federal Union to Test Election Gag Law

Washington, Oct. 16 — The ball and chain that has hung for several years around the necks of politically minded employes of the Federal government was in for a hammer-and-chisel job this week.

Wielding the tools was the United Federal Workers Union, which announced that it proposes to test the constitutionality of the Hatch Act. The Act prohibits Federal employes from taking an active part in federal election campaigns.

The decision to test the law was made by the recently concluded executive board meeting of the union. Sec.-Treas. Eleanor Nelson declared that the organization believes the Hatch Act deprives government workers of their full political rights, thus making them "second class" citizens.

Back CIO War Relief Drive 100% Is Murray's Plea

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—CIO's goal for war relief is a contribution from every member of every CIO local, Pres. Philip Murray said this week in urging cooperation with fund raising agencies through the CIO War Relief Committee.

Pointing out that the appeals of many war and community agencies have been consolidated through the establishment of the Natl. War Fund, Murray wrote in a letter to all CIO affiliates:

"The national officers of the CIO fully expect that the accumulated experience of our representatives working with local war funds, Red Cross chapters and other welfare agencies will bear fruit in forthcoming drives.

"It is estimated that last year 35 per cent of our members gave their hour's pay a month. May I urge that this year you employ every facility at your command to see that every member of every CIO local gives his fair share for our community, national and world interests?

"What we have done and are doing for the heroic people in China, Britain, Russia and for our freedom-seeking allies in the occupied lands, is pitifully inadequate as contrasted with their terrible suffering and need.

"At home, health, welfare and social agencies are doing a job meriting the support of CIO members. We owe an enormous debt not only to our more than one million CIO members now in the armed service of their country, but to all of our boys in uniform.

"Our contributions here and abroad can be, if we want to make them that, a pledge and a symbol of the kind of world this war is fought to win—a world where men in all lands will live in security, freedom and peace."

Blast Pegler For Attack On NMU

Chicago, Oct. 16—A protest against Westbrook Pegler's slanderous attacks on labor in general and the National Maritime Union in particular was made this week by a CIO committee in an interview with the city editor of the Chicago Daily News, which carries Pegler's vicious column.

Fullerton Fulton, CIO regional director, headed the protest committee.

CIO Packinghouse Convention Praises Murray's Leadership

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Highest praise for the win-the-war leadership of CIO Pres. Philip Murray marked the opening this week of the first constitutional convention of the Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee, which has as its number one job the setting up of an international CIO union. In a telegram to Murray, officers of the organization said:

"We wish in our first national convention to thank you for your leadership and for our great CIO, and assure you that our place is in the CIO, and we further promise that our decisions will be founded in the best interests of the CIO and the membership of the PWOC."

The convention was opened by CIO Regional Director Fullerton Fulton, who hailed the close cooperation between CIO and the union and expressed CIO's interest in seeing that a strong international organization is established.

MAIN JOBS

Main jobs of the convention, as outlined by PWOC Chairman Sam Sponseller, include the setting up of the international and action to facilitate negotiations with the Big Four packers so as to win substantial gains for the workers and to maintain continuous production, in line with CIO's no-strike pledge.

In a pre-convention meeting, PWOC staff members heard from Allan S. Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization, and David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the United Steelworkers of America.

Haywood declared that the growth of PWOC as an international union will largely depend on the responsibility of the organization's officials, and cited the experiences of the United Auto Workers Union and the USA as examples.

CITE GROWTH OF UAW, USA

Picturing the growth of the UAW and the USA to their present positions as first and second largest unions in the nation, Haywood paid tribute to their "outstanding leadership." He assured the PWOC leaders that the CIO will offer every possible cooperation in aiding the growth of the union.

Both Haywood and McDonald paid high tribute to President Murray for his statesmanship, his wisdom and his understanding of the labor movement.

McDonald said that the USA leadership, under Murray, decided to "build on solid rock, not on shifting sands."

"You have grown," he told the PWOC officers. "You have brought good things into the lives of the members of the PWOC. Have pride and loyalty in your union and build it."

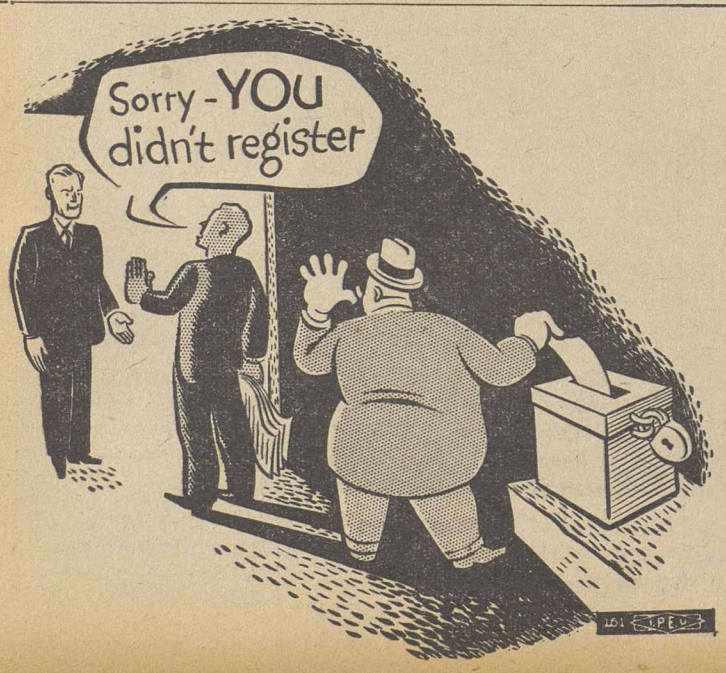
Plaque for Murray Will Hail Win-War Leadership of CIO

Butte, Mont., Oct. 9—CIO Pres. Philip Murray's win-the-war leadership will be honored at the forthcoming CIO Convention by presentation of a plaque from the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Union.

The recently concluded MM&SW convention unanimously approved the suggestion for the presentation, made by Pres. Reid Robinson.

To Enter Navy

New York, Oct. 16—John V. Cooney, secretary-treasurer of the CIO United Retail, Wholesale & Department Store Employes, has resigned to enter the Navy, the union announced this week. He has held office since the union was chartered by CIO in 1937.



UAW's Four Top Officers Re-Elected

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 16—Renewing its no-strike pledge without qualification and re-electing its four chief officers, after close contests in three cases, the UAW-CIO this week adjourned its eighth convention on a strong note of unity.

President R. J. Thomas was re-elected by acclamation, but Secretary George F. Addes and Vice-Presidents Richard T. Frankensteen and Walter P. Reuther had to fight for re-election in roll-call votes reflecting sharp division among the more than 2,000 delegates.

On the first roll-call, Addes defeated Richard T. Leonard. Reuther then won re-election as vice-president by a margin of a few hundred votes, out of some 7,500 cast, over Frankensteen. On the third ballot, Frankensteen was also re-elected vice-president by a similarly close margin over Leonard.

NEW BOARD MEMBERS

New executive board members elected for the first time include Percy Llewelyn of the big Ford local, replacing Leonard; Arnold Coxhill of Michigan, replacing Linwood Smith; Joseph Mattson of the Midwest region, replacing George Nordstrom, and Wm. R. Blakely of the Eastern region, replacing Edward F. Gray. All other board members were re-elected.

The resolution on the no-strike pledge declared that the UAW-CIO "reaffirms without any qualification its no-strike pledge to the nation and its fighting men to maintain continuous and uninterrupted production of materials necessary for the successful prosecution of the war."

In cases where management takes advantage of the no-strike pledge "to destroy collective bargaining," the resolution calls for "government operation of such plants under the war powers of the President and not under the Smith-Connally act, with full guarantees of all collective bargaining rights for the workers in the plants and with the elimination of all profits to the employers."

URGE POLITICAL ACTION

Finally, the no-strike resolution urged greater use of "labor's most powerful weapon of political action."

Other resolutions adopted in the closing sessions of the seven-day convention took a strong position against anti-Negro discrimination and for the rights of minorities; for scrapping of the Little Steel formula and stabilization of wages through an industry-wide agreement, and for vigorous support of the President in efforts to roll back prices.

Seasonal Work Ruling

Washington, Oct. 16—Seasonal workers in war production or in support of the war effort may move from one locality to another without losing their occupational classification as long as they continue to qualify as "necessary men" in their seasonal occupations, the Selective Service Bureau of the War Manpower Commission has announced.

Take It from Hillman:—

U.S. Labor Will Pack Real Punch In '44 Elections

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—Take it from a man who knows—CIO's going to throw its weight around, come the 1944 elections. The man is Sidney Hillman, chairman of CIO's Political Action Committee, who has just returned for important political conferences from a tour of the nation, which has laid the groundwork of organization that is expected to turn out the greatest labor and progressive vote in American political history in crucial 1944.

With solid political set-ups functioning on a unity basis in the mid-West and on the Pacific Coast, Hillman and his committee aren't stopping there. Immediately after the CIO Convention, the head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers expects again to go on tour, this time to St. Louis, Cincinnati, Kansas City and Denver to hold regional conferences to complete organization on a nation-wide basis.

Hillman reported that CIO's political program has met widespread acceptance not only among CIO affiliates, as would be expected, but also among AFL, Railroad Brotherhood, farm and progressive organizations. They look to CIO leadership to help reverse the reactionary legislative trend and to guarantee that officials elected in 1944 really represent the wishes of the people.

Throughout his tour, Hillman stressed that labor's job is to elect officials who are 100 per cent for winning the war, and who are pledged to a post-war program which will aim at maintaining unity among the United Nations, and will guarantee jobs for all who want to work.

LABOR'S CANDIDATE: Detroit labor registered its greatest political victory when its choice for mayor, Frank FitzGerald (above), now circuit court commissioner, was nominated by a landslide vote. He received 97,000 votes to 60,000 for Edward J. Jeffries, incumbent, also nominated. (Federated Pictures.)

Labor Going to Town In Local Politics

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Labor political activity is getting down to cases throughout the country, with an increasing number of labor-backed candidates being nominated for office and with concrete activities on the local level multiplying rapidly.

In Philadelphia, the CIO, acting through the United Labor Committee, has endorsed William Leader, president of Branch 1 of the Federation of Hosiery Workers, CIO, for a post on the city council.

In New York, CIO and some AFL endorsement was assured for Eugene Connolly, ALP candidate for a council job.

New York CIO political action is also counter-attacking a landlords' drive to raise rents 10 per cent. This hi-jacking attempt, following the recent application of rent control to New York, will be met head-on by CIO, Michael Quill, candidate for a council post and CIO political leader, declared.

In Pittsburgh, delegates from CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods fraternal groups and merchants will meet in a conference Oct. 24 to map out an attack on cost-of-living and other war problems. Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, president of UE Local 601, is one of the leaders.

10% R. R. Pay Hike

Washington, Oct. 9—A pay increase of 10 per cent for 1,700 workers of the government-operated American Railroad Company of Puerto Rico who are represented by the Brotherhood of Railroad Workers was announced this week by the War Labor Board.

UNITY FOR VICTORY: That was the theme expressed by Chairman Sidney Hillman of CIO's Political Action Committee on his tour of the nation to set up regional CIO political groups. Hillman, left, was welcomed to Los Angeles by California CIO Director Harry Bridges, president of the Int'l Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Keep Your Eye On Congress

The expected grand offensive for the sales tax is in full swing, with CIO's counter-attack being made in the House Ways and Means Committee by Pres. Murray and a series of CIO witnesses, some of them rank and file workers from the plants. (See story, this page.)

The vote on increasing allotments to soldiers' dependents, brought to a head on the initiative of CIO and CIO Women's Auxiliaries, is set for this Monday, Oct. 18. The CIO-backed proposals are in the Sadowski bill, which raises the amount to $120 a month for a wife and two children. As The CIO NEWS went to press, Rep. Sadowski plans to offer an amendment to the House Military Affairs Committee's (S 1279) to bring it up to these standards.

The food front, polltax repeal, subsidies for price roll-back are still marking time, with action expected soon.

BILL	WHAT IS DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Tax bill.	Your new taxes.	Hearings on in House Ways and Means Committee.	Redouble action against sales tax, for real win-war tax bill based on ability to pay.
Aid to servicemens' dependents (S 1279).	House Military Affairs Committee bill sets aid to wife and two children at $95 a month, CIO asks $120.	Vote set Monday, Oct. 18, with Rep. Sadowski offering amendments to meet CIO standards. If S 1279, already passed by Senate, goes through as reported or as amended, it then goes to Senate for conference and re-passage.	If S 1279 goes to conference, wire Senators supporting amendments up to CIO levels.
Polltax repeal (HR 7).	Brings 10 million Americans into democracy.	Debate on "constitutionality" set for Oct. 25. Senate action after that.	Press for early Senate vote, ask your Senators to vote cloture to kill filibuster.
Eastland-McClelland (S 1418).	Raises retail quart price of milk 1c now, more within 90 days. Would smash all "hold-the-line" attempts.	Senate Agriculture Committee, Sen. E. D. Smith (polltaxer, S. C.), chairman.	Write Smith, other Committee members and all Senators against.
Chinese Exclusion Repeal (HR 3070).	Repeals anti-United Nations bans on Chinese immigration, citizenship.	Reported out of House Immigration Committee, ready to hit floor.	Write your Representative for. CIO and FDR favor this bill.

Subsidy Defeat

House Group Votes to Hike Food Prices

Washington, Oct. 16—A politically vindictive anti-FDR majority this week forced the House Banking Committee to recommend that Congress rob food from American workers' tables by boosting living costs ten billion dollars a year.

The committee vote—16 to 10—urged the House to approve a bill which would kill the Roosevelt Administration's program for rolling back food prices by use of subsidies, which help keep down consumers' living costs.

Eleven committee Republicans joined with four Democrats and one Progressive to vote death for subsidies. Ten Democrats supported FDR's program.

Opposition to the committee action was expressed by War Food Administrator Marvin Jones, who estimated that the sabotage of Roosevelt's price rollback plan would force the American people to pay 5 cents a pound more for butter, four cents more for cheese, and a substantial amount more for canned goods.

Meanwhile, CIO rallied its forces for a showdown fight on subsidies, with Legislative Director Nathan Cowan asking support from all CIO affiliates.

Cowan praised one action of the committee which extended the life of the Commodity Credit Corp. (U. S. agency that buys and resells food to guarantee adequate prices to farmers), but warned that victory for the anti-Administration forces on the subsidy issue would lead to disastrous inflation.

In a letter to CIO affiliates, Cowan briefly summarized the effect of subsidies, as follows:

1. "From time to time the cost of producing foods and other essentials will go up due to unavoidable war situations.

2. "If these cost increases are met by rising prices, inflation is inescapable.

3. "If cost increases are met by subsidy payments, prices can be held and inflation defeated.

4. "Congress should grant the CCC the funds it requests, with authority to pay subsidies to farmers in order to meet higher costs without raising retail food prices."

In a final plea for action, Cowan declared: "The way to hold the line is to hold the line, using subsidies when, as and if necessary."

CIO Rank and File Demands Win-War Tax Measure

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—CIO day on taxes brought a new experience to the Congressmen who are shaping the 1944 tax bill in the House Ways and Means Committee here this week.

It brought nearly a score of men and women from war plants and homes all over the country to tell the Congressmen in warm, human terms exactly what it is like to live on a war worker's wages with inflated living costs to fight with. They told Congress what a sales tax and other new burdens on the workers would mean to their health and working ability.

The Congressmen were impressed, since it isn't often they hear from the voters on such things as taxes. One of them was so impressed, in fact, that he lost his head in his excitement at seeing the people's delegates, and called Richard T. Frankenteen and all labor leaders "thugs and bandits."

This Congressman was Daniel A. Reed, (R., N. Y.), and his face turned a deep purple with rage as he looked at the working men and women on the stand telling Congress of their needs and their living conditions. The insult to all labor was duly marked by Frankensteen, who told Reed that the war workers would hear about it and would remember it.

First rank and file delegate on the stand was Glenn Speelman of the United Steelworkers, who told in simple terms of the struggle he and his family had to live on the $2,500 a year he earned before taxes and other deductions were taken out.

Speelman's appearance was resisted at first by Rep. Doughton (D., N. C.), but after that no argument was put up by the committee against the rest of the witnesses from the plain people. In fact, the Congressmen stayed through the day to listen—particularly the Republican members, who may have felt a sense of guilt about Reed's outburst against American labor.

Frankensteen was followed by three UAW workers, one of whom told the committee the facts of life on a worker's wages and a family of nine children. Michael J. Quill, Transport Workers president and candidate for the New York city Council, brought two live, "exhibits" with him.

WIVES ON STAND

A moving part of the testimony was the appearance of two war workers' wives, CIO Women's Auxiliary members from Cumberland, Md. These witnesses, Mrs. Winona Snyder and Mrs. Katherine Weatherholt, told of the struggle the working class housewife has to keep her man on the war job and her family healthy with present high taxes, living costs and other enemies of the budget.

Speaking for the CIO's third largest union, the Electrical Radio and Machine Workers, Frances Sayler told of the UE's basic position on taxes. She said the tax problem must be approached in the same way we should approach all problems of wartime living—consider their effect on the victory drive in the great offensives now getting under way.

Tax Profits, Not Poor People To Help Win War

By C. W. FOWLER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—A parade of CIO rank and file people, led by President Philip Murray, held the floor all day today in the House Ways and Means Committee to tell the Congressmen what the war workers and their families expect from the 1944 tax bill, now under consideration in the Committee.

The Committee, one of the largest and most im-portant in Congress, was impressed with the case for taxes based on ability to pay and on the needs of the war workers as presented by Murray and a succession of men and women workers from the war plants and offices of the nation.

So much impressed, in fact, was the Committee that for the first time in Capitol history practically all the members stayed through to listen to labor witnesses. Possibly the fact that they came from all industries and all parts of the country, and that they spoke directly as war workers and voters, helped to hold the Congressmen's attention.

Murray Testifies

President Murray led off the testimony with a presentation and discussion of CIO's win-the-war tax policy, in which he put the main stress on the fact that war workers want to pay their proper share of taxes. He said they insist that already inadequate incomes should not be cut any further, whether by a sales tax or by other taxes aimed mostly at the low income groups.

This, he pointed out, was more than simply a matter of fair play. It was a matter of choosing between higher war production or lower, between a stronger war drive or a weakening of the victory program, since new taxes on wage earners could only come out of their living standards and thus would impair their productive efficiency.

Cites Low Wages

Driving home this point in detail, Murray cited the fact that over 61 per cent of wage earners get less than $2,500 a year, which, for the average family of four, is only "a minimum maintenance budget."

"The problem before your committee is very simple," he said. "Do you wish to impose taxes which cut down the food consumption of the families of war workers? That is exactly what you will do if you impose additional taxes on the low income groups. That is exactly the blow that will be struck against the war effort if we add to the already serious financial burdens now borne by the war workers."

Huge war profits have been scarcely touched, Murray said, citing fantastic profit increases by leading corporations during the past year—doubling and redoubling of profits even after all taxes have been paid, inflated reserves laid aside, and the like.

Prices Going Up

In calling for no new burdens on the war workers, Murray pointed out that the stabilization program has operated on wages only, while prices have gone continually up. He also reminded Congress that the pledge to the people to hold the line on prices has not yet been carried out.

"The average American family is thus at least nine per cent in the red in the balance between prices and wage rates," he said. "Of course the discrepancy between prices and wages, as disclosed by the official indices, does not reflect the even far greater loss in real wages through the widespread violations in ceiling prices and prevailing black markets."

Concluding the first part of his testimony, he called again for the CIO program of no sales taxes; no new taxes on those getting $3,000 or less a year; raising of income tax exemption levels; repeal of the mis-called "Victory Tax," with no new impositions in its place; increased income taxes on the $3,000 and up levels; holding income at $25,000; and greater taxes on war profits.

Asks Pay Raises

In a supplemental statement, Murray called for revision of the national wage policy to give workers "appropriate wage increases" to meet living costs.

The common labor weekly pay in steel, for example, he cited at $35.88, which does not "permit a steel worker to maintain his family, meet his fixed obligations, and buy the necessities of life that he requires to perform the arduous work demanded in a steel mill."

Backing this up, he put two letters into the record on the situation of the coal miners, showing the serious wage grievances behind the miners' restlessness and sporadic strikes.

"The workers can't eat statistics or polices or theories," he said. "It takes cold, hard cash to buy the necessities of life. We want the steel workers and the auto workers and the shipyard workers, the rubber workers and all the other wage earners to maintain a standard that will give them the health and efficiency necessary for their war work."

HELP SALVAGE SCRAP

Separate the regular scrap—turnings, stampings, filings, all the metal waste produced in your plant—by its alloy content. You thus insure its re-use where it is needed most.

Keep an eye out for junk around the plant—old or out-of-date machinery, pipe, pumps, shafting, dies, jigs, tools, engines, electrical apparatus—the equipment that is overlooked in routine scrap collections. All this metal can be used now.

Report the cobweb scrap—the equipment that has been gathering dust in the corner for an emergency. Outdated machinery and tools, extra fixtures, patterns, stocks, unused metal buildings—they are needed today.

United Against the Axis!

Tax Crisis

CIO Pres. Philip Murray appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee at a critical moment for our war effort.

Any weakening of our home front at this time can only have the most serious effects on the growing offensive of our armed forces.

Yet Congress is seriously considering tax proposals that would have the most devastating impact on the welfare, morale and productive efficiency of the men and women upon whom our fighting men depend for their weapons and supplies.

There is money aplenty available for all our increased war needs, if war profits are adequately taxed, if special privileges are abolished, and if income taxes are increased on incomes over $3,000 a year.

Yet all the present concentration in Congress and the press is on raising most of the extra tax revenue from the lower-income groups, through such vicious measures as the sales tax, and through lowering exemptions to tax people who do not even make enough to live on as it is.

Murray and other CIO witnesses showed statistically and through the actual experience of working people that further taxes cannot be imposed on incomes of less than $3,000 without disastrous effects on the health, morale and productive efficiency of our war workers.

The CIO points out that present tax exemptions must be increased to at least $750 for the single man, $1,500 for the married couple and $400 for each dependent, if the low-paid are to be left enough for the necessities of life.

Murray denounced the sales tax as "a national wage cut bearing most heavily on the low-income groups" and said it would leave labor no resort but to demand a proportionate increase in wages to offset it.

He called for progressively higher income taxes on incomes above $3,000, with a limit of $25,000 a year on individual net incomes after taxes; for drastically increased taxes on corporate profits, to end war profiteering; for the elimination of special tax privileges and for higher estate and gift taxes; and for an expanded social security program, as proposed in the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill.

Congress must choose in the near future between two alternatives: either to undermine the war effort through unjust taxes giving special privilege to a few at the expense of the health and efficiency of esesntial war workers; or to adopt a real victory tax program, as proposed by the CIO.

All the efforts of CIO representatives in Washington to persuade Congress to make the right decision will be without avail unless they are backed by unremitting efforts on the part of all CIO and win-the-war forces throughout the country.

It is the folks back home who sent them to Congress that have the greatest influence on the members of Congress. And that means YOU.

Chinese Exclusion

Prospects for repeal of the discriminatory Chinese exclusion laws have greatly improved with the favorable report of the House Immigation Committee and the forthright stand of Pres. Roosevelt.

The President points out that repeal is urgently necessary for United Nations unity and to silence the distorted Japanese propaganda on the subject.

It is a standing insult to our gallant fighting allies, the Chinese, to deny them the immigration rights accorded to other nationalities and the opportunity to become citizens when resident in the United States.

No issue of letting down immigration barriers to permit a mass influx of Chinese labor is involved. For to treat China on an equal basis with other countries under our quota system would only permit about a hundred to be admitted annually.

About the only important opposition to repeal comes from the AFL, though many of its affiliates favor it. This is as discreditable to that organization as is the policy of many of its unions in denying equal union rights to Negroes and continuing other forms of racial discrimination.

So far as the CIO is concerned, it has two of the soundest reasons for urging repeal:

(1) The CIO has made winning this war its first concern and favors any step that will forge closer United Nations unity for this purpose.

(2) The CIO, in principle and practice, opposes racial discrimination as un-American, Hitleristic, contrary to labor's interests and disruptive of our war effort.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Len De Caux

WHEN you boil down all the big issues now being battled out in Congress, you will find a struggle between special privilege, on the one hand, and the nation's war interests, on the other.

If enough tax money is to be raised, it must come from those who have money to spare—from high incomes, war profits and all the cosy cubby-holes where the specially privileged conceal their surplus wealth.

If the people are to maintain their health and strength for winning the war, living costs must be kept within reach of wages. But this means limiting the special privilege of raising prices.

Increased war production demands close planning and coordination of contract allocation, manpower distribution, supplying of materials, housing, transportation, etc. But this infringes on many special privileges of monopoly, competitive advantage, profiteering and the like.

So on the three major home front issues now before Congress—taxes, living costs and manpower—we find the representatives of special privilege fighting desperately against steps which are obviously necessary for war efficiency.

And to maintain their special privilege at the expense of the rest of the population, they have a simple formula:

"When privilege is threatened, take the offensive against labor and make the little fellow pay."

★ ★ ★

Government studies show that 8% of the American population—with incomes of $5,000 a year and more—have a total surplus of 14 billion dollars after meeting all living expenses at luxury standards and paying all taxes.

All the rest of the people, with lower incomes, more—have a total surplus of 14 billion dollars and bare living expenses—and the majority of them have no surplus whatever, while millions lack enough for a healthy and decent living.

Obviously then, the war interest demands that extra taxes come chiefly from people with $5,000 and more; and that those with barely enough or less than enough to live on should be exempt from taxation.

But the Chamber of Commerce and Congressional spokesmen of special privilege are not waiting for this logic to sink home.

To protect high profits from further taxation, to preserve existing tax privileges, to prevent increased taxes on upper incomes, and to avert a $25,000 limit on individual net incomes, they have taken the offensive to make the little fellow pay, through a 10% sales tax.

And unfortunately, even the U. S. Treasury has yielded to the pressure of special privilege in recommending income taxes for married couples with less than $1200—the present exemption level which does not allow for a healthy and decent living as it is.

★ ★ ★

A similar line-up is obvious on subsidies.

Wages have long been frozen, while living costs have continued to rise. The war interest demands that war workers should be able to buy enough with their wages to maintain health, morale and productive efficiency—and that there should be no inflationary race between wages and prices.

Living costs must therefore be controlled and rolled back to the level of frozen wages. And the only way to do this, without squeezing the farmer, is through food price subsidies.

But to protect the right to profiteer through higher prices, the special-privilege crowd apply their usual formula—"make labor and the little fellow pay."

In opposing subsidies and offering no alternative to reduce living costs, they demand special privilege for a profiteering minority at the expense of constantly lowered living standards for the workers and all fixed-income groups.

★ ★ ★

On manpower it is the same kind of story. The war interest demands drastic steps to insure adequate manpower as and where needed—by ending discrimination against Negroes and women; by compelling continuous operation of plants; by providing adequate housing, transportation, and feeding, child care and community facilities; and generally by overall planning and coordination of all phases of our productive effort.

But again the special-privilege crowd have taken the offensive—against labor.

They demand passage of the Austin-Wadsworth forced labor bill, which would solve none of these problems, but which they hope will divert attention from the real solution.

Look down the legislative list and you will find that on every issue the CIO is fighting for necessary steps in the national war interest, while those who oppose are fighting only for special privilege.

'China Is Our Ally'

Exclusion Act Repeal Backed By Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—President Roosevelt has stepped in to help remove the anti-United Nations bar against Chinese immigration and citizenship in this country, in an appeal to Congress this week for quick passage of a bill to repeal the Chinese Exclusion Act, action long favored by the CIO.

"China is our ally," the President said. "For many long years she stood alone in the fight against aggression. Today we fight at her side.

"China has understood that the strategy of victory in this world war first required the concentration of the greater part of our strength on the European front," he explained, adding that the offensive against Japan was in preparation.

"But China's resistance does not depend on guns and planes alone . . . it is based as much on the spirit of her people and her faith in her allies.

"We owe it to the Chinese to strengthen that faith. One step in this direction is to wipe from the statute books those anachronisms in the law which forbid the immigration of Chinese people in this country and which bar Chinese residents from American citizenship."

WLB Ruling

Incentive Pay Plans Need Union OK's

Washington, Oct. 16—An important pro-labor precedent was set this week by the Natl. War Labor Board. The Board held that when a union is a bargaining agent in a plant where an incentive pay system is under consideration, both the union and the management must agree on the plan before it can be adopted.

In an opinion which approved an incentive plan in a case involving the Gruman Aircraft Engineering Corp., the WLB laid down this general principle to govern its action in cases concerning incentive pay. In the Gruman case no union was involved.

A concurring opinion in the case signed by two CIO representatives on the Board, John Brophy and Carl Shipley, stated:

"Since it is possible that production may be improved in some plants by the introduction of properly established incentive systems, thereby contributing to the winning of the war, we have concurred in the decision in this case. But this decision must be considered only as a tentative step in the solution of the problem confronting the Board, not as a general guide for new incentive systems."

Haas Resigns As Fair Job Group Head

Washington, Oct. 16—Continued efforts to purge race discrimination from our national life were urged by Chairman Francis J. Haas of the President's Fair Employment Practice Committee in submitting his resignation this week.

Monsignor Haas has been appointed Bishop of Grand Rapids by the Vatican.

"The essential rightness of the President's Executive Order against discrimination because of race, creed, color or national origin appeared clear to me when I took office as Chairman of the Committee four months ago," Msgr. Haas said.

"In that brief period the close experience with the problems of the men and women who have suffered discrimination at the hands of fellow-Americans has deepened my conviction that this practice must be purged from our national life if we are both to win this war and consolidate our life as a democratic nation thereafter."

See Gains in CIO's Fight For Higher Army Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Out of a tangled parliamentary situation in Congress, the CIO's move to get higher benefits for wives and kids of servicemen seemed certain to result in at least a fairly good compromise bill this week, as the final vote was scheduled for Oct. 18.

This briefly was the situation as The CIO NEWS went to press. Four weeks ago, the CIO and the CIO Women's Auxiliaries began demanding increases over the $72 a month for a wife and two children in the old law, asking that it be raised to $120, with $30 a month for each additional child.

This pressure resulted in the House Military Affairs Committee rushing out with the present version of S 1279, which raises the ante to $95. The House had been leisurely considering the Senate's version of the bill, which called for an increase from $72 to $79.

Before this, however, Rep. George Sadowski (D., Mich.) had put the CIO proposals into HR 3343, which was ignored by the Committee in its haste to report the compromise version of S 1279 and get it to a vote.

MURRAY'S LETTER

Last week, CIO President Philip Murray stepped into the situation with an urgent letter to Congress asking the Representatives to vote for the provisions of HR 3343 in whatever measures they passed.

Following this, Nathan Cowan, CIO legislative director, wired the Congressmen asking them to support an amendment which would be offered when the bill came to a vote, raising S 1279 to the level of the Sadowski bill. In addition, Cowan testified in favor of the Sadowski bill, and the Auxiliaries offered similar support.

In speaking for the benefit scales in his bill, Rep. Sadowski pointed out that the Military Affairs Committee measure would give only $25 to the first child, $20 to the second and $15 for each additional child.

HITS DISCRIMINATION

"I am wondering, therefore, if we are to assume that the third or fourth child must eat less than his brothers and sisters, or that he must be compelled to receive less clothing and other care," he said.

"On the basis of $15 a month per child, we are telling the father who is being called into the service that we expect his wife to feed and clothe and house these children on the sum of 50 cents a day."

This means, Sadowski added, that we expect these children to be strong and healthy on eight-cent meals, after taking out the slimmest possible amounts for other needs of a family.

"Now, if any mother can feed a child on a basis of eight cents a meal in any city, town or village in the whole United States, I would like to hear about it," he added.

"For my part, I don't propose to experiment on the children of these servicemen."

Vote 2-1 for CIO Stone Union

Barre, Vt., Oct. 16—Workers of the South Carolina Granite Co., Blair, S. C., voted 45 to 26 for the United Stone & Allied Products Workers, the CIO union announced here this week. The company is a subsidiary of the Southern Aggregates Corp., with whom the union has contracts covering four plants.

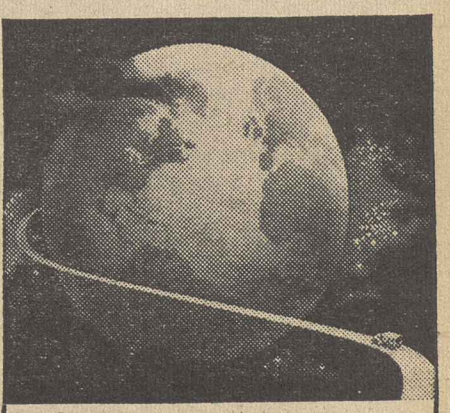
Studebaker military trucks, like our Yanks, are certainly seeing the world

AMERICA'S fighting men have been covering plenty of this planet in their travels in this war. Yet there's scarcely a place where they set down their packs that they don't find large numbers of familiar Studebaker motor trucks.

They see long lines of big, multiple-drive Studebaker military trucks rumbling past the sites of ancient Persian cities in Iran. They see them doing heavy transport duty in India, in Alaska, in the British Isles, in almost every area of Allied war activity. It's one of the greatest compliments ever paid to the high quality of Studebaker craftsmanship that Studebaker today is one of the world's largest producers of big military trucks. And it's equally significant that tens of thousands of these powerful Studebakers have already won their service stripes —many of them on the crucial Russian front in the supply trains of the invincible Soviet armies.

Studebaker is also producing other vital war matériel including more and more of the mighty Wright Cyclone engines that power the famous Boeing Flying Fortress on many of its bombing sorties.



The roadways of the world are worn deep with Studebaker wheel marks—For over 91 years, Studebaker vehicles have written their share of transportation history all over the world. We are proud of the extent and consequence of our assignments on the production front.

Unity for Rollback

Labor Flays Drive For Higher Prices

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—"A new drive to force higher living costs on the American public daily gathers strength in Congress, while the rollback program promised by the President a month ago is not yet launched," the OPA Labor Policy Committee, made up of AFL, CIO and Railroad labor unions, said today.

"If the inflationeers in Congress kill off necessary and limited subsidies proposed by the Administration, the rollback will fail and an early and rapid upswing in living costs undoubtedly will take place," the Committee said.

"Labor will be double-crossed in the support it has given to wage and price stabilization, and will demand sweeping revision of the tight controls now imposed on wages. People who live on pensions, soldiers' allotments, fixed salaries or professional earnings will feel the full force of the all-out inflation which the reckless contingent in Congress seems determined to turn loose.

NEW TAX COLLECTOR: Here's the man who will collect your income tax. He's Robert Hannegan, who has just been appointed Commissioner of Internal Revenue. (Federated Pictures.)

"One year ago Congress ordered prices and hourly wage rates stabilized at the September, 1942, level. The wage freeze was carried out. The War Labor Board reports that under its orders average basic hourly wage rates have risen only a fraction of 1 per cent since October, 1942.

DOUBLETALK ON PRICES

"With respect to prices, however, the law of last October proved to be so much doubletalk. Food prices rose rapidly for seven months, and have been checked since last May only by use of subsidies and through tighter controls on some seasonal foods.

"The inflation bloc in Congress opposed payment of subsidies for that purpose. While yielding last July to a Presidential veto, leaders of the bloc punished OPA with restrictive legislation and delayed further use of subsidies through commitments exacted in executive sessions.

"Now the same group in Congress is out to kill off subsidies once and for all. The Administration request for grant of subsidy authority to the Commodity Credit Corporation to hold food prices down is being reviewed in committee and is under constant attack by advocates of higher prices.

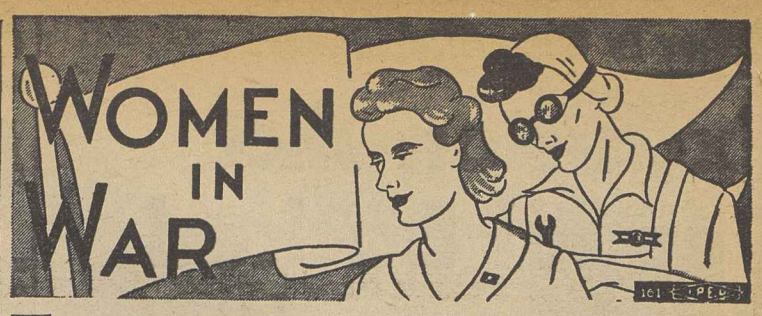
MILK SUBSIDIES ENDANGERED

"Subsidies now being paid to help milk producers to meet increased costs without increasing the cost to consumers are endangered by the Eastland-McClellan Bill in the Senate, which orders an immediate increase in the retail price and a further increase in 90 days.

"Oil industry proposals are being considered in Congress to legislate an increase in the price of crude oil over OPA's refusal to grant that increase. Here again subsidies paid to some few oil producers squeezed by price ceilings could maintain oil production without raising prices or enriching the profitable producers," the Labor Policy Committee said.

"Action of Congress on subsidies now undoubtedly will determine whether the recent check on living costs can be extended, or is to give way to a renewed upsurge in prices and complete breakdown of price control.

"The alternative to subsidies is inflation. Those who vote for it can be held to account for the disasters they will inflict on the home front now and during the post-war collapse which would inevitably follow inflation."



Taxes for Victory Must Not Wreck Health of Workers

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

There are three things you can't escape in this world—birth, death and taxes. The first two are common property. We're fast learning that the last is not for experts only, because taxes take such a terrific grab out of our pay envelopes each week.

That doesn't mean we're not ready and willing to bear every necessary burden to win the war as quickly as possible. We know this is a people's war and that no group stands to win more by a quick victory than labor.

But when we hear our national government seriously propose that income tax exemptions be reduced to $1,100 for a couple and $300 for each dependent we ask ourselves whether that makes sense. Here's why:

A family of four—two parents and two children—would only have $1,700 a year income tax free. That's about a thousand doliars less than scientific studies of the famous San Francisco Heller Committee show is a minimum health and decency budget for that family.

The CIO says that a family of four must have an absolute minimum of $2,300 to buy the essentials of healthy living. If they have to pay a 20 or 30% tax on $600 of that income—as they would have to do under the Treasury tax proposals—they will have to do without food and clothing which they need to keep well.

NOT AID TO VICTORY

We don't think that's the way to speedy victory. Quite the opposite. Undermining the health of our workers will result in more absences from the job, in more accidents, in fewer planes and tanks and guns.

If we didn't have enough food for full meals it would be different. We'd all go hungry as a war necessity as they do in Russia. Health production efficiency would suffer, but it couldn't be helped. But that's not necessary in the United States.

The rations of meats and fats, of canned goods and sugar are plenty for healthful living. Our problem is to see to it that all families have enough money to buy their rightful share of food. And that means less taxes on low incomes—not more.

The tax proposals now before the House Ways and Means Committee are a very real threat to the war effort, and it's up to us to see that our Congressmen understand why, and vote accordingly.

AGAINST SALES TAX

Ask them to vote for raising income tax exemptions to $1,500 with $400 for each child. Ask them to vote against any kind of sales tax because it would cut food budgets of low income families.

If your Congressman asks you just where are we going to get the money to win the war, tell him to raise corporation taxes, limit big incoems to $25,000 and close tax loopholes. Explain to him that your first concern is victory and that starvation on the home front will not bring victory on the fighting front.

Every member of every CIO family should write to Congress on this issue. A fair tax bill based on ability to pay is a vital part of our whole win-the-war program. Hearings are on now in the House. Don't delay!

Farm Union Warning

Bankers Plot Overthrow Of Low-Cost Loan System

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—"American bankers, who ten years ago were conducting mass foreclosures against the hard-pressed farmers of the nation are today starting a drive to get farmers back into their lock boxes," the Natl. Union Farmer charged this week.

The official paper of the Farmers' Union said that the American Bankers Association, working behind the scenes in government circles, is trying to wreck cooperative low-cost credit for farmers.

The medium being used in Washington, it says, "is the so-called Cooley Committee, ostensibly set up to investigate the Farm Security Administration and to propose permanent legislation to govern the activities of that agency."

The Farmers paper said that "officials both of the American Banking Association and of state banking associations within the national body, have been courting Cooley Committee members, pointing out to them the alleged unfair competition of governmentally sponsored farm credit with banks."

This makes it clear, the paper states, "that unless farmers and farm organizations rally behind the cause of special credit facilities for farmers—one of the great continuing battles of agricultural history—the progress of more than 20 years may be lost.

"For the campaign now being waged by the American Bankers Association places in danger the whole farm credit structure—the Farm Credit and Farm Security Administration, the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporations, Bank for Cooperatives and even the Production Credit Association."

Guarantee Free Unions, CIO Council Urges

Pittsburgh, Oct. 16—A post-war world guaranteeing political and trade union freedom was urged this week by the Steel City Industrial Union Council, representing 200,000 CIO members.

In communications addressed to President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Joseph Stalin, the Council recommended the development of "the principle of free trade unionism, free independent collective bargaining, a definite guarantee that there shall be no restraint or hindrance on the part of employers or government in the individual's right to associate himself with a trade union of his own choosing."

Church Heads Ask Collective Security

New York, Oct. 16—Leaders of the three largest church groups in the United States this week called for a world order based on collective security to guarantee peace, and urged an end in all countries of racial, religious, or any other type of discrimination.

More than 140 top-ranking Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish leaders signed the peace statement, which called for "adequate sanctions" to enforce international law and prevent war.

The leaders called for a just social order in each State, and urged "a standard of living adequate for self-development and family life, decent conditions of work, and participation by labor in decisions affecting its welfare."

The rights of colonial peoples must be protected, the leaders urged, declaring that "the progress of undeveloped, colonial, or oppressed peoples toward political responsibility must be the object of international concern."

2-to-1 Pegler Never Prints This Story

Cleveland, Oct. 16—Two to one that Pegler never prints this! Three bosses this week were sentenced to ten years in prison, under the wartime sabotage laws, after a jury found that they had knowingly provided the Packard Motor Co. with defective castings for airplane engines.

The three were John L. Schmeller, former president of the Natl. Bronze & Aluminum Co., and his two brothers, Edward and Frank.

Carey Says:

Business Must Work With Labor

Washington, Oct. 16—Business men who have made up their minds to accept unions after the war were given much good advice in a speech made by CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey before the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Recalling the chaos and confusion that has resulted from certain business practices during past crises through which the Nation has passed, Carey said, in referring to the post-war period:

"It seems to me presumptuous for business to say, 'Just give us a free hand and we will see you all through'." There is no reason to believe, Carey said, "that business has abandoned the practices that led to the crash of '29."

Warning that the American people have projected their own hopes into the words of their leaders, the CIO leader declared that they must be protected "during the transition to civilian production if their faith in democracy is to survive."

Business men who put their energy into objecting to governmental control and to labor unions, he said will be left behind in the post-war world. "The new business leadership will welcome both," Carey declared, and will deal with "responsible forward-looking unions on a basis of mutual respect."

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

CIO this week chalked up the following victories:—

Amacher Mill near Klamath Falls, Ore.: IWA-CIO, no union none. Conner Land & Lumber Co.'s. Camps, Laona, Wisc.: IWA-CIO 93, against 12. This is last of Conner operations to come under IWA-CIO. Reported by Adolph Germer, Dir. Org., IWA-CIO.

Bethlehem, Lebanon Forge Co., Lebanon, Pa.: USA-290, against 26. Reported by Reg. Dir. George Craig. Paul R. Christopher, Reg. Dir., Tenn., reports: Southern Ferro Alloy Co., Chattanooga, USA 143, against 18. Reps. J. B. Frazier, O. S. Baxter and William Dunn of USA were in charge.

G. Geo. DeNucci, Sub-Reg. Dir., reports: Buckeye Overall Co., Coldwater, Ohio: OCWWA 124, against 866. Credit to Intl. Rep. Walther of ACWA who handled this election.

Walter Smethurst, Dir. Org. USWA-CIO, reports: Intl. Shoe Co., Sikeston, Mo.: CIO 368, against 87.

Reid Robinson, Pres. MMSW, reports: Hercules Powder Co., Hercules, Calif., CIO won bargaining rights. Port Colbourne, Ontario, MMSW Local was first local union to win an election and be certified as collective bargaining agency under new Ontario Labor Law. At Port Colubourne refinery of Intl. Nickel Co., CIO defeated company union 977 to 228. At Ruth & McGill, Nevada, by a 543 to 215 majority, CIO won seven out of twelve units in an election at properties of Kennecott Copper Corp. Another Nevada victory was won at Pioche at a property of the Combined Metal Reduction Co., Aluminum Co. of America, Torrance, Calif., by 223 to 181.

Other MM&SW victories included:— American Smelting and Refining Co., Patagonia, Ariz.: CIO 111, AFL 12, no union 2; Callahan Zinc and Lead Co., CIO 78, AFL 1, no union 6; National Machine Co., Los Angeles, CIO 197, no union 72; Acme Machine Co., Los Angeles: CIO 27, against 21; Volco Brass & Copper Co., Kenilworth, N. J.: CIO 199, against 69. This climaxed a bitter fight by the union since Nov. 1942, at which time the company refused to recognize the union, although it had a majority of signed cards, on the excuse of a signed agreement with an "employes association." As a result of union charges filed with the NLRB, this contract was thrown out and an election ordered.

Count 'Em, Brothers, Count 'Em!

John C. Lawson, Secy-Treas., US&APWA, reports: South Carolina Granite Co., Blair, S. C., CIO 45 against 26. Rep. J. B. Foreman organized this group. Green Mountain Marble Corp., W. Rutland, Vt., has been asked to recognized the CIO. All but two of 60 employes have signed up with the union.

J. H. Stocker, CIO Field Rep. reports: Nutrena Mills Inc., Sioux City, CIO won 22 to 13.

Bete Mosele, Reg. Dir., N. Y. reports: Swift Refinery Co., Port Newark, N. J.: CIO 65, no union 5. PWOC Rep. Ray Hobbs assisted in this election.

Julius Emspak, Secy-Treas., UERMWA, reports the following victories: United Shoe Machinery Co., Beverly, Mass., 23 to 2 (guards). Eastern Engineering Co., New Haven, Conn., 13 to 10. Perfection Mfg. Co., Minneapolis, 51 to 34. Wilson Packing Co., Minneapolis, 35 to 3. General Electric, Nela Park, Repair Section, Cleveland, 14 to 3. Holtzer Cabot, Boston, 562 to 551. General Electric, Base Works, Cleveland, 42 to 6. General Electric, Lamp Div., E. Cleveland, 775 to 147. General Electric, Cleveland Lamp Div., Cleveland, 174 to 94. Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., Mfg. & Repair Div., Baltimore, 24 to 16. Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co., Canton, 63 out of 109 by card check (inspectors). United American Metals, Brooklyn, 14 to 2.

More UE victories:— Thomas Spring & Wire Co., Hoboken,, N. J. 52 to 20. Shott Mfg. Co., Cincinnati, 14 out of 17 by card check. Kremer and Cummings Co., Cleveland, 20 out of 20 by card check. Paradise Machine Co., N. Bergen, N. J., 48 out of 60 by card check. Sylvania Elec. Products, Ipswich, Mass., 35 to 17 (guards). E. D. Jones Co., Pittsfield, Mass. 140 to 75. Ahlberg Bearing Co., Chicago, 384 to 72. Dayton Pump Co., 106 to 74. Remington Rand Co., Syracuse, N. Y., 264 to 190. Lummus Co., Philadelphia, 138 to 1. Standard Register Co., Dayton, 215 to 183. Canadian Locomotive, Kingston, Ontario, 576 to 104.

N. A. Zonarich, Pres. AWA-CIO, reports: Alcoa Plant, Pottsville, Pa., CIO 69.4%, District 50 20.73%, AFL 9.24%.

The writer is attending the PWOC convention in Chicago this week. This organization has progressed to a degree where they are now prepared to set up a national union and elect their own international officers.

FCC Head Demands Free 'Air' for Labor

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—Labor unions and cooperatives must be allowed to buy time on the air to present their side in controversies and to solicit members, Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications Commission told a meeting of the Radio Executives Club this week.

In the modern world, he informed the radio industry's biggest magnates, freedom of speech is not enough—it must be supplemented by freedom to listen. Those entrusted with radio facilities, he continued, must take stock of themselves and re-explore the whole significance of free speech. They "cannot impair the freedom to listen by restrictions imposed on the transmitter end," he said, adding:

"Time can now be bought for the sale of shoes and soap and sealing wax, cigarettes, beer, institutional good will and cathartics. But time can't be bought or received gratis for the solicitation of memberships except, of course, by mutual insurance companies. The very nature of the exception emphasizes the censorious quality of the rule."

Stating that radio may be held responsible for "having maintained or having subverted our fundamental principles of freedom," Fly denounced as a real menace the present bans which make it difficult or impossible for labor organizations, cooperatives, small businessmen's associations and other groups to buy time on the air.

ANSWER TO EXCUSES

In answer to radio management's excuse that labor is allowed free time on the air for controversial discussion, Fly said: "The poor relation who gets the free time cannot hope to attract the attention that the time-buyer builds up with his day-by-day bombardment, sometimes injecting his own philosophy."

Radio magnates listened politely but obviously did not like the words of the FCC head. They voted unanimously to reply to Fly in detail at a later date to "give our side of a most grave far-reaching issue."

"Just don't get a Middle Ages feeling about it and go over and sit in a corner at the Union League Club," Fly said as he left.

British Union Urges Equal Pay For Women Workers

LONDON, Oct. 16 (ALN)—The first National Women's Conference of the Transport and General Workers Union this week called for "equal pay for equal work" and continued government control of production after the war.

"Planning has come into the economic system of Britain now," Dorothy Coulthard, a London factory worker and one of the leaders of the conference, declared. "If it is possible in war, it is surely possible in peace."

Bus and trolley car conductors, engineers, munition workers, clerks and building workers are among the 300 delegates representing 300,000 women members of the TGWU.

Arthur Deakin, acting TGWU general secretary, told the convention that TGWU policy is to increase the rates of pay for women employed in "women's work," and "to secure equal rates for women doing the same work as men."

Deakin pointed out that of the 9,000,000 women in industry in Britain today, only 1,000,000 are union members.

A resolution demanding "equal chances for women in industry after the war" was unanimously adopted.

Other resolutions urged an end to discrimination against women, "the regulation of production according to use and not for profits," and improved facilities to solve the shopping and nursery problems of women workers.

Blue Network Sale OKed

Washington, Oct. 16—Sale of the Blue Network broadcasting system to Edward J. Noble, of New York, was approved this week, after extended hearings by the Federal Communications Commission. Noble is the millionaire president of the Lifesaver Corp.

The sale was OKed after Noble, in a written memorandum, promised that he would not automatically rule off the air any paid program because of the character of the sponsoring organization.

Argentine Unionists Revolt Against Pro-Fascists

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 16 (ALN)—Reports reaching here this week from Argentina tell of an increasingly bitter revolt by trade unionists against the government-sponsored wing of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT) and its secretary, Jose Domenech.

The reports disclose that recent arrests of anti-fascists in Buenos Aires, including anti-Domenech union members, have been made with the aid of known German agents cooperating with the "Special Section" of the Interior Ministry.

They were kidnapped by Nazi agents, who, after severely beating them, turned them over to the "Special Section." Many of those arrested were seized during street demonstrations against the Ramirez dictatorship, at which huge crowds shouting "vivas" for the United Nations were attacked with tear gas and clubs.

The startling resemblance between the labor policies of the Ramirez regime and those of nazism is shown in a Labor Department directive recently issued to Buenos Aires unions by department head Dr. Emilio Pellet Lastra. "We expect complete collaboration from all labor organizations," the directive stated.

"You must completely refrain from any political activity—national or international—limiting yourselves strictly to union problems.

"Unions must not be governed by political aims, nor provoke strikes on false pretexts, nor originate movements which might cause public dissension.

"They must trust the State to attend constantly and partriotically to the solution of all social problems."

6,000 Office Workers To Vote on CIO

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 16—One of the largest elections involving office employes of a basic war factory is heading up here at Curtiss-Wright Corp., with the CIO United Office & Professional Workers opposing the Int. Assn. of Machinists.

The company, which apparently is almost as much interested as the UOPWA in establishing stable bargaining relations, has filed a petition with the National Labor Relations Board asking that an election be held among 6,000 salaried office and technical workers.

UOPWA Rep. Marcel Scherer reported this week that salaried employes, who realize that shop workers have got a much better break through militant trade unionism, are flocking to the UOPWA banner.

Dutch Get In Nazis' Hair

Washington, Oct. 16—The stubborn Dutch are still getting in the Nazi's hair. The would-be conquerors of Holland have found that military occupation hasn't convinced the people that fascism is good, according to Nazi publications that have reached the hands of the Netherlands Information Bureau here.

Sample quotes include:

"The Dutch laborers in Germany distinguish themselves particularly through their inexhaustible capacity for grumbling and their 'love of liberty.'"

"A large number of Dutch 'unemployed' have been sent to Germany to help win the war. Through opposition, however, and all kinds of sabotage, the right people did not always get into the right places, which caused difficulties.

"Besides, workmen were sent of whom one felt ashamed. They did not know how to behave; they were a rowdy, undisciplined lot."

Italian Labor Gets Pledge From Murray

Washington, Oct. 16 — Italian workers will have "a prominent and honored role" in choosing the kind of government they want after the war by taking their full place with the United Nations in fighting Hitler now, Pres. Murray said in hailing the declaration of war by Italy this week.

"Before this re-birth (of unionism) can come about, all of us, together with all Italians, will have to fight side by side with all the peoples who risk their lives to restore freedom not only to Italy but to all the nations and areas invaded by the Nazis," Murray said.

"The Italian government of today is purely military, created to exist only so long as the military situation demands. In the peace that will follow the victory of the United Nations, Italian labor will have a prominent and honored role in the choice of the form of government best suited to the needs of the Italian people."

BRITISH UNIONS THANK THE CIO

"It would be impossible to attempt to detail the thousand and one ways in which you have enabled the burdens of war to be borne by our people. Sufficient for me to say that the smiles upon the faces of the homeless, for whom your generosity has enabled us to provide homes; the hope you have given to the despairing; the light you have brought to those who sat in darkness because the tragedies of war had engulfed them; the brightness of companionship in the clubs founded by your contributions; all these, I am sure, known to your people will bind them to us with bonds of love and comradeship."

Million Dollar Wage Suit Filed By CIO Steel Workers

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 16—The United Steelworkers of America this week filed suit against the Mesta Machine Co. in Federal District Court to recover for its members an estimated $500,000 in underpayments under the Federal Wages and Hours law plus an additional equal amount as liquidated damages, bringing the total claim to approximately one million dollars.

The suit was filed by Frank Burke, District Director, of the United Steelworkers of America, and Walter Schulz and Napoleon Massa, as officers of Local Union 1218, who sue as plaintiffs representing the company's employes.

The complaint charges that the Mesta Company violated the Wages and Hours law in failing to include the incentive bonus earnings of its employes in computing the time and one-half payment for overtime over 40 hours which the law requires.

Under the Wages and Hours law the failure to pay time and one-half on the proper basis subjects the company to liability for the underpayment plus damages in an equal amount.

The attorneys for the plaintiffs who filed the case are Ernest G. Nassar of Pittsburgh, Lee Pressman of Washington, D. C., and Leider, Witt and Sammer of New York City.

In filing the suit Burke said:

"This suit has been filed by the United Steelworkers of America to vindicate and enforce the rights of its members under the Wages and Hours law and will be prosecuted only in behalf of its members.

"We will establish that the Mesta workers have rights which the Union can and will protect and which are not dependent upon any hand-out or charity from the company.

"Until recently the Mesta Company has been successful in its determined effort to deny its employes their fundamental right to organize into a union of their own choosing by substituting a policy of paternalism and hand-outs.

"Within recent months the employes have demonstrated their determination to end this policy and to join a union, the United Steelworkers of America, so that through their collective bargaining strength they can obtain satisfaction of their just demands and redress of their grievances as a mater of right rather than through the grace of the company."

55,000 Sign St. Louis Price Cut Petition

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16—Fifty-five thousand residents of this war community have signed petitions demanding the rollback of prices. The petitions were circulated by the United Labor Committee of St. Louis, composed of representatives of CIO, AFL and railroad unions. They have been presented to Congress with demands for immediate action to reduce the cost of living to September 15, 1942, levels.

The joint labor committee set up booths in neighborhood shopping centers to gather the signa-tures, which backed up labor's request that the cost of living be pulled down "at least a shouting distance from frozen wages."

Five steps advocated to do this included:

1. Subsidies "on a differential basis to cover the special burdens of small business and high-cost producers."
2. Grade labeling.
3. Dollars-and-cents ceilings on all cost-of-living items at the Sept. 15, 1942, levels.
4. Continued rent control.
5. A strong Office of Price Administration, "staffed with loyal supporters of price control and given adequate funds for enforcement."

The petitions were presented to Congressman John J. Cochran of Missouri.

Admitting the possible need for subsidies, Congressman Cochran, lauded the efforts of the United Labor Committee in collecting the petitions. He remarked that, if prices were rolled back "there would be practically no demands for increase in wages, but when the wage earner finds that his weekly earnings are not sufficient to properly care for his family, naturally there is dissension."

L. A. CIO Urges Murray Lead Intl. Unity Move

Los Angeles, Oct. 16—Warning that "powerful forces are at work throughout the world to prevent the unity of labor," the CIO Council here this week asked CIO Pres. Philip Murray to take the lead in cementing international trade union unity.

The Council urged Pres. Murray to communicate directly with the British, Soviet and Western hemisphere trade union movements "for the purpose of convening a conference of accredited delegates to establish collaboration between the trade unions of Great Britain, the Soviet Union, Canada and the United States."

At the same time, the Council asked Pres. Murray to invite fraternal delegates from the British, Soviet and Western hemisphere trade union movements to the CIO's coming convention in Philadelphia as an initial step in building international trade union unity.

Pullman Laundry Workers Win $125,000 Increase

CHICAGO, Oct. 6—Pullman laundry workers represented by the CIO United Transport Service Employes of America will receive a 10-cents-an-hour pay increase by order of the Special Railroad Labor panel set up to handle all wage questions of railroad employes.

Union spokesmen said that the raise, which went into effect last week at Pullman laundry plants throughout the country, represents a $125,000 annual increase over present rates.

Retroactive to Oct. 1, 1942, the pay boost will mean more than $75,000 in back wages, the union said. It was agreed upon between the UTSEA-CIO and the Pullman Co. shortly after the union won a nation-wide election this summer and was certified as the collective bargaining agent in the ten Pullman laundry plants.

In addition to this general increase, an agreement between the union and the company provides for a further eight-cent hourly increase contingent upon the approval of the eight-cent increase for all non-operating railroad employes now before the Economic Stabilization Director.

Pullman laundries are located at Chicago, New York, Buffalo, Washington, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City Tampa, Miami and Oakland, Calif.

Pullman Repair Shops Go CIO

Chicago, Oct. 16—Pullman repair shop workers in six cities have gone CIO. That was announced by the United Transport Service Employes of America, which said that a majority of these workers have signed up with the union.

The union has asked the company for recognition as collective bargaining agent, and if refused will immediately ask the Natl. Mediation Board to conduct an election among workers at six repair shops at Chicago, Buffalo, Wilmington, Atlanta, St. Louis and Richmond, California.

NMU Win-War Heroism Hailed By Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—CIO's maritime heroes had another distinguished service cross pinned on their chests this week.

To members of the Natl. Maritime Union who are alive and to their brothers who have given their lives by the thousands in the cause of crushing fascism, the Kilgore Committee of the U. S. Senate had this to say in a report on the maritime industry and the war:

"The men who man our ships are doing a magnificent job. The crews are efficient and their morale is high. Adequate numbers of seamen have volunteered or have been recruited so that ships sail fully manned and with only negligible delays.

"The number of seamen on American ships has nearly doubled in the past year. There have been no strikes. Discipline has been excellent in spite of difficult living and working conditions imposed by wartime operations.

"Despite high casualties from enemy attack, labor turnover has been lower than in war industries ashore . . .

"American seamen are heroes. Thousands have died under bombardment and torpedo attack.

"They and their organizations, particularly the Natl. Maritime Union, have aquitted themselves with honor."

Texas Plane Workers Big Hit at Capital

Washington, Oct. 16—Texas Congressmen felt like singing "Put That Pistol Down" this week when they were confronted with five members of the United Auto Workers Union from down Dallas way—all of them packing plenty of "beef."

The delegation came via the UAW Convention in Buffalo, on instructions from their local, No. 645, the largest UAW local in the southwest. They made a real hit with the Congressmen they interviewed.

They talked about price control and rollbacks and subsidies and a decent tax program and repeal of the polltax, among other things. They felt that they made some dent on the Congressmen's minds.

But the real key to their visit was its impact on their own thinking. It was their first trip to Washington, and a swell first-hand demonstration of how the legislative process works.

Two of them stayed over to present some rank and file opinion on taxes to Congress. These two joined the other three in declaring that they were heading back to Texas with one thought in mind—to tell the boys and girls back home that they'd better get darned busy right now letting Congress know what they want.

"We know what the anti-labor boys are fighting for," the delegates said. "We figure that now we know the score, maybe we can holler a little louder than they can. Anyway, we're going back to Texas to see if we can make that idea come true."

The delegation was led by Pres. W. M. "Jack" Anderson, and included Ferrell Barton, R. C. Connaughton, H. A. Davidson and H. A. Moon.

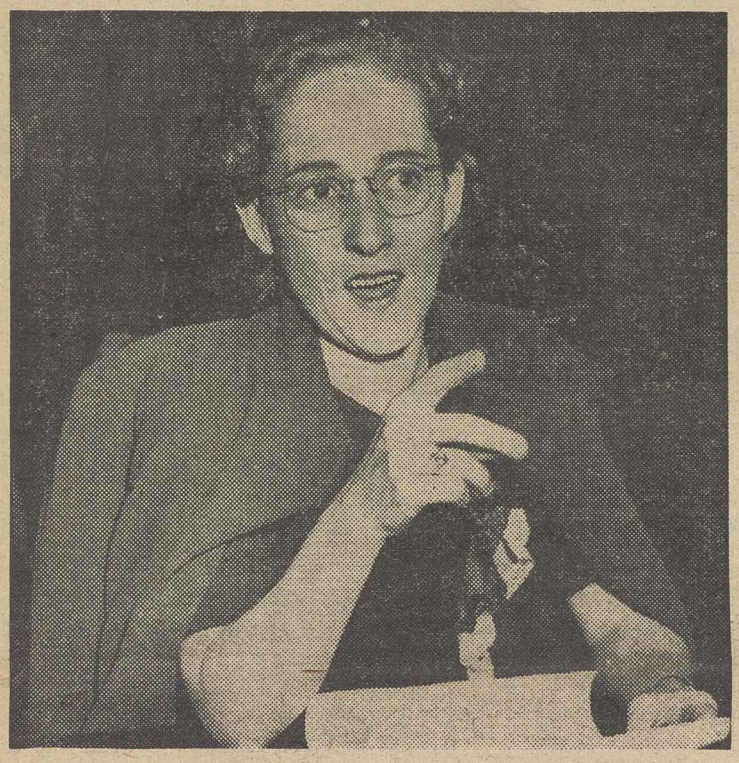
TO CIO WAR RELIEF

Mr. Congressman:

THERE'S NO LEEWAY HERE TO PAY FOR ANY SALES TAX!



MRS. WINONA SNYDER, CIO Women's Auxiliary member of Cumberland, Md., has $39 a week to spend for three children and her husband. Food costs $20 a week; rent $11; carfare $3; bonds $2, leaving $2.25 for clothing, sickness and everything else. Is there any room for a sales tax here?

S. M. RATLIFF, Baltimore, member of the Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, faces rents of $10 a week for a single room, $22 a week for three rooms in an attic, eggs at 90c a dozen, wages at 88c an hour. Look again, Mr. Congressman, for that "inflationary gap."

The Congressmen and the Chamber of Commerce spokesmen who want a sales tax or other new burdens on workers should pay close attention to the facts of "life on a paycheck" shown on this page.

These people, who testified before Congress last week, come directly from the plants, mills and offices of a nation at war. They calculate closely every cent they get and spend to keep themselves going on their war jobs. Their money goes for food, clothing, shelter, present taxes and War Bonds.

Take Glenn Speelman, steelworker and member of the USA-CIO, who followed CIO President Philip Murray on the Ways and Means Committee stand last week. Speelman's income this year is $2,573.11, out of which he supports himself, his wife and two small children.

Speelman has paid in taxes $194.03, made up of Victory Tax, withholding tax, and tax on 1942 income.

The rest of his income is divided this way: $700 for food; $225 for clothing; $336 for rent; $205 for fuel and light; $175 for medical care; $50 for household repairs;$30 for tobacco; $19 for newspapers and magazines; $60 for automobile; $36 to his church; $25 for Red Cross, etc.; $50 for recreation; $12 for union dues; $112.12 for insurance; $316.25 for War Bonds.

Speelman, and the other witnesses on this page, drive home President Murray's warning to the committee:

"This Congress has a responsibility to see to it that those who produce the munitions of war do not have their income so drained off through additional tax burdens as to lower their health and working efficiency."

EDGAR LEE, UAW, Detroit, makes "good money," $3,900 if he works every day in the year; pays a 3% Michigan sales tax already, plus other taxes; and has only $31 left at the year's end. If Congress adds a 10% sales tax, Lee's "profit" becomes a deficit.

MRS. THEODOSIA SIMPSON, tobacco worker of Winston-Salem, N. C., and her husband got $1,933 last year, spent all of it but $5. Both belong to the CIO Cannery and Agricultural Workers, are emphatic against new tax burdens on low incomes.

CIO Sets Up Housing Village

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 23—A group of war workers in the Dayton area who work in CIO plants will now live in a CIO village. Tenants of Greenmont Village, a 500-home housing project located just outside Dayton, have formed a mutual housing corporation and have leased the project from the government.

Marvin M. Miniard, a member of Local 801, United Electricial Radio & Machine Workers, employed at the Frigidaire division of General Motors Corp., has been elected president of the tenants' corporation.

CIO organizations took an interest in the project from the beginning and were active in formation of the corporation. The great part of the tenants are CIO members employed at Frigidaire, Wright, and Patterson airfields and at other Dayton war plants.

The project was built in 1941 by the Federal Public Housing Authority under a plan which provides for construction of permanent homes for war workers in localities where the workers are likely to retain their jobs after the war.

The plan provided that the tenants should form a corporation and eventually purchase the project from the government.

The project cost about $2,200,000, and rents which total $190,000 a year range from $28 to $33 a month exclusive of utilities.

Canadian Fur Holdouts Go CIO

New York, Oct. 23—Union contracts with 16 fur manufacturing shops in Winnipeg, Canada, have been signed by the International Fur & Leather Workers, the union announced this week. Winnipeg is one of the last fur centers in the United States and Canada to be organized.

The two-year union contract signed with the 16 fur firms, including the two largest fur factories in Canada—Neaman's and Reich's—climaxed a swift union drive of only a few weeks. Gains won for workers include a 40-hour week, overtime rates, paid vacations and an average wage increase of $2 per worker based on advancement and reclassification.

Packinghouse Organizing Committee Now CIO Union; Elects Officers

CHICAGO, Oct. 23—Unanimous election of national officers marked the transition this week of the CIO Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee to a full-fledged CIO international union—the United Packinghouse Workers of America.

Heading the new union are: Lewis J. Clark, international president; Edward J. Roche, secretary - treasurer; and Phillip Weightman and Frank Ellis, vice-presidents.

The election of the officers came after three days of the parley, with many meetings devoted to bringing about a unity slate. The candidates elected were wholeheartedly supported by CIO leaders and were recommended by Allan S. Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization, and R. J. Thomas, CIO vice-president and president of the UAW.

Board members elected included Herbert March, Lee Miller, Tony Stephens, Ralph Baker, A. J. Shippey, Meyer Stearn, Dave Harmon, A. J. Pittman, G. R. Hathaway and Fred Dowling.

The oath of office was administered to the new officials by Sam Sponseller, CIO representative, who has served the past 16 months as chairman of the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing Committee.

TWU Growth Proves No-Strike Policy Sound for Workers

By M. H. FORGE

NEW YORK—Dramatic proof that the dynamic CIO no-strike policy best serves the needs of the country and of the workers in wartime was furnished in the opening day of the Transport Workers Union convention in New York on October 20. Nearly 300 delegates at the TWU Fourth Biennial Convention burst into repeated demonstrations and ovations for TWU's Int. Pres. Michael J. Quill, for NMU Pres. Joseph Curran, for Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, for CIO Vice-Pres. Allan Haywood, and TWU Sec.-Treas. Douglas L. MacMahon.

In his keynote address, Quill touched on the high points of the organization's achievements in the past two years and made a stirring appeal for greater unity in the labor movement in the interest of the war effort and the peace after victory.

The appearance of Mayor LaGuardia at the TWU convention testified to the complete change that has taken place in the relations between the city and its 32,000 transit workers as a result of the victory scored by the TWU last summer.

LAGUARDIA CHEERED

The Mayor's address of welcome and the ovation accorded him by the delegates and the visitors who jammed the balcony underscored the statement in the officers' report that "our agreement with the Board of Transportation not only conferred substantial benefits upon our membership, but laid a firm basis for a relationship between the Union and the management which is the essence of all genuine collective bargaining."

In addition to the great victory in New York City transit, Quill and MacMahon reported unprecedented growth of the TWU in the past two years. New locals were set up in Chicago, Omaha, Columbus, Philadelphia and many other cities.

STORK SERVICE is the title for Red Cross aid this week to Pvt. Robert Webb, member of the CIO Federal Workers Union. Through the agency, he obtained an emergency furlough from Fort Knox, Ky., to be present at the birth in Washington of his son, shown with Mrs. Webb, who's a UFW member, too.

Indiana CIO Backs War, FDR; Renews No-Strike Pledge

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 23—A strong win-the-war program calling for national unity, support for President Roosevelt, and re-affirmation of the no-strike pledge was adopted by delegates to the sixth annual convention of the Indiana CIO Council held here October 15-17. President James McEwan, Vice-President O. H. McKinsey and Secretary-Treasurer Walter Frisbie were re-elected.

Important resolutions adopted by the delegates opposed discrimination of any kind, "social, economic or political"; called for international unity; urged mobilization of all Indiana unions for political action; pledged support to President Philip Murray and the CIO; and urged union participation in post-war plans with the object of providing jobs for all after the war.

The convention also voted to abolish from the Council's constitution a rule barring Communists, Nazis and Fascists from holding office. Secretary-Treasurer Frisbie, speaking on the resolution, urged that the bar be removed on the basis that the Council should oppose not only racial and religious but also political discrimination.

CIO leaders who addressed the delegates included: Pres. Sherman Dalrymple, of the United Rubber Workers; Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers; Leo Krzycki, vice-president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and Allan Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization.

Resolutions were passed: condemning Fifth Columnists; opposing appeasement in dealings with Finland, Spain and other countries; calling for freedom for India; backing Harry Bridges, president of the CIO Longshoremen, in his fight for citizenship; urging repeal of the Smith-Connally law; supporting the War Labor Board; stressing the importance of women in unions and the necessity of bringing them into leadership; and calling for all-out production.

Sec.-Treas. Frisbie reported that the convention was outstanding this year in its fight against discrimination.

"Ft. Wayne has always been a Jim Crow town," he said, "but at this convention the Negro delegates, as a result of the untiring work of the arrangements committee, were housed exactly as the white delegates."

California CIO Reports 30% Growth In Membership

FRESNO, Calif., Oct. 23—Organizing drives in basic war industries boosted CIO membership in the state by more than 30 per cent during the past year, bringing the total to 180,000, according to the State Executive Board's report to the convention of the California CIO Council, which was scheduled to open here this week.

The report recommended that the convention go on record for:

The opening of a second land front in Europe immediately.

The appointment by President Roosevelt of labor members to his cabinet, especially a bona fide labor leader as secretary of labor.

"A "planned and speedy conversion of our industries to a basis of productivity for peacetime living."

A program by the Federal government to protect and reward servicemen after demobilization.

An international post war conference of the labor movements of America, Britain, the Soviet Union and other United Nations to set up a continuing world labor congress to work for the aims for which common people are fighting.

A re-affirmation of the no-strike pledge.

Endorsement of the leadership of CIO Pres. Philip Murray, urging that he be continued in office.

More than 300 delegates from hundreds of CIO locals throughout the State were present when George Johnson, president of the Fresco Compress Local of the United Cannery, Agricultural & Packinghouse Workers called the convention to order Thursday morning.

NO SMALL POTATOES is CIO aid to convalescent soldiers at the Oakland, Calif., Area Station Hospital. Besides giving jig-saw puzzle assistance like that by Claudia Williams (right), regional director of the CIO War Relief Committee, the Northern California branch of the organization is providing recreation room furnishings costing more than $3,000, and will give one-tenth of all collections to the armed services' benefit. Aiding Miss Williams is Mrs. Ruby Heide, secretary-treasurer, Alameda County CIO Council.

Hunger Bloc Fights Subsidies

Keep Your Eye On Congress

Taxes and subsidies for greater food production and lower living costs are the two most important issues on the Congressional list this week.

On taxes, the House Ways and Means Committee is still catching its breath after CIO's blast last week against the sales tax and other new levies on low incomes. The bill is still in Committee, and the fight against new burdens must be kept up. (See story, this page.)

On subsidies, the House Banking Committee last week tried again to knock out the whole idea of raising food output and lowering prices, by forbidding subsidies in the appropriation bill for the Commodity Credit Corporation. This issue was up last July, when the President vetoed a similar ban on subsidies and was sustained.

Plots to Cut Farmers And Workers' Food

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—The hunger-bloc forces were back at the old stand this week, renewing their fight against the subsidy plan to increase food production and lower living costs.

The new attack on the farmers and on the war workers' eating standards came with a report of the House Banking Committee on the Commodity Credit Corporation appropriation bill. In the report, the Committee put the same ban on use of subsidies that they slapped on last July.

At that time, President Roosevelt vetoed the bill barring subsidies and after a vigorous CIO campaign, the veto was sustained. The President is ready to fight again this time, as he indicated in a press conference upholding subsidies.

The press conference was held following a meeting with leaders of the big farm organizations, including James Patton, president of the Natl. Farmers Union. In it, President Roosevelt said that he still favored subsidies as an aid to both farmers and consumers. He declared that opposition to subsidies was based on selfish reasons, and said he intended to press for a real subsidy plan.

Patton, in replying to attacks on subsidies by Ed O'Neal, head of the Farm Bureau, and Albert Goss, head of the National Grange, charged that "an unholy coalition of big agriculture, processors, distributors and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has worked without letup to this end"—preventing the use of subsidies on food.

"This coalition would prevent price stabilization by insisting on prices 'rising to their natural levels in the open market,' and opposing the use of subsidies, insisting that higher farm prices, some of them necessary to get production in the kinds and quantities needed, be passed on in higher prices to consumers."

The House Banking report, banning subsidies, now goes to the House floor as HR 3458, and early action is expected.

The report was shot out of the committee, with Chairman Steagall (polltaxer, Ala.) squeezing the trigger.

Sales Tax Bellows Softer After CIO's Counter-Attack

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—The bellowing for a sales tax was a bit softer this week following testimony by President Murray and CIO rank-and-filers who told Congress last Friday just how hard such taxes would hit the war workers and the low income people generally. Maneuvers for new burdens on the poor continue, however.

On the House Ways and Means Committee, the Republicans came out flatly against any increase in taxes at all, backed up by the Natl. Manufacturers Assn., which took the same position.

This move was aimed at two purposes, 1) to kill the Treasury's request for new revenue to fight the war, and 2) to pave the way for a sales tax.

This second purpose is achieved very simply. By denying the government new revenue, the rich and the profit swollen corporations will be automatically protected. The scheme then is to pass the burden to the plain people.

Several Democrats on the committee are known to lean toward the sales tax, with Rep. Robertson (polltaxer, Va.) already outspoken on the subject.

The Republicans are obviously figuring that the Democratic majority, which has the responsibility for raising money for the war, will have to come through with something. That something, they plan, will be the sales tax or its equivalent.

Only one Congressman, Rep. Dingell (D., Mich.) took the trouble to come out against the sales tax during the CIO appearance before the Committee last week. Dingell also wants to raise the income tax exemption levels back to $400 for dependents and $1,500 for married couples, and is co-sponsor of the Wagner-Dingell bill to increase Social Security.

Meantime, the Treasury submitted new argument against the sales tax, pointing out that it would fall most heavily on the low income people, and would not raise any large amounts of money unless food was included and unless the rate was set as high as 15 per cent.

The appearance of President Murray and the CIO witnesses from the war plants against the sales tax and all new burdens on the poor has had a healthy effect.

It must be backed up by an increasing stream of letters and wires against taxes on living standards and for taxes on wealth and war profits.

Blast Sales Tax

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 23— An all-day state conference of the Textile Workers Union held here at union headquarters attacked the sales tax as "the most unfair and undemocratic form of taxation," in a resolution endorsing the CIO's tax program.

Speakers who addressed the conference included Dr. Lois Mac Donald of the N. Y. Regional War Labor Board and Solomon Barkin, head of the union's national research department.

Polltaxers Knife Bill To Aid Schools

Washington, Oct. 23 — Add another to the polltaxers' score against America—this time the sidetracking of a bill that would have helped raise school standards and teachers' salaries throughout the U. S.

The latest polltax axing job came on a $300,000,000 education aid bill the Senate has been considering. It was done by threatening a filibuster unless anti-discrimination features were left out of the bill, and the bill has been referred back to committee.

The polltaxers are not the only Senators fighting this measure, however, since Sen. Robert Taft (R., Ohio) was also open in his apposition, as were other from non-polltax states.

Principal opposition was on the ancient cry of "states' rights," which has been a mask for knifing many progressive measures.

One Way to Help Win the War Is to Register Now So You Can Vote for a Victory Slate in 1944!

CIO Wins Partial Victory in Army Dependency Battle

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Servicemen's wives and kids won a partial reprieve from hunger when the House this week passed S1279 to raise dependents' allowances from the 1942 standard of $72 a month for a wife and two children to $100, with $20 for each additional child.

The House missed a chance to make a greater contribution to morale and welfare on the home front by rejecting, 140 to 48, Representative Sadowski's (D.-Mich.) CIO-backed bill to increase rates to $120, with $30 for each additional child.

The bill now goes to conference committee between the House and the Senate. The Senate, which two weeks ago suddenly jumped its original S 1279 proposal to $100 from the $79 figure passed in July of this year, is expected to accept the House amounts.

In the debate on the measure, and in the [illegible] with which both Houses made substantial increases over the first proposals, no credit was given in Congress to the CIO and to the CIO Women's Auxiliaries which started the drive for a decent break to servicemen's families.

It is a fact that CIO and Auxiliary initiative was felt over a month ago, when the Sadowski bill was first put in. This bill was backed by letters to Congress from President Murray, by testimony from Legislative Director Nathan Cowan, and by a stream of letters and wires from CIO and Auxiliary affiliates and members throughout the country.

Up Pay by Changing 'Steel' Formula, Labor Urges Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Modification of the Little Steel formula to adjust wages to increased living costs was vigorously urged by CIO, AFL and Rail Brotherhood leaders at a more than two hour meeting this week with President Roosevelt.

The President assured them he would push the policy of rolling back prices and suggested that the Natl. War Labor Board should appoint a committee of its members to investigate the cost of living and the methods employed by the Dept. of Labor in determining its living cost index.

Labor has long questioned the figures issued by the Labor Dept. as not giving a true picture of the great increase in cost of living since the war.

The proposed committee is to consist of three WLB members, one labor, one management and one public.

ROLL-BACK LAGS

CIO Pres. Philip Murray told newspapermen after the meeting that no progress had been made up to the present in rolling back living costs, and that wage freezing was still the only feature of the economic stabilization program that had been made effective.

"We discussed the Little Steel formula at great length," Murray said, "and asked for its modification, contending that it is unworkable and impractical.

"In the light of increases in the cost of living since September of last year, greater leeway should be given to the War Labor Board to compensate workers for losses sustained through increases in the cost of living."

Either . . . Or

American labor has been tossed and gored long enough on the horns of the wage-price dilemma.

It patriotically accepted wage stabilization, with the understanding that prices would also be stabilized.

Since then, under the Little Steel formula, wages have been frozen so hard you can skate on them. But living costs have risen far beyond the wage freeze level.

So, for many long months, labor has been demanding that living costs be rolled back. This has not been done to any substantial extent, however, and Congress is once more threatening to make a roll-back impossible by forbidding subsidies.

If our war workers are to maintain their health, morale and productive efficiency for winning the war, there is no escaping the two alternatives which labor has posed: Either living costs must be rolled back to the Sept. 15, 1942, wage freeze level, or wages must be adjusted upward to the level of increased living costs.

Since living costs have not been rolled back, labor has no alternative now but to demand modification of the Little Steel formula to permit adjustment of wages to living costs—and still further wage increases will be necessary if Congress forbids subsidies.

Labor has long made a rollback its first demand. But Congress can't have both inflationary price increases and fixed wages. It's either . . . or.

Tax Politics

Everybody is accusing everybody else of playing politics with the tax issue—and most of them are right.

The Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers and the Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee say there should be no increase in taxes to crucify business and liquidate the middle class—which has brought the obvious retort of "politics."

Reactionary Democrats and Republicans are ganging up with the Chamber of Commerce for a sales tax and accusing the administration of playing politics because it does not favor it.

The administration, for its part, has rightly asked for higher income and profit taxes, but has also played politics with reaction to the extent of favoring income taxation of people who do not make enough to live on.

But behind all the smokescreen of charges and counter-charges the real issue is what kind of politics are being played.

There is no essential difference between the attitudes of the NAM, the Chamber of Commerce, the tory Republicans and the tory Democrats.

Whether they say there should be no increase in taxes now, or come right out for a sales tax, they are all alike playing politics at the expense of the war effort, to court the political favors of wealthy and profiteering groups.

Clearly more money has to be raised to win the war. The demand for "economy" instead of more taxes is simply a device to attack essential social legislation, and to prepare the way for a sales tax or some other equally vicious measure.

As for the crocodile tears of big business and its stooges over the "crucifixion of the white-collared and middle class," it is they themselves who are trying to crucify both the middle class and the working class, by fighting against all proposals to make the wealthy pay their fair share.

It is natural for politicians to play politics in one way or another. But if they directed their politics to winning the favor of the great majority of the common people by promoting a fair tax program based on ability to pay, this would be both democratic and of great aid to our victory effort.

It is up to labor and other win-the-war voters to impress on their Congressmen that the contrary kind of politics now being played on Capitol Hill are not only a danger to the war effort, but also unhealthy for their own prospects for re-election.

The urgent need of the day is for adequate financing of the war through higher taxes on corporate profits and upper incomes—which won't "liquidate" or "crucify" anyone, since they will be in proportion to ability to pay from surplus wealth—and for opposition to a sales tax or any other kind of taxation that would take food and other living necessities from low-income people who have no surplus at all.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

EVERY housewife in the country should rise to curse the Congressmen who so stubbornly insist on higher and higher living costs, through their opposition to food subsidies.

Every person with a fixed income—whether he be a worker with frozen wages, a government employe with salary set by law, a veteran or anyone else living on a pension or small savings—should denounce the present assault on his living standards.

Every working farmer should be enraged at Congressional attempts to stop government aid for greater food production and for fair farm prices, without ruinous price increases for consumers.

And every American should take alarm at the activities of the inflation bloc in Congress, which is endangering our war effort and threatening our whole national welfare.

★ ★ ★

Actually the "subsidy" issue, on which the public is being deliberately confused, is quite simple.

Either living costs must go higher and higher, starving people with fixed incomes, necessitating wage increases to keep war workers alive, and launching a dizzy spiral of inflation—or else the government must use some kind of subsidies to roll back and control prices.

Many billions of dollars in subsidies have been and still are being paid to industry, to make possible the production of all the tanks, planes and ships we need.

But when it comes to farm subsidies, to make possible greater food production, Congress has done everything possible to stop them.

As for consumer subsidies, to keep down living costs and stop inflation, a majority of Congress opposed them in the last session, and a head-on collision is now due between the administration and the inflation bloc, following the action of the House Banking Committee in voting against any kind of food price subsidies.

The attitude of the high-cost-of-living Congressmen is entirely negative. In opposing consumer subsidies, they offer no alternative proposals to roll back living costs.

They frankly favor higher prices, either saying these must be taken out of the living standards of the workers and fixed-income groups, or else claiming that inflation is inevitable, so why try to stop it.

★ ★ ★

One of the phoney arguments against food price subsidies, advanced by Fulton Lewis and others, is that subsidies take as much or more money from the public as taxpayers, as they give back to the public as consumers.

Yet the actual fact is that the saving to consumers and the country ranges from $4 to $12 for every dollar spent in subsidies.

One reason for this is that the government itself is the biggest purchaser in the country. If living costs rise, with corresponding increases in wages and other production costs, the government has to pay far more of the taxpayers' money for its purchases than it would have to pay in subsidies to prevent price increases in the first place.

Another reason is that lower margins prevail in wholesaling and retailing when prices are low, and a price reduction at the producer or processor level regularly results in a greater reduction in retail prices.

And we still haven't taken into account the fact that any price in subsidies is cheap, if it prevents the incalculable damage which inflation would do to our country and our people.

But even if there were not these and other obvious savings in food price subsidies, it would still be beneficial to our war effort to spend tax money to reduce prices for consumers.

For every increase in living costs falls with far heavier impact on workers, farmers and other low-income groups than it does on the high-income groups; while it is possible, through the income tax and other progressive taxation, to make the rich pay a fairer share of any increase in taxes.

But this is precisely one of the reasons why there is such venomous opposition to food subsidies from the little friends of the rich in Congress. On this, as on all tax issues, they are fighting desperately to foist increased and discriminatory burdens on the poor, in order to preserve the special privileges of rich profiteers.

CORRECTION: In last week's "Looking Ahead," due to a typographical error. it was made to appear that 92% of the American people, with incomes of less than $5,000, had a total surplus of 14 billion dollars—equal to that of the 8% in the upper-income brackets. The garbled sentence should have read: "All the rest of the people, with lower incomes, have a total surplus of only 11½ billion after taxes and bare living expenses. . . ."

CIO Convention Draws Nationwide Attention Nov. 1

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23—CIO Convention delegates from all over the nation were setting their sights on this city as preparations for the 1943 parley were being completed. The Convention will open Monday, November 1, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

Among issues to be discussed are: demands for complete mobilization of all national resources to aid speedy and victorious conclusion of the war, use of subsidies and the rollback of prices to guard workers' living standards and to prevent inflation, revision of the Little Steel wage formula, etc., etc.

Preceding the convention will be a meeting of CIO vice-presidents on Wednesday, October 27, and a meeting of the CIO Executive Board on Thursday, October 28.

Among features of the Convention will be the scheduled address of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt before the CIO Women's Auxiliaries, and a conference of CIO editors and publicity directors.

Convention speakers will be announced later by CIO Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey.

Next week's CIO NEWS will carry a complete story on Pres. Philip Murray's report on the year's CIO activities.

Malcolm Ross Named New FEPC Head

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Malcolm Ross, deputy chairman of the Fair Employment Practice Committee, has been appointed chairman of the committee by President Roosevelt, following the resignation of Monsignor Francis J. Haas.

Msg. Haas resigned October 7 when his appointment by Pope Pious XII as Bishop of the Diocese of Grand Rapids, Mich. In a letter to Msg. Haas accepting his resignation, President Roosevelt said:

"The increasing usefulness of the FEPC as reorganized under your direction, has been a source of great satisfaction to me, and I am sure, to all thoughtful people who know the importance and the difficulty of its work . . .

"I know that you will be glad to learn that I am naming Malcolm Ross, your deputy chairman, as your successor. I am as anxious as you that there be not the slightest delay in the work of the Committee and also that the work begun by you may be continued by Mr. Ross, who has worked by your side."

Labor-Boss Plan Solves Draft Problem

Camden, N. J., Oct. 23—A joint labor-management plan set-up to solve the problem of draft deferments at the New York Shipbuilding firm here was praised this week by General Lewis B. Hershey, chief of Selective Service, who suggested that it might well be tried by other industries. The CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers is sole union representative of the workers at the yards.

Launched a year ago, the labor-management selective service committee, composed of two representatives of Local I of the union and two for the company, handles draft deferments, with Col. Henry F. Rhodes of Gen. Hershey's office serving as an ex-officio member in an advisory capacity.

The plan aims to remedy the situation caused by draft boards skimming off key workers, impeding production and crippling the joint training program and the possibility of developing adequate replacements.

New York, Oct. 23 — Complete CIO endorsement for labor candidates in the elections here Nov. 2 was assured this week with support of American Labor Party candidates by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

The ACW voted to endorse Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union, running for the city council in the Bronx, and the entire ALP slate. They also joined with the rest of the CIO in endorsing Lt. Gen. Haskell for Lt. Governor of the state.

In announcing the endorsement, Louis Hollander and Joseph Catalanotti, ACW leader; said: The unanimous opinion was expressed that the New Deal must be safeguarded and expanded, that the war must be won, and the peace must be won—a peace which will guarantee employment and security to all men everywhere.

"It was the considered opinion of all present that the fate of the free trade union movement, the fate of democracy generally hangs upon the ability of the American labor movement to demostrate its political power through joint, affirmative action at the ballot box this year and next."

Strengthen Job Injury Laws

Washington, Oct. 23—Advances made in workmen's compensation legislation by the 1943 State legislatures far surpass those of any other recent year, according to the current issue of the Monthly Labor Review, published by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Of the 44 legislatures which met in regular session, 39 materially strengthened their laws.

Daily Press 'Tells All'—But Forgets Anti-Boss Cases

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—The employer press was caught wide open this week slanting a story in favor of bosses' opinions.

The subject involved was a Natl. Labor Relations Board case before the Supreme Court—and two other cases decided at the same time which the employer press conventienly forgot to mention

The case quoted by the daily press showed that the Supreme Court refused to review a lower court decision which upheld the right of an employer to advise his employes how to vote in an NLRB election.

The two cases NOT quoted by the daily press involved exactly the same situation, but upheld lower court opinions which DENIED employers the right to advise workers how to vote.

The situation was clarified by CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman, who said that in the case quoted by the daily press, the employer's advice was not accompanied by threats, by coercion, or by any other act which might be described as an unfair labor practice.

THREATS WITH TALKS

Pressman said that in the two cases not quoted by the daily press, advice by employers was accompanied by threats or by unfair labor practices—the firing of a worker in one instance.

involved the American Tube Bend-

The case quoted by the press ing Co., of New Haven, Conn., and the other two cases concerned the Trojan Powder Co., of Seiple, Pa., and the William Davies Co., of Chicago.

In the American Tube case, NLRB officials said that the management sent restrained letters to the homes of workers, and the manager made a speech in the plant the day before an election.

Attacking the lower court ruling which held that the management did not commit an unfair labor practice by its advice, NLRB Attorneys Charles Fahy and Robert B. Watts criticized the company's messages as "unmistakably anti-union electioneering documents which the employers were not at liberty to ignore."

In deciding not to review the case, the Supreme Court apparently reasoned that speeches and letters alone, not accompanied by threats or coercion, would not be of much effect in deciding the outcome of an election, Pressman said.

Real Victory Won On Army Allowances

By ELEANOR FOWLER
Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

We've won a real victory on allowances for our service families. To be sure, we didn't get the Sadowski bill, but the fight we put up for that bill has resulted in substantial increases. A service wife with two children will get $100 a month instead of the $79 voted by the Senate last July, and $20 for each additional child, instead of $11.

Here's a concrete example of what pressure on Congress can do. These increases are the result of the thousands of postcards, letters and telegrams which members of CIO unions and auxiliaries and their friends sent to their Congressmen.

This victory shows us all that we can do a job on putting over the CIO win-the-war program here in Washington. Let's use it to impress on every woman we know her personal responsibility for letting her Congressman know how she stands on the big issues facing us.

There's no time for a breathing spell either. We've already started our campaign for a fair tax bill and no sales tax. We must continue and intensify that campaign.

At the same time our pressure is needed now on two other major issues:

1. Subsidies. The whole program for price control and rollback is at stake in the subsidy fight. There's a bill in the Senate now to forbid subsidies to milk producers and raise the price immediately 1 cent a quart to consumers. There's another bill being written in the House Banking and Currency Committee to forbid the use of government funds for any subsidies to hold prices in line.

If either of those bills pass, food prices will start to skyrocket. Wages will have to go up if our families are to get enough food to maintain health to work for Victory. General wage increases will again bring general price increases of other things, and we'll be off on the road to inflation.

Congressional supporters of subsidies estimate that inflation would cost the government ten to fifteen billion dollars in increased prices of food and materials of war.

2. Anti-polltax bill. Many of the leaders in the fight against subsidies in Congress—and many of the most outspoken advocates of a sales tax—are polltax Congressmen. They don't represent their people in their districts because most of those people can't afford to pay the poll tax to exercise their democratic American right to vote.

That's one reason why passage of the anti-polltax bill is vital to all of us.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is holding hearings on October 25. We must insist that our Senators demand that the Committee send the anti-polltax bill to the Senate for a vote as soon as those hearings are over.

We must ask them also to vote for "cloture," the rule to limit debate in the Senate, so that there can be no filibuster.

UOPWA Wins Two Major Victories

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Two major victories were chalked up this week by the United Office & Professional Workers Union.

At Buffalo, in the first big election held among salaried employes in war plants, the UOPWA cleaned up by better than three to one in a vote among employes of one division of the Curtiss Wright Corp., and won a plurality in another. Four thousand office and professional employes were involved.

The template department voted 203 for UOPWA and 67 for the AFL Machinists. Score in the engineering unit was: UOPWA 1144, Machinists 999, neither 256. A run-off election is to be held for the latter group within three weeks.

In New Jersey, Metropolitan Life Insurance agents voted by better than two to one for UOPWA—827 to 303 against — to add their strength to that of New York agents who already are covered by a UOPWA agreement.

Anti-Strike Contract Overrules Smith-Connally Vote, WLB Rules

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—A contract prohibiting strikes is a legal obligation that unions must observe, and takes precedence over a legal right to strike gained in an election under the Smith-Connally Act, the War Labor Board this week told employes of the Allis-Chalmers Company's plants in Springfield, Ill.

The CIO United Farm Equipment Workers has an agreement covering the workers at the plant, which prohibits strikes and slowdowns.

Dr. George W. Taylor, WLB vice-chairman, informed District 50, United Mine Workers, and Local 20, CIO Farm Equipment Workers, in a telegram, that "contract provisions prohibiting strikes and lockouts create binding legal obligations which must be honored by the parties (both the company and union)."

His telegram was in a reply to a question from Lee Hill, company vice president, who asked for a statement from the board on whether Dr. Taylor's opinion in the Allis-Chalmers case implied that employes had a legal right to strike under provisions of the War Labor Disputes Act (Smith-Connally law) when a contract in effect prohibited strikes.

District 50 recently carried a strike vote held under the Smith-Connally law. A contract between the CIO Farm Equipment union and the company contains a provision stating:

"During the life of the agreement the union will not cause a strike nor will any employe or employes take part in a strike, intentional slow down in the rate of production, or any other interference with or stoppage of the company's work."

Ask FDR To Take Over Iron Mine

Birmingto, Ala., Oct. 23—Charging that the plan of the Republic Steel Corp. to shut down the Raimund mines is "a management strike against our country and the war effort," the CIO Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers this week called on Pres. Roosevelt to take over operation of the mines.

Since the Republic management anounced on October 2 that it planned to suspend operation of the Raimund mines, the union has waged a vigorous campaign to enlist the support of the public and government agencies to block the move.

The union said that shutting down the mines will deprive the government of 60,000 tons of high grade iron ore a month. The union contends that several steel companies in this area are badly in need of iron ore and that a four-month stockpile is not adequate, as Republic claims.

The union charged that the company's real reason for the threatened shut-down is its unwillingness to abide by recent War Labor Board decisions, and its desire to smash the union.

The union's charges against the company were made in an open letter to the President, printed as an ad in a local paper.

CIO Asks Higher Pay for N. Y. Cops, Firemen

New York, Oct. 23—The New York CIO has been granted permission to appear as a friend of court in behalf of the city's uniformed police and firemen, according to Michael Quill, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee.

The CIO will ask the court to permit a proposal providing for a $450 war bonus for the employes to remain on the voting machines as Proposition No. 1.

No attempt has as yet been made, Quill said, to bring wages of police and firemen into line with the national wage stabilization policy.

Buy $7,500 in Bonds

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Pvt. Jack Berkowitz of the United Furniture Workers Union wants the world to know that the first American glider to land in the predicted invasion of Germany may be made by members of his union.

Berkowitz, in a letter to his union newspaper, said: "One of these days as the armies of the United Nations are marching on Germany, out of the night, quietly and efficiently, the para and glider troopers will be dropped behind enemy lines.

"It sure would be nice if a member of the Furniture Workers Union would be the first one to land in a CIO built glider."

Blindman's Buff Bad With Butchers!

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

Waiting in line at the meat counter is no longer a unique experience for any of us. We usually have plenty of time to look around and inspect the meat displayed in the show cases.

If your store is obeying OPA regulations you'll see that every cut displayed has a little sign which tells you the price, the number of points per pound and the grade—AA, A, B, etc.

If the grade isn't labeled in your butcher's show case, he's violating the law and you should report his violation to your War Price and Rationing Board. That's one way you can help fight the Black Market.

If you know something about meat grading, though, you don't have to depend on your butcher's signs. Every housewife could tell for herself what grade of meat she was buying if she knew what the purple markings on the meat meant.

2 KINDS OF STAMPS

According to law, there are two kinds of stamps placed on all meat by the United States Department of Agriculture. One is the inspection stamp, a round purple stamp used by the Bureau of Animal Industry to show that the meat has been inspected and passed as wholesome food.

You'll find the same round Government stamp on packaged or canned meat products. Never buy meat from a carcass that does not have that stamp. It is Black Market meat.

The other stamp is the meat grade stamp printed like a ribbon down the length of the carcass. This stamp is used by the Agricultural Marketing Administration to show the market quality of the meat. Quality may also be shown by grade letters stamped several places on the carcass.

There are four grades of beef, veal and lamb that are commonly sold in the grocery stores: U. S. Choice, U. S. Good, U. S. Commercial, and U. S. Utility. Grades are stamped on the carcass with a harmless purple coloring.

FOUR GRADES

U. S. Choice or AA is a high quality threaded with fat. Very good for steaks and chops.

U. S. Good or A is a good quality for all uses. A little fat is mixed with the lean.

U. S. Commercial or B is the commercial grade, fairly good quality, very satisfactory for pot roasts, stews and other inexpensive dishes.

U. S. Utility or C is a low grade also suitable for pot roasts, stews and other inexpensive dishes. It needs longer cooking in well-covered pot on smaller flame but is just as nourishing as better cuts.

So the next time you go to the store, do a little rubber-necking over the meat counter. It's hard to find the grade stamp after the meat has been sliced up, so watch for the larger sections of the carcass and check up on your prices while you wait your turn.

And next time the question arises, "What grade of meat is this?" you'll have all the answers plus the added satisfaction of knowing that you're making your war dollars count.

The Packinghouse Workers made union history in Chicago last week. They held their first constitutional convention, adopted a constitution, endorsed the policies of CIO, complimented the leadership of President Murray, and mapped out an organizing program to bring all workers in this important industry into their union. They elected the following officers: Lewis J. Clark, president; Edward Roche, secretary-treasurer; Vice-Presidents Frank Ellis and Philip Weightman, and named a board member from each of the ten regions set up.

The convention was addressed by R. J. Thomas, president, UAW-CIO; David J. McDonald, Secy.-Treas., USA, and the writer, who worked with the Committee and officers in shaping the policies of the organization. The delegates were enthusiastic in launching their first ship of state and are highly determined that their organization shall become a strong member of the family of unions in the CIO.

The Organizing Committee which has guided the destiny of the union up to now, of which Sam Sponseller was chairman, was given an overwhelming vote of appreciation.

Leaving the Packinghouse Workers convention, I stopped at Ft. Wayne to address the Indiana State IUC convention, which had a record attendance, indicating progress made in the Hoosier State.

British Workers Hit Tory India Policy

LONDON, Oct. 23 (ALN)—At a giant meeting of the India League, held here this week, delegates representing 1,300,000 workers in the London area condemned the British government's policy on India as having "led to the present disastrous political and economic situation." They urged the establishment of a national government "to enable India to become our free and powerful ally."

Stressing the importance of India as a base for the coming offensive against Japan, the conference called for the immediate release of political prisoners, the reopening of negotiations with representatives of the Indian people and measures to alleviate the famine situation.

The resolution passed by the UAW, calling for "India's immediate freedom and participation in the war as a full-fledged ally," was read to the meeting and was greeted with prolonged cheers.

In a unanimous vote, the delegates called for the immediate resignation of Col. Leopold Amery, secretary of state for India. A further unanimously endorsed resolution stated:

"This conference demands that the government agree to the establishment of a provisional government of national unity in India forthwith, its first step to be release of political prisoners and the opening of negotiations with representative leaders of the Indian people.

HORROR AT FAMINE

The conference expressing horror at the "ghastly famine situation in India, the extent and severity of which has been concealed from the people of Britain by censorship and misstatements by Amery and other spokesmen."

"The conference urged the British government immediately "to send food grains, medical supplies and other necessities to India from sources under British control; to allocate the necessary shipping and air transport for this purpose and to arrange for supplies from other countries such as the Americas."

Pointing to the fact that "food was being exported while the Indian people were starving and that no measures of effective control were introduced to prevent the profiteering of big grain combines," Krishna Menon, secretary of the India League, stated:

"India is normally a hungry land but today millions more are starving and thousands are dying of starvation.

"Epidemics follow and desolation spreads. British policy persists in following the wrong road. Famine conditions are widespread and are not confined to Calcutta and Bengal.

"Prices of food grains have risen 250% and 1,500%. Hospitals are becoming clearing houses for the dying."

U. S., England Swap Union Delegates

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Four delegates from American trade unions were on their way to England this week to see how the British are fighting the war. Four delegates from English unions will visit the United States shortly on a similar task. The visits—to last a month—were arranged by the Office of War Information and the British Ministry of Information.

Americans making the trip include Joseph Smith, a member of the United Auto Workers from the Chrysler Corp., Detroit; Hugh T. Mahoney, United Steelworkers, Bethlehem Steel Corp., Bethlehem, Pa.; Stanley Ceizyk, AFL Machinists, Lockheed Aircraft, Burbank, Calif.; and Otto O. Butler, AFL Chemical Workers, Monsanto Chemical Co., E. St. Louis, Ill.

The workers are representing fellow employes in their respective war plants, and have not officially been chosen by CIO and AFL, although the organizations assisted in their selection.

They will visit units and war plants, and will speak before workers' meetings. They expect to give and to bring back information that will add to the mutual understanding existing between the Allies.

Transportation expenses for the four are being paid by the OWI. Their local unions are paying the wages they will lose by making the trip.

Argentine's 'Dr. Ley' Urges Fascist Government To 'Improve Labor's Status'

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 23 (ALN)—Responding to the widespread opposition of trade unions in Argentina to state control, Jose Domenech, secretary of the government-sponsored wing of the Argentine General Confederation of Labor (CGT), has petitioned the Ramirez government "to improve labor's status in Argentina," it was revealed here this week.

The petition, presented to Argentine Interior Minister Alberto Gilbert on Sept. 30, demonstrated apparent opposition to many of the policies of Argentine dictator Pedro Ramirez.

CTAL leaders acquainted with Argentina say that Domenech's action evidences either an attempt to confuse Argentine labor by a show of independance or that it indicates an unexpectedly strong opposition to Domenech even within his own carefully selected group.

They further point out that the petition might be an attempt to regain the confidence of dissidents within the organization and win over the followers of Francisco Perez Leiros, last elected CGT general secretary, who was ousted by Domenech at a rump session of the CGT.

The petition called for "recognition of the CGT as the representative of Argentine labor," and "direct participation in organizations regulating commerce and industry." Such recognition, it was pointed out here, would merely formalize the present policies of Ramirez, who on July 20 outlawed the largest section of the CGT.

Participation of the Domenech body in Ramirez' regulative agencies, it was added, would be a logical extension of Domenech's present tactics and not far different from the "syndical" scheme evolved by Mussolini.

Other information reaching here details the extent of Nazi influence in Argentine government administration.

Among those cited as Nazi supporters are: General Basilio Pertine, mayor of Buenos Aires and general manager of the Argentine branch of Siemens, which advertises in El Pampero, a Nazi-financed newspaper; Alberto Baldrich, leader of the Tucuman provincial government; Nimio de Anquin, Education Minister of Tucuman, who was dismissed from his professorship at Cordoba after repeatedly insulting the leading democratic figures in Argentine history; Dr. Jose Maria Rosa, Education Minister of Santa Fe province; Giorano Bruno Genta, head of the University of Buenos Aires; and Dr. Ibarguren, president of the National Commission of Culture and president of the German-American Insurance Company.

CIO Political Group Set Up In Maryland

Cumberland, Md. Oct. 23 — A statewide political action committee has been named by the Maryland & District of Columbia Industrial Union Council. Headed by Pres. Ulisse De Dominicis, the committee is currently pressing a drive to get all new Maryland residents to declare their intentions of becoming citizens and to register so that they will be able to vote in the 1944 elections.

The committee plans the classification of CIO members by Congressional districts and precincts, as a means of building a practical political organization for participation in the '44 campaign.

Urges Children Be Taught to Vote

Washington, Oct. 23 — Teachers are urged to educate children to see the importance of voting, in an article by Kermit Eby, assistant director of the National CIO Department of Research and Education, printed in the October issue of the American School Board Journal.

Speaking as a former teacher, Eby says that the country's future is in the hands of teachers and parents.

Win 5c Pay Boost

York, Pa., Oct. 23—A five-cent hourly pay increase for 64 employes of the Heystone Roofing Mfg. Co., York, Pa., has been approved by the War Labor Board. The workers are represented by the United Stone & Allied Products Workers.

A contract signed with the company provides for seniority, union maintenance and other standard union provisions.

Brings CIO Relief Gift To Tin Miners

La Paz, Paz, Oct. 23 (ALN)—Bernardo Ibanez, general secretary of the Confederation of Chilean Workers, will arrive in La Paz next week to bring a contribution of $2,500 donated by the CIO's Latin American Committee for the relief of victims of the Catavi massacre of December 21, 1942. The massacre, in which 400 tin miners were killed, followed a strike in Bolivia's large tin mines.

Marble Co. Needs Face Cleaning Job

Barre, Vt., Oct. 23—A company that supplied the marble used in the U. S. Supreme Court building was this week held up before the world as a "reactionary, anti-labor outfit."

The description was applied by Sec.-Treas. John C. Lawson of the United Stone & Allied Products Workers, who said that this organization will demand that the White Pigment Co. comply with a War Labor Board order for a five-cent an hour wage increase.

Lawson said that the company has consistently fought labor since 1934, has sponsored a number of company unions, and now is adding to its black record by defying a United States war agency "when men and women are dying heroically for our nation and asking nothing in return."

Army Snoops For 'Under Cover'

Washington, Oct. 23—The War Dept. began snooping under soldiers' beds this week to discover how many of the men are reading John Roy Carlson's best-selling book, "Under Cover," which exposes American fascists.

The Department officials admitted that they were making the survey at the request of an unnamed Congressman to discover how many of the books have been bought by the Army and what distribution had been made of them.

Publishers Holler Wolf In Anti-Guild Fight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Leading American newspaper publishers aided by AFL's William Green trotted out almost every shop-worn argument they could find this week to oppose a demand made by the American Newspaper Guild, in War Labor Board hearings, for the right to sign maintenance of membership contracts. The Board is expected to announce its policy shortly, Guild officials said.

The proposal advocated by the Guild would allow newspaper employes in Guild contract shops 15 days to make up their minds about remaining in the Guild or resigning from it, or staying out of the organization if they had never belonged to it. Thereafter, for the duration of the contract, those who were or became Guild members would have to continue that status.

During the contract, those members who dropped from good standing would automatically be subject to discharge, under the theory that if they were to secure benefits from the Guild they should at least contribute modest dues to its support.

GUILD POSITION

Among publishers who contended that this provision would result in shackling the so-called "freedom of the press" were Arthur Suzberger of the N. Y. Times and Henry Luce of Time Magazine.

The Guild position, as expressed by Attorney Morris Ernst, was that publishers were raising a false issue, inasmuch as they had been unable to find a single instance where the Guild sought to color or distort news or had exercised control over editorial work.

ASKS SAME TREATMENT

In asking for the same treatment accorded other labor unions which have been granted maintenance of membership clauses by the WLB, the Guild attorney said:

"This position of a few newspaper publishers is virtually the same as taken by some of the press in opposing child labor legislation, wages and hours legislation, and the Natl. Labor Relations Act—always on the ground that freedom of the press placed the publishers in a position free of any governmental controls as to the working conditions of their employes."

An interesting sidelight was AFL Pres. Green's opposition to the Guild. In a letter written by N. Y. Times labor reporter Louis Stark to Times publisher Sulzberger, Green was quoted as saying that "he favored the closed shop for the general run of workers in industry, but was opposed to the closed shop or the present form of maintenance of membership in the newspaper industry because it was human nature for news writers who might have a closed shop to favor their own organization in their writing."

Replying to this contention that membership in the Guild would lead to members "slanting" their news writing, Ernst pointed out that newspapers representing every variety of editorial opinion continued to reflect their particular bias despite organization of the Guild, which frequently has taken positions diametrically opposite to that of the leading publishers.

$64 Question

What Does Union Do When U. S. Refuses To Settle 'Beef' with Co.?

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Here's this week's $64 question: What does a union do, after winning an NLRB election and certification as bargaining agent, when the company refuses to bargain and the NLRB and WLB refuse to handle the dispute?

That is the embarrassing query which Basic Local 629 of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers laid before the government agencies here this week as the result of the long drawn out dispute at Basic Magnesium, Inc., world's largest magnesium plant, near Las Vegas, Nevada.

Friction caused by government failure to act and consequent long delays burst out this week in the mass discharge of 310 workers.

According to E. E. Ward, executive officer of Local 629 who is in Washington seeking WLB action, the company first fired nine men who on instructions from the union were attempting to pacify enraged workers and encourage them to continue working. The others were fired when they tried to support the nine.

Ward said the immediate issue is a company attempt to segregate Negroes from whites where no segregation had existed before.

OTHER ISSUES

Other issues, all enhanced by the company's refusal to bargain, include previous firings of CIO members, discrimination of all types, 1500 unsolved grievances, 100 per cent speedup, withdrawal of overtime and intra-plant transportation privileges, intolerable dust and chlorine gas conditions, and bad food and housing. Hospital cases from tainted food have run as high as 125 at one meal, Ward revealed.

The NLRB says it is prevented from acting by the Frey amendment to the appropriation bill, passed by the last session of Congress. CIO attorneys say the responsibility lies squarely in the lap of WLB.

But even with the mass firings and the possibility of a shutdown of this vital $150,000,000 government-built plant, Chairman William H. Davis still maintains that WLB can and will do nothing.

Local 629 is appealing to all CIO organizations to assist in reversing WLB's attitude, lest election results everywhere be nullified and the entire meaning of the Wagner Act be kicked aside whenever a company refuses to bargain.

Amalgamated Sets Up Life, Health Insurance

NEW YORK CITY, Oct 23—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America has established its own Amalgamated Life and Health Insurance Co., under the terms of a collective labor agreement between the union and the Clothing Manufacturers' Association, the ACW announced this week. It will provide benefits for 125,000 clothing workers and their families.

The insurance company, chartered in New York State, will operate in 17 states where organized clothing workers are located. Employers will contribute two per cent of their weekly payrolls to the Amalgamated Insurance Fund which operates the company.

ACW President Sidney Hillman, who is chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Fund, reported that to date there is $3,500,000 in the Fund, and that clothing employers will contribute $250,000 a month which will permit setting up more than adequate reserves.

The Amalgamated Insurance Co., Hillman said, grew out of the three-year experience of the ACW Chicago Joint Board, whose 15,000 members are covered by a union insurance company capitalized at $200,000 with a paid surplus of $100,000.

Under the latest plan, the Amalgamated group policies grant $500 to beneficiaries of union members upon death. The health and accident provisions will pay $8 weekly indemnity for women and $12 for men for an aggregate not exceeding 15 weeks in any consecutive 12 months.

The insurance covers all productive workers, both union and non-union, and learners as well as experienced workers.

Aids War, Gets Fine, Jail Sentence

Orlando, Fla., Oct. 23—Last July, the tomato crop in New Jersey was rotting on the vines for lack of manpower to pick it and see it through the Campbell plant in Camden, where it would be processed into scores of thousands of cases of canned soup and tomato juice.

Down here in Florida, thousands of skilled pickers—citrus fruit workers—were unemployed. The government, in the person of the War Manpower Commission, asked the CIO to help solve this problem.

The CIO Cannery and Agricultural Workers Union was asked by the War Manpower Commission to help out in this crisis of spoiling fruit and idle manpower. Otis Nation, vice-president of the CIO union, answered the government's request by helping to recruit some 500 unemployed citrus workers to go to Camden and save the tomato pack.

This week, Otis Nation was sentenced to pay a $1,500 fine or spend a year in jail for violating a law that says you can't recruit workers for out-of-state jobs without a license. The tomato pack wasting in Jersey, the need for war food, the plea of the U. S. government for workers, were ignored. Nation had violated the law and he got the maximum sentence.

During the trial, the state court did not hear the government's story of the need for manpower. Nation had broken the law and that was all.

The national CIO is going to carry an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals—and higher if necessary, to establish whether a state law designed to freeze labor power shall be allowed to choke off war production.

CIO Goes to Town in Drive To Beat War Relief Record

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—CIO went to town this week in full support of the War and Community Fund drive, under the leadership of CIO's War Relief Committee. Aim was to beat last year's record.

More than 45,000 CIO war relief committees in locals all over the nation, and 150 full-time labor representatives, are working with fund raising staffs to insure full participation of CIO's 5,000,000 members. Among early reports of progress were:

Nashua, N. H., topped its Fund quota with the aid of CIO workers, who constituted 90 per cent of the industrial division.

The CIO American Federation of Hosiery Workers at Des Moines, Iowa, voted one hour's pay per month from every member through the CIO War Relief Committee.

In one large local, members will give seven or eight hours pay to the War Chest, an increase of nearly 600 per cent over employe contributions last year.

In Youngstown, Ohio, the Mahoning County CIO Council voted to donate one hour's pay a month for 10 months to the Fund.

Nationally, the Committee plans to beat last year's record collection of $22 million from CIO workers for war relief causes, including USO, United Seamen's Service, and British, Russian and Chinese war relief, and War Prisoners' Aid.

CIO's Main Task

Fight to Win War And People's Peace

Murray Tells CIO Parley Million New Members Signed

CIO's main task is to take the offensive to help win the war, and to guarantee a people's peace. That was the theme of CIO President Murray's report to the 6th CIO Convention which opened November 1 in Philadelphia. Murray said CIO's home front fight to back up the battle fronts was aided during the past year by addition of more than a million new members, united in CIO affiliates in firm determination to back the Commander-in-Chief and to "smash forward with the coalition offensive" to force the unconditional surrender of the fascist Axis.

PRES. PHILIP MURRAY

Pledge to Soldiers

Murray Says CIO Fights for Victory, Jobs with Peace

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 30—When labor gave its no-strike pledge, it had but one thought in mind—to keep industry at maximum production for the war, CIO President Philip Murray said this week in a radio speech on Navy Day.

On behalf of the CIO, he pledged that CIO workers would build more and more planes, ships and all other necessary equipment to enable the armed forces "to sweep the seas and skies of the enemy."

To the "gallant men and women of the Navy, the Coast Guard and the Marine Corps" he pledged that labor would strive not only to back the fighting front but also to protect the home front for the days after the war.

"We want you to come back to a Nation that has a job for you," he said. "We want you to come back to a Nation in which you and your families are free of fear, are free from want.

"We want you to come back to a Nation where freedom of speech and freedom of worship still lives. In brief, the CIO wants to preserve our democratic way of life."

AFL Unions 'Freyed' Out Of $60,000!

Washington, Oct. 30—All labor got a severe jolt this week when the Natl. Labor Relations Board announced it could no longer act against company unions as before. The jolt cost some AFL members more than $60,000. And they could blame AFL leaders for it.

Here's what happened. Last July Congress attached the Frey rider to the NLRB appropriation act, prohibiting use of NLRB funds to set aside labor contracts that have been in force for three months.

This week a ruling from the U. S. Comptroller-General informed the NLRB that the Frey rider applies to all contracts, including company union contracts, and said the Board has to call off the dogs on stooge unions.

Among AFL members affected are a claimed 8,000 at the Western Electric Co. at Baltimore, Md., where the Intl. Association of Machinists has been trying to oust a company union in existence with a contract since 1933.

When Col. Frey was fighting for the Frey rider, the Metal Trades Dept. raised $57,000 for the campaign. The Intl. Ass'n. of Machinists contributed $5,000 to the fund.

Col. Frey Gallops Again In Battle With NLRB

By C. W. FOWLER

WASHINGTON Oct. 30—A revival of an old conspiracy against labor is being quietly staged here, with the same authors, the same plot, and practically the same dialogue of its first run four years ago.

The conspiracy is against the Wagner Labor Relations Act. The authors are "Colonel" John P. Frey, head of the AFL Metal Trades, and other AFL officials. The scenario is in the proceed-ing of this year's Metal Trades convention, recently made public. The "happy" ending the authors hope for is the end of the Wagner Act and an era of back-door agreements and company unionism.

The record shows that a proposal to suspend the Wagner Act for the duration of the war was made to the AFL Executive Council by Frey last May. It was rejected. Commenting on the rejection, Frey said:

THE COLONEL TALKS

"The action taken by Congress (the Frey rider prohibiting the NLRB to set aside back-door agreements) applies only during the life of the present appropriation, which is one year.

"In the meantime two valuable opportunities are presented—the securing of necessary amendments to the Wagner Act, which, among other things will guarantee the skilled crafts the right of voting for representation as crafts instead of being smothered as they have been on numerous occasions by the vote of those who were not skilled mechanics and who favor some other organization."

In other words, amend the Wagner Act to allow splinter organizations to break up industrial unions!

THE COL. IS PLEASED

The suspension proposal was not confined to the AFL Council. Frey was so pleased with it that he petitioned Congress for the same thing.

There was some protest, however, from George Q. Lynch, head of the AFL Pattern Makers, who said in a repetition of his protest four years ago:

"I think our problem now is not one of amending the Act, but our problem is to keep it from crucifixion by amendment. . . . I don't believe they (the workers) want the Chamber of Commerce to go to work on this. I don't believe they want Montague to go to work on this, as he did the last time."

Montague was the attorney of three big NAM firms who wrote the AFL's first amendment to the Wagner Act, four years ago. Lynch was one of the very few AFL presidents who protested the conspiracy then.

This is the 1943 version of the conspiracy against labor first played four years ago, when the CIO exposed and scotched a drive to destroy the Wagner Act undertaken by the same people, for the same reasons.

CIO Signs Million More Members, Shifts Political Action to High Gear

★ ★ ★

Organizing for Victory

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—A remarkable growth in CIO membership during the past year was reported by Pres. Philip Murray this week. The dues paying membership increased 1,104,936 from August, 1942, to August, 1943.

JAMES B. CAREY
CIO Secretary-Treasurer

"With this increase in membership, our movement is stronger in every way than at any time in its history," Murray reported.

Adding the increase in CIO Canadian membership to this brings the over-all increase to 1,135,386 in the U. S. and Canada.

The Organization Department is headed by Vice-Pres. Allan S. Haywood. CIO's largest union, the United Automobile Workers, tops the list with a present membership of more than a million. Following closely is the United Steelworkers, whose ranks rose by 183,264 during the year bringing the total to 745,000 members organized in 1,800 local unions.

Other big unions in the war industries also made phenomenal gains.

The United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers took in 298,000 new members; the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers increased 150 per cent; the United Rubber Workers enrolled 100,000 during the year.

The CIO has 40 national and international unions and organizing committees, 386 directly affiliated local industrial unions, and 287 industrial union councils.

Manpower

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—The manpower crisis—now at least a year and a half old—has "reached a new height of urgency and danger" to war production, President Murray wrote in his report to the CIO convention.

This crisis is used as a mask for national service legislation — less politely known as forced labor—via the Austin-Wadsworth bill and other labor draft proposals, Murray explained.

He said that real factors behind manpower shortages are such conditions as faulty allocation of contracts, lack of child care facilities to let women work, lack of housing and feeding arrangements, discrimination against Negroes, labor hoarding, and the like.

"The most efficient national utilization of the services of the men and women of the country is not merely a question of drafting those workers," he wrote. "It is a question of adapting manpower to virtually all the elements of our production machinery and program."

WMC regulations still lack the "hardheaded, widespread, thoroughgoing" approach which will cure the conditions rather than punishing the people who suffer from them.

And the Austin-Wadsworth bill still remains a menace not only to labor's rights, but even more importantly, to war production—because it will only freeze workers under present conditions.

Shipping

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—Progress in ironing out war shipping bottlenecks is chiefly due to the work of the CIO unions in the industry, President Murray pointed out in his report to the convention released here today.

The CIO Maritime Union Committee, representing the eight CIO marine unions at Washington, concentrated during the year on this problem, he said, and despite "business-as-usual" from the shipowners, managed to put over some important sections of the CIO shipping plan.

The heroic war record of the CIO Maritime Union was cited in the report, which told of the seamen's courage in keeping the supplies of war moving to the offensive fighting fronts. In addition, the report praised the CIO Shipbuilding Workers, the Marine Engineers, the Longshoremen and the radiomen in the American Communications Assn.

CIO Fishermen and Allied Workers were praised for their great contributions to the food supply under difficult conditions.

"The record of this war will not be complete without adequate honor to the men of the CIO who have defied danger and death for one purpose—expressed in their own words—to 'Keep 'Em Sailing,'" Murray wrote.

Labor & WLB

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—Labor's unqualified pledge not to strike for the duration of the war made the War Labor Board "one of the most important agencies affecting the welfare of labor," states Pres. Philip Murray's report to the convention.

Although critical of certain weaknesses in the procedure and policies of the board, the report says "it must be recognized that on some basic issues such as the wage policy, the difficulties do not stem from the board but rather from executive orders and directives issued by superior authority."

The report calls for adjustment of the national wage policy by a price rollback to the level of Sept. 15, 1942; wage adjustments on the basis of equal pay for like work, and elimination of wage rate inequalities.

"The CIO has stated that it will oppose any attempt by any government agency to impose a national wage incentive system," the report declares. "This problem must be solved through collective bargaining in specific cases between the union and employer affected."

The board is praised for its policy of trying to prevent discrimination against Negroes and women workers, for its established policy of granting union security, and for other "significant gains for organized labor."

CIO on Taxes

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—CIO members know what taxes mean to them this year, President Murray wrote in the legislative section of his report to the convention meeting here this week.

This education was acquired at first hand, Murray said, in the 1942 tax bill's "direct impact on the paychecks of America's working men and women."

The impact, he pointed out, went right down to workers making as little as $12 a week, and took a five per cent bite out of the paycheck in the mis-named "Victory Tax."

Number 1 job of CIO legislative work now is to push for a decent tax bill for 1943, Murray wrote.

CIO must convince Congress that taxes are not "a statistically abstract subject of debate," or something of interest only to big financial interests but are "bread and butter considerations" affecting all the people.

JOSEPH CURRAN
CIO Vice-President

Labor in Gov.

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—A greater tendency to give labor, at the insistent demand of the CIO, the right to have representatives on the various government agencies is noted in the CIO President's report to the convention.

Direct policy-making and administrative recognition, however, has not yet been granted to labor, the report states, due to "the failure of heads of various government agencies to appreciate the tremendous added impetus which would be given to the war effort if labor were permitted to participate directly in all policy-making as well as administrative functions."

A number of CIO officers and members of CIO international unions are now serving on important Government bodies.

On the War Labor Board in Washington the CIO has two regular members—Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers and Van A. Bittner of the United Steelworkers.

In addition, Pres. Emil Rieve, Textile Workers Union, and Clinton S. Golden, United Steelworkers, serve as alternate members, while John Brophy, director of Industrial Union Councils, and Delmond Garst and Carl Shipley, both from the UAW, serve as substitute members.

In the WLB field organization the CIO has 23 representatives who serve as Regional Board members, 27 as alternates and 235 as regional panel members.

Finances

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—A 19 per cent increase in per capita tax from international unions for the period from October 1, 1942, to September 30, 1943, is shown in the financial statement submitted to the Executive Board just preceding the convention.

The total income for the period was the largest in the CIO's history, according to President Murray's report to the convention.

More than $1,250,000 was spent for organizing, the report states.

During the Third War Loan drive, the CIO invested $150,000 of its surplus in Treasury Bonds.

Politics to Win War

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—CIO's Political Action Committee is "labor's political arm" to win the war and a lasting peace, President Murray said in reporting to the 6th CIO convention opening here today.

Main purpose of the committee is to organize all workers, together with farmers and other groups, for the election of a real victory Congress in 1944, but "it is also looking beyond 1944 and planning for a permanent political organization of labor," he wrote.

This purpose rules out a third party at this time, not only because of the impossibility of placing such a party before the people in time for 1944, but also because "a third party would only serve to divide labor and the progressive forces" now.

Broad political unity is the main weapon of the committee, the report said. "Labor unity on the political front will not only mobilize millions of organized workers and their families, but will stimulate and rally broad non-labor groups" as well.

President Murray, in writing about the need for action, sharply criticized labor's "political apathy in 1942," which resulted in the anti-victory Congress that has been in action since the last elections.

The committee, which was set up in July, 1943, is headed by Sidney Hillman, with Van A. Bittner vice-chairman, R. J. Thomas secretary, and David J. McDonald and Albert J. Fitzgerald.

In citing the work of the committee since then, Murray said that "it has met with an enthusiastic response to its program, keen appreciation of the burning need for the type of political action its program calls for, and eagerness to carry forward the task of organizing on the political front."

Job in Capital

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—CIO has had its most active year in doing its war job with Congress, President Murray noted in his report to the convention here today.

Murray said that CIO learned early in the war that its job of winning victory was not confined to production schedules alone, but also that it covered all issues coming up in Congress.

These issues are directy tied in with war production, since Congress controls the amount of food war workers eat, the housing they live in, and almost every condition under which they do their jobs for the war.

The war job with Congress became especially critical when the new Congress came in January 1, and the majority almost immediately started a drive against "the needs of the war emergency" and in general "fomented confusion, recrimination and disunity."

CIO's reaction to this new crisis was quick, both in the work of the Legislative Dept. under Nathan Cowan and in the setting up of legislative committees in affiliates all over the country, Murray added.

The work of the CIO Recess Action Committee last summer, under direction of George Addes, David J. McDonald, James B. Carey and Julius Emspak, helped greatly in speeding up the tempo of work in the field, though a great deal remains to be done in activating the entire membership.

Worst example of Congressional campaigning against labor and against war production, Murray pointed out, was passage of the Smith-Connally bill and the almost constant attacks on U. S. war agencies, on price control, on use of subsidies for food production, and on the rollback, etc.

CIO Vice-President

Labor & WPB

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—An account of the CIO's efforts to secure really effective participation by labor in the War Production Board is told in Pres. Philip Murray's report to the CIO Convention now meeting here.

Maintaining that labor must have its proper place in the policy-making and administration of the Board, the CIO has demanded a substantial share in WPB powers with adequate personnel to function properly.

In response to this position the old Labor Production Division which in no way met these requirements was scrapped in June, 1943, and the structure through which labor participated in WPB functions was reorganized by adding two vice-chairmen for labor to the WPB, one for Labor Production and the other for Manpower Requirements.

The CIO named Clinton S. Golden, assistant to the President of the United Steelworkers, as vice-chairman for Manpower Requirements and the AFL named Joseph D. Keenan as Vice-chairman for Labor Production.

The two vice-chairmen were given the authority and responsibility to ascertain the manpower factors of war production and to formulate the policies necessary to achieve essential production goals.

Murray's report points out that the other essential, an adequate staff and personnel, is still lacking. Emphasis so far, he states, has been upon mobilization of materials and facilities, while full utilization of our manpower so far has been dealt with only as a secondary factor.

Murray Tells Convention

Fight to Win War, People's Peace—CIO's Main Task

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1—CIO's main task—to take the offensive to help win the war and secure a people's peace—is the theme of the introduction to President Murray's report to the 6th CIO convention, opening here today.

In this task, the report showed, CIO has gained great strength during the year, not only in the addition of over a million new members, but in unity and firmess behind the Commander-in-Chief "to smash forward with the coalition offensive" to bring about the unconditional surrender of the Axis enemy.

"There are certain fundamental principles which are involved in this people's war of national liberation," Murray said. "We are fighting for the right of the people of every nation to be free, the right of the people to settle their own affairs and to choose their own government.

"We are fighting for the right of the common people to be free from want free from fear, and for their right to achieve security and make a decent living.

"We are fighting for the right of the working men and women of all countries to join labor unions of their own choosing so that through such democratic machinery they can in turn assure the continuance of democracy within their respective nations."

CIO has "religiously maintained our no-strike pledge," Murray wrote in briefly listing CIO's contributions to victory. Its record in production "is without parallel in the history of this or any other country." War Bond drives, blood bank drives, all have been supported to the limit by the men and women of the CIO.

On the home front, CIO has backed every measure to increase support to the fighting fronts, and has fought every attempt in Congress or anywhere else to weaken and disrupt national unity.

At the same time, Murray warned against attempts to promote division not only on the home front but among the United Nations. These attempts, he said, would grow stronger and more persistent as the unconditional surrender of the Axis comes closer to realization.

They must be fought more vigorously than ever before, to make certain that the world is not cheated of victory.

Warning on War

"As the unconditional surrender of the Axis enemies becomes more certain, we must anticipate more devious attempts to weaken our military effort," he said.

"On the domestic front we see this danger in the work of certain powerful interests at home which seek to disunite the people by sowing seeds of distrust between groups, setting one race against another by provocative discriminaton against Negroes and other minority groups and by inciting insurrections," he added.

Backs Intl. Unity

"They seek to sow seeds of disunity among the people of the United Nations in the attempt to drive the United States apart from Britain, or Britain and the U. S. apart from the Soviet Union.

"The same elements have their agents within the labor movement, who for political purposes or personal ambitions are willing to risk the entire future of the nation in our present struggle for survival by creating division, encouraging strikes and stoppages of work to impede the maximum production of war materials."

To smash these disrupters and strengthen the unity of the United Nations behind the offensive against Hitler and Tojo, Murray's report laid stress on the need for international labor unity.

CIO already is working on plans for jobs and security for our soldiers and sailors, and will continue to press for expanded security, for educational opportunities, and all factors that go with a strong domestic economy when the war is won.

"We are interested in developing better understandings 'twixt the labor movements of all the countries fighting with us in this great war," he wrote in the introduction. "We should like to know what they are thinking about, and what their programs are with reference to the future of all the peoples, and particularly to prevent the repetition of another bloody conflict."

Jobs for Soldiers

CIO is well aware of post-war problems, the report showed, and is moving to protect the interests of the men in the armed forces who will come back after the victory is won. In this connection Murray pointed to the 1,150,000 CIO members already in the armed forces.

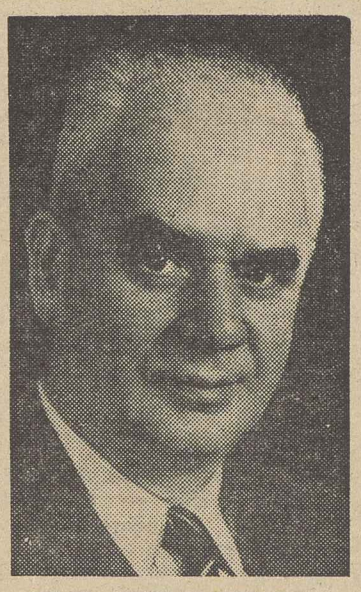
In a final warning against allowing "insidious anti-British and anti-Soviet propaganda" to give Hitler "the respite he needs to rebuild his forces," Murray said:

The answer of organized labor to this danger is clear. We pledge our continued and undivided support to our Commander-in-Chief in fighting men, in production and in patriotism to enable the United Nations to smash forward, with the coalition offensive that has been initiated, to an immediate military destruction of the fascist Axis."

CIO Board Backs Pepper Resolution For Intl. Cooperation

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28—The CIO today threw its weight behind post-war international cooperation, in backing the Pepper Resolution in the U. S. Senate.

The backing came with a resolution of the CIO Executive Board, meeting here in advance of the CIO Convention. The Board urged passage of the "positive amendment" introduced by Senator Pepper in preference to the "vague Connally resolution" now before the Senate.



PRES. PHILIP MURRAY

"The CIO is as deeply concerned with the establishment of a lasting peace as with winning the war," the Board resolution said, in calling on CIO affiliates to support the Pepper amendment.

"International machinery to settle disputes between nations, and to prevent use of force is essential for the maintenance of peace," the resolution stated.

"The U. S. should allay the fears of other nations that we may, through isolationist policies, weaken efforts at international cooperation," the resolution added.

House Group Bans Sales Tax But Issue Still Bears Watching

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—All proposals for a national retail sales tax were rejected this week by the House Ways and Means Commitee. The issue still bears watching for the Senate may move to slip over such a levy to help meet the huge deficit caused by the House Committee's failure to meet Administration financial needs by use of stiffer income and corporation taxes.

The Administration says it needs $10,500,000,000 in new taxes to help fight the war. The House Committee has so far provided less than a tenth of this.

Principal results of a week's dawdling by the House Committee were a proposal to raise taxes on beer and spirits and to jack up postal rates. Beer, of course, is a workingman's drink, and postage hardly figures as a big item in a $50,000 income. Four cents instead of three for a stamp would figure, however, in the budget of a serviceman's wife, if she lives on the allowances paid by the government.

After the House Ways and Means Committee, and the House itself, get through with the tax bill, it goes to the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Walter F. George, (polltaxer, Ga.) George has said very plainly that he favors a sales tax.

Award To Murray

New York, Oct. 30—Chosen for "his forthright stand" on admission of Negroes into labor unions, CIO President Philip Murray has been selected to receive one of the two James J. Hoey awards for 1943, the Catholic Interracial Council announced this week.

Ralph H. Metclafe, Negro athlete, Olympic champion and former director of athletics at Xavier University, was chosen to receive the other.

The award was established last year by the family of the late James J. Hoey, former Collector of Internal Revenue and first president of the Catholic Interracial Council.

Two medals are conferred each year to the white and Negro laymen who have made the most outstanding contributions to the cause of interracial justice during the year.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

THE CIO is a living, growing movement, sensitive to the needs and aspirations of American working people in the quick-changing conditions of a world in crisis.

It grew out of a revolt against narrow craft union policies, complacent bureaucracy and hidebound practices that prevented the older labor movement from adapting itself to new conditions.

So each convention sees the CIO breaking new ground and giving militant, progressive leadership in keeping with the times.

The Philadelphia convention is CIO's second wartime convention. The Detroit convention, two years ago, prepared the way for the movement's transition to a wartime basis. The Boston convention, last year, registered CIO's conversion to an all-out win-the-war movement, working for the country's total mobilization for victory.

President Murray's report to this year's convention reflects the CIO's growth and development under wartime conditions, and the emergence of new policies that follow logically from its victory effort.

★ ★ ★

"The CIO holds the destruction of fascism its greatest single task," Murray says.

From this follows CIO's insistence on total war mobilization, strengthening of the home front, national unity behind the Commander-in-Chief, and coalition warfare of the United Nations leading up to the full-scale invasion of Europe and the knockout blow against Hitler.

For the destruction of fascism, international labor unity is also necessary and the closer welding of the United Nations not only for winning a democratic and lasting peace, Murray points out.

As part of this main task, labor must join in united political action with all progressive and win-the-war elements, to squelch defeatists and pro-fascists; and post-war planning must be begun now to insure the people's welfare and democracy, so there may be no soil for fascism to sprout in hereafter.

★ ★ ★

Murray's report is a splendid record of growth and progress in a year of supreme dedication to winning the war.

Some 1,150,000 CIO members are now serving in the armed forces; and the millions more who are soldiers of production in all the basic war industries have broken world records of production and made outstanding contributions in all phases of war endeavor.

CIO has also made its greatest organizational strides in the past year, adding more than 1,135,000 new members to its rolls, and winning more votes in Labor Board elections than all its competitors put together.

Most of the report is devoted to describing the great campaigns which CIO is conducting on national legislative and administrative issues—for a win-the-war tax program, against high living costs and inflation, for efficient manpower policies, against labor-baiting and disruptive legislation, for social security and a better deal for servicemen, etc.

Through all this activity runs the thread of clear identification between labor's and the national interest. Just as the war has made nearly all labor's economic concerns subject to national determination, so it has made labor conscious that its interests are best served by the most effective possible national mobilization for speedy and total victory.

★ ★ ★

Political action looms largest among the new developments noted in this year's CIO convention report.

Nearly every effort and activity of CIO during the year has run head-on against the labor-baiters, obstructionists and servants of special privilege in the federal Congress; and the realization has grown that only through greatly increased political action can labor achieve both its wartime and its post-war goals.

The deplorable record of the 78th Congress has made the development of labor's political arm a No. 1 task of this year's CIO convention.

Post-war planning, too, emerges in this year's convention report as a matter of immediate concern for a far-sighted and progressive labor movement.

Greater stress than ever before is also placed on labor unity, both nationally and internationally.

Unity of action of all labor, legislatively and politically, for all win-the-war purposes is urged.

Encouraging developments in unity with Latin-American labor are reported; and Murray proposes that CIO should take the lead in bringing together the labor movements of all the United Nations.

Who's Running Congress?

The Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce were never elected by the people of the United States to represent them.

On the contrary, they admittedly represent only the special interests of a small wealthy minority.

Yet the House Ways and Means Committee has slavishly followed the dictates of these representatives of organized wealth on every tax issue it has dealt with so far—completely disregarding the interests of labor, farmers and all the rest of the American people.

(1) As ordered by the NAM and the C. of C., the Committee has rejected all U. S. Treasury proposals for progressively higher income taxes on the upper incomes.

(2) In pretending to drop the discredited and mis-named Victory tax, the Committee has actually made matters even worse by slapping withholding taxes on any single person earning more than $500 and married couples with more than $700.

(3) The Committee has followed NAM and C. of C. orders by refusing to increase gift and estate taxes on the fortunes which the rich pass on to their heirs.

(4) The tory Democrats and Republicans who control the Committee have also jumped to the whip of big business by refusing to increase present inadequate taxes on corporation war profits and voting only a small increase in the excess profits tax.

By such actions, the House committee has served notice that it will raise little, if any, of the 10½ billion more in taxes needed for the war from surplus wealth and war profits.

Yet billions more in taxes have to be raised, and the only conclusion that can be drawn is that the way is being prepared for the big business plan of making the poor pay, by cutting their food and living standards, through a sales tax or some other measure equally disruptive of the war effort.

The House Ways and Means Committee has heretofore made all major decisions on tax legislation. Its bills have been presented to the House under a gag rule restricting debate and permitting them only to be voted up or down.

The CIO is urging that this year the members of Congress have a chance freely to discuss and change the reactionary recommendations of the Committee.

The representatives of organized wealth have had their way with the Committee. How about letting the people's representatives have some say on the floor of the House?

Sweetheart Agreements

When AFL leaders were pushing through Congress an appropriations rider to protect "sweetheart agreements" from the Wagner Act, the CIO warned they were cutting their nose to spite their face.

The rider was passed, forbidding the Natl. Labor Relations Board to entertain complaints against any collusive contract that has been in effect three months.

John P. Frey and his cronies laughed with glee at the idea the CIO could no longer challenge AFL sweetheart agreements and demand the workers have a chance to choose their union.

But now they are laughing on the other side of their face. For the NLRB has held the rider also applies to company-union agreements, and an AFL metal trades union is one of the first to suffer from the legislation it paid good money to pass.

The CIO did everything it could to prevent passage of the rider protecting collusive agreements, as a blow against all labor. Since the rider was passed, the CIO has done and will continue to do all it can to have it so interpreted as to do the least possible damage.

But the CIO still holds that a back-door agreement, which does not permit the workers their full and free choice of union representation, is contrary to the intent of the Wagner Act and the democratic interests of American workers, whether it is entered into by an AFL union, a company union or any other organization.

Full powers should be restored to the NLRB to protect working people against any kind of company union or collusive interference with their right to choose a union, as Congress originally intended when it passed the Wagner Act.

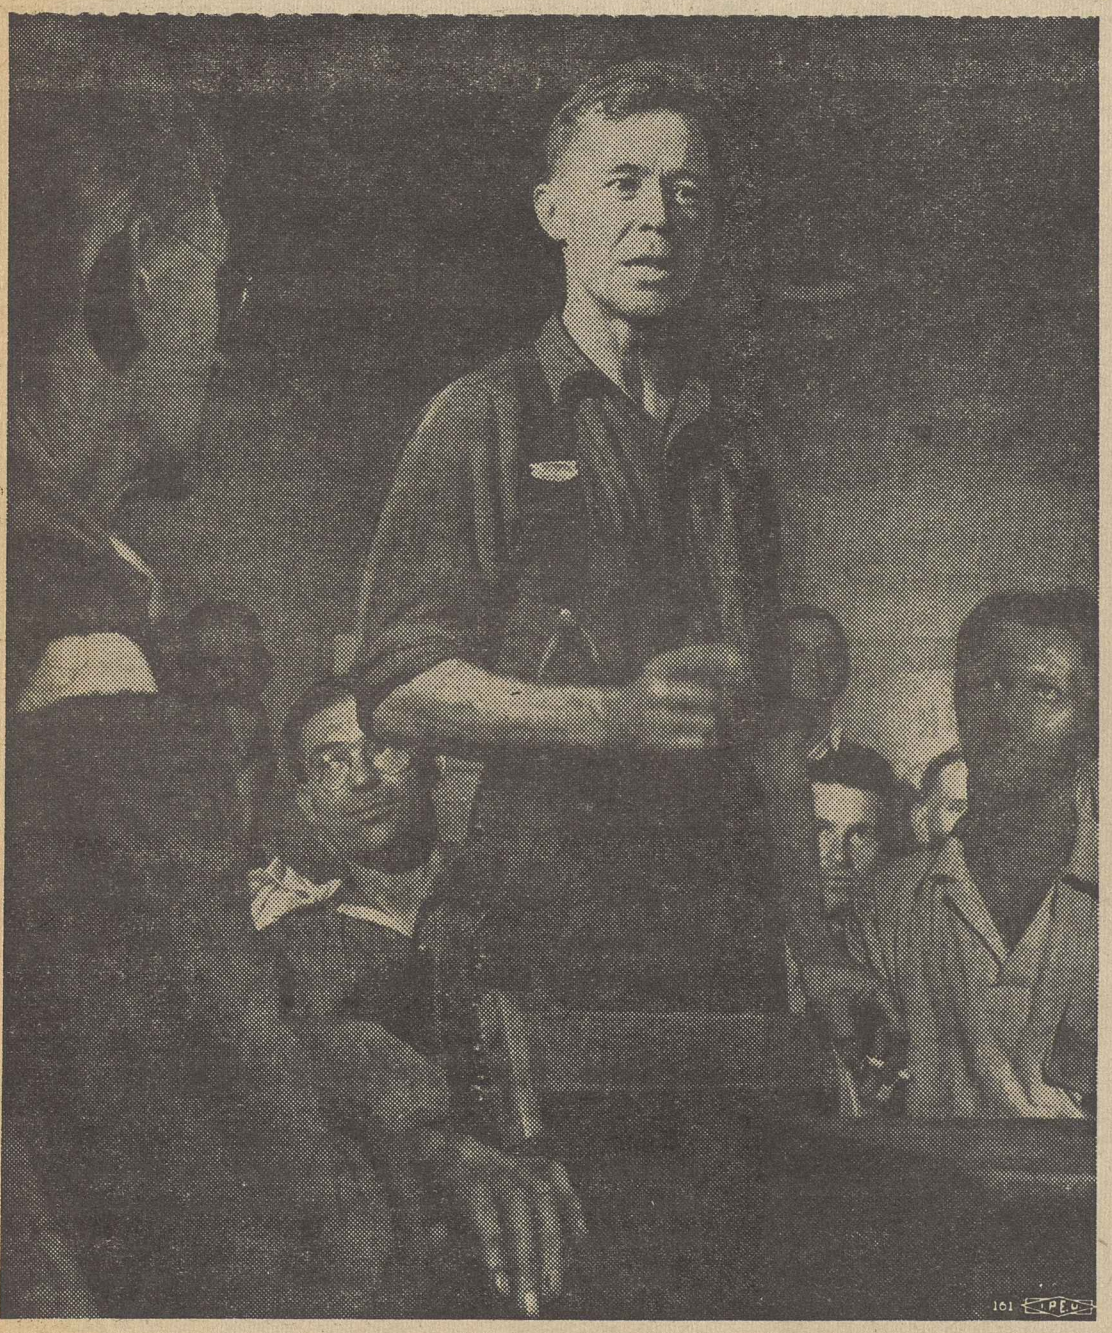
CIO Fights for Victory!

THE CHALLENGE! Axis planes smash American ships, kill American seamen, sink American planes, tanks, guns needed for United Nations' victory.



(Courtesy CLICK Magazine)

THE ANSWER: CIO unions guarantee all-out, continuous production to back up their buddies fighting to smash the Axis.

Drive to Defeat Axis Main Goal Of CIO Unions

A one-way, no-limit ticket to heaven was written on the Nazi bomb that blasted the munitions hatch of the S. S. ——, CIO-built, CIO-manned, and carrying CIO-made planes, tanks, guns and bullets needed by American soldiers to defeat the Axis.

Crew, ships, planes, tanks, guns and bullets—all were smashed into nothing by the tremendous explosion that brought a sadistic smile to the face of the Nazi pilot who chalked up the hit for credit with Der Fuehrer.

"Decadent democrats," he muttered through his teeth, remembering Holland, France, Greece and what Herr Hitler had sneeringly referred to as the "United States of Germany." "Those stupid fools could be split apart by playing Protestants against Catholics, and Catholics against Jews, and all of the white people against the Negroes, and the Negroes against the white," the Nazi pilot paraphrased Hitler's philosophy.

But the Nazi pilot forgot—or perhaps he never had heard about—the hard core of the United States, a core as tempered and dangerous as the steel that some day would pierce his heart. He forgot—or didn't know—about CIO and its five million members, dedicated to the preservation of democracy and ready to fight for it.

The challenge he dumped on that CIO deck killed a hundred men, but a million more of them on the fighting fronts and five million others back home swore to avenge the deaths of their brothers—pledged under the leadership of President Philip Murray to fight to the death to wipe Axis slavery off the earth.

CIO'S millions at home have one major goal—to out-produce Axis slave labor so that our fighting forces will arrive at battlefields "fustest with the mostest" to crush the enemy.

CIO's millions know this goal calls for the kind of all-out continuous production that will make Hitler chew rugs.

He must be importing them from Turkey by this time, because the CIO's record has not only been shot at—it has been broken and re-broken.

The tempo of CIO's production effort was set by President Philip Murray's firm no-strike pledge, made while the Pearl Harbor tragedy was hot in the nation's headlines. It's a pledge that's been religiously kept, to the point where President Murray could say without qualification that "our record of achievement in the field of production is without parallel in the history of this or any other country."

FDR Hails Production Record

And President Roosevelt recently declared:

"Our war factories and plants and shipyards are now working at full blast turning out the greatest amount of war production in the history of the world." He revealed that:

During the first eight months of 1943, American workers produced 52,000 planes, 23,000 tanks, 40,600 artillery weapons and 4,638,000 rifles, carbines and machine guns.

The completions of Navy ships in the last six months were equal to completions in the entire year of 1942.

During the month of August, 1943, we produced almost as many torpedoes as we did during the whole first World War.

Since the outbreak of war in Europe, we have increased our output of petroleum by 66 per cent, bituminous coal production 40 per cent, chemicals 300 per cent, iron ore 125 per cent and steel 106 per cent.

Citing this record, the outspoken Army magazine, YANK, said:

"It seems strange that America was able to accomplish this terrific task of production if the average worker at home was interested only in getting a raise and didn't know or care about the war overseas.

"The truth is, of course, that absentees and goldbrickers crop up in the factories and mines and shipyards—just as they do in the armed forces—but they represent only a very small minority.

"The average American worker is doing his job. And he knows only too well that there is a war going on."

You're darned right he does, YANK! And he's not only

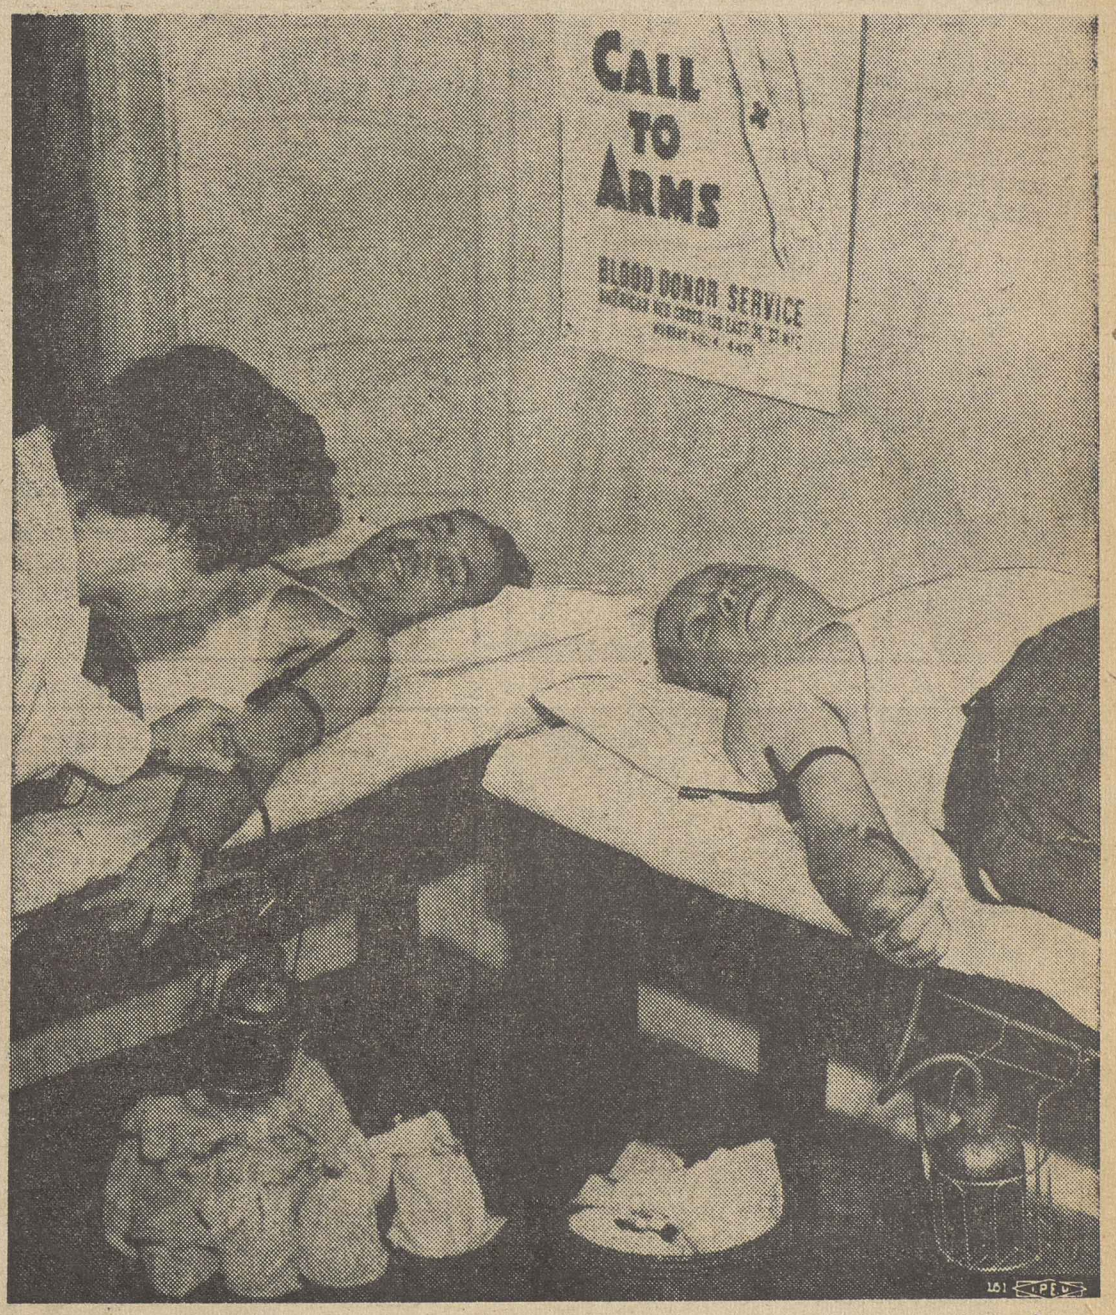
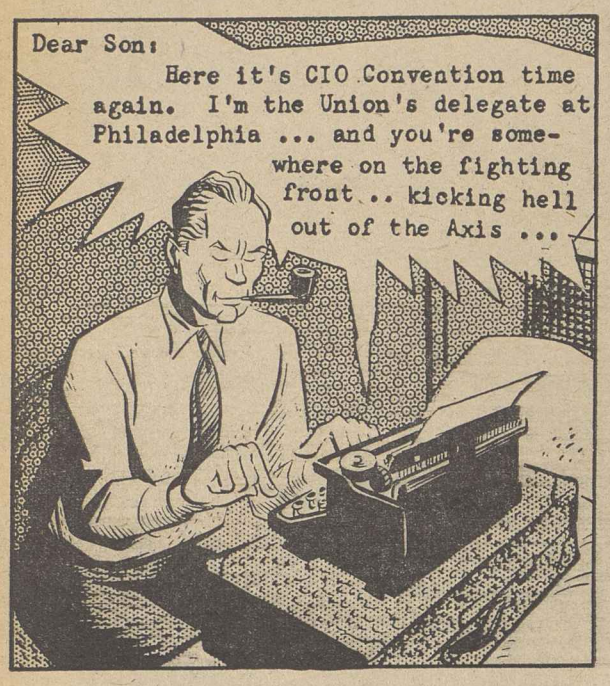
CIO BACKS PRICE CONTROL to keep food costs down so war workers can get enough to eat.



CIO BLOOD DONORS pump energy of life from soldiers of production front to soldiers of battle front.

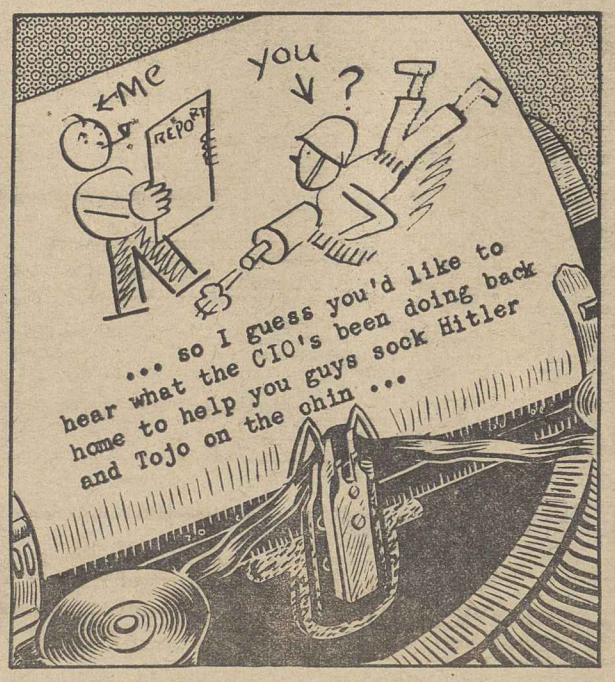
Letter to a Soldier . . .



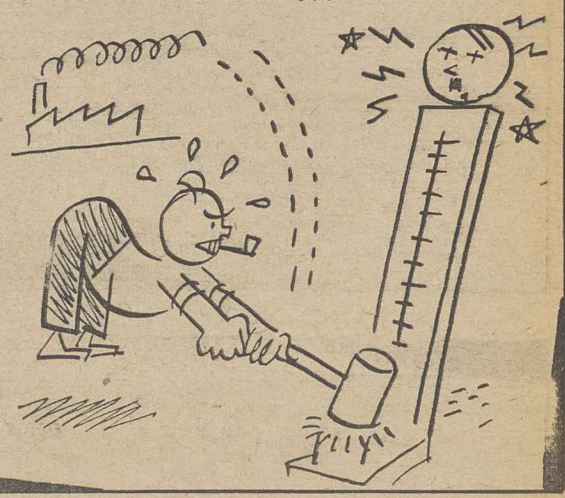
Remember a year ago? It was CIO's 5th Convention when you were landing in North Africa ... you sure made us proud.

A lot of war has been fought against fascism since then. We've been following you and your buddies all over the map.

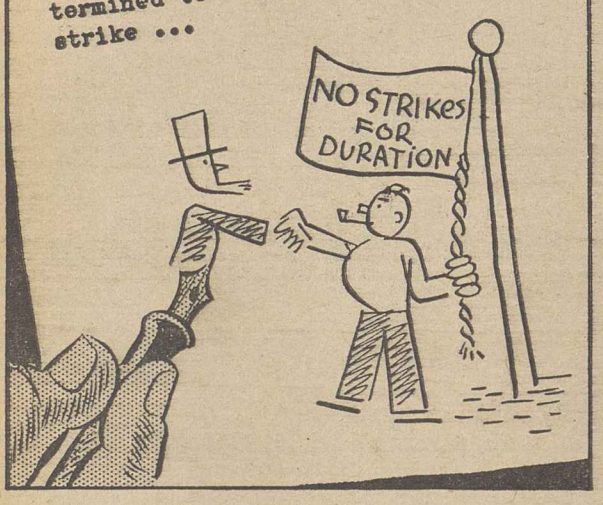
When they handed out CIO's annual report this morning, I reminded myself that you're a member of the Union, too ...

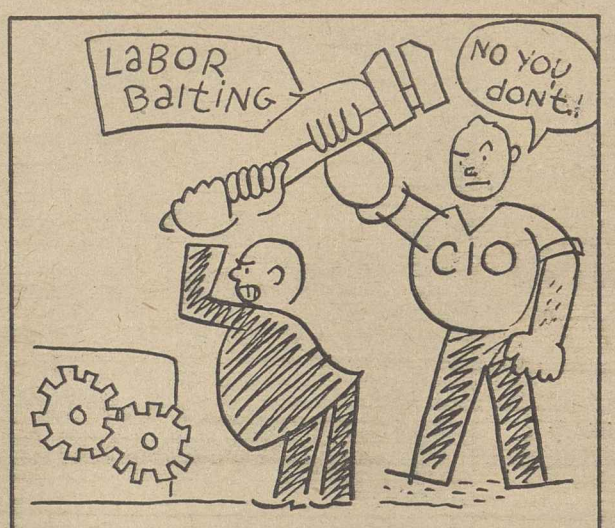


Our first big war job has been making those tanks and planes and guns you need ... we've broken plenty of records ... we'll smash a lot more of them ...



... All-out, continuous production--that's what we're for. The CIO's report shows we're determined to keep our pledge not to strike ...



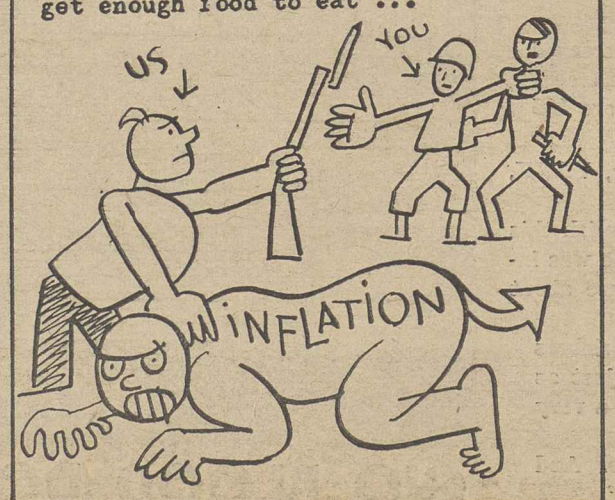


... even with some awfully sour labor-baiting--in Congress and out--the kind of baiting that looks like deliberate sabotage ...

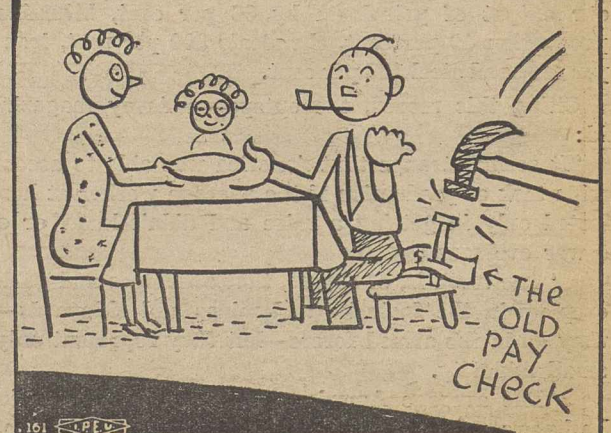
... like the Smith-Connally law that tries to provoke strikes and then use them as sticks to beat unions with. We're working to repeal it now.

The way I figure it, a strong and stable country to back you up ... and for you to come back to ... is what you want us to fight for at home ...

... and we'd be letting you down and helping Hitler if we let inflation loose, with prices goin(so high a lot of workers couldn't get enough food to eat ...

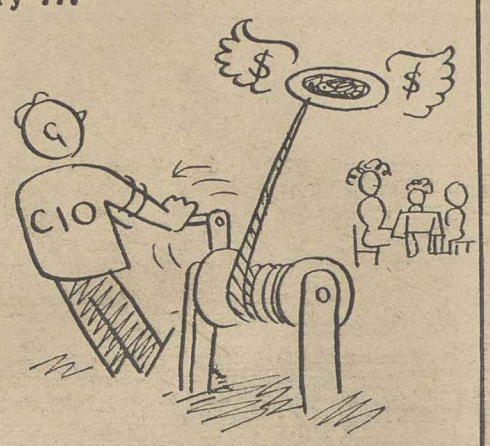


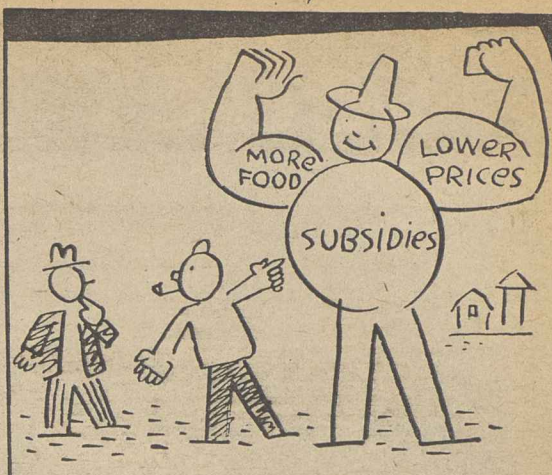
Congress hasn't been much help on this. They nailed down our wages as of September 15, 1942 ... but not prices ...



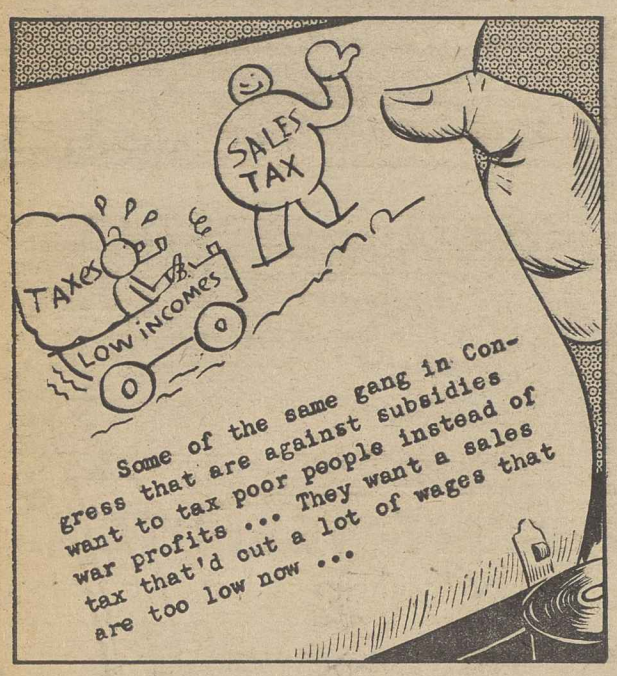
... all Congress had for prices was a rubber band ... they've gone right on up to darned near the stratosphere ...

So CIO's been fighting for a rollback of prices to stop inflation and to keep war workers eating regular so they can turn out the stuff you guys need for victory ...



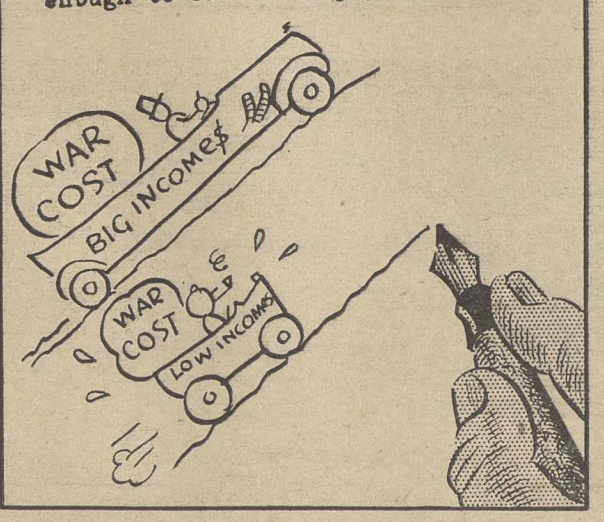


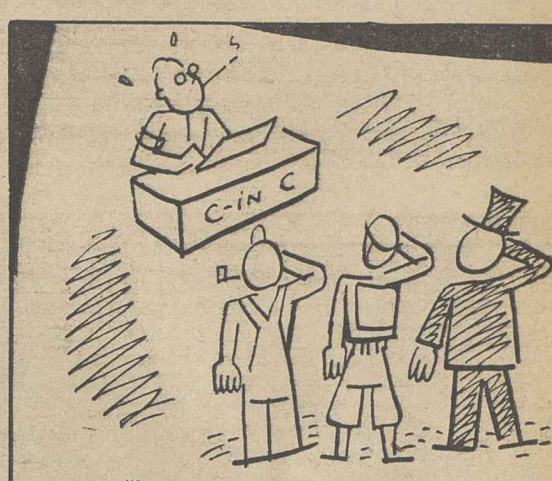
The only way to keep food production up with fair prices for the farmers, and to keep food prices down for consumers, is to use subsidies, like CIO has urged ...



Some of the same gang in Congress that are against subsidies want to tax poor people instead of war profits ... They want a sales tax that'd cut a lot of wages that are too low now ...

... so the CIO's fighting to raise the taxes that we need to win the war from the people who'll have enough to eat AFTER paying taxes.

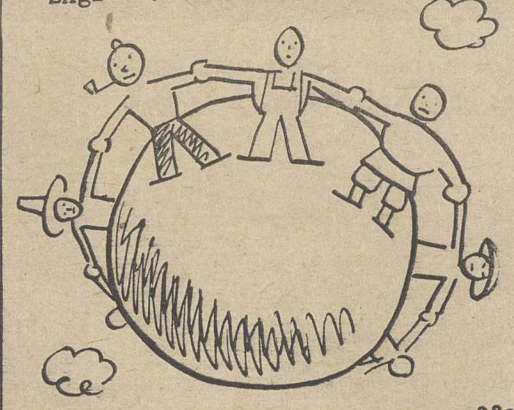




We want everyone to pay his share. And we'll work with all of 'em to win the war ... we're 100 per cent for national unity behind the Commander-in-Chief ...

... and national unity includes things like wiping out race discrimination, because it's things like this that help Hitler, not us ...

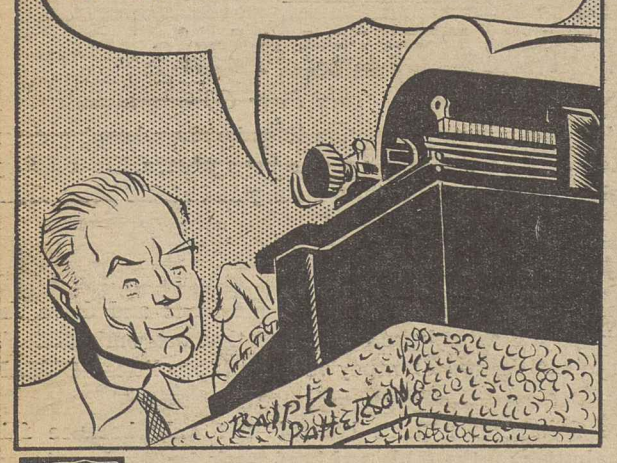
We're plugging for United Nations unity, too--with workers in England, the Soviet Union, China,

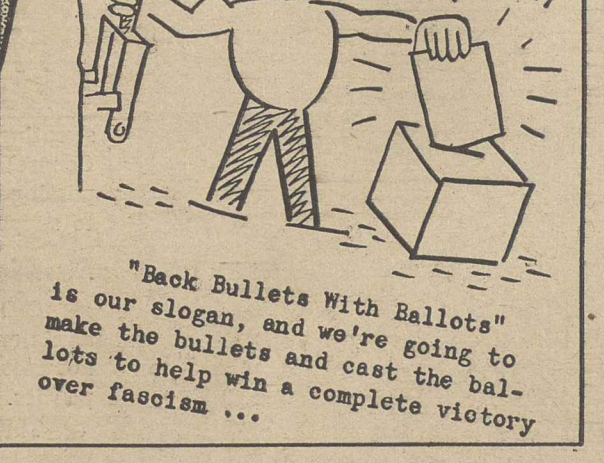


Latin-America--to take the offensive against the common enemy.

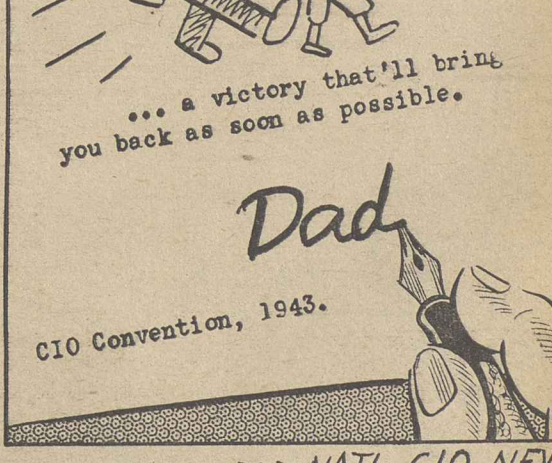
We're fighting hard to help you win, son, and CIO's grown stronger than ever in doing it ... more than a million new members--men and women--signed up this year!

... And we're working for united political action among workers and farmers and everyone else who wants to beat the Axis ... for a real win-the-war Congress now and in '44.





"Back Bullets With Ballots" is our slogan, and we're going to make the bullets and cast the ballots to help win a complete victory over fascism ...



... a victory that'll bring you back as soon as possible.

sweating his heart out on production lines but he's keeping after Congress to see that it backs up the boys across the seas by passing legislation that will build a strong and stable home front to support the war.

Political Action for Victory

CIO men and women who run the machines and drive the rivets and build the ships have discovered that economic action's not enough to win the war. So they've turned to politics—CLEAN politics.

They're fighting for price control—not only because fair prices mean butter on the table and beef steak for Sunday dinner, but for the very practical reason that war workers must have enough to eat if they're going to turn out all the weapons our fighting forces need.

They're fighting for repeal of the Nazi-like polltax, which prevents more than ten million Southern citizens—white and Negro—from participating as voting members in this democracy which we are defending.

They're fighting for fair taxes—against the sales tax—so that people like servicemen's dependents can buy enough food and clothing and decent housing with the pittance the government pays them.

CIO's slogan is "Back Bullets with Ballots," and CIO believes in and practices the policy of working with everyone else who wants to help win the war, regardless of race, color, creed or national origin.

CIO Bans Discrimination

CIO's policy against discrimination was put so no one could misunderstand it—President Murray speaking: "Any practice of racial discrimination, whether in industry or in the armed services or in any other sector of national life, is ammunition for our Axis enemies."

One of the brightest spots in CIO's history since Pearl Harbor has been the increased cooperation between CIO and the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. On almost every fighting front in the world, CIO men are making outstanding records as members of Seabee construction gangs as well as directly in the fighting forces. CIO longshoremen have entered the Army en masse, to train soldiers for the difficult job of loading and unloading cargoes of war. CIO seamen are pushing an upgrading program so the members of the maritime unions can take over the jobs of officers who are killed by Axis bombs and torpedoes. And on the production lines, CIO workers cooperate 100 per cent with United States Army, Navy and Marine officials to turn out better products and more of them.

Murray Warns of Disunity

CIO knows the war isn't over—not by a long shot. The warning that dangerous days lie ahead was sounded by President Murray in his report to the Sixth Annual Convention. He said:

"As the unconditional surrender of the Axis enemies becomes more certain, we must anticipate more devious attempts to weaken our military effort. . . .

"They seek to sow seeds of disunity among the peoples of the United Nations in the attempt to drive the United States apart from Britain, Britain and the United States apart from the Soviet Union."

In the same way, he warned, forces within the labor movement work by trying to create division, by "encouraging strikes and stoppages of work to impede the maximum production of war materials."

To smash this conspiracy against total victory and to safeguard the lives of millions of our American soldiers and sailors, CIO builds for unity among all the United Nations, and particularly among their labor movements, not only to help win the war but to guarantee a democratic peace that will keep the world free from aggression. That peace is fast approaching and will be faster still in arriving if CIO men and women fight as hard next year as they have during the past 12 months to twist the halter that will hang Hitler. In the words of President Murray:

"The conditions for obtaining the unconditional military surrender of the Axis forces have been created. The moment for which the free peoples of the world, as well as the unfortunate human beings of the occupied territories, have waited so eagerly, is approaching."

CIO is giving everything its five million men and women have for that moment. CIO backs our Commander-in-Chief. CIO works for unity around the single aim—total victory and a just peace.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

To Officers, Shop Stewards and Committeemen
of CIO Local Unions:

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

I am writing to announce the launching of a special circulation drive for the national weekly organ of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, THE CIO NEWS, and to enlist your cooperation in making this drive successful.

THE CIO NEWS performs a function for our whole movement which no other publication can perform.

It is the chief means of communication between the national CIO and our unions, representatives and members, besides being the main outlet for getting our message before labor and the public.

It is an invaluable aid in building morale and national unity for winning the war, publicizing our plans and efforts for more war production and showing how labor's constructive aims can promote victory.

It is our only medium for unified national campaigning on organizational and legislative issues affecting all our unions.

It promotes greater unity and mutual understanding among CIO unions, publicizing the achievements of each union to our other affiliated unions, and enlisting the support of all for the campaigns and struggles of each.

In my opinion, it is of importance both to your union and to the CIO that its national official organ, THE CIO NEWS, should be read regularly at least by all your officers, organizers, local union officials, shop stewards, educational committeemen and other leading members.

I wish to request that you give your full cooperation to increase the circulation of THE CIO NEWS among your officers and members. This will be sincerely appreciated and, I am sure, will benefit our whole movement.

Fraternally yours,

Philip Murray

CIO Convention Report:

Intl. Labor Unity a 'Must,' Murray Says; Blasts AFL for Blocking It

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1—United Nations labor unity now is a must for complete victory and for "a democratic and just peace," President Murray said in reporting to the CIO convention here today.

Hitting out sharply at Sir Walter Citrine, head of the British union, and at the AFL top officials for their sabotage of world unity, Murray called for "immediate steps" by CIO to call a meeting of United Nations' unions, including British, Soviet Union, United States and Latin American organizations.

"The time has come to depart from mere pious expressions," he said. "The moment for action is at hand. We must accomplish international labor unity as an imperative need for the most effective prosecution of a people's war and for the effectuation of a people's peace."

In his report, Murray reviewed the refusal of Citrine and of the AFL to take part in such a meeting when the CIO proposed it last year. He also said that Citrine's attitude was further exposed "when at the last meeting of the Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Committee he rejected a move to expand the committee so as to include the representatives of all the labor organizations of all the United Nations.

"The stakes involved for the peoples of the world in the successful collaboration of international labor are too vitally important to permit any frivolous or petty obstacles or past differences to prevent its accomplishments."

IUC's Active

Philadelphia, Nov. 1 — Greater legislative and community activity by CIO Councils during the year was noted by President Murray in the section of his report dealing with the department of Industrial Union Councils, headed by John Brophy.

The Dept. of Councils cooperated closely with the Legislative Dept. to meet the need of strong political action by labor, to elect pro-labor candidates and fight both federal and state anti-labor legislation.

FRANK ROSENBLUM
CIO Vice-President

A conference was held early in the year to draw up a legislative program which was promoted by Director Brophy through Council machinery, and by Legislative Rep. Nathan Cowan through the inter-national unions.

Wherever possible the CIO Councils have tried to establish joint political activity with AFL unions and Railroad Brotherhoods, and have set up ward and precinct organizations in some cities. These have launched vigorous campaigns to get union members to register and vote.

War Relief

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—Labor is the largest single source of funds for war relief and community service, President Philip Murray said in his convention report on the Natl. CIO War Relief Comimttee. CIO alone, he declared, has raised more than $22,000,000.

The Committee's work with both foreign and domestic organizations was cited, and its aid to the Red Cross and the Natl. War Fund was noted.

CIO members are cooperating on the advisory staffs of many social agencies which heretofore never had labor representation, the report stated, and in a number of cities full-time CIO staff members have been added to some such organizations.

"An important by-product of our war relief work has been the excellent relationship which has been built up between CIO and the relief agencies which have been created to meet war needs, and with the long-established welfare agencies with which we have been associated," the report stated.

"Perhaps no feature of CIO's war-time services has been so widely recognized and acclaimed as our leadership in this field.

"Special credit is due to the publications of the international unions and councils, as well as The CIO NEWS, for the active support they have given this phase of our work through the year."

The Committee is headed by Chairman Irving Abramson.

Victory Com.

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—The Comined Labor Victory Committee, which has been meeting frequently with President Roosevelt since it was formed in 1942, has called the President's attention to labor's needs under the war-time economy, CIO President Philip Murray reported to the convention today.

Discussed with the President were such matters as the rollback of living costs, the wage situation, manpower problem, and need of overall planning for total mobilization of all our resources for victory in the war.

With a representative of the Railroad Brotherhoods added to the CIO and AFL representatives, the Committee now makes possible unity of action of the three branches of organized labor behind the win-the-war program, states the report.

Peace Plan

Philadelphia, Nov. 1 — Development of plans for the guidance of the CIO on problems of the post-war period has been entrusted to the CIO's Post-War Planning Committee, Pres. Philip Murray states in his report to the convention.

The committee is composed of John Brophy, Clinton S. Golden, and J. Raymond Walsh.

"What happens in the next few years, perhaps months, will greatly influence our nation's welfare and workers' welfare," the report declares.

A 12-point program drawn up by the committee briefly lists the things that must be done to protect the nation's workers from job insecurity after the war, and from the evils that Fascism and war brought to the workers of other countries.

"If full employment is achieved and maintained at decent living standards, if trade is encouraged, and if the United States cooperates with the United Nations, the standards of the workers of the world would be raised and the forces for peace strengthened everywhere," the report states.

Vicious State Laws

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—State anti-labor laws are a new and widespread danger to war production, spreading out as a backwash of Congressional attacks on unions, President Murray noted in his report to the CIO convention here.

Working with the AFL and the Brotherhoods, the CIO has fought these laws in every state where they passed, and has scored a KO on one in Colorado in a case argued by General Counsel Lee Pressman.

Usually these state laws follow a pattern, forcing unions to reveal their financial status to interested employers, denying the right (voluntarily laid aside for the duration) to strike and picket, requiring registration of unions and officers, etc.

These laws violate U. S. Supreme Court decisions upholding the right to strike and picket as basic rights under Constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and assembly, the report pointed out.

"It is the intention of CIO to carry these cases to the highest courts if necessary to assure the fullest protection of the rights of American working men and women to organize and bargain collectively," Murray added.

Latin Labor

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—Main aim of CIO in setting up its Committee on Latin American Affairs was to take a "step toward international labor unity," President Murray wrote in reporting the work of the committee to the convention.

"It is the purpose of the committee to establish friendly and cooperative relations with the trade unions of Latin-America," as a means of promoting the Good Neighbor policy and of creating Hemisphere unity against fascism, he stated.

The committee chairman, Jacob S. Potofsky, attended the July meeting of the Confederation of Latin-American Workers, (CTAL) headed by Lombardo Toledano, and spoke at two of the meetings of the Executive Board.

"He found," Murray wrote, "that the CTAL—with a membership of four million—speaks for organized labor in Latin America. He encountered, everywhere, the warmest admiration for the CIO. In discussions during the conference, it was evident that there is a strong desire to deepen and extend cooperation between the two labor movements."

In addition, David J. McDonald and Martin C. Kyne of the CIO Committee went to Chile and Bolivia respectively, to talk with labor there. On the Bolivian trip, Kyne saw and reported on the horrible conditions of the tin miners that led to the recent strike and the massacre of workers by the police.

Housing

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—Conditions which last year hampered construction of needed housing for war workers continued to operate this year, President Murray said in his report to the CIO Convention.

"A reactionary Congress has proved reluctant to appropriate funds to meet the needs of war workers for shelter in the face of the fact that many manpower shortages in war centers, where they have developed, have demonstrably been due in many instances to totally inadequate accommodations."

Discussing the work of the CIO Committee on Housing, headed by President R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, Murray wrote:

"The difficulties of construction and management during the war are so great that, of necessity, a significant part of the work of any housing organization in this period must lie in the field of post-war planning."

Murray noted that the Committee is working on plans in close cooperation with interested and responsible government agencies.

Keep Your Eye On Congress

Taxes and the use of subsidies to boost food production and cut living costs are still the biggest issues of the week. The House Ways and Means Committee has made slow and painful progress during the past week, coming up after much labor with plans to increase postage rates, liquor taxes and other excise taxes; it is still staying away from taxes on wealth.

The debate on the "constitutionality" of HR 7, the polltax repeal bill, started this week, with Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, appearing for the CIO and 10 million disfranchised Americans.

One final push now in the Senate can repeal the polltax, if we make sure to demand a cloture vote from our Senators to kill the filibuster. Cloture (which closes debate) requires a two-thirds vote.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Tax bill.	Your new taxes.	House Ways and Means Committee.	Keep up drive against sales tax, for win-the-war CIO tax program.
Food Subsidies (HR 3458)	Extends life of CCC. As reported by House Banking Committee, use of subsidies for food production and rollback barred.	Out of House Banking Committee, ready for floor action.	Wire your Representative to work and vote for repeal of subsidy ban.
Polltax repeal. (HR 7)	Brings 10 million Americans back into democracy.	Debate on "constitutionality" resumes Nov. 2.	Press for immediate Senate vote, urge Senators to vote for cloture to kill filibuster.
HR 2328, HJ Res. 49.	Forbid mailing anti-Semitic, anti-Negro and other fascist material. Would hit vermin like G. L. K. Smith, et al.	In sub-committee of House Postoffice Committee, Sam Weiss (D., Pa.) chmn. Hearings Nov. 15, 16.	Urge your Representative to support.

Convention Reports

Security

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—The CIO Committee on Social Security, headed by Van A. Bittner, recommended many of the provisions of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill providing for an improved social security program, CIO President Philip Murray reported to the National CIO convention today.

The bill now pending in Congress, which has the wholehearted support of the CIO, Murray's report stated, sets up improved machinery for finding jobs; provides protection for former members of the armed service; greatly improves the programs of old age and survivors' insurance and unemployment benefits; and launches a new program of health insurance.

A pamphlet containing information about the bill and its importance has been issued by the Department of Research and Education under the title "For the Nation's Security."

It has been ordered in large quantities by many unions, the report said, and has been sent out to progressive groups whose support the CIO is trying to enlist.

Labor Unity

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—"Unity of American labor is essential to victory," President Murray said in his report to the CIO Convention. "Its achievement would solidify our national unity behind our Commander-in-Chief. It would clearly strengthen our economic and legislative front for all-out war mobilization.

"It would be a stunning blow to the hopes of our Axis enemies and their disruptive agents in our own country who seek to prepare for our defeat by dividing our people."

Describing the AFL as reluctant to enter unity negotiations proposed by the CIO, Murray pointed to CIO suggestions for the establishment of state and local Labor Victory Committees similar to the national organization, and to the proposal that labor should call a national win-the-war conference "to establish labor's leadership in rallying the people behind our Commander-in-Chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and our nation's victory."

Murray noted that these proposals, as well as the suggestion of a joint CIO-AFL committee to handle jurisdictional disputes, came to nothing because of the AFL's disinclination to cooperate.

Citing cooperation between CIO and AFL unions on a local scale in connection particularly with political campaigns vital to labor, Murray wrote: "It is to be hoped that on the basis of this support from below, unity of action by the CIO, AFL and the Railroad Brotherhoods may soon be accomplished."

Race Bias

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—Race riots and other forms of racial prejudice in evidence during the past year showed the need of expanding the activities of the CIO Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination, CIO President Philip Murray reported to the convention.

The committee's work is two-fold: (1) It advises CIO affiliates on questions affecting their racial policies. (2) It maintains contacts with governmental agencies to insure full Negro participation.

CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey is chairman of the committee, Willard S. Townsend is secretary, and George Weaver is director. Other members are James J. Leary, Shipbuilding Workers; Ferdinand Smith, Maritime Union; Boyd Wilson, Steelworkers, and Walter Hardin, Auto Workers.

FEPC

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—A direct Congressional appropriation to make a permanent agency of the Fair Employment Practices Committee is called for in CIO President Philip Murray's report to the convention.

John Brophy, director of Industrial Unions Councils, is the CIO representative on the seven-man Committee, which was set up by President Roosevelt two years ago.

The work of the committee which deals with problems of job discrimination on grounds of race, creed, color or national origin, has been financed so far out of the President's emergency funds.

More than a thousand cases have come before the committee, 82 per cent of them involving discrimination against Negroes.

Legal Dept.

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—Problems arising under the new war-time government agencies and executive orders affecting labor have increasingly occupied the attention of the CIO's Legal Department, headed by General Counsel Lee Pressman, according to CIO President Philip Murray's report to the Convention.

The Department has given service to CIO unions in appearances before major government agencies and has offered consultation and advice on legal problems to CIO groups throughout the country.

Growth of CIO legislative activity has greatly expanded another phase of the Legal Department's work, states the report. A member of the legal staff works with the Legislative Department, and during the year the two departments have cooperated closely in drafting legislation, in presenting testimony for CIO witnesses before various Congressional committee conferences, and in preparing analyses of pending bills.

Wallace, Mrs. FDR To Talk at Parley

Philadelphia, Oct. 28—Members of the CIO Executive Board met here today to lay plans for the sixth Convention of CIO. The following outsider speakers were slated to address the big meeting.

Three speakers, all of them headliners, are scheduled, plus two fraternal delegates from the Canadian labor movement. The three are: Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, who will speak Wednesday, November 3; Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who will speak the same day; and James Patton president of the Natl. Farmers Union.

Mrs. Roosevelt will also be the featured speaker at the CIO Women's Auxiliaries Conference, which will meet the same time as the convention.

The two Canadian delegates are A. R. Mosher, president, and Pat Conroy, secretary, of the Canadian Congress of Labor. The CCL is the central body of Canadian CIO and national unions.

Entertainment for the 600 delegates will open with a showing of British war movies Monday night, to be followed Tuesday by "Army Night," featuring U. S. war veterans, just back from the fighting fronts.

Wednesday's feature will be the traditional CIO banquet, with excerpts from the CIO musical show, "Marching with Johnny," to be put on the road soon by the CIO War Relief Committee.

CIO Press

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—The CIO still has to cope with much misrepresentation and anti-labor bias in both press and radio, President Murrray's report to the convention stated.

In a section on CIO Public Relations activity under direction of Len De Caux, Murray said:

"Anti-labor propaganda during the past year has taken the form of untrue but widely circulated slanders against the unions; exaggeration of strikes and other alleged delinquencies of labor; and press campaigns around such issues as absenteeism designed to place labor in an unfavorable light and to prepare the way for anti-labor legislation."

President Murray noted that "many outstanding dramatic, musical and entertainment shows have been broadcast by the CIO in the 'Labor for Victory' series."

He cited the publicity department's work in publicizing legislative issues, particularly through The CIO NEWS and through pamphlets, which have been circulated by the millions.

"Due to the war," Murray said, "most of labor's concerns have become national issues subject to Congressional action or to determination by federal administrative agencies. This fact, coupled with expanded CIO legislative and political activity has greatly increased the importance of The CIO NEWS, as the one CIO publication which weekly reports and promotes national CIO policy and gives the national news affecting labor directly from Washington."

Living Costs

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—The CIO's fight to achieve stabilization of living at the same level as wages were stabilized has been led by the CIO Cost of Living Committee and the OPA Labor Policy Committee.

The same four representatives serve on both committees, states President Philip Muray's convention report.

They are Research and Education Director J. Raymond Walsh, chairman; Donald Montgomery, United Automobile Workers; Leo Goodman, United Retail, Wholesale & Department Store Employes, and Russ Nixon, United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers.

UNION MAN: Vice-Pres. Henry A. Wallace had a UAW-CIO button pinned on his lapel last week when he spoke at the union's headquarters at Dallas, Tex. Wallace, shown above chatting with UAW Reg. Dir. John W. Livingston, declared that full employment must be provided during the post-war period, and said that labor and agriculture must stand together if we are to achieve a better standard of living.

Auxiliary Delegates Flock to Philly For CIO Convention

By FAYE STEPHENSON

National President, CIO Council of Women's Auxiliaries

Representatives of our CIO auxiliaries from many parts of the United States are gathering in Philadelphia for the third annual Conference of the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries. They have one central purpose in mind—to plan how they can most effectively assist their unions and the CIO to speed victory in the war against Hitlerism and to assure a real people's peace.

As women, we have always felt that we had a special stake in the defeat of Naziism, which stands for the degradation of all women. This year, with millions of our men serving in the armed forces of our country, we feel keenly our special responsibility to keep the home front strong in their absence, and to protect for them and for our children our democratic way of life.

FAYE STEPHENSON
Prsident, CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries

President Philip Murray has emphasized the important role that we, as housewives, can play in carrying out the win-the-war legislative and political action program of CIO, the program for rollback of living costs, and for effective price control.

He has pointed out the importance of our active participation in the 1944 election campaign since women's votes will determine the outcome in many communities.

Our delegates come to Philadelphia this November prepared to draft a program to mobilize the women in every CIO home to work with their unions on this program.

Housewives Pack Punch In Political Action

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1—The importance of CIO housewives in political action, the fight for increased food production, and the rollback of prices are keynotes of the officers' report to the third conference of the CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries, meeting here this week.

The report stresses the need to fight against race discrimination, saying: "We feel that it is a deep responsibility of our Congress to carry to the women of our country an understanding of the importance to victory of the unity of all Americans regardless of race."

Submitted by Faye Stephenson, president, and Eleanor Fowler, secretary-treasurer, the report quotes from CIO President Murray on the need for building auxiliaries to help win the war:

"To make these women an effective part of the CIO movement, they must be organized—and the auxiliaries are the mechanism which we have established to organize them," he said.

Citing the record of the Auxiliary Congress during the past year, the report lists the part they took in the fight for price control, rationing, grade labeling, subsidies for increased food production at lower consumers' prices, and other home front issues.

A section of the report deals with the successful CIO drive to raise allowances to servicemen's dependents, which was initiated by the CIO and the auxiliaries and was pushed through Congress in almost record time.

Auxiliaries To Hear Mrs. Roosevelt

Philadelphia, Nov. 1 — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will be a featured speaker at the Conference of CIO Women's Auxiliaries, meeting here at the time of the CIO Convention

She is scheduled to talk at a luncheon in honor of her and Mrs. Philip Murray.

President Murray also is slated to address the conference, as well as Rep. Howard J. McMurray, secretary of the Congressional Committee to Protect the Consumer.

Sidney Hillman, chairman of CIO's Political Action Committee, has been invited to speak.

Education

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—The Department of Research and Education, headed by J. Raymond Walsh, serves "as a staff arm to the President of the organization," states President Philip Murray's report to the National CIO Convention.

The Department accumulates and analyzes economic data bearing on the welfare of workers and the policies of the CIO; prepares speeches and articles for radio programs, forums, meetings and periodicals; provides educational material and information on the financial status of corporations for CIO groups; represents the CIO before government and private agencies on public questions, and edits the monthly Economic Outlook.

The director is co-chairman of the OPA Labor Policy Committee, and chairman of both the CIO Cost of Living and Post-Planning Committees.

He also is chairman of the delegation which represents the CIO on the Standing Committee of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

NLRB

Philadelphia, Nov. 1 — A careful watch on the decisions and policies of the National Labor Relations Board is urged in CIO President Philip Murray's report to the convention.

"There are many in Congress and in industry who have not desisted in their attacks and pressure on the Board to change its policies, to weaken the administration of the Act, or to grasp the earliest opportunity to emasculate the Act through vicious amendment," the report warns.

Pointing out that the work of this agency has continued to be of great importance, the report says that there are many plants where elections must be held to gain bargaining rights, and many employers still engaged in unfair labor practices who must be forced to obey the law.

The recently attached NLRB rider which bars complaint cases arising out of a collective bargaining contract which has been in effect for more than three months is condemned as condoning collusive contracts, and as being "a very negation of the cardinal principles of the National Labor Relations Act."

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

Preparations are in full swing for the coming CIO convention which commences Monday, November 1. This week the CIO vice-presidents met Wednesday and the CIO Executive Board met Thursday. Decisions were made that will affect not only our movement but the nation itself.

The splendid leadership of President Murray reflects itself by showing that the CIO is stronger in every way than at any time in its glorious history, and with an increase in membership that is a credit to everyone of our affiliated organizations and staff.

AFL Blasted by Manchester 'Guardian' for Blocking Intl. Union Unity

LONDON, Oct. 31 (ALN)—The Manchester Guardian, leading British daily newspaper, yesterday delivered an outspoken attack on the AFL for refusing to collaborate with the Soviet trade unions and for excluding the CIO from talks with the British Trades Union Congress.

"It is ominous that the AFL, instead of doing what it can to further good relations with Soviet Russia, goes out of its way to emphasize all the differences existing in the trade union world," the newspaper states in an editorial.

"The AFL uses its tub-thumping attack on Russian 'totalitarianism' as an excuse to belabor American Communists—of whom the AFL has an hysterical fear—and its rival trade union body the CIO," the editorial continues.

"The TUC is also dragged in, and fulsome praise is bestowed on Sir Walter Citrine for his 'skill and consummate statesmanship.' It is a sorry story, and those British trade unionists responsible for the exclusive alliance between TUC and AFL must be a little ashamed."

Pointing out that the CIO "is proposing to take the initiative at its convention in calling a world labor conference," the Guardian asks: "One wonders whether the TUC would dare defy its reactionary partner, the AFL, by accepting the CIO's invitation."

The editorial concludes: "The AFL conveniently forgets that some of its own unions exhibit the worst possible forms of racial discrimination on the grounds of color. It is itself a poor example of trade union democracy."

Toledano Hails Murray Unity Proposal

Mexico City, Oct. 31 (ALN) — Vicente Lombardo Toledano, president of the Confederation of Latin American Workers (CTAL), this week welcomed the proposal of CIO president Philip Murray for a world labor conference to help the war effort and guarantee labor a voice at the peace table.

"Three important labor organizations—the CIO, the Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Committee and the CTAL—now unitedly aspire toward a world workers' congress," Toledano told Allied Labor News. "Sixteen American labor centrals represented in the CTAL are ready to contribute with full vigor to the conference."

Toledano cabled Murray support of the CIO plan this week.

Carey Tells Of Struggle For Wage Law

Washington, Nov. 1—CIO leaders and rank and file members fought stubbornly for the enactment of the Wage-Hour law through three sessions of Congress, CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey told a radio audience this week.

"We had to fight for it, for despite its moderate requirements, it had persistent and active opposition from those who claimed it would ruin industry," he said.

The program carried over a national hook-up was broadcast in honor of the fifth anniversary of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Other speakers were Wage-Hour Administrator L. Metcalfe Walling, Katherine Lenroot, of the U. S. Childrens Bureau, and I. N. Orburn of the AFL.

N Y. State CIO Parley

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 30—Squeezing their convention in just before the national CIO parley opens Monday in Philadelphia, delegates to the annual meeting of the New York State Council were arriving here for a two-day meet scheduled for this week-end.

Transport Parley Backs 4th Term

By M. H. FORGE

New York, Oct. 30—The Transport Workers Union Convention—largest in TWU's history—sounded the same high note of unity and all-out support behind CIO win-the-war domestic and international policies as were projected by the officers' report. The parley, which ended last week, included four days of reporting, discussing and planning, during which the 250 delegates spread on the record stories of unprecedented growth in many cities.

Discussion centered around: Policies to win the war, including a resolution for a second land front in Europe which was passed with but nine dissenting votes; national and international labor unity; political action as outlined by the CIO committee headed by Sidney Hillman; and means of protecting the economic standards of the membership in wartime.

The delegates cheered long and loud a resolution pledging CIO President Philip Murray even greater support than in the past.

Additional resolutions were adopted:

Backing policies of FDR and pledging all-out support for a fourth term; reaffirming no-strike policy; urging every possible step to promote CIO political action; advocating early unity of Allied Labor movements and censuring those who impede it.

Asking AFL and RR Brotherhood locals to get their leaders to back U. S. labor unity as Murray does in CIO; demanding repeal of poll-tax; demanding upward revision of "Little Steel" formula, unless other factors in cost of living, such as prices, rents and taxes are rolled back and kept back within 15 per cent of 1941.

Demanding repeal of Smith-Connally Act; backing CIO tax program in Congress; denouncing John L. Lewis as traitor to labor and calling upon miners to repudiate his disastrous policies; calling for elimination of all forms of racial or religious discrimination in employment, the armed forces and elsewhere.

Urging President Roosevelt to dismiss charges against Harry Bridges and allow him to become a citizen.

President Michael J. Quill and Secretary - Treasurer Douglas L. MacMahon were re-elected to their posts.

Murray to Talk At Soviet Meeting

Philadelphia, Nov. 1—CIO Pres. Philip Murray will speak at the celebration in honor of the tenth anniversary of American - Soviet Friendship, to be held at the Academy of Music here November 4.

The affair is under the auspices of the Philadelphia Council of American-Soviet Friendship with joint sponsorship of trade union, fraternal, church, civic and patriotic groups.

Other speakers on the program are Sen. Claude Pepper, Walter Duranty, well-known newspaper man, and Capt. Ivan Yegorichev, naval attache to the Soviet Embassy.

President Murray's speech will be broadcast over station WIP from 9:30 to 9:45 p.m.

Presbyterians Back Rights Of Unions

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 30—Labor's right to organize and bargain collectively with employers was called "an inalienable right in a democracy," in a resolution passed here by the Tennessee Presbyterian Synod.

The resolution was written and introduced by the Rev. S. E. Howie of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Memphis and said that it was "a tragedy of major importance" that "many laboring people in this country have come to feel, rightly or wrongly, that organized Christianity is unfriendly to organized labor."

UNITY was the watchword at the Transport Workers' Convention. Bitter past controversies over New York transit rights were put in the background as TWU Pres. Michael Quill shook hands with Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, while Pres. Joseph Curran of the Natl. Maritime Union and the N. Y. City CIO Council looked on.

Ky. Parley Lists 50% Membership Growth

ASHLAND, Ky., Oct. 30—CIO membership in Kentucky has increased more than 50 per cent during the last 16 months, President Al Whitehouse told some 200 delegates to the fifth convention of the Kentucky CIO Council which met here last weekend.

Reporting on Council support of the war, the State CIO President declared:

"We must re-affirm our pledge against strikes, stoppages and slowdowns because more than ever we need uninterrupted production of the vital materials of war. Failure on the part of management cannot excuse labor from doing everything it possibly can to speed the flow of materials from the factory to the front."

Van A. Bittner, assistant to the president of the United Steelworkers, and CIO Regional Dir. R. J. Davidson, from Cincinnati, were among the CIO leaders who addressed the convention.

In laying down the Council's program for support of the war and for speeding the progress of the union by political and economic action, the convention passed resolutions:

Supporting the adminisration of CIO Pres. Philip Murray, and the national CIO, and endorsing the CIO War Relief Committee.

Condemning the Smith-Connally Act and the proposed Austin-Wadsworth bill.

Criticizing the delays of the War Labor Board, and urging abrogation of the "Little Steel' formula.

Praising Labor-Management Committees and asking for their extension.

Criticizing the State Dept.'s pro-Fascist policies.

Urging passage of the anti-polltax bill.

Calling for a major role for labor in post-war planning.

Calif. Convention Keys Action to War

FRESNO, Calif., Oct. 30—In a keynote speech to the 300 or more delegates to the California CIO Council convention here, CIO Regional Director Harry Bridges warned that it is impossible to find true answers to the CIO's programs today "without keeping in mind that every action taken, every program adopted must first serve the needs of the Nation's war effort."

He reminded the delegates of the pledges made by CIO Pres. Philip Murray and the national CIO to the Commander-in-Chief, our armed forces and the people, and praised Murray for his "intelligent, constructive leadership."

Bridges said the CIO President has "steadfastly refused to deviate from the CIO's win-the-war, win-the-peace program, despite bitter criticism, attacks and pressure from many sides."

A message from Vice-President Henry Wallace congratulating the California CIO for its consistent support to President Roosevelt and his war policies was read to the delegates.

An hour before the convention call was read by Secretary-Treasurer Mervyn Rathborne, a bulletin was carried over Fresno's leading radio station inviting all the town's citizens to attend the convention "to watch labor at work."

"The convention is voluntarily living in a glass house because it wants non-union people in this great agricultural area to see what a rank and file, democratically controlled union organization looks like," a union official stated.

CIO Buttons OK But Not in Soup!

Chicago, Nov. 6—Just watch out that those buttons don't fall into the soup, the Campbell Soup Co. management urged members of the CIO United Cannery, Agricultural Packing & Allied Workers, in agreeing this week to allow employes to wear their union buttons on the job.

CIO Political Action Group Set Up For Ohio, Ky., W. Va.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 30—Urging aggressive prosecution of the war to speedy "unconditional surrender" of the Axis, and calling for a resolute drive to build labor's political power, Sidney Hillman, national CIO Political Action Committee chairman, this week launched the organization here of political-action bodies of Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

Scattered among the 250 CIO men and women who heard Hillman were delegates from West Virginia locals of the United Mine Workers Union and representatives of AFL unions of Ohio as well as Kentucky.

"Don't get over-confident in your economic power," the president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union cautioned. "When victory is achieved and twelve million men return from the war and twenty-five million others no longer have war work our economic power will be at its lowest ebb.

"No matter what they promise, our enemies, when that time comes, will be prepared to put over some confounded form of fascism, but under another name," Hillman declared. "When that time comes you will need the power you have to stand your ground—and that power will have to be political power."

WARNS OF PHONEY PEACE

Regarding the war, Mr. Hillman said:

"We are going to win the war. But every day that victory is delayed means the loss of lives . . . Every day of delay gives those fellows who are afraid of democracy, those who are defeatists, the opportunity to come to a negotiated peace . . . We must win the war as quickly as possible, win through to unconditional surrender."

Hillman said that it is important that labor get a place at the peace table. That, he cautioned, is not enough. Labor must be organized, nationally and throughout the world, to be able to make its voice heard at the peace table.

He said that unity of the United States, Great Britain, China, and the Soviet Union is the basis for the establishment of a peaceful post-war world.

ORGANIZATION PLAN

The organization plan adopted unanimously by the conference provides for the establishment of "working committees" of 15 members in each state. Five members of each working committee in the three states will be joined in a regional advisory committee on political action, and AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods will be invited to join in establishing state and local political bodies.

'Fighting 60' Back Battle for Subsidies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—Strong Congressional support for FDR and labor in the fight for subsidies to increase food output and rollback prices came this week with a statement from the "Fighting 60," a House group organized last summer to battle for price control and adequate food supplies.

The report was sent from a meeting of the group, known as the Committee to Protect the Consumer, called by its chairman, Rep. Thomas D. Scanlon, (D., Pa.) It followed the action of the House Banking Committee in barring use of subsidies in the Commodity Credit Corp. renewal bill, (HR 3458).

At the same time, the Natl. Lawyers Guild issued a statement condemning the Banking Committee's ban on subsidies, pointing out that it will cost the people from 10 to 15 billion dollars in yearly price increases unless rescinded by the House.

"Subsidies provide a method through which costs of increased war production are equitably distributed and borne by the people as a whole, rather than by those who can least withstand the drastic effects of ever increasing food costs," the Guild said.

SUBSIDIES CUT PRICES

"Subsidies now in effect on butter, meat and milk, as a result of the 11th hour victory against inflation last June, would be terminated Dec. 31 by passage of the present bill," the Congressional group said. "These are the subsidies which are in part responsible for lowering the rise of living costs from 6.2% above the stabilization date when they were initiated to 4.5% today.

"As Judge Vinson jointed out, there would be price increases of a penny on every loaf of bread, five cents on butter, one cent a quart on milk, a 10% rise in the price of meat, a 25% rise in the price of canned vegetables, two or three cents a pound for potatoes and one cent a pound for sugar."

Pointing out that subsidies protect both farmers and consumers by helping the farmer to increase production at prices the consumers can pay, the committee cited President Roosevelt's statement to newspaper men in which he sharply hit the groups that are trying to chisel "just a little inflation" as the beginning of a real flood.

CIO Demands End Of Polltax Stalling

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—The Senate has a clear war duty to stop debating the "constitutionality" of the polltax repeal bill, pass it immediately and bring democracy to 10 million Americans, CIO Counsel Lee Pressman told the Senate Judiciary Committee this week.

Instead, the committee blandly adjourned the hearings from Oct. 26 to Nov. 2, thus delaying the bill another week even before it gets to the Senate floor and starts fighting its way through the expected polltaxers' filibuster.

The delaying action in the committee is being fought by its chairman, Senator Van Nuys, (D., Ind.), Sen. Carl A. Hatch, (D., N. M.), Sen. Joseph D. O'Mahoney, (D., Wyo.)—none of them from polltax states. After this rearguard has finished, the polltaxers themselves will take up the fight on the final defensive line in the Senate.

Voters should note that all of these men now stalling action in the committee are verbally for the repeal bill—in fact, they got such an earful on it during the summer recess that they have to endorse the "principle" of repeal. It's the method that bothers them, they say.

As their delaying action stumbles along, they should receive redoubled demands from union people all over the country for an immediate favorable report, for a cloture vote to kill off the filibuster, and for final passage of a bill that labor and progressives have been fighting for for three years.

UE Signs Long-Time Holdout

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 30.—Western Cartridge Co., long notorious for its anti-union record, signed its first contract with a CIO union last week. A pact covering 25,000 workers at the St. Louis Ordnance Plant, was signed by the United States Cartridge Co., Western subsidiary operating the plant, and the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers of America.

The contract was the climax to two years of organizing and bargaining by the UE. It brought average wage increases of 7½ cents an hour to the 25,000 workers, a majority of them women, and substantial improvement in working conditions. It provides for the maintenance of membership and the check-off.

St. Louis Group Fights Race Bias

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 30—Permanent organization of labor's work for unity to win the war and against racial discrimination was effected here today, with the formation of the "Greater St. Louis Inter-Racial Victory Council," by 68 delegates, white and Negro, from nineteen CIO, AFL and independent unions.

The delegates recognized that the race problem must be solved as part of the fight for victory and democracy, that organized labor must be the main reliance in solving it, and that one of the biggest parts of the job is the education of union members themselves to the question of equal rights.

Formation of the committee and the wide participation were considered a major step forward, in this North-South border community which has a 16 per cent Negro population, and in which the problem of race relations has long been serious.

CIO SUPPORT

This week's meeting grew out of the work done by the CIO Council, which got the mayor to name a citizens' Inter-Racial Commission. The council was aided by individual unions, notably the United Electrical & Radio Workers, in obtaining jobs and upgrading opportunities for Negroes.

The purposes of the Inter-Racial Council were stated to be to unite Negroes and whites "for full participation in our war against fascism," to end racial discrimination, to advance inter-racial understanding, and to promote in the labor movement an understanding of the problems of the Negro people, and among the Negro people an understanding and support of the labor movement as the group in the nation which can be depended upon best to advance the democratic rights of the Negro people."

Murray Reports CIO's Membership Is 5,285,000

Sets Goal of Two Million More For 1944

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—Five million, 285 thousand strong! That's CIO! The organization has added more than a million members in the past year and has set as its goal the enrollment of double that number during the coming 12 months.

The figures, the goal, and a recommendation that CIO officials and members keep constantly plugging to build the organization were made in a speech by Pres. Philip Murray at the CIO Convention. His recommendation was strongly supported by many other speakers, including Vice-Pres. Allan S. Haywood.

A resolution passed unanimously called for the CIO to "direct special attention to the new problems arising from the influx of millions of workers into war industries, such as the women workers, Negro workers now being employed in other than unskilled jobs, to the number of former white collar professional workers who are now working on production jobs, and the farm workers finding factory work for the first time."

The resolution declared that, "Through the expanded membership of the CIO unions, we shall bring to the workers of the nation the benefits of collective bargaining and to our country the added strength, discipline and leadership necessary for an early victory and a just peace."

PRAISES GAINS

Listing gains in organization, Murray cited CIO's "big three"—Auto, Steel and Electrical & Radio—for special mention.

He said that Auto has "an actual dues paying membership of 1,100,000 men and women, and 265,000 in the armed forces."

He said that Steel, which was relatively feeble in 1937, has grown today to an organization of 750,000 dues-paying members, with 228,000 in the armed forces extra.

He said that Electrical & Radio has grown to a membership in excess of half a million.

There is no tax padding in these figures, Murray declared, referring to charges made during the recent AFL convention that an AFL union is paying per capita tax on 600,000 members when it has but 300,000.

COMMENT ON LEWIS

He referred also to statements made by AFL leaders that the Mine Workers would lead a parade of unions from CIO, with the caustic comment:

"Whether Mr. Lewis goes back in there or not—and I don't know anything about that and I don't give a damn—all I can say is this, and say it frankly and candidly and not boastfully to this convention:

"Let them come on, and I think they will find more unity in this movement today than it ever had before. There just isn't anybody that is going to be able to successfully raid CIO unions in this country—and I mean anybody, I mean that."

Murray said CIO is not interested in raiding the AFL nor in "disturbing the tranquility of the people who lead the American Federation of Labor." He said, "They can continue to sit upon their rusty bottoms and do whatever they want to with their own organization."

HAYWOOD ASKS ACTION

In supporting Murray's recommendations, Haywood, CIO director of organization, said:

"I maintain that the future of our nation, the ability for us to take a constructive part in the making of the peace, the ability for us to take a more effective part in the prosecution of the war, rests upon the number of men and women that are engaged in trade unions.

"We are calling upon you," he told the delegates, "to make the next year a 2,000,000 program to bring every worker into our camp that we can get into our camp.

"The workers of America want the CIO, the workers in these big plants recognize they cannot be served by craft, divided unionism, but that they can be served effectively by one union in the plant that recognizes the problem of the most humble worker as well as the problem of the highest skilled worker."

PLEDGE SUPPORT

Further support was pledged by Vice-President R. J. Thomas, Vice-President John Green, by Van A. Bittner, by Vice-President Sherman Dalrymple, and by Board Members O. A. Knight and Lewis Merrill.

Thomas stated that in his opinion today was an opportune time for organizing the workers, comparing it with the favorable time for organization in 1936 and 1937. In this connection he said:

"There are those who would say, 'How can you organize workers when wages are frozen, when big corporations are taking advantage of collective bargaining, with the Smith-Connally Act and other acts of Congress, how is it possible to organize the unorganized workers of America?'

"The organization which I represent has organized over a quarter of a million new workers in the past year; and I think I can pledge to this convention that we will organize at least another quarter of a million workers before our next convention."

CIO Backs Aid to Servicemen

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A CIO program for servicemen calling for efforts to enlist the support of returning soldiers, sailors and marines to aid them in readjusting themselves to civilian life was passed unanimously this week by the CIO Convention.

"With proper opportunity, servicemen will make a tremendous contribution to the nation's progress, but lacking it they may follow false leaders who would undermine democracy," stated the resolution. It endorsed efforts to enlist the support of servicemen for the CIO's post-war program so that full employment may be achieved; urged immediate preparation of demobilization plans by federal agencies to speed up return of servicemen to civilian life, and called upon CIO unions to get provisions in contracts protecting their seniority rights and jobs.

The program adopted also asked Congress to enact at once the plan submitted by President Roosevelt providing for a billion dollar fund to be spent on a federal education program for veterans and merchant seamen, and urged regular allowances for disabled servicemen, seamen and their dependents.

"It is jobs which the servicemen and the members of the merchant marine will want when they return to civilian life," the resolution stated. "The CIO pledges that it will direct all of its energies to this task.

"The servicemen and seamen should be protected so that following their demobilization and until they obtain regular employment they should be given the same pay which they received in service."

Full Rationing Program Urged

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—A full war rationing program which would guarantee essential commodities to everyone was demanded this week by the CIO Convention. Noting that the present inadequate rationing program allows for many inequalities, the convention stated that:

"The CIO calls upon James Byrnes, as the director of the Office of War Mobilization, to direct the appropriate government agencies to adopt and carry out in full and in time a comprehensive program for the wartime control of all essential commodities which shall assure satisfaction of the basic needs of every family, regardless of income, and without encroachment upon manpower, materials and productive facilities necessary for vigorous prosecution of the war."

CIO Hammers Out Win-War Program, Re-elects Murray

CIO Calls For Fair Tax Plan

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—An effective war economy that will mobilize the full strength of the people depends upon a sound tax program, the CIO convention declared this week in a resolution urging a ban on a sales tax, and higher levies on war profits and on the incomes of those with ability to pay.

The resolution said:

"The unholy coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats in Congress, and especially on the House Ways and Means Committee, refuse to enact any tax legislation to increase the taxes of high income groups or to drain away the swollen profits of corporations. They have fortunately been unsuccessful, up to the present, in their efforts to drive Congress toward enacting a sales tax.

"They continue to protect corporate profits and high incomes against any increase in tax rates, even though this may mean a failure to obtain the funds required by our government to finance the war."

CIO TAX PROGRAM

The resolution called on Congress to enact the CIO tax program, "designed to obtain the moneys requested by our government, protect the health and working efficiency of those who produce the munitions of war, and to deny anyone the opportunity of reaping profits during the war. The program provides for:

Amendment of the tax laws to exempt from taxation all single persons earning $800 or less, or married couples earning $1500 or less, with an additional allowance of $400 for each dependent.

Repeal of the Victory Tax. This repeal must take the form of a complete elimination of the tax and not, as the House Ways and Meeans Committee is reported to have decided, merely a rearrangement of the tax so that it becomes part of the income tax but continues to affect workers with incomes as low as $500 a year.

Firm and unalterable opposition to any sales tax or any other similar form of tax. Such taxes cut into the food and clothing budgets of war workers and impair the health and efficiency of war workers by preventing them from acquiring their minimum share of the limited supply of available goods.

Sharp upward adjustment of tax rates for all income brackets starting at $3,000 and increasing rapidly and progressively after $5,000. The increased rates should be such that the maximum net income, after taxes, should not be permitted to exceed $25,000.

Elimination of all special privileges and loopholes, as the taxes of interest from State and local bonds and the requirement for mandatory joint income tax returns.

Increase of the normal and surtaxes on corporate profits to 55 per cent, as against the present rate of 40 per cent.

FIGHTING LEADER: CIO Pres. Murray was in battle trim as he lashed out during the CIO Convention at a national wage policy which he described as hampering the war effort because it does not give workers enough income so that they can make their maximum contributions to production.

Repeal Frey Amendment To NLRA, CIO Urges

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A sharp demand that Congress repeal the Frey amendment to the Natl. Labor Relations Act was raised this week at the CIO Convention, with speakers pointing out that the amendment takes the heart out of "labor's Magna Charta" by denying workers collective bargaining rights in cases where employers have signed contracts with company unions.

CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman, secretary of the Resolutions Committee, pointed out that the Frey amendment provides that the NLRB may not consider a so-called complaint case against an employer if the charge against the employer is made after a contract has been in effect more than three months following the adoption of the Frey amendment.

The NLRB also may not consider any case where a union had a contract with a company prior to the enactment of the Frey amendment, whether the contract was in effect three months or more or not.

Pressman and President Reid Robinson of the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers pointed out that the situation is of particular interest now because of an immediate case involving a MM&SW local at the Basic Magnesium Corp. in Nevada, where the AFL obtained a back-door agreement with the management.

The NLRB held an election, which the MM&SW won. The union demanded that the company bargain with it for a contract. When the management refused, the union filed a charge with the NLRB declaring that the company was refusing to bargain.

The NLRB, however, dismissed the charge on the ground that the Frey amendment prohibited it from spending any NLRB funds in proceeding against a union where it has a contract with a corporation that was in effect prior to the adoption of the Frey amendment.

The amendment, named for John P. Frey, head of the AFL Metal Trades Dept., was designed to wreck the NLRA, according to Delegate Philip H. Van Gelder, of the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, who pointed out that Frey recently testified before a Congressional Committee that the NLRA should be suspended for the duration of the war.

Parley Demands Death of Little Steel Formula

(See Stories on Other Pages)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—CIO—5,285,000 strong—this week in convention hammered out an aggressive program designed to help win the war and to meet the needs of the American people for adequate food, clothing and shelter so that they can make their utmost contribution to victory.

More than 500 delegates from all over the nation sat in the Bellevue-Stratford convention hall, bedecked with flags of the United Nations, to democratically decide on a program calling for:

1. Abolition of the Little Steel Formula and collective bargaining to adjust wages to increased living costs.

2. Political action, under CIO's Political Action Committee, designed to mobilize the broadcast possible mass of people in support of policies for the quickest possible victory over the Axis and for a sound home front economy now and after the war.

3. A policy of cooperation with the trade union organizations of other nations, including Great Britain, the Soviet Union and China among others, to aid the battle against fascism and to guarantee a peace that will be in the interests of the common people of the world.

4. Firm adherence to CIO's no-strike pledge.

5. An organizing drive keyed to a goal of enrollment of two million more members by next year's convention.

6. Support for New Deal policies, with the reservation so far as candidates are concerned that endorsements for 1944 will be made in 1944.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

The convention re-elected President Philip Murray, Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey, and nine vice-presidents, including Joseph Curran, S. H. Dalrymple, Albert Fitzgerald, John Green, Allan S. Haywood, Emil Rieve, Reid Robinson, Frank Rosenblum and R. J. Thomas. All were chosen unanimously.

In accepting the nomination for re-election to his fourth term as president, Muray pledged wholehearted support to the war effort and to the soldiers fighting on foreign soil for the democratic rights for which America stands.

"Without their assistance, not only they die, but we also die," he said.

PROUD OF CIO

The CIO President declared that he was proud to say that the CIO "has assumed leadership in those things for which our country stands" and has "thrown its heart and soul into this great war effort."

Calling for the assistance of all officers of the CIO, Murray declared that "1944 is going to be a crucial year not only on the military but also on the domestic front." The CIO must have unity of purpose and action on all matters pertaining to the national welfare, he said.

"We must in addition lend every possible assistance to the development of international relations, so that at the end of the war we can bring eternal peace accompanied with a better life for all of us."

He asked for continued cooperation of all groups in the CIO "in performance of this great work."

CIO Parley Backs World Labor Meet

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—World labor unity, urged by the CIO since 1941, became a major issue of the 6th convention here, with a resolution calling for a United Nations trade union conference, and with CIO acceptance of the meeting scheduled in London in June.

Speaking on the resolution, Murray said that the London meeting was the fruit of CIO demands for full United Nations labor unity, and that CIO could take full credit for accomplishing it over strong opposition.

"The President of your organization, together with his associates, has been fighting desperately for the past 12 months to get a conference of this description convened somewhere under proper auspices, and I don't think that I can over-emphasize the tremendous victory that has attended the efforts of the CIO in winning this labor conference scheduled for London," he said.

While the convention was in session, the British Trades Union Congress, headed by Sir Walter Citrine, issued the call for the London meeting. According to Allied Labor News, the TUC proposed 10 delegates for CIO, 14 for AFL, 13 for the TUC, 34 for the Soviet Union trade unions, with representation also for the Latin-American Confederation of Labor (CTAL).

NEED FOR AGREEMENT

Murray stressed the need for agreement among U. S. labor on program in advance of the meeting, and said that the CIO Executive Board would meet before the meeting to work out the CIO approach.

The "primary objective of American labor" is to secure "international labor collaboration upon a program designed to defeat Hitler," he added. In addition, world labor unity is essential to secure a just people's peace and to rebuild the countries the Nazi Axis has ravaged.

Van A. Bittner, chairman of the convention resolutions committee, spoke for the resolution, saying that "we certainly want to cooperate and collaborate with every independent trade union organization in the world."

Philip Van Gelder, secretary-treasurer of the Shipbuilders, added that "the very least labor can do is to unite together to advance labor's program and the program of the four freedoms."

Joseph Curran, Natl. Maritime Union head, said that "the CIO wants unity on a world basis with all trade unions throughout the world," including Latin-America, and that any conference must leave none out.

Walter Reuther, vice-president of the UAW-CIO, said that "international labor unity cannot be built by excluding any group of organized labor in the world."

As the final speaker, Ernest de Maio, vice-president of the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, linked the London conference with the United Nations conference in Moscow, pointing out that it forced Citrine's hand despite the fact that only a few months ago Citrine "doubted whether there was a CIO in existence."

Murray's Keynote Speech Stresses Need For Intl. Labor Unity

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—Heavy stress on international labor cooperation to help win the war and to halt future wars was laid before the CIO Convention by President Philip Murray in his keynote speech. Hailing the move of the British Trades Union Congress to convene a world parliament of labor, Murray read a cabled notice from Bryn Roberts, BTUC official, and declared:

"This cablegram indicates just what the CIO can do when it puts its shoulder to the wheel. When the official invitation reaches us we shall be happy to accept and join with the representatives of other labor movements throughout the United Nations in attempting to solve many of the perplexing problems that have grown out of the present war."

Taking a sideswipe at the AFL which attempted to block CIO participation in such a conference, Murray said:

"We encountered some difficulty with the American Federation of Labor. They had concluded in their majesty that it was not within our province to ask anybody to meet with us, and that at any rate they did not care to talk to the representatives of the CIO about world peace. That has been their adamant attitude—a very unfortunate position for that organiation to take, in light of the tremendous responsibilities that devolve upon the leaders of the American Federation of Labor.

ROBERTS' CABLE

The cablegram from Roberts read:

"Greetings to the 1943 CIO Convention. The British Trades Union Congress decision to convene world conference of labor, to which the CIO in its own right is to be invited will be, I believe, enthusiastically welcomed by your convention.

"This decision, although perhaps belated, not only records the recognition which the CIO rightfully deserves, but it also gives to all men of good will the opportunity of participating in the great work of world reconstruction which the coming victory will make possible.

"In this great task I am confident that the CIO and other sections of American labor will make a great contribution. I cherish the memory of my visit to your convention last year and the friendships I then made.

"With best wishes for a successful convention—Bryn Roberts."

CITES CONTRIBUTIONS

Heavily stressed in Murray's keynote address was the contribution made toward winning the war by CIO men and women in the nation's factories, mills and shipyards. He said:

"I know that most every worker throughout the United States of America, particularly those affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, while they are producing in a mine, in a factory, or in a plant, are diligently applying to the production of goods so essential to the winning of the war.

"They are thinking of that because, in addition to the broader aspects of the war situation itself, all those men and women have sons and daughters and relatives somewhere on a fighting front today, and with those thoughts constantly in mind I know that it shall be the avowed purpose of this convention, before it concludes its sessions, to declare in language that cannot be misunderstood or mistaken, that our prime motive as American citizens and as members of this mighty labor movement will be to keep going on, working and producing to win this war."

DEMOCRATIC BODY

Describing the CIO as "the most democratic labor body in the world today," Murray declared that it is united in dedicating its energies to the fight for victory over fascism.

"We have a deep rooted conviction," he said, permeating our hearts and our souls that this war is really being fought for the universal freedom of mankind, and it shall be our high resolve not only during the course of the war but when the war is over to see to it,—yes, to see to it that the lofty objectives of a democratic people who have dedicated their lives towards the attainment of an ultimate victory will bring with it peace and victory, real victory, to all of the people throughout the world."

On the home front, Murray criticized the national wage stabilization policy of the federal government as "wholly outmoded" (See other story).

PRAISES HILLMAN

Murray had high praise for CIO's Political Action Committee, and for its chairman, Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. Describing the committee as "primarily designed to help every citizen in the United States of America in the field of politics," Murray said:

"We hope and we believe we will secure the cooperation of other labor organizations in the performance of this work. We are quite sure that many public spirited citizens will give their cooperation.

"Evidences are at hand already of civic spirited groups in many committees and in many states throughout the nation volunteering their assistance to the committee in the performance of its duties."

Murray's speech, which was a summary of his 74-page report to the convention, was followed by the reading of the convention call, by Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey.

World Democracy Depends On Intl. Cooperation, Murray Warns

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A warning that far more than the simple destruction of fascism is involved in the fight for freedom of the common people of the world was sounded this week by CIO Pres. Philip Murray in a radio address broadcast from a meeting here of the Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Declaring that "German, Italian and Japanese fascism must be destroyed root and branch," Murray said that in doing this we must feed the starving people abroad, and must provide them with materials and machines needed to support their economics. But, he added:

"They will also need leadership and cooperation in creating a world in which machines, skills and nature's bounties are used for the benefit of the people.

"The problem is fundamentally the same at home and abroad. Direction of production to the people's needs, protection of workers, raising levels of living, and strengthening democracy—all these are goals to be achieved within our boundaries as well as outside them.

"Insofar as we realize them at home, we simplify the international problem. If we fail here, we cannot be successful abroad. That is why the CIO is so much concerned with preserving and strengthening our democracy even while we are at war."

UNIONS NEEDED

Murray warned that if Fascism is to be rooted out abroad, free democratic labor unions must be permitted to develop under the new governments which will be set up.

Stressing the importance of the "common effort" of the United States and the Soviet Union to destroy fascism, Murray said:

"The heroic military conduct of the Russian people has aroused profound admiration throughout the world. Russian civilians as well as soldiers have shown amazing courage and determination in defending their soil. The entire industrial capacity of the nation has been mobilized unsparingly for war. The Russians have accomplished far more than the most optimistic of us had believed possible."

Urge 'Full Scale Attack' On Europe

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—"The issue before the United Nations is the decisive full scale invasion of Europe to crush the Nazi forces between the telling blows of the Soviet forces and the full might of the Anglo-American forces," the CIO Convention this week declared in a resolution which urged full coalition warfare as "the key to victory."

"The quick dispatch of Mussolini's government, due to the simultaneous blows of the military forces of the Anglo-Americans and of the Soviet Union, is the outstanding example of what such coalition warfare on the part of the United Nations can do to the fascist powers," the resolution stated.

"With approaching victory through the coming decisive battles, we must expect to meet the attempts of our nation's enemies at home to undermine the home front in order to weaken the military effort.

"The insidious anti-British and anti-Soviet Union propaganda will be intensified to destroy the coalition warfare of the United Nations which is of the greatest danger to Hitler. Hitler can only rely on the hesitation and division at home and among the United Nations, since this would afford him the respite he needs to rebuild his forces."

CIO Convention Says:

Latin-American Unity Vital for War, Peace

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—Close unity with the workers and peasants of Latin-America is vital as an immediate war measure and for the post-war security of the U. S., the CIO convention resolved here in one of a series of decisions for greater world labor cooperation.

Pointing out the dangers of Axis activity, either direct or through native fascist agents such as the Falange, the resolution condemned the fascist dictatorship in Argentina and urged the President to use his influence to secure release of labor prisoners there.

The resolution praised the CIO Latin-American Committee for building good relations with the Confederation of Latin-American Labor, and called for implementing of the Good Neighbor policy by all U. S. government agencies.

Jacob S. Potofsky, head of the CIO Committee, spoke on the need for CIO to work for better labor conditions in Latin-America as a direct help to production of war materials, and as a guarantee to the workers that the Good Neighbor policy has meaning.

David J. McDonald, also of the Committee, described a trip to Chile and other countries and told of the horrible conditions that must be corrected among the workers he met with on the trip.

Philip Connelly, president of the California CIO, emphasizing the Latin-American population in this country, particularly among the Mexicans in his state. He told of the "Sleepy Lagoon" frame-up in Los Angeles and of the anti-Mexican riots instigated by 5th column Falange forces there.

Martin C. Kyne, of the Wholesale and Retail Workers, underlining what McDonald said, told of his trip to Bolivia where he saw at first hand the conditions that led to the tin miners' strike of a year ago and the massacre of the workers by the police.

"The trade union movement is the only movement that they look to for assistance and guidance and particularly the trade union movement of the CIO," he said.

CIO Hails Moscow Conference

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—CIO moved quickly to support the United Nations conference held in Moscow, passing a resolution of support the morning that the decisions of the conference were announced.

"This conference of the representatives of the U. S., Britain and the Soviet Union and China confirms again that we are joined in a people's war of liberation the resolution said.

"It demonstrates the lasting unity of the United Nations and lays the basis for speedy victory over the enemies of the United Nations.

"We pledge all our strength in support of these decisions and will stand united with all other citizens behind our Commander-in-Chief in order that America may honor its sacred obligations."

The convention, in passing the resolution unanimously, ordered that copies be sent to President Roosevelt, to Cordell Hull, Winston Churchill, Joseph Stalin and Chiang-Kai-Shek.

Demand Right To Organize In Canada

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—A CIO demand for the right of workers to organize in Canada was a feature of the convention's intense interest in workers from other countries.

Pointing out that no law protects the basic right to join a union, the convention called for CIO support to the efforts of Canadian workers, many thousands of whom are CIO members, to build strong unions free from coercion and interference.

C. S. Jackson, Canadian vice-president of the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, spoke in support of the resolution.

CIO Demands Death of Little Steel Formula, New Wage Policy

Asks Pay Boosts To Help Fight Against Axis

(See Full Text of Resolution, Page 18)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A sharp revision of the national wage policy was demanded this week by the CIO Convention, in a unanimously adopted resolution which called for the elimination of the Little Steel Formula limiting wages. The formula was described as "no longer in accord with reality" due to increased prices and extra burdens on the workers.

Hitting out hard at Congressional failure to stabilize the entire national economy through adequate price control and other devices, the convention declared that unions must be allowed to secure wage increases through the normal channels of collective bargaining, to maintain the health, morale and efficiency of workers.

The convention also demanded continued efforts to raise substandard wages "to minimum levels of American decency," and called for "a truly stabilized national war economy."

"The CIO has throughout the war emergency led the nation in recognition of the necessity for a thoroughly stabilized home front economy to assure maintenance of morale, national unity and maximum war production for victory in the war," the wage resolution stated.

"Labor has rallied behind President Roosevelt in his demand originally enunciated in April, 1942, for national economic stabilization through the application of his seven-point program.

"Labor has vigorously pointed out the absolute necessity for firm action on all fronts if sound stabilization is to be achieved—action which would result in equal and impartial stabilization of all aspects of our war economy, including prices, profits, salaries and wages.

"Such a program obviously requires effective control of prices, a sound tax system to curb high incomes and swollen corporate profits, and a sound wage stabilization program which would assure to workers levels of payment calculated to promote production, preserve health and working efficiency and assure the highest national morale.

"It is an unfortunate fact that the people's demands for a sound and integrated economic stabilization program have not been made effective. Special interests and pressures have operated, particularly in the halls of Congress, to prevent effective steps on each of the important aspects of such a program.

"The results thus far have created serious dangers of disunity within the nation and a broad weakening of the home front."

MURRAY STATES POLICY

Summing up CIO's position on the wage question, President Murray declared in a major speech to the convention (see excerpts below) that:

"American wage earners, by and large, are not getting enough money to provide proper sustenance and meet their ordinary war obligations.

"They need wage adjustments, they need to be free from the shackles of the present national wage stabilization policy of the government of the United States, they want to enjoy a little more collective bargaining than they now enjoy, they want to enjoy the right to adjust inequities and inequalities and adjust their grievances in a regular fashion as set forth in their collective bargaining contracts without interference.

"They believe that they are entitled to enjoy these rudiments, these fundamentals that have been established in American industry on down through the years."

Speeches in support of the resolution were given by Delegates R. J. Thomas, Walter Reuther, Lewis Merrill, Reid Robinson, Joseph Cannon and Noel Beddow.

CIO Urges Full Food Subsidy Plan

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Increased food production is as necessary as output of tanks, planes and all other war weapons, the CIO said here this week in a resolution demanding a full subsidy plan and other measures to protect the farmer in upping his output of war crops.

"Planning for 1944 war food crops is an immediate necessity in 1943," the resolution said. "As we plan now, so shall we plant in 1944, and so shall we eat in 1945."

The resolution emphatically pointed out that the farmer must be protected against extra costs and risks in increasing food production, which must be done by subsidies, incentive payments, and adequate credit secured against postwar seizure.

Speaking on the resolution, President Murray linked it up with the whole wage stabilization question, saying that it was a "companion measure" to the wage resolution and that our people and our Allies must be assured of enough food to win the war and build a stable peace.

Donald Henderson, president of the Cannery and Agricultural Workers, linked food with the whole war production drive, emphasizing also that a major part of John L. Lewis's strike provocation was based on the inadequate food supply.

Murray also urged active work by CIO affiliates on the food production issue, asking the delegates to return home determined to put the resolution's policies into active effect.

Urge Miners, Rail Unions to Cooperate With CIO Pay Policy

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—The CIO Convention this week called on the coal miners and the leaders of the railway unions to join in CIO's campaign for "a realistic revision of the outworn national wage policy while continuing without interruption the flow of planes and tanks and guns and food needed by the fighting men on the battlefronts."

Letter to Convention

Roosevelt Praises War Contribution Of U. S. Workers

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—President Franklin D. Roosevelt this week, in a letter to CIO Pres. Murray at the CIO Convention, expressed pride and admiration for the production achievements of American workers, for their pledges not to strike for the duration of the war, and for their contributions to victory made by purchase of war bonds.

Saying that he "regretted exceedingly that heavy responsibilities" prevented him from accepting the invitation to address the convention, President Roosevelt urged "continuation of the drive to maintain existing production levels and even to increase those levels in some instances."

The complete text of the President's letter follows:

"I have received your invitation to attend and address the Sixth Annual Convention of the Congress of Industrial Organizations at Philadelphia on November first. I regret exceedingly that heavy responsibilities, which I know you fully appreciate, will prevent me from accepting the invitation and being with you.

GRATIFIED OVER WORK

"Please extend to the officers and members of the Congress of Industrial Organizations my greetings and good wishes upon the occasion of their convention. I and others responsible for the conduct of the war are gratified that the work performed by American wage earners in the manufacture and delivery of the munitions and implements of war is being felt on every part of the battlefront. The effort has been splendid and the skill, speed and capacity for cooperation have been made an industrial output which has never been equalled before.

"I am appreciative also of the participation of American workers in every aspect of the war effort, as well as in that most important part which they take on the production lines. They have made a splendid contribution through purchases of war bonds, both out of their union treasuries and by their individual purchases. They have made an adaptation of civilian life to the needs of war with sincere purpose to endure in good spirit the inconveniences made necessary by the war. The morale of American workers has been good.

"To those of your officers and members who have contributed to this good performance and this high morale, I wish to express my thanks and at the same time to urge a continuation of the drive to maintain existing production levels and even to increase those levels in some instances. Every effort is being made by the Government to hold down the prices of those items in the budgets of working people which are essential to health and decent comfort and for this cooperation of your members will be needed.

WAR CALLS FOR NEW DEMANDS

"We are reaching the period when new demands will be made upon labor to set aside personal preferences in favor of the necessities of the country. In times of peace the great mobility of American labor has been one of the items of which we have been proud. In the beginnings of the war effort this habit of mobility was undoubtedly of the greatest use in enabling remote plants and shipyards to recruit the necessary labor for the enormously extended program.

"Today we have reached the point, however, when it is essential to stabilize the personnel and employment around any given plant, to reduce the turnover and to keep the same people at the same job so far as is humanly possible. This will often mean considerable sacrifice to individuals, but this is the kind of effort which will be asked and which I know will be delivered by the workers of America once they understand how vital it is both to the war effort and to the maintaining of reasonable balance in the cost of living.

"I invite and expect your continued active support and cooperation in the fulfillment of the no-strike pledge of American labor, in the increasing effort in production, in stabilizing wages to balance our economy, and in financial and moral contribution to the direct war effort until every need is met, every battle fought, until victory is won and peace established."

Excerpts From Murray's Speech on Wage Policy

● I think it was the universal consensus of opinion of all the people throughout the country, or at least the overwhelming majority of the people in this nation of ours that when our nation became involved in war and blood had to be spilled and lives had to be lost, there would be a real equality of sacrifice and that no one individual or no group of individuals would take advantage of this thing we call a global blood bath to extort profit or to filch money from the public pocketbook at the expense of the war effort.

● Records produced and presented to various Congressional committees by both the Treasury Department of the United States and the Office of Price Administration in the course of Congressional hearings upon the fundamental question of taxes reveal the rather astonishing fact that a few people and a great many corporations were extracting more profit out of this war and out of American industry than has ever been taken out of the public pocketbook at any time in the history of the United States. There is something radically wrong with an economic situation that permits the development of conditions such as that.

● The wage policies of the Federal Government are wrong, not only in so far as they freeze under these conditions the possibility of American wage earners adjusting their conditions so as to be able to meet their country's war needs, but to maintain their families in a state of health and decency, maintain the workers' morale to a point, and their health to a point, where they will be able to report daily to their respective occupations and trades and produce the necessary goods to keep the war going on.

● There is no desire on the part of the CIO or any one of its millions of members to derive any kind of special privilege out of this situation in which our country now finds itself. All that they want is enough food to provide the necessary nutrition to keep them going, enough clothing, enough medicine, enough medical care, and a little home to protect and shelter both them and their families.

● There is nothing in that sort of a program which contemplates extortion or prosecutes selfish interests. It is merely a desire, as expressed in this resolution, on the part of the CIO to get out of this economy of ours something approximating a square deal.

● During the last war no directive was ever issued by the Federal Government which sought to restrain the operation of a Grievance Committee in the correction of abuses or the correction of inequalities. This is the first time to my own individual knowledge that the United States has ever undertaken the responsibility of regulating through the medium of a National War Labor Board the working conditions of 55,000,000 workers. Now, that is an impossible thing.

● No Board that has ever been created within the mind of man has ever been able to do that and do it efficiently and do it on a practical basis. It is just a practical and physical impossibility. Some lee-way must be conceeded; the employe in the organization with whom he has a collective bargaining contract should be privileged the right to enjoy these ordinary collective bargaining rights.

Farmer-Labor Unity A 'Must'—Wallace

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—Vice-Pres. Henry A. Wallace received one of the warmest welcomes extended to any speaker at the CIO Convention as he told a standing-room-only crowd this week that industrial workers and farmers must unite not only to win the war but to plan for a just peace that will eliminate the curse of hunger and unemployment. Wallace was introduced by CIO Pres. Philip Murray, who described the vice-president as "truly a friend of the common man."

Wallace outlined six "duties" for workers and farmers, described these two groups as "the greatest of all special classes of American citizens," and declared that they must wbrk together to "save and serve the government of us all."

"If labor and agriculture fight each other and their government, there is no hope," Wallace said. "Temporarily a few demagogues in capital, labor, agriculture and government may gain their petty advances for minority pressure groups.

"Selfish interests with large capital reserves are ready to buy in at panic prices our mines, our factories and our farms. To this end they are preparing to dominate the labor, the agricultural and financial policies of this country.

URGES PLANNING

"Now is the time to plan for conversion from war to peace. We must work toward full production and full employment. Those men and women who have had work to do during the war making engines of destruction cannot be left idle during the peace when the world is clamoring for food and clothing, transportation and shelter."

Declaring that both industrial workers and farmers are doing splendid jobs of supporting the war despite difficult conditions, Wallace outlined six duties for both groups:

1. Their main job is to help win the war.

2. They must be fair to consumers, shunning practices that would limit production and boost prices.

3. They must plan for "jobs, health, security and full production" to insure returning soldiers a decent life in peace after their sacrifices for the war.

4. They must see that capital is fairly treated.

5. They must make certain that the white collar worker does not become the "forgotten man" in an era of rising prices.

6. They must follow leaders who have the wisdom to put special interests second to the welfare of the nation and the human race.

Wallace's description of President Franklin D. Roosevelt as one of these leaders who "appreciate your basic aims and aspirations" brought prolonged cheers from the convention delegates.

KALTENBORN BLASTED

Wallace said that labor has come of age, "has won its basic campaign against capitalistic oppression," but added that labor still has its enemies. Incidentally pointing his remarks at H. V. Kaltenborn, reactionary radio commentator who happened to be sitting at the press section, the Vice-President declared:

"Any man who continually expresses his love for labor, but broadcasts labor's shortcomings while he praises every other group in America, is labor's enemy."

Wallace hailed the "splendid work" being done by CIO's Political Action Committee under the leadership of Sidney Hillman, declaring that the fact that "labor unions are united for expression at the ballot box is a fine example of a worker's duty of workers and farmers to the soldiers. The Vice-President said:

"Our energies, our great affection, our wisdom must plan now for jobs and health and security and full production. Otherwise, we shall let loose in this land roving bands seeking food where there is no food; seeking jobs where there are no jobs; seeking shelter where there is no shelter."

VICE-PRES. HENRY A. WALLACE

Wilkes-Barre Mayor 'Wows' Convention

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Con McCole, new Mayor of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., elected last Tuesday on the Progress Labor ticket, had the delegates to the CIO convention in session here fairly rolling in the aisles with laughter during a comic interlude in their serious discussions.

Introduced by President Philip Murray as a great humorist and a friend of labor whom he had known for 30 years, Mayor McCole began his half-hour of funny story telling by saying that when he started to work in the mines as a skinny eight-year-old boy, the boss told him not to come to work on a windy day.

CIO Convention Committee Heads

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Most of the "Jimmy Higgins" work that made the CIO Convention such a tremendous success was done in committees, which drafted resolutions, passed on credentials, discussed constitutional matters, etc.

Chairmen and secretaries of the committees were the following:

Resolutions: Van A. Bittner and Lee Pressman.

Officers' Reports: R. J. Thomas and Reid Robinson.

Credentials: Allan Haywood and Harold Straub.

Constitution: Frank Rosenblum and Clinton S. Golden.

Rules and Order: William Pollock and Douglas MacMahon.

Appeals: Richard T. Frankensteen and William Sentner.

Press and Public Relations: Len De Caux and Vincent Sweeney.

1st Lady Asks Square Deal for Workers

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt added another bulwark to her already strong championship of the rights of workers when she told the CIO Convention this week that if workers give no-strike pledges and keep them, "it is the duty of the citizens of this country to see that conditions are remedied which otherwise would lead to strikes."

Capturing the heart of the delegates by her gracious manner and frank expression, the First Lady of the Land drew prolonged cheers as she was introduced by CIO President Murray.

"I am glad," she told the convention, "that you adopted the no-strike pledge, because I feel that to the boys out there on the fighting fronts the importance of production is paramount."

Mrs. Roosevelt, who is a member of the American Newspaper Guild, warned against taking a "narrow view" of world affairs, declaring:

"Whatever is good for the world is going to be good for us. We can say what our objectives for the future are going to be, and can show by our deeds that we can really begin to bring things about," she added, in a plea for cooperation with other nations both during the war and after it.

FDR CHEERED

Mentioning the fact that she had told President Roosevelt that she was going to address the convention, Mrs. Roosevelt said that he had asked her to bring his regards. The statement was enthusiastically applauded.

Mrs. Roosevelt described briefly her trip to the South Pacific, and her discussions with wounded soldiers, declaring that it made her recognize more acutely than ever "the responsibility we on the home front have to the men fighting all over the world."

She said that soldiers who formerly lacked the weapons and ammunition they needed to fight now have the very best of equipment, provided by American workers. She declared that many people in the country fail to recognize the contribution that production line workers have made to the war, and said:

"Something ought to go with your no-strike pledge. You and your auxiliaries should tell the story of the injustices, inequalities, and bad conditions that many workers suffer. You should tell the people as a whole about the situation, so that they will really face the problems that people who are pushed to the point of striking know all about, but that others know practically nothing about."

"A great part of the public," she added, "doesn't know what really leads to strikes. The need is for a big educational job."

Discussing the peace, Mrs. Roosevelt said that we never can save the world from war "unless the people have hope that life will be better than in the past."

"I hope," she said, "that all workers will work together for the education of the nation so the people will understand what it means to have a better life."

Demand Food Service In War Plants

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Every plant holding a war contract with the government should be required to provide satisfactory food facilities for employes, the CIO Convention declared this week in a resolution calling upon war Mobilization Director James Byrnes to issue an appropriate directive.

Subsidies if necessary should be provided to guarantee "sufficient supplies of food for plant feeding of war workers at reasonable cost," the resolution stated.

Gifts For Murray

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—A bronze plaque made up in the exact likeness of the emblem of the old Western Federation of Miners, parent organization of the CIO Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, was presented to President Philip Murray at the CIO convention meeting here.

In making the presentation, President Reid Robinson of the Mine, Mill Union, said that the emblem showing a hammer, drill and quill pen was the standard of the union.

The Philadelphia CIO Council, host of the delegates to the convention, presented President Murray with a desk radio in appreciation of his leadership.

In accepting a gift of a desk set with a clock, from the Pennsylvania CIO Council presented to him during the CIO convention, Murray said that he was practically a native son of the state, having lived in Pennsylvania most of his life.

"I have felt that I am a part of its hills and its valleys and its rocks and its streams," he declared. "I with others helped develop the Pennsylvania CIO Council years ago, and I have a distinct affection for all the boys who joined in the great crusade to build up this mighty CIO movement in that wonderful state."

Urges Equal Voting 'Break' For Workers

Washington, Nov. 6—Soldiers of production should get the same chance to vote in next year's election as soldiers in the armed forces, Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers said this week in a statement to the senate committee on privileges and elections.

Thomas' statement was read by UAW legislative representative Phillip Porter at a hearing on S 1285, a bill introduced by Sen. Theodore Green (D., R. I.) and Sen. Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) which amends the act passed Sept. 16, 1942, providing a method of voting in wartime for members of the armed forces absent from their homes.

Commending sponsors of the bill for permitting "the men and women who are fighting for the preservation of democracy to continue to use their democratic rights while in service," Thomas urged that the same privileges be extended to an estimated four million migrant workers, who have lost their votes in the last three years because of residence requirements, difficulty of getting absentee ballots, lack of time due to long working hours and other factors.

"Many members of congress have lashed the whip over labor, over consumers and over the small farmer," Thomas said. "In doing so they have beat their breast for the soldiers and sailors. Well, here is their opportunity to demonstrate their sincerity," he continued, urging immediate passage of the bill.

Thomas also lauded Lucas' bill, S 189, which would keep voting booths open until 9 p.m. and suggested inclusion of a similar provision in the soldiers' vote bill. S 1285 is a great improvement over last year's measure, which yielded only about 28,000 ballots out of about 137,000 sent out, he said.

Hit Connally Act as Blow To Natl. Unity

Philadelphia, Nov. 8—Condemning the Smith-Connally Act as not only "an attack against labor's patriotism, but above all an attack on national unity and hence upon the war effort," the CIO convention this week voted unanimously to call upon Congress to repeal this anti-labor law.

The resolution passed by the delegates also denounced the Hobbs Bill now pending in the Senate as aimed at making possible the prosecution of unions for legitimate activities, and condemned all "similar bills to hamstring labor unions which have been introduced in Congress by a number of Congress men "who want to turn the war on the American people."

The convention described all proposals which interfere with the operations of labor unions as "dangerous to democracy and to the war effort" and urged that they be defeated.

All CIO affiliates were reminded of the "need to carry on an increasing campaign for the repeal of the Smith-Connally law and to call upon their Congressmen to direct their energies toward building a win-the-war Congress.

Red Cross Disaster Aid Given to 119,295

Washington, Nov. 6 — Disaster service of the American Red Cross rendered aid to 119,295 persons during this fiscal year, according to the annual report of that organization, released today. Distributed through 45 states, there were 178 disasters, which took a toll of 1,010 lives, injured another 3,205, and destroyed or damaged 67,836 buildings. Red Cross relief operations involved the expenditure of $1,592,500.

Lewis' Dist. 50 Costs $1,000 A Member

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—The fantastic organizing expenditures of District 50, United Mine Workers, were the object of considerable merriment at the CIO Convention as CIO Vice-Pres. R. J. Thomas showed that District 50 has spent nearly $1,000 a member to attain its claimed membership of 48,000.

"Never was so little done with so much, that I know of in the labor movement," commented Thomas as he read of loans made by the UMW to John L. Lewis' pet baby. Here's the way the finances look:

June 1, 1941, to Dec. 1, 1941

CIO Unions Pledge $700,000 for Political Action Campaign

(Text of Resolution, Page 18)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—CIO and affiliated unions have already pledged $700,000 to help CIO's Political Action committee carry the fight against defeatists and anti-labor forces in 1944, Chairman Sidney Hillman of the committee reported to the CIO Convention this week.

The convention, by resolution, praised President Roosevelt for his New Deal program, at the same time approving Hillman's statement that CIO will make endorsements for 1944 in 1944.

Hillman's work drew high praise from President Murray, who said "it is our bounden duty to lend" to Hillman and members of his committee "every possible degree of support, not merely by lip service but by hard work."

The convention called for a broad front involving all unions and other people's organizations committed to the fight against fascism and to the establishment after the war of economies that will assure the common people freedom and an abundance of the material goods of life.

The convention turned thumbs down on formation now of a third party as a means of achieving this goal.

HILLMAN PRAISED

Feature speech on political action came from Hillman, who was widely praised afterwards by delegates for the forthright manner in which he dealt with problems involving the unity of many forces for the attainment of major goals vital to victory.

"Today," Hillman told the convention, "our task is to mobilize the power of these 14,000,000 men and women organized in our industrial organizations and to make them a gathering point for all the progressive forces, to give battle to the forces of reaction.

"Our first task is to see that this war is won in a decisive manner, resulting in the utter and crushing defeat of the Axis powers.

"We must make it quite clear," he added, "that the peace to be arrived at must be a peace of no compromise, not merely with Hitlerism but with any of the fascist forces, here or abroad.

"We have to organize for it. The conference in Moscow should give encouragement to those who give up easily or who say it is impossible to get unity between all of our democratic forces here and abroad."

Discussing the peace, Hillman warned that after the last war politicians made promises by the basketfull, but people still went hungry. What, he asked, is going to happen to the 25,000,000 men and women in our war production industries and to the returning servicemen when victory is won?

Declaring that he felt the CIO should not rely alone on anyone's promises, Hillman called for the building of the widest possible sort of political organization, under a program that is not designed exclusively for the benefit of CIO, AFL or any other particular groups, but instead to meet the needs of the great masses of people as a whole.

The overwhelming majority of Americans, Hillman declared, will support such a program if they are presented with it.

TREMENDOUS TASK

"There is a tremendous and stupendous task facing us," Hillman declared. "We have to reverse the trend, because too many of our people have become self-satisfied, have become indifferent. Too many don't understand what is at stake in this year of decision that we are coming to in 1944.

"The Congress elected in 1944 will have the power to make the peace or ratify the peace, and don't brush aside what has happened after the last war. We still have the isolationists among us. And when I say isolationists, I don't mean the great masses of people who honestly believe we can keep out of war, but those who want an international government run by themselves."

Hillman said that is is not a Fourth Term movement that CIO is launching.

"I know," he said, "the dissatisfaction that exists in the ranks of labor because of some of our administrative agencies which seem at times to be doing more to discredit the administration than the so-called enemies of the administration.

NO COMMITMENT NOW

"I know that we have many problems, but I would say that we are not committing ourselves in 1943 for 1944.

"If the elections were to be held in the next two or three months, after looking over the field and looking over the record, I would still raise my voice and urge, for the sake of humanity, the nation and labor, the nomination and re-election of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"But our movement is a democratic movement; we will make our commitment for 1944 in 1944. I hope when the time comes in 1944, either through a national convention of CIO or a convention of all the groups organized politically, we will have enough power to make ourselves felt even before the nomination both as to candidates and as to platforms."

'TALKING POLITICS: Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers listens as United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers Pres. Albert Fitzgerald gets in a word at the CIO Convention with Pres. Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, chairman of CIO's Political Action Committee.

'MARCHING WITH JOHNNY' was the hit of the CIO Convention—what the delegates saw of the CIO musical show in the way of snatch selections. Emerson-Electric is now engaged 100% in war work — principally the production of power-operated revolving gun turrets and electric motors for United Nations aircraft.

EMERSON-ELECTRIC Builds Fighting Power for the Air Offensive

Army and Navy communiques from all over the world daily stress the importance of United Nations air power in fighting this war.

Emerson-Electric contributions to the airplane production program are summed up briefly in the following paragraphs:

1. Emerson-Electric built and equipped a great new plant for the manufacture of turrets which delivered its first gun turret five months ahead of schedule.
2. Current monthly production considerably exceeds the estimated capacity of this plant. Further production increases are now being scheduled.
3. In addition to the original turret designs released for manufacture, new turrets and electric aircraft motors, originated and developed by Emerson-Electric engineers, have been approved and are in production.
4. Emerson-Electric is continuing to pioneer in the development of new and more effective products for the air offensive—for quicker Victory through air power.

The men and women of Emerson-Electric were recently honored with a star award for the Army-Navy Burgee which proudly flies over all plants of this company. It serves as a challenge and a pledge of continued devotion to the requirements of our fighting forces.

No-Strike Pledge Renewed by CIO

(See Full Text of Resolution, Page 18)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A unanimous rising vote of the CIO Convention this week reaffirmed the organization's unqualified Pearl Harbor pledge that strikes would be "out" for the duration of the war against fascism.

In a strongly worded resolution which found the delegates so united that no discussion was called for, the convention stated.

"The working men and women of this nation desire above everything else to exert all their effort and energy toward achieving maximum production of war materials.

"A strike or stoppage of work must necessarily interfere with this effort for all-out production and to that extent actually assists our enemies and endangers the lives of those men and women on the battle fronts fighting the Axis armies."

Declaring that "the CIO hereby reaffirms its solemn pledge without any qualifications or conditions for the duration of the war that there must not be any strike or stoppage of work," the delegates stated:

"Each member and each leader of organized labor must make it his responsibility to discharge with scrupulous care this sacred obligation. Any leader of organized labor who deliberately flouts this obligation and any employer who seeks to provoke or exploit labor are playing into the hands of the enemies of our nation."

The resolution also:

Denounced the Smith-Connally act as provocative of strikes.

Called for adjustment of disputes through machinery of the War Labor Board.

And urged legislative and political action to mobilize the people behind a win-the-war program "designed to meet the basic economic problems arising out of the war and to protect the interests of the common people."

Workers' Education Discussed

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Plans for developing workers education in the CIO were discussed during the CIO national convention at an eveing conference held by the Department of Research and Education, headed by J. Raymond Walsh.

The discussion, which was led by Kermit Eby, department assistant, took up the questions of the need for workers' education; possibilities for creation of a CIO workers' education organization, and the establishment of a clearing house in the National CIO for all CIO unions.

The conference also discussed cooperation with outside groups, including the Labor Education Service and the Religious Foundation; development of labor extension service in American universities; control of public education and the activities of the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers and other enemies of labor, and the holding of regular meetings for all those interested in workers education.

CIO Parley Asks Cooperation With War Relief

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—The CIO convention this week urged all its affiliates to cooperate with the program of the National CIO War Relief Committee in helping to extend the aid and relief "so vitally necessary to our brothers, sons and fighting allies in the common struggle against our enemies."

The Convention said, in support of the Committee, that through it "the members of the CIO may extend real concrete aid to our brothers in the armed services, to the men and women who carry on the ceaseless struggle against fascism, Nazism and Japanese militarism in the occupied nations, and to the people of our fighting allies."

Hail Pres. Murray's Leadership as Vital To War Effort

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—"Philip Murray has given statesmanlike leadership to American labor which has been the greatest single factor in enabling the American labor movement to become a vital force in the war effort of the United Nations." Thus did the CIO Convention this week describe CIO's president, in a resolution which brought thunderous applause from the the nearly 1,000 delegates and visitors that crowded the convention hall.

The praise was adopted by resolution, passed unanimously. The resolution follows:

WHEREAS, (1) Victory for the United Nations in this struggle of the people against fascist forces throughout the world requires courageous and intelligent leadership from organizations of labor and the people to establish and put into action policies which will fully mobilize the entire nation behind a total war effort;

(2) Philip Murray has given statesmanlike leadership to American labor which has been the greatest single factor in enabling the American labor movement to become a vital force in the war effort of the United Nations. Philip Murray's direction of all phases of CIO activity has resulted in the organization of millions of unorganized workers, has improved the national morale and has shown us the way to mobilize the litical strength of American workers in support of our Commander-in-Chief; now, therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the CIO voices its appreciation to Philip Murray for his wholehearted support of the Commander-in-Chief, for the contributions which he has made to mobilize labor and the people of America behind the war effort, for the leadership he has given in gearing the CIO to work for victory on the military, economic and production fronts, and for the wise guidance he has given on all problems before the American people.

CIO Public Relations Work Praised

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—The public relations work of CIO was commended this week by the CIO Convention. A resolution pointed out that the work should be expanded if it is financially possible to do so.

Pointing to anti-labor propaganda carried in newspapers, magazines, movies and radio programs, the resolution noted that the CIO, through use of its press, the radio, pamphlets, advertising, speakers and other public relations activities is "vigorously attempting to combat anti-labor propaganda."

The resolution said that "the public relations activities of the CIO are necessarily limited in scope and effectiveness by the financial limitations of a workers' organization, as compared with the huge funds available to anti-labor employing interests for such purposes, and by the other further fact that all the main opinion forming agencies are controlled by big business."

Back FDR As Commander Of Nation

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Complete support for President Roosevelt as Commander-in-Chief of the nation was expressed this week by the CIO Convention, in a resolution which pledged to intensify efforts to boost production, and also said:

"We hereby demand that Congress cease immediately their sniping at President Roosevelt and their sabotage of the home front program, and call upon Congress to get into the war with both feet and utilize their energies, now directed against the government, to support the desires of the American people to fight this war to a speedy and victorious conclusion."

Fine Homes At Very Low Cost

Built By 100% UNION LABOR

COMPLETELY factory-built, factory assembled, and factory-equipped—with plumbing, heating and lighting equipment installed at the factory—Palace dwelling units are transported from factory to building site by motor truck, and are ready for occupancy practically upon arrival.

Low in cost, yet conforming in every way to the governments' strict housing standards, these modern homes—with living room, dining room, kitchen, bathroom, and as many as four bedrooms—will enable American workmen to have the same living comforts after the war that they are now enjoying in Palace-built homes in defense areas.

With vacant lots in abundance in practically every city and town—lots on streets already provided with municipal utilities, such as water, sewer, gas and electricity—it is only a matter of a few hours to transport a Palace Home from the factory to one of these vacant lots, and in less than 30 minutes the house is ready to be occupied.

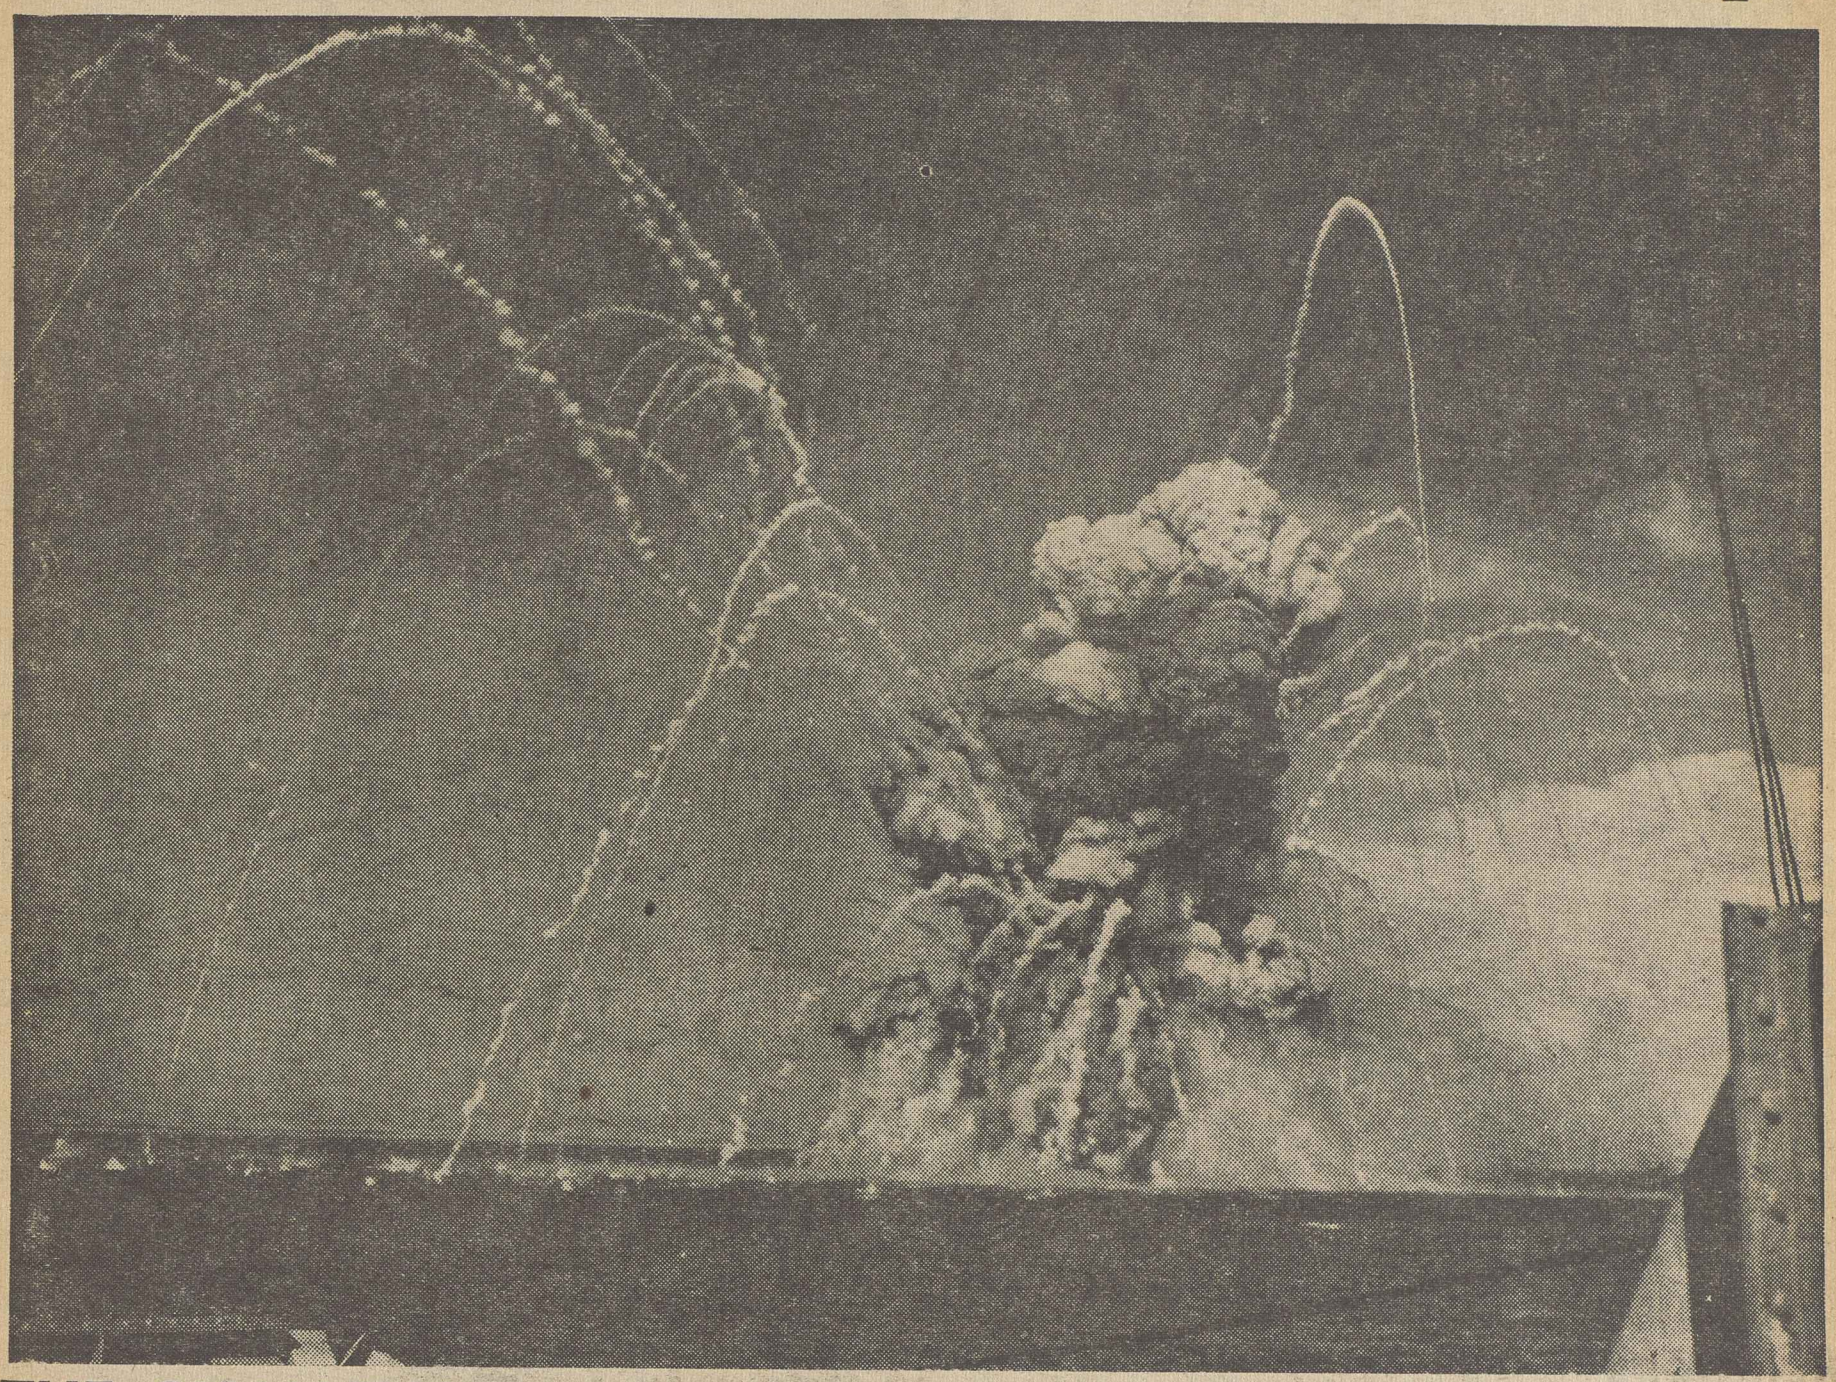
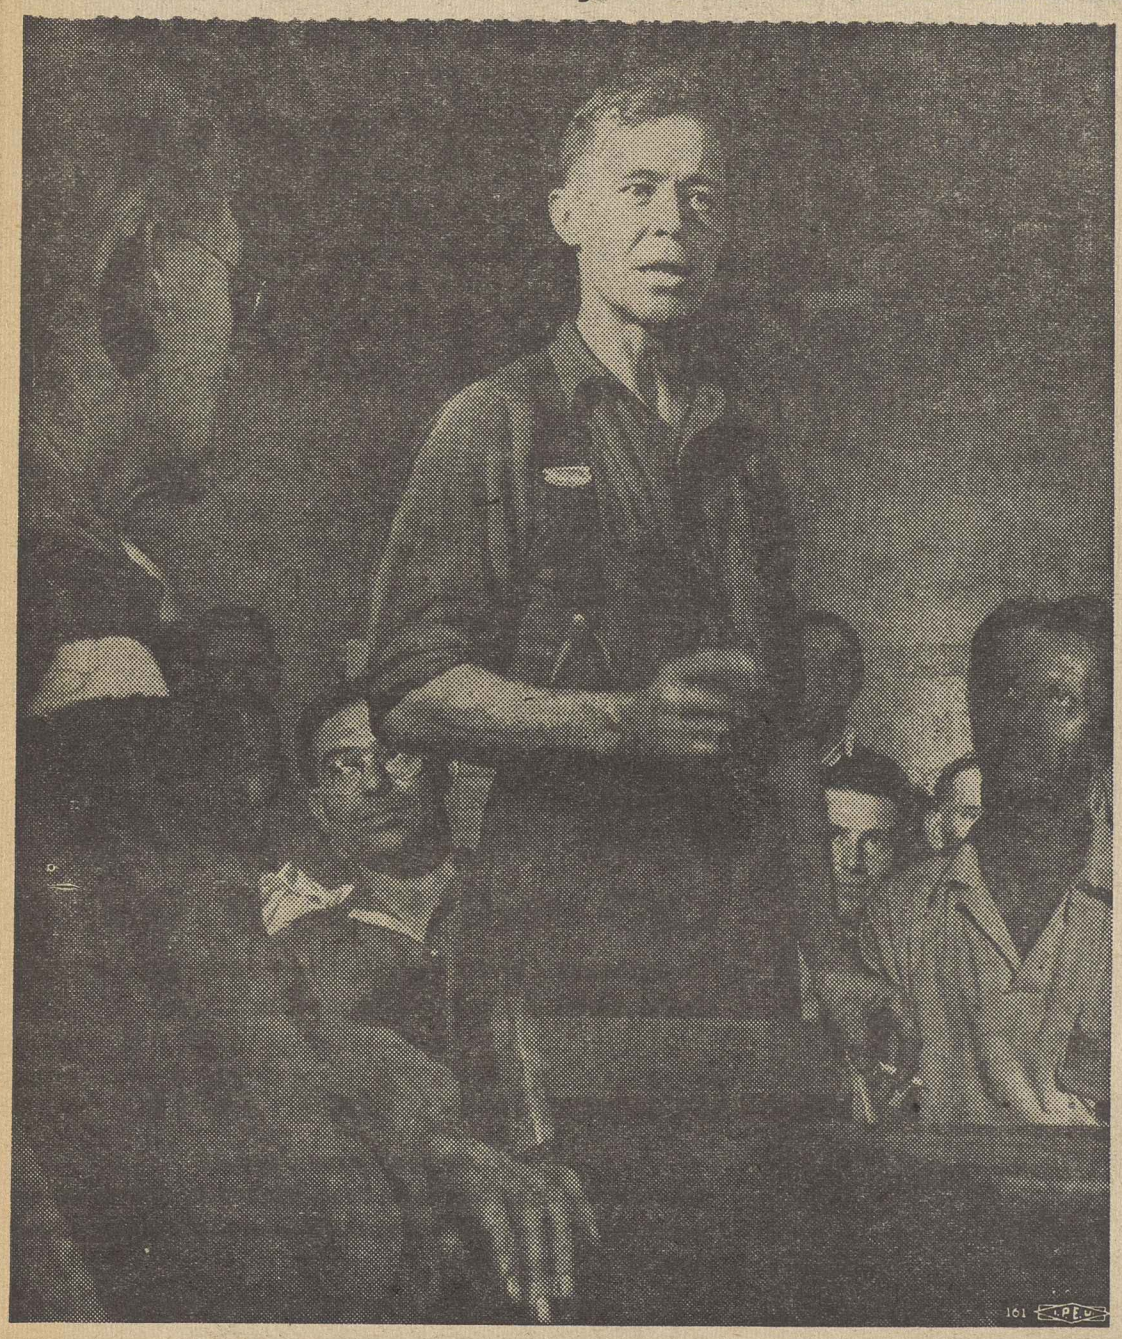
CIO Fights for Victory!



THE CHALLENGE! Axis planes smash American ships, kill American seamen, sink American planes, tanks, guns needed for United Nations' victory.



(Courtesy CLICK Magazine)

THE ANSWER: CIO unions guarantee all-out, continuous production to back up their buddies fighting to smash the Axis.

Drive to Defeat Axis Main Goal Of CIO Unions

A one-way, no-limit ticket to heaven was written on the Nazi bomb that blasted the munitions hatch of the S. S. ——, CIO-built, CIO-manned, and carrying CIO-made planes, tanks, guns and bullets needed by American soldiers to defeat the Axis.

Crew, ships, planes, tanks, guns and bullets—all were smashed into nothing by the tremendous explosion that brought a sadistic smile to the face of the Nazi pilot who chalked up the hit for credit with Der Fuehrer.

"Decadent democrats," he muttered through his teeth, remembering Holland, France, Greece and what Herr Hitler had sneeringly referred to as the "United States of Germany." "Those stupid fools could be split apart by playing Protestants against Catholics, and Catholics against Jews, and all of the white people against the Negroes, and the Negroes against the white," the Nazi pilot paraphrased Hitler's philosophy.

But the Nazi pilot forgot—or perhaps he never had heard about—the hard core of the United States, a core as tempered and dangerous as the steel that some day would pierce his heart. He forgot—or didn't know—about CIO and its five million members, dedicated to the preservation of democracy and ready to fight for it.

The challenge he dumped on that CIO deck killed a hundred men, but a million more of them on the fighting fronts and five million others back home swore to avenge the deaths of their brothers—pledged under the leadership of President Philip Murray to fight to the death to wipe Axis slavery off the earth.

CIO'S millions at home have one major goal—to out-produce Axis slave labor so that our fighting forces will arrive at battlefields "fustest with the mostest" to crush the enemy.

CIO's millions know this goal calls for the kind of all-out continuous production that will make Hitler chew rugs.

He must be importing them from Turkey by this time, because the CIO's record has not only been shot at—it has been broken and re-broken.

The tempo of CIO's production effort was set by President Philip Murray's firm no-strike pledge, made while the Pearl Harbor tragedy was hot in the nation's headlines. It's a pledge that's been religiously kept, to the point where President Murray could say without qualification that "our record of achievement in the field of production is without parallel in the history of this or any other country."

FDR Hails Production Record

And President Roosevelt recently declared:

"Our war factories and plants and shipyards are now working at full blast turning out the greatest amount of war production in the history of the world." He revealed that:

During the first eight months of 1943, American workers produced 52,000 planes, 23,000 tanks, 40,600 artillery weapons and 4,638,000 rifles, carbines and machine guns.

The completions of Navy ships in the last six months were equal to completions in the entire year of 1942.

During the month of August, 1943, we produced almost as many torpedoes as we did during the whole first World War.

Since the outbreak of war in Europe, we have increased our output of petroleum by 66 per cent, bituminous coal production 40 per cent, chemicals 300 per cent, iron ore 125 per cent and steel 106 per cent.

Citing this record, the outspoken Army magazine, YANK, said:

"It seems strange that America was able to accomplish this terrific task of production if the average worker at home was interested only in getting a raise and didn't know or care about the war overseas.

"The truth is, of course, that absentees and goldbrickers crop up in the factories and mines and shipyards—just as they do in the armed forces—but they represent only a very small minority.

"The average American worker is doing his job. And he knows only too well that there is a war going on."

You're darned right he does, YANK! And he's not only

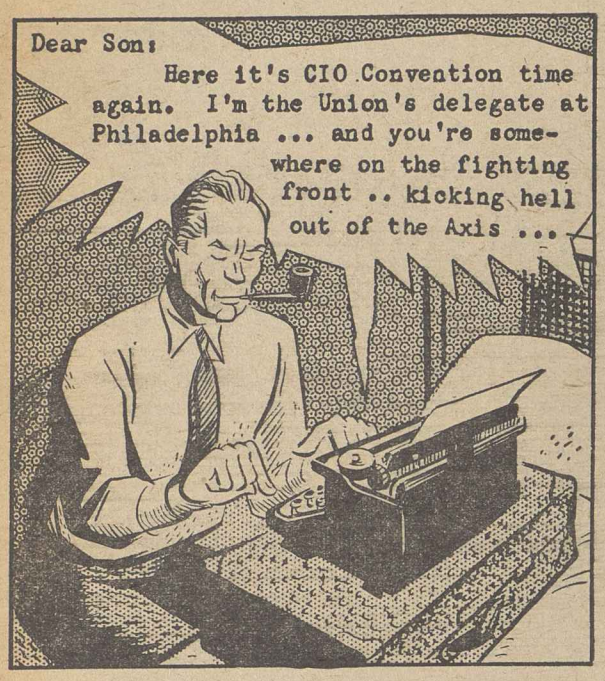
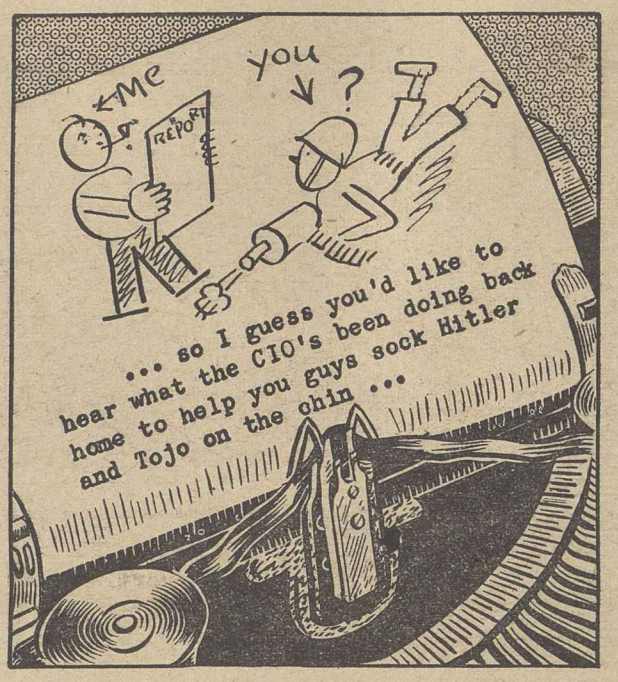
Letter to a Soldier . . .



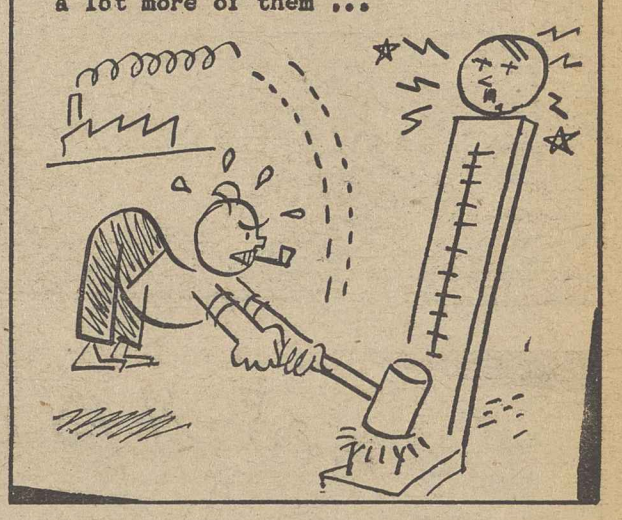
Remember a year ago? It was CIO's 5th Convention when you were landing in North Africa ... you sure made us proud.

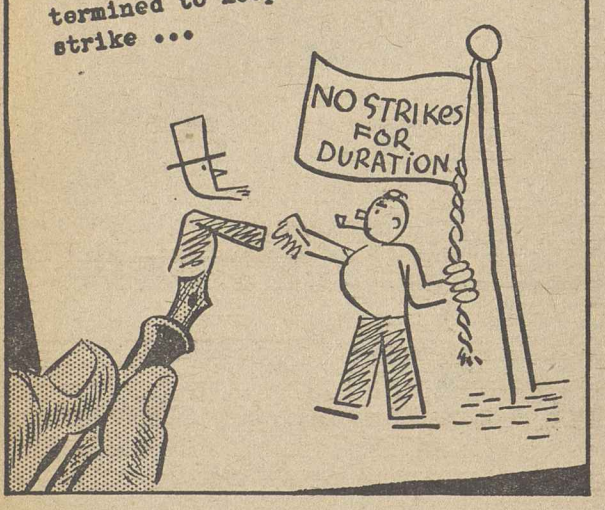
A lot of war has been fought against fascism since then. We've been following you and your buddies all over the map.

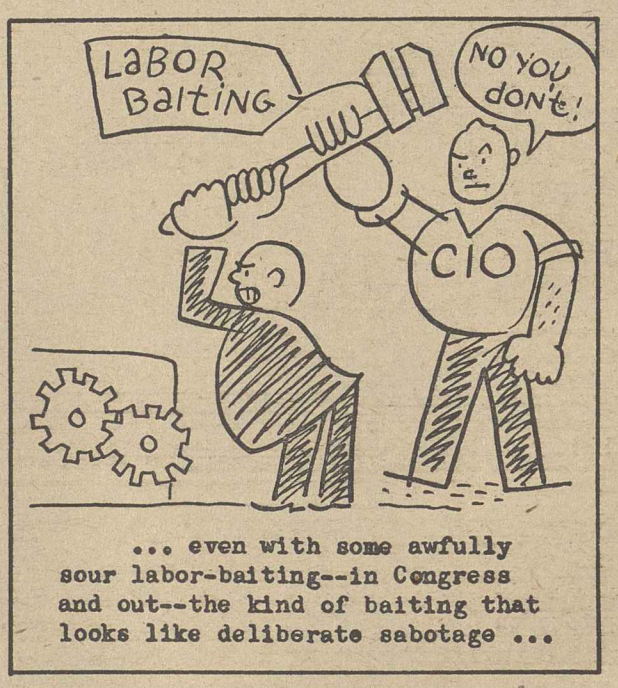
When they handed out CIO's annual report this morning, I reminded myself that you're a member of the Union, too ...

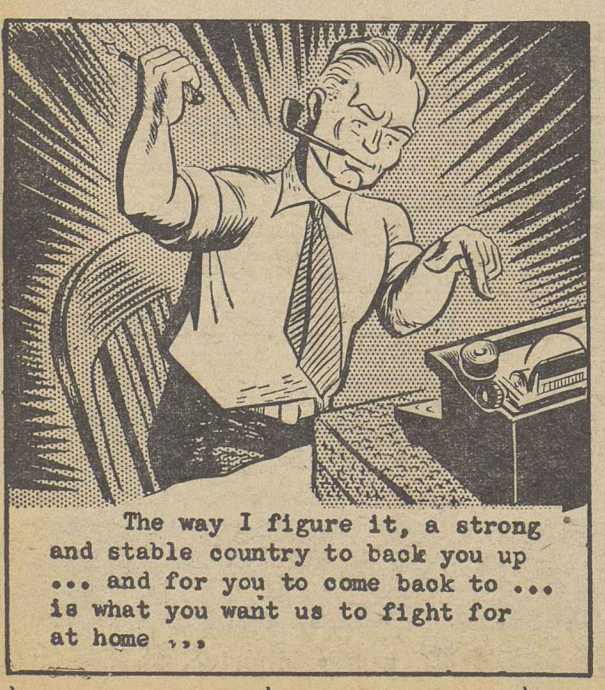


Our first big war job has been making those tanks and planes and guns you need ... we've broken plenty of records ... we'll smash a lot more of them ...



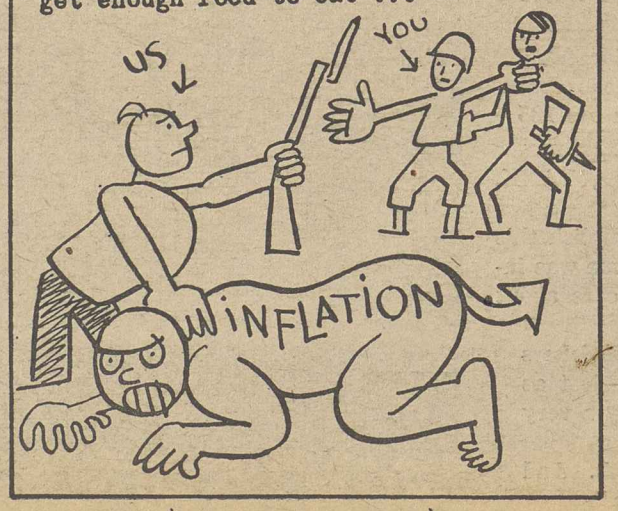




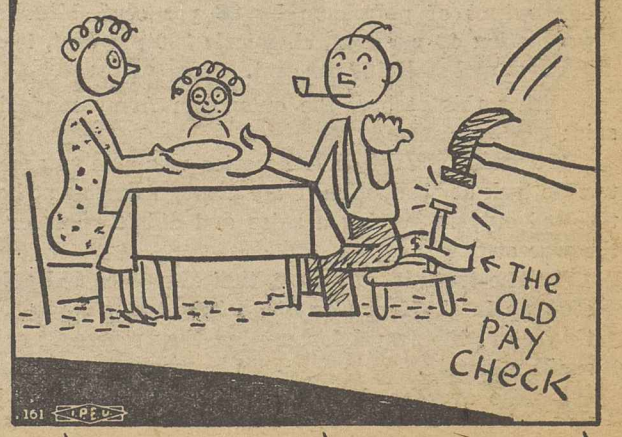


The way I figure it, a strong and stable country to back you up ... and for you to come back to ... is what you want us to fight for at home ...

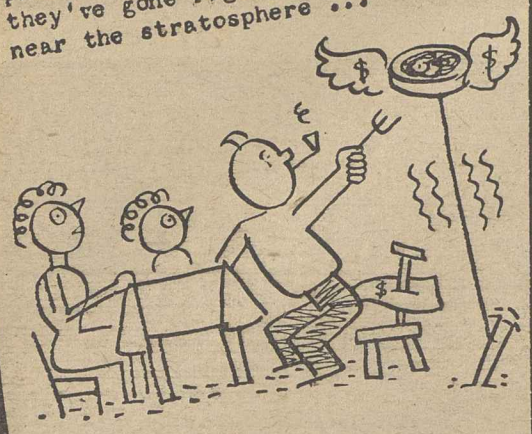
... and we'd be letting you down and helping Hitler if we let inflation loose, with prices going so high a lot of workers couldn't get enough food to eat ...



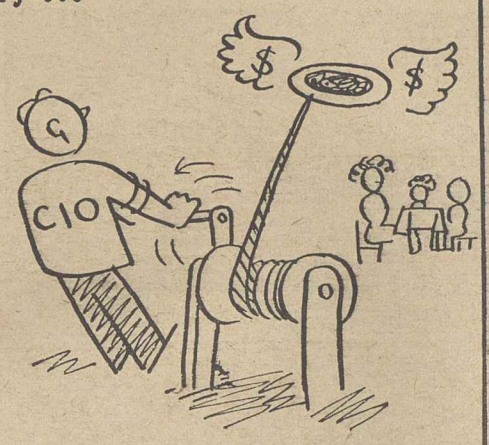
Congress hasn't been much help on this. They nailed down our wages as of September 15, 1942 ... but not prices ...

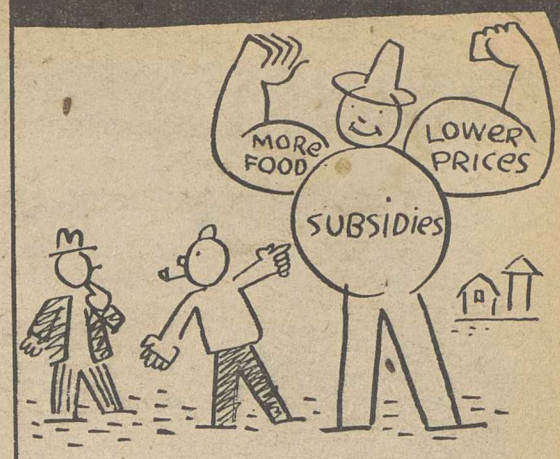


... all Congress had for prices was a rubber band ... they've gone right on up to darned near the stratosphere ...

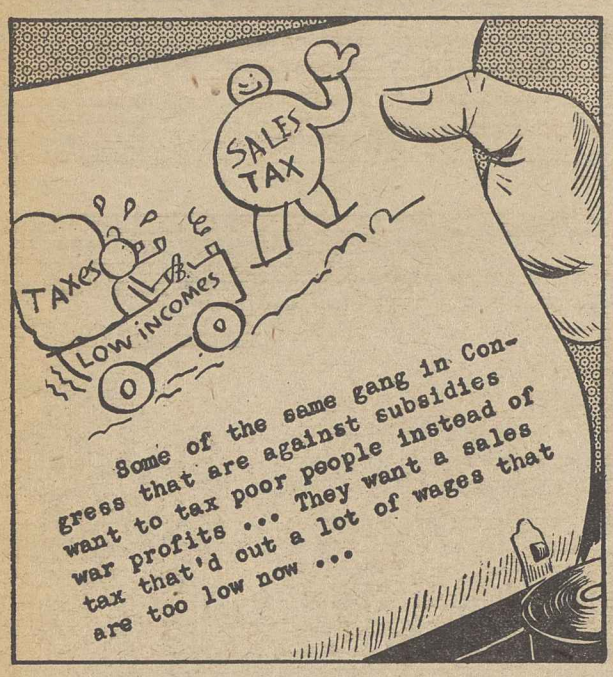


So CIO's been fighting for a rollback of prices to stop inflation and to keep war workers eating regular so they can turn out the stuff you guys need for victory ...



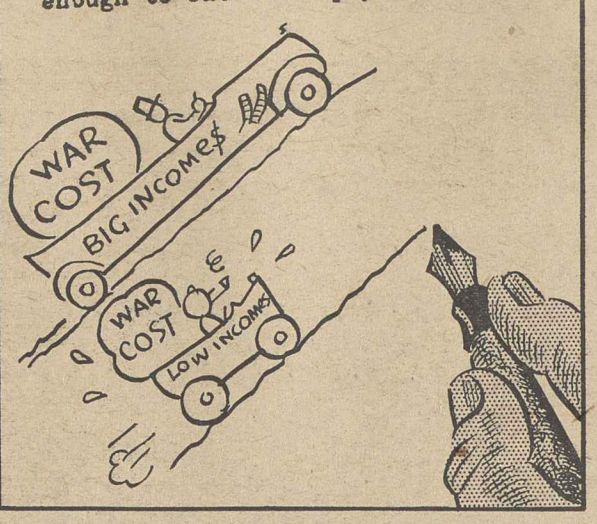


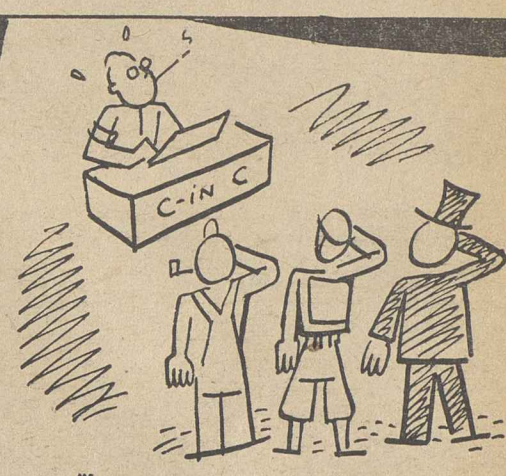
The only way to keep food production up with fair prices for the farmers, and to keep food prices down for consumers, is to use subsidies, like CIO has urged ...



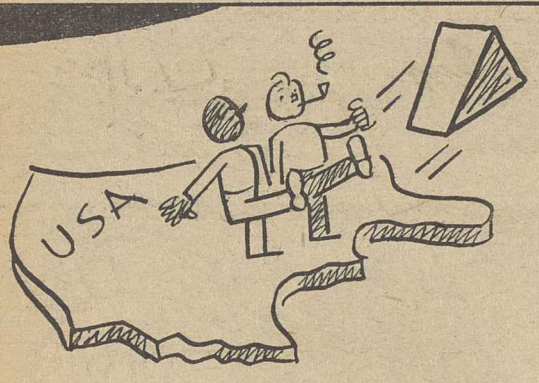
Some of the same gang in Congress that are against subsidies want to tax poor people instead of war profits ... They want a sales tax that'd cut a lot of wages that are too low now ...

... so the CIO's fighting to raise the taxes that we need to win the war from the people who'll have enough to eat AFTER paying taxes.



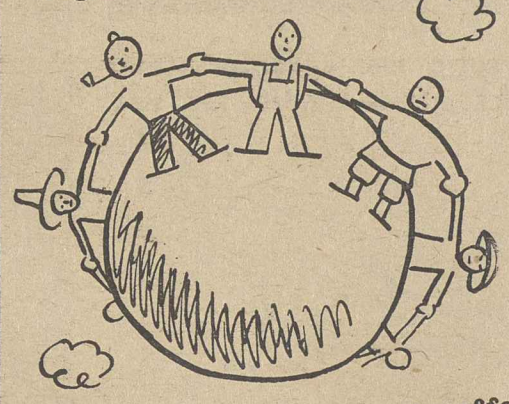


We want everyone to pay his share. And we'll work with all of 'em to win the war ... we're 100 per cent for national unity behind the Commander-in-Chief ...



... and national unity includes things like wiping out race discrimination, because it's things like this that help Hitler, not us ...

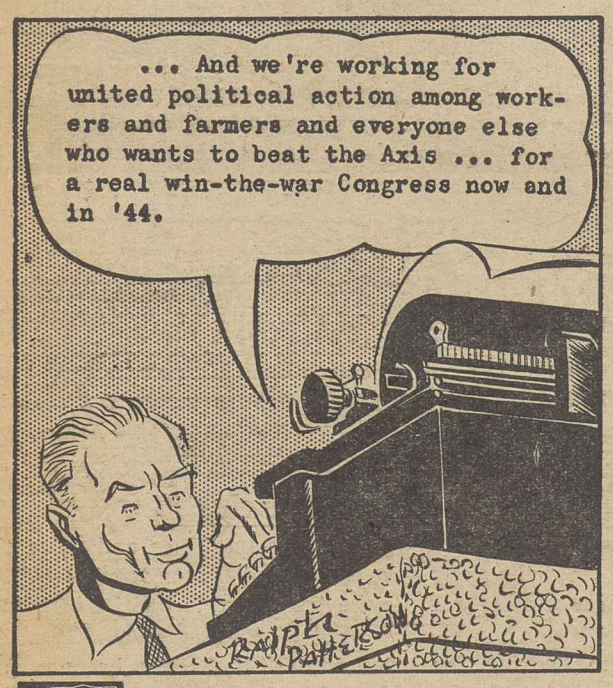
We're plugging for United Nations unity, too--with workers in England, the Soviet Union, China,



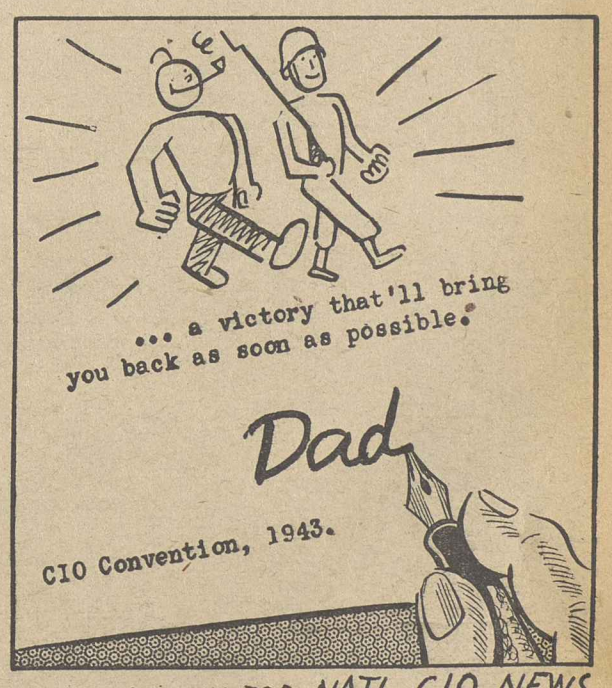
Latin-America--to take the offensive against the common enemy.

We're fighting hard to help you win, son, and CIO's grown stronger than ever in doing it ... more than a million new members--men and women--signed up this year!

... And we're working for united political action among workers and farmers and everyone else who wants to beat the Axis ... for a real win-the-war Congress now and in '44.



"Back Bullets With Ballots" is our slogan, and we're going to make the bullets and cast the ballots to help win a complete victory over fascism ...



... a victory that'll bring you back as soon as possible.

sweating his heart out on production lines but he's keeping after Congress to see that it backs up the boys across the seas by passing legislation that will build a strong and stable home front to support the war.

Political Action for Victory

CIO men and women who run the machines and drive the rivets and build the ships have discovered that economic action's not enough to win the war. So they've turned to politics—CLEAN politics.

They're fighting for price control—not only because fair prices mean butter on the table and beef steak for Sunday dinner, but for the very practical reason that war workers must have enough to eat if they're going to turn out all the weapons our fighting forces need.

They're fighting for repeal of the Nazi-like polltax, which prevents more than ten million Southern citizens—white and Negro—from participating as voting members in this democracy which we are defending.

They're fighting for fair taxes—against the sales tax—so that people like servicemen's dependents can buy enough food and clothing and decent housing with the pittance the government pays them.

CIO's slogan is "Back Bullets with Ballots," and CIO believes in and practices the policy of working with everyone else who wants to help win the war, regardless of race, color, creed or national origin.

CIO Bans Discrimination

CIO's policy against discrimination was put so no one could misunderstand it—President Murray speaking: "Any practice of racial discrimination, whether in industry or in the armed services or in any other sector of national life, is ammunition for our Axis enemies."

One of the brightest spots in CIO's history since Pearl Harbor has been the increased cooperation between CIO and the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. On almost every fighting front in the world, CIO men are making outstanding records as members of Seabee construction gangs as well as directly in the fighting forces. CIO longshoremen have entered the Army en masse, to train soldiers for the difficult job of loading and unloading cargoes of war. CIO seamen are pushing an upgrading program so the members of the maritime unions can take over the jobs of officers who are killed by Axis bombs and torpedoes. And on the production lines, CIO workers cooperate 100 per cent with United States Army, Navy and Marine officials to turn out better products and more of them.

Murray Warns of Disunity

CIO knows the war isn't over—not by a long shot. The warning that dangerous days lie ahead was sounded by President Murray in his report to the Sixth Annual Convention. He said:

"As the unconditional surrender of the Axis enemies becomes more certain, we must anticipate more devious attempts to weaken our military effort. . . .

"They seek to sow seeds of disunity among the peoples of the United Nations in the attempt to drive the United States apart from Britain, Britain and the United States apart from the Soviet Union."

In the same way, he warned, forces within the labor movement work by trying to create division, by "encouraging strikes and stoppages of work to impede the maximum production of war materials."

To smash this conspiracy against total victory and to safeguard the lives of millions of our American soldiers and sailors, CIO builds for unity among all the United Nations, and particularly among their labor movements, not only to help win the war but to guarantee a democratic peace that will keep the world free from aggression. That peace is fast approaching and will be faster still in arriving if CIO men and women fight as hard next year as they have during the past 12 months to twist the halter that will hang Hitler. In the words of President Murray:

"The conditions for obtaining the unconditional military surrender of the Axis forces have been created. The moment for which the free peoples of the world, as well as the unfortunate human beings of the occupied territories, have waited so eagerly, is approaching."

CIO is giving everything its five million men and women ... for that moment. CIO backs our Commander-in-Chief. CIO works for unity around the single aim—total victory and a just peace.

CIO Army Night Brings Vets to Tell Of Fight Against Axis

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A grim reminder of the blood, sweat and tears being shed in the war—a group of sick and wounded men, three of them CIO members—sat on the platform at the CIO Convention Tuesday evening when President Philip Murray gave a radio address as part of an "Army Night" program.

"These wounded American boys with us tonight are the spokesmen of hundreds of thousands of others who are today in military hospitals, and of more than a hundred thousand more who lie in desolate graves in distant lands," Murray said.

"They represent here tonight also, the millions of their fellow soldiers, sailors and marines who are still in arms, each day facing new dangers so that the honor and safety of our nation, and of the decent instincts of humanity may prevail."

One of the tensest moments of a tense evening came when CIO Legislative Director Nathan Cowan came forward to respond to a letter from Maj. Gen. H. L. George of the U. S. Army praising the "leadership and devotion to duty" of Cowan's son, Master Sergeant James K. Cowan, killed in action in September.

"I learned with deep regret that your son, Master Sergeant James K. Cowan, an honored and respected member of this organization, lost his life in line of duty while participating in an aerial flight over the African desert on the 5th of September, 1943," the letter stated.

SPLENDID RECORD

"Master Sergeant Cowan had a splendid record of military service of which you may well be proud. The exemplary manner in which he discharged his duties and the attention he gave to details is attested by his having been awarded a certificate of proficiency in July, 1940.

"His leadership and devotion to duty were an inspiration to all those who served with him. The confidence which this Command placed in his fidelity and ability is evidenced by the responsible position of crew chief he held on the African mission.

"We are very proud of your son's fine record and the faithful service which to the last he gave so unstintingly to his country in its hour of trial. On behalf of his fellow members of the Air Transport command, may I extend to you and to the other members of his family our heartfelt sympathy in your loss."

In telling the story of young Jim Cowan to the radio audience President Murray said he was the son of one of his "oldest friends and co-workers in the labor movement."

BROTHERS IN SERVICE

It is not the story of Jim Cowan alone, Murray declared, "brave as he was. Today three other Cowan boys, his brothers, are also in the armed forces. A fourth has made repeated efforts to join, but he has been barred because he is too young. However, before the year is out, the fifth son of Nate Cowan will also be wearing the colors of his country.

"And tonight their father, Nate Cowan, stood beside me on this platform—modest, courageous, asking no pity but urging only continued, relentless prosecution of the war."

MURRAY'S TRIBUTE

Murray also paid tribute to Charlie Varos, member of the CIO Auto Workers in Detroit, who was killed while driving an ambulance in Sicily. Sergeant Arby Barnes, a wounded member of the same union from the Chrysler local in Toledo, was one of the speakers on the Army Night program. He told of campaigns in North Africa and Sicily in which he had taken part before he was disabled by the Nazis.

A vivid description of a bombing raid was given by Lieut. Col. Charles W. Kerwood, and 1st Class Electricians Mate Frank Juliano told a moving story of a group of young Sea Bees who "lived, fought and died for their country in the malaria infested islands of the Southwest Pacific."

Two CIO members came to the Army Night program from the Valley Forge Hospital at Phoenixville, Pa. They were Sgt. Clark T. McDonnell of the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers in Los Angeles, and Pvt. Williiam Latham, United Steelworkers, Easton, Pa. Both were taken ill in this country while in training.

Prices Up Again—How About It, OPA?

Washington, Nov. 6—The cost of living has gone up again, Sec. of Labor Frances Perkins reported this week. Prices in the month from August to September were up 0.4 per cent after declining by 1.5 per cent in the previous three months.

The increase was a decided setback for OPA, showing how far that agency still has to go to accomplish its promised rollback of prices to September, 1942, levels, a matter of some 5 per cent. Since the period covered by the latest index, OPA has set price ceilings on 13 fresh vegetables and expects to roll them back on certain fresh vegetables, as well as on vegetable oils, citrus fruits and peanut butter.

The September index of living costs, compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, stood at 123.7 per cent of the average for 1935 to 1939. It represents a 5 per cent jump over September of last year, 6½ per cent above the May, 1942, level, and 22½ per cent January, 1941, the base date for the Little Steel formula.

Biggest lump increase reported was in clothing prices as new fall lines were introduced, while food, most important item in the family budget, was 0.1 per cent higher. Reports of food shortages throughout the country, said BLS, were most frequent for oranges, butter, chickens, cornmeal, apples and spinach.

ON EVERY FRONT—IN EVERY BATTLE!

WHEREVER the fighting men of the United Nations see action today, Westinghouse wartime products are at work—on every front, in every battle.

There are already thousands of these products—electrical, electronic, mechanical, chemical, plastic. More of them are coming. Day and night, the search goes on in our laboratories and engineering departments to find still more effective ways of bringing victory nearer and surer.

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

1. In North Africa, American tanks—equipped with a special Westinghouse gun device—are giving American forces new striking power. These tanks, unlike enemy tanks, are able to fire with incredible accuracy at full speed over rough ground.

2. In Russia, American planes—supporting the ground forces—are helping to win battle after battle. Westinghouse builds parts for these planes, provides vital equipment for producing the aluminum and magnesium from which they are made.

3. On the seven seas, helping to keep our supply lines open, are scores of Westinghouse products. Among them are turbines, gears, electric drives, motors, anti-aircraft gun mounts, instruments, and controls.

4. In the Pacific, Westinghouse-built "walkie-talkies" and other types of communications equipment, X-rays, bomb-fuses, anti-tank shells, and other weapons are doing their share to lick the Japs.

5. In the bombing of Germany, delicate, precision-made aircraft instruments and radios direct our planes to their targets. Much of this blind-flying and navigating equipment is made by Westinghouse.

6. On the production front, Westinghouse products—from generators to motors, switches, transformers, automatic controls—are on the job in hundreds of war plants . . . helping win the battle of production.

CIO Demands Post-War Jobs, Aid to Helpless

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—Essentials for a sound post-war program were laid down in a resolution passed by unanimous vote of the CIO Convention in session here this week. These essentials are:

1. A job at union wages, or a farm, business or profession that pays.

2. A well-built convenient home decently furnished.

3. Good food, clothing and medical care.

4. Good schooling for children with an equal chance for a healthy and happy growth.

5. An income through social insurance in case of sickness, old age, early death of the wage earner, or unemployment.

6. Guarantee of the right of every worker to join a union of his own choosing and to enjoy the benefits of collective bargaining.

"Victory in the peace involves the accompaniment of these ends and it is the task and responsibility of labor to see that it does not become merely a pious slogan," the resolution declared.

BROAD OUTLINE

Speaking in support of the resolution, John Brophy, director of Industrial Union Councils and member of the CIO's Post-War Planning Committee, said that the resolution together with the section of President Murray's report on the subject, presented a broad outline for a program "which we must be concerned with in the coming months if we are to face up to the responsibilities of post-war."

We must see to it, Brophy said, that we "give our boys who return from the fighting fronts their opportunity to life and labor and a decent standard of living, and also give those who are serving the factories and the transportation lines of the country an assurance of well-being after the war."

President Joseph Selly of the American Communications Association, speaking in support of the resolution, pointed out it recognized that "the first job is the hastening of the end of the war, and along with it the setting up of machinery which will guarantee the proper kind of peace."

The CIO in passing this resolution, he said, "is once again giving leadership to the American people."

Ask Repeal Of Chinese Exclusion Act

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Repeal of the Oriental Exclusion Act which grossly discriminates against our Allies in Asia, especially the gallant Chinese, was demanded this week by the CIO national convention.

"These exclusion statutes place a heavy burden upon Chinese morale in the sixth year of relentless struggle against our common enemy, the forces of Japanese imperialism and slavery," stated a resolution passed unanimously by the delegates.

Delegate Willard Townsend, Negro president of the Transport Service Employes, spoke in support of the resolution, pointing out that the people who oppose the repeal of this vicious legislation include those who have profited for years through the exploitation of workers and those who were responsible for poll taxes in this country.

"It is my belief," he said, "that this convention will render a very valuable service in the building of the morale of our brave Chinese allies, and to more or less set up in this country a more generous idea, not too generous, but an idea that all of these peope in line with our international policies are entitled to the same quota of emigrants as all other peoples of the world."

Following the adoption of the resolution, Secretary H. T. Liu of the Chinese Association of Labor issued a statement expressing on behalf of his organization and the Chinese people, "heartfelt appreciation" for the action taken by the CIO convention.

CIO Hits Race Discrimination As Treason

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—CIO's championship of bans on racial and religious discrimination was given an extended discussion at the CIO Convention, which passed resolutions condemning such discrimination as "treason to America."

"Discrimination against any individual or groups of people because of race, religion or country of origin is an evil characteristic of our fascist enemies," the convention declared. "We of the democracies are fighting fascism at home and abroad by welding all races, all religions and all peoples into a united body of workers for democracy."

Particular issues sharply raised included:

Praise for the Fair Employment Practices Committee.

A demand for the prosecution of race baiters and religious baiters, including the Ku Klux Klan and rabble rouser Gerald L. K. Smith, among others.

A demand for abolition of the Jim Crow segregation of Negroes in the armed services.

A call for a strong fight against anti-Semitism, which was described as "a Hitler weapon aimed to disrupt the war effort."

Declaring that "all of civilized humanity is outraged by the Nazis' barbaric drive to exterminate the Jewish people," the convention pointed out that "American workers know that the method of the fascists is to divide the people, to arouse race against race and to use this division as a means to fully entrench themselves and put through their fascist ideology of barbarism, destruction, and the wiping out of civilization."

Delegates who spoke on the resolution were apparently particularly aroused by the most recent public manifestation of organized anti-Semitism—the reported mass beatings of Jews in Boston, the desecration of Jewish graves, and other forms of discrimination.

Delegate Morris Muster said that "there are people in our own country, some paid emissaries and some unpaid emissaries of the Axis, who are doing a job of fomenting racial strife and anti-Semitism."

Delegate George Addes declared that "this anti-Semitism that is today prevailing in the United States and Canada is being put forth by the same reactionary forces that are out to destroy the trade union movement."

Delegate George Weaver said that "anti-Semitism is a little harder to fight, it is a little harder to recognize than some of the problems we have considered anti-Negro; it is a little more insidious."

Win 'Maintenance'

Washington, Nov. 6—Maintenance of union membership for salaried workers at the Oil Well Supply Co., U. S. Steel subsidiary, has been granted to the United Steelworkers by order of the War Labor Board.

NFU Head Says

Farmers, Labor Must Work Together To Help Win War

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A working coalition of labor, farm and other people's organizations is an absolute "must" to insure the success of nation-wide government programs essential to the winning of the war. That was the message Pres. James G. Patton of the Natl. Farmers Union sent to the CIO Convention.

Unable to be present, Patton had his message read by Paul Sifton of the NFU.

Entering into a detailed explanation of the need for maintaining the Farm Security Administration, Patton said that this is but one of the many issues that must be dealt with.

"For 18 months, labor and other groups, including the Natl. Farmers Union, have supported the so-called indivisible seven-point anti-inflation program," Patton declared. "That program has never been adopted. Wages have been stabilized; some prices have been stabilized, other prices have not; profits continue to snowball and the House Ways and Means Committee is now considering another spare-the-rich and soak-the-poor tax program."

Patton pointed out that it is a mistake to blame the Administration for this raw deal.

"I think," he added, "we must take responsibility ourselves for seeing to it that the people's interest is protected. Farm organizations, labor organizations, other people's organizations, must grow up fast to meet new and larger responsibilities, responsibilities that go beyond prices, wages, hours, collective bargaining rights, to include every phase of social, economic and political life here and throughout the world. We must face up to the fact that no one else can do the job for us," he declared.

Hit State Anti-Labor Laws

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—The CIO pledged at the convention here this week to wage "an unremitting struggle" against State anti-labor laws which have been pushed through various state legislatures by pressure of groups trying to destroy labor unions.

Declaring that they are a "direct blow against the war" because they violate the fundamental principles for which we are fighting, the CIO pledged to test their legality in the courts and fight for their repeal.

"Is it true, what they say about War Bonds?"

THEY SAY — "Hey, Bill, I heard that in order to pay for the fighting equipment our boys need, each of us should be putting at least 10 percent of our pay into War Bonds."

IT'S TRUE — "That makes sense to me, Joe. Those things cost plenty of dough. After all, one dime out of every buck is a darn cheap price to pay for freedom!"

THEY SAY — "We're not really paying that money to the Government, either. It's just a loan to Uncle Sam, as I see it."

IT'S TRUE — "Sure. You get it back — with interest. Every 3 bucks you put in brings you 4!"

THEY SAY — "That's a sweet investment, I'd say! And when you lend dough to Uncle Sam, you know he'll make good on his I O U"

IT'S TRUE — "Say! War Bonds are better than dollar bills! They're backed up by the strongest Government in the world — and they make more money for you!"

THEY SAY — "Must be a lot of people owning War Bonds by now, aren't there, Bill?"

IT'S TRUE — "A lot of people? Listen! 50 million of 'em have bought War Bonds — and I'm one of 'em. 50 million Americans can't be wrong, Joe!"

Important Resolution Passed By The 1943 CIO Convention

CIO Urges Death for Little Steel Formula

WHEREAS (1) The CIO has throughout the war emergency led the nation in recognition of the necessity for a thoroughly stabilized home front economy to assure maintenance of morale, national unity and maximum war production for victory in the war. Labor has rallied behind President Roosevelt in his demand originally enunciated in April, 1942, for national economic stabilization through the application of his seven-point program. Labor has vigorously pointed out the absolute necessity for firm action on all fronts if sound stabilization is to be achieved—action which would result in equal and impartial stabilization of all aspects of our war economy, including prices, profits, salaries and wages. Such a program obviously requires effective control of prices, a sound tax system to curb high incomes and swollen corporate profits, and a sound wage stabilization program which would assure to workers levels of payment calculated to promote production, preserve health and working efficiency and assure the highest national morale.

People's Demands Unmet

(2) It is an unfortunate fact that the people's demands for a sound and integrated economic stabilization program have not been made effective. Special interests and pressures have operated, particularly in the halls of Congress, to prevent effective steps on each of the important aspects of such a program. The results thus far have created serious dangers of disunity within the nation and a broad weakening of the home front. On the one hand wages have been subjected to severe limitations; on the other hand Congress has refused to enact a tax bill calculated to curb war profits and to call upon the corporations and those of high incomes to make their proper contribution to the cost of the war, and has sabotaged the Administration's agricultural program. Congress has taken every opportunity to impede and prevent effective action to control prices, and even today is threatening to bar the use of funds essential for subsidies to assure some measure of price control. The rollback of prices has not been fulfilled. Excessive prices and profits coupled with the freezing of wages have created the conditions for inflation and have resulted in severe strains upon the food and clothing budgets of workers, with consequent threats to their efficiency in war production. In order that genuine stabilization of our economy be accomplished and inflation be avoided, which is essential—now, therefore, be it

Eliminate 'Steel' Formula

RESOLVED (1) That it has become necessary to eliminate the so-called Little Steel formula which, particularly in view of the rise in the cost of living and the added burdens on the workers, is no longer in accord with reality. The working men and women of America must be permitted, through the sound and stable processes of collective bargaining, to secure wage adjustments to levels necessary to maintain their morale, health and efficiency and to meet the special needs imposed on them in this war period;

(2) The sound and tested processes of collective bargaining must be freed to secure the elimination of inequalities and inequities in wage structures and to bring about, where feasible, industry-wide stabilization of wage structures on the basic principle of equal pay for the same work;

(3) Continued action must be assured to bring about the lifting of substandard wage rates to minimum levels of American decency;

(4) A truly stabilized national war economy must be secured through the achievement of these wage policy objectives, combined with a determined insistence upon a policy of vigorous price control, over-all rationing, and firm taxation policy calculated to raise the funds necessary for victory out of the luxury living levels reflected in corporate profits and high income brackets and not out of the food budgets of workers. Any continued failure to assure strong price control, overall rationing and taxation truly based upon ability to pay will of course require future readjustment of wages in the effort to protect the health, welfare and morale of the home front against consequences disastrous to our march to victory;

(5) The president of the CIO is directed to forward copies of this resolution to the President of the United States and the members of the National War Labor Board.

Political Action A 'Must' For Win-War Fight

The CIO has hammered out a constructive program to meet the needs of labor and the nation, both in the conduct of the war and after victory has been won. That program has been perfected and reaffirmed by this convention.

Our program does not serve the interest of labor alone, but that of every section of our people. It is directed toward the achievement of those objectives which are shared by the overwhelming majority of all Americans: Our paramount objective is the winning of the war and the advancement of those democratic standards and ideals for which our armies are now engaged in costly battles.

Achievement of this objective requires: A strong and united home front in support of our military effort through the maintenance of our economic, social and legislative standards as a guarantee of wholesome living standards for our people and the protection of the highest possible morale among our millions of war workers; the mobilization of all of our resources for the vigorous prosecution of the war to realize our goal of unconditional surrender within the shortest possible time; the welding of the unity of the United Nations in their common struggle against the enemy and for a just, ordered and enduring peace; a sound and progressive post-war program to ease the difficult transition to a peacetime economy, give full employment to our people, provide an adequate system of social security in time of unemployment, sickness and old age, and lay the basis for a more secure and abundant life.

This program expresses the aims and aspirations of the common men and women of America. It can and should command the support, not of labor alone, but of all progressive Americans in every walk of life.

More consistently than any other man in public life, President Roosevelt, our Commander-in-Chief, has voiced the objectives of this program and fought for their achievement.

Opposition Is Bitter

Our program has met and will continue to meet with bitter opposition from the forces of reaction. These forces are motivated by an undying hostility to organized labor, whose power and influence they fear and seek to destroy, and by a deep-seated hatred of President Roosevelt whom they hold primarily responsible for the enlightened program of social legislation which we identify as New Deal. Their purpose is to discredit the President and labor and progressive forces and gain control of our national government and to wipe out the gains which have been won for the common man in the past ten years.

These forces have dominated the 78th Congress. The Republican party, in which the reactionaries have their greatest concentration and where the outright defeatists and appeasers are mainly represented, has not hesitated to make partisan political capital of the difficulties and dislocations arising out of the war effort. Anti-administration members of the President's own party have denied him their support.

A combination of the two groups has succeeded in scuttling the vital home-front program of economic stabilization through price control and equitable taxation. Giving free rein to its anti-labor venom, it threatens to destroy our national unity and disrupt our economy. Unless this trend is sharply reversed, the war will be prolonged, our national security endangered and a people's peace made impossible of attainment.

The record of the 78th Congress has brought sharply home to labor the result of its political apathy in 1942. It has shown us that we cannot rely on a hasty mobilization of forces to intervene in each legislative crisis as it arises. The organization of a permanent political arm of labor is essential if we are to register our full influence in shaping the affairs of the nation. We have criticized the progressive forces in government for their failure on occasion to act with sufficient militancy and vigor, but we can expect continued hesitation and vacillation from them until we succeed in organizing on the political front to assure effective support of our program and the candidates who espouse it.

Intensive Political Drive

These considerations impelled the Executive Board of CIO on July 7th to establish a Political Action Committee to take the initiative in launching a broad and intensive campaign of political education in its deepest and most practical sense. The rank and file of labor throughout the nation is alive to the fact that the vital problems which they face are possible of solution only through their organized participation in the political life of the nation. The CIO Political Action Committee through its national office, its regional directors and regional committees, has set itself the task of giving stimulus, direction, guidance and organized expression to this growing political awareness of labor.

It will not be the policy of the CIO in connection with the 1944 elections to build labor's political organization in the form of a third party, but to abstain from and discourage any move in that direction. For, apart from the insurmountable technical problems of placing such a party on the ballot for 1944, a third party at this time will only serve to divide labor and the progressive forces and assure the election of our political enemies.

Our primary task in the political field today is to weld the unity of all workers, farmers and other progressives behind candidates, regardless of party affiliation, who are committed to our policy of total victory and who fully support the measures necessary to achieve it and to lay the basis for a secure, peaceful, decent and abundant post-war world. Only if we succeed in that task in 1944 and place in office an enlightened national government prepared to carry forward this constructive and progressive program, can we have any hope for a prosperous, decent and secure postwar world.

Whatever differences may divide labor on the industrial front, the overwhelming majority of the membership and leadership of every branch of the labor movement is in agreement upon our political program and objectives, and no barriers should be permitted to stand in the way of joint or parallel action in the political field with the unions of the AFL, the Railroad Brotherhoods and unaffiliated organizations. Such unity on the political front will not only mobilize 14 million organized workers and their families, but will stimulate and rally broad non-labor groups and help give effective political voice to millions of farmers, consumers and other progressives in every walk of life.

The burden of carrying on the day to day work of education and organization for political action and putting into practice the programs and policies formulated by the Political Action Committee must necessarily fall on the local organizations of CIO. No more important task confronts us today. That task must command the united, wholehearted and militant support of every international union of the CIO, its affiliates, local unions and all state and city industrial union councils. If it is approached with the same energy, intelligent application and enthusiasm with which we organized millions of workers on the industrial front, we cannot fail.

CIO Renews Pledge Not To Strike

WHEREAS, (1) The working men and women of this nation desire above anything else to exert all their effort and energy toward achieving maximum production of war materials;

(2) A strike or stoppage of work must necessarily interfere with this effort for all-out production and to that extent actually assists our enemies and endangers the lives of those men and women on the battle-fronts fighting the Axis armies;

(3) The CIO at the outset of this war gave its no-strike pledge which it has religiously maintained;

(4) We must recognize that the enemies of our war effort are constantly seeking to provoke labor into engaging in strikes, such as through the enactment of the Smith-Connally Act, and that there are employers who for their own personal profit may endeavor to take advantage of our war situation and attempt to exploit labor regard-

Political Action Urged By Mrs. FDR

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt today called on CIO wives and mothers to organize community political action as a means of meeting war-time and post-war problems, in an address to delegates and visitors to the third annual conference of the Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO in the Bellevue Stratford Hotel.

Urging her listeners to "become reckoned with as political entities" and as voters capable of planning answers to problems of women in industry, Mrs. Roosevelt cited the limited time of women in industry for trying to achieve solutions of community problems which hamper their industrial participation, and pleaded for greater "intelligent and informed" use of the ballot by the union auxiliary members.

Telling of servicemen she met on her recent South Pacific trip, Mrs. Roosevelt said, "We will have failed unless we manage to have an economic set-up which gives them jobs, which sees that they get the education they want, and which makes lawmakers understand that boys who have had medical care to be fit to fight, should also have it for themselves and their families in order to be fit to live."

APPLAUDED

Interrupted from time to time by the applause of 500 guests, Mrs. Roosevelt praised the work of the Army and Navy nurses, Red Cross women workers and the women of Australia and New Zealand as she told of her experience in the South Pacific.

Preceding Mrs. Roosevelt was Mrs. Julia Katz, a burner in the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyards in Baltimore, and national director of CWA. A two-fold job faces the auxiliaries, Mrs. Katz stated: that of equipping women for participation in industrial work and in unions and that of equipping communities to make it possible for women to work.

Mrs. Faye Stephenson of Cleveland, National President of CWA, told delegates that "we must have something to say in the winning of the peace which will come through our standing side by side with labor and with the rest of the country. We must assure the election of a win-the-war Congress and prepare on the political front for the everlasting peace."

Auxiliary Parley Draws 75 Delegates

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—The Women's Auxiliary Conference, which was held in conjunction with the CIO convention, drew 75 delegates from the auxiliaries of 16 international CIO unions, Sec.-Treas. Eleanor Fowler said this week.

The delegates came from 15 states, from Maine to California and from Texas to Canada.

Murray Predicts Women Will Enter CIO Leadership

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A more important role for women in the organizational structure of the labor movement was predicted this week by CIO Pres. Philip Murray in a speech before the third annual conference of the Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO being held simultaneously with the CIO convention here.

Speaking to CIO wives, sisters and mothers, Murray credited the auxiliaries of the union with "splendid work, forcefulness and spirit" in legislative work, recruiting of union members, and effective work on consumer problems.

"You have not only an ordinary obligation of an American citizen to achieve decent legislation," he told CWA delegates, "but beyond that a greater need for building up instrumentalities for the protection of the people after legislation has been secured. These instrumentalities are labor organiations, the only forceful economic agencies that can bear fruit for all the people.

"This is our movement and much of the success which has attended the movement has been attributable to the splendid work of the women. You must fight to improve housing to carry out the CIO social security program, and to help effect the political activities program of the CIO," he said. "There is a need for your thrusting your entire weight and influence behind this movement, to help your country and the families of the nation."

On behalf of Mrs. Murray, who was unable to attend the conference, Murray accepted a service pin presented by a delegate from the United Steelworkers auxiliary.

Ask Dismissal Pay Clause In War Contracts

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—To meet the threat of mass unemployment after the war, the CIO Convention this week urged that a provision for dismissal wages be included in war contracts.

The various procurement agencies of the federal government were called upon to protect workers by requiring dismissal pay for those who are:

1. Laid off at the end of the war.
2. Dismissed through the application of seniority rights of workers returning from the armed services.
3. Thrown out of work by production cut-backs.

The resolution also recommended that CIO unions attempt to get protective clauses calling for dismissal wages in all contracts signed with companies.

Auxiliaries Plan Push on Political Action for '44

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—Striking at the roots of problems facing union families in the war and post-war periods, CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries delegates outlined through committee report and conference action a year-around program on vital issues, including political action, price control and consumer problems, and problems of women in industry.

Joining the CIO in planning an all-out political action campaign, CWA will set out during the coming year to prove to all auxiliary members that "in the election of candidates for public office we are deciding such vital problems as the provision of nurseries and school lunches for our children, whether we shall or shall not have an effective subsidy and price control program, how much money our husbands are going to bring home in their pay envelopes, how much of their meager earnings will be taken in taxes, whether we shall have inflation or not."

Definite steps in the program include:

(1) Registration of voters.

(2) Informing voters of the qualification of candidates and the voting records of those in office.

(3) Actual work of bringing voters out to the polls in the primary and final elections.

(4) Concentration on reaching families of CIO members and progressive women in other sections of our population in support of our candidates.

"We must recruit and train our members for the practical day-to-day work among the voters of their communities," the committee report read. "Without this work political victories cannot be won."

RECOMMEND ACTION

Recommending to internationals, councils and locals that similar action be adopted, CWA planned guidance of this work by the establishment of a permanent sub-committee of the executive board on political action.

"In the interest of production for winning the war and in the interest of helping solve the manpower situation," conference delegates studied recommendations for national and community action to allow fullest participation by women in industry.

CWA delegates proposed: increased facilities for care of preschool and school-age children; adjustment of shopping facilities for the benefit of war workers; in-plant feeding with an adequate feeding program being made a condition of issuance of war contracts; subsidizing of laundries with priorities for service for war workers; community educational programs for recruiting potentional workers; equal pay for equal work; wiping out of race discrimination.

As organized housewives, auxiliary members will fight against inflation through a two-fold price control and rationing program: (1) political pressure for legislation for subsidies, grade labelling and standards requirements; an all-out war food program with limitation of unnecessary crops; extension of price control to all cost of living items and increased labor representation on all policy-making committees of those government agencies dealing with the program.

(2) Aid in enforcement of legislation through the Home Front campaign, participation in local consumer committees, and price checking.

Immediate campaigning against any increase in the price of milk and for amendment of the Commodity Credit Corporation Bill to authorize use of subsidies were included in the program.

CIO Renews No-Strike Pledge

less of the impact of their policies upon the war effort; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, (1) That the CIO hereby reaffirms its solemn pledge without any qualifications or conditions that for the duration of the war there must not be any strike or stoppage of work. Each member and each leader of organized labor must make it his responsibility to discharge with scrupulous care this sacred obligation. Any leader of organized labor who deliberately flouts this obligation and any employer who seeks to provoke or exploit labor are playing into the hands of the enemies of our nation.

(2) We must recognize that for the duration of the war, issues in dispute between labor and management must be adjusted through the peaceful means of collective bargaining, mediation, or through disposition by the National War Labor Board.

(3) Further, we must recognize that to assure the prosecution of a war program that will prevent special groups from exploiting labor or benefiting from the sacrifices of others, organized labor has the task of mobilizing the people on the legislative and political fronts behind a win-the-war program designed to meet the basic economic problems arising out of the war and to protect the interests of the common people.

They Made The Wheels Go Round

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Leaders of organized housewives who planned home front battle strategy in the 4-day CIO auxiliaries conference were the committee chairmen. Head of the hard-working committee on price control and rollback was Helen Daggett of the UE auxiliary, full-time organizer of the Los Angeles CIO Auxiliary Council. From Canada came Mable Mayne of the UAW auxiliary to serve as chairman of the organizational committee.

Conducting meetings of the resolutions committee was Vera Ford of the Oil Workers auxiliary, whose work in Port Arthur, Texas, proves that Martin Dies' constituents differ greatly with his opinions and actions.

To Caroline DeCaux of Washington, D. C., members of the Newspaper Guild auxiliary and chairman of the political action committee, CWA presented a war bond and wallet for her services on the legislative program.

Also from the Guild auxiliary, Elaine Gailmore of New York City chaired the committee on war activities. The important women-in-industry committee, center of activity throughout the week, was headed by Arlean Ziebart of Anderson, Ind. UAW auxiliary delegate who found time to donate blood to the Red Cross during the conference.

Other chairmen included: rules and by-laws, Mary Vessey of Chicago, Farm Equipment auxiliary; credentials, Betty Hayes of Washington, Federal Workers auxiliary, and press and publication, Katherine Beecher of New York City, UE auxiliary.

MRS. FDR WITH AUXILIARIES: Dual responsibilities of housewife and war worker were discussed at the CIO Convention with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt by Mrs. Julia Katz, national director of CWA and working now as a "burner" at the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyard in Baltimore. Mrs. Katz, who now belongs to the Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, believes problems of women in industry can be aided through action by auxiliary groups. Mrs. Alice Neville, national secretary of the NMU Auxiliaries (left), presented a union-made service pin from CWA to Mrs. Roosevelt.

WLB Boosts Glass Pay 2.3c an Hour

Washington, Nov. 6—A general wage increase of 2.3c an hour under an escalator clause, covering some Federation of Glass, Ceramic & Silica Sand Workers, was ordered this week by the War Labor Board. The workers are employed by six companies comprising the major portion of the sheet glass industry.

The board stated that its order was based on a policy of continuing the stabilized wage structure developed voluntarily by the industry.

The industry members of the board dissented as to the 2.3c pay increase. Approving were the two labor members, Van A. Bittner, CIO, and Louis A. Lopez, AFL, and Board Chairman William H. Davis and Vice-Chairman George Taylor.

Two of the companies—Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Libbey-Owens-Ford which employ about 5,700 of the workers involved, were covered by one agreement with the union. The other four—American Window Glass, Adamston Flat Glass, Rolland Glass and Harding Glass—employing together about 2,400, were covered by a separate contract.

The increase for the first two large companies was made retroactive to November 18, 1942, and for the four smaller companies, represented by the Independent Fourcault Manufacturers, will become effective as of the date of the board's order.

Under an escalator clause in the union's two-year contracts signed March 1942 with the Pittsburgh and Libby-Owens-Ford companies on the recommendation of a WLB panel, a 4c hourly increase in base rates was to be given for every five points rise above a 113 base in the Bureau of Labor Statistics cost of living index.

The board's opinion said that this cost-of-living index for Nov. 18, 1942, showed a rise of more than five points over the base specified in the escalator clause. The union then requested that the clause be put into effect.

The board declared, however, that application of the wage escalator clause contained in each agreement within the limitation of the Little Steel formula would have unstabilized the existing wage structure of the industry.

Ask Higher Pay in Social Service Field

New York, Nov. 6—Declaring that an "inadequate salary policy" is at the heart of the manpower crisis within the private welfare field, the National Social Service Division of the United Office and Professional Workers Union is urging that the field abandon as a war necessity the outmoded idea that low salaries must be expected in a non-profit field financed by voluntary contributions.

The UOPWA contends that public support can be won for a salary policy that advances standards of service, particularly in the light of the broad war and post-war needs that the social service agencies in each community are being called upon to perform.

In a letter addressed to all leading agencies and welfare organizations, the UOPWA's social service division points out that while a drive is now under way to recruit thousands of new workers into the welfare fields, the discrepancy between the low salaries paid and those paid in other fields for equal standards of performance, both for clerical and professional workers, is increasing turnover and resulting in situations where the agencies are inadequately staffed to meet critical needs in their communities.

Security Bill Gets Endorsement Of CIO Parley

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—An improved program of social security provided in the bills introduced in the Senate by Senators Wagner and Murray and in the House by Representative Dingell, were wholeheartedly endorsed in a resolution passed unanimously this week at the CIO convention.

Pointing out that "these bills expand the scope of and provide for increased benefits for unemployment compensation which would be placed on a Federal basis, old-age security, permanent disability, and for a program of health insurance which meets immediate needs in addition to making provision for the postwar period," the resolution called upon Congress:

"To incorporate in the presently pending tax legislation the provisions of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill with appropriate changes to provide for an equitable allocation of the increased cost between the employes, the employers, and the Government."

Delegate Van A. Bittner of the United Steelworkers of America, discussing the resolution from the floor, said that social security "is one of the most important subjects that the CIO and the people of this country have before them."

"We are going to have a terrific fight in this country to pass this legislation," he warned. "We have heard much of the Beveridge plan that has been introduced in Great Britain, and I say to you that the social security plan provided under the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill is much more far-reaching and much more beneficial to all the people than is even the Beveridge plan.

"It is the most far-seeing and has the greatest benefits and is the most all-embracing social security program that has ever been introduced in any country up to the present time."

It is the one piece of legislation, Bittner added, "that the American Federation of Labor has joined wholeheartedly with the CIO in attempting to have passed during the present session of Congress."

Dies Does Hush, Hush Act On Fascist Group

Austin, Tex., Nov. 6—Rep. Martin Dies has found something he doesn't want to investigate. It's the Japanese negotiated-peace movement in America.

James R. Young, former foreign correspondent in Tokio, made that charge here where he appeared in connection with the opening of a movie, "Behind the Rising Sun," based on his book.

Dies, presented with evidence of the flood of Japanese peace propaganda spread throughout the U. S., wouldn't investigate because "he says, if you leave them alone the movement will subside, but if it's published it will gain strength," Young said. "That's a new interpretation for Dies."

Young ended by suggesting that Dies close up shop.

UAW Wins 2-1 Vote At Bendix Aviation

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6—Workers of three Bendix Aviation Ltd. plants have voted more than 2 to 1 to choose the UAW-CIO as their collective bargaining representative in preference to the IAM-AFL.

NLRB's count gave 474 to UAW, against 230 for the IAM, and 35 for no union. Nearly 1,000 workers were eligible to vote, all from the production and maintenance departments of the Bendix plants in North Hollywood, Lankershim, and Los Angeles.

This is the sixth straight win for UAW Local 24 among aircraft parts plants in the busy San Fernando valley area. Previous victories included: Guards at Aircraft Corporation. guards at Timm Co., production workers at Timm, truck drivers at Bendix, and production workers at Aircraft Components Co.

To Hold Soviet Friendship Meetings

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Edwin S. Smith, executive director of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, in a brief speech at the national CIO convention invited delegates to attend a conference of his organization to be held November 6-8 in New York.

The New York meetings, he stated, are part of a series of 50 which are being held in all parts of the country. Senator Claude Pepper, Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, Ex-Ambassador Joseph Davies and the new Soviet Ambassador, Mr. Gromyko, will speak at a mass meeting to be held in Madison Square Garden, November 8.

Labor speakers will include Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers, and AFL Pres. William Green, Smith announced.

Convention Sidelights

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—"Philly's" reputation as a sleepy city was pretty well shattered this week, at CIO-organized Bellvue-Stratford Hotel, where delegates to the CIO Convention worked overtime keeping elevator control lights winking until far into the morning.

Delegates swarmed into the lobby, to be greeted by the popping of flash bulbs as the members of the working press met celebrities, including Vice-President Henry Wallace and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Nearly a hundred reporters covered the parley, sending about 40,000 words daily to the far corners of the earth. Allied Labor News Service, which is a weekly feature of The CIO NEWS, cabled nearly a thousand words a day to England, Latin America and India. A Tass representative was covering the convention for readers in the Soviet Union. And of course all United States news agencies, as well as many independent papers, were represented.

* * *

Reason for changing the title "sleepy city" was ascribed by Michael Harris, president of the Philadelphia Industrial Union Council, to the influence of CIO over a slightly longer period than the week the convention was in session.

The reason, he said, was that "there had arisen in the city a city a young, new, vigorous and vital labor movement which had its inception in the organization of the CIO," and that "it was an integral part of the arsenal of democracy, a place where ships, steel, tanks, airplanes, textiles, clothing, electrical equipment and trucks for the armed forces and services were produced."

* * *

The convention hall was decorated with colorful flags of the United Nations, and flanking the stage from which Pres. Murray presided were pictures of him and of Pres. Roosevelt.

* * *

One squirmer at the press table during the Wednesday morning session was H. V. Kaltenborn, radio commentator notorious for his anti-labor bias. His face was slightly red as Vice-Pres. Wallace said:

"Any man who continually expresses his love for labor, but broadcasts labor's shortcomings while he praises every other group in America, is labor's enemy."

* * *

Pres. Roosevelt came in for some "extra-curricular" praise at the parley. Sec.-Treas. Pat Conroy of the Canadian Congress of Labor told the delegates:

"I'm not at all sure but what many Canadian workers would just as soon have Franklin D. Roosevelt elected president of the Dominion of Canada as well as the U. S."

Described as the "champion grandmother" of the convention was Mrs. Rose Blount, whose husband is a member of Ford Local 600, UAW-CIO. She has four grandsons, all in school in Detroit. One son and a brother whom she "raised as a son" are in the armed forces overseas.

Ask N. Y. Boost Pay of State Workers

New York, Nov. 6—The State, County and Municipal Workers of America this week launched its drive to secure a 15 per cent wage increase for all state workers and a minimum salary of $1,200 in the state service, with a $1,500 minimum in the Department of Mental Hygiene, covering state mental institutions.

In a letter to Governor Dewey, James V. King, New York District President, urged that the Governor establish a policy which would grant a minimum cost of living wage adjustment equal to the Little Steel formula.

He pointed out that state workers have been hard hit by the increase in the cost of living and that the 7 to 10 per cent cost of living increase which they received last year did not meet their needs.

DECORATIVE: That's how Mrs. Ruby Heide, a delegate to the CIO Convention, described the pre-convention issue of The CIO NEWS, which she's reading, above. Mrs. Heide, secretary-treasurer of the Alameda County (Calif.) CIO Council, is the only woman on the West Coast to hold such a position.

Permanent Political Arm Of Labor Essential, Hillman Tells Convention

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 6—Fourteen million organized workers must be welded into a premanent labor political action group, Pres. Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, chairman of the CIO political action committee, told the New York State CIO convention here.

"Labor and the common men and women of America cannot rely on unorganized popular sentiment as an instrument to compel their government to carry out their will," Hillman said. "A hasty mobilization of the forces of progress to intervene in each crisis as it arises is not enough. A permanent political arm of labor is required. Uniting the 14 million members of organized labor and giving stimulus to all other progressive groups, it will act as a continuous force in our national life. This task of organization is more urgent today than ever before in our history."

Scoring the 78th Congress for failing to back up the President's demand to roll-back prices or to establish an equitable tax program, Hillman also criticized it for passage of the "monstrosity that goes by the name of the Smith-Connally act."

He denounced the sales tax levy as a measure to tax "the energy which workers need to perform on the production line." He rebuked the "senatorial travellers" who are throwing "confusion and suspicion into our international relations" and urged full and continuous cooperation with Great Britain, the Soviet Union and China.

UAW Wins Tough Fight In Canada

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 6—Wofkers in the nearby town of Wallaceburg pointed to the certification of UAW-CIO as bargaining agency at Dominion Glass plant this week as proof that the CIO always wins its struggles because it never quits.

Nine months ago the workers asked for a contract. The company refused. Under extreme provocation from the management, most of the workers struck. The company then announced it had signed an agreement with the AFL Green Glass Bottle Blowers Association.

One hundred provincial police were sent to the town although picketing was orderly. The Government which sent them has since been defeated at the polls. Workers were arrested and clubbed during the three-month strike.

Ontario's labor court ordered a vote in the plant and despite the fact that 200 workers had obtained employment elsewhere and the company had forced all those who resumed work to sign AFL cards, the UAW won the vote.

In ordering the UAW certified as bargaining agency the court set an important precedent, ruling that a majority of those who voted should decide the issue, although the union did not obtain a majority of those eligible.

The court based its decision partly on rulings of the National Labor Relations Board of the U. S.

Canadian Delegates to CIO Parley Report Trebled Membership in CCL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—The three main leaders of the Canadian Congress of Labor attended the CIO Convention, with CCL Pres. A. R. Mosher and Sec.-Treas. Pat Conroy outlining some of the progress which that organization has made and reporting on problems that are much similar to those encountered here. Attending also was Vice-Pres. Alexander McAuslane.

Mosher declared that one of the great responsibilities of labor is winning the war, but pointed also to the neessity of winning the peace.

"One of our problems also," he said, "is to bring about a greater degree of unity among the organized workers and to draw into our ranks larger numbers of those still unorganized."

Conroy said that the CCL only three years ago started with about 55,000 members and has more than trebled that figure to reach the present quarter-million mark.

He paid high tribute to President Roosevelt and to CIO Pres. Murray, delaring that their personalities reach across the border and endear them to the hearts of Canadian workers.

Referring to reactionary actions of the Canadian government, he said:

"In spite of the action of the government, I am proud to say that Canadian labor has taken second place to no other labor in any country, both in its contribution to the war and in its realization that unless the war is won then all talk or organizing, all talk of a future program, is merely flashing futilities that can well be forgotten."

Italian-American Council Blasted By CIO Parley

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Condemnation of the Italian-American Council and support for the Free Italy American Labor Council was voted this week by the CIO Convention. A resolution stated:

"In complete disregard of the wishes and aspirations, and with the repudiation of the original programs and policies of the Italian-American Labor Council, it has adopted a program associating itself with individuals and organizations who have been notorious because of their association with spokesmen for fascist propaganda in this country and who now in the garb of democracy masquerade as genuine democrats and lovers of freedom, thereby compelling the overwhelming majority of the original Italian-American Labor Council to form a new organization known as the Free Italy American Labor Council in order to safeguard the principles and the policies responsible for the original organization of the Italian-American Labor Council."

Women Welders OK, U. S. Survey Shows

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—Women welders have invaded all types of war industry, where they are tackling even the heavier and harder jobs, according to the Women's Bureau of the Dept. of Labor.

A survey conducted by the bureau reveals that war plants and shipyards where welding is an important productive operation shows growing proportion of women welders.

In aircraft assembly plants women have effectively replaced men as welders despite the pre-war notion that to be adept at welding took years of experience.

They weld on all types of metal and have mastered various types of welding—spot, arc, and oxy-acetylene (torch) welding on engine mounts, manifolds, tanks, and other airplane parts.

In spot welding, calling for finger dexterity and little heavy lifting, women have outproduced men in such jobs as welding aluminum skins for wing panels and control surfaces. Beginners can do tack welding, and welding of parts not subject to strains that require high-grade welders.

In railroad shops, Army and Navy depots, in steel mills and in other heavy industries, women welders are found repairing equipment.

They are also found in plants making machine tools and accessories, office and store machines, guns, howitzers and mortars, radio and telephone equipment, electric machinery and equipment, surgical and scientific instruments, automotive equipment and tanks, and shipyards.

In shipyards, women do overhead, flat, vertical and horizontal welding and are employed without question on top decks.

Small Farmers Ask Price Rollbacks

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 6, (FP)— Farmers from Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey asked for subsidies as a necessary means "for lifting farm production and for holding the line" in the recent tri-state convention of the Natl. Farmers Union here.

Calling for complete unity of farm and labor in support of the administration's 7-point program of economic stabilization, the farmers condemned the sales tax and indorsed the tax program proposed by CIO and other labor groups.

They asked passage of the anti-poll tax bill, pledged support to Pres. Roosevelt and urged establishment of a firm coalition of all the United Nations.

Look Who's Backing Labor Now!

New York, (FP)—The Christian American-sponsored Manford anti-labor law in Texas is "unwise." And there's no less an authority for it than The Wall Street Journal.

"The purpose of this law could only be to give an officer of the state or of one of its subdivisions the power to determine what persons shall canvass in Texas for members of an organization and what persons shall not," the Journal said. "We hope the road of appeal to the supreme court is open. But if the restriction is legal it is still unwise."

The law will be tested in an appeal to the U. S. supreme court of a ruling ordering Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers (CIO) to spend 3 days in jail for soliciting membership in a union without a license.

Urge FDR Set Aside Bridges Ouster Order

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—The CIO Convention this week urged President Roosevelt to recognize the fact that the deportation of Harry Bridges, president of the CIO Intl. Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union, would be "a blow to morale, to national unity and to war production."

A resolution unanimously adopted urged the President to set aside the deportation order signed by Attorney-General Biddle, dismiss all charges against Bridges, and afford him full opportunity to become a citizen of the United States.

Full support to the resolution was given by Pres. Murray, who declared that he personally had investigated the Bridges' case and had found that the only man who appeared before the deportation investigating committee who charged that Bridges was "inimical to the welfare the U. S." was the president of a rival AFL union.

Murray said that no other testimony showed that Bridges was involved in any organization whose activity would harm the nation, and added that "the decision (to deport him) was wholly based upon prejudicial testimony, testimony calculated to destroy a CIO union on the West Coast, and, of course, seek the eventual deportation of Bridges."

Murray cited contributions Bridges had made before the war in building up the ILWU, and after the war in advocating plans to help speed the loading of ships with cargoes vital to our forces on far-flung fronts.

"Now," Murray declared, "it cannot be charged under these circumstances that Mr. Bridges' conduct was subversive before the war or that it has been subversive since the war started. As a matter of fact, the reverse has been true. His conduct as an officer and a member of a CIO union has been good, exceptionally so."

CIO Parley Says

Labor Unity Main Base for War Support

Philadelphia, Nov. 6—Labor unity in America "is the cornerstone of any firm structure of national unity in support of our Commander-in-Chief," the CIO Convention declared this week.

Reaffirming its policy of seeking to establish real unity of labor in support of a win-the-war program embracing such vital issues as total war mobilization, economic stabilization, manpower, anti-labor legislation, and other economic, legislative and political problems, the resolution on labor unity, passed unanimously, stated:

"We shall continue to endeavor to enlist the support of the Railroad Brotherhoods and the AFL and their rank and file membership and local leaders behind the policy of unity of action which is so vital to obtain the maximum mobilization of our nation behind our Commander-in-Chief and assure the effective prosecution of the war to a decisive and victorious conclusion."

Speaking from the floor in support of the resolution, Delegate William Sentner of the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers said:

"Any one of us out in the field knows that the rank and file of the AFL is not only glad and willing to work but is working with the CIO and the membership of the Brotherhoods in almost every locality."

As an instance of this, Sentner told of the United Labor Committee formed in St. Louis in which members of the CIO, AFL and Brotherhoods have been effectively cooperating for more than two years.

Polltax Repeal Fight Gets A-1 Priority On CIO Schedule

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—In one of his most eloquent speeches at the National CIO Convention in session here this week, President Philip Murray charged certain Senators with engaging in "political trickery" to deprive American citizens of the right to vote while the United States is engaged in a life and death struggle for democratic rights for all people.

Speaking on a resolution calling for legislation to eliminate the polltax requirements now in force in eight States which put "a price tag on the right to vote," Murray declared that "there can be no democracy where individuals are deprived of the right to vote."

Since it was formed eight years ago, the CIO has fought persistently for the passage of legislation by Congress to do away with this undemocratic procedure, Murray said. It is the only organization in the United States that has really brought up the issue and continued untiringly to work for such legislation, he declared.

Calling upon the CIO membership to work toward ousting from office those legislators who are opposing the anti-poll bill and even trying to prevent it from coming on the floor for an intelligent discussion on its merits, Murray warned these lawmakers to "heed the warning of the people and quit their skulduggery."

Louis Tarrant, Negro delegate from the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, speaking on the polltax resolution, said that "only in his church and his union does a Negro in the South have the right to vote."

Reid Robinson, president of the Mine, Mill union, rose to back the remarks of the delegate from his union and to point out that the polltax problem is not exclusively confined to the South. "It is a matter of primary interest to every citizen who believes in the Constitution, democratic rights and all the things that our soldiers are fighting for," he declared.

Carey Haigler, delegate from the Mobile, Alabama, Council, said he supported the remarks of Robinson 100 per cent and stressed the point that "it is not democratic to deprive any citizen of his right to vote."

At the conclusion of the discussion, the convention voted unanimously to pass the polltax resolution which called upon the Senate Judiciary Committee to report out the anti-polltax bill with a favorable recommendation.

"We also call upon the Senate of the United States to discharge its obligation to the people of the nation and enact forthwith this legislation eliminating the polltax and not to permit or tolerate any unscrupulous filibuster on the part of the clique of polltax Senators intent on preserving their personal political position with a callous disregard of the national emergency and popular will," the resolution stated.

"Each delegate to this convention should immediately communicate with the members of the Senate Judiciary Committee and their Senators in Congress to obtain immediate and favorable action on the pending anti-polltax legislation."

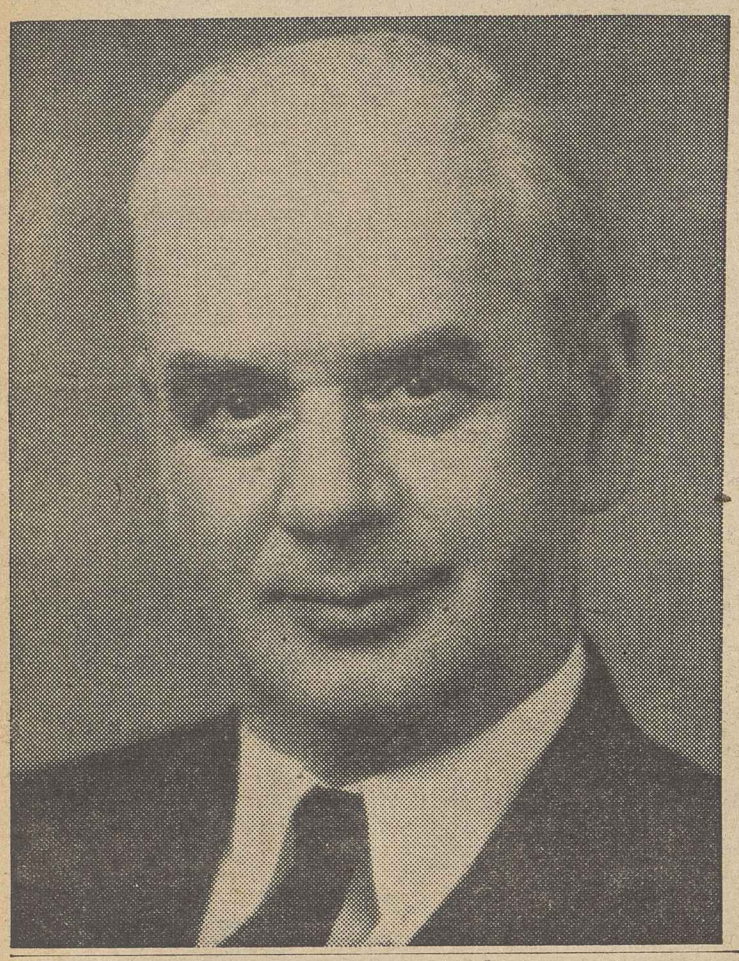
CIO NEWS SUBSCRIPTION DRIVE



Campaign Directed to Officers, Shop Stewards and Committeemen

Congress of Industrial Organizations
CIO
718 Jackson Place, N. W. • Washington, D. C.
EXECUTIVE 5581

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

To Officers, Shop Stewards and Committeemen
of CIO Local Unions:

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

I am writing to announce the launching of a special circulation drive for the national weekly organ of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, THE CIO NEWS, and to enlist your cooperation in making this drive successful.

THE CIO NEWS performs a function for our whole movement which no other publication can perform.

It is the chief means of communication between the national CIO and our unions, representatives and members, besides being the main outlet for getting our message before labor and the public.

It is an invaluable aid in building morale and national unity for winning the war, publicizing our plans and efforts for more war production and showing how labor's constructive aims can promote victory.

It is our only medium for unified national campaigning on organizational and legislative issues affecting all our unions.

It promotes greater unity and mutual understanding among CIO unions publicizing the achievements of each union to our other affiliated unions, and enlisting the support of all for the campaigns and struggles of each.

In my opinion, it is of importance both to your union and to the CIO that its national official organ, THE CIO NEWS, should be read regularly at least by all your officers, organizers, local union officials, shop stewards, educational committeemen and other leading members.

I wish to request that you give your full cooperation to increase the circulation of THE CIO NEWS among your officers and members. This will be sincerely appreciated and, I am sure, will benefit our whole movement.

Fraternally yours,

Philip Murray

Polltax Repeal Bill Ready for Action; Rush Those Wires!

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Democracy and national unity won a major victory on Capitol Hill here today when the Senate Judiciary Committee by a vote of 12 to 6 reported out the Polltax Repeal Bill (H.R. 7).

The bill can now be called up on the Senate floor at any time by any one Senator. Barring a successful filibuster, it will become law by an overwhelming majority.

Filibuster plans are already laid, however, and only last week a group of poll tax Senators openly boasted that they were ready to talk the bill to death for the second time.

FILIBUSTER THREAT

This group, led by Senator Connally of Texas, co-author of the Smith-Connally Act, met in a well-publicized "secret" caucus to work out their anti-democratic strategy.

The filibuster, which will probably be led by Senator Bilbo (polltaxer, Miss.) can be blocked by immediate mass action of CIO members and everybody who wants to see 10 million Americans brought into democracy and into the victory drive.

This is what to do: Wire your two Senators at once and urge them to vote for "cloture" when the bill comes up on the floor. "Cloture" is the Senate term for a motion to close debate, and chokes off a filibuster. A cloture motion requires a two-thirds majority. Every Senator should hear from every worker immediately!

Poll tax repeal has taken a long pull to get this far. One more sharp effort will make it a reality.

Warning: Opponents of repeal may try a squeeze play by offering a constitutional amendment at the same time that HR7 hits the floor. The ostensible purpose of this will be to achieve repeal by "constitutional methods." The actual purpose will be to defeat repeal.

A constitutional amendment requires separate ratification by at least 36 state legislatures. This move, if they get away with it, would completely defeat repeal, since it would be a substitute motion for HR7.

Tell your Senators to fight this sabotage move and to demand a vote on HR7 as it stands, without any amendments whatsoever.

NO SPINACH: The author of "Fashion Is Spinach," famed dress designer Elizabeth Hawes, is a member of Local 669, United Auto Workers Union, at the Wright Aeronautical plant at Patterson, N. J. Shown above at a drill press, Miss Hawes has written a new book dealing with women workers — "Why Women Cry — or Wenches with Wrenches."

You Figure It Out!

House Group Says, 'To Heck With Health of War Workers'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—The health needs of millions of Americans were ruthlessly scorned this week by the House Appropriations Committee. The Committee heard that war workers are forced to leave their jobs in war boom communities to take their children back home for medical service. The committee was told that thousands of workers are forced to spend hours waiting for badly needed medical attention. The committee heard that a survey of 213 cities by the U. S. Public Health Service and the War Manpower Commission's procurement and assignment service showed that the doctor average was way under the safety line.

Yet this week the committee turned down cold the request of Dr. Thomas Parran, Public Health Service head, for a million dollars to recruit needed doctors.

Dr. Parran said the $1,000,000 would be spent to recruit 300 doctors in surplus areas to go to war industry areas as uniformed officers of Public Health, and 300 more private physicians who would relocate under a plan paying them moving costs and $250 a month for three months.

SURVEY PROVES NEED

Dr. Parran said that in the 213 cities surveyed, the average of doctors was less than one for 3,000 residents, and in Key West, Fla., the average was one for 18,000.

"This represents only a fraction of the total," he declared. "They are among the worst places, and are principally war-boom communities. These are far outnumbered by places not yet surveyed.

"I can say that in these communities the situation is so bad that it is frequently impossible to get a doctor to come to one's house at all. Doctors who are thoroughly exhausted, unable to drag one foot ahead of the other to make one more call, will attempt to prescribe by telephone.

"Other instances have come to my attention where a man, in spite of the high wages he is getting in a war plant, has decided to pull up stakes and go back home because his baby was sick and he couldn't get medical attention—all related to the same general idea, namely, the loss of productive efficiency because of the lack of medical care."

Main hope now for a decent break for war workers needing medical service is a request that is scheduled to be made by the Senate Pepper subcommittee on wartime health and education. This group will ask the Senate appropriations committee to hold hearings within the next two weeks on the Public Health Service's program.

Fight for Subsidies Aims to Save 4-20% On Food Budgets

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Knocking out food subsidies will mean kicking an extra four to 20 per cent hole in war workers' food budgets, eight House Banking Committee members warned this week.

The warning came in a minority report issued as the Com-mittee majority got set to rush the Commodity Credit Corp. bill to the House floor, with a section flatly barring use of any CCC funds for subsidies to increase food output or roll back prices.

Under the majority's bill (HR 3477), existing subsidies on a few commodities are killed as of December 31. Last July, a similar bill was passed by the House, vetoed by the President because of the subsidy ban, and the veto was upheld.

According to the minority report, the ban on subsidies will hike prices of meat from 5 cents a pound up, butter from five to nine cents, sugar one cent, beans one cent, canned vegetables 1.4 cents. Total food costs will be increased 7.29 per cent.

In addition, it increases costs of food to the government, which buys 30 per cent of all food produced, and thus increase costs to the taxpayer.

Pointing out that these increases would be particularly hard on the 33 million people who "have less purchasing power, less real wages" than before the war, the minority report said: "A vote for section 3 (the section barring subsidies) is a vote for an increased cost of living . . . it is also a direct vote for inflation."

The bill will hit the House floor this week. Wire your Congressman now.

Margarine Tax 'Safe' For 1 More Year

Washington, Nov. 13—A proposal to save the American people literally millions of dollars a year in taxes on margarine was quietly sidetracked this week by a 14 to 11 vote of the House Agriculture Committee. The committee declined to announce how members voted.

Margarine has been taxed by the federal government for more than half a century. Active in forcing and in maintaining the taxes have been national dairy interests, who have realized that margarine sold at its naturally low price would offer stern competition for butter.

Current federal taxes on margarine are 10 cents a pound on the colored product, one-fourth of a cent a pound on all sales, plus special retail license fees.

Ban Rackets, CIO Parley Demands

Philadelphia, Nov. 13—"The integrity of the CIO and its unions, their freedom from any taint of racketeering, must continue to be reflected in CIO publications," the CIO Convention, which concluded here last week, said in approving a report of the Committee on Press & Publications. The report also dealt with labor radio rights.

"CIO publications," the committee report read, "must maintain the highest standards in the solicitation of advertising, and must not permit advertising and advertising solicitation methods to mar the good name of our organization."

A large section of the committee's report was devoted to the radio, with the national office of the CIO drawing praise for "its vigorous efforts to gain labor its rights on the radio networks and local stations."

Taking sharp issue with the code of the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters, which bans paid broadcasts on "controversial" issues, the committee said the Association has gone even further in keeping labor unions off the air by refusing the right to either free or paid time for the "solicitation of membership."

"While labor is gagged on the one hand, corporations and business interests, on the other, to say nothing of commentators and speakers, are free to sell products and to put forward their points of view," the committee stated.

"Such a policy is most definitely not in the public interest. Radio stations, enjoying a monopoly in their field of communication, should be regulated most strictly in the public interest, and particularly in guaranteeing to the people the right to express their thoughts and opinions."

The convention recommended, in approving the committee's report, that labor organizations be given a greater proportion of free time, especially for sustaining programs, and that they be guaranteed the same rights as all other time purchasers, regardless of whether they solicit membership or not.

The convention commended the Natl. Broadcasting Co. for its continued cooperation with labor in broadcasting the "Labor for Victory" program.

CIO-Backed Men Win in N.Y., Toledo, Cleveland Elections

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Three major stars shone through an otherwise low political ceiling this week as labor candidates marked up impressive victories in New York, Toledo and Cleveland.

Michael J. Quill, president of the CIO Transport Workers Union, led the parade in New York with his election to the City Council, where he once before held a seat.

In Toledo, five of the seven candidates endorsed by Labor's Joint Committee for Political Action won, including Tom Burke, vice-president of United Auto Workers Local 12.

The vote, which was the second largest since the proportional representation method of casting ballots was started in 1935, was attributed to labor's aggressive campaign for registration of new voters.

In Cleveland, labor united around the win-the-war program of Mayor Frank J. Lausche, to insure his re-election—first ever scored by a Democratic mayor in the last 30 years. He won 71 per cent of the tallies.

The Democrats won a landslide vote for City Council too, for the first time since 1913. Eight new Roosevelt Democrats, friendly to labor were elected, and several of that party's incumbents were re-elected with united labor support.

Meat Price Control Plan Threatened

Washington, Nov. 13—A program strongly supported by the OPA Labor Policy Committee urging adoption of measures to complete the control of meat prices, encourage maximum production of meat and aid small business in the meat packing industry has been put through by the Office of Economic Stabilization almost unnoticed by the general press, according to an OPA news release issued this week.

"Whether this program can survive now depends entirely upon Congress," states the release. "If Congress goes through with its present intention of eliminating the use of subsidies as a means of helping to control the cost of living, this program, along with the subsidies on butter, canned goods, milk and other items, will be wiped out and a sharp increase in the cost of living will inevitably result."

The order issued by Economic Stabilization Director Vinson, says the OPA release, "establishes both a livestock ceiling price and a livestock support price for each grade of livestock. The slaughterer is free to pay any price between these extremes. He may not pay less than the support price or more than the ceiling price, however, without incurring a penalty in the form of a reduction in his subsidy payment."

Continuation of this program after Dec. 31, states OPA, depends entirely upon whether Congress appropriates the necessary funds for subsidy payments.

IWA Re-elects Natl. Officers

Portland, Ore., Nov. 13—Results of an election by referendum of officials of the CIO Intl. Woodworkers of America were announced this week by the IWA. Re-elected were: President Worth W. Lowery, First Vice President James E. Fadling, Second Vice President Claude Ballard, and Secretary-Treasurer E. E. Benedict.

The passage of eight constitutional amendments, including a ten-cent per capita tax to be used for statistical research to aid in negotiations, was also announced.

NOW...

Our "Second Wind"

Anyone can start something.

To sprint the first lap of a championship mile—to write the first chapter of a book—to buy the first War Bond or dig the first Victory Garden—to give your best during the first part of a war, those things are easy. The flags are waving and the crowd is cheering at the start. There is a thrill about beginning.

And then what?

Then the grind begins, the wear and tear, the weariness. The runner's chest tightens and his legs drag. The writer's ideas come hard. The bond buyer feels the pinch and the gardener's hands blister. The manufacturer stares glumly at a cancelled war contract, while the worker in the plant finds the mornings cold and dark and his job suddenly monotonous.

That is the grind, the time for what the Army calls "sweating it out," the time when the quitters quit and even the champions slow down, when it is hard to hang on and keep plugging. It is the time when races—and wars—are won.

We—all of us—have been going through the grind. We have all felt the pressure. We have been disheartened by failures, angered by blunders, tired by constant effort.

Now, like a runner, we are getting our "second wind." The worst of the grind is past. Victory is ahead. We see it. We know it can be ours. We know that if we use our "second wind" with determination, nothing our enemies do can defeat us. We cannot lose now, unless we beat ourselves by easing off when the goal is in sight.

Let us pledge ourselves, now, to use our "second wind" to the utmost, to buy every Bond we can, to help on every front of the war effort, to tackle every production job as though it were the first one. Above all, let us pledge ourselves to stay on the job—every man and woman, every day and every hour—until we finish what we have so well started, until complete Victory is won.

Plan for Natl. Service Act Hit by Labor, Farmers, Business

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Representatives of agriculture and industrial management this week joined labor in condemning for the ash can all proposals for national service legislation, which would recruit workers for jobs and tie them to them for the duration of the war.

In a statement signed by the nine members of the national Management-Labor Policy Committee of the War Manpower Commission, a continuation of the voluntary method of recruiting workers was urged, and a positive program, with pledges to back it up, was offered.

Signing the statement were:

For Labor: CIO Pres. Philip Murray, AFL Pres. William Green and Pres. H. W. Fraser of the Order of Railway Conductors of America.

For Industry: Pres. Frederick C. Crawford, Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers; Pres. Eric A. Johnston, U. S. Chamber of Commerce, and R. Conrad Cooper, Asst. vice-president, Wheeling Steel Corp.

For Agriculture: Pres. James G. Patton, Natl. Farmers Union; Pres. Edward A. O'Neal, American Farm Bureau Federation, and Albert S. Goss, master of the Natl. Grange.

The committee report said that the members "believe that the people of this nation are unsurpassed in initiative, resourcefulness, and the will to do when their course is clear.

"They (the committee members) are opposed to National War Service Legislation in the unanimous belief that compulsion in any form, whether by law or by administrative order, does not go to the heart of the problem. They believe the need goes beyond that which can be secured by compulsion.

"They are convinced that:

"1. The American people will provide greater output under a voluntary system than under one of compulsion and regimentation.

"2. The present critical manpower situations are results of dislocations, mal-distribution of contracts, and ineffective manpower utilization rather than of inadequate over-all supply of labor.

"3. The solution depends upon leadership, coordinated and understood plans, and efficient administration, not upon broadened control and regulation.

"4. Fully effective mobilization and utilization of the national manpower will be achieved. When all agencies of government concerned with procurement, production and manpower are administered under a coordinated and well understood arrangement in which government defines the war needs, enunciates the fundamental policies or 'rules of the game,' confines itself to a minimum of control and administrative detail, and provides the maximum of real assistance to those who must do the work, namely the people of this nation in each community."

The committee called for determination of manpower needs by scientific surveys, for elimination of causes which hamper the recruitment of manpower (like lack of housing, etc.), and for balancing the volume of production for any given area with the amount of manpower available.

The representatives of labor, agriculture and industrial management joined in making a voluntary pledge for the people they represent, which contained the following points:

1. They will devote themselves wholeheartedly to promoting the production of the goods, food and services required by war.

2. They will strive vigorously and exhaust every possibility to solve the nation's manpower problems through voluntary, cooperative action.

3. They will call upon local management, labor and agriculture to attack manpower and production problems, community by community and plant by plant, in cooperation with the appropriate agencies.

4. They will attack vigorously the basic causes of excessive turnover in essential activities by cooperation with government agencies in providing suitable housing, transportation, shopping, child care and other necessary facilities, by establishment of satisfactory wages hours and conditions of work, and by active participation in the local development and enforcement of employment stabilization and control programs.

5. They will take all possible steps to assure maximum utilization of manpower in war activities through: Reduction of absenteeism; maintenance of regular production schedules; elimination of manpower hoarding; improvement of performance by measures designated to increase the per man hour output of workers; upgrading of workers so that their highest skills are utilized, and training of workers.

6. They will take all possible steps to assure maximum utilization of potential manpower reserves not now engaged in war work, through recruitment of women to replace men, through encouraging the transfer of workers to war jobs, and through "enlisting every possible source of new labor in manpower shortage areas."

CIO Parley Flays Natl. Service Act

Philadelphia, Nov. 13—Renewed opposition to national service legislation as a means of "solving" the manpower shortage was voiced this week by the CIO Convention, which pointed out in a resolution that one of the major difficulties has been the failure of the government to inaugurate an overall plan for employment.

The convention called for the expansion of area employment stabilization programs, involving labor participation and guaranteeing seniority rights of employes transferred from their regular jobs.

"Employers must be directed and compelled to utilize in full the service of Negro workers, aliens and women workers available in large numbers," the convention stated, urging the establishment of a nationwide system of plant inspection to make sure that factories are making the fullest possible use of manpower available in their areas.

Criticisms of the current manpower program included:

1. Failure to provide workers with adequate housing, transportation and child care facilities.

2. Refusal of some employers to upgrade workers so that their highest skills can be utilized.

3. Refusal of some employers to use Negro workers, or to give them jobs which their skills fit them for.

4. Hoarding of employes, and use of many in non-essential fields like tobacco and cotton production, where surpluses exist.

Show 25% Earn Less Than 50c An Hour!

Washington, Nov. 13—More than a fourth of the employes involved in wage adjustment cases of the War Labor Board in September earned less than 50 cents an hour, states the WLB's seventh monthly report. Some 77 per cent averaged less than 80 cents an hour, while 4.3 per cent averaged less than 40 cents.

In a section on incentive plans, the Board said that action on such proposals "will be limited to a determination of whether or not the proposed plan is in conformance with the national stabilization program and would result in unauthorized wage rate decreases or increases."

Only plans submitted voluntarily by employers or plans agreed upon by employers and unions which have collective bargaining rights with the company concerned will be considered.

"Incentive wage payment programs will not be ordered in dispute cases," the Board said, "since that would be incompatible with the need for cooperative efffort which is basic to the success of such programs."

WLB Head Admits Workers Carry Most of War Burden

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—An admission that America's workers have been asked to carry the brunt of the struggle against "the ravages of inflation" was made this week by Chairman William H. Davis of the National War Labor Board.

In a letter sent to Vice-President Henry A. Wallace made public along with the Board's seventh monthly report, Davis said:

"Due credit should be granted to the patriotism and foresight of the majority of the workers in these basic industries who accepted stabilization of their wages at a time of rising living costs.

"In a great number of instances their union leaders were so conscious of their responsibilities under the government's program to hold down the cost of living, they did not even demand an increase in their general level of wages."

As the Board continues its efforts to hold wages to the general level of Sept. 15, 1942, Davis said, "we become increasingly conscious of the fact that we are asking one segment of our society to do its part to protect all Americans from the ravages of inflation while, at the same time, a similar obligation has not been placed as heavily upon the shoulders of some of the other segments of this society."

At a press conference later in the week, Davis said that statements in his letter to Vice-President Wallace had been "widely misunderstood and misapplied," giving the impression that he believed wages should be increased to match the cost of living since Sept. 15, 1942.

"In my opinion," he declared, "exactly the opposite course should be followed. Wage rates have been stabilized substantially as of Sept. 15, 1942, and should remain stable. Those prices which have not been so well stabilized should be firmly held, and so far as practicable, brought back to the Sept. 15 level."

Steel Union Asks Pay Hikes, Cites Rising Costs

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13—The CIO United Steelworkers of America this week announced that they would press for wage increases affecting their 900,000 members, beginning on or about December 1. The announcement came simultaneously with a statement by the U. S. government that the steelworkers have set a new national production record under the win-the-war leadership of President Philip Murray.

With the wage announcement, made here by Murray following a meeting of USA Executive Board, came his statement that CIO has spent more than $2,000,000 attempting to acquaint the public with the urgency of maintaining a stable economy by rolling back prices so that workers in every wage category would be able to buy enough food to maintain energy for effective production for victory.

An official USA statement said.

"The United Steelworkers of America and its membership have consistently supported a program, designed to achieve the stabilization of our national economy through effective price control, rationing, equitable taxation and a stabilization of wages, and aid the effective prosecution of the war.

"While wages have been frozen, the other portions of the program have been ignored, thereby laying the basis for inflation. As a result of this failure, it has been the workers solely who have borne the increased burdens resulting from these conditions.

"In order that there may be effective stabilization of our national economy and to avoid the very dangers of inflation, this International Executive Board hereby adopts the following program:

USA PROGRAM

"1. The national officers are authorized to convene a wage and policy conference for the purpose of formulating the demands of the membership of the union regarding necessary wage adjustments and other improvements.

"2. The national officers are authorized following such conference, to forward appropriate notices to the companies with which the union has outstanding collec-

CIO Wage Policy

In calling for the scrapping of the Little Steel formula and an upward adjustment of wages, the CIO convention took a step of far-reaching significance.

But at the same time this step is no departure from the consistent policy of the CIO in recognizing the need for a thoroughly stabilized home front.

The CIO was the first to support the President's seven-point anti-inflation program, including the idea of wage stabilization, though it never considered the Little Steel formula as a workable means of bringing this about.

Wage rates were frozen under this formula, but the rest of the seven points were never placed into effect.

Congress has refused to adopt a sound tax system that would curb high incomes and swollen corporate profits.

It has blocked effective action to control prices and is today threatening to bar the use of subsidies to keep prices down.

As a result, living costs have risen far beyond the level of the Little Steel formula wage freeze, and the promised rollback of prices to the level of Sept. 15, 1942, has not been fulfilled.

In a word, the stabilization program has not been carried out. And even wages have not been "stabilized," accurately speaking; rather real wages have been sharply cut by increased living costs and thrown completely out of balance with the stabilization of prices and wages contemplated in the original anti-inflation program. As the CIO resolution points out:

"Excessive prices and profits coupled with the freezing of wages have created the conditions for inflation and resulted in severe strains upon the food and clothing budgets of workers, with consequent threats to their efficiency in war production."

Confirmation of CIO's general claims has recently come from Chairman W. H. Davis of the National War Labor Board. In a letter to Vice President Wallace, he says:

"As the months flow by and the Board continues to hold wages to the general level of Sept. 15, 1942, we become increasingly conscious of the fact that we are asking one segment of our society to do its part to protect all Americans from the ravages of inflation, while, at the same time, a similar obligation has not been placed as heavily upon the shoulders of some of the other segments of this society."

CIO's demand for elimination of the Little Steel formula and higher wages does not stand alone. It is but one part of a four-point program, directed as a whole to increasing war production and achieving a sound stabilization of our war economy. The four points are:

(1) The Little Steel formula must be dropped to permit American workers, through collective bargaining, "to secure wage adjustments to levels necessary to maintain their morale, health and efficiency and to meet the special needs imposed on them in this war period."

(2) Wage inequalities and inequities must be eliminated and, where feasible, there should be "industry-wide stabilization of wage structures on the basic principle of equal pay for the same work."

(3) Substandard wage rates must be lifted to "minimum levels of American decency."

(4) To achieve a truly stabilized national war economy, these wage policies must be combined with "vigorous price control, overall rationing and a firm taxation policy calculated to raise the funds necessary for victory out of the luxury living levels reflected in corporate profits and high income brackets and not out of the food budgets of workers."

If this stabilization program is not carried out, the CIO warns that still further wage readjustments will be necessary "to protect the health, welfare and morale of the home front against consequences disastrous to our march to victory."

In a word, the CIO is still fighting for a stabilized economy to prevent inflation and win the war, when it rejects the present instability and lack of balance between wages, prices and profits, and demands the real stabilizing of all economic factors as envisaged in the President's original anti-inflation program.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

WHAT'S most on your mind these days, bud? You want Hitler and Tojo licked to a frazzle as soon as possible—to get the boys back home—and for this war to be settled right, so there won't be another for a long, long time. Don't we all?

You also wish something could be done about the high cost of living. Sure. And that your wages were as elastic as the prices you have to pay.

You could do a better day's work if you were more sure of your own and your family's grub. And you're worried about inflation making your wages and savings worthless, not to mention messing up the war.

Oh yes, and you'd feel a lot better if Congress would get down to winning the war, and cut out labor-baiting and petty politics and soaking taxes on the poor to favor the profiteers. And . . .

But wait a minute, bud, it's easy to see you've got plenty on your mind. And this column's too short to write it all down.

The CIO's just had its national convention in Philadelphia, and the delegates there had most of these things on their minds too. See what you think of some of their answers.

★ ★ ★

Sure, you know the convention adopted a lot of good-sounding resolutions about scrapping the Little Steel formula, stopping inflation, launching a political campaign, uniting world labor and a lot more. But you can't eat resolutions or fire them from a gun, you say.

Well, listen, the folks who adopted these resolutions are just as hardheaded as you, with something very definite in mind in every case.

Take the wage policy. That means union negotiations to bring wages into line with the higher living costs.

Under the Little Steel formula, your wages have been kept at the level of Jan. 1, 1942, plus a 15% increase for increased cost of living. But living costs have jumped a heck of a lot more than 15% since that date, as you well know.

Labor has done its darnedest to get living costs rolled back, but Congress has stood in the way, and it just hasn't happened. So the only thing to do is to break through the Little Steel formula and get wages on speaking terms with prices again.

But what use is a wage increase if prices are just going to jump ahead of them again, you say? Exactly. CIO is also going to fight as vigorously as ever for subsidies to keep down prices, for strict price control, for fair taxes and for every other necessary step to prevent inflation.

★ ★ ★

But how about Congress, you ask? It's been cooperating like an unbroken Missouri mule.

Sure, and that's just where CIO's political campaign comes in. It's big-time stuff—the beginning of labor's biggest political crusade.

The CIO unions have put up $700,000 for a starter, regional offices are being opened all around the country, and we're out to tell everyone what's going on in Congress and what to do about it—and to organize in every district and precinct to get out the vote.

What's more, the CIO isn't going it alone. There are quite a few joint committees with AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods already—and there's no reason why all labor folks can't work together on this, along with working farmers and all sorts of other progressive groups.

All this is heading up to a huge labor, farm and win-the-war vote for the right candidates in 1944. But even before then, the present Congressmen are going to sit up and take notice, when they see the folks back home mean business.

But how about all this world labor unity stuff? Pretty high-flown, isn't it?

Well, our troops don't find it high-flown when British or Australian or Chinese troops fight side-by-side with them—or when the Russians mop up Nazis who otherwise would be laying for them. And the United Nations felt they were getting right down to brass tacks when they signed the Moscow conference agreement.

So if the governments and troops of the United Nations can work and fight together like this, the CIO says their labor movements should do likewise—and it's making headway. A conference of labor in all the United Nations—just what CIO's been pushing for—is being called by the British Trades Union Congress within the next few months.

That's a pretty practical step too, bud, to bring Johnny marching home again sooner, to settle this war right, and to answer a lot more that's on your mind about the future.

Unite For Win-War Tax Bill

Washington, Nov. 13—As the tax bill moved close to the House floor this week, CIO President Philip Murray joined with leaders of seven other progressive organizations in new demands for a real win-the-war plan based on ability to pay.

Joining with leaders of farmers, consumers, the Negro people, women's groups and the Natl. Lawyers Guild, Pres. Murray sharply criticized the tax bill as reported out by the House Ways and Means Committee, and renewed demands for taxes on profits and big wealth.

Meantime, as the House prepared to receive the bill, the months of dawdling by the committee produced a measure that has only one virtue—and that a negative one.

The negative virtue is the absence of a general sales tax. The other negatives, which are the opposite of virtues, make the bill fall short by $8 billion of the $10 billion the administration asked for war needs.

They include a flat refusal to tax excess war profits adequately, to close loopholes, to abolish the miscalled "Victory Tax"—in fact, a refusal to do anything about a real war tax bill,

Added to that, the committee majority plans to report the bill with a gag rule that will prohibit amendments or even discussion from the floor of the House, allowing only a straight up or down vote on the whole.

This gag rule has become almost routine on tax bills in recent years. The routine should be ended—and can be, if enough Congressmen get enough demands from enough CIO members to end it.

SQUEEZE PLAY FROM BOTH SIDES OF THE COUNTER

FDR Upholds Ban On Race, Religious Job Discrimination

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Anti-race discrimination clauses must be a part of all contracts made by the Government, President Roosevelt declared emphatically this week. In a letter to Attorney General Francis Biddle, the President overruled a recent opinion by Controller General Lindsay Warren which held that the anti-discrimination provision was merely a "directive" and not "mandatory."

Declaring that "the prosecution of the war demands that we utilize fully all available manpower," President Roosevelt said that the discrimination by war industries against workers because of race, color, creed or national origin "is detrimental to the prosecution of the war and is opposed to our national democratic purposes."

Referring to his Executive Order No. 9346 banning job discrimination on the basis of race or creed, the President said that he wished "to make it perfectly clear that these provisions are mandatory and should be incorporated in all Government contracts. The order should be so construed by all Government contracting agencies."

The opinion of the Controller General holding that the order was not mandatory was given in a recent case involving the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company of Kansas City, Mo.

When the company had refused to enforce a contract containing a clause banning discrimination, Warren held that compliance with the clause was not required because the President's order was merely a directive.

Report CIO Active In Pushing Square Deal for Negroes

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13—Cooperation and increasing support from the various affiliated CIO unions in effecting more orderly absorption of Negroes into war industries and the labor movement was reported to the CIO Executive Board here by the Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination.

The committee reported along three lines:

1. Counseling and advising international and local unions on questions affecting their racial policies.

2. Forming and maintaining contacts with all governmental agencies to insure full Negro participation in their program.

3. Broadening the nature of CIO public relations through the press, radio schools and public platform.

The Dept. of Industrial Union Councils, headed by Director John Brophy, is aiding in the work of the committee by setting up committees to Abolish Racial Discrimination in each state, county and city Council. At present 19 such committees chosen by the respective councils, are functioning with a two-fold purpose:

1. To work out local problems in line with the fundamental policy of the CIO.

2. To make basic CIO policy a living reality in each community where the CIO is an important community factor.

"We have pointed out the natural affinity that should exist between the CIO and the Negro community, with the emphasis on increased union participation," the committee stated.

"We feel that the Negro communities, as a result of our promotional activities, have full appreciation of the CIO program, particularly as it affects minority groups.

"The committee has earned and received the endorsement of the National Urban League, the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, the Negro press, the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches and other sections of Negro community life."

Some 40,000 copies of a pamphlet prepared by the committee, "Working and Fighting Together," have been sold, and 25,000 reprints of an article entitled "There are Things to Do," from the magazine South Today, have been distributed, the report declared.

Backing the Attack!

Gloversville, N. Y., Nov. 13—CIO Fur & Leather Workers in this area this week "backed the attack" by presenting to the U. S. Army and the American Red Cross two ambulances and a mobile canteen.

Funds for the ambulances were raised by contributions from locals, and money for the canteen was raised in cooperation with employers through a deerskin salvage project.

CIO Convention On Victory Beam, Congress Off It

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—While CIO was working out its war program in convention last week, Congress was keeping busy, too—but not, unfortunately, on the victory beam.

In fact, strong forces in Congress were moving rapidly this week and last toward new blows at war workers and the U. S. war agencies and against collective bargaining itself. The work is being done undercover, which makes it all the more dangerous.

Here's the play on these issues, quietly cooked up in the House Appropriations Committee, and now being passed to the Senate Appropriations body for the final serving.

Last week, the House had before it a deficiency appropriation bill calling for over a billion dollars in extra funds needed to keep U. S. war agencies running. Included were agencies such as Housing, Farm Security, War Manpower, Public Health Service, the Natl. Labor Relations Board, etc.

Almost all of these needed funds were denied. Farm Security, which helps increase food production, was wiped out. Housing for war workers was cut from $200,000,000 to $50,000,000; War Manpower $2,500,000; Public Health, $1,000,000 (100% of a request for funds to pay doctors in war industry areas now without medical service); the NLRB $275,000 from a requested $300,000.

BLOW AT BARGAINING

The NLRB cut strikes directly at collective bargaining. Its $300,000 request was for funds to enforce the Smith-Connally Act, which it is required to do by law. In making the cut, the House Committee ordered the Board to find the money elsewhere — meaning that normal work of the Board in enforcing the Wagner Act would have to be reduced.

The deficiency bill (HR 3598) is now before the Senate Appropriations Committee. CIO members should urge their Senators to work and vote for restoration of the full funds, and an end to this committee conspiracy against the war workers and against the prosecution of the war itself.

At the same time, they can use this issue to demand removal of the notorious Frey amendment from the NLRB appropriation. This rider, tacked on to the last House bill for Board funds, legalizes and freezes back-door agreements and company union set-ups by forbidding the Board to go into a situation where a contract, no matter how collusive, has existed for the past three months.

FREY HAS HOPES

The CIO convention demanded its abolition. Normally, the NLRB appropriation won't come up again until next spring. "Colonel" Frey and every other company union artist in the business has boasted that the rider will stick, and that it is only preliminary to wiping out the Wagner Act completely.

By making the demand now in the Senate for its abolition from the deficiency bill, CIO members can get a head start on ending a dangerous piece of sabotage against the whole war production program.

CIO Parley Names Executive Board

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13—Thirty-eight members of the CIO Executive Board, in addition to Pres. Murray, Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey and the nine vice-presidents, were elected last week by the CIO Convention. Board members and unions they represent include:

N. A. Zonarich, Aluminum Workers; Lewis Alan Berne, Architects, Engineers, Chemists & Technicians; George F. Addes, UAW; P. Charles DiNeri, Barbers & Beauty Culturists; Donald Henderson, Cannery Workers; Jacob S. Potofsky, Amalgamated Clothing Workers;

Joseph P. Selly, Communications Assn.; Julius Emspak, Electrical & Radio; Grant W. Oakes, Farm Equipment; Eleanor Nelson, Federal Workers; Joseph F. Jurich, Fishermen; Ben Gold, Fur & Leather; Morris Muster, Furniture; Martin Wagner, Gas Coke & Chemical;

Joseph Froesch, Glass Workers; John M. Fox, Inland Boatmen; Harry R. Bridges, Longshoremen & Warehousemen; Samuel J. Hogan, Marine Engineers; Eugene Burke, Marine Cooks & Stewards; Philip H. Van Gelder, Marine & Shipbuilding; Ferdinand C. Smith, NMU; James J. Leary, Mine, Mill & Smelter; Milton Murray, Newspaper Guild;

Lewis Merrill, UOPWA; O. A. Knight, Oil Workers; Lewis J. Clark, Packinghouse; Anthony H. Esposito, Paper, Novelty & Toy Workers; Samuel Wolchok, Retail, Wholesale & Dept. Store Employes; L. S. Buckmaster, Rubber Workers; Frank R. McGrath, Shoe Workers; Abram Flaxer, State, County & Municipal Workers; Van A. Bittner, Steelworkers; John C. Lawson, Stone Workers; George Baldanzi, Textile; William S. Townsend, Transport Service; Michael J. Quill, Transport Workers; Harold J. Straub, Utility Workers; and Worth Lowery, Woodworkers.

Murray and Carey, of course, are members of the Board, as are the following vice-presidents, listed in last week's CIO NEWS:

Joseph Curran, NMU; S. H. Dalrymple, Rubber; Albert Fitzgerald, Electrical; John Green, Marine & Shipbuilding; Allan S. Haywood, CIO director of organization; Emil Rieve, Textile; Reid Robinson, Mine, Mill & Smelter; Frank Rosenblum, Amalgamated Clothing Workers; and R. J. Thomas, UAW.

Steel Asks Pay Hikes, Cites Rising Costs

tive bargaining agreements for collective bargaining conferences to present the program of the union."

Shortly following the announcement that the USA will take the lead among CIO unions pressing for abolition of the Little Steel Formula which limits wage increases, President Roosevelt announced the appointment of a five-man committee composed of members of the War Labor Board, to probe the cost of living and the methods of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in estimating the cost of living index.

PRICE PROBE GROUP

Named on the committee are President R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, AFL Secretary-Treasurer George Meany, WLB Chairman William H. Davis, and WLB members H. B. Horton and George K. Batt.

Meanwhile, from Thomas came the statement that a demand for "substantial wage increases" will be labor's only alternative in order to protect its members if the Steagall Bill, which seeks to stop payment of food subsidies, is passed.

"If the bill becomes law, the entire program of price controls will be destroyed, for when the price of food runs away, nothing will avail to hold prices generally," Thomas declared.

USA WAGE MEET

Meanwhile, the USA Executive Board was planning to meet in Pittsburgh, on Murray's call, on or about November 30, to draw up specific recommendations to be presented to a wage and policy conference to be held the next day.

Murray said the conference will be attended by Executive Board members and by presidents of about 300 USA locals which have contracts that are subject to immediate action in the wage adjustment campaign.

Murray declared that the CIO program for increased wages is worthy of public support, and pointed out that the CIO is endeavoring "to promote through these wage demands a real stabilization of national economy for the United States."

"I think," he said, "that the American people have a pretty good conception of the fairness of labor's request for wage increases. The CIO has spent $2,000,000 through the newspapers, radio, and other information channels to acquaint the people with the national stabilization policy.

"We have not tried to discommode the public; we have constantly urged workers to stay at their jobs, in spite of the innumerable justifiable grievances."

Meanwhile, adding point to the USA's demands, the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics revealed that as of June, 1943, more than two thirds of factory workers made less than $1 an hour. Only 370,000 workers—or three per cent—were earning $1.50 or more.

Praise Kilgore Committee

Philadelphia, Nov. 13 — High praise for the Senate Committee on War Mobilization, under the chairmanship of Senator Harvey Kilgore (D., W. Va.) was voiced by the CIO Convention, which concluded its sixth annual session here last week.

The convention said that the committee has "set a sterling pattern of objective investigation and constructive analysis of matters related to the mobilization of our resources for war."

Keep Your Eye On Congress

Polltax repeal, taxes and subsidies for food production at lower prices were the most active issues this week in Congress.

On polltax repeal, the Senate Judiciary Committee, as the CIO NEWS went to press, reported out HR 7, the repeal bill that passed the House this spring. Fifteen polltax Senators, led by Connally (polltaxer, Tex., co-author of the Smith-Connally Act) have met in a secret caucus to plan their filibuster.

On taxes, the House Ways and Means Committee has wound up its fiddling with the bill. For all practical purposes, the bill as it reaches the House will be a complete zero. It won't call for a sales tax, but it also won't call for raising the money needed to win the war, won't call for taxes on profits, and won't touch big wealth or loopholes.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Polltax repeal. (HR 7)	Brings 10 million Americans into democracy.	Out of Senate Judiciary Committee, can be called on Senate floor any time.	Urge cloture vote to kill filibuster.
Food subsidies. (HR 3477)	As reported by House Banking Committee, bars use of subsidies for food output at lower prices.	Will reach House floor this week.	Wire your Representative, urge vote to amend HR 3477 to permit use of subsidies.
Tax bill.	Your new taxes, added to what you already pay.	Will reach House floor very soon, with CIO program dumped by Committee, and very likely a gag-rule on the bill.	Wire your Representative, urge protest against gag rule, reaffirm CIO win-war tax plan.
Deficiency Appropriations. (HR 3598)	As voted by House, cuts funds for war agencies (NLRB, FSA, Housing, etc.) by 80%.	Hearings now on in Senate Appropriations Committee.	Urge your Senators to work and vote for full funds for vital U. S. war agencies.
HR 2328, HJ Res. 49.	Forbid mailing anti-Semitic, anti-Negro, etc., material.	Hearings on this week in sub-committee of House Post Office Committee, Sam Weiss (D., Pa.), chairman.	Urge your Representative to support.

Viper Press Flayed At U. S.-Soviet Meet

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—A stinging rebuke was hurled at the Hearst press and the "Patterson-McCormick newspaper axis" by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes at a giant mass meeting held here last Monday night in honor of the tenth anniversary of diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia.

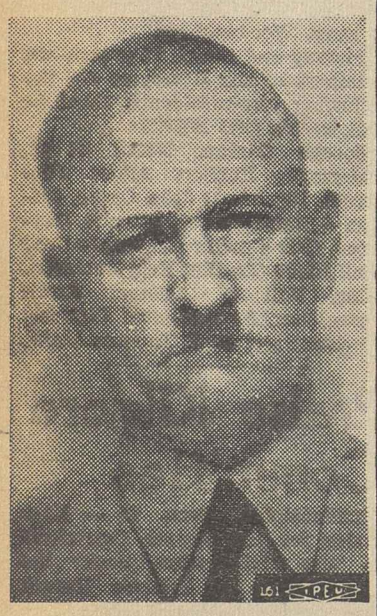
Charging that there are powerful and active forces in this country deliberately fostering ill-will toward the Soviet Union, Ickes named the Hearst and Patterson-McCormick press as among those "who hate Premier Stalin and President Roosevelt so bitterly that they would rather see Hitler win the war, if the alternative is his defeat by a leadership shared by the great Russian and the great American."

President R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers was the CIO representative on the list of speakers which included Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador; Senator Claude D. Pepper of Florida; AFL President William Green, Paul Robeson and others.

Hailing the recent Moscow conference which he said had dashed the hopes of those who want America and Britain to fight Russia when this war was over, UAW Pres. Thomas said that "Hull, Eden and Molotov have told the world openly and frankly that they mean to work together, in peace as well as in war."

"They have given great hopes that this war may indeed be the last war," he declared.

Messages from CIO President Philip Murray, Vice President Henry A. Wallace and other well-known leaders hailing the Moscow pact as a document of great importance for the future peace of the world, were read at the meeting.



GUESS AGAIN: It's not Der Fuehrer, but William J. Rogers, CIO member from Merrillan, Wisconsin, who's sporting the "spinach" that has made the world's worst dictator so easily recognizable. Rogers served with the British army as a member of the original Black Watch Regiment during the first World War.

Guild Win AP Rights

Philadelphia, Nov. 13—The Philadelphia-Camden Newspaper Guild has been designated as sole bargaining agent for the Associated Press in Philadelphia, the Regional War Labor Board announced this week.

CIO Hails Work Of Auxiliaries

Philadelphia, Nov. 13—CIO this week was on record commending the work of the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries, pledging additional support, and urging international affiliates to aid their auxiliaries as a means of aiding themselves. A resolution passed at the recently concluded convention stated:

"The full realization of the CIO program for legislative and political action, for rollback and effective price control, requires that the women in our homes be involved in carrying our program into effect.

"Their votes will decide the outcome of the 1944 election campaign in many communities, and the election of a progressive and liberal Congress in 1944 depends, therefore, on the extent to which we are able to get the women in our families out to the polls and active in election work.

"To make these women a really effective force in carrying out our program, we must organize them into auxiliaries which will work hard in hand with our unions on all issues."

Make Your Food Fight for Freedom

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

Deliver the Axis that knockout blow! Not a day, not an hour must we lose, on the farm, in the factory or on the fighting front.

We can't fight on the battlefield, but we can make the weapons and produce the food that will. More food has to go abroad to our fighting men and women, more food for our allies, more food for the half-starved people in the liberated countries.

Here at home farm land is going idle, prices are going higher, and what's left of the paycheck after deductions for taxes and war bonds is hardly enough to pay for the meats and groceries we need to keep our families going.

We won't make ends meet unless every one of us does her full share in cooperating with the government on rationing and fighting the black market.

We all worked hard enough to get rationing and price control. We can't sit back and relax now.

WRONG ATTITUDE

I know of several instances where women were simply afraid to report that they were being overcharged for their meats. One woman said to me, "I'd have to move out of the neighborhood if I did that. Besides, it really isn't the butcher's fault. He told me himself that he had to pay extra for the meat in order to get any at all. He's a hard-working man and I'd hate to make trouble for him."

It's hard to see how far we could get with the rationing program under such circumstances.

For this very reason, so that you won't have to feel that you're causing trouble for your groceryman, the price checking system was set up by the government to see that prices are kept to their ceilings.

Anyone in your neighborhood can volunteer her services as a price checker. Get in touch with the Price Panel of your War Price and Rationing Board. You'll receive an official card stating that you represent the Price Panel and are "authorized to observe prices and posting" and "that you are working in a neighborly way to carry out your responsibility under the Price Control program."

The idea is that you are helping your grocer carry out his share of the program, rather than that you are waiting for an opportunity to report him. If your grocer is acting in good faith, he will be glad to have your help.

Reports Prove:

Auxiliaries Do Real Job Backing Up CIO

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The most exciting part of our Third Annual Conference in Philadelphia last week was the discussion by the delegates. The splendid action programs on political action, on price control and rollback and on the problems of women in industry, which were developed by the committee, were not academic programs—they sprang from the experience of the delegates themselves, from the work which auxiliaries have been doing all over the country.

Take political action, for instance. Ringing door bells in an election campaign is not a new idea to auxiliaries.

The Fur auxiliary in the Bronx was active this November going from door to door to explain to housewives the importance to them of electing Michael Quill to the New York City Council. Their delegate, Sonia Schneider, emphasized the importance of following up that explanation by actually calling for the women on election day and going with them to the polls. And their work, added to that of all the New York unions and auxiliaries, got results.. Quill was elected.

Camden Shipyard Auxiliary No. 1 did the same job. They had to miss some of the conference committee meetings and part of the sessions to carry through their election work on November 2.

WATCHING POLLS

Marie McCann, herself secretary of the women's joint labor committee for the election of Murphy, reported 25 of their members were busy canvassing door to door and watching at the polls. And they helped to elect every labor candidate in Camden County.

Mabel Mayne, delegate from UAW auxiliaries in Canada, took 150 women down to the city hall when her union asked the auxiliary to see that every union member was on the voting list. Their activities in the last provincial elections helped to gain 34 seats in the Ontario assembly.

The ILWU auxiliary in San Francisco began election work last year, when they broke down their membership lists by election precincts and issued a special leaflet appealing to mothers to get out and vote if they wanted a decent future for their children. Grace Mathias, their delegate to our conference, serves on the union political action committee and many of the auxiliary members work as precinct captains.

FIGHT MARTIN DIES

Unions in Martin Dies' district are appealing to the auxiliaries to help get him out of office, Oil auxiliary delegate Vera Ford reported. She is program chairman of labor's political action committee in Port Arthur, Tex. "Do you love your children enough to make a place for them in this world?" was one topic advertised for discussion by a woman at a recent political action rally there which brought a big turnout.

Vera is back in Port Arthur now, busy on the campaign to get every union man and every voter in his family to pay their polltax by January 1 so they can vote Dies out in '44.

Discussion of price control and rollback activities showed the same fine picture of active auxiliary participation from coast to coast. A letter from the OPA in Cleveland thanked the conference for the splendid cooperation of the auxiliaries there. President Faye Stephenson announced donation of the first $50 won in a court case against a violator to establish a national auxiliary fund to fight black markets.

BACK PRICE CONTROL

Beatrice Abramson of the New York Newspaper Guild auxiliary described the people's court on which New York auxiliary members sit with small merchants to hear stories of violators and decide which should have a second chance and which should go to the municipal court for action.

State-wide broadcasts on price control are part of the program of the Montana Auxiliary Council, represented in Philadelphia by Mary Orlich of Butte, president-secretary of the auxiliaries of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. Los Angeles also broadcasts frequently—and gets publicity pictures taken—to carry to the public the importance of cooperation in OPA's program.

Helen Daggett, Los Angeles Council representative at the Conference, summed up the importance of participation in price panel work of OPA by pointing out that in those districts of Los Angeles where CIO people are active on the panels and as panel assistants, price control is enforced. In districts where CIO people are not active, there is wholesale violation of the regulations.

The discussion on these and other vital issues in Philadelphia brought out the important job auxiliaries are already doing on the union program for political action, price control, solving the problems of women in industry, the welfare of servicemen, etc.

The delegates left convinced that our big job in the coming year is to build membership and build auxiliaries, and to establish each auxiliary as an integral part of the union machinery.

* * *

The CIO has completed its sixth annual convention, held in Philadelphia last week. Many important resolutions were adopted, including the demand for the change in the Little Steel formula by the War Labor Board; approving the action taken by the United Nations Trade Union Conference in calling a United Nations Labor Conference, and declaring again that organizing the unorganized is the most important task confronting the CIO.

Our tax-paying membership gain for the past fiscal year was over a million, one hundred thousand. Our determination is to exceed that number considerably in this next fiscal year. This is our great opportunity and we must be prepared to take advantage of it so that we may be able to meet the conditions that we will be confronted with when victory is won on the battlefields, so that we can be assured of a victorious peace.

Let's intensify our activities in organizing the unorganized so that our next convention will show even greater gains than the past successful year!

More About Dist. 50

Last week's CIO NEWS carried a story about the fantastic organizing expenses of District 50, United Mine Workers Union. Statements of Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, based on District 50 records, were indirectly quoted. What Thomas said exactly was:

"Lewis' big talk and big money—a total of $3,024,956 within a short span of two and a half years—has built District 50 to a claimed membership of 48,000.

"When the 'drive' started, District 50 already had 14,000 members. Thus Lewis' three million dollar baby has gained possibly, some 34,000 members. I say 'possibly' because close scrutiny of the financial reports justifies the feeling that much of the claimed membership is just so much padding."

Arrest 48 Labor Leaders In Argentina

Montevideo, Nov. 13 (ALN) — With virtually all Argentine industry at a standstill because of strikes against the pro-fascist Ramirez government, Col. Juan Peron, new chief of Argentina's National Labor Department, this week sent 48 labor leaders to the internment camp at Neuquen in an effort to prevent a general strike in the country.

Among those interned was Pedro Chiaranti, secretary of the striking National Federation of Construction Workers. In a statement last week, Chiaranti urged all Argentine workers to "actively fight the Nazi plans of the Ramirez government."

The local offices of the Federation of Meat Workers in Berisso were closed as well as those in Avellaneda and other villages in Buenos Aires province.

Student strikes at all six of the nation's universities have forced the government to suspend classes. More than 1000 students were arrested this week.

World Union Confab Set for June, '44

LONDON, Nov. 13 (ALN)—Following its decision of last week to issue a call for an all-inclusive world labor conference, the general council of the British Trades Union Congress today set June 5, 1944, as the opening date for a two-week conference. In a statement which will accompany invitations to the central labor organizations of 38 allied and neutral nations, the general council declared:

"This is the supreme testing time in the history of the trade union movement. The depth of our faith in trade unionism is revealed in the extent to which all concerned are ready to rise above internecine difficulties and national obstacles. We feel we must take the risks involved in inviting all representative organizations, however different in structure and ideology, which may contribute to the building up of a greater international trade union movement."

Referring to the objections of AFL leaders to attending a conference with Soviet delegates, the general council declared that it "realizes that inviting some organizations may itself cause feelings of dissatisfaction in the minds of other bodies and perhaps furnish the latter with reasons why they should not attend such a conference.

"Nevertheless," the Council added, "It is the general council's conviction that if the trade union movements are to be rebuilt, it must be attempted on the broadest possible basis. Unless the trade unions, representing the working class, find it possible to sit together in conference to find a constructive policy to rebuild great international movements, the prospects of humanity are dark indeed."

CIO Conventions

Washington, Nov. 13—Three CIO State Councils and one international union have conventions coming during the next few weeks, according to information received at National CIO headquarters.

The Ohio Council meets in Columbus, Nov. 22; the Connecticut Council in Hartford, Dec. 3; and the Maryland-District of Columbia Council in Cumberland, Dec. 6. The fifth convention of the Intl. Fishermen & Allied Workers opens at the CIO Building in San Francisco, Dec. 6.

The sun shone that beautiful Sunday afternoon
Like a Benediction
For the boys who gave their lives
On the blazing gun decks of Pearl Harbor.

That was the day America rolled up her sleeves
And thousands of fellows put on uniforms
And other thousands went into factories
To start America's production rolling
Day and night.

Pete wanted to go, too,
Just as much as Johnny, the boys across the street
Who marched away with the first gang
And said in that old ball team slang:
"So long, Pete—Give 'em hell here;
We'll do the same over there."

So Pete stayed at his machine
To help keep that Big Promise
Of America's production rolling on and on . . .
Guns, tanks, planes, shells
To arm a million and more fellows
Just like Johnny—fighting together over there.

And who can but say
That Pete on the home production front,
Driving his machine instead of a gun,
Working like blazes with the rest of the gang,
Hasn't kept his promise to Johnny over there.

"Atta Boy, Johnny. Give 'em hell over there;
We'll do the same over here!"

CIO Musical Opens Nov. 22 In Newark

Newark, N. J., Nov. 13 — The thump and roar of a huge industrial plant is only a big noise to most people, but to the musical ear of Leonard Keller, member of the United Automobile Workers employed at the Cadillac Aircraft plant in Detroit, there was an intriguing rhythm in the racket.

Before the war Keller was the leader of an orchestra which had played in New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Hollywood and other cities, relates the New Jersey CIO News. After Pearl Harbor most of his men left for the armed services and Keller decided to give up music for the duration. He took a job at the Cadillac plant as a war worker.

"MARCHING WITH JOHNNY"

One night after work, he wrote a song about what he heard on his job and sang it the next day to his fellow aircraft workers. They thought it was swell. It was at this point that the idea began to take shape which later developed into the CIO musical revue, "Marching with Johnny," sponsored by the CIO National War Relief Committee.

"Marching with Johnny" opens here Nov. 22 at the Mosque Theater, for one week. Nov. 29 it opens in Providence, R. I.; Dec. 2 in Bridgeport, Conn.; Dec. 6 in Baltimore, and Dec. 13 in Philadelphia for one week's run.

On Dec. 29 it opens in New York for an eight weeks' run, after which it will continue on tour of the major cities throughout the country.

Directed by Philip Loeb, the CIO win-the-war revue presents labor's point of view through songs, dances and comedy sketches prepared by the combined work of the well-known Hollywood writing and composing trio, Henry Myers, Edward Eliscu and Jay Gorney, authors and producers of the popular revue, "Meet the People."

Keller took a leave of absence from his job in Detroit and came to New York to work with them.

Celebrate Birthday

Pittsburgh, Nov. 13—The sixth anniversary of Industrial Insurance Agents Local 65 was celebrated at a dinner here this week at which a Minute Man Flag was presented to the union by a U. S. Treasury Dept. representative.

CIO Office Workers Win Big Election

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 13—A run-off election among office and technical employes at the Curtiss Wright plant here was won this week by the United Office & Professional Workers, in a smashing victory over the AFL Machinists Union. The vote was 1387 for the CIO union to 925 for the Machinists.

The plant makes the famous Commando plane.

In the initial election held in two units last month, the CIO Office Workers won a plurality of the votes cast in the larger unit but failed to get a majority. A run-off was ordered by the Natl. Labor Relations Board.

The mold-loft employes, who trace the body of the plane on the assembly floor, voted as a separate unit in the first election, casting 206 ballots for the CIO Office Workers to 67 for the Machinists and 8 for no union.

Pamphlets On Convention Being Printed

New CIO pamphlets covering the 6th convention, concluded last week in Philadelphia, are ready or on the press. They include:

"Your Wages and the War," by Philip Murray. Wage policy adopted at the 6th CIO Convention, with President Murray's speech and the resolution.

"Resolutions of the 6th CIO Convention." Complete text of all resolutions passed at Philadelphia.

"President Murray's report to the 6th Convention." 10c each, $9.00 per 100.

Prices on the above, except on President Murray's report, will be announced next week.

Meantime, send your orders to: Publicity Department, CIO, 718 Jackson Pl., NW, Washington 6, D. C.

In preparation: pamphlets on relations with Latin-American workers, sponsored by the CIO Committee on Latin-American Affairs, Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman.

Also pamphlets and leaflets on major CIO actions and policies on issues such as food production and the farmers; international labor unity; CIO's work for servicemen; organizing in wartime; introduction to the CIO and brief history, and others.

There's a paper shortage, and manpower problems in printing are especially acute. Get your orders in to insure full delivery as early as possible.

Constitution Changed

Philadelphia, Nov. 13 — One change in the CIO Constitution was unanimously approved by the CIO Convention, which concluded its sixth annual session here last week. Involving Section VII, Article 6, the change eliminates the following three lines involving the number of delegates allowed organizations:

"Over 100,000 membership, eight delegates.

"Over 150,000 membership, nine delegates.

"Over 200,000 membership, 10 delegates."

The substitution for the three lines reads: "100,000 membership—eight delegates for the first 100,000 members and one additional delegate for each additional 50,000 or majority fraction thereof."

CIO Urges $500,000,000 For Housing

Philadelphia, Nov. 13—Appropriation of $500 million more needed for war housing was urged by the CIO Convention, which concluded its sixth convention here last week.

Declaring that only $100 million of $600 million needed for housing has been appropriated by Congress, the Convention stated in a resolution:

"The workers in many war centers are in desperate need of decent shelter and are often forced to commute many hours every day at great expense. The lack of proper housing is a cause of absenteeism and the high labor turnover which exists in certain war plants.

"Opposition to further appropriations cannot logically be based on grounds of economy, in view of the trifling amounts which are sought in comparison with other war expenditures; it arises instead from pressure by selfish real estate interests."

Ask Indian Independence

Philadelphia, Nov. 13—National independence for India was urged by the CIO Convention, which concluded sessions here last week, in a resolution which also criticized appeasement-minded elements in the U. S. State Dept., and recommended the appointment of labor attaches to aid American ambassadors abroad.

Declaring that the United Nations are fighting a "people's war of national liberation," the convention stated that the "CIO supports the aspirations of the people of India for their national independence, needed to mobilize their energies and resources for a full part in the war against Axis aggression."

Ex-Smith Committee Counsel 'Barnstorms' Against Rent Control

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13—The 15th stop in a barnstorming tour designed to discredit the office of Price Administration was made here last week by the former counsel of the Smith Committee of the House of Representatives, which recently probed the price control machinery of the federal government.

The feature attraction of the tour is Irving G. McCann, who resigned as committee counsel last August. He spoke last week at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, at the same time the CIO Convention was being held, but in a different hall.

A self-styled believer in the freedoms of 1787 but not in the four freedoms as enunciated by President Roosevelt, McCann apparently had a tough time drawing anything like a full house from real estate interests in this conservative city.

As reported by an observer for the CIO NEWS, an official of the Metropolitan Real Estate Committee, as chairman of the meeting, bewailed the fact that there were so many absentees among the real estate crowd.

McCann's line—apparently the same that he has taken during other speeches on his tour—was that "no one objects to rent control if it is reasonable, honest and fair." The rumors are that he is paid $250 per lecture to expound his opinion that federal rent control has none of these virtues.

McCann criticized OPA personalities, and policies and methods of rent control, but the real gist of his remarks was the comment that —according to the real estate boys —real estate income has gone up only 2.8 per cent.

McCann and his gang would like to see that decimal point move right. That's why they're hollering about OPA in an effort to wreck rent control enforcement.

Blue Network Reverses Union Policy

New York, Nov. 13 — The Blue Network this week reversed its policy of refusing to sell time to labor organizations, following a vigorous CIO campaign directed against the restrictions generally imposed on labor by the radio industry and embodied in the code of the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters.

Pres. Mark Woods of the Blue Network announced:

"We will consider any requests for radio time from idea or membership under the same policy that we consider requests from organizations with commercial goods or services to advertise."

The CIO campaign included several appearances at hearings of the Federal Communications Commission, at the last of which (on sale of the Blue Network) Commissioners Fly and Durr sharply criticized Network officials for saying they would sell time to commercial concerns to advertise their services, put on commentators or tell what they were doing to win the war, but would not sell time to labor organizations for similar purposes.

The Commission finally approved the sale of the Blue Network to Edward J. Noble, president of the Life Saver Corp., after requiring that he formulate a definite policy of operation "in the public interest," affecting such cases.

CIO Urges More Money For OPA

Philadelphia, Nov. 13 — Congress should provide funds so that the Office of Price Administration could double its investigation staff to insure real control of prices, the CIO Convention, which concluded here this week, stated in a resolution.

The convention pointed out that inadequate appropriations for OPA restrict its staff of investigators and attorneys, engaged in enforcement of price, rent and rationing regulations, to less than 3,000 persons.

The CIO warned that "breakdown of OPA regulations resulting in uncontrolled inflation would cost the government and the public many additional billions of dollars annually."

"Withholding of adequate enforcement funds cannot be justified as a means of effecting economies for taxpayers since it will have precisely the opposite result," the convention declared.

In a separate resolution on rent control, the convention said that "the CIO compliments and expresses its continued support of the OPA for its uncompromising application of rigid rent controls, and calls upon the OPA in the future to reject summarily all pressures from special interests seeking to break down or relax the rent control program."

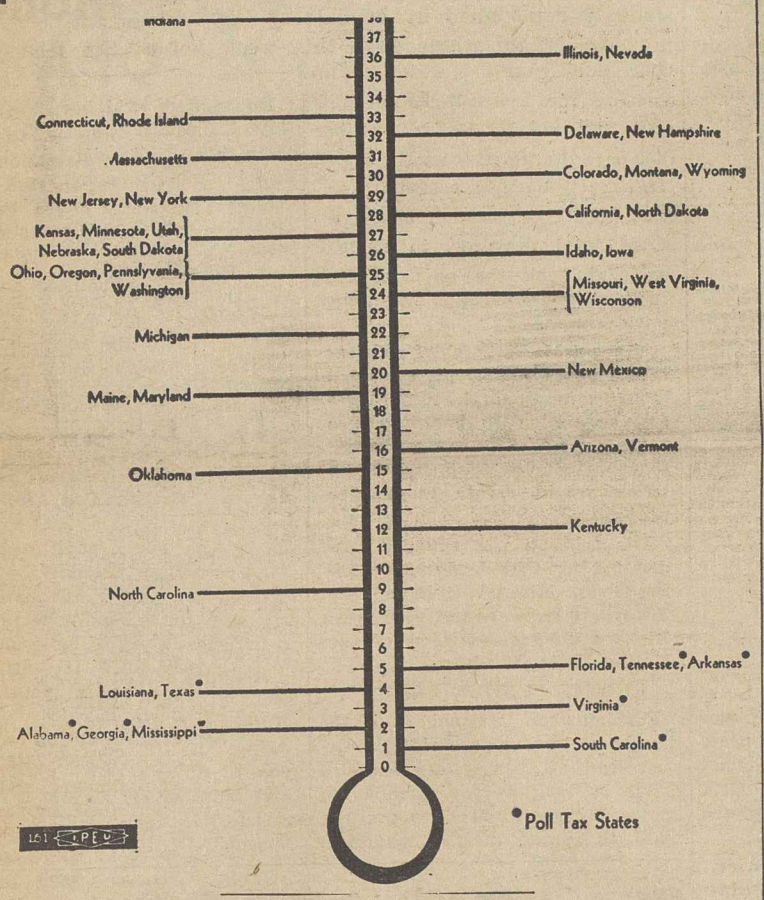
The Thermometer Of Democracy

Percent of Population, by States, Voting in 1942 Congressional Elections



Polltaxers Pack 7 Times More Weight than Free Lawmakers from 40 States

One of the major scandals of this century has been the fact that polltax Congressmen from eight states—elected in some cases by 1 per cent of the people of their districts—pack from five to 19 times more weight than their fellow lawmakers from 40 non-polltax states. The fact that, on the average, the same number of voters elect seven times as many Congressmen from polltax states as from the non-polltax states makes polltax repeal a national issue.

Prime example of the disproportionate weight given polltax Congressmen is the comparison between the votes cast for 50 polltaxers and those cast for one Congressman from a non-polltax state—Schuetz of Illinois.

Congressman Schuetz received as many votes as the TOTAL received by the 50 polltaxers.

These 50 polltax Congressmen were elected by from one to four per cent of the people from their districts! They ranged from Congressman McMillan of South Carolina, who received 2,905 votes (one per cent), to Congressman Beckworth of Texas, who received 10,929 (4 per cent).

In 1942 the average vote cast in a polltax Congressional election was 10,500, or three per cent of the population. In the average non-polltax district, seven times as many persons voted—77,800 persons, or 25 per cent of the population.

Back the Repeal Bill!

Polltax Gyps YOU! Cuts Wages, Hikes Prices, Blocks War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—This is a call to action for every man and woman in this nation who's hot about high prices, who wants decent wages, and who'd like to see this country fight an all-out war against the Axis. There's a piece of legislation before the U. S. Senate that affects every one of these issues—it's called HR 7—the bill to repeal the polltax.

HR 7 would knock out laws in Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia that force citizens of these states to pay from $1 to $47.47 for the constitutional right to vote. HR 7 would free 10 million white and Negro citizens who get such low wages that they can't afford to pay the polltax. HR 7 would help these 10 million non-voting citizens to kick out of office Congressmen like Cox of Georgia, Dies of Texas, Smith of Virginia and Hobbs of Alabama—every-one of them elected by less than 6 per cent of the people in their districts.

These Congressmen and their polltax pals in the Senate keep a death grip on their jobs—Cox needed only 3,794 votes, from one per cent of the people in his district, to win the 1942 election. The polltaxers camp so long in Congress they head the most important committees. Despite the fact that polltaxers represent a small minority of the people, they hold 10 of the 24 biggest committee positions in the Senate and 14 out of 24 in the House.

Polltaxers lead the fight against subsidies which would help cut food prices and would aid the fight against inflation—polltaxer Smith of South Carolina, in the Senate, and polltaxers Steagall of Alabama and Smith of Virginia, in the House, are the worst examples.

Polltaxers battle for the sales tax which would force prices even higher—George of Georgia, in the Senate, and Robertson of Virginia, in the House, lead the fight.

Polltaxers lead the gang that cut your wages, boost your prices, and block the war. For WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT, see the adjoining column and editorial on page 4.

What to Do To Kill The Polltax

The fight to repeal the polltax has reached the stage where victory is visible. The third attempt in four years to wipe out this blot on democracy has the best chance of any to succeed. The polltax repeal bill—HR 7—passed the House last May by a thumping 265 to 110 majority. It will shortly be before the Senate.

Meanwhile, polltax Senators, aided by their reactionary colleagues from non-polltax states, are planning a hand-to-hand fight for their privilege of being "elected" by a minority of citizens with enough money to pay for the privilege of voting.

These Senators plan to fight a delaying action by talking the repeal bill to death. They call this a "filibuster." The way to stop a filibuster is to shut off debate. It takes two thirds of the Senate to do this, by a motion called "cloture."

Every citizen of this nation who wants to get in a plug for democracy against the polltax should write or wire his Senators today—this moment—to demand a vote for "cloture", and afterwards a vote for HR 7, without any amendments, to repeal the polltax. Do it now!

Thomas Demands Probe Of Broadcasting Gags

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—A demand for an immediate investigation of the radio broadcasting industry's gags on freedom of speech was raised this week by Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union, testifying before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, on the Wheeler-White Bill to reorganize the Federal Communications Commission.

Thomas coupled his demand with the statements that the restrictive code of the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters must be wiped out and that "labor and other groups must be guaranteed access to the radio of this country, by legislation if necessary, on the same terms and subject to the same conditions that other groups, notably manufacturers with goods to sell, have access to the radio."

CITES DISCRIMINATION

Citing several instances of radio stations' discrimination against the UAW, Thomas said:

"The present Radio Act is based on the theory that stations will operate in the public interest, and therefore give fair and equal treatment to the various groups that want time on the air. That is the theory. In practice, it works out just the other way.

"The great employers of this country buy coast-to-coast hookups for hour after hour, during which they broadcast music, news, sponsored news commentators and skillfully worded announcements to air their points of view.

"But when the employes of these very companies ask for time—not time free of charge in which to answer, mind you, but time for which they are prepared to pay the full commercial rates—the stations and networks with few exceptions refuse to sell."

GAG IN ACTION

One example of discrimination that Thomas cited involved Radio Station WHKC, in Columbus, Ohio. The station broadcasts a weekly program for the Curtiss-Wright Aircraft Corp., but when the UAW offered to pay regular rates for an equivalent amount of time, the station agreed to sell time only subject to three strict conditions:

1. The UAW was forbidden to solicit memberships directly or indirectly.

2. The UAW was forbidden to discuss race, religion or politics.

3. The UAW was forbidden "to discuss or treat in any way whatsoever any controversial subjects."

Declaring that the issue involves far more than one union and one radio station, Thomas said:

"This is a national issue profoundly affecting the future of our country. For if the voice of labor can be silenced over the radio, and if the voices of other progressive groups can be similarly throttled by a league of broadcasters calling themselves the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters, then radio has become the weapon of one group in society, the moneyed, reactionary group, and we are on the high road to Fascism."

Jamestown Victory Proves Labor Can Win at Polls

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 20—Organized labor can win in political elections. Despite all the "dope" stories of the appeasers and reactionaries; despite the victory of the Republicans in the state, the election of Nov. 2 clearly demonstrated that where organized labor is unified, adopts a correct program and works hard it is rewarded by victory.

LABOR SWEEPS JAMESTOWN

This was nowhere more clearly illustrated in the upstate elections than it was in Jamestown, N. Y., where the labor-endorsed Progressive Party Ticket was swept into office by an unprecedented vote.

Andrew P. Anderson, president of United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, Local 307, was elected Councilman-at-large by a vote of 7,531, the highest vote ever given to any city councilman and exceeded only by that received by Mayor Samuel A. Stroth, who won with 8,186 votes. Intl. Rep. William G. McCool of the Intl. Assn. of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, another union man on the Progressive Party Ticket, was elected by 6,503 votes.

Henning P. Pearson, member of the Metal Corporation Lodge 1558 of the International Association of Machinists, was elected supervisor-at-large with 6,029 votes.

The Progressive Party Ticket was opposed by the People's Party ticket, which was backed by the "old guard" Republicans and reactionary Democrats and which polled only 2,358 votes for its mayoralty candidate.

UNIFIED LABOR MOVEMENT

As a result of the election labor now has a strong voice in the city government of Jamestown. This great victory can be attributed to the fact that the entire labor movement of Jamestown is completely unified on the political field through the Labor's Legislative Conference of Jamestown and vicinity. This is no mere nominal unity, but the AFL, CIO and Railroad Brotherhoods work solidly together along the most progressive lines.

CIO Men Elected In New Jersey

Camden, N. J., Nov. 20—Pres. Giles Frazier of United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers Local 103 at the RCA plant here was elected last week to the N. J. State Assembly on the Democratic ticket with the united backing of CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhood unions.

Along with Brother Frazier, Brother Dieth of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers Local 1 was also sent to the State Asembly to represent organized labor.

Local 103 sees the success of Frazier and Dieth as being due to a three-way campaign in Camden County by organized labor. Political organization through the plants, a good publicity committee, and what is more important, an all-out drive in the neighborhood.

Post Office Ban On Mail-Order Hitlerism Urged by CIO

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Mail-order Hitlerism that helped to contribute to bloody race riots like those in Detroit was strongly condemned by officials of CIO unions and other progressive organizations here this week before the House Post Office Sub-Committee, which is considering the Lynch-Dickstein bills (HR 2328 and HJ Res. 49) to bar race-hate literature from the mails.

Strangely enough, post office officials who got excited about so-called lewd drawings in Esquire magazine took the opposite tack when racial propaganda was under consideration.

Vincent M. Miles, chief solicitor of the Post Office Dept., seconded Postmaster General Frank Walker's opposition to banning race hatred from the mails, saying that he believed that such legislation would create more race prejudice.

His position was roundly condemned by CIO leaders, including Pres. Michael Quill of the Transport Workers and Vice-Pres. Richard T. Frankensteen of the United Auto Workers.

QUOTES "UNDER COVER"

Frankensteen warned that the danger of further race riots in Detroit and other war centers still exists as long as the enemies of democracy are allowed to use the mails to spread their propaganda.

He quoted evidence from John Roy Carlson's "Under Cover" to show that the Fascist organizations deal in violence as well as in ideology, and said: "No respectable private firm would do any sort of business with them. But Uncle Sam does. His post office provides them with the most efficient distribution service they could desire, and they use it to knife him in the back."

Support for the bills was also urged by: Hoyt Haddock, CIO Maritime Committee; Jack Zucker, United Shoe Workers; Howard Mooney, Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers; Rep. Chet. Holifield; Charles Collins, AFL Hotel & Restaurant Employes; Max Perlow, Jewish Peoples Committee; Judge Nathan Perlman; Philip Raymond, Intl. Workers Order, and Milton Kemnitz, Natl. Federation for Constitutional Liberties.

Kemnitz named George B. Winrod, Elizabeth Dilling, William Kullgren, C. Leon DeAryan, Court Asher, The Defender, X-Ray, Beacon Light and other individuals and publications as among those responsible for "mail-order Hitlerism."

N. Y. Guild Tells How Quill Won Council Election

New York, Nov. 20—CIO's political action campaign seeks to activate 5,000,000 men and women who, in the interests of democracy, will ring doorbells, talk to people, and attempt to convince them that their best hope for democracy lies in voting for win-the-war candidates in 1944.

That was one of the main points cited this week in the weekly radio broadcast of the Newspaper Guild of New York, with Pres. John T. McManus and Organizer John F. Ryan batting the commentary back and forth.

In the program, entitled "The News and What to Do About It," the two said over Station WLIB that New Yorkers are seeing "the first faint beginning of the CIO's national campaign to make its weight felt in the best interests of this nation."

They said that CIO, under Chairman Sidney Hillman, of CIO's Political Action Committee, is attempting to organize "five million election district captains with a single platform—a win-the-war platform — demanding real economic stabilization, a rollback of prices, equitable taxes, minority rights, an end to discrimination of all kinds, international labor unity, everything that goes to make a democratic world."

Describing the "beginnings" of political activity in this city, McManus and Ryan cited the successful campaign of Pres. Michael Quill of the CIO Transport Workers Union for election to the City Council. They said:

"For more than a month hundreds of active CIO members canvassed every district in the Bronx. More than 100 street corner meetings were held. Two sound trucks with special recordings made the rounds nightly.

"Seventeen Quill headquarters were set up in the county. Door bells were pushed, voters were buttonholed, telephones were in constant use, leaflets in four languages were distributed by the thousands, and Mike Quill himself thought nothing of speaking 10 or 15 times a day before all kinds of audiences.

"For a great number of our members in the Guild, this was a brand-new kind of union activity. And I believe that when the rest of us learn what satisfaction there is in carrying union activity into the field of politics, more of us are going to do it from now on."

UE School Opens in Newark

Newark, N. J., Nov. 22—Current trade union problems, Economics of the War, Negroes and the War, and other subjects of interest to union members will be studied at the New Jersey Labor School which has just opened here.

The school is sponsored by a group of trade union leaders including James McLeish, president of District 4, United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers, and is directed by Marian Hislip of UE Local 408, Bloomfield, N. J.

Tax Bill Marking Time—But Watch It!

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Nothing much new on taxes happened this week, except that the final stages of preparing the bill for the House were finished by the Ways and Means Committee.

This final touch in a bill that completely ignores the need for billions in new levies on wealth and excess profits was the removal of a tax on silver-plated tableware.

Meanwhile, Senator George (polltaxer, Ga.) announced to reporters that his committee, Senate Finance, would try to rush hearings through in a week, and give the bill to the Senate in time for passage by Jan. 1.

Senator George, who was up until a few weeks ago a leading promoter of the sales tax, also said that he wouldn't push such a tax now—blaming his reluctance on Administrative opposition.

George forgot to mention the fact that labor, particularly the CIO, and all progressives, really did the job of changing his mind. He also forgot to discuss the fact that the House bill as reported is an almost complete blank, as far as a win-the-war tax plan is concerned.

CIO Warning

Subsidy Ban Would Up Food Prices 4-20 Pct.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—As The CIO NEWS goes to press, a House showdown on the use of subsidies for more food at lower prices was set for today or Monday, Nov. 22, with CIO warning that a ban on subsidies would boost food prices 4 to 20 per cent.

The showdown comes in the vote on HR 3477, the bill to continue the Commodity Credit Corp.

Food monopoly agents in Congress have written an absolute ban on any and all subsidies into the bill.

In a final appeal to House leaders, CIO President Murray wrote to both Majority Leader John W. McCormack and Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr., urging them to see the subsidy issue in its real light, as "an issue simply of high prices as against price control."

Writing to Rep. McCormack, he said: "These threats of runaway prices are threats to the working health and efficiency of American war workers, they are threats to the stability of our home front economy.

"The issue in this subsidy fight is whether we shall keep prices within the reach of the men and women and children of America or permit food to be taken off the tables of the American public for the personal profit of special interests."

In a challenge to Republicans to forget their partisan interests in the interests of the war, he wrote to Rep. Martin:

"No responsible political party or leadership can afford in this critical war period to make the demand for increased food prices a plank in its platform. No responsible political party or leadership can afford to label itself at this critical point in our war effort the party of inflation."

4-20 PER CENT INCREASE

Murray also pointed out that without subsidies, prices will jump from 4 to 20 per cent in 24 basic foods. Round steak will go up 5.2 cents, butter from 5 to 9 cents, canned vegetables 1.4 cents, sugar 1 cent, milk 1 cent a quart, etc.

Murray's warning was emphasized sharply by OPA Administrator Chester Bowles, who took to the radio twice this week to call for upholding the use of subsidies. Barring them, he said, would cost the nation an extra 15 billion dollars a year. This cost, he pointed out, was 20 times the cost of the 800-million-dollar subsidy program now planned.

"But if they (Congress) decide against the present program, then in spite of anything we in OPA can do, there will be immediate increases in the price of butter, meat, milk, bread and certain fruits and vegetables—and there may be further increases later," Bowles said.

Taking to the radio for CIO, Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey said: "This is your fight, a fight for everyone of you. Every consumer in this country has a vital stake in the outcome. If we lose, we are in for a terrible beating. All CIO members and their families are consumers just like you are. The CIO is in this fight to the finish."

Meanwhile, the Senate Agriculture Committee has been holding hearings on the subsidy issue, with Cotton-Ed Smith, shrewd polltaxer from South Carolina, hearing every profiteering food monopoly agent who cared to put in an appearance—and most of them have cared.

Raymond Clapper, columnist writing in the Scripps-Howard papers, described the anti-subsidy parade before Smith as "a cynical profiteers' ride into uncontrolled price inflation." The only astonishing thing about this description is that it got printed in a Scripps-Howard paper.

After the bill comes out of the House this week, with or without the subsidy ban, it goes to Smith's committee. There is this advantage, however, that gag rules prohibiting amendments from the floor are not the practice in the Senate, as they are in the House.

Plenty of pressure from all the workers on all 96 Senators will be needed to counteract this most determined of all raids on the war worker's food basket, on his health and on his efficiency on the war job.

What to Do About Subsidies

By the time you read this, Congress—the lower half of it—will probably have voted on the food subsidy issue, in the bill (HR 3477) to extend the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation, which is a government agency that buys commodities and resells them.

The hunger-bloc, masquerading as "farmers," has put into this bill a complete ban on the use of any public funds to save the people billions of dollars in food price increases.

As The CIO News went to press the betting odds were on a House vote to uphold Section 3 of the bill, the section that kills subsidies.

If this happens, this is what every worker who wants to go on eating and wants to be able to buy food at reasonable prices must do:

Write, wire, visit your Senators to demand that Section 3 be left out of the Senate version of the bill, that the bill be passed with no ban on subsidies, and that Senators take quick and decisive action.

Subsidies mean more food at more reasonable prices. A ban on subsidies means less food, higher prices, even more fantastic profits for the food monopoly.

Smith Leads Smear Job on Price Control

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Timed with this week's showdown on the food subsidy issue, the Smith smear committee in the House issued a violent attack on OPA that added up to a demand for complete scrapping of the price control law.

The committee, headed by Howard W. Smith (polltaxer, Va.) was set up earlier this year for the purpose of doing a job on U. S. government war agencies, and began with OPA as the agency most concerned with food prices to war workers.

Masking its attack under a pretended concern for "constitutionality," the Smith committee indicated that a new law to wreck the whole principle of price control would be submitted to Congress. This follows Smith's pattern set in his notorious "investigation" of the Natl. Labor Relations Board some years ago, which resulted in a strong fight to kill the Wagner Act.

Criticizing the Smith smear report, the Congressional Committee for the Protection of Consumers (the "Fighting 60") headed by Rep. Scanlon (D., Pa.), said that it "undermines this vital war agency, weakens the OPA's effectiveness in its fight for price control, and thereby substantially increases the possibility of even further increasing living costs for the American people."

Scanlon's reply also pointed out that nowhere does the Smith report take up any of the real weaknesses of the OPA, such as its failure to fight for grade labeling, its saturation with industry agents in major price policy jobs, and its weaknesses in enforcing price control regulations.

In fact, the Smith report, as Scanlon's Committee said, gives inflation agents "comfort and a new weapon in their fight against our war government's anti-inflation program."

3-1 Steel Victory

Cleveland, Nov. 20—An election conducted by the NLRB among employes of the Browning Crane & Shovel Co. here was won 156 to 54 by the CIO United Steelworkers of America. Negotiations for a contract will start shortly, stated USA-CIO Director William F. Donovan.

Flout Rights of Workers

Winson-Salem, N. C., Nov. 18—The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. this week made a last-minute stab at preventing its employes from choosing the CIO as bargaining agent for better wages, hours and working conditions. In an unprecedented move, the company through a phoney employes association got the Forsyth County Superior Court to enjoin the Natl. Labor Relations Board from holding an election scheduled for November 18 and 19.

The move was denounced by Frank Hargrove, chairman of the CIO Cannery, Agricultural, Packing & Allied Workers Tobacco Workers Organizing Committee, as a bare-faced thwarting of rights of workers and as defiance of the federal government.

Hargrove said that Regional NLRB Dir. W. M. Aicher has announced compliance with the court order "in the interest of orderliness even though we have the full conviction that the court has no jurisdiction and even though we consider the order a usurpation of power."

Hargrove quoted Aicher as saying that the NLRB "will act immediately to make sure that Reynolds employes will be able to exercise their rights just as these rights have been exercised by four and a half million other workers."

Public to Be Cheated By Grade Label Ban

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Without grade labelling the consumer will be cheated as much as 33 per cent on foods and 44 per cent on textiles, 13 consumers' groups told Economic Stabilizer Fred M. Vinson in an appeal this week for restoration of quality labels on foods and other commodities.

Under present OPA regulations, which follow Congress' order of last summer barring grade labelling, several qualities of products may be packed under one and the same brand, and no one will be the wiser, the latter to Vinson pointed out.

Present OPA practice of issuing commodity price ceilings without grade labels as a guide is made meaningless by the fact that the "number of brands is legion, and new brands confront the buyer with bewildering frequency."

The group reminded Vinson that his reasons for ordering grade labelling of meat last August also apply to canned goods and other commodities just as sharply. The letter quoted Vinson's meat order, in which he said:

"Without grade marketing of meat, no consumer could know whether he was paying legal prices for meat," and thus cannot do the consumer's necessary part in enforcing price ceilings by refusing to pay prices above them.

The letter was signed by Donald Montgomery for the UAW-CIO, by Eleanor Fowler for the CIO Auxiliaries, and by 11 other consumers, women's and civic groups.

Polltax Victory Near

The bill to end the polltax (H.R. 7) has been passed by the House and favorably reported by the Senate committee. Any one Senator can now call it up on the floor, and a majority vote in the Senate can give the right to vote to 10 million disfranchised American citizens.

BUT there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip. A handful of wilful Senators from polltax states is determined to stop at nothing to prevent democracy being made effective for the people of those states.

They can only do this by stopping democratic procedure from following its normal course in the Senate, since few Senators will be willing to vote for the polltax and against democracy, if confronted with the clear-cut issue.

The polltaxers will therefore probably try one or more of the following tactics:

(1) To stall off Senate action till next year, on the grounds of rush of other business.

(2) To bring up the O'Mahoney constitutional amendment on the Senate floor, though it has been defeated in committee. This would require ratification by 36 state legislatures and mean endless delay. It is a device to prevent speedy passage of H.R. 7.

(3) To introduce one amendment after another to delay action and distort or emasculate the anti-polltax bill.

(4) To filibuster the bill to death or until some backstairs deal can be made to sidetrack it.

All such efforts can be defeated, if Senate supporters of polltax repeal show sufficient determination.

Any one of them can bring the bill on the floor immediately, amendments can be defeated by majority vote, and a two-thirds vote for cloture will effectively dispose of any filibuster attempt.

Write or wire your Senators at once, urging them to call up H.R. 7 at once; to vote down all amendments; to keep the anti-polltax bill on the floor until passed; to make no deals with filibusterers, and to vote cloture to kill any filibuster.

The White-Collared

From its very inception, the CIO has fought the battles of the white-collar workers.

It set out to organize them in unions specially adapted to their needs in the world of modern industry.

The white-collar unions of the CIO have won many improvements in salaries and conditions for their members, keeping pace in these respects with the unions of industrial workers, many of which also include the white-collared.

It is true many millions of white-collar workers still remain unorganized, suffering the fate of all people who do not organize and stick together.

But these millions too have benefited from the great gains won for all labor by the CIO. When a CIO union wins an increase for industrial workers, for instance, it is not uncommon for employers to grant raises to their salaried employes as well.

At all times, the CIO has been the one outstanding champion of the white-collared, constantly calling attention to their plight, demanding improvements in their conditions and opening the door of opportunity and organization to them.

But now suddenly there comes an outpouring of crocodile tears about the plight of the white-collared from the reactionary press and other big-business interests, whose only concern with them in the past has been to exploit them and keep them unorganized.

In order to drive a wedge between salaried and wage workers, to weaken all labor, these interests are starting to draw comparisons between the conditions of unorganized white-collar workers and organized industrial workers, and to play off one group against the other.

But this game is too slick and phoney to deceive anyone for long. For all salaried and wage workers stand to gain from labor's efforts to adjust wage standards to increased living costs.

The net effect, we predict, will be to help countless white-collared workers realize they too should organize to remedy the inequities from which they suffer; and to play their part, along with the rest of labor, in establishing a better balance between wages, salaries and living costs and in fighting the battle against inflation through strict price control, fair taxes and the rest of labor's program.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

AMID all the hullaballoo about food subsidies, one substantial group of Americans hasn't gotten in a word edgewise.

They happen to be absent on important business. They have left Congress to keep their house in order until they return.

But Congress has opened the door wide to a bunch of profiteers, who are having a whale of a spree. "Another little drink won't do us any harm," they hiccup, "we can just charge it."

So when the boys come marching home—yes, you guessed who our unconsulted Americans are—they will be presented with bills they did not incur.

They will have to pay, along with the rest of the plain people, for the failures of price control, for the blocking of subsidies, and for the rest of the inflation which the high-cost-of-living crowd are whooping up in Congress today.

★ ★ ★

Labor, and particularly the CIO, is the one group that has fought consistently to keep our house in order till the boys come home.

It agreed to wage stabilization and demanded in season and out of season that the line also be held on prices, profits and everything else.

The administration, too, has made some effort to hold the line. But it has yielded again and again to the profiteers, as is shown by increased living costs and the fact OPA is still allowing price increases.

Labor has had to exert constant pressure to make the administration do even as much as it has done to check inflation.

On the other side, fighting both labor and the administration, is the shameless profiteers' lobby, which has actually commanded a majority in Congress consistently opposing every effort to keep down prices and curtail war profits.

Samples of this lobby's work are the Smith committee's report denouncing OPA, not for its weaknesses but for trying to enforce price control, and the continuing congressional fight against subsidies.

The promise to roll back prices to the level of Sept. 15, 1942, has not been kept. That is why labor now has to demand wage adjustments to restore the balance.

But labor has not given up the fight against inflation. It is fighting all the harder for subsidies and price control, knowing the issue today is not so much one of rolling back as of preventing a disastrous rolling forward.

If Congress bans subsidies, the prices of more than 24 basic food items will immediately increase 4 to 20%, according to competent authorities; and OPA Administrator Bowles says a 10% increase in prices, resulting from a subsidy ban, would increase the cost of the war by at least 15 billion dollars.

It is true a saving in living costs for the worker may be more than offset by an increase in his taxes. But this is an argument for subsidies, not against them.

For the government buys 55% of our war goods and spends about 100 billion dollars yearly. To spend one billion in subsidies, to keep prices at their present level, is therefore far more economical than to let prices rise 10%—which means the government has to spend 10 billion more for its purchases.

Furthermore, the effects of price increases are cumulative and progressive. As the inflationary spiral winds higher and higher, wages enter a losing race with prices, war costs and taxes increase progressively, and savings and spending money begin to lose their value.

So the subsidy issue boils down to this: With adequate subsidies, there is some chance to control prices, without squeezing the farmer and small businessman, and war costs and taxes can be kept within reasonable limits.

But if subsidies are banned, there is no other way of keeping prices down. Labor will be squeezed more and more by rising living costs. The government will have to pay more and more for its purchases, necessitating higher and higher taxes. And the whole country will be threatened with the horrors of inflation.

Who will pay the bill for the price-profiteers' spree? It will be paid by the workers, the farmers and everyone else in higher living costs and taxes, and by all who will find their pensions, insurance or other savings cut in half by inflation.

And, worst of all, it will also be paid by our fighting men, behind whose backs this crime against our country will have been committed.

Demands on the National Wage Front

UE Asks Pay Hikes, Stable War Economy

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—The CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers Union this week called for wage adjustments to meet rising living costs, urged a strong fight for economic stabilization as proposed by President Roosevelt, and asked for a flexible War Labor Board policy to bring wages up to living costs and to remove unjust pay differentials.

The UE, in a 1943 wage policy statement, also urged:

1. Extension of union safeguards around methods of wage payment so that wages will keep pace with production for both incentive and day workers.

2. Elimination of regional, local and plant inequalities, with the establishment of industry-wide wage standards.

The UE said that President Roosevelt's seven-point stabilization program aimed at preventing disastrous inflation, "has been sabotaged in its essentials by enemies of labor, enemies of the Administration, and enemies of the war effort."

WAGES FROZEN

The UE pointed out that the WLB froze wages, so far as any cost of living increases are concerned, by the application of the 15 per cent increase allowed under the Little Steel formula.

"Political obstruction of the other elements in the stabilization program," the UE declared, "prevented effective control of living costs, limited rationing, imposed burdensome taxation and otherwise so disrupted the stabilization program that within a very brief period a dangerous and troublesome disparity had been erected between frozen wages and rising living costs."

The UE declared that continued obstruction of the President's stabilization program has resulted in an even greater difference between wages and living costs during 1943.

STABILIZATION VITAL

The UE said that if a sound and stable relationship is to be established between wages, taxes and living costs, the Little Steel formula must be replaced by a wage formula that will remove the "gross inequity between wage rates and the cost of living, and that will be flexible enough to keep pace with living costs until such time as national economic stabilization is achieved."

"Even with this," the UE said, "national economic stabilization remains of the first importance in any attempt to solve the wage problem, as without it whatever new formula may be devised will almost immediately become outmoded and inadequate."

Davis Would Join Union To Hike Pay

Washington, Nov. 20—The nation's white collar workers should take a tip from the chairman of the War Labor Board, William H. Davis. At a press conference this week, Davis was questioned about how an unorganized white collar worker could get pay increases under WLB machinery.

"Well," said Davis, "one way is to join an organization. That is the way I would do it."

OK Ban On Race Bias In K. C. Pact

Washington, Nov. 20—A Government contract containing the disputed anti-discrimination clause has been signed by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of Kansas City, Mo., Chairman Malcolm Ross of the Fair Employment Practice Committee announced this week.

The signing of the contract was held up when the company questioned whether or not the insertion of an anti-discrimination clause was mandatory. The Comptroller General's opinion that it was merely a directive and was not mandatory was overruled early this month by President Roosevelt.

In a letter to the Comptroller General, the President said that he wished to make it perfectly clear "that these provisions are mandatory and should be incorporated in all Government contracts. The order should be so construed by all government agencies."

Boost Wages 10c An Hour, Textile Union Urges

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—A demand for a general wage increase of not less than 10 cents an hour for all textile workers was made today by the National Executive Council of the CIO Textile Workers Union.

The demand calls for the establishment of a minimum wage of not less than 60 cents an hour in the cotton branch of the textile industry, not less than 65 cents an hour in the woolen branch of the industry, and commensurate minimum wages in all other divisions of textiles.

Present wage policies of the government, the National Executive Board pointed out, are freezing in poverty textile workers who historically have been the most depressed group of workers in the United States. Such policies also are having a harmful effect upon production, reflecting shortages in tire fabrics for the armed forces and work clothes and infants' wear for the civilian market.

The Textile Workers' demands will be for increases by industry and by occupation within industry. Uniformity will be sought, so that all workers doing the same job in the same industry, whether in New England or the South, the Midwest or the Pacific Coast, will get the same pay.

$260,000,000 MORE

The wage increases demanded would give America's 1,250,000 textile workers a gross increase of $260,000,000 a year, income which is needed to keep them abreast of the rising cost of living, to maintain morale, and to encourage production.

Contracts affecting 450,000 textile workers are now open or about to be opened and demands will be made immediately upon employers.

The TWU said that in its opinion the Little Steel formula is dead.

"With the cost of living rising, with workers frozen onto their jobs at frozen wages, the "Little Steel" formula cannot be permitted to impair the morale, health and efficiency of those who are engaged in vital production for the war effort," the TWU stated.

Blast Times for Fight Against Pay Boosts

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—Two of CIO's major white collar unions this week took the N. Y. TIMES to task for its attempt to split off white collar from industrial workers and thus sabotage the wage demands of both groups. A sharply worded statement from one of the unions—the State, County & Municipal Workers—said:

"The N. Y. TIMES' sudden and over-wrought concern with the plight of white collar and government employes is deemed in organized local government circles a spectacular and unparalleled piece of hypocrisy.

"The real intent of the TIMES is to attack the wage standards of industrial workers by pitting white collar versus industrial workers, and thus to block the need of all workers for genuine cost of living wage increases now."

The SCMWA was joined by the United Office & Professional Workers Union in demanding wage adjustments beyond the 15 per cent granted under the Little Steel formula and in fully supporting President Roosevelt's seven-point economic stabilization program to prevent inflation. The UOPWA said in a letter to the TIMES that:

"The main reason for the sad condition of the white collar workers since the shift-over to a war economy is due to the fact that the President's seven-point economic program has been torpedoed by reactionaries in Congress and in the country

BACK STABILIZATION PLAN

"The salaried workers, like all workers in this country, need satisfactory adjustments in their compensation to meet the added burdens that have come to every individual as a result of the increased costs of living.

"While achieving this, of course, we have to understand that unless genuine economic stabilization is instituted that such wage and salary adjustments will prove meaningless."

The UOPWA called for relaxation of the Little Steel formula so that white collar workers could make up not only for the cost of living increase but also for their lower pay as compared with other workers. "This," the UOPWA said, "would anticipate a general maladjustment increase of approximately 35 per cent in place of 15 per cent."

ASK $1,800 MINIMUM

The UOPWA also urged that the War Labor Board liberalize its attitude toward granting increases for the elimination of inter-plant inequalities and for the correction of sub-standard wage conditions, and that it set up a special white collar division to deal with the problems of these workers.

Main points of the State, County & Municipal Workers' program called for an $1,800 minimum for local government service, a flat cost of living increase for all employes of this service, and for upgrading of the Little Steel formula as per CIO policy.

The SCMWA urged that the WLB take jurisdiction over state and local government workers' wage and collective bargaining disputes.

A Soldier's Thanks

Houston, Tex., Nov. 20—Just how much American cigarettes mean to soldiers overseas was expressed in a letter written this week from Northern Island by Pvt. Robert L. Driver to Oil Workers Intl. Local 227 here. In a letter of appreciation he said:

"Lots of us our southerners and we're glad to know you people are thinking of us. If all the people back home are as concerned about us as much as you, then it won't be long before the 'lights go on again'."

Keep Your Eye On Congress

Congress this week will make a decision that directly affects your eating habits, when the House votes on the CCC bill (HR 3477). As The CIO NEWS went to press, the vote was set for Saturday, Nov. 20, or Monday, Nov. 22.

The bill, whose Section 3 bars use of subsidies to increase food production or roll back prices, will most likely come on the floor with a gag rule—that is, it must be voted up or down, without amendments.

If the bill, including the subsidy ban, is voted down, the House will have to try again, since CCC funds expire in December. If the bill with Section 3 is passed, it will go to the Senate through the Senate Agriculture Committee. Gag rules are not permitted in the Senate, so Section 3 can be stricken out and the subsidy ban killed.

If the Senate passes the bill with Section 3 in it, it will go to the President for signature or veto.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
CCC bill (HR 3477)	As put to House, Sec. 3 bars all subsidies for food output, price rollback.	House vote expected by Nov. 22. Senate vote next.	If subsidy ban holds, wire Senators to amend bill by removing ban.
Polltax repeal (HR 7)	Brings 10 million Americans into democracy.	Reported out of Senate Judiciary Committee, can be called on Senate floor any time.	Keep pressure on Senators for quick vote, no amendments, cloture to kill filibusters.
Tax bill	Your new taxes, added to what you already pay. No real taxing of wealth, profits.	Out of House Ways and Means Committee, House action expected within two weeks. Gag rule probable.	Urge your Representative to oppose gag rule, work for CIO win-the-war tax plan.
HR 2328, HJ Res. 49	Forbid mailing anti-Semitic, anti-Negro, etc., material. Blow to native Fascists, race-baiters.	Hearings ended in sub-committee of House Post Office Committee (Sam Weiss, D., Pa., Chmn.) Favorable report expected.	Write your Representative to work and vote for early passage.
Social Security, (S 1161, HR 2861)	Greatly extend scope of benefits, increase payments, services; aid servicemen.	In Senate Finance Committee (Sen. George, polltaxer, Ga., Chmn.), which is stalling hearings.	Urge your Senators to work for early hearings, favorable report and floor action.

This Week's 'Debunker'

WLB Says Most Pay Hikes Don't Up Prices

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—The old song and dance that wage increases automatically mean price increases took a terrific beating this week, in the seventh monthly report of the Natl. War Labor Board, submitted to the U. S. Senate.

The WLB said that "in only about 2 per cent of the 48,000 establishments for which a voluntary application for wage or salary rate adjustment was approved by the regional offices of the Natl. WLB between October 3, 1942, and August 31, 1943, did the applicant state he would request increases in price ceilings in the event of board approval."

While the WLB said that no attempt could be made to determine the number of cases in which an increase in price ceilings actually has been atuhorized by the OPA, this comment was added:

"It is not only true that the vast majority of voluntary applicants are able to absorb the proposed increase in wage or salary rates without raising the cost of their products or services to the public, but even in cases where price relief is sought, the approved wage increase is only one of several reasons advanced as justification for price increases."

3,000 L-M Groups

Washington, Nov. 20—More than six million workers in war plants, shipyards and mines are covered by some 3,000 Labor-Management Production Committees now registered in the War Production Drive, according to the War Production Board.

Auxiliaries Back CIO Fight for Subsidies

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

"Subsidies mean more food at prices people can pay" is the heading of a leaflet just issued by the CIO Congress of Women's Auxiliaries and sent to every affiliated auxiliary.

Congress is debating the issue right now in the Commodity Credit Corporation bill. Section 3 of that bill forbids all subsidies to hold the line on food prices or to help farmers meet war costs.

The auxiliary leaflet appeals to every member to write today to her Congressman urging him to vote against any provision banning subsidies.

Here are the main arguments:

1. Subsidies hold food prices down—if they are forbidden by Congress, bread will go up a cent a loaf, butter 5 cents a pound, milk a cent a quart, potatoes two or three cents a pound, etc.

2. Increased food prices would mean less war production because workers could buy less food and "people cannot work long hours on war jobs without plenty of food to keep them healthy."

3. Subsidies to farmers are needed to help them plant new crops and produce more food.

4. Subsidies cost the government much less than price increases because the government buys 55% of our war goods and price increases mean increased war costs far above the cost of subsidies.

UAW, NMU COOPERATE

The auxiliaries are on the job. Mildred Partlow, consumer chairman of the Newspaper Guild Auxiliary, has sent a special letter to every local which says in part:

"Probably the most important single task facing our auxiliary is an immediate and all-out mobilization of popular support for the President's firm stand of November 2 for subsidies and price rollback." The letter urges action to get letters in to Congressmen "demanding the junking of the prohibition against subsidies."

UAW auxiliaries have been pushing the program right along. Their most recent undertaking is sponsorship of a Consumer Conference for joint labor-farmer-community action on the inflation front, scheduled for December 12 in Detroit.

NMU auxiliaries in New York and other parts are pressing for subsidies. Their newly organized Houston, Texas, local is making this the central issue around which they are building membership.

In addition to a letter writing campaign they've launched a drive to organize consumer groups in neighborhoods to involve all housewives in supporting the stabilization program.

New Auxiliary Pamphlet

Washington, Nov. 20—"Let's Get Organized" is the title of the CIO Auxiliary Manual just issued by the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO. The title page carries this quotation from President Philip Murray: "I urge our CIO affiliates to cooperate with and support the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries in its work to mobilize the women in our homes and in our communities behind the CIO program."

Every aspect of auxiliary work is covered in this 24 page pamphlet. It tells why auxiliaries are important, their role in helping the CIO, and gives in some detail the steps necessary to establish a new auxiliary on a firm foundation. It lists the most important committees and their functions and puts special emphasis on political action, price control and war activities—especially the welfare of our servicemen.

The final section of the Manual stresses the vital importance of work with the union, and urges each auxiliary body to strive to become, in President Murray's words, "an established part of our union machinery."

There's a Bit of Spinach, Some Sound Sense in 'Why Women Cry'

By FRED d'AVILA

"Why Women Cry" is a 221-page book by a member of the CIO United Auto Workers Union who describes herself as an "ex-She-Wolf," who says she's now a "wench," who used to be a dress designer, and who once wrote a book entitled "Fashion Is Spinach."

The name of the author is Elizabeth Hawes, with a husband, a five-year-old son and enough independence, gumption and vitality to set off a powder keg under anyone's preconceived opinions. Her latest publication mixes a little spinach with some sound sense.

Miss Hawes

Miss Hawes' major asset is a frankness as startling as it is pleasant.

She's 100 per cent for unions but strongly condemns the anti-female attitudes of a lot of union officials who should know better.

She's highly critical of women—dividing them according to class into "Contented Cows, Forgotten Females, Ladies, Les Riches Bitches, The Rich-Not-Bitches, Gentlewomen and Not-So-Gentlewomen, Equal-Righters, Clubwomen, She-Wolves, Women-workers, Common Women and Wenches"—yet despite her cynicism she sees a chance for the salvation of all of them—and gets in a plug for it.

She reveals herself as about the most highly developed individualist imaginable, yet says that socialism "is nothing but a system whereby everything is run for the benefit of everyone and owned by everyone, instead of a system where almost everything is run for the benefit of a few people and owned by those people."

TELLING ARGUMENT

Miss Hawes makes a mighty telling argument for the emancipation of women from household drudgery. She says they are "wenches" because they're always tied down to family responsibilities and never get a chance to develop as adult women. She claims that this lack of development is reflected in most men—who don't become real adults either.

Miss Hawes makes a strong plea for adequate child care, for community cooking, for decent housing that can easily be cleaned so that women won't be tied to broom handles and wash boards the major part of their lives.

The basis for Miss Hawes' book was a production job she held in the Wright Aeronautical Plant at Paterson, N. J., where she learned at first hand that the so-called highly paid war workers aren't making a mint of money.

CRACK AT RICKENBACKER

Taking a crack at Rickenbacker, she says that "the idea that the average worker in any war industry is highly paid or, as is popularly supposed, bathes daily in champagne, is sheer Nazi propaganda."

Miss Hawes doesn't come right out and say so, but it's pretty plain that she had her book in mind when she took the job. Her seemingly superficial piece of writing, that a lot of people would consider an interesting present for a sick friend, is packed full of some sensible observations.

To Miss Hawes' credit, she entered what appears to have been a fairly chaotic union situation as a liberal, and came out not only unsoured but stronger than ever for the rights of workers to organize.

Selly Heads Health Assn.

New York, Nov. 20—Joseph P. Selly, president of the CIO American Communications Assn. has been elected to the Board of Directors of Group Health Cooperative, Inc. Selly's election followed endorsement by the CIO Council of the Group Health Plan for medical and surgical care, the Cooperative announced.

WHAT IS

"The American Way?"

* * *

We hear a great deal about "The American Way of Life." The phrase has come to mean all things to all people and to have a certain "patness" that seems to need no further definition.

But what is "The American Way"—what makes it better than any other way—what makes it worth the lives of strong young men?

At Reo we think of "The American Way" as that system of life in which each man respects the rights of the other and concedes the importance of working out together our destiny as a free nation. So "The American Way" is not a mysterious code reserved for legislative halls or embalmed in history. It is a vital force that makes men work together in harmony toward a mutually beneficial goal. It is the spirit that lies behind every warm hand-shake, every boyhood dream of success, every bright chapter in American progress.

Firms like Reo—rooted deep in American tradition—have seen "The American Way" of life survive the strains of 40 years and rise to its highest accomplishment in America's present need. This, we think, answers the question: "What is The American Way?"

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

Reg. Dir. Frank Bender of Maryland and staff lead-off for the new fiscal year with the following victories: Pangborn Co., Hagerstown, Md.: UAW 408, IAM-AFL 58, neither 49. Maintenance of membership contract had been held here by the AFL Machinists for the past two years. American Smelting & Refining Co., Baltimore: CIO 737, Copper Employes Assn., Inc., 443. Juliam P. Friez Co., subsidiary of Bendix Corp., Baltimore: UERMWA 769, American Radio Assn. 313, no union 175.

This makes 12 victories for CIO in this area since Reg. Dir. Bender's report prepared for our National Convention. Real activity is going on in and around the Baltimore area. He has succeeded in bringing about in large measure fullest cooperation between the CIO and affiliated organizations.

We are expecting the same results from every regional, sub-regional director and organizer on our staff. There must be no let-up in making this year the biggest year ever in organizing the unorganized.

Let's go! Everybody on their toes! Bring the unorganized into the folds of the CIO!

British Engineering Union Hits Machinists' Strike

LONDON, Nov. 20 (ALN)—At a national emergency conference held here this week, delegates representing more than 900,000 members of the Amalgamated Engineering Union condemned the leaders of the recent strike of Barrow machinists for playing "parochial politics" and unanimously endorsed the AEU executive board's no-strike policy.

At the same time the 2-day conference, biggest held by the AEU in 21 years, launched a drive for a general wage increase throughout the engineering industry and called upon the government to prosecute inefficient and anti-labor employers.

Warning that "feudal firms" such as Vickers-Armstrong (employer in the Barrow strike) are deliberately increasing their provocation of the workers, while making unprecedented profits, AEU president Jack Tanner stated:

"We must combat this provocation not by strikes, but by united action by the unions. Existing machinery for arbitration must be overhauled, so that long delays in settling disputes can be eliminated."

As a means of strengthening the bargaining position of the workers and increasing their aid to the war effort, the conference voted to intensify the AEU's campaign for amalgamation of the many unions existing in the engineering and metal industries into a single union.

It was also decided, in view of the rapidly increasing membership, to appoint more full-time paid AEU officials. Despite its huge size, the AEU still has fewer than 100 full-time workers on its payroll.

Has 8 Kids, Drives 80 Miles A Day to Job

Baltimore, Nov. 20—If you feel you have a tough time holding down an exacting war job, take a look at Mrs. Louise Bowie, mother of eight children, who drives 80 miles a day to and from work at the Glenn L. Martin bomber plant near here.

Mrs. Bowie, who's a member of the CIO United Workers Union which recently won an election at the plant, thinks nothing of handling her job as a drill press operator and tending to her family as well.

The children range in age from 20 months to 13 years. Mrs. Bowie is 32. She has been working at Martin's for 18 months. Her husband, Walter, is also a Martin employe. The family living at Severna Park, Maryland.

"I like my work and feel I can help to get this war over sooner by helping to build the planes our boys need," she told the CIO NEWS. "I wouldn't want my children to work in a Hitler country.

"I'm for the CIO because if we all stick together we can improve conditions and get out more production for our boys over there."

Blasts AFL For Shunning Intl. Unity

London, Nov. 20 (ALN)—sharply criticizing the AFL executive council for refusing to associate with the Soviet trade unions, Will Lawther, president of the Miners Federation of Great Britain, this week told a Newcastle-on-Tyne meeting organized by the National Council for British-Soviet Unity:

"I say emphatically that it is treason to all who have given their lives in this struggle to overthrow fascism for any labor group to raise barriers in the way of international trade union unity."

Lawther praised the TUC general council for having called for a world conference of trade unions "irrespective of their different political ideologies" and added: "Some of our trade union colleagues in the United States raise bogies about whether or not the Russian unions are what they term 'free unions.'

"My reply is this: Not only are the Russian unionists free, but together with other allied unionists, they are shedding their blood in order to build a world in which unions can live, develop and find solutions to problems besetting the workers."

CIO Prints Free 'Comic' To Fight Bias

Washington, Nov. 20—The CIO has taken another effective step to carry out the recent Convention mandate to fight discrimination because of race, color or religion.

The CIO this week made available for free distribution by affiliated unions an eight-page "comic" strip entitled, "They Got the Blame. The Story of Scapegoats in History."

The strip tells a vivid story in color of scapegoats, from the days of primitive man, through the Roman period and the persecution of the Christians, the persecution of witches in this country, and the later discrimination against Negroes, Irish and Catholics, to the treatment of the Jews by the Nazis and their efforts to spread such hatred in this country.

Demand Union Rights Under AMG in Sicily

ALGIERS, Nov. 20 (ALN)—The full text of the Allied Military Government's order restoring the Camera del Lavoro (Trade Union Center) in Palermo is contained in a copy of Sicilia Liberata, only newspaper published in the Sicilian capital, which arrived here this week.

While welcoming AMG's action as a "move in the right direction," the newspaper makes three sharp criticisms:

1. The director and staff of the center are to be appointed under AMG supervision instead of elected by the union members.

2. Present wage contracts—negotiated by Fascist officials and employers—remain in force.

3. All public meetings remain banned by AMG. Charles Poletti, former Lt. governor of New York, is AMG officer in charge of civilian affairs in Sicily.

"CARDS ON TABLE"

"The situation demands the restoration of democratic rights, freedom of speech, press and assembly and above all, the removal of all Fascists from positions of responsibility in government agencies," the newspaper says in an editorial entitled "Cards on the Table."

"All positions of responsibility must be held by proven anti-Fascists. This is the appeal we make to the Allied authorities. This is no time to take a middle course. To entrust positions of authority to those who tomorrw would become our executioners would be a grave and unforgivable error. The time has come to assume the responsibilities for our own future."

Throughout Italy and Sicily, until Mussolini substituted the National Fascist Syndicates for the free trade unions, every major town had its Camera del Lavoro, where all working class groups had their offices and meeting halls.

In Sicily, as in Italy, anti-Fascist groups existed despite the dissolution of their own unions and the repressions of the hated Carabinieri (Fascist police).

The anti-Fascists in Sicily were particularly active during the past two years under the leadership of two main groups, the Fronte della Liberata (Freedom Front), composed of all political groups including Socialists, Republicans, Communists and Liberals, and the Fronte del Lavoro (Workers Front), whose special aim was to fight the Fascist trade unions and oppose their oppression of the workers.

Sicilia Liberata reports that after the November, 1942, Allied landings in North Africa, these two groups merged to form the Movement of National Liberation. Members of this group were responsible for the death of many Nazi soldiers and officers and repeated acts of sabotage on communications.

Twenty-four hours before any Allied soldier had set foot in Sicily, armed citizens of Palermo, organized by the Movement of National Liberation, were sniping at Nazi soldiers from windows and rooftops.

16 Nations' Unionists Back Argentine Anti-Fascist Fight

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20 (ALN)—Public demonstrations in support of Argentine workers now striking against the pro-fascist Ramirez government took place in 16 Latin American countries this week, under direction of the Confederation of Latin American Workers. In calling for the demonstrations, CTAL president Vincente Lombardo Toledano said:

"We urge all our affiliates to show solidarity with the Argentine people and protest against the pro-fascist regime of General Pedro Ramirez. In this manner the Argentine people, supported by the entire Western Hemisphere, will be able to take such action as they may consider necessary to regain their country's freedom."

Workers on strike in Buenos Aires and nearby areas by Oct. 29 totaled 280,000, including 130,000 construction workers, 75,000-80,000 packinghouse workers in Avelaneda and La Plata, 32,000 in various factories, 8,000 railwaymen, 3,000 tramway workers and an estimated 20,000 in scattered industries. Members of the railway and tramway unions are striking despite orders to the contrary from their nominal executives, appointed by the government-controlled labor organization.

Meanwhile, from Montevideo it is learned that General Armando Verdaguer declared in Buenos Aires on Oct. 29 that he has taken "all measures to prevent a general strike. The government knows that a revolutionary strike is being prepared. The authorities, however, will make sure that public security is maintained in the streets and factories and that those employes who wish to work will be protected. All those who try to limit the freedom of others to work will be immediately arrested and severely dealt with."

ARREST 130 UNIONISTS

In dawn raids on Oct. 29, police arrested 130 union members in La Plata on orders of Col. Juan Peron, secretary of the War Ministry and chief of the National Labor Department, and sent them to the Neuquen concentration camp in desolate Patagonia. With them went 47 additional labor leaders arrested in Buenos Aires on Oct. 27, swelling the total arrested unionists to well over 15,000.

Among the Buenos Aires prisoners were members of all political parties, including the conservative Radical Party. In the group sent to Neuquen was Benito Marianetti, leader of the Socialist moderates and former senator. Marianetti supported collaboration with the United Nations, but frequently attacked the communists.

Extraordinarily violent measures are being taken to suppress the Argentine strikes, Montevideo labor leaders in contact with the Argentine situation reveal. They report the case of Francisco Martini, a member of the Federation of Construction Workers, who was arrested for distributing alleged communist propaganda.

When Martini refused to divulge the propaganda source, his two sons, both minors, were arrested, placed in the cell next to him, and severely beaten for several hours.

UAW Takes Fisher Vote

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 22 — Another smashing election victory for the CIO United Auto Workers was won here last week at the giant Fisher Aircraft No. 2 plant of the General Motors Corp. The election, conducted by the Natl. Labor Relations Board among 98 per cent of the plant's production employes, was won by the UAW-CIO by an 87 per cent majority, announced UAW Vice Pres. Richard T. Frankensteen, who is in charge of the union's Aircraft Dept.

Three AFL craft unions won elections conducted among 27 per cent of the remaining employes. UAW Regional Director Paul E. Miley said negotiations for a contract will start immediately. UAW Local 290 had previously been certified as sole bargaining agent for the cafeteria workers in this plant.

"Psst . . . I just learned those opera stars belong to a union."

Monty-Ward Off Again! Sues CIO for $1,000,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—Latest move in the war being waged by Montgomery-Ward, big mail order house here, against the CIO union to which its employes belong, is a suit for $1,000,000 filed against 14 officers of the union in the superior Court.

A few days earlier the company announced that it would no longer abide by the contract signed with the union, the United Retail, Wholesale & Department Store Employes.

A year ago when the company refused to comply with a maintenance of membership clause ordered unanimously by the War Labor Board, President Roosevelt backed up the Board and requested the firm to accept the Board's ruling. Sewell L. Avery, Monty-Ward's chief mogul, finally gave in with bad grace, after spending some $400,000 for national newspaper ads attacking the union.

In commenting on the company's million dollar suit, Chicago Local 20 of the union said that "Avery has gone haywire in a frantic attempt to smash the union." The local said the charge made against the union of conspiring to make "employes fear, dislike and distrust the company and become less productive," is a hysterical gesture.

"Avery can take full credit for the fact that Ward workers do dislike and distrust him," the local stated. "They have good reason to. He has never stopped fighting them. He has used every trick at his command to violate their rights."

The local declared that Avery was "lying in his teeth" when he said that he is opposed only to maintenance of membership and not to unions.

"We know that no union can exist which is robbed of its security," the local stated. "We know that his raving and ranting against the union security clause is a cloak for his hatred of unions and every other expression of democracy."

A company bulletin attacking the union which was handed to the workers was denounced by the union as "a masterpiece of lies."

"Avery's brand of freedom is freedom to smash your wages, to keep you in a state of perpetual fear and economic slavery," the local told the workers.

"Avery's idea of freedom is the freedom of a dictatorial employer to run your life without even consulting you. It is the liberty of a tyrant who wants to be responsible to none. It is the freedom of the few with wealth and power to defy the law and smash the worker's only weapon—his union."

Ex-CIO News Reporter Tells Eye-Witness Story Of Big Schweinfurt Raid

Washington, Nov. 20—A former CIO NEWS reporter this week wrote the most exciting story of his life, and darned near lost it in the bargain. The name is Sgt. Walter Peters. The story is about the famous Schweinfurt raid when American Flying Fortresses blasted Germany's second largest ball-bearing plant with everything except the navigator's instruments.

Peters was lucky enough not to be among the 593 Americans who lost their lives when the Nazis shot down 60 Fortresses.

Peters, who hails from Providence, R. I., went along on the trip to write a story about it—simple but packed with dynamite, like:

"There were fighters everywhere, but mostly on our tail. 'The whole goddam Luftwaffey is out today,' somebody said over the inter-phone. There were the single-engined Me. 109s and twin-engined Me. 110s; there were Ju. 88s and FW 190s; there also were Me. 210s, even Dornier bombers, and God only knows what else the Germans had thrown into the fight.

Sgt. Peters

"The only things they didn't throw at the division were the plane factories themselves, or such factories as they have left to throw."

Peters, when he entered the Army, had one thought in mind—to get on YANK and write about the war. He had a soft public relations job at Camp Lee, Va., and could have stayed there in comfortable safety probably for the duration—had he wanted to. But you can see from his writing—simple and rather restrained when he must have been going through a lot of hell—that he's the kind of a guy who thrives on action.

FIGHTERS ALL AROUND

He got plenty of it on the Schweinfurt trip. There were fighters all around the Fortresses and flak so thick that "it seemed a miracle we escaped."

"There was nothing we could do about it," Peters wrote, "except take evasive action. Klohe (the 21-year-old pilot from Monterey, Cal.) did just that, beautifully.

"Suddenly we heard a loud, jangling noise, even above the roar of our four engines. We looked toward the navigator... The plate glass on his side was broken. A fragment of flak had found its mark there.

"Zorn lifted his head quickly, took off his gloves and his fur cap and felt around that part of his face not covered by the oxygen mask. He winked. He was okay. I took a deep breath—of oxygen."

The flak ceased for a moment, but enemy fighters and bombers returned to get in their dirty work.

CREW WAS COOL

"Heuser (the co-pilot) was back on the job, his cool voice calling them off again. He reminded me of a stick man at a dice game in a gambling house, but his tone had the confidence that the croupier's doesn't.

"'Fighter 11 o'clock,' Heuser announced. The navigator tracked the plane down with 50s until he was out of sight. 'Fighter 12 o'clock.' Roth followed again. 'Fighter 5 o'clock,' and Sweeney was back at his guns. 'Fighter 2 o'clock.' I grabbed my gun and tracked the German until Heuser bawled me out for using too much ammunition. I stopped fast."

There were more fighters and more flak before the big plane headed back across the English Channel for home. There was kidding back and forth among the crew like when they started off. As for Pete, "Personally, I just sat back and relaxed, pulled out a cigarette and lit it. The mission was over."

Pete is that kind of a guy.

Blames Low Output On Labor Busting

Washington, Nov. 20—The labor-busting tactics of the management of the Brewster Aircarft Co., of Long Island City, N. Y., and the firm's general inefficiency were blamed this week for its poor production record by Paul J. Krebs, secretary of Local 365, United Auto Workers in testimony before the House Naval Affairs Committee.

Krebs told the Congressmen who are investigating the situation at the plant that no one could blame the poor production on the fact that the management had signed a union contract, for an identical contract is in effect at a Newark plant managed by the same people, and production there is consistently above requirements set by the government.

"With respect to deliberate loafing in the shops," Krebs told the committee, "I am sure that by now you have learned the facts—that the dominant cause for loafing was the lack of adequate provision to insure a proper flow of materials for the men to work with. A man cannot assemble airplanes when he does not have the parts."

"Now it becomes clear," he added, "that the former management's pattern of union busting has caused unauthorized strikes and slowdowns—and not the alleged obstructionist tactics."

Krebs added a "kicker" to his testimony by pointing out that the management should have produced more than 3,000 airplanes "in the 17 long months since the seizure by the Navy," but that until the time of the Riebel management's departure not more than 400 planes were turned out.

Urges N. J. Teach History Of Labor

Newark, N. J., Nov. 20—Sol Stetin, New Jersey regional director of the CIO Textile Workers Union, this week criticized the present educational system for leaving the student ignorant of labor's history and problems, in a radio speech delivered recently in connection with National Education Week.

To remedy the situation, he urged the Governor to call a conference of labor and educational leaders of New Jersey to work out a comprehensive plan of labor education for the state's public schools. He also called upon the legislature to pass a bill requiring the State Board of Education to include a representative of each of the three major groups of organized labor on the Board.

CIO Heads to Inspect Army Training Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 — Pressing its campaign to enlist labor's support for its program of pre-induction training, the Army will be host to 25 CIO leaders at Fort Knox, Kentucky, on November 29 and 30, where the union chieftians will observe the training of specialists for the Armored Force.

The labor leaders, headed by CIO Pres. Philip Murray and Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey, will see for themselves how inductees with civilian skills move quickly through their Army specialist training to become experts in automotive mechanics and other fields related to maintenance in the Armored Force.

The program will emphasize the value of pre-induction vocational training for those union members in war industries who have no special skills and who are likely to be inducted into the Army.

CIO leaders, in addition to Murray and Carey, who will attend include:

John Green, Frank Rosenblum, Emil Rieve, Samuel Wolchok, Milton Murray, Donald Henderson, Joseph Selly, Lewis Merrill, James J. Leary, Abram Flaxer, James A. Gaynor, Adolph Rosenbaum, Harold J. Straub, O. A. Knight, Arthur Stein, Lee Pressman, Len DeCaux and C. W. Fowler.

L-M Draft Groups Hailed By Government

Washington, Nov. 20—Labor-management committees this week were urged to set up sub-committees to handle draft deferment problems. The suggestion came from the War Production Board and the Natl. Selective Service System.

The suggestion was the outgrowth of a system that has been in successful operation for over a year at the N. Y. Shipbuilding Corp., in Camden, N. J. Management and the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, which represents the employes, cooperate to see that draft deferments are handled fairly and efficiently.

The plan has been hailed by Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of Selective Service.

CIO Unions Buy $760 Million in Bonds

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Nine CIO unions alone had bought $760 million worth of war bonds up to Oct. 1, the U. S. Treasury Dept. revealed this week in releasing an incomplete survey of union activity in "backing the attack."

The total, translated into weapons, adds up to: eight of the biggest battleships or 5,250 60-ton tanks or 2,500 4-motored 30-ton bombers.

The following estimated totals are based on records of plants with which the unions have contractual relations:

United Automobile Workers	$277,400,000
United Steelworkers	172,240,000
United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers	100,140,000
Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers	89,125,000
United Rubber Workers	28,600,000
Textile Workers Union	35,000,000
Amalgamated Clothing Workers	28,800,000
United Packing House Workers	24,050,000
United Shoe Workers	4,450,000

Murray Demands 'Real Jobs' For All in Post-war U.S. Economy

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—American fighting men must come home to an economy that guarantees "a real job for every able-bodied American who wants to work." That was the main point made this week by CIO Pres. Philip Murray, in a speech before the Economic Club of New York. Murray defined a "real" job as "not a 'made' job, a relief job or a fake job."

"A 'real job,'" he declared, "means a job at an annual wage high enough to make possible home ownership, children and enough good food and clothing to keep them well and happy.

"The maintenance of the American home, the foundation on which our democracy rests, depends upon the opportunity of real work with decent union wages for every worker. A shortage of jobs, low pay and bad working conditions mean postponed marriages, declining birth rates and emotional insecurity."

Calling on industry to work with labor to produce the needs of peace as well as the weapons of war, Murray said:

"The willingness to work together can give us equally startling results if carried over into peacetime. Our slums can be rebuilt into homes where healthy children can play and grow. Our schools in backward and poor areas can be rebuilt and staffed with competent teachers, so that all children will receive the educational opportunity now afforded the more privileged. The good earth, our greatest natural resource, can be conserved and rehabilitated by well-formulated conservation plans."

Murray said that wartime hours "will be reduced by some amount, possibly to a national working average of less than 40 per week," but added that "we must avoid the concealed unemployment that hides behind short hours, and means only a sharing of misery."

Murray called for the encouragement of competitive enterprise, for the reduction of monopoly, for an examination of the tax program in the national interest, for the use of progressive income taxes and a ban on sales taxes which "take purchasing power from those who spend it and depress business and employment," and for a public works porgram to aid private industry to attain full employment.

Sen. Murray Blasts AMA For Fight Against Health Bill

New York, Nov. 27—The American Medical Assn. has joined forces with companies "specializing in quack medicine" to defeat the Wagner-Murray-Dingell social security-Health insurance bill designed to bring adequate medical care within the reach of all the people of the country.

That was the charge made this week by Senator James E. Murray of Montana, co-author of the bill, at a symposium on postwar medicine sponsored by the Assn. of Internes & Medical Students.

Murray charged that the AMA has received generous contributions from big drug companies to organize the Natl. Physicians Committee to fight the bill. Murray declared that the AMA organized the committee for political purposes because the AMA "was afraid to handle the fight directly."

The committee has printed and distributed pamphlets which distort the purposes of the bill and are "definitely aimed to excite prejudice and fear," Murray said.

"It is tragic," he declared, "that a bill introduced solely in order to bring more adequate medical care to all people in the U. S. should be so misinterpreted by a group which professes to represent the medical profession."

Warning

State Laws Threat To Wage-Hour Act

(Almost everyone has the idea that the fair labor standards act, known as the wage-hour law, is here to stay. Maybe it is. But the administrator celebrates the act's fifth anniversary by warning us, in a special article for Federated Press and the CIO NEWS, that labor's enemies are pushing a flank attack through legislatures.

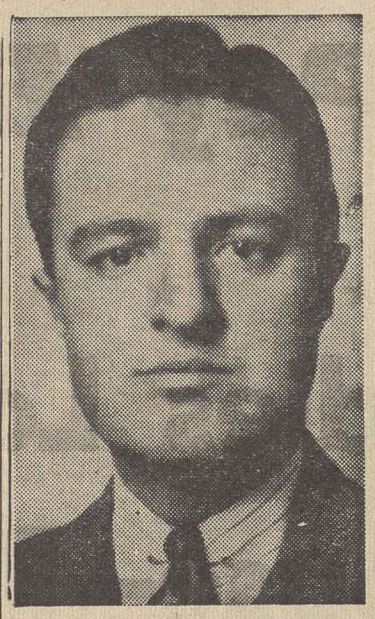
By L. METCALF WALLING

Administrator, Wage-Hour Division, U. S. Dept. of Labor

Five years ago, on October 24, 1938, the fair labor standards act went into effect. Its passage by Congress, after two years of bitter controversy, set minimum working standards for that vast section of American industry engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for interstate commerce. Today, 21,000,000 workers and more than 500,000 establishments are covered under the act.

These millions are working now with a floor under their wages. For all except a very small number, a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour is now in effect and it is in the process of being obtained for the others. While that minimum is far below what most unions have won for their members, nevertheless it represents a substantial gain to many who five years ago were working for wages as low as 10 and 15 cents an hour.

These millions are working, too, with a ceiling over straight-time hours—the 40-hour week beyond which overtime must be paid at not less than time and a half the regular rate of pay.



L. METCALF WALLING

$55 Million Recovered

Under these two provisions of the act, $55,000,000 in restitution of wages illegally withheld has been made through the wage-hour division. And, although there is no way of ascertaining how much has been won through employe suits, it is safe to estimate that it is several times that figure.

The third great gain made under the wage-hour law has been the abolition of oppressive child labor in those sections of industry covered by the act.

But labor, through whose splendid support the law has been sustained, dares not now relax its interest, for we are engaged in a never-ending fight against those reactionary interests that opposed its passage and have continued their struggle against it.

Their attack is no longer direct. The act has such support behind it from the public, labor and large sections of industry that its opponents dare not state their aims openly. Instead they snipe at the act by advocating, as they did recently, a modification of its overtime pay provisions. The attack, as labor knows, was beaten only after a nip and tuck fight.

Using Legislatures

Now, their fight has been switched to the legislatures. In one state after another they have introduced legislation that strikes at the very heart of the wage-hour law, and because the public fails to see the connection and because labor is not on guard as it should be, they sometimes succeed.

Their tactic is to obtain state legislation restricting the period in which a worker can sue for back wages due. They want to nullify the penalty provision of the fair labor standards act which gives the employe the right to sue his employer for back wages illegally withheld.

They know, as everyone knows, that the worker often is unaware that he has the basis for a suit until such a time has passed, or that he is often not in a position to sue in the interim.

This provision that opponents of the act are seeking to circumvent is the teeth of the wage-hour law. It was written into the act by Congress in order that the law might be partially self-enforcing. Without it, administration would be extremely difficult if not impossible. For if the right to sue were to be taken away from the employe, then a chief enforcement measure would be lost.

Already in 4 States

Already, under this penalty provision, millions and millions of dollars in wage restitutions have been collected, and what is even more important, fear of a suit has kept many an employer in line.

This nefarious class legislation, and it can be called by no other name, is already on the books in four states. In Ohio, the period in which a worker can collect wages illegally withheld has been set at three years; in Georgia, two years. In Alabama it has been set at one year, in contrast to the limit of six or seven years generally set under statutes of limitations. In Oregon the period has been cut to six months. I need not tell you that with such limitations imposed, the door is left wide open for a flouting of the law.

This present attack is not an isolated instance. It is part of a continuing struggle to defeat the law's purposes, and it is a struggle against which labor and enlightened sections of industry must be constantly on guard.

I should like to warn against the erroneous notion that the wage-hour law is a back number so far as many workers are concerned, since their wages are above the minimum set in this legislation and their union contracts have long provided overtime pay on an equal or more advantageous basis.

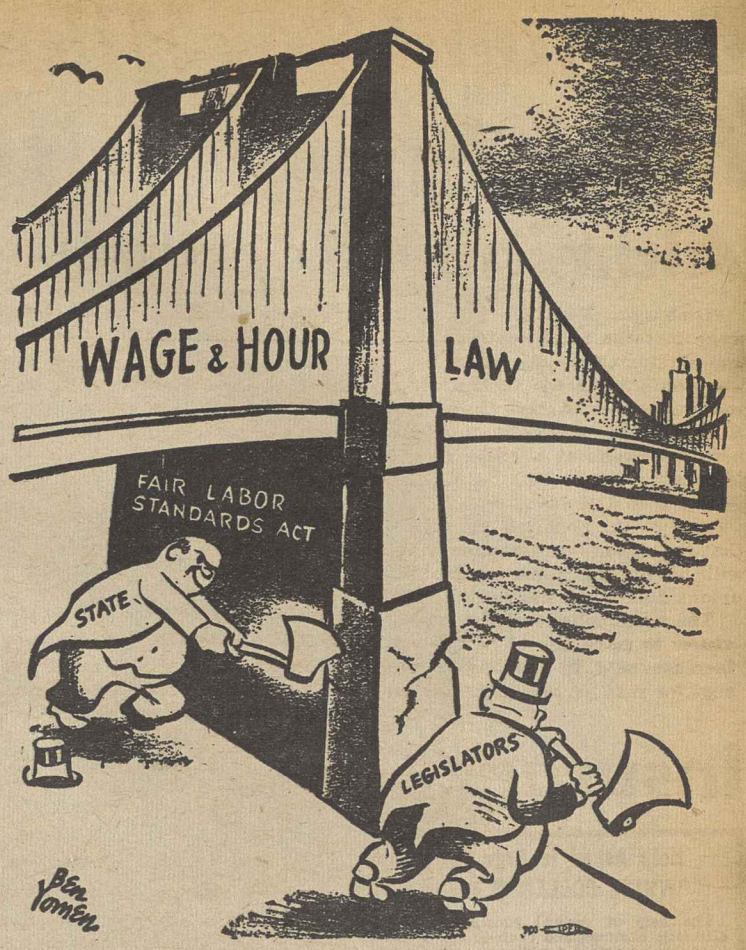
They have come to think of the law as a protection for somebody else, but as having no personal meaning or usefulness to them. They are not so vigilant as they might be in guarding it from attack.

Shortsighted Attitude

Their attitude would seem to be a most shortsighted way of looking at the matter, particularly in view of the importance this statute will have to all labor in the postwar period. Despite all our planning there will be unemployment during the time of conversion and readjustment, and the wage-hour law will then be vitally needed as a bulwark against wage slashing and long hours of work.

It would seem, therefore, that the better policy would be to hold fast now to every gain made under the wage-hour law, and to use it as the basis for building a more equitable industrial order after the war. Surely there is no one of us who believes that the act as it now stands goes far enough. A minimum wage, set in depression years, need not be the highest for years to come.

The 40-cent ultimate minimum provided never had any real relationship to an adequate standard of living, and it bears less of a relationship today when it takes 50 cents to buy what 40 cents bought in 1938. Nor is there anything sacred about an 8-hour day.



Tax Blitz in Senate; Hearings Nov. 29

Washington, Nov. 27 — The tax blitz is on full swing in the Senate this week, following passage of the wholly inadequate and dangerous House bill Nov. 25.

Hearings start in the Senate Finance Committee Monday, Nov. 29, where the strategy of the Committee chairman, Sen. George (poll-taxer, Ga.) is to rush the hearings through without giving labor a chance to appear.

Pres. Murray, in trying to halt the sales tax drive in the Senate, has asked the Committee for opportunity for himself to appear on behalf of the CIO.

Sen. George has openly and repeatedly said that he favors a sales tax as the answer to the problem of raising more revenue for the war. If he gets away with the blitz in the Senate, he will make a try for a sales tax in the bill, relying on speed to keep the Senators out of reach of the people back home.

Labor's answer to this must be to redouble its protest to the Senate, demanding real taxes on war profits and inflated incomes, no sales tax or other taxes on the low income people, plugging of loopholes, etc.

The revenue deficit that worries George, of course, was created by the House refusal to lay a finger on profits and the big money generally.

UE Gains $750,000 In Vacation Pay

New York, Nov. 27—Approval by the Nat. War Labor Board of a joint petition presented by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union for an increase in vacation pay for some 100,000 employes, was announced this week.

The agreement will put more than $750,000 into the pockets of the workers by computing vacation pay on the basis of wages in a period immediately preceding the scheduled vacation.

Rather than issuing vacation pay on the customary 40-hour week basis, the recently approved clause pertaining to hourly-rated employes "will be based on the average hours worked by the employe during the first four-week period of the six weeks immediately preceding employe's scheduled vacation, but in no case will the vacation hours be less than the hours of the basic work week."

For exempt and non-exempt salary employes eligible for vacation, the new clause reads: "The vacation hours will be based on the average number of hours worked by the employe during the first four-week period of the six weeks immediately preceding the employe's scheduled vacation."

Charge Ford Flouts Need For Output

Dearbon, Mich., Nov. 27—The United Auto Workers Union this week charged that a spokesman for the Ford Motor Co. said that "we don't give a damn" about maintaining uninterrupted production of aircraft engine heads.

The charge was made following a brief stoppage at the aluminum foundry of the River Rouge plant, where UAW Local 600 represents the workers.

The union said that a pay dispute caused the stoppage, and that union officials immediately urged the workers to go back to their jobs. The union declared that 500 workers were sent home because of the tactless action of a company spokesman, who told them, "We are 90,000 heads ahead. Go on home. We don't give a damn. I am sure we can last longer than you."

Bill Haywood Dies After Long Illness

Witt, Ill., Nov. 27—William Haywood, former CIO sub-regional director in the St. Louis area, was buried at the Hillsboro Cemetery November 19.

The veteran laborite, who is a brother of CIO Director of Organization Allan S. Haywood, succumbed after an illness of many months. Prior to his death, he was labor representative on the regional War Production Board with headquarters in Kansas City.

CIO Farm Union Officer Joins Marines

Chicago, Nov. 27—Milt Burns, district director of the CIO Farm Equipment Workers, has left for San Diego, Calif., to join the U. S. Marines, the union announced here this week. Burns previously was the union's publicity and educational director and edited the Farm Equipment Edition of The CIO NEWS.

Aluminum Workers...

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27—A general wage increase of 15 cents an hour and elimination of the North-South wage differential was demanded by representatives of more than 60,000 Aluminum Co. of America employes here last week at a national conference of the CIO Aluminum Workers of America.

Pres. N. A. Zonarich announced that the action was unanimous and will be up for approval of local unions during the next 10 days.

The wage policy includes a provision to have the 15-cent wage increase paid in war bonds except for that portion necessary to offset the increase in living costs since September, 1942.

Elimination of the north-south differential is a new step in a long drive which partially succeeded as a result of a War Labor Board decision in February, 1942.

In announcing the decision, Zonarich stated:

"The AWA is determined to see to it that its members receive full compensation in cash for the failure of our government to hold the line on the price front since September, 1942. We are also determined to see to it that the increased productivity of our members and the increased production index of our country does result in proper distribution of money.

"Even if money is not spent now, it has value. Industry is encouraged to set aside tax-free funds for post-war conversion purposes and to allow for depreciation.

"Workers have the same right to funds in war bonds designed to rehabilitate their homes after the war and to replace the many goods and furnishings which wartime conditions make available."

"If the government can roll back prices, our proposal provides for a decrease in cash wage payments and an increase in bond deductions. If prices rise further, our proposal calls for more cash wages."

Insurance Agents . . .

Cleveland, O., Nov. 27—Spearheading the fight of white collar workers for salary increases, a $10 a week boost in pay was demanded for all Prudential industrial insurance agents by the National Policy Committee of the United Office and Professional Workers at a meeting here this week.

Two hundred delegates representing 14,000 Prudential agents also demanded that the National War Labor Board establish "a permanent National Insurance Commission" to handle wage or grievance disputes in the insurance industry.

Pointing to the sharp rises in living costs "due to the torpedoing of the President's seven-point economic program," the meeting called for adjustments in "compensation both to provide for the manifest maladjustments and to permit fullest expansion in the sale of life insurance."

Delegates to the conference urged that representations be made to the National War Labor Board to establish a National Insurance Commission, a precedent for which has been established by the shipbuilding and copper industries.

The conference also called upon all industrial insurance companies and the War Manpower Commission to adopt a program designed to make the most effective use of manpower in the insurance industry.

A resolution pledging unqualified support to the Commander-in-Chief in behalf of the nation's organized industrial insurance agents was adopted by the conference.

Lewis Merrill, president of the United Office and Professional Workers of America, called for the elimination of the Little Steel Formula to permit adequate salary increases for white collar workers.

Help Asked to Organize "WHITE COLLAR CLASS"

The help of several successful and altruistic business and professional men is sought to create a national organization of the millions of unorganized, inarticulate and struggling office workers and professional men, etc., known as the "White Collar Class." The plan is not for a labor union but for a non-sectarian, non-political, non-profit organization, ideally patriotic, which will make itself an unselfish public service factor in the life of the nation—seeking the welfare of all people, not alone small organized groups.

This is an opportunity for several men unaffiliated with labor or political groups to do a great patriotic and humanitarian service. References exchanged. Write P 196 Times.

ANTI-UNION DRIVE: The above ad was carried in the N. Y. TIMES Nov. 21. Its author is probably a fair sample of the kind of people who have been "aroused" by the fate of lowly paid white collar workers, whose demands for higher wages have long been expressed by the CIO United Office & Professional Workers Union. Note the reference to the type of help desired—union experience is decidedly not an asset

Back Demands Of Steelworkers

Buffalo, Nov. 27—At a special meeting of Curtiss-Wright office and technical workers held here this week, the newly organized white collar workers, who chose the UOPWA bargaining agent in an election Nov. 9 voted complete support for the wage demands put forward by the United Steelworkers.

The UOPWA salary policy, which the Curtiss workers endorsed in their labor board election, calls for increases up to 35% in order to make up the discrepancy between white collar wages, inadequate even before the war, and present living costs.

Transport Service . .

Washington, Nov. 27—Another CIO union this week went on record opposing the Little Steel formula. The United Transport Service Employes, through Pres. Willard S. Townsend, urged that the formula be abolished as a yard stick for wage increases, and recommended that non-operating railroad workers, regardless of craft or affiliation, be granted "at least the 8 cents per hour increase with its retroactive features as approved by an emergency panel last May 24."

This position was taken by the UTSEA-CIO before the sub-committee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee which is holding hearings in Washington on a Joint House and Senate resolution relative to an increase in the hourly rates of pay of non-operating employes in the railroad industry.

Townsend, in challenging the application of the Little Steel formula in reference to non-operating railroad workers stated:

"The application of the Little Steel formula to this class of employes creates an inequity. For a just and living wage, the Little Steel formula must be computed on a principle which prior to 1941 offered a satisfactory living wage in comparison with the living costs of that period. The base pay of the non-operating employes in the railroad industry has always been low, and a 15% increase computed on that base did not raise the wage to a level comparable with the cost of living."

Townsend declared that "the estimated 7% increase in the cost of living for 1943 over 1942 creates a serious situation for railroad employes and makes it therefore urgent that at least the 8c per hour increase with its retroactive features as approved by the emergency panel be applied to the wages of the non-operating employes."

The UTSEA leader urged that "this application be approved by this committee not on the basis of employes represented by organizations filing such petition, but on the basis of all railroad employes engaged in all types of work classified as non-operating groups."

CIO Oil Workers . . .

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 27—A blank wage increase of 10 cents an hour is being demanded by the CIO Oil Workers Intl. Union, the union's executive council announced this week.

"It shall be the policy of the OWIU to effectuate the stabilization of all petroleum industry wage rates at the highest prevailing rate for each classification," the council stated, "and to secure the placement of all employes in their proper classification.

"In line with the national wage policy of the CIO, the OWIU joins in the effort to establish wages which will insure the maximum of production and maintain our relative position in American industry.

"To attain such level within the petroleum industry, the union demands that a 10-cent per hour blanket wage increase be granted."

Ex-FSA Head Named Hillman's Assistant On Political Action Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—C. Benham ("Beanie") Baldwin, area director in charge of economic operations in Italy for the State Dept., this week was appointed assistant to Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, which is mobilizing labor's forces for political action on a national scale.

C. B. BALDWIN

His is the first major appointment made by Hillman in perfecting the organization's national machinery for political purposes. Baldwin this week resigned his State Dept. post.

Hillman expressed great satisfaction over Baldwin's availability and declared he was convinced the young government administrator would make a substantial and constructive contribution to the political life of our nation.

Balwin, who is 41 and comes from Radford, Va., was appointed to his Italian post by Secretary of State Cordell Hull on September 15, 1943. Prior to the State Department appointment, Baldwin served from July, 1940, as administrator of the Farm Security Administration. Before he headed FSA, he was assistant administrator under Dr. Will Alexander and, previously, assistant administrator of the Resettlement Administration.

The new CIO political assistant came to Washington in May, 1933, as personal assistant to Henry A. Wallace, then Secretary of Agriculture. Prior to his first Washington post, Baldwin was in the wholesale and retail electrical business at Radford, and from 1923 to 1929 was with the Norfolk and Western R.R.

He is a graduate of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

N. Y. CIO Urges Pay Boosts For Steelworkers

New York, Nov. 27—Support for the demand of the CIO United Steelworkers of America for increased wages was voted here by the Greater New York CIO Council in behalf of its 500,000 members.

The council also voted to urge the War Labor Board "to adopt a more realistic attitude with regard to the Little Steel formula and to approve wage increases proportionate to the increase in living costs since September, 1942."

DeLaurie Enters Army

Chicago, Nov. 27—Francis J. DeLaurie, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois State Industrial Union Council, has resigned his position to enter the Army. At a luncheon in his honor prior to his induction, the council and unions affiliated with it presented him with gifts in appreciation of his services.

Tax Jokers

The tax bill passed by the House is full of petty political trickery.

Its sponsors hope to gain votes by saying it goes light on the taxpayers. It will raise only about one-fifth of the war money asked.

The bill technically repeals the deservedly unpopular "victory tax," but does not relieve the poor of one jot of this unfair burden.

The bill's sponsors know more money will be needed than it provides, and are using it as a squeeze play to force through a vicious sales tax later.

The bill completely fails to end the special tax privileges of the wealthy or to make them pay their fair share.

Furthermore, it includes an anti-labor and anti-farmer joker requiring such non-profit organizations to lay their incomes open for fishing expeditions and preparing the way for unfair taxation.

This dangerous bag of tax tricks is now before the Senate. Let your Senators know what you think of it.

Senate and Subsidies

Even the big-business daily press is getting cold feet about the outrageous demand for higher living costs and inflation made by the House of Representatives when it voted a ban on food subsidies—the only possible means of keeping prices down.

In "one of the wildest swings on record," according to the Twohey analysis of newspaper opinion, most of the press has now swung to support of subsidies. Latest figures show 67% of editorial comment favoring subsidies, as against only 41% the week before.

Who wants the higher prices and inflation for which the House has voted?

Certainly not the working farmers. They know what inflation did to them after the last war, and that subsidies are designed to prevent their being squeezed and to assure them a fair price, while the line is held on prices for consumers.

Certainly not the middle class, professional and white collar groups, who are being squeezed more and more by rising prices and fixed incomes.

Certainly not our fighting men, who will have to share in paying for the increased costs of war and government purchases on their return, if subsidies are not used to keep these costs down, and whose savings and pensions will be cut in half by inflation.

Certainly not the working people. All sections of organized labor are united in demanding food subsidies. Already living costs have risen far ahead of wage rates, and wage adjustments are necessary to catch up with the present price level. But if subsidies are not allowed, to prevent further increases in living costs, the race between wages and prices will become endless.

Certainly not the American people as a whole. If subsidies are not allowed, the government as biggest war purchaser will have to pay out many times more in increased prices than it would in subsidies. This will mean more and more taxes, and meanwhile as inflation gains, our economic welfare and whole war effort will be endangered.

Yet the House has yielded to the pressures of big-business interests that "farm" the farmers and to other selfish profiteers who hope to make a quick killing through profiteering price increases at the expense of the whole country.

The wrong done by the House can still be undone by the Senate, which now has the legislation affecting subsidies under consideration.

Every Senator should hear at once from everyone in his state who wants a strong home front to win the war. Tell your Senators to vote for adequate food subsidies, and to reverse the House action for higher living costs and inflation.

Dan'l In the Liars' Den

Dan Tobin, in his Teamsters' magazine, brags of AFL membership claims, on one page, predicting CIO will be "but a shell of the organization that once rose so belligerently to challenge the AFL."

But, alas for his claims, on another page of the same issue he also reports his losing convention fight against the well-known AFL practice of padding membership figures to get more voting power in its conventions.

One AFL union, for instance, with a dues-paying membership of less than 300,000, pays per capita to the AFL on 600,000. And it isn't the only one. As Tobin points out, under the AFL system, there's nothing to prevent four or five unions paying enough per capita to control the whole Federation.

There's no such padding in CIO membership figures. So next time you read about the AFL's membership claims, just season them with quite a few grains of salt.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

TO GET into most government offices these days, you have to fill out a form for a visitor's badge, telling who, what and why you are.

The young lady at the entrance desk got my name down right (bless her!) and then asked me what I was from.

"CIO," I replied.

"That's the government, isn't it?" she said.

"Unfortunately not," I answered. "But the thought fascinates me. What would you do if you were the government?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said she, pushing and patting her hair indifferently.

★ ★ ★

"Well, I can think of a lot of things," said I.

"Take subsidies. Congress has gone completely crazy about forcing up the cost of living. The House has voted to forbid the use of subsidies to control prices, though this is the only way to check inflation.

"The Congressmen are all for subsidies for shipowners, manufacturers or any other special interests that want to keep up profits. But when it comes to subsidies to keep down living costs for the whole people, and to reduce the costs of the war, they get hysterical.

"Now, if the CIO had its way, Congress would be more concerned about the interests of all the people than about any special interests that want higher prices and higher profits.

"It would vote all the subsidies needed to assure a fair return for the farmer and more food production, while keeping down living costs and giving wages a chance to catch up with them. It would back OPA to the limit in enforcing price control and really hold the line against inflation instead of letting everything go higher and high . . . "

"Hi. . ." echoed the young lady, perking up, but she was only halloing to a young fellow passing behind me.

★ ★ ★

"Then take taxes," I continued.

"You can have them," said the young lady.

"We're all stuck with them. Congressman Doughton said the tax bill just passed by the House is 'not a CIO bill, a Chamber of Commerce bill or a National Association of Manufacturers' bill.'

"He's dead right about it not being a CIO bill, but he's kidding himself if he thinks it isn't just what the Chamber of Commerce and the NAM ordered.

"This tax bill will raise only about two out of ten billion dollars the administration says is needed for winning the war. It clamps withholding taxes on single persons starving on as little as $10 a week and married folks with as little as $14 between them. And it does nothing to raise more war funds from rich profiteers.

"Furthermore, it's an obvious squeeze play to force a soak-the-poor sales tax, as the Chamber of Commerce demands, when the need for more tax money becomes urgent.

"If the CIO had its way, Congress would exempt from taxation people who aren't making enough to live on, and would raise all the extra money needed from higher taxes on higher incomes, with a $25,000 limit on inivdidual net incomes; from higher taxes on war profits; and by ending the special tax privileges and loopholes enjoyed by wealthy profiteers today."

★ ★ ★

"Anything else you'd do?" said the young lady, soothingly.

"You're darned right," I replied. "If the CIO had its way, the Senate would pass the anti-polltax bill tomorrow.

"This would give one of the biggest fillips to our war morale and show the world we really believe in democracy.

"It would also cramp the style of the polltaxers in Congress, who are the leaders in everything that's rotten and reactionary, and give the common people of their states a chance they've never had before to elect real representatives."

★ ★ ★

"But, you see, the CIO isn't the government and isn't even trying to be. It believes in government by the whole people. That's why it's putting on its big political action campaign to wake up the people to what's going on, so they'll vote for a Congress that really represents their wishes.

"But I hope I haven't bored you," I concluded.

"Don't mention it," said the young lady graciously. "I meet all sorts on this job. There was a fellow yesterday wanted to relieve the manpower shortage by training woodpeckers in the Morse code. Then there was a Congressman wanted to jail Roosevelt. As a matter of fact, you sounded quite sensible.

"But I can't keep up with all the alphabet government agencies, and I still don't know which you're from."

House Votes Subsidy Ban—Fight Still On

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—The House this week voted to take the lid off living costs by killing the use of subsidies for greater food production at controlled prices. The vote, 278 to 117, came on extension of the Commodity Credit Corporation bill (HR 3477), with a section carrying an absolute ban on the use of public funds for subsidies.

A coalition of food monopoly agents among polltax Democrats and Republicans did the dirty work, with 98 Democrats and 178 Republicans lining up against the food budgets of the American people.

This vote, however, is only the first round. The bill now goes to the Senate, and after that to President Roosevelt for signature or veto. Last July, the President vetoed a similar bill with a subsidy ban and was sustained.

Wire Your Senators!

All Senators, and particularly those on the Banking Committee, should be flooded with wires demanding removal of the subsidy ban and passage of the CCC bill as originally written to enable the administration to continue and extend present food subsidies.

Acting on this, the CIO today urged the Banking Committee chairman, Sen. Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) to give President Murray time to testify on the bill. Writing to Wagner, CIO Legislative Director Nathan Cowan said:

"Those who have utilized this bill as a vehicle for destroying the subsidy program for control of the cost of living in this critical war period are displaying amazing irresponsibility in toying with the home front economic structure."

In immediate food basket terms, the House action means a general 7 per cent rise in prices, with the sky the limit for the future. According to OPA Head Chester Bowles, the subsidy ban means jumps of 9.9 cents a pound in butter, 4.6 cents in pork chops, 3.8 cents in hamburger and similar hikes all down the line of staple foods.

Report Rise in Living Costs

The new House inflation move also came the same day that the U. S. Labor Department admitted a 0.4 per cent rise in living costs in the last month. This puts the increase since Jan. 1, 1941, at an official 23.4 per cent. Jan. 1, of course, is the base date for the Little Steel wage freezing formula.

Typical of the low level of arguments against the use of subsidies was the constant repetition of the cry that the U. S. shouldn't pay people's grocery bills. This slogan was coupled with another even more moth-eaten one to the effect that subsidies were a threat to "free enterprise."

Actually, the real reason for the polltax plus general reactionary fight against subsidies for lower food prices is based on simple profiteering. With the lid off price control, with the rollback finally killed, the big food monopolies (not the farmers) can make a much bigger killing than they could dream of making legitimately.

It works this way: The big monopoly interests have the lowest cost per unit of production, and they have the highest output. Subsidies are aimed to bridge the gap between controlled prices and the higher per unit cost producers, thereby making it possible for them to get into their top production stride.

Subsidies aimed at increasing the output of the smaller and higher cost producers would mean nothing more added to the profits of the big monopoly people. They might even mean slightly lower profits—so the monopoly agents in Congress fight against subsidies, and to hell with food production or the health and welfare of the war workers.

Hence the low level of the arguments against the use of subsidies—and hence the need for all the people to do a real job on the Senate this time to save the issue.

Farmers Want Subsidies!

Washington, Nov. 27—Here's a sidelight on the food subsidy issue that should help in blasting the hunger-bloc lie that farmers don't want the government to aid food production and keep prices down. It comes from two Republican Congressmen, both of them representing farm constituencies, and it proves that the real dirt farmers do want subsidy aid in doing their war jobs.

Rep. Usher Burdick, (R., N. D.) and Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski, (R., Wis.) took the trouble last week to poll their farm constituents on the question and found better than two-to-one sentiment in favor of subsidies.

What to Do . . .

The war workers and the people generally have lost round one in the struggle for more food at lower prices. They lost it when the House voted to bar the use of subsidies in the Commodity Credit Corp. bill (HR 3477).

The gong has already rung for round two. This round will be fought out in the Senate, first in the Banking and Currency Committee and then on the Senate floor.

Round one was lost because the workers and the people generally failed to put enough heat on the House. The fact that the vote for subsidies was as good as it was (117 for subsidies, 278 against) was due solely to home front pressure that began to mount in the three days before the vote was taken.

Here's what to do now to make sure that this pressure is mobilized where it will count:

1. Wire Sen. Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, urging that the committee report HR 3477 without Section 3, the one that kills subsidies.

2. Wire your own two Senators urging them to talk to committee members to the same point. Urge them also to amend the bill on the floor to kill Section 3.

3. Get ready for a veto from President Roosevelt, if the Senate passes the bill with Section 3. Then demand that both your Representative and your Senators support the veto when the bill comes back to them.

4. Don't forget to write to your Representative on the vote, congratulating him if he voted for subsidies, blasting him if he voted against. This is important; it shows both the progressive Congressmen and the reactionary ones that we don't forget an issue the day after the vote is taken.

Keep Your Eye On Congress

The profiteers won round one in the fight for food subsidies to increase production at lower prices, in the House vote (278 to 117) to bar subsidies in the CCC bill (HR 3477).

Round two now comes up in the Senate, first in the Banking and Currency Committee and then on the floor.

The subsidy issue controls the way we eat. If we want to keep eating, at prices we stand some chance of being able to pay, we have to put up a better fight on round two than we did on round one.

So far, we've talked a good fight on subsidies. Now we have to start fighting it. You know the names of your two Senators. Their address is Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D. C.

The House this week passed the tax bill, 200 to 27. It now goes to the Senate Finance Committee, whose chairman, Sen. George (polltaxer, Ga.), is talking about the need for a sales tax to make up the revenue deficit in the House bill. This deficit (the Treasury asked for 10.5 billion, got 2.25 billion) is solely due to the House refusal to tax big incomes, war profits.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
CCC bill (HR 3477)	As passed by House, subsidies for more food at reachable prices knocked out.	Bill now goes first to Senate Banking and Currency Committee, then to floor, then to FDR for signature or veto.	Wire Sen. Wagner, committee chairman, and your own two Senators to knock out subsidy ban, pass HR 3477 without Section 3.
Tax bill (HR 3687)	Your new taxes, plus what you already pay.	Passed by House, now in Senate Finance Committee, Sen. George, (polltaxer, Ga.) chmn., who wants a sales tax.	Wire your two Senators against sales tax, for taxes on war profits, big incomes.
Soldiers vote (S 1285, HR 3436)	Provide simplified voting system for men and women in armed forces overseas and in U. S.	S 1285 in Senate floor, HR 3436 bottled in House Elections Committee.	Urge your Senators to support S 1285 as written, urge your Representative to get action on HR 3436.
Polltax repeal (HR 7)	Brings 10 million Americans into democracy.	Ready for Senate vote; filibuster and amendments next hurdles.	Keep telling your Senators to vote for cloture to kill filibuster, against amendments.
Social Security (S 1161, HR 2861)	Greatly extend scope of benefits, increase payments, aid servicemen.	Chances for hearings soon after tax bill is passed; in Senate Finance Committee.	Urge your Senators to work for early hearings.

(NOTE: Address all Senators, Senate Office Bldg., all Representatives, House Office Bldg., Washington, D. C.)

Political Action Is Ohio Parley Keynote

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 27—Political action was the keynote of the sixth annual convention of the Ohio CIO Council which met here this week, with nearly 700 delegates representing 375 locals and 23 city and county councils in attendance.

The convention re-elected President Jack Kroll, and elected William Lavelle of the United Steelworkers as secretary-treasurer, after Ted Silvey, who has held this office since the Council was formed five years ago, declined to run for another term.

In a speech stressing the importance of political action, National CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey told the delegates that labor's greatest fight lies ahead, and that it is on the political front.

Other national CIO officers who spoke to the convention included Allan S. Haywood, director of Organization; John Brophy, director of Industrial Union Councils; and J. Raymond Walsh, director of Research and Education.

In whipping to shape a program to strengthen the political and legislative activity of the Ohio Council, delegates voted to strengthen the register-to-vote drive; condemned the action and policies of Governor John Bricker of Ohio, and urged him to call a special session of the state legislature to abolish the sales tax and to alter state election laws to make it possible for soldiers to vote. The convention also asked that the minimum voting age be reduced to 18.

If the sales tax is not repealed, a resolution stated, the Ohio CIO Council will campaign to put the issue on the ballot in 1945 for referendum. The convention voted support for the CIO's policy in supporting the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill and in demanding immediate planning for the security and education of returning servicemen.

After the Council's constitution was amended to increase the number of vice-presidents from 12 to 15, delegates re-elected eight and voted seven new men into office. Relected officers are: I. W. Abel and Ernest Webb, Steelworkers; Paul Jahn, Automobile Workers; John Kumpel and Paul Fessenden, Rubber Workers; Victor Decavitch, Electrical Workers, and Beryl Peppercorn and Arthur Hartmann, Clothing Workers.

New vice-presidents are: Earl Davis, Transport Service Employes; George Martin, Shoe Workers; Waldo Sneary, Auto Workers; John B. O'Shea, Glass Workers; Philip Schwaner, Electrical Workers; Charles Bubb, Textile Workers, and John J. Ryan, Transport Workers.

The Ohio Council of CIO Women's Auxiliaries, which convened at the same time as the Council, re-elected Mrs. Bertha Perrin of the Steelworkers for a fourth term as president, and also re-elected Mrs. Mary Yurko, secretary, and Mrs. Julia Dodge, treasurer.

Thomas Free Speech Trial Starts Nov. 29 in Texas

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—R. J. Thomas, vice-president of the CIO and president of the UAW, will go on trial in Texas Nov. 29 for the "crime" of asking people to join a union.

The scene of the "crime" was a mass meeting called by the CIO Oil Workers a month ago, when Thomas appeared and publicly asked members of the audience to join the CIO, thereby violating the Texas anti-union act passed at the last state legislature session.

Thomas was arrested at the time and sentenced to jail for contempt of court when he violated an injunction by asking the workers to join the union. Out on bail, he appealed to the State Supreme Court, and was refused a hearing. The trial this week will take place before a county court.

Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, said here that the case will, if necessary, go to the U. S. Supreme Court, where it will be tested on grounds that the law violates the constitutional right of freedom of speech and assembly.

Ernest Goodman, UAW attorney, will represent Thomas at the trial. Counsel for the Oil Workers, for the Steelworkers, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers as well as the CIO National Council will be present.

Write Your Senators And Congressman About Subsidies!

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The first round of the subsidy fight is over. We've lost, but there are other rounds coming up. The House passed the Commodity Credit Corporation bill banning subsidies by a more than two-thirds majority.

Here is a bill which everyone admits will mean substantial immediate increase in prices of basic foods and yet Congress passes it two to one. We certainly haven't done a real job of getting the CIO program across, either to Congress or to the people in our communities.

I talked to a number of Republican Congressmen the week before the subsidy vote came up in the House. Most of them had supported labor in the fight against the Smith Connally bill. It was discouraging to talk to them because they were so misinformed.

"Why should the government pay the grocery bills of war workers who are making $200 a week?" one of them asked. And every one of them repeated that question in some form or other. They don't know that the average heavy industry wage, according to July government figures, is $48.81 a week — without deductions — and that taxes and social security bring home pay down close to $40.

IGNORE INFLATION WARNING

They admit, when you pin them down, that millions of workers are living on fixed incomes, and have had no increase since 1939. And they say "We'll give them a raise, if they need it." But when you point out that letting first prices and then wages go up will start us on the road to a run-away inflation which will cost the government far more than subsidies, most of them say, "You can't stop it anyway."

"Most people would rather pay their bills now, than pay taxes later," they go on—and get emotional about the poor soldier boy who will be paying our food bills after the war if we continue subsidies. They don't understand that adequate food for our industrial workers is just as important to Victory as adequate food for our armed forces, and that price increases will take food off workers' tables.

They forget that in 15 months during the last war food prices more than doubled and that because there are more shortages and greater demands on food supplies now, we can expect prices to skyrocket worse than that if price control breaks down.

BIG JOB TO DO

The plain fact is that our Congressmen haven't really been hearing from the folks back home. I asked those I saw—they hadn't had much mail. If they had they wouldn't vote to increase food prices.

It will probably take about three weeks for the bill to go to the Senate, pass there, go to the President, be vetoed, and get back to the House. In that three weeks we have a terrific job to do. We have to make sure that the bill cannot pass the House over the President's veto

We must get the housewives in our communities stirred up. They know that increases of a cent a quart on milk, a cent a loaf on bread, 10 cents a pound on butter, three cents a pound on potatoes, five cents a pound on meat, etc., will mean less food for theri families. It would have the same effect as a sales tax. We've stopped the sales tax by our pressure. We can stop food price increases, too, if we convince our Congressmen that the people want subsidies.

Health, Safety Cases Topics of New Book

By HOLLACE RANSDELL

Not so long ago, the general attitude of employers about industrial accidents and sickness was that it was a worker's own fault or responsibility if he got hurt or sick on the job. If he was subjected to poisonous gases or chemicals and couldn't take it, he had the right to quit. If the machine on which he worked had no safety guards and he was injured, he must have been careless.

A more enlightened social attitude on the part of employers has been slow in coming but progress has been made largely under the slogan that "there's profit in prevention."

This is the point of view of a 700-page book, "1021 Answers to Industrial Health and Safety Problems", published recently by Occupational Hazards, Inc., of Cleveland, Ohio. It is dedicated "to American management, in the hope that the day will come when it recognizes that lost man-hours arising from industrial illnesses and accidents represent one of the most costly items on the balance sheet."

Although the book was written with the aim of appealing to "enlightened management" it would make an excellent reference book for the use of union health committees and shop stewards, or for negotiating committees seeking to improve working conditions.

It gives information on all forms of industrial hazards—skin diseases caused by various irritants, dust hazards, metal poisoning, toxic gases and vapors and other harmful substances workers come in contact with on the job.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

There are sections on safety administration, giving instructions on teaching safety to employes, on first aid equipment and precautions to be taken, and on mechanical safety, listing such things as safe loads, grinding wheel speeds and clearances.

The book is written in the question and answer form, with a detailed subject index, and includes lists of books and articles for further reading on the various subjects taken up.

Release of Mosley Stirs Storm of Protests

LONDON, Nov. 27 (ALN)—In a decision which holds major consequences for the future of British politics, the National Council of Labor today voted to "disassociate itself" from the action of Home Secretary Herbert Morrison and the cabinet in releasing Sir Oswald Mosley, founder of the British Union of Fascists, from Holloway Prison last week.

The action of the Council—supreme body of the Trades Union Congress, Labor Party, Parliamentary Labor Party and Cooperative Union—marks the first time that all sections of the labor movement have lined up against Churchill's coalition cabinet since its formation in May, 1940. It may lead to the resignation of the Home Secretary, who holds his post in the government as a representative of labor.

As part of an unprecedented nation-wide campaign against the release of the fascist leader, 1,000 delegates, representing more than half-a-million workers in arms factories, mines and shipyards in all parts of the country, yesterday stormed the House of Commons to present their protests directly to members of Parliament.

The deputation, carrying banners reading "Jail Mosley" and "Mosley in, Morrison out," was the largest in the history of Parliament. In his explanation to Commons, which reassembled this week after recess, Morrison stated that Mosley had been released because of "bad health" and "the improvement in our national fortunes."

DEMAND JAIL AGAIN

The executive councils of Britain's three largest unions—the Transport and General Workers with 1,250,000 members, the Amalgamated Engineering Union with 900,000 members, and the Miners Federation of Great Britain with 700,000—this week passed resolutions condemning the government's action.

"In the interest of the successful prosecution of the war and the manitenance of national unity in the struggle against fascism, we insist upon the immediate internment of Mosley, believing that unless this is done a serious situation will arise in industry, for which the government will be solely responsible," the AEU declared.

Terming the government's action "an insult to our people and fighting forces who are making such sacrifices for freedom and democracy," the TGWU stated: "Having regard for the political record of Mosley, we feel there is no justification whatsoever for his release, which will be regarded by the people of this country as an indication that the government is wavering in its adherence to the principles for which we are fighting." The TGWU resolution is regarded as especially significant since Ernest Bevin, former general secretary of the union, is Labor Minister in the cabinet.

TERMED "BIGGEST BLUNDER"

Will Lawther, Miners' president, said: "The release of Mosley is one of the government's biggest blunder's. If this error is not put right at once, it will effect the miners' morale. It is better by far that ten thousand Mosleys should die in prison than that our war production be hampered."

Separate resolutions, wired to the Home Office, were passed by the executive councils of the South Wales Miners Federation, representing 100,000 workers, and the Yorkshire Mineworkers Association with 140,000 members. Among other unions condemning the government for its action were the National Union of Railwaymen, National Amalgamated Furnishing Trades Association, Electrical Trades Union, Fire Brigades Union, Chemical Workers Union and Association of Supervisory Staffs, Engineering and Technical Workers.

Lunch hour protest meetings have been held this week in factories throughout England. A resolution passed by a shop stewards conference held here last Sunday, representing 150,000 war workers in the London area, pointed out that Mahatma Gandhi and other Indian National Congress prisoners had not been released "even at death's door."

The conference sent a telegram to the British Eighth Army in Italy explaining the attitude of the workers toward Mosley's release. Shop stewards in Sheffield, representing 75,000 steel workers, called for "the removal of all those ministers who favored Mosley's release."

Shop stewards in 16 Birmingham factories have formed an emergency anti-Mosley committee, charged with organizing petitions for his reinternment. In one west London district, half-a-million signatures to a petition to Parliament were gathered in one day. The London and Birmingham committees of the Cooperative Union, representing 1,250,000 members of cooperative societies, wired protests to Churchill.

ACA 'Cracks' Telephone Company

Detroit, Nov. 27—The CIO American Communications Assn. this week granted its first charter to a group of employes of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., covering workers in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. The firm was described as "the last stronghold of company unionism in the United States."

Since 1940 the workers have been represented by a company union, according to ACA Organizing Dir. Joseph Kehoe. Pointing to an application for an ACA charter filed by Telephone Co. employes in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Texas, Kehoe said that the workers are breaking away from so-called "independent" unions to join the ACA en masse.

The chartered group has asked the company to enter collective bargaining negotiations.

Ecuador Bosses Beat Down Pay Rates

Guayaquil, Nov. 27 (ALN)—Renewed repression against trade unions in Ecuador is taking place as a result of their pleas that the government revise its wage decree, issued at the beginning of the month.

Operating on a sliding scale principle, the decree raises salaries from five per cent for wages of 20 sucres (about $7.20) a week, to 50 per cent for workers earning four sucres (about $1.44. However, the wage increases do not make up for the rise in prices in the last two years.

Since the end of 1941, wage increases have averaged 52 per cent, with the price index jumping from 165 in May, 1941, to 250 in May, 1943.

This great rise in the price of necessities has been caused, labor leaders say, by the laxity of price control and the lack of effective government measures against speculators.

LOWEST STANDARDS

The following figures demonstrate the fact that the living standard of the Ecuadorian worker is one of the lowest in the Western Hemisphere. Wages average about $.76 U. S. per day. Rent for a worker's family, including two to four children, amounts to $4 U. S. a week—though the houses have insufficient space and hygienic facilities. The prices of meat, milk and butter have doubled since 1939. A kilogram (two and a fifth lbs.) of meat is $.20; bread, $.30; buttercake, $.90; and butter, $.64.

In 1939 the infant mortality rate was 156 per 1,000. The figure in the U. S. is 47 per 1,000.

Duluth CIO Backs Ban On Race Hate Mail

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 27—Condemning groups which use the U. S. mails to "spread the poison of anti-Semitism for the purpose of demoralizing and dividing the people," the CIO Council here passed a resolution calling upon Congress to pass the Lynch-Dickstein bill.

This legislation makes it a crime to use the mails for disseminating material aimed at causing racial or religious hatred or bigotry.

Mexican Unions Hit 'March on Capital'

Special to Allied Labor News

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27 (ALN)—The Confederation of Mexican Workers (CTM) this week announced that it will oppose "with every available means" the proposed "March on Mexico City" on Dec. 5 by the National Sinarchist Union, founded by Falange and Nazi agents and now the main proponent in Mexico of the "New Christian Order."

The Sinarchist "march," according to CTM general secretary Fidel Velazquez, is part of a plan to initiate an aggressive campaign against labor organizations in order to split the labor movement and set up in its stead a confederation organized on fascist corporative lines."

A huge propaganda campaign, financed from unknown sources, was beng carried on this week in preparation for the "march," through leaflets and posters, as well as by paying local newspapers for inserting articles attacking labor.

Allied Labor News learned meanwhile that Sinarchist chieftains met during the past week with representatives of U. S. Coughlinite organizations, two of whom arrived in Mexico early this month. The sudden influx of wealth into the Sinarchist organization was coincident with this meetnig, but no specific data is available to prove that money changed hands.

CHURCH DENIES SUPPORT

The Sinarchist leaflets attempted to create the impression that the new organizaion would have the support of the Catholic Church, to which nine-tenths of all Mexican union members belong.

Catholic Archbishop Luis M. Martinez, however, emphasizes that the Sinarchist movement is in no way sponsored or supported by the Church, nor is the Church responsible for anything the Sinarchists express or try to accomplish. In a statement this week, the Archbishop declared: "At these moments, when Mexico takes part in a transcendental war which signals a new route of human history, it is inopportune and anti-patriotic to stir up discussions, as important as they may appear, to divide Mexicans."

Bare Jim Crow Practices In AFL Unions

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27—Jim Crow practices of the Intl. Boilermakers and other AFL unions which force Negroes to join "lean-to" or subsidiary unions and pay full union dues without getting full union rights were exposed at hearings conducted here last week by President Roosevelt's Fair Employment Practice Committee.

The committee is investigating charges of racial discrimination affecting employment in Pacific Coast shipyards. Preceding the opening of hearings here, the committee conducted an investigation in Portland, Ore.

John Brophy, CIO director of Industrial Union Councils, is a member of the seven-man committee appointed by President Roosevelt. Malcolm Ross is chairman.

George E. Hayes, the committee's special counsel, said in his opening remarks at the hearing here that the committee did not expect to solve all the problems arising from race prejudice in this area, but was concerned with one main aim: "That for the period of the war emergency we make sure that all possible manpower be made available for the building of ships."

Walter Williams, 25-year-old Negro welder, first witness to testify, told the committee that when he got a job with the California Shipbuilding Corp., he was told that he would have to join the AFL Boilermakers' Union, as it had a closed shop contract with the company.

He agreed, but found later that he had been put into a Negro auxiliary located in Kansas City, as no Jim Crow auxiliary had as yet been set up in his city.

Testimony showing that the CIO did not permit such Jim Crow practices was given by California Assemblyman Gus Hawkins, who told of having worked in a shipyard under contract with a CIO union.

Aided by the questioning of Brophy, CIO member of the committee, Hawkins contrasted the strong stand of the CIO against Negro discrimination with the AFL practice of segregating Negroes into auxiliary locals.

Committee Counsel Marvin C. Harrison termed these Jim Crow auxiliaries "lean-to" adjuncts to the union.

At the earlier hearing involving prejudice against Negroes at the Kaiser Shipyards in Portland, witnesses told of being fired for refusing to join a Jim Crow auxiliary set up by the AFL Boilermakers.

Herbert R. Northrupt, Princeton University economist on leave from the War Labor Board in Detroit, in his testimony before the committee, accused the Boilermakers' Union of being the worst discriminator against Negro workers.

"Formation of auxiliary unions," he said, "is a wonderful way to institutionalize discrimination."

CIO, AFL, RR Unions Unite for Calif. Political Work; Registration Drive On

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27—Unified political action by all organized labor in this key war production area is assured by plans made jointly by the political groups of CIO, AFL, and Railroad Brotherhood unions.

Basic to these plans is a drive, already decided on and now being mapped in detail, to register nearly a million unregistered Los Angeles voters.

Three joint meetings have already been held in a series of monthly gatherings by organized labor's political representatives, including spokesmen for independent unions as well as the three major affiliated groups.

REGISTRATION CAMPAIGN

A committee of three, appointed at the latest of these meetings, is working out a general regisration campaign to be carried out by all organized labor in Los Angeles.

The task ahead was sketched in a report disclosing that some 600,000 voters have been dropped from voting rolls in Los Angeles for failing to vote in the 1942 elections.

In addition, the report stressed, more than 350,000 in-migrants have been added to the Los Angeles population since 1940. Most of these are unregistered, the report estimated.

The united labor registration campaign has been set to start January 2 and run to March 23. During those 12 weeks the drive will reach into factories, shops, and neighborhoods. Organization on a community level will be stressed throughout.

The Railway Brotherhoods' Joint Legislative Council, the Political Action Committee, southern section, of the California State CIO Council, and the Outside Agencies Subcommittee of the United AFL Committee for Political Action have separately and jointly approved and adopted a report outlining a comprehensive three-point action plan:

(1) Each of the major committees —AFL, CIO, and Brotherhoods— will maintain a subcommittee to keep the others informed of the various political meetings in the Congressional and Assembly districts of the Los Angeles area.

(2) As issues change and develop, changes may be made in the joint political program on which the cooperating union groups agree to question candidates for offices—but for the present candidates will be checked as to whether they will support:

Repeal of the Smith-Connally Act; Subsidies and the rollback of prices; The Wagner-Murray-Dingell social security and health bill; The antipolltax bill; Adequate rehabiliation for war veterans; Representation of organized labor at the peace table; President Roosevelt's program; International cooperation; and Postwar planning acceptable to organized labor.

Touring War Workers Hail Moscow Pact

London, Nov. 26 (ALN)—In a joint statement this week to Allied Labor News, the four U. S. union war workers now touring British factories, as a part of trans-Atlantic exchange of rank and file trade unionists organized by the Ministry of Information and the Office of War Information, expressed enthusiasm for the decisions of the Moscow conference and hailed the action of the British Trades Unions Congress in calling a world labor conference for next June in London.

"The trade union movements of the world cannot do enough to get etogether, if they are to solve problems of war and peace," the visitors declared.

Asked to comment on prospects of U. S. labor unity, they said: "In many parts of the country rank and file unity between AFL and CIO bodies is now almost 100 per cent."

The four visitors are: Hugh Maloney, Bethlehem Steel shop steward, United Steelworkers; Stanley Ceizyk, Int. Assn. of Machinists (AFL); Joseph Smith, United Auto Workers, and Otto Butler, vice-president of Int. Chemical Workers (AFL) local in St. Louis.

Stone Workers Win Pay Hikes

Washington, Nov. 27 — Pay increases ranging from four to 12 cents an hour were negotiated by the United Stone & Allied Products Workers this week with two southern firms.

A one-year contract signed with the Pomona Terra Cotta Co., of Pomona, N. C., brought employes the 4-12 cents raises, vacations, seniority, check-off, and maintenance of membership provisions.

At the Royal Blue Granite Co., of Elberton, Ga., a new contract boosted rates five cents an hour. The pact made wage scales uniform for five quarries operated by the firm.

Frey Amendment At Work—Halts NLRB Election

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 27—All that is needed today to stop an NLRB election is to revive a defunct company union.

Such was the ruling here by the regional NLRB director when he refused to hold an election at the Axelson Mfg. Co., small arms plant. The ruling, opening the way for revival of hundreds of company outfits throughout the country, was based upon recent congressional action amending the Wagner act to prohibit the NLRB from setting aside contracts in force for more than three months.

The ruling extended the pattern set by Comptroller Gen. Lindsay C. Warren, who ordered the NLRB not to disturb company union contracts under the congressional prohibition.

The company union, Axelson Employes Assn., had been dormant until the United Electrical Radio & Machine Workers began an organizing drive at the plant about three months ago. It was revived at the last minute to forestall organization, which was proceeding rapidly.

Company union officers, however, resigned and advised their members to join the CIO organization. The association president was fired a few days after his resignation, allegedly for "work spoilage."

The UE requested an election at Axelson and the company consented, provided its union would be included on the ballot. Before an agreement could be reached on the bargaining units, the decision of the regional labor board director was handed down.

According to the union, the association has only a verbal contract with management, calling for recognitnon and setting up skeleton grievance machinery.

Frey Amendment Forces CIO Union to Call for Strike Vote Under Connally Act

PITTMAN, Nev., Nov. 27—Fed up with Basic Magnesium management's delay in settling discharge cases affecting more than 100 CIO members, the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers local here has asked for a strike vote under the Smith-Connally Act, after attempting vainly to secure a satisfactory settlement of the dispute through government agencies.

Laying the failure for settlement squarely on the War Labor Board, the local stated in a resolution:

"More than six months have elapsed since Basic Union No. 629 won an election at Basic Magnesium Inc. and in spite of that victory Local 629 has not been able to obtain recognition or bargain collectively with the company."

The local pointed out that the Natl. Labor Relations Board has held that it is unable to handle the dispute because of the Frey amendment to the NLRB appropriations act. The amendment prohibits the NLRB from spending money to determine bargaining agents in cases where, for instance, a company union has had a contract in existence before passage of the amendment. In this instance the AFL secured such an agreement—via the back door.

The local said that the WLB is unwilling to handle the dispute, thus leaving the union with no governmental channel to appeal to.

Political Primer Published By CIO

Washington, Nov. 27 — "Political Primer for All Americans" is the title of a new pamphlet prepared by the CIO Dept. of Research & Education to assist CIO members in learning the facts of life about politics.

Simply written, and illustrated, the pamphlet explains how politicans get elected to office and what CIO members should do to win friends and influence people so that they too can either get elected or see that their candidates get elected.

Steps on the ladder to public office are described as: "Knowing the neighborhood, listening but not arguing, knowing names and faces, ringing doorbells, doing odd jobs, working at political headquarters, starting discussions, knowing the "bosses," speaking up at meetings, doing favors, resolving conflicts" and, finally, "getting votes."

The pamphlet, CIO Publication No. 93, costs 5 cents per copy, 100 for $3.50, 500 for $13. Address CIO Publicity Dept., 718 Jackson Pl. N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

UAW Head Hits Probe At Brewster

Washington, Dec. 4—Twice refused a hearing by the sub-committee of the House Committee on Naval Affairs which has been investigating production and labor at plants of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers this week sent the committee a letter in which he charged the real objective of the investigation has been the "hanging" of UAW Brewster Local 3365, and the "smearing" of the entire labor movement.

Thomas accused the committee of excluding vital statistical evidence on the Brewster situation, one of them the result of an official survey by the U. S. Manpower Commission. He alleged this was done because the committee sought only testimony which would injure the union in the plant.

The committee was accused by Thomas of "badgering" and "bullying" witnesses who did not support the "apparently preconceived conclusions" of the committee.

The UAW leader also accused the committee of adopting a "cynical" attitude toward progress made in the plants since Henry J. Kaiser became its active director.

Throughout his letter, Thomas declared that successive Browster managements and the Navy Department, rather than labor, was responsible for production deficiencies.

SHUNNED REPORTS

"Reading the testimony," Thomas wrote, "I was shocked to learn that you refused to display any interest in or make any effort to obtain probably the most authoritative survey of employment and production problems of the Long Island City Brewster plant. I refer to the investigation by the Division of Manpower Utilization of the Manpower Commission, Region 2A.

"Since your committee failed to visit the plant, or send its own investigators into the plant, it seems to me that you might at least give consideration to a thorough investigation which was made by another Government agency.

"The determination of your committee to bar out any facts which would not serve to blacken Brewster workers, their union and their leaders, is evidenced also by your refusal to receive in evidence and make part of the testimony a careful, detailed, objective report made by labor members of the Brewster labor-management production committee.

"On the basis of these two reports, and on the basis of testimony by officers of the U. S. Navy and officers of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp., it is obvious that the production deficiencies which prevailed in the Brewster plants can in no way be charged to Local 365—UAW-CIO. On the contrary, it appears that production failures were the responsibility of the managements, and of the Navy Department itself which sponsored some of the managements."

HOT OFF THE PRESS: CIO's latest pamphlet, by Pres. Murray, is an illustrated, three-color exposition of official CIO wage policy. Order from CIO Publicity Dept., 718 Jackson Pl. N. W., Washington 6, D. C. Publication No. 96—5c per copy, 100 for $4, 500 for $15.

CIO Wage Demands . . .

Steelworkers Ask 17c Pay Hike, Guaranteed 40-Hour Work Week

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4—The United Steelworkers of America this week spearheaded the CIO's battle to bring wages up to the rising cost of living. At a national wage and policy conference, 500 national and local officials of the union demanded a 17 cents an hour wage increase for 750,000 steel workers under contracts that contain clauses allowing them to be reopened for wage discussions within 30 days. The union also asked a guaranteed 40-hour work week.

In a resolution accompanying the demands, announced by USA Pres. Philip Murray, the union reaffirmed its no-strike pledge, declaring:

"We recognize that for the duration of the war issues in dispute must be adjusted through peaceful means. We therefore reaffirm our solemn pledge that for the duration of the war there must not be any strike or stoppage of work."

The wage demands will be served immediately on about 500 steel companies, to be followed with demands on other firms employing about 175,000 workers as contracts with these companies become open for negotiations.

FOUGHT FOR STABILIZATION

The resolution pointed out that the Steel Union has been in the forefront of the battle for economic stabilization as urged by President Roosevelt. It declared that "it is an unfortunate fact that the people's demands for a sound and integrated economic stabilization program have not been made effective.

"On the one hand, wages have been subjected to severe limitations; on the other hand, Congress has refused to enact a bill calculated to curb war profits and to call upon the corporations and those of high income to make their proper contribution to the cost of the war and has sabotaged the Administration's agricultural program."

In addition to the 17-cent wage demand, which would raise the minimum pay in the industry to 95 cents an hour, the Steelworkers asked for:

Severance allowances of four weeks' pay for all employes having one year and less than three years' continued service, and eight weeks' pay for all workers having three or more years of continued service.

One week's vacation for all employes with continuous service of a year and less than three years, and two weeks for those employed more than three years.

Time-and-a-half pay for work performed on the sixth or seventh day of the regularly established work week, with each of the first five days of the week to be considered as days worked. This would apply even though the worker had not been on the job, provided that his non-attendance was due to reasons beyond his control, such as illness, or was because the company had advised him not to report, or because he was engaged in official union affairs.

Time and a half would be paid to all employes called to work on their regular day of rest.

Thomas Urges Full Aid To Break 'Steel' Formula

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 4—Full support of all local unions in labor's fight to break the Little Steel formula while adhering to the no-strike pledge was asked this week by President R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers, in a letter addressed to UAW local presidents.

Pointing to the action taken at the UAW and national CIO conventions repudiating the Little Steel formula, Thomas said that all labor is united behind the fight for "wage levels in accordance with the real needs of war production workers."

"For over a year organized labor sought to live with the Little Steel formula," he said. "We did this because we knew that without some form of wage ceiling the control of prices, profits and salaries would be impossible. Labor therefore accepted the one point of the President's seven-point program which affected wages, so that favorable action might be secured on the other six points of the program.

"This would have meant victory for the President's purpose of checking inflation and maintaining the living standards of the people in this time of war. But the President's enemies and our own have wrecked the seven-point program."

DISASTROUS INFLATION

These enemies, he said, have opened "the floodgates to a disastrous sweep of inflation," and workers whose wages have been frozen, now find they have to pay more and more for the necessities of life.

The program of action launched by the UAW, Thomas said, calls for a concerted drive to revise government wage policies and "renewed insistence that a full stabilization program affecting matters of prices, profits, salaries and taxes be enacted and administered without appeasement of any special interests."

ACA Asks Pact Talks

New York, Dec. 4 — The CIO American Communications Assn. announced this week that it has served notice upon 66 East and West Coast steamship companies that it wishes to open negotiations for the purpose of streamlining existing agreements to meet new wartime conditions.

Harry A. Morgan, ACA vice-president, sent the notice to the American Merchant Marine Institute, the Pacific American Steamship Owners Assn., the War Shipping Administration, and to all the companies affected.

"The existing contracts represent a peacetime rather than a wartime appraisal of working conditions," he said. "If we are to continue to operate efficiently and to retain stable labor-management relations such as we have enjoyed since the beginning of the war, we must streamline all existing agreements so that all disputes arising out of wartime conditions of work can be settled promptly."

N. J. Textile WorkersBack Wage Fight

Newark, N. J., Dec. 4—All locals of the CIO Textile Workers Union in New Jersey were urged this week by Sol Stetin, TWU regional director, to meet as soon as possible to act on the union's new national wage policy adopted Nov. 17 by the TWU National Executive Council.

The TWU is asking for a general wage increase of at least 10 cents an hour, which would be in excess of the War Labor Board's Little Steel formula limiting pay increases to 15 per cent above the level of January 1941, Stetin said.

In his letter to the New Jersey locals, Stetin pointed out that labor's acceptance of the Little Steel formula had been based on the assurance that prices would be rolled back. Not only have prices continued to advance, but wages have been frozen, he said. He urged the locals to make it their immediate business "to translate the union's national policy into action."

The New Jersey TWU is broadcasting its views on wages, prices and other current issues every Sunday at 1:15 p.m. over Station WAAT, Newark. The first broadcast, on Nov. 21, centered around the union's current drive among workers of the Passaic Valley woolen industry.

$5 Million Medical 'Kick Back' Bared

New York, Dec. 4 — Testimony that nearly 3,000 physicians in this state have received "kick backs" totalling $5 million from medical supply houses, in connection with workmen's compensation cases featured an investigation being conducted with the idea of preventing the practice.

Physicians called to the witness stand this week testifed that they had received "kick backs" or commissions as high as 40 per cent, that the practice is applied in at least 60 per cent of compensation cases, and that three out of four physicians indulge in it.

Officials of medical and surgical supply houses admitted paying the "commissions," and said that they usually ranged from 10 to 33 1/3 percent.

The $5 million, according to witnesses, was part of $18 million the state spent last year for care of workmen needing compensation.

Furniture Workers Ask 10 Cent Pay Boost

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—A new wage policy lining up the United Furniture Workers with other CIO unions in demanding increased wages to meet rising living costs was announced here this week by UFW Pres. Morris Muster.

The union, through its Officers' Advisory Council, also re-affirmed its endorsement of Pres. Roosevelt for a fourth term, and supported CIO's political action program, recommending that each UFW member contribute 50 cents to the campaign.

The Council urged an intensive drive for real national economic stabilization through the enforcement of strict price control, rationing and a fair tax policy based on ability to pay.

Specific demands listed in the new wage program are for a 10-cent general wage increase to stabilize wages with increased prices, and a 60-cent floor under all furniture workers' wages, without prejudice to higher minimum pay prevailing in certain areas.

In announcing the union's wage policy, Pres. Muster stressed the need to safeguard the living standards of furniture workers "to enable them to continue their record of war production and other wartime activities at their present high levels."

He cited the union's record in helping to achieve conversion of a great part of the industry to war work, and the high percentage of bond buying among organized furniture workers as showing the UFW's wholehearted support of all measures aimed at speeding victory.

The Council also protested against the use of war prisoners in the furntiure industry where full employment of furniture workers at fair wages does not at present exist.

$413.40 SMILE: That's what Joseph Todd, former recording secretary of United Steelworkers Lodge No. 1879 of Cincinnati, exhibited this week in Washington, D. C., as he collected the sum, due him in back wages after he was fired from the Williamson Heater Co. for union activity. Todd, now a member of the Federal Workers Union, was awarded the money by the Natl. Labor Relations Board.

U. S. Workers Visit British Nursery

Manchester, Eng., Dec. 4—Four American union war workers touring Britain this week discovered that the British have made substantial progress in the nursery school field.

The four—Hugh Maloney and Joseph Smith of CIO and Stanley Ceizyk and Otto Butler of AFL—visited a nursery set up nearly two years ago by the management of a large chemical plant.

Mothers who work in the plant leave their children at the nursery at a cost of only $1.50 a week. Babies 2 to 5 years old are fed and housed from Sunday night until the following Saturday evening, when the mothers take them home for the weekend.

Approximately 50 children are cared for by a staff of two nurses, six assistants and four domestic helpers. A doctor is available at all times.

FEPC Bans RR Job Bias

Washington, Dec. 4—The long struggle of Negroes for the right to equality of job opportunity in the railroad industry was advanced this week by a directive issued by the President's Fair Employment Practice Committee ordering 20 railroads and seven unions affiliated with the AFL and the Railroad Brotherhoods to stop all discriminatory practices.

Malcolm Ross, chairman of the committee, in making the committee's conclusions public, said that the groups accused of unfair treatment of workers because of race, creed, color or national origin would be given 30 days to comply with the order. If any of them refuse, the case will be turned over to President Roosevelt for enforcement.

The committee directed ten of the 20 railroads involved to discard the Southeastern Agreement they had signed with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Enginemen in February, 1941, in violation of the President's Executive Order forbidding job discrimination. The agreement was aimed at cutting down the percentage of Negroes employed as firemen in favor of white workers.

The committee held hearings on the charges in Washington in September, at which time a number of witnesses testified concerning unfair job practices. No formal reply was made at the hearings by the unions involved.

The committee charged the unions with following a policy discriminating against Negroes which made "it impossible for them to have any adequate voice or representation with respect to grievances and the negotiation of agreements affecting working conditions, employment policy, practices and opportunities."

Warning—Sales Tax Still Looms in Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—The sales tax on everything you buy and use is far from dead, even though it was cut out of the tax bill as passed by the House (HR 3687) and sent over to the Senate Finance Committee.

This committee, headed by Sen. Walter F. George (polltaxer, Ga.) is now holding hearings on the bill, which it expects to rush through by January 1. George is openly saying that a sales tax is the "only way out" of the serious revenue shortages in the House bill—which were created by House refusal to tax war profits or big incomes.

At the same time, George is hearing every available witness who will come up and talk favorably about the sales tax. W. J. Schieffelin, of the N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, was typical—except that he went further than anyone else in claiming credit for being "among the first" to argue for it.

Sharply warning that the present tax bill as passed by the House "attacks our national morale in its flagrant refusal to tax the swollen war profits of corporations . . . and thereby creates the basis for inflation," President Murray wrote to the Senators earlier this week reaffirming CIO's win-the-war tax program and its opposition to the sales tax and other new burdens on low income people.

The House bill, he added, "reflects not merely an abdication of a grave responsibility which the members of Congress owe to the people of the nation, but equally a callous disregard of what is necessary to meet the war needs of our country."

He called for increased income taxes on "those with comfortable and large incomes," for 55 per cent war profits tax, closing loopholes, etc., to raise the $10 billion that the Administration has asked for war needs.

At the same time, Murray hit at a clause in the House bill which would require unions and other non-profit institutions to file income returns annually.

"This new requirement must be intended as an opening wedge either to tax union funds or discourage members from contributing their dues to the unions," he said. "We must regard this provision as akin to other efforts to undermine and to destroy union organization."

Appearing before the committee representing 500,000 CIO members Michael J. Quill, newly elected New York Councilman and head of the Transport Workers Union, protested the inadequate House bill, attacked the sales tax as an intolerable burden on the war workers and the people generally, and called for proper taxes on profits and wealth.

Quill urged that the Administration's need for the $10 billion to help fight the war be met in this way, and repeated that the sales tax would be a serious blow to war workers' health and to war production.

Smith Smear Group in Triple Threat Attack on Agencies

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Dirty work in Congress Committees reached a new low this week with a triple-front smear attack from the Smith Special Investigating body on three government war agencies.

Usually the war disrupters take them on not more than one or two at a time, but the Smith gang is currently after the following vital war agencies: the War Labor Board, the Fair Employment Practices Committee, and (of all things) the Post Office Dept.

The War Labor Board is getting its treatment from Smith on the union security issue, with the committee lining up anti-union employers in a try at knocking down WLB orders for maintenance of membership and the like.

The Fair Employment agency, which this week ordered railroads to stop Jim Crow practices against Negro workers, was violently attacked in a Smith group report which, incidentally, was signed by two self-described liberals—Reps. Voorhis (D., Calif.) and Delaney (D., N. Y.).

Contracts with firms supplying the government that specify no discrimination in employment should be "prohibited by law," the report said.

And the Post Office is in bad with Smith because long ago it refused to allow delivery of mail to a Montgomery Ward mail-order house that was being struck on the West Coast. Continuing to deliver the mail to Ward's, of course, would have broken the strike.

Ask Wage Boosts In Navy Yard

New York, Dec. 4—Two white collar unions at the Brooklyn Navy Yard affiliated with the CIO Federation of Architect, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians this week in a joint statement called for increased wages and an efficiency survey of overstaffed offices as necessary "to maintain high morale of Federal employes," and to curtail "the huge turnover of personnel."

CIO Leads Fight In Senate For Food Subsidies

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—CIO's fight for subsidies to keep food production up and prices down went to the Senate this week, with a letter from Pres. Murray urging an end to the ban on subsidies in HR 3477, and with testimony in Murray's name by Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey.

At the same time, the hunger-bloc forces, represented by such men as Albert Goss, head of the Grange, continued their attack on subsidies in the interests of less food at higher prices and of inflated profits for the monopoly food interests.

Murray's letter to the Senate, where the bill is now before the Banking and Currency Committee after House passage last week, bluntly warned that a "mad upward inflationary spiral might well be touched off by Congressional destruction of our price control program."

He also pointed out that "the efforts of certain groups to secure for themselves the greater profits to be derived from general price increases" is the main motive for the fight against subsidies.

Answering the profiteering forces' attempt to split labor and the farmers on the issue, he said: "This is emphatically not an issue between city and country or between farmer and industrial worker, as some of the spokesmen for special interests would have us believe.

"Runaway prices do not affect the city-dweller alone or the industrial worker alone. They affect every family in the nation. . . . Prices which would place bread and meat and milk beyond the reach of our lower income groups will impair our national health everywhere and affect our war production everywhere."

"The issue is whether you will permit subsidies to be used to hold down the cost of living, or whether you will allow prices to continue upward, with the almost certain result that this course will soon kick the lid off and destroy the last pretense of price control," Carey told the committee.

"That issue is sharp, simple and clear to all of us. If you vote subsidies down, you vote prices up."

Answernig Goss, who poses as a "farm-bloc" leader, Archie Wright, of the New York State Farmers Union, told the committee that the farmers want subsidies to help them get into full war food production just as much as the workers want them.

"The forces of scarcity and Hooverism are determined to wreck the subsidy program and foment inflation," Wright said. The position of Goss and Edward O'Neal, head of the Farm Bureau Federation and owner of a huge southern plantation, was summed up neatly when Goss proposed to "cut the demand to fit the supply."

This proposition, in all its simplicity, is nothing less than a plea for cutting down on the amount of food the American people are to eat.

Best way to cut this greedy habit of eating, Goss argued, was for Congress to tax the low income group so heavily that they wouldn't do anything so un-American as have a "demand" for food.

Speaking for 70,000 United Shoe Workers, Jack Zucker, Washington representatives, declared that the shoe workers, one of the lowest paid groups in the nation, must have lower food prices or face starvation.

'Fighting 60' Meet Dec. 9

Washington, Dec. 4—The "Fighting 60," more formally known as the Congressional Committee for the Protection of the Consumer, will hold a conference here Dec. 9 to unite labor, farmers, consumers and women's groups in the fight against profiteering food price rises.

The Congressional group, headed by Rep. Thomas Scanlon (D., Pa.), was formed some time ago to fight back against the food monopoly agents who want to bar subsidies and take the lid off inflation.

It held a successful conference last summer, at the height of the attack on price control led by the polltaxers and their Republican allies.

For the first time in history, delegates from workers, consumers, church, women's and other groups interested in reachable food prices met in the House Office Building to talk things over wtih their Representatives.

The "Fighting 60" has the support of the CIO, expressed at the July meeting by Pres. Murray in person, and reaffirmed since. One of CIO's major legislative aims is to secure pressure from the field on all Congressmen to join and work with the group.

Barking Up The Wrong Tree

It's an old democratic custom to "blame the government" whenever anything goes wrong.

But a lot of the boys on Capitol Hill seem to be having it both ways. They're the government themselves when they pass laws to cripple the administration's home-front program; but they join the rank and file when it comes to blaming the government for the results of their own actions.

As a result, there seems to be some confusion in the minds of many voters, to judge from a recent Gallup poll of public opinion.

A number of voters who shifted to the anti-administration side in recent elections in New York, New Jersey and Kentucky were asked about their chief complaints against the Roosevelt administration.

Their complaints included the usual gripes against "red tape" and "bureaucracy," which every government must expect, particularly when it has such a big job as running a war.

They included that amazing product of big-business press propaganda, the idea that labor is being "coddled," which always leaves labor folks a trifle breathless.

But when the complainers got down to brass tacks, their basic complaints included such answers as "irritation over taxes of all kinds"; "ceiling prices are not enforced"; "wages out of line with prices"; "government has not checked inflation"; "failure properly to administer rationing program"; "shortages of food and failure to take proper steps to prevent them."

These last-mentioned complaints are natural enough. But their makers are barking up the wrong tree.

The administration certainly has no perfect record. Labor has had plenty of complaints against its failures and inadequacies and against frequent treatment that is the opposite of "coddling."

But the real villain of the piece is the reactionary and anti-administration majority in Congress, made up of tory Republicans and tory and polltax Democrats, which has stood in the way of every genuine administration attempt to better home-front organization.

Take "irritation over taxes." It's Congress, not the administration, that determines taxes. The administration has repeatedly recommended revamping of our tax structure to base it more on ability to pay.

But the reactionary majority in Congress has consistently dumped most administration suggestions in the waste-basket, continuing to coddle the profiteers at the expense of greater and greater burdens on low-income groups least able to pay.

As to failure to enforce price ceilings and administer rationing properly, the OPA has certainly not done all it should. But the anti-administration bloc in Congress has tried to stop it doing even as much as it has, by cutting funds for enforcement, by constant sniping and bulldozing, and by catering to price-raising profiteers at every turn.

Certainly wages and prices are out of line. That's why CIO is asking that the Little Steel formula be scrapped, so wages can be adjusted up to present price levels.

But how did wages and prices get this way? Congress voted to stabilize both at Sept. 15, 1942, levels, and then did its darnedest to block every administration attempt to hold prices down to the same level as wages, or to roll them back when they went too high.

As to food shortages, here again Congress has consistently fought against incentive payments and food subsidies to stimulate production.

Just look at the fight against food subsidies in Congress today. These subsidies are basic to any program to check inflation. But the House has voted for higher prices and inflation, through its ban on subsidies, despite all administration and labor pleas; and the Senate is now threatening to do the same.

In a word, the voters who answered this Gallup poll turned against the people who have been fighting to remedy their grievances, and threw their votes to the anti-administration crowd that is responsible for the troubles that irk them most.

It's clear you can fool some of the people some of the time; and it's equally obvious that the CIO in its political campaign has a tremendous educational job to do, to bring the real issues home to the people, and to show them who are their friends and who are their enemies.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

DEAR ED: I'm sorry I missed seeing you during my visit to Fort Knox with a bunch of CIO officials. But you were away in "battle training," I was told. So I'm writing some of the things I'd like to have said to you.

We saw other fellows going through some of the training you've been through. It's plenty tough, and I imagine civilian life must look pretty soft and safe to you by now.

After what I saw at Fort Knox, I can appreciate much better some of the army reactions to strikes and John L. Lewis, which seem to be the first things that pop into a lot of the fellows' heads when you talk about labor.

★ ★ ★

For instance, we saw a pretty realistic demonstration of a reinforced armored battalion in attack, with live ammunition used, and with tanks, artillery, airplanes, infantry and engineers all used to capture a single objective.

Every individual had a special task, and if he lay down on the job or was inaccurate or inefficient, he endangered not only his own life but the lives of his buddies as well. Everything depended on teamwork, timing and closest coordination.

Then we went through the Armored School and saw young fellows studying the functioning and repair of tank engines, radios, guns, etc. I never saw such concentration—they hardly looked up when we passed, even though there was a good-looking girl in the party.

I was just going to say they studied as if their lives depended upon it. But that, of course, is exactly the point. The lives of all the men in a tank crew do depend on every member knowing and doing his particular job thoroughly.

It made one realize, too, how all of you fellows depend for your lives on the repair men and on the workers at home supplying the best possible tanks and parts and guns exactly when and as needed.

★ ★ ★

So I don't blame you for having pretty strong personal feelings these days about anything that interrupts war production.

I know you realize the CIO has nothing to do with Lewis and his coal strikes. But I wish everyone else in the army realized we've been the chief opposition to his type of tactics.

As a matter of fact, the CIO is the strongest and most effective force there is working against wartime strikes.

If you want to get really sore at production holdups, you can join with us in getting after some of the profiteering bosses who do more damage, more quietly, than a dozen strikes.

When one of these profiteers rides his workers too hard for his own advantage, and they see him sabotaging the war by inefficiency and selfish practices, it's only natural there should be some trouble.

But it's the unions that stop these grievances from leading to strikes, that get the men back to work if they walk off spontaneously, and that do most of all to maintain uninterrupted production to back you up.

★ ★ ★

When you put on Uncle Sam's uniform, Ed, you didn't separate yourself from the CIO. You're one of a million and a quarter CIO members in the fighting forces, not to mention millions more sons and brothers of CIO unionists.

The CIO is plugging for you all as hard as it can. Its members in war industries have broken world records in war production, and CIO is the largest single contributor to the USO and other war relief.

The CIO worked for higher pay for servicemen, and it led the recent fight for increased dependency allowances for soldiers' wives and children.

The bill for the largest increase in allowances was known as the CIO bill, because the CIO drafted it, got a Congressman to introduce it and did most of the fighting for it. It was this fight that led Congress to make some increase in the miserable amounts first voted.

The CIO is also pushing for the Wagner-Murray-Dingell social security bill and for every other measure that will assure you and other servicemen a decent job after the war or real security until you obtain one.

And when our unions try to maintain decent job conditions and democratic liberties, they're fighting your battles, too, Ed. I know you don't want to come back to any open-shop hell of unbridled exploitation.

But this is more than enough for one letter from

Your affectionate Uncle.

Plan to Filibuster Against Polltax Repeal Hit By All Branches of Labor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Leaders of the CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods this week joined in telling the Senate that the people will not tolerate another filibuster against the polltax repeal bill, HR 7, when it hits the Senate floor.

The three men—CIO Pres. Philip Murray, AFL Pres. William Green, and Julius Luhrsen, for the Brotherhoods—told the Senate bluntly:

"A report has been circulated that another filibuster will be permitted to block the right of the Senate to vote on H. R. 7. In the midst of our war for democracy, it is not consonant with the dignity and integrity of the Senate to indulge an irresponsible, wilful minority.

"Gentlemen: We ask that you vote for cloture to limit debate if an irresponsible filibuster is enacted. We ask that H.R. 7, abolishing the polltax, be promptly enacted."

Meantime, the Natl. Committee to Abolish the Polltax announced a broad conference of labor, church groups, Negro groups, women's organizations and the like—meeting in Washington this week to map final action to get the bill through. Sen. Mead (D., N. Y.), will speak.

Early action on the bill is needed. Every Senator should be flooded again with wires urging a quick vote, a cloture vote to kill the filibuster (cloture is simply a motion to close debate), and no amendments on H. R. 7.

Time Out!

St. Paul Labor Unites For Political Action

St. Paul, Dec. 4—Instead of slowing up on political activity following the elections, St. Paul unions—CIO, AFL and railroad—have organized a citywide joint legislative body for the coming year.

Action was taken at a meeting of more than 300 delegates. Officers elected were: president, Frank Marzitelli, Bakery & Confectionary Workers Intl. Union (AFL); vice president, John Wyant, Beer Bottlers Union (unaffiliated); secretary-treasurer, William Hartman, United Steelworkers.

4 State CIO Conventions

Washington, Dec. 4—Three CIO State Councils are holding conventions this week-end—Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island. On Monday the Maryland-District of Columbia Council convention will open its two-day convention in Cumberland, Md.

Two CIO officials from the National office are scheduled to address the Connecticut Council, which is meeting at the Bond Hotel in Hartford. Allan S. Haywood, CIO vice-president and director of organization, and John Brophy, director of Industrial Union Councils, are among the CIO leaders who will address the delegates.

The same two national officers, together with J. Raymond Walsh, director of research and education, will speak at the New Jersey convention, which will be held at the Essex House in Newark.

Brophy will also speak at the Rhode Island convention, which is meeting at the Narragansett Hotel in Providence.

CIO Wins Tight Race In Youngstown

Youngstown, O., Dec. 4—In this city's tightest mayoralty election, Ralph W. O'Neill, CIO-backed Democratic candidate, won this week by exactly eight votes. O'Neill ran from nine to 43 votes in back of his Republican opponent in a recount, until the last two of 225 precincts were reported.

Four of the city's seven councilmen backed by CIO also were elected.

The home stretch mayoralty winner was endorsed by the Mahoning County CIO Council, which distributed thousands of copies of the Mahoning Valley Edition of The CIO NEWS to aid the campaign, as well as advertising in a daily paper.

O'Neill had been unofficially declared victor by six votes immediately following the election Nov. 2, but his opponent, Arthur H. Williams, demanded a recount.

O'Neill was not conceded a chance to win the day before election. Local gamblers offered thousands of dollars at two-to-one against him.

Hailing the victory, Pres. Carl E. Beck of the CIO Council said that "we plan to do a much better job in '44."

Urge Voting Rights For Migrants

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 4—The Md. & D. C. Industrial Union Council this week informed War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt that a conservative estimate shows more than a million war workers have lost their right to vote through changes in their residences. The council urged McNutt to call a conference of state officials to outline measures which would assure such workers the right to vote.

The council recommended that both labor and industry be represented at such a conference, and told McNutt that "it would seem entirely proper for your agency to take the initiative" in calling it "because of the responsibility of your agency for manpower and the regulatory controls you exercise on inmigration."

In a letter to the Manpower Commissioner, written by Council Sec.-Treas. Sidney R. Katz, the council said:

"It would be ironical indeed if hundreds of thousands of civilian American citizens find themselves deprived of their right to vote in federal elections precisely because they have gone out of their way to make the numerous sacrifices which are attendant upon leaving their homes to take employment in congested war areas in order to produce the weapons for the fight of democracy against fascism."

Hold Michigan Political Parley

Detroit, Dec. 4—Several hundred officers and prominent members of CIO unions throughout the state and nation were scheduled to meet at Lansing this week to launch CIO political action in Michigan. Announcement of the conference was made jointly by August Scholle, chairman of the 6th Region CIO Political Action Committee, and John W. Gibson, president of the Michigan CIO Council.

Sidney Hillman, chairman of the national CIO Political Action Committee, was to address the conference.

1st WAVE Killed Was CIO Member

Philadelphia, Dec. 4—Elizabeth Korensky, the first WAVE killed in line of duty, was a member of Local 155, United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers.

Miss Korensky formerly was employed at the Wilkening Manufacturing Co. here, and enlisted last March. She was killed in an explosion in the Norfolk Naval Air Station.

Arkansas Labor Unites to Form Political League

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 4—Arkansas labor "went to town" politically this week, setting up the Arkansas Voters' League to unite all workers—both union and non-union—in the fight for legislation and candidates that will support the interests of the common people.

Hopping mad about anti-labor legislation passed in 1943 and anxious to throw their full weight behind the 1944 national political campaign, more than 300 delegates from virtually all branches of the labor movement and from a farmers' cooperative met here to decide on a plan of action.

A resolution adopted by the League said that it "will only support candidates for public office who have a past unblemished public record or who will openly champion the legislative demands advocated by the League."

The organization decided that it "will not nominate, endorse or place candidates in the field for election to public office," since none of the labor organizations commit themselves on any candidate without authority from their national officers.

Affiliated with the League are the following major organizations: CIO, AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods, Typographical Union and the Farmers' Educational & Cooperative Union, each of which has the right to select two members for the Executive Board.

BITTNER MAIN SPEAKER

Organization of the League was sparked by an address from Van A. Bittner, assistant to the president of the United Steelworkers, who warned that "we must fight together to win this battle."

Pointing to the fact that organizations similar to the one in Arkansas are being stimulated by CIO all over the nation, Bittner said:

"We are either going to win this fight at the polls or lose it. We are not going to sneak up on our enemies. We are going out flat-footed against them. This movement on the part of organized labor is going to be the greatest political thing the world has ever seen and we must win to preserve ourselves, America and organized labor."

Attacking the Christian-American Assn., which sponsored a so-called anti-violence but really anti-labor law in Arkansas, Bittner declared:

"The Christian-American movement is as American as Hitler and as Christian as the devil himself. When we are finished, the Christian-American movement will be dead."

The League elected the following officers: Odell Smith, head of the AFL Little Rock Central Trades Council, president; W. R. Henderson, CIO sub-regional director, recording secretary; J. R. Wilson, Brotherhood of Railway Conductors legislative representative, vice-president; and James A. Griffey, vice-president of the Little Rock Typographical Union, financial secretary-treasurer.

2nd Political Asst. Named By Hillman

Washington, Dec. 4—Raymond S. McKeough, OPA regional administrator with headquarters in Chicago and a former member of Congress, was named this week by Chairman Sidney Hillman of CIO's Political Action Committee as regional assistant in charge of CIO political activity for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. McKeough has resigned his OPA post, which he has held since February last, to take the CIO appointment.

R. S. McKEOUGH

In McKeough, Hillman has named the second outstanding New Dealer within a fortnight as one of his aides. Previously Hillman announced the appointment of C. Benham Baldwin, former area director in charge of economic operations in Italy for the State Department, as an assistant.

McKeough served four terms in Congress from Nov. 1934 until Jan. 1942, representing the Second Illinois District, and was the first Democrat to be elected from that district since the Civil War. He had never been a political candidate previously. In Congress, he established an outstanding pro-labor record.

CLOTHES FOR SOVIETS: Garments that New Yorkers have forgotten at tailor shops—six tons in all—were presented this week to Russian War Relief, Inc., by Cleaners & Dyers Union, Local 239, Amalgamated Clothing Workers. Checking the clothes are, left to right: ACW Sec.-Treas, Jacob S. Potofsky; Miss Pavla Goubanova, of the Soviet Consulate; Mrs. Edward C. Carter, of Russian War Relief, and Jack Cohen, who directed the ACW drive.

Keep Your Eye On Congress

Subsidies for food production at reachable prices, and your new tax bill continue to be the hottest issues in Congress this week.

The Senate Committee on Banking and Currency has the subsidy issue, tossed to it after the House passed HR 3477 with a strict ban on use of public money to keep food prices down and production up.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) is chairman of this committee. Get the names of all the other members and wire them at once to work in committee for a bill that does NOT bar subsidies; then wire both your own Senators again on the same thing.

The tax hearings before the Senate Finance Committee, now going on, show that the sales tax is very far from dead and buried. In fact, Sen. George (polltaxer, Ga.) is openly talking about the need for a sales tax to make up the deficit in revenue created by House refusal to tax wealth.

The polltax repeal bill should be pushed harder than ever before, with demands to your two Senators for early action, cloture vote to kill the filibuster, and no amendments to HR 7.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
CCC bill (HR 3477)	As passed by House, use of subsidies for more food at lower prices is forbidden by Sec. 3. This means inflation, and quick.	Now in Senate Banking and Currency Committee, (Robt. F. Wagner, D., N. Y., chmn.) headed for early Senate vote.	Pour the wires in to your two Senators. Your eating habits are at stake.
Tax bill (HR 3687)	Your new taxes, added to what you already pay.	Senate Finance Committee, (Walter George, polltaxer, Ga., chmn.) where they're trying hard to put over a sales tax, other new burdens on the poor, while sparing the rich.	Wire your two Senators against sales tax, for taxes on big incomes, profits to raise money for the war.
Polltax repeal (HR 7)	Brings 10,000,000 Americans into democracy.	Still in Senate Judiciary Committee.	Tell your two Senators you're tired of stalling on this; tell them to work for immediate vote; vote for cloture to kill filibuster; no amendments of any kind.
HR 2328 HJ Res 49	Forbid mailing anti-Semitic, anti-Negro etc. literature, thus crimping native Fascists, Hitler stooges.	Report expected soon from subcommittee of House Post Office. (Sam Weiss, D., Pa., chmn.)	Write your Representative to support.
HR 352	Sets up Commission to aid Jews of Europe.	In House Foreign Affairs Committee, Sol Bloom, D., N. Y., chmn.)	Write your Representative to support.

CIO Leaders Find Armored Force Tough, Eager for Action

By C. W. FOWLER

FORT KNOX, Ky., Dec. 4—The armored force of the U. S. Army is ready, eager and trained to meet the Nazi panzers and take them, from the day they go into action.

The armored force—tanks, tank destroyers, mobile artillery, half tracks, combat cars, everything that moves and fights on wheels or treads—is large and it's strong, and its men are tough and as thoroughly trained as the Armored Command, occupying the largest post in the U. S., can make them.

How tough and how well-trained this force is, and how terrific its firepower is, is being shown to the Nazis and the Japs every day, as thousands of young fighters graduate from the school directly to the firing line.

This week, a group of 30 CIO representatives, headed by Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey, saw for two days the machines and the men that make up this force. They saw what used to be called "sham battles," which today are literally fought with live ammunition; saw the schools, saw the men go through obstacles with live machine gun fire 30 inches over their heads; saw the whole tremendous apparatus that makes up a modern army dedicated to one purpose, smashing fascism on the battlefronts of Europe and Asia.

Object Simple

As Major-General Alvan C. Gillem, jr., told the CIO visitors, the object of all the training is a simple one—to teach the soldiers how to hit the enemy with everything that American industrial power has given them.

General Gillem, commander of the Armored Command; Major-General Charles L. Scott, commander of the Armored Replacement Training Center; and Brigadier-General Joseph A. Holly, commandant of the Armored School, were hosts to the CIO visitors, conducting them around their commands and explaining things for two days.

Each one of them stressed the thoroughness of the training, plus the speed with which the men are put through it. As General Holly explained, the army had taken a lesson from American industry and labor—the lesson of the assembly line applied to the production of trained fighters.

Every recruit gets complete training, so that every member of every tank crew can do every job of driving, maintenance, repair and fighting that every other man can do. By the time they leave the school, they've learned their jobs not only in classrooms and on the parade ground, but under combat conditions as real as live shell and machine-gun fire can make them.

Live Ammunition

This new wrinkle in training—use of live ammunition, with the very real chance of getting shot if you do the wrong thing—is saving thousands of lives in battle, the officers pointed out. Previously, a soldier went into battle kithout knowing the sound and sight of gunfire. Now, he has a background of actual experience before he meets the enemy—and it gives him the "know-how" that frequently saves his life and makes him a much more effective soldier.

Following the first day of the visit, in which the CIO leaders saw a combat force take and hold a Nazi village, the officers and men of the post heard from the CIO, in a short speech delivered by Carey as President Murray's representative.

"We are all in this war—civilian and soldier, factory worker and farmer, men and women, white and Negro, young and old," he told them. "We must fight together if we would win together.

"Today we fight a people's war, with every person's energies bent on his given task, and each task important in its contribution to the achievement of the common goal."

Cites CIO Record

Pointing to CIO's production record (practically everything used at the fort is CIO-made) and to CIO's concern for the welfare of the soldiers, seen in CIO's fight in Congress for higher pay and higher allowances for their dependents, Carey also outlined CIO's postwar objectives of full employment and social security for all.

The purpose of the trip, arranged by the War Dept., was not only to show CIO representatives the way CIO made material operates and the way soldiers are trained, but also to stimulate labor union interest in pre-induction training.

As explained to the representatives, the armed forces are finding that the supply of men with some mechanical training is drying up. In 1941, for example, some 45 per cent of inductees had some background of mechanical training; in 1943, the percentage has gone down to 18.

Pre-induction training courses are available, and the War Dept. urges prospective inductees to take advantage of them, through their local Board of Education and Vocational School system. Even a little of this training saves time and money for the army and helps the inductee in getting ahead faster once he is in the army.

Opportunity for All

This business of getting ahead in in the army was frankly explained to the visitors by General Gillem, who told them that the Armored Command, first created in 1940, was a force where all men, Negro or white, could get on well provided they did one thing—worked at their jobs of learning how to kill the Axis enemy.

It's a democratic army, too, as the visitors saw in one small incident on the second day, when they, their officer hosts and the enlisted men attached to the party—including Negro soldiers—sat down together in the same mess hall for lunch.

Three major impressions remained with the CIO visitors; the Armored Command is superbly armed, with the best of CIO-made equipment; the men are superbly trained, under combat conditions; the striking power of the Armored Command is terrific.

And all to one purpose, to meet the Axis enemy in offensive war and to kill his soldiers until fascism is wipe off the earth.

Low-Price Clothes Shortage a Hardship

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

Remember the days when you could get Susie's underwear at the five and ten, Johnny's overalls for 98 cents, and men's shirts for $1? All those cheap clothes have disappeared now—they just aren't being made any more. And their disappearance is working a big hardship on low-income consumers.

How to get those "low end price lines"—that's the technical name for those cheap shirts and overalls—back onto the market was one of the questions considered at the first meeting of the Consumer Advisory Committee of the OPA. The committee is made up partly of authorities in the consumer field and partly of leaders of organizations with active consumer programs.

Committee members knew quite a bit about the low end price line problem to begin with. They had an opportunity, during their two day meeting, to ask the heads of the OPA divisions and Chester Bowles himself for further information. They issued a statement commending the stand taken by OPA in refusing to solve the problem by offering manufacturers higher margins of profit on cheap goods—which would mean a substantially increased price to the consumer.

The War Production Board has power to allocate materials and to direct that certain uses to be made of them. The Consumer Advisory Committee felt that OPA should insist that WPB use those powers to get cheap clothing items made. That's the only way to hold the line.

ENCOURAGING ACTION

It's really very encouraging that one government agency dealing directly with consumer problems should have appointed a committee to advise them on the consumers interests. And that's one of the important things this OPA Consumer Advisory Committee has been appointed to do. They are to be consulted before major policies affecting consumers are inaugurated or changed. And they don't have to wait to be called for advice. They can set their own meeting dates and draw up their own agenda.

They have two other functions, also—to tell OPA how consumers are reacting to their programs, and to help OPA to do a more effective job of mobilizing public support for price control and rationing.

That's a big job, but the 25 people who compose the new committee are very serious about doing it. They are all determined to do all they can to make price control work and to prevent inflation.

In addition to electing officers: Miss Hazel Kirk of the University of Chicago, chairman; Miss Helen Hall of the Federation of Settlements, vice-chairman; and Miss Caroline Ware, well known consumer expert, secretary, the committee established an Executive Committee composed of the officers plus the Washington Committee members which is to follow up on decisions made by the committee and to keep in touch with the Washington picture.

Here at last is a channel through which consumers can get their story right to the head of OPA as industry has been doing for some time. Letters to Mr. Bowles congratulating him on taking this step are certainly in order. And let the committee hear your questions and problems. Send them to the Secretary of the Congress of Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO, 1019 15th St., N. W., who is a member of the committee.

Some Good Ideas For A Kids' Xmas Party

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

Make Christmas giving a real neighborhood affair this year. Let the youngsters have a hand in it, too.

With very little urging they'll drag a wagon behind them and ring doorbells to make collections. They've had plenty of experience collecting scrap and waste paper. This time let them make a tour of the neighborhood—street by street and house by house—collecting old toys, large or small, dolls, broken wagons, go-carts pull toys, games in good condition or bad, plus anything your children are willing to contribute to the Xmas wagon. They'll need all kinds of odds and ends to use for repairs—like parts of roller skates, paint brushes, odd cans of left over paints, hammers, nails, screw drivers, odd bits of lumber even odd bits of dress materials—in short, anything that can be used to repair, mend and paint the toys.

Organize a group of boys and girls to do the job. They could dress up the wagon with Xmas paper and string up some bells to jingle as they jog along.. A big picture of Santa Claus, cut out of a magazine and pasted on stiff cardboard could be nailed on to the wagon. Or a big picture of a Xmas stocking stuffed with toys would serve the same purpose. They'd need little else to advertise their mission.

Somebody's basement could be used as a workshop. The children could get together after school to sort out the games, hammer, mend, paint and sew. Mothers and fathers could help too, giving suggestions and even helping with the sewing and hammering.

BAZAAR FOR GIFTS

Then, when the great day arrives and all the toys are lined up shining and bright, you can hold a Bazaar for Xmas Gifts. You could arrange to use the corner of some store window in your neighborhood for your display. Some youngsters could paint Xmas posters in bright colors saying "Get your Xmas Gifts at your Neighborhood Bazaar." Let the children be store manager and cashiers. They can charge a small price for each item.

Then when all the money is turned in and counted up, let them decide for themselves what to do with it. You might suggest they contribute it to the Community Chest or to the Tuberculosis Fund or they might want to get something very special with the money for some sick child in the neighborhood.

Here's a change to let your children play a real part in the life of your community. They'll be learning how to be useful young citizens and having lots of fun at the same time.

And remember, War Stamps and War Bonds are still high up on the list of Xmas giving.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

The United Rubber Workers came through with a fine victory representing several years of struggle at the Firestone Rubber Co., Fall River, Mass. The drive was supervised by Intl. Rep. Rex Murray, assisted by CIO Field Rep. Samuel Macri. All who participated are to be commended. The vote was CIO 936, AFL 360, neither 56.

A. R. Hardesty, CIO Sub-Reg. Dir. of Dallas, Texas, reports a victory at the McKinney plant of Texas Textile Mills, Inc.: CIO 299, no union 20.

E. D. Hodson, Delaware CIO Reg. Dir., adds to the splendid growth of CIO in that area of a Steelworkers' victory at Worth Steel, Claymont, Delaware: USA-CIO 581, independent union 252, and no union 30.

Field Rep. Robert Brylke reports a victory at Victory Products Inc., Hagerstown, Maryland: CIO 213, no union 71.

Triple Textile Victory

E. L. Sandefur, CIO Reg. Dir. of the Carolinas, sends in a triple event for the Textile Workers: Amazon Mills, Thomasville, N. C.: CIO 430, no union 169; Jewel Mills, Thomasville, N. C.: CIO 130, no union 117; Chadwick-Hoskins, Charlotte, N. C.: CIO 148, no union 35. All these campaigns were under the able direction of TWUA Reg. Dir. R. R. Lawrence. Congratulations to all!

As a result of much organizing activity, Reg. Dir. Paul Christopher of Tennessee reports that CIO-endorsed candidates for Mayor and City Judge in Knoxville, Tenn., were elected. Both were hotly contested. It was an open fight and labor was out to beat a judge that ruled unfairly against them in the past. They did a good job. This is further evidence that the CIO is beginning to demonstrate its political strength in this the bailiwick of Mr. Crump.

Reg. Dir. Hugh Thompson, Buffalo, reports a victory at Buffalo Foundry and Machine Co.: UERMWA-CIO 107; District 50, UMWA 102.

Sam Sponsellor, who was director of the Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee until that organization recently adopted its consitutional setup, is now assigned as acting CIO Reg. Dir. at Cleveland, Ohio.

Stab-in-the-Back Policy

Some more evidence of the stab-in-the-back policy of the AFL. The CIO Woodworkers won an election recently at five plants of the Potlatch Lumber Co. The AFL endeavored to stop the election by seeking to obtain an injunction from Judge Black, who refused to issue the writ. Since the election, which was won by the CIO, the AFL made another application to the same judge for another injunction, which he granted, restraining the NLRB from effectuating the decision in favor of the CIO as a result of the workers exercising their democratic right to choose their union

These practices are consistent with the conduct of labor hating employers, and denial of the fundamental rights of the workers. The CIO will fight these practices to the end, and I am confident they will have the support of all true trade unionists.

Truth About Japan Bared by Prisoners

By ISRAEL EPSTEIN

(In this exclusive wirelessed article, first of a series, Allied Labor News Chungking correspondent gives hitherto unpublished facts on Japan's labor and economic situation. His information comes from direct participants—Japanese workers drafted into the army and captured in China. Under the auspices of the Japanese Anti-War League in China, these prisoners are holding labor study groups, minutes of which have been made available to Mr. Epstein. His later articles will deal with Japan's labor conscription, wages and hours, the fate of the trade unions, strikes, and workers' resistance.)

CHUNGKING, Dec. 4 (ALN)—A group of Japanese war prisoners in China, some of whom were workers in industry before they put on uniforms, recently asked themselves the question that the whole Japanese people must ultimately ask itself: "Who in Japan is benefited by and who suffers from the war that Japan herself began?" Under the leadership of the Japanese Anti-War League in China, of which many of them have become members, the prisoners began to answer this question from the facts of their own separate and collective experience. One of the sections of the groups devoted itself exclusively to questions of industry and labor. Here are the conclusions of this section as evolved from its discussions:

Contrary to the loosely-held view that the Japanese militarists harnessed the capitalists forcibly to their ambitions and drove them against their will into that Pacific war, the prisoners assert positively that the war in China brought the great trusts and the war machine so close together that even before Pearl Harbor it became impossible to distinguish between their interests.

At that time all economy was already geared to war, and shortages in the supply of both raw materials and power were putting small industries out of business wholesale. Many small factories were put up for sale but for a long period there was no one to buy them.

Then the great Japanese trusts, Mitsui and Mitsubishi, came into the field. Mitsui had engaged chiefly in trade, including huge purchases of scrap and oil from America. Now it turned to heavy industry. Mitsubishi also converted its activities to the needs of war. Both began to buy up the bankrupt factories right and left at rock bottom prices.

They became convinced that the military adventures they had once feared created a never-to-be-repeated opportunity for increasing their already powerful throttlehold on Japanese industry.

At first the trusts paid for their purchases in cash, but the very high total of the sums changing hands began to threaten the country with inflation. It was then that the militarist-dominated government made its greatest gift to Japanese finance capital. Under the "Law Regulating the Application of Capital," passed by the 83rd session of the Japanese Diet, sellers of factories are compelled to accept payment not in money but in shares of the buyer concern. More than this, owners of inactive factories are now compelled to sell whether they want to or not.

Government Power

A second measure, "The Adjustment of Enterprises Law," gives the government the right to take over all such factories and distribute their plants to the heavy industries. Thus, under the guise of government policy, a few great trusts have acquired ownership of practically all the functioning industry in Japan. To them too has gone the lion's share of the great resources captured by the Japanese forces in 1941-42.

The political result is that Japanese finance capital and the Japanese militarists have been welded into an indissoluble block committed to the end of Japan's war of aggression. The Diet and the Japanese form of consitutional government, whose only function, in any case, was to iron out differences between various sections of the ruling groups, have become superfluous.

Japanese fascism, which has steadily usurped power in the country since the invasion of China's Manchurian provinces in 1931, has at last achieved final consolidation.

Now let us see what this has meant to the Japanese people and especially to the Japanese workers who, because of the expansion of war industry, comprise an ever greater part of the population as a whole.

Workers Enslaved

In the initial spurt of expansion of Japanese war industry after 1937, a shortage of labor was very quickly felt. Even absorption of workers from smaller plants and workshops did not provide enough hands, and small merchants, clerks and white collar workers were also forced into war industry.

In this first phase wages were allowed to rise and competition among war plants for the limited supply of labor sent them even higher.

It was only later that the workers discovered that this brief phase was only the bait to lure them into the most abject slavery that even the sweated labor of Japan has ever known.

Deprived of any means of defense by the previous smashing of the trade unions with which we shall deal in another article—the workers could not hope successfully to escape from this trap from which only the military defeat of Japan will free them.

CIO GIRL JOINS WACS: Eva "Bill" Wagner, 26-year-old daughter of Pres. Martin Wagner of the CIO Gas, Coke & Chemical Workers, this week joined the WACs, fulfilling a year-old ambition. 300,000 Puerto Ricans Jobless Despite U. S. Need For More War Workers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—A story of the hunger and misery forced upon some 300,000 jobless American citizens, as told this week by a visitor to the National CIO office, sounded a strange note in the clamor about manpower shortages raging here.

He was M. A. Domenech, overseas representative of the Puerto Rican General Confederation of Workers, now living in Newark, N. J., where he is a member of the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers employed as a technician at the Westinghouse plant. He was in Washington to testify at hearings held this week before the Senate sub-committee on Insular Affairs.

About 75 percent of the Island's working population, Domenech said, is dependent directly or indirectly, upon the sugar cane industry for a living. War conditions have disrupted Puerto Rico's main industry and thrown some 300,000 workers out of jobs.

The average yearly wage in the sugar cane industry even in normal times is only $200 a year, Domenech declared. Due to the seasonal nature of the industry, workers are employed only six months of the year.

He said that authorities in the Island estimated that $840 a year was the minimum income necessary to maintain the essentials of a decent standard of living.

Thousands of workers are suffering from tuberculosis and other ailments brought on by malnutrition and bad living conditions.

To remedy the situation among the unemployed, Domenech said that the Confederation of Workers urges:

Permanent rehabilitation of the island through the free flow of commerce between Puerto Rico and the U. S. by curbing the unnecessary restrictions that at present hamper this commerce.

The setting up of emergency public works projects with Federal funds immediately.

A technical study of the possibilities of using many thousands of acres of land in the mountainous section of the island for the development of a rubber project.

Free transportation of skilled workers and farmers from Puerto Rico to the United States to aid the manpower shortage in the war industries and on farms.

Appropriation of Federal funds for a fishing and canning project to give work to unemployed and provide fish for local needs at lower prices.

Removal of restrictions on importation of meats, to lower prices.

CIO Clothing Workers Hailed By Gen. Clark

New York, Dec. 4—Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commanding the Fifth Army in Italy, this week commended Local 169 of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers for purchasing $200,000 worth of War Bonds, the proceeds of which will help to re-clothe American soldiers in Italy whose equipment has been lost or damaged in battle.

The Amalgamated announced that under the slogan, "We Clothe the Army and Navy," it had, through all its branches in the country, effected the purchase of $6,000,000 in bonds during the Third War Loan campaign. One member alone, Jennie Edwards of Canton, Ohio, sold $200,000 worth of bonds.

In his letter to Local 169, Gen. Clark praised the 5,000 members of the union and said that "fine action of this sort demonstrates conclusively that the American people are united, from the workers at home to the soldiers in the front line, in their determination to bring about a speedy and complete victory."

UAW Soldier Wounded In Sicily Battle

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 4—Pvt. Joseph G. Velosky, a member of the CIO United Auto Workers and formerly employed as a press operator at the Chrysler Corp. in Detroit, is convalescing at a general hospital in this area, the American Red Cross reported this week.

Velosky, who was wounded toward the end of the Sicilian campaign, told a Red Cross social worker how it happened:

"My platoon was to take a certain hill way out in the country side. We contacted the enemy, but not until we were right on top of them. I was in a prone position, armed with a Springfield O-3, with a grenade launcher attached.

"The enemy sent up a few flares. After they went out I heard something thud to my right, followed by a loud bang. It was one of their grenades. I received a slight shoulder wound. A minute or so later a rifle bullet went through my right forearm.

"This rendered me useless for further aid to my platoon. So remaining in a prone position, I pushed myself backwards out of the enemy's range, to get first aid treatment. This was my last contact with my organization."

CIO Supports Bill to Help Europe's Jews

Washington, Dec. 4—Declaring that the CIO fights for the rights of all minority groups, Asst. Director of Research Kermit Eby this week urged the House Committee on Foreign Affairs to support H. R. 353, a bill to permit the establishment of a commission to aid the rescue of Jews in Europe.

Eby said that the effect such action would have on the morale of Europe's underground forces is obvious "as is the influence of such action on the governments in Hitler's vassal states" who "no longer are so absolutely certain of the triumph of Hitler."

Eby told the committee that our democratic government rests on the acceptance of the basic belief that Protestants, Catholics and Jews are united in their stand that human values are to be respected, and "that all men are truly of God."

WLB OKs Union Dues

Washington, Dec. 4—Payment of union dues is an "equitable and reasonable" responsibility imposed on union members by the grant of a maintenance of membership clause, the War Labor Board Shipbuilding Commission ruled this week in a decision on a dispute on contract terms between the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers and Bethlehem Steel's Shipbuilding Division.

Smear Attacks Hit By Federal Workers As Aid to Hitler

Washington, Dec. 4—Smear attacks by Rep. Busbey, (R., Ill.), on U. S. government employes were branded as showing "an irresponsible and red-baiting stamp that can only give aid and comfort to Hitler" by the United Federal Workers, CIO, this week.

The UFWA statement, released by Secretary-Treasurer Eleanor Nelson, was a reply to baiting of all Federal employes, organized and unorganized, by Busbey in the House and by the Scripps-Howard Daily News.

It grew out of a Civil Service Commission ruling earlier in the week that its investigators no longer had the right to pry into private lives and political beliefs of government employes.

"Every honest American welcomes steps by the Civil Service Commission to stop its investigators from prying into the private lives, personal opinions and political beliefs of persons in government," Nelson said.

Busbey, who evidently aspires to the role of a second Martin Dies, has been busy all week hurling smears at Federal workers. His only previous interest in them was expressed in a Congressional vote to deny them overtime pay and other improvements in their working conditions.

'Trib's' McCormick Blasts CIO, Gets Burned Bottom

CHICAGO, Dec. 4—Chicago's "man on horseback" scratched a match on the seat of his pants this week, to discover that it was not only ignitable but explosive. The man who had his bottom burned was "Colonel" Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the anti-war Chicago Tribune, who used his hate sheet to attack members of the United Auto Workers Union employed at the Studebaker Corp. aircraft plant here.

The attack, which trotted out all the old red-baiting charges in the book, was answered by the UAW and the Chicago Industrial Union Council.

The Council denounced the Tribune articles as "a typical smear campaign designed to sabotage the workers' morale" and declared that the attack was "based on falsehood and misinterpretation of fact."

A meeting of 200 UAW stewards and shop committeemen, addressed by Pres. R. J. Thomas and Vice-Pres. Walter P. Reuther, voted to boycott the paper.

Every branch of the labor movement is protesting the Tribune's charges that Studebaker workers are loafers, gamblers, ne'er-do-wells and saboteurs of the war effort, led by "red" wreckers of production. The Chicago Sun, Marshall Field-owned rival of the Tribune, joined in the chorus of protests.

Devoting fully half its front page to the Tribune outbursts under the headline, Labor Assails Tribune Smear, the Sun editorialized: "What has been the actual record of these men and women at Studebaker? They have, under direction of management, met 'all schedules' set for production. They have built their engines up to the high quality and precision demanded by the Army air forces. . . .

"Workers and management have functioned harmoniously. There have been no strikes. One small spontaneous 'sitdown,' quickly ended, resulted in union disciplinary action against 17 members. . . .

"To abuse and libel these workers, to charge that they are a pack of cowards and incompetents 'terrorized' by a handful of alleged Communist 'leaders' is a rotten and reckless piece of work. . . . Workers have had to endure endless streams of invective and slanders, exaggerated stories of 'fat' wages and a deliberate campaign to use the war emergency to knock the bottom out of hard-earned minimum social gains. In no other country at war have decent working people been so vilified."

Labor leaders from AFL, CIO and unaffiliated unions said the Tribune, which attacks the United Nations and charges that the war is a "Roosevelt-inspired plot," was itself sabotaging the war effort by attempting to undermine workers' morale.

The Tribune smear was also part of a campaign to defeat organization of other aircraft workers in Chicago, they said.

AFL-Backed Frey Rider Big Headache

New York, Dec. 4—The first successful attempt to weaken the Wagner Labor Relations Act has blown up in the face of the AFL, which sponsored the Frey Amendment that virtually legalizes company unions.

That was one of the main points made by Charles T. Douds, director of the Natl. Labor Relations Board in the New York area, in a speech this week before the N. Y. State Conference on Social Work.

Douds referred to the Frey amendment to the NLRB appropriation bill forbidding the Board to spend money to question an agreement between management and labor which has been in existence three months or more wthout a challenging charge being filed with the NLRB.

"The (Frey) rider has had a very serious effect which has surprised and dismayed even those who were its original sponsors," Douds declared. "The act outlaws 'company unions,' that is, unions which are initiated, assisted and dominated by the employer. It was not the intention of the spsonsors of the rider to make company unions and their contracts legal and legitimate.

"Under a recent ruling of the comptroller General, however, the rider prohibits action by the Board in cases where a company union has held a contract for over three months before a charge is filed."

(Ed's note: While it is believed that AFL unions generally did not want to aid company unions, the same charitable interpretation is not valid in connection with the sponsor of the Frey amendment—"Colonel" John P. Frey, head of the AFL Metal Trades Dept. Frey is on record as recommending to the AFL Executive Council last May that the Wagner Act be suspended for the duration of the war. The Council turned down his proposal, but by a round-about method he got virtually what he wanted.)

Watt, NLRB Counsel, Resigns

Washington, Dec. 4—Resignation of NLRB General Counsel Robert B. Watts was announced this week by the Natl. Labor Relations Board. He will be succeeded by Alvin J. Rockwell, who returns to the Board after a three years' absence.

In August, 1937, Rockwell joined the NLRB staff as a trial examiner, and a year later was appointed senior attorney in the Board's litigation section. Later, he was attached to the Dept. of Justice's tax division and, more recently, to the Solicitor General's office.

Watt will enter private law practice.

Give Labor Voice On Radio, Is CIO Demand

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Restrictions of the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters have made labor's voice on the radio not only small but for practical purposes almost still. That was the testimony given this week by CIO Publicity Director Len De Caux, at a hearing before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, which is considering the Wheeler-White Bill for reorganizing of the Federal Communications Commission.

In his request for a decent "break" for labor on the air, De Caux strongly supported the activities of the Commission and opposed any amendment to the Federal Communications Act which would curtail the FCC's powers to insure that radio broadcasting is operated in the public interest.

The CIO Publicity Director declared that the Broadcasters' code supposedly is designed to give non-profit organiaztions a fair share of radio time, but that in practice labor broadcasts are discriminated against because the radio industry considers them "controversial."

De Caux cited particularly a recently adopted clause of the NAB code which denies the air to organiaztions soliciting membership unless they are selling insurance or soliciting members for organizations like the Red Cross.

"This section of the code could conceivably be interpeterd by anti-labor station owners as barring labor organizations from any time whatever, whether paid or free time, on the grounds that increasing union membership is a primary purpose of every labor organization and that any kind of program labor put on might be said to have this purpose or effect," De Caux declared.

He pointed out that CIO families number more than 20 million persons, and said that the organization feels that these people have a right to hear CIO's views expressed over the nation's airways.

He declared that if corporations are to be permitted to buy time to put on sponsored news commentators or musical or dramatic programs to tell how much they are doing to win the war, then labor organizations should have the same right.

In the name of the CIO, De Caux made the following recommendations to the Communications Commission, and for the consideration of the Committee:

(1) That a large proportion of free time should be made available to labor organizations than has been the case in the past, aprticularly in the form of regularly recurring sustaining programs.

(2) That labor organizations should suffer no blanket restriction on their right to purchase radio time.

(3) That labor organizations should suffer no blanket restrictions on their rights to use the radio for the solicitation of membership or in organizing campaigns.

(4) That serious consideration should be given to the establishment of machinery for the relief of labor and other organizations in cases where there is a discriminatory denial of their right to buy or receive free time on the air.

"It should be pointed out," De Caux declared, "that at the present time the final decision on whether or not radio time should be granted to labor, and whether or how labor programs should be censored, rests with the individual station owner, the owners of the networks or the commercial broadcasters represented in the code committee of the Natl. Assn. of Broadcasters.

"The public interest is involved in such decisions, yet there is no representation for the public, including labor, in policy making, nor is there any machinery for appeal or relief from unfair and discriminatory decisions."

To See Free Army Film

Washington, Dec. 4—Based on confidential information given to labor and industry leaders at conferences here and in Fort Knox, Ky., a new Army film, "War Department Report," will be released late in December for showing to war workers exclusively.

The film will be a condensed pictorial version of reports given at the conference by high-ranking Army officers who had been in action on virtually every war front.

Made in both 35 and 16 mm. size, the 45-minute film can be obtained by writing to the Industrial Services Division, Bureau of Public Relations, War Dept., Room 2B-852, The Pentagon, Washington, D. C.

Texas Court Acquits Thomas

Houston, Tex., Dec. 4—A Texas court this week found that Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union was not guilty of violating the recently enacted Manford Law, which prohibits solicitation of union membership unless the solicitor has registered as a labor organizer with the Secretary of State.

Acquitted with Thomas were John Crossland, CIO sub-regional director, and C. M. Massengale, assistant national director of the CIO Oil Workers organizing drive.

The court's action hinged on a technicality. The defendants were soliciting membership for a Union other than their own, and hence were committing no illegal act, even by Texas standards, which provide that it is illegal only to solicit members for your own Union without a license.

DEMAND ROLLBACK: 15,000 signatures demanding price rollbacks were presented on petitions this week by the Delaware County (Pa.) Industrial Union Council to Senator Bankhead, acting chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee. Warning the Senator that defeat of the CIO-backed subsidy program would be the equivalent of a 10 per cent wage cut, were, left to right: Henry Shipherd, Dominic Waldron, Pres. Tom Graham of the IUC, Mathew Snyder, Abe Ruzansky, Herbert Moore and Frank Brzezicki. The Senator is seated.

Give Soldiers Right to Vote, CIO Demands

The unholy alliance of reactionary Republicans and polltax Democrats that turned down the soldiers' vote bill in the Senate found itself in plenty of hot water this week, with popular indignation rising and signs increasing that the House will have to reverse the Senate's stand. CIO took the lead in demanding that the men who are fighting the battle for democracy should be guaranteed the democratic right to have their say in the 1944 elections.

CIO Steelworkers Back Invasion With Production Pledge

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 11—A thunderous "We'll do it!" from the nearly million-strong United Steelworkers of America was the answer this week to the United States Government's request for new production records, as the United Nations gear their offensive for coalition warfare, outlined at Teheran, that means invasion of Europe.

The urgent request for more steel came from J. T. Whiting, director of the War Production Board's steel division, and was addressed both to the industry and to the USA, which already has broken literally thousands of production records, including more than 2,000 alone at the U. S. Steel Corp. since Pearl Harbor.

The WPB said that increased production of steel plates and sheets is required for invasion craft needed for attacks on Japan and Nazi-held Europe.

Acting for USA Pres. Philip Murray, Sec.-Treas. David J. McDonald immediately on receipt of the government's letter wired all USA locals as follows:

"The War Production Board has requested the United Steelworkers of America to do everything in its power to increase the output of plates and sheets to meet the demands of the war program.

"The Cairo and Teheran conferences indicate that a tremendous offensive is about to begin by the Allied Nations.

"As usual, the Steelworkers are ready to cooperate to the utmost. Will you, therefore, bring to the attention of the local unions in plants in your disrict where plate and sheet mills are located, the urgent request of their government and their union to do all in their power to again break all the magnificent records they have made in the production of these vital items."

Stone Union Wins 54-1 Vote

West Rutland, Vt., Dec. 11—In an NLRB election, the employes of the Green Mountain Marble Corp. this week by a vote of 54 to 1 designated the CIO United Stone and Allied Products Workers' Union as their bargaining agency.

CIO Helps People Get Square Deal, Say Southern Ministers

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 11—Labor unions were stoutly defended as a vital constructive force in American life by a group of clergymen, educators and other prominent citizens in statements printed in the current issue of The Southhern Patriot published here by the Southern Conference of Human Welfare.

The statements by these distinguished citizens of the South were made as public declarations of encouragement and support to the CIO United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing & Allied Workers, now engaged in a campaign to organize the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., at Winston-Salem, N. C.

Here are some of the comments:

Dr. Fleming James, Dean of the School of Theology, University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., said that unions are "a strong constructive force in the economic and political life of our nation."

Dr. Ralph E. Wager, professor of education, Emory University, Ga.:

"The philosophy that business exists for profits to make more business to make more profits and to crush out the lives of men, women, and children in the process is a self-destructive one."

Dr. Clark Foreman of Black Mounty College, N. C., president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare:

"The CIO represents workers as workers without un-American discriminations because of race, creed or color; it deserves much greater recognition in our state."

Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, president emeritus of Bethune Cookman College, and president of the Natl. Council of Negro Women:

"Representing 800,000 women of this country, we feel deeply the responsibility to accept the democratic way of trade unionism, not from a spirit of perpetrating racial discord and clashes, but rather as a sound means of avoiding such clashes."

BASIC TO DEMOCRACY

Dr. Harold A. Ehrensperger of Nashville, editor of Motive and leader of Methodist youth:

"The principle of collective bargaining and the right of workers to freely join unions of their own choice are as basic to a democracy as the Four Freedoms."

The Rev. Edward Maxted, retired Episcopalian minister, Warrington, Fla.:

"Every worker should join his union, and all far-seeing and fair-minded employers should welcome a union and work with it."

PLEDGE DESTRUCTION OF AXIS: The momentous Teheran declaration of the "Big Three" giving the go-sign to coalition warfare needed to defeat the Axis, and the Cairo declaration pledging the utter defeat of Japan, were both backed to the hilt this week by CIO Pres. Philip Murray. As head of the United Steelworkers, he answered a government request for more steel for badly needed invasion craft with wires to all USA districts urging the utmost possible increase in production. Above, left to right: Pres. Murray, Pres. Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

CIO Leads Battle For Pay Hikes; Steel Wage Talks to Open

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 11—Coincident with the announcement that employes of the United U. S. Steel Co. have broken 2,000 production records since Pearl Harbor came the statement this week that the company will enter negotiations Tuesday to consider the demand of the United Steelworkers Union for a 17- cent an hour increase for the workers.

About 150 other companies have agreed to reopen contracts, according to officials of the USA, which is pressing for immediate increases for more than half a million employes of "basic steel" and for raises for about 175,000 other steel workers as contracts covering them come up for re-negotiation.

The basic U. S. Steel hiring rate is 78 cents an hour. The USA contends that the 17-cent raise is sufficient only to meet increased living costs that have risen since the "Little Steel" formula became the ceiling for wage rates in September, 1942.

Clothing Workers . .

New York, Dec. 11—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union this week announced that it would reopen the question of a general wage increase for 325,000 workers in the clothing industry, in the light of rising living costs and the failure of Congress to implement President Roosevelt's seven-point program for national economic stabilization.

Condemning the 78th Congress for dealing "furthher blows" to the president's stabilization policy, for rejecting proper tax legislation, for failing to tax excess corporate profits, and for voting to terminate all food subsidies, the Amalgamated General Executive Board declared that only wages had become stabilized.

"The failure in the past 18 months," the statement said, "to halt rises in the cost of living and to effectuate the President's full seven-point program makes it essential in the interest of labor and the whole nation to remove existing restrictions on wage increases as embodied in the Little Steel formula which has now become completely outmoded, unfair and unrealistic."

Rubber Workers . .

Philadelphia, Dec. 11—Demanding that the "Little Steel" formula for the determination of wage increases be set aside, the General Executive Board of the United Rubber Workers Union this week voted to press for modification of "the industry-wide wage increases heretofore awarded by the War Labor Board, in order to meet the further increase in the cost of living."

The resolution as approved by the Board calls for general wage increases in the rubber industry "on the basis of an industry-wide approach and not only on the basis of a plant by plant or company approach."

This action marks the first step in the rubber union's drive to secure modification of the "Little Steel" formula, which permits wage increases of only 15 per cent over January, 1941, levels. The Board said that:

"The cost of living formula of the WLB is out-dated by reason of the further increase in the cost of living since the formula was adopted."

Longshoremen . . .

San Francisco, Dec. 11—An overall wage increase of 15 cents an hour, the raising of hourly rates to at least 75 cents, and the setting of a new economic stabilization "line" were recommended this week to Pres. Roosevelt by the CIO Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union.

The ILWU pledged to continue its no-strike policy and its support for the Administration's economic stabilization program, including: Rigid enforcement of rationing, price control and stabilization, subsidies to hold price ceilings, an equitable tax program, the limitation of salaries to $25,000 a year, and prohibition of war profiteering.

The ILWU recommended that the 15-cent increase be so distributed as to give a greater amount to lower paid workers and less to those in the higher brackets.

Declaring that any wage below 75 cents an hour is substandard, the union urged that "where wage increases must exceed 15 cents an hour to reach the 75-cent lovel, the War Labor Board must be empowered to grant such an increase."

Fur Workers Meet on Pay Proposals

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 11—Wage policy, and a program of continued organization, intensified war activity and political action were discussed at the semi-annual meeting of the Intl. Fur & Leather Workers' Executive Board meeting here this week.

The Fur Union is revising its wage policy in line with decisions of the National CIO Convention, which called for dropping the "Little Steel" formula in favor of wages stabilized in accordance with the cost of living.

Michigan CIO Political Meet Big Success

Lansing, Dec. 11—Proof that the CIO is intensely interested in political action was seen in the extremely successful Political Action Mobilization Conference held here last weekend in response to a joint call issued by John W. Gibson, president of the Michigan CIO Council, and August Scholle, national representative of the CIO and chairman of the Sixth Regional CIO Political Action Committee. More than 500 delegates participated. The meeting was the first of its type under CIO's new Political Action setup.

On the program were Pres. R. J. Thomas of UAW-CIO, UAW Vice-Pres. Walter Reuther and C. Benham Baldwin, newly appointed assistant to Sidney Hillman, chairman of the national CIO Political Action Committee.

Baldwin, an experienced political worker, advised the delegates that actual political work must be done on a house to house basis.

"That sounds hard and it is hard," he said, "but let me point out that the CIO grew from 0 in 1935 to more than 5,000,000 at the present time.

"The organization of a political arm is not nearly as hard a job as organizing those workers into unions was.

"As to what it means to all of us, I want to remind you that our national income in 1932 was $42 billion. This year it will pass $150 billion. Here is what the figures mean: We must maintain that income level in peace as well as in war, only instead of building war planes, war ships, war tanks, guns and munitions, we must turn our productive effort into channels that will result in safeguarding the people's health, in constructing schools, public parks, public institutions of every sort.

"We can do that job if we go about it along political lines, because it will take the right kind of governmental direction to carry out such a program and make it a reality."

Thomas pointed out that labor has plenty of work to do in Michigan, citing the records of the state's 17 Congressmen—11 of whom are bad. Reciting some quotations from speeches they have made, Thomas called attention to the parallel between their thinking and Nazi philosophy.

Reuther warned that labor must go beyond its former relatively narrow action and must increase its efforts to deal with issues that affect the interests of everyone in the nation.

Fishermen Meet

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11—Criticism of OPA officials for failing to consult producers in establishing ceiling prices, but general approval of President Roosevelt's price stabilizaiton and subsidy programs were voiced at the fifth annual convention of Intl. Fishermen & Allied Workers held here this week.

A plan for assuring maximum fish production was a major topic for discussion among the 50 delegates, representing 20,000 fishermen from Alaska to San Diego.

Pres. J. F. Jurich reported that 5,300,000 cases of salmon were packed last season, a normal production record despite the fact that only 60 per cent of the plants could be operated and only 65 per cent of the normal number of fishermen were available.

One of the first actions taken by the convention was to wire congratulations to President Roosevelt on the results of his meeting with Stalin and Churchill.

Other resolutions called for support for the demand for statehood for Alaska and condemned discrimination against racial minorities.

Technicians Hail Murray

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11—CIO Pres. Philip Murray's "courageous leadership and vision" were highly praised this week by the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists & Technicians, which wound up a three-day convention here last weekend.

Seventy-five delegates representing more than 5,000 technical workers spent most of their efforts on a three point program, including (1) utilization of the nation's technical resources and personnel for planning in war, (2) post-war planning, and (3) a national wage policy for technical employes, calling for the stabilization of salaries and for the creation of a nationwide, uniform system of classifications in all industries as the basis for determining payments.

In a keynote speech, Pres. Lewis Alan Berne denounced the current agitation for division of the white collar and technical employes from industrial workers, characterizing this drive as "a curtain raiser on the 1944 election campaign."

Berne announced affiliation of the Assn. of Technical Employes, the Canadian organization of technicians, to the American union.

Berne and Sec.-Treas. James A. Gaynor were re-elected. Four vice-presidents were named—David Adelson, Theodore Vincent, Jules Korvh Korchein and John Schuyten.

State CIO Parleys Hit Steel Formula, Renew No-Strike Pledge

New Jersey . . .

Newark, N. J., Dec. 11—Proposals for a National Production Board "to secure peacetime production at wartime levels" were presented by Pres. Irving Abramson in his report to the sixth annual convention of the New Jersey CIO Council, which met here last Saturday and Sunday.

Decisions and discussions at the convention centered around the theme of the CIO's win-the-war program. Delegates voted to reaffirm the no-strike pledge, backed the policies adopted at the national CIO convention, formulated programs for political action and post-war planning, and urged steps to increase war production.

Pres. Abramson and Sec.-Treas. Carl Holderman were re-elected to head the council for another year.

Saturday's sessions were highlighted with a kepnote speech made by James B. Carey, national CIO Secy-Treas., and by a talk by Clinton Golden, who represents the CIO as vice-chairman of the War Manpower Commission.

Other national CIO speakers were Allan S. Haywood, director of organizations; John Brophy, director of councils; and J. Raymond Walsh, director of research and education.

In presenting proposals for a National Production Board, Pres. Abramson pointed out that there will be $23 billion in plants and equipment owned by the U. S. government to be disposed of at the end of the war.

"Our job is to see that this tremendous productive capacity in newly built plants is fully utilized for peacetime production," he said.

Maryland and D.C.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 11—Full endorsement of CIO's program, overwhelming support for Pres. Philip Murray, and sharp condemnation of John L. Lewis as a "fifth columnist and labor traitor" were highlights of the seventh annual convention of the Maryland & District of Columbia Industrial Union Council, which met here this week. The delegates reaffirmed unconditionally their no-strike pledge.

The convention endorsed demands of the United Steelworkers for abolition of the "Little Steel" formula, at the same time emphasizing support for President Roosevelt's program of economic stabilization, designed to prevent inflation.

The convention also: Reported a 50 per cent growth in CIO membership in this area; took a strong stand against all forms of discrimination; and hailed the Teheran and Cairo declarations as high points in the war to crush fascism.

The convention laid plans for cooperation with CIO's Political Action Committee, which, according to a letter from Chairman Sidney Hillman, is scheduled to hold an organizing meeting in Maryland shortly.

The delegates re-elected Pres. Ulisse De Dominicis and Sec.-Treas. Sidney Katz.

Connecticut . . .

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 11—The National CIO's win-the-war program received full backing in all its detail at the sixth annual convention of the Connecticut CIO Council held here Dec. 3-5. The convention elected Edward Lavery of the United Steelworkers of America as president and re-elected John J. Driscoll Secretary-Treasurer.

Clarence Wyman, Council president in 1943, was nominated for re-election but declined. As CIO representative on the State War Council and through his union, the United Automobile Workers, Wyman will continue to play an important part in Connecticut CIO affairs.

Speakers at the convention included David J. MacDonald, USA-CIO Secretary-Treasurer, who attended as personal representative of CIO Pres. Philip Murray; James B. Carey, Natl. CIO Secretary-Treasurer; Allan S. Haywood, director of organization; John Brophy, director of Industrial Union Councils; Willard S. Townsend, President, United Transport Service Employes, and Edward McCrone, Connecticut CIO regional director.

Vigorously worded resolutions adopted by the convention called for revision of the Little Steel formula; support of the Administration's subsidies program; passage of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Social Security Bill; repeal of the Smith-Connally law; elimination of the poll tax; and an end of racial and religious discrimination in all forms.

A resolution on political action urged increased activity to throw practical support behind candidates in 1944 "who are committed to our policy of total victory and who fully support the measures necessary to achieve it and to lay the basis for a secure, peaceful, decent and abundant post-war world."

Other resolutions praised CIO President Murray for his outstanding leadership in the American labor movement and lauded the "war leadership" of President Roosevelt.

Rhode Island . . .

Providence, R. I., Dec. 11—Delegates to the sixth annual convention of the Rhode Island CIO Council re-elected their top officials—Pres. Frank J. Benti, Exec. Vice-Pres. Albert G. Clifton, and Secy.-Treas. Ann Marsoli—drew up a win-the-war program, and heard Gov. J. Howard McGrath praise the CIO, during the two-day meeting held here last weekend.

CIO leaders who spoke at the convention included John Brophy, director of Industrial Union Councils; Leo Krzycki, Vice-pres., Amalgamated Clothing Workers; and Robert Oliver, of the Textile Workers Union, who substituted for Vice-Pres. George Baldanzi.

GOVERNOR SPEAKS

The Rhode Island Governor praised the part the CIO has taken in civic affairs and said that some day when the records will be written, they will show the important contributions made by the CIO to the general welfare.

Brophy spoke on the importance of political action, and Krzycki told of the need of unity in the labor movement to meet post-war conditions.

In his report to the convention, President Benti denounced the Smith-Connally law as "unfair and unworkable" and charged that the press and radio have carried on a campaign to turn the public and the boys in service against labor by headlining the few strikes which have occurred and by ignoring the magnificent production record of workers on the home front.

The convention passed resolutions urging Congress to outlaw anti-Semitism, and endorsed groups fighting for the rights of Negroes and other minorities.

Proposals for a third party movement at this time were rejected as threatening disunity of Victory forces. The CIO subsidy program was approved and the no-strike pledge reaffirmed.

Senate Subsidy Battle Moves To Showdown

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The Senate battle on use of subsidies for more food at lower prices moved to a showdown this week, with administration forces trying to hold off a vote and with the hunger-bloc crowd pressing for quick action before the people have had a chance to mobilize fully on the issue.

Several CIO witnesses testified in the Senate Finance Committee, where the CCC bill (HR 3477) is being heard, among them Walter P. Reuther, vice-president of the UAW, who charged a profiteers' conspiracy to wreck price control in the anti-subsidy fight.

Reuther listed a series of food monopoly firms which, he said, were teamed up with the miscalled "farm block" leaders to blow the lid off all price ceilings while demanding rigid limits on wages.

Asked by Sen. Bankhead (polltaxer, Ala.) why labor protested rigid wage ceilings, Reuther pointed out that the Little Steel formula has frozen many wage inequities, while prices have gone on comparatively unchecked.

"What the opponents of subsidies want is a hard ceiling on wages and a soft ceiling on prices," Reuther said. "There is no way to have stabilization without the use of subsidies."

MONOPOLIES FIGHT SUBSIDIES

In his charges against the food monopolies, Reuther said that big firms such as General Foods, Swift, H. J. Heinz, and others had made a "gentleman's agreement" with leaders of the farm bloc lobbies to fight subsidies and price control while continuing to demand rigid freezing of wages.

Following Reuther on the stand, James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of CIO, and John Edelman, CIO Textile Workers, testified for subsidies as indispensable to the program of holding the line against inflation.

Carey's testimony dealt largely with the question of farm operators' income as compared to wages for farm labor, and was given in response to questions from several Committee members.

Carey pointed out that farm labor costs are a minor factor in the total cost of food production, and that therefore higher prices for food could not be blamed on agricultural workers, as the poll-tax Senators attempted to do.

"If basic food prices shoot upwards, as they will and must if the Senate fails to enact legislation to subsidize food production where necessary, many thousands of textile workers in this country, engaged in vital war production, will go hungry," Edelman said. "This is a plain statement of fact and not rhetoric or demagoguery."

Showing that the farmers also want subsidies to help them in their war production job, the Natl. Farmers Union, through Russell Smith, legislative secretary, testified that "subsidies are one of several useful tools in the war against inflation and for unity."

As if to underline the Farmers Union position for subsidies, the Gallup Poll earlier this week reported that farmers who had studied the issue were in favor of the subsidy system, while the non-farm people questioned by Gallup were two to one in favor.

Housewives, mobilized by Rep. Mary T. Norton, (D., N. J.,) have been active over the past week in demanding that the Senate Banking Committee pass a bill removing the ban on subsidies in the House bill.

Murray Warns Senate's Revenue Stall May Lead To Demand for Sales Tax

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—One more week of Senate Finance Committee finagling with your 1944 tax bill saw the committee members edging nearer to the sales tax by several hundred million dollars, as they chopped off more revenue from the already insufficient House bill.

This play, as CIO Pres. Murray pointed out in testimony early this week, is built around phoney propaganda that taxes already have "squeezed corporate profits dry and that there are no more high incomes or war profits or tax evasion loopholes from which any fair contribution could be secured to finance our war effort."

Once this point is made—which both the House bill and the Senate Committee have been making by cutting down every attempt to touch the big money—then the sales tax or other taxes on the poor become "inevitable."

As Murray said, the scheme is to put over the idea that the only place for needed war revenue is "the pockets of the lowest income brackets, even if that meant taking food off the tables and clothing off the backs of those people."

NO AID TO WORKERS

As though underlining the CIO's exposure of this scheme, the Senate Committee, in going through the House bill, picked out just one item in which it recommended an increase, leaving the others unchanged or cutting them.

This was a clause in the House bill, secured by Rep. Dingell (D., Mich.) after a talk with UAW's Washington representative Irving Richter, that would protect workers' back pay awards from excessive taxation.

Under the previous law, a back pay award often amounting to pay for the year or more while the worker was illegally discharged, was taxed all at once, and at the highest rate, despite the fact that the pay was for a period in which lower rates prevailed.

SUDDEN ZEAL FOR SPEED

Now the Senate has knocked this out—the only instance in which the Committee, headed by polltaxer George, has increased an item of the House bill.

Coupled with the squeeze play toward the sales tax and the solicitude for the well-to-do, the Senate Committee is also putting up a great cry for speed in passing the bill before January 1.

Completely overlooked in this sudden zeal for speed is the fact that the House deliberately dawdled for months on its bill, while it cut down the demand of the Administration and of labor for adequate taxes on profits and big incomes.

Polltax Repeal Meet Asks Voting Rights for Soldiers

Washington, Dec. 11—One hundred and sixty delegates to an emergency conference called by the Natl. Committee to Abolish the Polltax laid plans for a double barreled attack on reaction this week, concentrating on the polltax repealer bill (HR 7) and the Green-Lucas bill, providing federal machinery to guarantee a vote to members of the armed services and the merchant marine. The delegates spoke in the name of more than 16 million people—11 million of them trade unionists.

The delegates heard from CIO Pres. Philip Murray, through Legislative Director Nathan Cowan, who explained that "the issue is precisely the same on the broader question of the polltax and its use as a limitation on the right of American citizens to vote" as it is on the denial of voting rights to soldiers

Murray declared that the evil which the conference is seeking to wipe out is best symbolized by the activities of the polltax Congressmen, who in coalition with reactionary Republicans, "maneuvered to deny to those fighting men the right to participate in their own government back here."

One of the high spots of the conference was the presentation to Vice-Pres. Henry Wallace of petitions bearing the names of 100,000 citizens who want the polltax repeal bill passed now without any amendments.

The delegates were "sparked" by a message from Wendell Willkie, who wired that "efforts to deny improperly to any citizen his constitutional right to vote, whether by polltax or by democratic white primary, must be resisted and opposed by every American."

On adjournment of the conference, which heard from Congressmen Vito Marcantonio and George Bender, and Senator James Mead, delegates rushed up on the "hill" to let the rest of the members of Congress know that the American people want HR 7 passed now, without amendments, to bring political freedom to 10 million citizens in polltax states who have to pay for the constitutional right to vote.

Labor-Welfare Parley Urges Subsidies to Cut Food Costs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Better than 500 men and women representing all types of organizations, from unions to social-welfare groups, met here this week to tell Congress one simple fact of political life—the fact that the people of America are intensely interested in the cost of eating.

They met at the call of the Congressional Committee for the Protection of Consumers, headed by Representative Thomas Scanlon (D., Pa.), to consider the high cost of living and to map ways and means of enforcing the people's will for use of subsidies to increase the production of food at prices within the reach of war workers and all consumers.

Speaking for the United Steel Workers and for the CIO, David J. McDonald, USA-CIO secretary-treasurer, challenged Congress to make the economic stabilization program a reality. He said this is a duty owed to the men in the armed forces and to the workers.

The work of the conference centered chiefly on the issue of subsidies, banned in the House vote on HR 3477, the CCC Extension Bill, and now facing a determined hunger bloc offensive in the Senate.

SERIOUS THREAT

"Rising food costs have already created serious threats to the consuming public," the conference said in a unanimous resolution. "These threats endanger the health of the nation and our effectiveness as a nation at war. Any further increase in living costs would redouble the danger to the stability of our home economy."

Senator Harley Kilgore (D., W. Va.) pointed out the need for mass action on the food price issue by telling the delegates frankly that not enough heat has been put on Congress so far to make the difference between a policy of enough food at reasonable prices and a hunger program.

Speaking as a Republican from the farm district, Representative Usher Burdick (R., N. D.) said that the farmers were in favor of subsidies as a means of helping them to do a better war job—the war job of increasing their output of food to be sold at prices the war workers could pay.

The highlight of the conference was the appearance of a delegate from the Disabled Veterans who told of the hardship that wounded veterans of the first World War have in meeting inflated living costs on fixed pensions.

A brief summary of the organizations represented at the meeting showed such groups as the National Catholic Youth Council, the American Lutheran Church of Columbus, Ohio, the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches of America, League of Women Shoppers, Disabled Veterans of America, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the National Educational Assn., the American Public Welfare Assn., Consumers Union, National Council for Catholic Welfare, as well as repersentatives of CIO, AFL and Railroad Brotherhoods.

Memo to House:—Remove that Gag!

Let Them Vote

CIO President Philip Murray has denounced the Senate defeat of the Green-Lucas bill to permit American servicemen to vote as "the depths of political maneuvering at the expense of the rights of men and women fighting for their country."

CIO unions all over the country are swelling the wave of protest that is now breaking over Congress. Chairman Sidney Hillman of the CIO Political Action Committee describes the issue of votes for soldiers as "Number One on the list of all liberal and progressive forces in the United States."

The substitute adopted by the Senate does nothing to remove voting restrictions which permitted only 27,000 out of 10 million servicemen to vote in last year's elections.

But the fight to give the vote to the men and women in the armed forces and merchant marine has just begun. The unholy coalition of reactionary Republicans and polltax Democrats which has blocked such action so far can be overwhelmed by aroused public opinion.

The House can still pass a bill similar to the Green-Lucas bill, and the Senate can then be urged to reverse its present attitude and pass it too.

The matter rests at present with the House Committee on Election of President and Vice-President. Address your demands for voting rights for our fighting men to Chairman Worley of this committee, and be sure to let your own Congressman know how you feel.

Unity On Home Front

The series of international conferences culminating in the Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill agreement at Teheran have brought the unity of the United Nations to its highest pitch.

All Americans and all other freedom-loving people throughout the world can now feel easier in the knowledge that a common strategy has been evolved, a united plan of action to strike down the common enemy from every side with blows that are swift and sure; and that the great powers have reached general agreement on common action in rebuilding a peaceful and democratic post-war world.

The effects of this unity are being felt at once on the fighting fronts and in the enthusiastic pledges of increased production coming from American unions, as well as from labor in all the other United Nations.

It will also stimulate labor demands for the international labor unity which has long been the goal of the CIO.

But one place where all this spirit of unity for victory is not truly reflected is the Congress of the United States.

At the very moment when the governments of the United Nations were mapping out their supreme and united offensive, a clique of tory Republicans and polltax Democrats in the U. S. Senate made a sneak attack on our national unity and war morale by voting down the Lucas-Green bill to give our fighting men the right to vote.

If the governments of great nations, with all their differences, can reach complete agreement on the biggest job in the world, if the armed forces of the United Nations can fight side by side in one united front, why cannot our Congress give us national unity behind the Commander-in-Chief?

Why must there be such a sordid succession of petty administration-baiting, labor-baiting political maneuvers? Why must there be such embittered resistance to granting the right to vote to the millions of Americans disfranchised by the polltax and to the millions more serving in our armed forces?

Why must there be such tax coddling of the profiteers, such threats of sales taxes against those who can least afford to pay? Why must Congress open the door to inflation and disruption of our war economy by resisting food subsidies to keep down living costs?

There is one unity that can overcome the forces of disunity that are now playing havoc with our home front. That is the unity of all sections of labor, with the working farmers and all other progressive and win-the-war forces, on the political field.

This unity is the goal of the great campaign of political education and organization launched by the CIO through its Political Action Committee, as part of its contribution to the world unity against fascism which is so successfully being forged on the fighting fronts.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

THE lecturer had charmed the ladies' club with his perfect manners. Rounds of applause greeted his closing plea for more chivalry, as he sat down bowing and beaming.

But when the ladies crowded onto the platform to shake his hand, he remained seated.

Amazement first, and then indignation, clouded the ladies' faces at this paragon of courtesy who failed to rise as one after another was introduced.

But with face flushed and beads of sweat breaking out on his brow, the lecturer sat grimly through till the last lady had gone.

"My goodness, man," said his host, "don't you know enough to rise when you're introduced to ladies?"

"Yes," moaned the broken man. "But there's one thing worse—to expose the hole I tore in the seat of my pants when I sat down."

★ ★ ★

This is a flippant introduction to a most amazing, shocking and revealing political event.

A Senate majority of reactionary Republicans and polltax Democrats, in rejecting the Lucas-Green bill, has denied the right to vote to most of the men in the armed forces.

As popular indignation rises, the question naturally occurs: How can any politicians dare to defy in this fashion the wishes and emotions of a whole people?

The answer is that they fear something worse than they fear the indignation they have thus incurred.

★ ★ ★

But before we examine what this "something" is, we can quickly dispose of the tories' excuses.

The Lucas-Green bill cut through the red tape of state voting restrictions to make it possible for most servicemen to vote in federal elections.

In rejecting this measure, the Senate left the matter of soldiers voting to the states, recommending vaguely that they do something about it.

But under present state voting restrictions, only some 27,000 out of almost 10 million servicemen were able to vote in the last elections; and only eight states have scheduled meetings of legislatures before the next elections.

Unless, therefore, some federal emergency measure like the Lucas-Green bill is passed, the great majority of servicemen will be as effectively disfranchised in 1944 as they were last year.

★ ★ ★

The tory Reps and polltax Dems have dared to deny the right to vote to our fighting men, because they fear that otherwise the whole balance of political power in the United States will shift in a democratic and progressive direction, and the days of their own rule over Congress will be numbered.

The millions of young fighting men are not risking their lives to entrench big-business reaction or even stick-in-the-mud conservatism. They are overwhelmingly progressive and New Dealish in their political attitudes.

In Australia, the soldiers voted labor by big majorities. In New Zealand also the labor government owed its recent re-election to the soldier vote.

In the United States, the 1942 elections insured an anti-administration and anti-labor majority in Congress precisely because the servicemen, as well as many war workers, could not vote.

Shortly before the Senate acted on the Lucas-Green bill a Gallup poll was privately circulated, which indicated that American servicemen, if given the vote, would vote 61% Democratic and only 39% Republican. This information undoubtedly helped the tory Republican swing against allowing soldiers to vote.

★ ★ ★

But the stakes in this issue go even deeper.

Reaction has long entrenched itself in Congress, in defiance of the popular will, through an amazing network of state restrictions on the right to vote.

The polltax is the worst and most obvious restriction. The polltax Democrats openly oppose federal legislation to give soldiers the vote because this would exempt servicemen from the polltax and, they fear, be an opening wedge for its complete abolition.

But even non-polltax states have countless other restrictions on the right to vote, including long residence requirements, registration far in advance of elections, acquisition of state "citizenship," and unreasonable regulations for or complete denial of absentee voting.

Such restrictions served reaction well in 1942, by keeping from the polls some five million war workers who moved from state to state for new war jobs.

In fighting against the right of soldiers to vote, therefore, the Rep-Dem tory coalition is bitterly resisting a move which might have far-reaching effects in extending American democracy and ending their own minority rule.

Give Soldiers Right to Vote, CIO Demands

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The unholy alliance of reactionary Republicans and polltax Democrats that turned down the soldiers' vote bill in the Senate found itself in plenty of hot water this week, with popular indignation rising and signs increasing that the House will have to reverse the Senate's stand.

The Senate vote, which came Friday, Dec. 3, killed a bill offered by Senators Green and Lucas to set up a Federal apparatus to enable the men and women in the armed forces to vote. The lethal weapon was a substitute measure turning the voting machinery back to the individual states.

The popular indignation against this move to keep reaction in power in Congress was led off by CIO President Murray, who wrote to House leaders calling on them to remedy the malicious effects of the Senate vote and to pass a bill ". . . to guarantee effectively the rights of America's men and women in the Army, Navy and Merchant Marine to vote in our national elections."

Murray put a finger on the reason why the polltaxers and Republicans feared the soldiers' vote, by pointing out that last year, under state laws governing soldiers' voting, only 27,000 were able to vote.

"AFRAID OF VOTES"

". . . they were afraid of the votes of our fighting men and women," Murray said. "They are afraid to stand up before the judgment of all of the people and particularly those who are fighting and dying for our nation.

"To maintain their power they have resorted to a base maneuver at the expense of our nation's fighters. It is perhaps appropriate that this action should have been taken within three days of the anniversary of the infamous sneak attack at Pearl Harbor."

Following the Senate vote, the issue now goes to the House Committee on Elections. Polltaxers in the House, led by Rep. Rankin (Miss.), one of the most violent of the labor-haters, anti-Semites and Negro-baiters in Congress, will put up a terrific fight to duplicate the Senate action.

ANGER OF PEOPLE

The Congressmen, however, are beginning to feel the anger of the voters, as thousands of letters, a large share of them from servicemen's families, pour in demanding House removal of the gag.

Meantime, Sen. Guffey (D., Pa.) touched off some fireworks in the Senate by repeating Murray's charge of an "unholy alliance" of GOP die-hards and polltaxers. Replying to Guffey, Sens. Bailey (D., N. C.), Byrd, (polltaxer, Va.) and others tipped their hand in hysterical orations on "states' rights" and in openly threatening to set up a rump reactionary "Southern Democratic" party in opposition to the administration and FDR.

This threat is seen as the political key to the refusal to let the armed forces vote. In addition, a Gallup Poll showed that the overwhelming majority of soldiers' votes would go to progressive New Deal candidates.

A further point that figured in the anti-democratic plan is the fact that the present soldiers' voting law, enacted in 1942, waives the polltax requirements for soldier voters. While the polltaxers may feel they can beat HR 7, the repeal bill, by a filibuster, they obviously fear the returned soldiers who will not like the idea of a price tag on their ballots after the war.

House action is expected fairly soon. The less time the polltaxers and tories have in the House to delay, the better. Letters and wires should pour in on every Congressman until the Senate gag is rescinded.

Time Out!

Dept. of Hearts and Flowers: Rep. Clare Hoffman, speaking to Rep. John Rankin in the House this week: "Every single Democratic Congressman from the South is solid down there. He will be re-elected and come back. You have the majority. You control legislation. . . ." and so on.

The gentleman from Michigan may be forgetting HR 7, the polltax repeal bill. The polltaxers may not "have the majority" next session.

* * *

Polltax gem of the week: "I think the Senate will bear witness that I do not often talk in the Senate in terms of politics. God knows that during this war I do not intend to have a political thought." Sen. Harry Flood Byrd (polltaxer, Va.) talking on the soldiers' vote bill that he helped kill.

* * *

Not a crack at Vice Pres. Wallace, but—Charlie Ervin of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers says the phrase "the common man" leaves him cold. It reminds him of a remark made 50 years ago by one of George Bernard Shaw's characters who called the common man "the slave wot feeds and clothes the gentleman beyond the common."

"Clare's Tongue is 'Luce,'" says the current issue of the AFL Teamster magazine about the "freshman" Congresswoman from Connecticut. The Teamster reports that she is quoted in the Chicago Tribune as saying that the administration could have told the American people about the danger to the nation in 1940, but didn't because that was an election year.

Perhaps Clare wasn't reading the papers regularly back in 1936 when President Roosevelt made his famous speech calling for the "quarantining of the aggressors."

4 New CIO Regional Political Directors Named by Hillman

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 — With the announcement of four new regional directors and a first circular letter of instructions, the CIO Political Action Committee this week stepped up its organization to a working basis, aiming not only at 1944 but also at present issues before Congress.

Meeting here under the chairmanship of Sidney Hillman, and with President Murray sitting in, the Committee took a vigorous swing at the Senate action in denying the right to vote to the men and women in the armed forces.

URGE SOLDIER VOTE

"This issue is No. 1 on the list of all liberal and progressive forces in the U. S.," Hillman said. "The cynical and brutal action by which the Senate killed the Green-Lucas soldier vote bill must not be allowed to stand, and I predict it will not stand."

Announcing new appointments to head up the Committee's regional offices, Hillman named Irving Abramson, N. J. CIO president, for N. J., Del., and Md., Jack Kroll, Ohio CIO president for Ohio, Ky., and W. Va.; Roy Atkinson, CIO Washington state director, for Wash., Ore., Mont., and Idaho; and August Scholle, CIO national representative, for Michigan. He also announced appointment of John Riffe, USA-CIO, as assistant to Raymond McKeough, previously appointed to the mid-west region.

National headquarters, Hillman said, will be at 205 E 42nd St., New York, with an office also in Washington. Later regional offices will cover the south, southwest, west and northwest sections.

CAUTIONS ON LAW

In the first circular letter sent out from the committee Chairman Hillman cautioned all directors to watch "all of the expenditures of your office to make sure they are in strict conformity with all of the provisions of law and particularly with the requirements of the Smith-Conally act."

This act he pointed out does not apply to funds used for anything but Federal elections exempting primaries and state and community polls.

Responsibility for providing funds for political work in the states will be on the state and local organizations the circular added, making clear that the national committee's funds would be used only for national work.

In a press conference after the Committee meeting Hillman stressed the objective of CIO political work as aimed at retaining progressive features of the New Deal and of supporting those candidates regardless of label, who will support liberal programs not only in words but on the record as well.

Answering a reporter's question on the fourth term he replied that the committee was not considering the issue at this time. Committee aims he said were first to organize, then to press for political action guaranteeing full employment, social security, and civil rights to all.

A lot of people who can't get wage increases are going to have even a tougher time meeting the rising cost of living if Congress adds a sales tax to their burden. Have you written your Senators and Congressman against it?

CIO Leaders Urge House Reverse Senate's Ban On Soldier Vote

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Loud and sharp protests against the Senate attempt to rob servicemen and women of the right to vote came from CIO leaders this week, coupled with demands for quick House action to reverse the Senate stand.

R. J. Thomas, president, and Richard T. Frankensteen, vice-president of the United Auto Workers, called the attempted gag "part of a conspiracy to keep the 1944 elections safe for reaction."

"The House and the Senate still have an opportunity to undo this anti-democratic scheme. We call on Congress to meet its obligation to the men in the services and to the country by passing the oringinal Green-Lucas bill now in the House," the representatives of the largest union in the nation declared.

David J. McDonald, speaking for close to a million United Steelworkers, said the "states rights" substitute passed by the Senate is "a slight and a fraud, because by the time the individual states get around to enacting separate laws millions of men and women will already have been deprived of the opportunity to vote."

The New York CIO Council, with 500,000 members, wired its Senators to move for reconsideration of the vote, and urged House passage of a bill modeled on the Green-Lucas measure knocked out in the Senate.

Similar wires and statements were sent from other CIO unions, including the State, County and Municipal Workers and the United Shoe Workers.

Probe of Arrests Of Seamen Asked

New York, Dec. 11—A demand for an investigation of the arrests of Natl. Maritime Union seamen under Alabama's "work or fight" law was made this week by NMU Pres. Joseph Curran to Attorney General Francis Biddle. Curran said that arrests of seamen waiting to ship out at Mobile have, at least on two occasions, "resulted in dangerous delay in filling out crews for merchant ships preparing to leave that port for foreign battlefields."

Any seaman who protests his arrest, Curran told the Attorney General, "is very liable to find himself bleeding in a few minutes. We had a young seaman two weeks ago who was a little slow in getting in the wagon. He was blackjacked on the back of the head, fell to the ground, kicked in the face, jerked up and shoved in the wagon. He had to be taken to the Marine Hospital for medical attention."

Auxiliaries Back CIO Action On Army Votes

Washington, Dec. 11—The CIO Women's Auxiliaries, following President Murray's lead in protesting the Senate gag on armed forces' votes, joined in the fight to force a retreat in the House, where the issue now goes.

"Our members — the wives, mothers and sisters of CIO members—have a grave responsibility in maintaining democracy on the home front," Mrs. Faye Stephenson, CWA president, said here.

Keep Your Eye On Congress

The soldiers' vote issue, theoretically killed by a polltax-Republican gang-up in the Senate last week, is turning out to be one of the hottest potatoes the reactionaries have picked up in months. The country is seething with indignation at the gag on the men and women in the armed forces and the merchant marine.

As The CIO NEWS went to press, the issue was headed for the House Committee on Elections, chaired by Rep. Worley (D., Tex.,). Every Representative should hear from you at once—and loudly—demanding a Federal system of voting for the armed services, similar to the Green-Lucas bill the Senate killed last week.

On taxes, the Senate Finance Committee is rushing a bill that raises even less money than the House bill does, with a view to building up to a sales tax and other new burdens on low incomes.

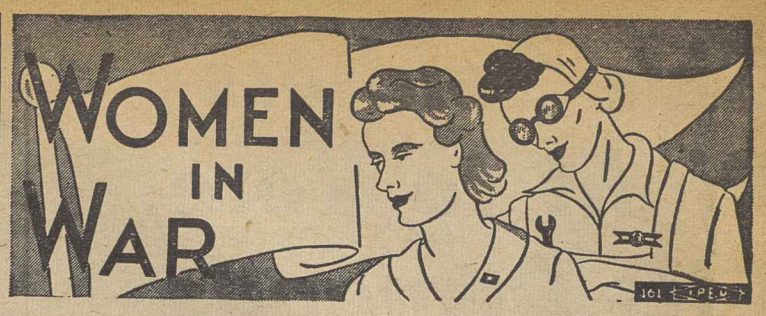
The subsidy issue is getting closer to a show-down, with hunger-bloc strategy demanding a quick Senate floor vote before the people can fully mobilize in favor of more food at lower prices.

The inflation plot got a new lift this week when the Senate Agriculture Committee, headed by Sen. Smith (polltaxer, S. C.), one of the leading hunger-blocers, had his Agriculture Committee report out the Eastland-McClelland bill (S. 1418) to kill dairy feed subsidies and raise milk prices.

Polltax repeal still needs all the heat we can generate.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Soldiers' vote.	Gives servicemen and women, merchant marine right to vote.	Green-Lucas bill killed in Senate; now to House Election Committee.	Press for immediate action on Federal voting plan on Green-Lucas model; wire Representative at once.
Subsidy bill. (HR 3477)	Use of public funds to aid output of more food at reachable prices.	In Senate Banking and Finance Committee, after subsidies were killed in House bill on CCC.	Wire your two Senators for CCC bill with subsidy system.
Eastland-McClelland. (S 1418)	Raises milk price 1 cent a quart now, more later; kills present subsidy on dairy feed.	Reported out by Senate Agriculture Committee, (Sen. Smith, polltaxer, S. C., chmn.) Ready for Senate vote.	Wire your two Senators to work and vote against as threat to all price control.
Taxes (HR 3687)	Your new taxes, added to what you pay now.	In Senate Finance Committee, with sales tax still a real danger.	Press your two Senators for real win-war tax measure.

(Note: A number of bills regarding post-discharge pay and various other measures affecting servicemen are in the hopper. An analysis of these, with recommendations for action, will appear in an early issue of The CIO NEWS.



U. S. Slow in Solving Delinquency Problem

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

The more you study the problem of juvenile delinquency the more incredible it seems that so very little has been done to meet the problems and use the capacities of our teen-age youth.

What a contrast with our allies. In England the government has sponsored a national youth council and all youth organizations of every character are affiliated with it. The first national meeting of youth organizations developed a program of some 78 concrete ways in which the English youth could help win the war.

In the Soviet Union it is much the same. The young people, organized in the Young Pioneers and the Timur groups, have laid out for themselves a program of war work which includes assisting in nursery schools, working on the farms, cheering the wounded, etc. In fact, Fascist commanders were especially warned to watch little boys, who often take messages to the guerrillas, and to shoot on sight any found on or near the railroad lines.

We haven't really taken advantage nationally of the wonderful contribution our teen-agers could make. We haven't made them feel that they are needed in our war effort and that they have a lot to give.

COMMUNITY HELP

Of course, a constructive program of participation in community war work planned by the youth themselves is not the whole answer to juvenile delinquency—but is one important step in that direction. Added to that must be a social program to provide wholesome recreation for these youngsters.

Far too many authorities on children are sitting back today and saying in effect, "the present serious increase in juvenile delinquency is due to mothers neglecting their homes and children and taking jobs." And what solution to the problem does that lead them to? Why, send mother back to her kitchen, of course.

Two things must be said in answer. First, there is considerable tendency to exaggerate the delinquency increase. In San Francisco, figures show that the increase in delinquency is proportional to the increase in population. That is true in some other places.

WOMEN FORCED OFF JOBS

There's a certain amount of hysteria abroad which is serious because it is frightening women into leaving jobs on which they are badly needed for war production.

Second, juvenile delinquency is not a problem which the individual mother or individual family can cope with. It really doesn't matter too much whether the mother of a teen-age child living in an overcrowded war community is home or not. She can't give him the kind of program he needs for a satisfactory adjustment to these war days. If there is no wholesome recreation available, she can't provide it—and teen-age children can't be expected to sit at home.

Murray Blasts WLB For '2nd Guessing' On Wire Wage Decision

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Sharp criticism of the War Labor Board for back-tracking on an order providing "Little Steel" formula wage increases for 540 employes of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. was voiced this week by CIO Pres. Philip Murray. The workers are represented by the CIO American Communications Assn.

Murray declared that the WLB decision ordering a re-hearing on its own directive requiring the wage increase "sets an extremely dangerous precedent that can adversely affect the whole of the nation's economic stabilization program."

"In ordering a re-hearing, the Board indicates that it is willing to consider a retreat from even this outmoded and thoroughly discredited formula at the demand of the giant telephone monopoly," Murray said.

GO-SIGN TO BOSSES

"Though the case involves only 540 workers, such a decision will be a clear sign to all employers that they can with confidence demand and secure a re-hearing on every order which they regard with distaste. It will also be a clear signal to company union elements in the telephone monopoly and elsewhere to increase their propaganda and pressure against genuine trade unionism.

"The order for a re-hearing, after protracted negotiations between the union and the company, and after a lengthy presentation of the case and a decision based on the evidence, clearly flouts collective bargaining.

"If the Board is to function as a proper tribunal in wage disputes, there must be an end to the narrow construction and inflexible application of some vague theories on wage stabilization which have no basis in reality."

Girls' Clothes 'Clinic' Started By UOPWA

New York, Dec. 11—A war-time Clothes Clinic for white collar girls was launched last week with the presentation of a Fashion Show at the Hotel McAlpin under the auspices of the United Office & Professional Workers of America, Local 16. The clinic will aid secretaries, stenographers, typists, etc., to plan wardrobes that will be both pretty and inexpensive.

CIO Radio Show Plugs 'Marching With Johnny'

New York, Dec. 11—Millions of Americans who listen to CIO's Labor for Victory radio program got a real thrill last week as they heard three hit songs from CIO's new musical revue, "Marching with Johnny."

Broadcast over the NBC Red Network at 1:15 P. M. (EWT) Sunday, the program told the radio audience that CIO has gone into show business.

Three hit tunes sung by star of the show Beatrice Kay, and by Ginger Dulo and Virginia Bolen, included: "Marching with Johnny," "The Four Rivers," and "Let's Go Out and Ring Doorbells."

White Collar Workers on Air Next Sunday

Washington, Dec. 11—CIO's next Labor for Victory radio show will feature white collar workers, and a discussion of the current controversy raging around their lowly pay scales. The program will be carried over NBC Red Network stations at 1:15 p.m. (EWT) Sunday, December 19.

Among those scheduled to participate in the discussion are: President Lewis Merrill of the United Office & Professional Workers, Milton Murray of the Newspaper Guild, Abram Flaxer of the State, County & Municipal Workers and other representatives from CIO white collar unions.

CIO Musical Opens in N. Y. December 29

New York, Dec. 11—The advance sale of tickets for the CIO musical hit "Marching With Johnny" which opens the night of December 29 at the Civic Theater, will be handled by the CIO War Chest, 1133 Broadway, New York City, WAtkins 9-1700.

The show is booked for eight weeks and performances take place every night but Monday, with Saturday and Sunday matinees. Blocks of tickets are being sold to organizations at reduced rates and the entire house has already been sold for several nights and matinees.

"Marching With Johnny" seeks to do for labor what "This is the Army" and "Winged Victory" have done for the armed forces. It presents the American people of today as they work, fight, laugh, sing, dance and struggle for victory.

Featuring an all-professional cast of Broadway and Hollywood stars, headed by Beatrice Kay, Norman Lloyd and Jack Marshall, the show has been a smash success in Newark, Providence and Bridgeport.

'Native Land' Revised, Shows Labor's War Aid

New York, Dec. 11—The motion picture "Native Land," which tells the story of the workers' struggle to be free, has been revised in part and brought up to date to show labor's cooperation in the war effort.

A group of officials from the CIO Automobile Workers, including Pres. R. J. Thomas and Sec'y-Treas. George Addes, after seeing the revised film at a showing in Detroit, arranged to have it shown to their membership in locals throughout the country, according to Harry Rathner, distributor of the picture.

Paul Robeson, famous Negro singer and actor, is the narrator in "Native Land." Songs and music were written by Marc Blitzstein. The film was directed by Leo Hurwitz and Paul Strand, and David Wolfe wrote the commentary.

The film is being distributed by Rathner, 723 Seventh Ave., New York. Unions wishing to show it may write him for particulars.

Handy Tips on Food For Weekly Shoppers

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

Staff Writer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

Few of us, especially working mothers, have time to go to the market every day. We find it works out better to do one good substantial marketing once a week, stocking up on staples like flour, sugar, salt, dried beans and peas, macaroni, noodles, rice, cereals, etc., and fill in during the week once or twice with meats and vegetables. It won't be much of a saving in time or in money if we allow the staples to spoil because they have to stand around over a long period and we do nothing about keeping them fresh and in good condition.

Since staples are usually sold in packages made of paper or cardboard, as soon as they are opened it's a good idea to turn the cereal or flour into a tightly covered container. You can use your empty canning jars with the screw tops, and paste a label on each jar. Doing this will protect the food against dust, weevils and cupboard pests that have a habit of creeping in as if by magic.

Keep fresh meats in the defrosting tray, directly underneath the freezing unit. Cover it lightly with wax paper, leaving the ends open for free circulation of air. You can use the wax paper that the meat comes wrapped in or save the wax paper wrappers of bread to use the same way.

COOK FISH WHILE FRESH

Cook fish within 24 hours after you buy it. It will keep better cooked than fresh. Wrap fresh fish in wax paper to prevent the spread of the fish odor and store in the freezing unit if you can possibly use the space.

To keep poultry, wash carefully, cleaning it thoroughly, pat dry with towel and sprinkle well inside and out with salt. Wrap in wax paper and clean towel and keep very cold until time to cook. Cooked poultry must be thoroughly cooled before covering and storing in refrigerator.

Wash outside of milk and cream bottles before placing in refrigerator. Place on shelf next to the freezing unit. Pour leftover milk or topcream into a covered glass or jar. Keep butter and oleo and soft cheeses in a covered container. Wrap hard cheese in wax paper or place in covered dish. Keep eggs in the refrigerator in their own box or in a bowl. Don't wash eggs before storing because the natural coating on the shell helps keep the moisture in the egg.

Wash vegetables and shake off extra water. Pat as dry as possible. Store in tightly covered pan. Pile vegetables loosely in pan. Wash spinach thoroughly as soon as you get it. Keep in covered bowl and use as much as you need for salads or as a vegetable. Spinach will stay fresh and crisp if kept this way for as long as five days.

Keep bread from molding by storing in a well ventilated box. Keep cookies and crackers in an airtight box by themselves. They'll soften up if kept with the bread and cake.

All this valuable and very timely information you can follow up in the Discussion Guide on Food Conservation, put out by the War Food Administration, Washington, D. C. Write for your free copy and share it with your neighbor.

Japanese Slaves, Paid 40c a Day

By ISRAEL EPSTEIN

(This is the second article in a series of exclusive wirelessed stories gathered by Allied Labor News' Chungking correspondent from Japanese workers drafted into the army and captured in China. Mr. Epstein reveals hitherto unpublished facts about Japan's economic and labor situation.)

CHUNGKING, Dec. 11 (ALN)—The first step toward the enslavement of Japanese labor was the institution in 1939 of a ceiling for wages. Then came the law for the prevention of labor mobility and finally labor conscription. At first these measures were merely proclaimed and their enforcement was perfunctory. But already in 1939 one section of the Japanese working class felt the full weight of what was to come. A "domiciliary system" was developed for the mine districts, and workers with their families were moved to live within the mine enclosures which were fenced around with barbed wire.

In up country mines the enclosures were guarded by armed men in crow's nests and there were incidents in which workers attempting to steal out were stopped by rifle fire. The "domiciliary system" was quickly dubbed the "prison system" by the Japanese miners themselves.

Slave Labor

After the outbreak of the Pacific war the shortage of labor in the mines and war plants was aggravated. Formerly the peasants had been the chief source of supply of workers, but the agricultural regions also had to supply most of the military manpower.

In 1941-42 women, children and foreign slave labor (Korean and Chinese) were introduced into the factories. By the end of 1942 women who had formerly been confined to textile, light and home industries comprised 51 per cent of Japanese labor as a whole; adolescents between the ages of 15 and 20 comprised 25 per cent.

An example of what has happened in the most basic industry of all—steel—is to be found in the great center of Yahata in northern Kyushyu, which is known as "Japan's Detroit," and contains 400,000 workers. Today 32 per cent of the steel workers are women and 25 per cent are adolescents. Thirty per cent, confined to heavy unskilled labor, are Koreans. Only 13 per cent of the steel workers of Yahata are Japanese men.

Labor conscription has been in effect since March, 1942. This is the final measure in the conversion of Japan's workers to serfs. Government organs in which labor does not participate have the right to assign men and women over 15 years of age to any industry they please in any part of the Japanese Empire. This right extends by special decree to old people between 60 and 70.

The method of conscription is the same as that used by the army, except that draft notices printed on red cards for soldiers are white for workers. That is why it is known as the "white card service."

"White card service" is a word of horror to Japanese workers. It means that they are moved from place to place without reference to their family situation and must work for pay daily fixed at a daily maximum of yen 1.60 (40 cents, U. S.) for men and yen 1.00 (25 cents) for women.

In normal times, before conditions of inflation set in, this was approximately the minimum wage. Skilled workers often earned yen 5.00 a day, but now they may be arbitrarily shifted from their old jobs into conscript categories where no amount of experience will get them even one third of this sum. One result of the "white card service" has been a wave of suicides.

16-Hour Shifts

The 16-hour working day and the assignment of inexperienced workers to complicated jobs have produced a terribly high rate of accidents and sickness. A prisoner of war who worked in one of the Mitsubishi's electrical factories (with 2000 workers) told how he himself has seen 50 accidents happen in one day, including seven deaths and 13 serious injuries.

Accidents in this plant were thickest toward the end of the night shift. Besides their 16 hours daily, workers had to carry two night shifts a week. No day of rest is allowed. The militarists have a slogan: "We must change Saturday, Sunday, Monday to Saturday, Monday, Monday.'"

Of all conscript labor, the lot of the workers in the scrapped and sold factories is the worst. Where their skills are directly useful, these workers are literally "sold" with their plants. They are placed unconditionally at the disposal of the purchaser trusts who pay them the conscript wage whatever their previous status.

Those with no immediately usuable skills are sent on the same day to training camps where they undergo a forced course under military discipline and then shifted—again without a single day to arrange their own affairs—to whatever industry needs them.

Living Costs Up

Since 1939, money wages have either remained static or have decreased while the cost of living has risen from three to four times. In the case of conscript labor, there has been an actual money decrease of from 50 to 70 per cent. In spite of Japan's conquests the workers are eating less than they ever did. The monthly ration of rice for factory labor is nominally about 70 per cent of the allowance for soldiers.

The actual amount issued to workers because of shortages that result chiefly from the initial inadequacy and war losses of Japan's shipping is seldom more than half of what a man in uniform receives—and Japanese soldiers are notoriously able to exist on less than those of any other modern state.

At the same time the worker's life under present conditions is definitely more strenuous than that of the soldier. The 16-hour day and seven day week, with two obligatory weekly night shifts, are now standard throughout the country. Japanese industry works incessantly—three 16-hour shifts for 48 hours.

Industrial exhaustion has developed new and fastastic forms. Since Pearl Harbor especially workers began to develop symptoms of various forms of insanity on a mass scale.

TB, VD Spreading

Japanese scientists considered this phenomenon learnedly for a time, then came to a discovery that most of the cases recovered if given a sedative and left alone to sleep—which some did for three or four days without waking. Despite the risks, the doctors turned in a report stating flatly that the only thing wrong with the men was that they worked too hard and slept too little.

Tuberculosis, always the great scourge of the Japanese working class, is mowing down hundreds of thousands. Venereal disease, an inevitable consequence of social dislocation, is aggravated by the fact that both doctors and medical supplies have been largely mobilized for the Army.

In Osaka last year only 20 per cent of the young men called to the colors were found fit for military service. The general in charge of conscription in the area publicly declared, "if these conditions go on the nation will be ruined."

The workers have fought and are fighting against these conditions. The great strike movement of late 1941, of which all news was suppressed at the time, had a very serious effect not only on the internal situation in Japan, but also on Japan's strategy and consequently on world history.

Urges Basic Attack On Delinquency

Washington, Dec. 11—The Federal government should appropriate more money for developing child care, and for recreational, vocational and educational programs, Director J. Raymond Walsh of the CIO Research & Education Dept. told the Senate sub-committee on Wartime Health and Education this week.

"There is no problem of juvenile delinquency per se," Walsh declared. "The problem is how society may organize a secure and adequate social house for our children to grow up in.

"The war has produced scattered, over-crowded housing, in which life seems permanently on a crisis-level. It has produced loose ends in family relationships, with working mothers and fathers unable to give personal supervision to the child, and equally unable to organize political devices by which community supervision may be effected.

"Delinquency is greatest among the poorest section of the population, where one of its chief causes has been the feeling of shame which prevents youngsters from bringing their friends into the squalid homes."

Walsh urged "enlarged vocational training and job counseling programs to adequately fill the existing needs to integrate our youth into the world in which it must earn its living," and recommended education in trade union attitudes and race relations as aids in strengthening democracy.

Chaos Looms Unless U. S. Plans—Golden

Washington, Dec. 11—In a plea for labor-management cooperation in the peace as well as during the war, Vice-Pres. Clinton S. Golden of the United Steelworkers of America this week warned the Natl. Planning Assn. that during the process of conversion from wartime to peacetime production chaotic dislocations may occur "unless our policies are so worked out as to permit timing and scheduling."

Golden declared that the planning necessary for successful resumption of peacetime business must come from labor, management and government—not from any one group alone.

Golden said that it would be a mistake to attempt to maintain the three-shift-day, 48-hour-week tempo of war production in peacetime.

"Man does not live by bread alone, but also by leisure creatively and constructively used, by the growth and exercise of his personality," Golden declared.

Labor Vital To War Effort, Catholics Hear

Richmond, Va., Dec. 11 — The success of our mighty war effort has been due to the fact that we enjoy a democratic government, and an essential part of that government is the labor movement. That was the point stressed this week by CIO Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey, in a speech before the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems, meeting here.

"We are on our way in Europe and Asia," Carey declared. "The momentous meeting in Cairo has announced the doom of the Japanese empire. Daily we advance further in Hitler's European fortress, which has been proved vulnerable from the air, the sea and land.

"I contend that our success is due to that very democracy that the Fascists scorned. For the people, all the people, have thrown themselves in this struggle. They know they are fighting for their liberties and ideals.

"The labor movement has been an essential part of this democratic mobilization for war. For labor unions are the means through which Americans who work together handle their common problems."

Carey pointed out that a million CIO members are serving in the armed forces, and that the five million at home are mainly employed in the war industries that have been breaking production record after production record in the drive to wipe fascism off the earth.

Oldest Hosiery Mill Goes CIO

Franklin, N. H., Dec. 11—The oldest full-fashioned hosiery mill in the country has signed a contract with the CIO American Federation of Hosiery Workers, it was announced at the union's headquarters here. The agreement is with the Sulloway Hosiery Mills and covers 450 workers. It provides union maintenance, check-off of dues, arbitration of disputes and other standard union terms.

The company was established in the 1850's and is still in the hands of the founding family.

PISTOL PACKIN' MAMA was the inevitable title tied to Miss Roberta Jones, organizer for the Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union, who visited Fort Knox, Ky., last week with a delegation of other CIO leaders to inspect the Army's armored force training program. Miss Jones, the only civilian woman present, is testing her shooting eye.

Hobbs Loose Again! Latest Bill Would Ape Nazis' Terror System

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The attempt of Representative Sam Hobbs (polltaxer, Ala.) to legalize the third degree, and other methods of extracting confessions by torture and intimidation, was sharply condemned by Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, in testimony before a House Judiciary sub-committee this week.

Speaking on the Hobbs Bill (HR 3690), which would allow confessions, extracted from suspects before they are formally arraigned, to stand as evidence, Pressman pointed out that its passage would reduce our courts to the level of Nazi Germany's.

"Everyone," Pressman said, and we assume this includes the authors of the present bill, must agree that we in this country cannot encourage or condone the German practice of arresting suspected persons, dragging them from their homes, and taking them to places unknown, where neither relatives nor counsel may see or speak with them, and holding them incommunicado at will."

Hobbs, author of the third degree bill, is also author of the Hobbs anti-labor bill, which passed the House some months ago and which would subject normal union practices to criminal prosecution. In addition, he sponsored the bill to deport Harry Bridges, that also passed the House, only to be killed as unconstitutional in the Senate.

Hit District 50 for Race Bias Leaflet

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 11—District 50 of the United Mine Workers Union this week was sharply criticized by Buffalo's official Committee on Community Relations for arousing racial prejudice in an election campaign against the CIO United Electrical Workers Union at the Buffalo Foundry & Machine Co.

Object of the criticism was a crudely drawn leaflet attacking the UE with an anti-Semitic drawing. The Committee said the "drawing is all the more to be deplored because of the obvious lack of connection between it and the text below it."

In a letter to District 50 Regional Director William McCann, Judge Charles B. Sears, chairman of the Committee, said:

"Our committee is in no way interested in the labor controversy in which your organization is apparently involved. We are very much interested, however, in the crude appeal to racial prejudice which the drawing at the top of the sheet is plainly calculated to arouse.

"Our committee wishes you to know that we condemn this and every other attempt to aggravate racial and religious animosities in our community, wherever they may arise.

"This would seem especially to be deplored when its source is a labor organization which should be expected to encourage the democratic process."

Handicapped Get Jobs

Washington, Dec. 11—Placements of handicapped persons by the U. S. Employment Service for the first nine months of 1943 increased 129.5 per cent over the same period for 1942, the War Manpower Commission has announced.

Total number of handicapped persons who have found employment this year through the USES is 139,862, as compared with 60,932 for the same period in 1942.

U. S. Workers Build Plane Every 5 Minutes

Washington, Dec. 11—Every five minutes an airplane rolls off the aircraft production lines in a continuous stream day and night, War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson said this week, in announcing figures for aircraft production for the month of November.

Reports UAW Membership Is 1,222,566

Detroit, Dec. 11—A dues-paying membership of 1,222,566 for the month of November was reported this week by Secy.-Treas. George F. Addes of the CIO United Automobile Workers.

Addes said this "is the largest membership of record and represents an increase of better than 50,000 over that for the highest previous month."

"Last November the number of dues-paying members of the union amounted to 778,658 and the increase has been fairly well distributed over all the regions in the U. S. and Canada," he declared.

Cooperate To Guarantee Jobs—Murray

New York, Dec. 11—Labor and industry must work together to guarantee to the American people a sound postwar economy providing jobs for all, CIO Pres. Philip Murray told the second War Congress of American Industry this week. The Congress was sponsored by the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers.

Murray joined in a panel discussion entitled "Jobs in Peacetime" with AFL Pres. William Green, NAM Pres. F. C. Crawford, and Paul Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp. and chairman of the Committee on Economic Development.

All agreed on the need for extensive cooperation to provide peacetime jobs, and Murray, speaking for CIO, said that the organization "will be delighted to cooperate with those who are anxious to secure jobs for all the people after the war."

Murray said that labor wants to be guaranteed some form of job security, and pointed to CIO proposals for an annual wage as an example of what is desired.

As a means of guaranteeing jobs, he urged the "highest possible degree" of production by industry, together with "expanded public works."

Green said that it was "inevitable" that there should be some unemployment in the transition from war to peace, and declared that the problem is to limit its size and duration.

Mass. Supreme Court Upholds Closed Shop

BOSTON, Dec. 11—The closed shop and the right of unions to force the discharge of non-union workers has been upheld by the Massachusetts Supreme Court, in a decision of great importance to industrial New England.

The Court's decision was made in connection with a suit brought in behalf of 19 women employed by the Nashawena Mills, Inc., at New Bedford, where the CIO Textile Workers Union has a closed shop contract.

The women had refused to join the union after voting against the TWU in an election conducted last spring by the Natl. Labor Relations Board. In the suit, the plaintiffs sought to have the closed shop declared invalid and the company restrained from enforcing it.

The lower courts refused to grant a restraining order and the full bench of the Supreme Court upheld the action. Judge James J. Ronan, in writing the court's decision said:

"It would be strange indeed if an employer who is required to enter into negotiations for a contract with a designated union would not be able to enforce the contract because he agreed with the union to conduct a closed shop. To set aside a contract on this basis would be contrary to the public policy of the nation and of the commonwealth."

Norfolk Labor's Polltax Payment Drive Nets Record Batch of New Voters

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 11—Cooperation between progressive leaders of all branches of the labor movement in a hot three-weeks campaign urging citizens to pay their polltaxes has resulted in the largest number of persons since the 1928 election paying taxes and registering to vote here.

Regional CIO Director Ernest Pugh, who credited NMU Port agent Dan Boano as "sparkplug" of the drive, said that more than 400 citizens in this teeming Hampton Roads war boom area paid their taxes during the campaign.

The drive, according to Boano, will continue right on up to the fall tax deadline for voting in the 1944 presidential election.

Four hundred new voters, he explained, pack a lot of weight in this polltax state—for instance, three men who ran in the Norfolk district for two positions open in the State Senate got only a total of 1,900 votes.

Boano said that the splendid cooperation shown by "aggressive AFL and Railroad Brotherhood leaders" was a big factor in inducing tax officials to keep night office hours so workers could pay polltaxes, and in forcing the city auditor to mail out polltax payment notices when he sent personal property tax bills.

"Everyone down here realizes that one way to help fight for the Administration's economic stabilization program is to see that the right kind of men are elected to Congress," Boano declared, "and that's what this labor movement intends to see is done."

Robeson Praises CIO Race Policy

New York, Dec. 11—One of the outstanding leaders of the Negro people this week highly praised the CIO United Rubber Workers Union for starting a campaign to develop better understanding between the races in America. The praise came from Paul Robeson, noted stage and screen star, who said in addition:

"The future of the Negro lies with labor, and especially with the CIO," he said. "Some 98 per cent of the Negroes in America are workers. Under the leadership of progressive organizations like the CIO, Negroes can take part with white workers in fighting reactionary elements like the Ku Klux Klan which would enslave them and keep them both in a hopeless position."

Robeson at the same time pointed out that labor must meet its own responsibility toward the Negro people. Warning that if no real attempt is made to develop better understanding and cooperation between the races, "the way will be left open for American fascism in the post-war world," Robeson said:

"I feel that labor will have to go more than half way because the Negro feels battered about. The temper of the Negro has changed and will remain changed—he is helping fight a world-wide war for the right of people to be free and will resist any attempt to keep him tied down to a reactionary status quo."

A lot of people who can't get wage increases are going to have even a tougher time meeting the rising cost of living if Congress adds a sales tax to their burden. Have you written your Senators and Congressman against it?

$21,500,000 Suits Bare Utility Firms' $5 Million Slush Fund

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 4—Charges involving a 5-million-dollar political slush fund allegedly used to control state legislatures, to defeat political candidates who favored public ownership of utility companies, and to weaken state control of the stock market are due for an airing in Circuit Court shortly.

The charges were contained in three suits filed by Frank J. Boehm, $54,000-a-year former executive vice-president of the Union Electric Co., of Missouri. Boehm is asking $21,500,000 in damages.

Boehm was fired from his $54-000 a year job in 1940 after the Securities and Exchange Commission exposed a $600,000 slush fund being used by the Union Electric Co. of Missouri for political purposes. President Roosevelt commuted Boehm's five-year sentence for perjury to two years. Boehm was released on parole last March.

The complicated legal actions attack the giant North American Co., of New York, holding company for Union Electric of Missouri and other utilities, Missouri Union Electric, Mississippi River Power Co., and the Union Electric Co., of Illinois, all of them part of the North American Co's., involved web.

Boehm asserts that his five-year prison sentence resulted from false testimony given by him to the SEC on orders from his superiors—in non-legal language, he says he took the rap for the activities of the companies and men he is now suing.

In support of his charges, Boehm alleges that $5 million was spent from 1930 to the present on orders for political activity in Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois, and other states, the District of Columbia, and in congressional and presidential elections.

In Missouri, Boehm asserts, the money was used to obtain control of the State Legislature with the result that legislation favorable to Union Electric of Missouri was passed and the company was enabled to by-pass constitutional provisions designed to protect the public on security issues.

Furthermore, Boehm says, elected and appointed officials throughout the state were bought with the money.

Besides this, Boehm declares, the company made certain that plenty of money was available for the defeat of proposals for municipal ownership of North American subsidiaries at St. Louis, Moberly, Mexico, St. Charles, and other Missouri cities.

In Wisconsin, according to Boehm, utility dollars defeated former Governor Philip LaFollette and Mayor Daniel Hoan of Milwaukee, a champion of public ownership. The Illinois State Tax Commission, he alleges, was influenced by some of the slush fund.

CIO Thanked For Fighting Chinese Ban

San Francisco, Dec. 11—China's official thanks to CIO for persuading Congress to kill the Chinese immigration and citizenship ban was expressed here this week by Consul Patrick Pichi Sun.

"I have received information from Chungking that the people of all China have hailed the repeal of the Chinese Exclusion Act as an event in improving Chinese-American relations and collaboration," the Consul said.

CIO Mobilizes To Win Soldiers Right to Vote

CIO concentrated its ammunition this week on the fight to win for men defending the nation the right to vote for officials elected to rule it. Spearheading the battle, CIO Legislative Director Nathan E. Cowan wrote the House Elections Committee protesting "the dastardly nature" of the Senate vote which virtually denied the ballot to servicemen. Declaring that CIO Pres. Murray has made the battle the major item on CIO's legislative program, Cowan urged all CIO locals to wire their Congressmen on the issue immediately.

Textile Workers Take Bonus AND CIO—Boss Mad!

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 18—Despite pre-election distribution of Christmas bonuses and a last minute appeal by the management to vote against the CIO, a substantial majority of more than 3,000 employes of the Botany Worsted Co. this week cast their votes for the CIO Textile Workers Union in an NLRB election. The TWU received 1,797 votes to 1,545 for no union.

Sharply at issue in the election was the question of "free speech for employers," with the NLRB and the Textile Union contending that the company had violated the law by attacking the union.

Regional NLRB Director Charles T. Douds, who accused the company of attempting to influence the election by improper anti-union propaganda, said that he would press a recommendation before the NLRB in Washington that the management be cited for contempt of court.

A court decree, Douds pointed out, had ordered the firm to refrain from "questioning, threatening or instructing its employes" in respect to their rights to join the Textile Workers or any other labor organization.

TWU National President Emil Rieve said that the union also would petition the NLRB for such action.

Management frothed at the mouth.

CIO Beats AFL In Big Arms Vote

DENVER, Dec. 18—One of the greatest union organizing campaigns in the Rocky Mountain west ended this week in victory for the CIO Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers over a so-called "federal" local of the AFL in a National Labor Relations Board election at the huge Denver ordnance plant of the Remington Arms Co. Remington is a DuPont subsidiary.

The CIO union polled 54.5 per cent of the total vote cast. The AFL received 45.2 per cent.

The MMSW victory at Remington followed by three days an earlier victory in a three-way election at the Denver plant in which the CIO local received top vote over the AFL and a choice labeled "neither union." In the first election, the CIO received 43 per cent, the AFL 32 per cent and "neither" 33 per cent. The run-off election followed with only the two unions on the ballot.

The CIO victory overnight doubled the CIO's membership in Denver and has laid the base for real CIO-AFL unity on the political and legislative fronts.

Labor Law Meet Asks Repeal Of Smith-Connally Act

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 18— The tenth National Conference on Labor Legislation this week went on record urging the immediate repeal of the Smith-Connally law. The conference, attended by CIO and AFL representatives and by state labor commissioners appointed from more than 30 states as representatives of their governors, also opposed restrictive state labor legislation which requires incorporation of unions, licensing of union organizers, and interferes with the internal affairs of unions.

One of the main points of the meeting, called by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, was a demand that industrial hygiene divisions be set up in state departments of labor since these departments are legally vested with "responsibility for the maintenance of safe and healthful work places."

In offering the resolution, Pres. John W. Gibson of the Michigan CIO also warned of the rise of new health hazards in wartime chemical industries and called upon the U. S. Dept. of Labor to collect all available information for dissemination to labor and industry and state labor departments.

Federal aid to states for safety and health promotion was overwhelmingly approved by the conference after considerable debate. Fears were expressed by some state labor commissioners of federal encroachment on the states' rights and prerogatives in enforcing safety and health regulations.

Another resolution favored by the CIO condemned the practice of requiring handicapped workers to sign waivers of their workmen's compensation rights as a condition of employment.

The conference also favored compulsory workmen's compensation laws and exclusive state funds "as the best method of assuring to workers the protection contemplated in the establishment of workmen's compensation legislation."

Office Workers Win 229-80

Hegewisch, Ill., Dec. 18—Office workers at the Pressed Steel Car Co. here this week voted 229-80 for the CIO United Office & Professional Workers Union. Office workers' pay is 35 percent below that of production workers, who belong to the CIO United Auto Workers Union.

Typos Spurn AFL Affiliation

New York, Dec. 18—The Intl. Typographical Union was reported this week as rejecting proposed reaffiliation with the AFL by a vote of 24,591 to 23,366 in a referendum of the membership.

Cut Ban on Civilian Use of Steel—USA

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Removal of all restrictions upon the use of steel for civilian purposes, to take up the lag caused by the falling off in orders from war procurement agencies, was today urged by CIO President Philip Murray in a letter to Chairman Donald Nelson of the War Production Board.

Speaking in behalf of the CIO United Steelworkers, which he heads, Murray described removal of present restrictions on the use of steel for civilian purposes as "urgent and necessary for the support of the home front."

"Indications are," he said, "that steel operations in the early months of next year will fall from five to ten per cent below the capacity levels of this year. From one-half to three-quarters of a million tons of steel will thus be lost monthly."

As instances of the curtailment in steel production, Murray named the four plants of Republic Steel where open hearth furnaces are now idle, and the announcement by U. S. Steel that operations at its Pencoyd steel plant near Philadelphia would close down on January 1.

WON'T HARM WAR EFFORT

"These are but a few of the situations where existing steel-making capacity is not being used to full capacity," Murray wrote.

"The complete elimination of restrictive orders upon the use of steel will not interfere with the war effort. It can be done within the framework of the Controlled Materials Plan. This Plan should be amended to provide that the steel mills produce CMP orders first, and that the mills be free to fill orders not authorized under CMP after they have filled all CMP orders on their books.

"In the case of certain forms of steel, like plates and sheets, which are momentarily below demand, such an amendment to the Controlled Materials Plan will assure their continued full production for war uses by prohibiting their production for civilian uses, except where all war or CMP orders are filled and excess capacity for particular sizes and gauges exists.

"In the case of the steel industry, where steel-making furnaces are being closed for lack of orders, manpower, except in rare instances, is not released for work in other war employment, as the manpower requirements of the mills are such as to merely reduce the working time of existing working forces and not to reduce the size of the forces. There is no conflict between the best use of manpower in the steel industry and the opening up of steel for civilian uses."

Retroactive Wage Boosts Asked by USA

Pittsburgh, Dec. 18.—The CIO United Steelworkers Union this week urged 500 employers with whom it is currently negotiating wage increases to make any raises retroactive to January 3, 1944, when the current contracts between the union and the companies are due to expire.

Noting that the negotiations will probably proceed byond the January 3 deadline, and that some of the companies might be reluctant to grant the request for retroactive pay, the union also petitioned the Natl. War Labor Board to order these firms to make negotiated increases retroactive, and to continue the present contracts until they are modified.

Citing the Steelworkrs' no-strike pledge, President Philip Murray said that the retroactive clause would be of aid during the negotiations in permitting "continued collective bargaining following what would otherwise be the termination date of outstanding agreements."

Ill. Parley Strong For Political Action

CHICAGO, Dec. 18—Welded together by a common determination to crush Fascism abroad and combat the rising tide of domestic reaction, 250 delegates representing a quarter of a million CIO workers adopted a vigorous win-the-war program at the third annual convention of the Illinois State Industrial Union Council. The political action theme dominated the convention.

Veteran Sam Levin of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers was unanimously re-elected president of the State CIO body at the close of the three-day parley as were other top officers and executive board members.

Robert Travis and Al Glenn of the UAW along with Stanley Wrighton of USA were chosen for the three vice-presidential offices. Maurice McElligott of the ACWA was elected secretary-treasurer.

President Roosevelt was tumultously endorsed for a fourth term while the selection of Raymond McKeough to lead the CIO Political Action Committee for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconson received a tremendous ovation.

The obstructionism of Congress drew the wrath of Levin for its anti-labor position as well as its opposition to subsidies.

"Congress is forcing labor to fight," he said. "And fight it will. The answer lies in unified political action. We will make ourselves heard in every state at the 1944 elections in support of win-the-war candidates for public office."

The Chicago Tribune, chief fountain of a virulent stream of disruptive, defeatist propaganda in the Middle West, was made a special order of business at the parley.

A blistering resolution branding the Tribune as "the arch enemy of the American people" was unanimously adopted by the delegate body.

International labor unity to hasten victory and help build a better post-war world was enthusiastically endorsed.

NO-STRIKE PLEDGE

Among other important declarations all of which were unanimously adopted, were those dealing with a comprehensive post-war program, emphasis on down state organization, unqualified support to Philip Murray, and a reiteration of labor's no-strike pledge.

The convention also unanimously supported CIO's stand for the rights of soldiers to vote, opposed proposals for a national sales tax, urged elimination of racial and political discrimination, and asked President Roosevelt to set aside the order for the deportation of Harry Bridges.

Set 50-Cent Garment Pay Minimum

Washington, Dec. 18—A minimum wage of 50 cents an hour for experienced workers in the cotton garment industry in shops under contract to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America was ordered this week by the National War Labor Board.

Approximately 50,000 workers employed by some 550 manufacturers are covered by the board's decision. Of this number, 42 per cent now earn less than 50 cents an hour.

The board accepted the panel's recommendation for a tapering scale of increases ranging from 2½ cents to 10 cents an hour in plants where the average earnings are less than approximately 70 cents an hour to prevent inequities arising from the application of the 50-cent minimum.

Textile Workers Ask 10c an Hour Pay Hike

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Asserting that the Little Steel formula was ready for the junk-pile, spokesmen for the cotton-rayon section of the Textile Workers' Union this week in conference here demanded a minimum wage increase of 10 cents an hour and a minimum of 60 cents an hour for its 600,000 members.

Similar demands will be forthcoming from other textile branches at a conference of wool labor leaders at Worcester, Mass., Dec. 18, TWUA Pres. Emil Rieve said. Aim is to establish a uniform wage scale.

The cost of living has gone up 35 per cent in textile areas, while the Little Steel formula holds increases down to 15 per cent, the 200 delegates assembled from 13 states said in a resolution.

"With the cost of living rising rapidly, with workers frozen to their jobs at frozen wages, the Little Steel formula cannot be permitted to impair the morale, health and efficiency of those who are engaged in production vital to the war effort," Rieve declared.

Testifying before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee in support of subsidies, TWUA Representative John W. Edelman pointed out that "many textile workers in the South are worse off today than they were before the war."

The average wage of all Southern textile workers is 56 cents an hour for a 40½-hour week, making the average gross weekly wage $22.68. Adding to the hardship is the fact that living costs are higher in textile towns than in large cities, Edelman said.

UE Demands Raise At Westinghouse

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—A demand for a 17-cent-an-hour wage increase has been unanimously voted by union representatives of 80,000 employes of the Westinghouse Electrical and Manufacturing Co., it was announced this week.

The action was taken at a recent meeting of the Westing-house Conference Board of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, made up of representatives from 40 local unions of Westinghouse employes throughout the nation.

In addition to the 17-cent wage demand, the union conference asked a monthly cost-of-living bonus based upon possible further increases in the cost of living.

Calculations based upon price increases, housing and transportation difficulties, quality deterioration in food and clothing, elimination of low-priced lines, and the scarcity or elimination of a variety of goods and services, indicate that the cost of living has increased at least 20 per cent above the 15 per cent allowance of the "Little Steel Formula," the UE said. This 20 per cent is above and in addition to the new tax obligations of industrial workers.

A continuing fight for economic stabilization which will include prices, rationing, quality control and taxation based upon ability to pay, as well as wage stabilization, is an integral part of the union's wage policy, and is regarded as of equal importance with the wage demand.

End Steel Formula, Fur Workers Urge

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—Another CIO union—the Fur & Leather Workers—this week joined the growing group that has wholeheartedly endorsed the CIO Convention's demand for abandonment of the Little Steel wage formula.

Approving all the decisions made by the CIO Convention, the Fur Workers' Executive Board, meeting at Atlantic City, reiterated the union's no-strike pledge and expressed "bitter resentment against Congress' sabotage of subsidies, a just tax program, the soldier vote bill and other urgently needed war legislation."

The board voted to press for a 10 per cent wage increase for 15,000 members of the New York Furriers Joint Council, largest affiliate of the union. The board pointed out that higher wages are needed to meet the increased cost of living brought about through Congress' sabotage of President Roosevelt's economic stabilization program, which the union wholeheartedly has supported.

The union's endorsement of President Roosevelt for a fourth term was seen as a certainty, following unanimously expressed board approval of such a recommendation.

Shipyards Close On Sundays

Washington, Dec. 18—The U. S. Maritime Commission this week ordered all shipyards to close down every Sunday, starting January 1. A commission spokesman, who said the "ship situation is a lot easier," declared that undoubtedly production would be cut by the order, which was said to be intended mainly to give a regular day of rest to shipyard workers who have put in millions of hours in overtime in achieving the present five-ships-a-day production record.

CIO Mobilizes to Win Soldiers' Vote Rights

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—CIO concentrated its ammunition this week on the fight to win for men defending the nation the right to vote for officials elected to rule it. Spearheading the battle was a letter sent by CIO Legislative Director Nathan E. Cowan to Rep. Eugene Worley, chairman of the House Committee on Election of President, Vice President and Representatives in Congress, protesting "the dastardly nature" of the Senate vote which virtually denied the ballot to servicemen.

Cowan urged that there be "no wavering in the fight to permit America's service men and women to vote," and said that CIO Pres. Philip Murray has made the battle a major item on CIO's legislative program. He urged all CIO locals to wire their Congressmen at once on the issue.

Meanwhile, such opposite political forces as Vice Pres. Henry Wallace and Senator Carter Glass of Virginia demanded that the armed forces be given the franchise through federal legislation.

Glass, long a champion of "states' rights," around which opponents of the soldier vote have huddled in defense of their stand, wrote from a sick bed to Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.), who led the unsuccessful Senate fight for soldier votes.

"I cannot see that the rights of the states are either jeopardized or in any way involved in the present controversy," Glass declared.

The Cowan letter accused Senators who voted for the Eastland bill, as a substitute for clear-cut voting rights for soldiers, of throwing up a smoke-screen about "states rights," and said that CIO will spread "throughout the land a full understanding of the dastardly nature of the vote."

PURPOSE WAS SIMPLE

"The original bill, which the Senate rejected, had just one purpose: To make sure that the right of our fighting men and women on all fronts to vote is not just a theory but is a practical fact," Cowan wrote.

"The proposal was nothing more nor less than a proposal to place a ballot in the hand of every qualified soldier and sailor and to make sure that that ballot reached the local election officials and was counted.

"Our nation calls upon all men and women in every state equally to fight to defend our nation. No state has a 'right' to refuse to join in the defense of our nation. Can it be said then that any state has a 'right' to take advantage of the absence of these men and women, sent to far parts of our land and to far parts of the world, by denying to those men and women the right to vote?

PEOPLE AROUSED

"The people of the nation are rapidly becoming aroused. The wives, mothers, families and friends of our men and women in service will not stand for the kind of hypocrisy that erects barriers to the proposal that we make sure that those men and women in service cast their ballots.

"The spirit of democracy is too strong in this nation to permit any political group to attempt to advance its own interests by denying the voting rights of men who are dying in defense of democracy."

Senate's Record On Army Vote Bill

A good part of the blame for the Senate's shameful decision virtually denying members of the armed services the right to vote rests on Senators from the eight polltax states. According to the following report from the Congressional Record, 13 of the 16 polltax Senators voted for the Eastland amendment to the Soldiers' Vote Bill (S. 1285) and thus against making it easy for servicemen to cast their ballots.

A vote for the Eastland amendment put the issue up to the states, and the Senate killed the Green-Lucas bill which would have set up federal machinery to handle soldiers' ballots—the only way to make certain that every member of the armed services would have the right to vote.

Polltax Deadline Feb. 1 in 3 States

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—A warning that three of eight polltax states have February 1 polltax payment deadlines for the 1944 presidential election was sounded this week by the Natl. Committee to Abolish the Polltax. The three states are Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

The Committee, as part of its fight to abolish the anti-democratic polltax, is urging union members to pay it so that they can help, at least as individual voting citizens, in campaigns to drive out of office some of the reactionary representatives that the polltax system spawns.

Here's the deadline and payment setup for the polltax states for the 1944 fall elections (deadlines for primaries may be earlier—the only safe bet is to check them personally):

Alabama	$1.50	Through Feb. 1
Arkansas	1.00	October 1
Georgia	1.00	Six months before election
Mississippi	2.00	Before Feb. 1
S. Carolina	1.00	Six months before election
Tennessee	1.00	60 days before election
Texas	1.50	Through Feb 1

$1,200 Bonus Bill Before House Com.

Washington, Dec. 18—a bill giving veterans of this war a flat sum of $100 a month for 12 months, regardless of rank or pay of the individual during service, was introduced in the House of Representatives this week by Rep. Chet Holifield (D., Calif.).

The bill, which provides the largest bonus yet suggested by legislation, would allow veterans to collect $100 monthly for a 12-month period, beginning any time they choose.

Persons entitled to pensions would receive a lump sum of $1,200. Payment of the bonus would "settle in full all claims for monetary compensation" as a result of service of the individual in the armed forces, Holifield said, but it would not preclude hospitalization or vocational and educational training offered by the government.

The bill is now before the House Military Affairs Committee, headed by Rep. Andrew May (D., Ky.).

Jail Mosley, Sister-in-Law Here Urges

San Francisco, Dec. 18—Sir Oswald Mosley's sister-in-law wants him kept in jail.

She is Jessica Mitford Treuhaft, sister of Lady Mosley and of Unity Mitford, Hitler's one-time girl friend. But she has long ago broken off relations with her British fascist family.

Mrs. Treuhaft, an investigator in the San Francisco OPA office, is a member of the United Federal Workers.

In a letter written recently to Prime Minister Winston Churchill, she said:

"I have all my life been an opponent of the fascist ideology in whatever form it appears. Release of Sir Oswald and Lady Mosley is a slap in the face of anti-fascists in every country and a direct betrayal of those who have died for the cause of anti-fascism. They should be in jail, where they belong."

New York, Dec. 18—$10 checks and Christmas greetings were mailed this week by Upholsterers' Local 76, United Furniture Workers, to 250 members of the local in the armed services.

Paralysis Group Aids Workers

New York, Dec. 18—America's production soldiers constituted one of the largest groups to be aided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis during the 1943 epidemic of that disease. Basil O'Connor, president of the Foundation, announced this week. This epidemic—the worst in twelve years—struck particularly hard at congested war production centers.

The outbreak still places a great burden upon the Foundation because many of those stricken will be patients in 1944 and some of them for many years thereafter. This means that an even greater sum than previously anticipated must be raised during the 1944 Fund-Raising Appeal, O'Connor said.

CIO Men Meet Murray's Mine 'Tutor' Abroad

London, Dec. 18—Two CIO war workers touring England under the auspices of the American and British governments this week met the man who claimed he taught CIO Pres. Philip Murray how to mine coal.

The workers—Joseph Smith and Hugh T. Mahoney—met Andrew McAnulty, 83-year-old past president of the Lanarkshire Mine Workers Union, in the coal pits of Lanarkshire, Scotland.

Mahoney and Smith, members respectively of the Steelworkers and Auto Workers, also visited Blantyre, where Murray was born, and met Mrs. Margaret Griffin, the CIO leader's 81-year-old aunt, and Mrs. Cecelia Kelly, his cousin.

Accompanying the two CIO members are two AFL members—Stanley Ceizyk and Otto Butler. The four are expected to return to the United States this month with a delegation of English war workers who will tour American factories.

Merry Christmas

This Christmas the thoughts of most Americans will be with the boys who are far from home, fighting for their country. Here are some gift suggestions:

(1) Let's give them the right to vote, by demanding that Congress reverse the Senate action and pass the Green-Lucas bill.

(2) Let's give them some post-war security, not only through adequate bonuses but also through the Wagner-Murray-Dingell social security bill and other measures to assure them jobs and full protection against all hazards.

(3) Let's give them a strong home front, with prices strictly controlled through subsidies, with a fair tax system and with every other necessary step taken to prevent inflation, so their money will be worth something when they return.

(4) Let's give them national unity to back them to the limit, behind our Commander-in-Chief.

(5) Let's give them more and more of the weapons of war, in uninterrupted flow, to speed the day of their victorious return.

(6) Let's give them a country worth returning to, with democracy preserved, jobs under decent union conditions, security and opportunity for all.

A Timely Warning

Charles E. Wilson, vice chairman of the War Production Board, issued a serious warning to American industrialists at the recent convention of the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers.

"I am deeply alarmed today," he said, "over the possibility that a right wing reaction may draw some sections of capital so far away from our traditions as to imperil the entire structure of American life as we know it.

"This above all is a time when the industrial leaders of America owe it to their country and to themselves to exercise temperate judgment—to practice the arts of compromise—to avoid the temptation of sacrificing values for temporary gains and to withhold encouragement from dangerous men who preach disunity."

Two opposing tendencies are evident in the ranks of American capitalists and their hangers-on in this critical war period.

On the one hand, there are those who share the patriotic attitude of Wilson, himself a leading industrialist and president of General Electric until he took his present job, that national unity for winning this war should be the first consideration.

On the other hand, there are those who regard the war as an opportunity for selfish advantage—to profiteer all they can, to instigate anti-labor campaigns, to undermine social legislation, to play politics against the administration and to prepare for a union-busting drive after the war.

At best, this second attitude represents sabotage of our war effort, which plays into the hands of the Axis through creating national disunity and hampering the wholehearted cooperation of all groups for maximum production and victory.

At worst, it is nothing more nor less than an American fascist tendency, as Wilson seems to hint. It was selfish and shortsighted industrialists and financiers, fearful of labor and democracy, who instigated and financed "dangerous men" like Mussolini and Hitler in their rise to power.

The catastrophe which they brought down on mankind, and in particular on their own people, including themselves, should be warning enough to any similarly minded industrialists in this country who flirt with ideas of an American form of fascism.

But even short of this extreme, there are dangerous tendencies in this direction in the developing political campaign for 1944.

There are too many interests seeking to fish in muddied waters, deliberately encouraging inflation, playing off group against group, and inciting other disruptions of the home front, with the idea that anything going wrong between now and elections will be blamed on the administration and labor and will help right wing reaction into the saddle.

Against all such tendencies, a strong labor movement, active politically, will be the greatest bulwark. The CIO extends the hand of sincere cooperation to all elements in our national life who also make national unity for speedy and complete victory the first consideration.

It will work with them for the election of a real Victory Congress which will guard our democracy, both during and after the war, against all threats of fascism, whether from within or without.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

WATCH out, fellow-suckers, here they come! The boys who gave us B. O., Pyorrhea and Athlete's Foot are on the warpath again. What are they selling this time? F. E., friends—Free Enterprise.

The National Association of Manufacturers has announced a gigantic, colossal ballyhoo campaign through press, radio, church, movies, theaters, schools and factory talks, to "sweep Free Enterprise into public favor."

Millions upon millions of dollars are to be spent to sell F. E. as our "economic salvation," the only thing that can "restore prosperity to post-war America."

Who's going to put up all this dough for full-page ads, and for the fat salaries and fatter expense accounts of "public relations" gents who "will seek to enlist the personal interest" of newspaper publishers and editors, radio commentators, movie producers, writers and lecturers?

Fellow-suckers, we are. That's where we start to pay. The more the big-business corporations spend for "advertising" and "public relations," the less they pay in taxes, and the more the American people will have to pay.

★ ★ ★

The NAM has it all doped out in one of its recent convention announcements.

"Let us never forget," it says, "that legislators too are mortal beings afflicted with all the shortcomings of human nature."

And here we thought our Congressmen were supermen, completely immune to the temptations of worldly wealth and power offered by the NAM!

But no, the NAM believes that if it can put on a big enough propaganda campaign it can make its "economic philosophy" so popular "that adherence to it will prove a political advantage to the majority of Congressmen."

As for you and me, fellow-suckers, the NAM believes we're even more of a pushover. "People in the mass," it says, "tend to think in blurs. They 'read while they run.' They are moved primarily by simple, emotional ideas." Which sounds a bit like a quote from "Mein Kampf"—but let it pass.

★ ★ ★

So we simple, emotional folks, with our blurry thinking (the NAM never once is so crude as to use the word "sucker") are to have F. E. shouted at us over the radio, stuck before our eyes every time we look at a billboard or a newspaper, and so impressed on our weak minds at every turn, that we'll be crying for F. E. for breakfast, dinner and supper and voting only for Congressmen who promise us F. E. 24 hours a day.

We won't even ask what kind of merchandise the NAM has packaged up for us under the label of "Free Enterprise"—according to the NAM. "People in the mass," it says, "are unconcerned about details."

★ ★ ★

But, at the risk of making liars of the NAM, let's try to focus our blurred thinking on the big business program behind the F. E. label.

You may have thought you were engaging in a little free enterterprise when you joined a union. But what's F. E. for us is not F. E. for the NAM. It bitterly opposed the Wagner Act, for instance, as governmental interference with Free Enterprise.

The NAM definitely does not like high taxes on high incomes and high profits. They interfere with Free Enterprise. But who's going to pay for the relief of profiteers from such taxes? Fellow-suckers, that's where we come in again. Big business has no objection to a sales tax, for instance.

Social security and other social legislation leaves the NAM cold, as do public works to provide employment. They're a tax on Free Enterprise, encourage "bureaucracy" and interfere with an employer's freedom to say to a worker: "Take a job on my terms or go starve."

★ ★ ★

As for labor unions, a recent full-page ad of the McGraw-Hill Co., describing what big business means by Free Enterprise, lets the cat out of the bag.

What's the big menace to Free Enterprise these days, according to this ad? It's not Hitler. It's not the business monopolies and cartels that are throttling small business opportunity and competition.

No, it's "the growing monopoly in labor which is threatening to make the free enterprise system unworkable," the ad says. And it slambangs away at the "buccaneering spirit" of labor, the danger of granting it "unlimited monopoly privilege" and the "exercise of arbitrary power by labor."

In a word, under the slogan of Free Enterprise, big business is planning its biggest publicity and political campaign for 1944, to get a Congress that will legislate against labor, undermine New Deal social legislation, and generally place wealth and privilege in the saddle to ride rough-shod over the interests of "people in the mass."

60-Day Subsidy Reprieve Seen As People's Victory

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—The common people of the nation won at least a 60-day victory on the subsidy issue this week, when the Senate Banking and Currency Committee recommended by an 11-to-5 vote a resolution extending the use of this method of price control beyond the December 31 deadline to Feb. 29.

The vote extended the life of the Commodity Credit Corp. without reference to House action which banned CCC use of subsidies to help roll back food prices. The 60-day lease on life was bitterly opposed by anti-subsidy forces.

The committee took two other encouraging actions:

1. Voted 9 to 8 against the Bankhead bill which would have outlawed subsidies after January 1. This measure was similar to the flat subsidy ban voted by the House.

2. Voted 11 to 5 against a compromise measure introduced by Senator Taft which would limit subsidies to a relatively ineffective $600,000,000 a year and which admittedly—according to its proponents—would allow milk and meat prices to go shooting upward.

Meanwhile, the House, which had turned down subsidies to cut food prices, showed a much more sympathetic attitude toward the oil interests by providing them with a cool $1 billion in subsidies—to be paid through the nose by the nation's consumers.

HIKE'S FUEL OIL COST

The House, by a 171 to 92 volce vote, approved the Disney bill, which will increase the cost of fuel to the average family using oil heat an estimated minimum of nearly $12 a year and a possible maximum of $25. The bill will boost motorists' gas bills from $3 to $6 a year.

Excuse for the price boost was the story that small independent oil operators need higher prices to develop new wells. Actually, reports are that these wells are not being developed, regardless of money available, because of manpower and material shortages.

Instead of granting subsidies only to the small operators to help them pay for the expenditures they claim they must make, the House voted to give subsidies to all operators—including the ones who don't even make a claim to needing the money.

Indiana CIO Political Group Formed

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 18—Labor's Political Action Committee for the 8th Indiana Congressional District was set up this week at a meeting attended by 40 representatives from various trade unions called together here by the Indiana State CIO Political Action Committee.

Charles E. Wright, president of Evansville UE-CIO Local 813, was elected temporary chairman of the District organization, and Claire Adler, representative in Evansville for UE-CIO District 8, was elected temporary secretary-treasurer.

Delegates to the meeting included representatives from five leading CIO organizations in the district: UAW, UE, UFWA, UCAPAWA and UPW.

Representatives from the "big four" Railroad Brotherhoods in Evansville attended as observers and pledged cooperation of their organization in effecting united labor activities directed at defeating reaction in the 1944 elections.

The union representatives expressed unanimous agreement that the objective of labor's political action in the coming elections was to rally the entire win-the-war electorate for the renomination and re-election of President Roosevelt as the necessary condition to carrying out the historic decisions of the Teheran Conference for the complete defeat of the Axis and the full collaboration of the Allies in building a permanent peace.

Salerno Political Head in New England

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—Joseph Salerno, president of the Massachusetts State Industrial Union Council, was designated today by Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, as regional political director for New England. His new post will embrace Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

Salerno, in addition to being Massachusetts CIO president, is regional director of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, an executive of the Free Italy-American Labor Council, and former Massachusetts state director of the Textile Workers' Union of America.

Salerno, who is on friendly terms with AFL, Railroad Brotherhoods, liberal and farm groups within his region, is expected to set up joint or parallel political action committees with these organizations, having common objectives, which include winning the war as soon as possible and securing the peace, with full employment opportunities for all.

Under his guidance, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Maine and Vermont CIO groups plan to set up state committees, and organizations will be set up on congressional district, county and local levels.

Negro Paper Features CIO

Under a headline, "CIO Paves the Way," the paper says:

"The BEE dedicates its December Pictorial to CIO, the nation's youngest but most powerful force in organized labor. Guided by dynamic and liberal Philip Murray, international president, the Congress of Industrial Organizations 'hews to the line' in a determination to enforce the cardinal principles of CIO—'to bring about the effective organization of the working men and women of America regardless of race, creed, color or nationality and to unite them for common action into labor unions for their mutual aid and protection."

Senate Revenue Bill, Tenth Of Sum Asked for War, Lays Basis for Sales Tax

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—The Senate Finance Committee wound up its deliberations on the tax bill this week, granting a little more than a tenth of the amount requested by the Administration as necessary for running the war, and setting the stage for a sales tax offensive.

The committee is scheduled to report to the Senate next week a bill that raises only a little over a billion dollars. The Treasury Dept. had informed Congress that $10,500,000,000 was needed.

The Committee completed its bill—which calls for slight increases in individual income and corporate excess profits taxes and substantial increases in a list of selective sales taxes—without considering Treasury recommendations for substantial hikes in income and estate and gift taxes.

The Treasury Dept.'s recommendation for $1,138,000,000 in corporate taxes was cut to less than $467,000,000.

On the surface, the bill recommended for Senate adoption would raise $2,141,000,000 in taxes, but this amount was cut by a million dollars because of a maneuver which "freezes" social security tax collections for 60 days at one percent. The tax had been scheduled to jump to two percent on January 1, but the Committee postponed this date as a compromise when no understanding could be reached on the permanent action to be taken.

LAYS BASIS FOR SALES TAX

The failure to grant Treasury Dept. requests for higher taxes on those with ability to pay lays the basis for a drive to pass a sales tax. Conservative forces can be counted on to argue that the money must be raised somehow, and to point out that about the "only way left" is to pass a sales tax, which bears much more heavily on the low and middle income groups than it does on the wealthy.

Another bad feature of the tax bill was the Senate Committee's refusal to exempt labor unions and farm cooperatives from a House bill proposal requiring all non-profit organizations to file informational returns with the Treasury, although not subject to income taxes.

The provision would virtually open the books of unions to the inspection of reactionary employers, who could be counted on to use the reports of strength or weakness in time of conflict.

Time Out!

Technicians Ask U. S. Pay Boost

New York, Dec. 18—A wage increase of $400 a year, or of 20 per cent—whichever is greater—was requested of Congress this week by Navy Yard Chapter 24 of the CIO Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists & Technicians. The request was contained in a bill submitted to Representative Ramspeck and Senator Downey for possible introduction in Congress. Ramspeck and Downey are respectively chairmen of the House and Senate Civil Service Committees.

Only a little while ago they were one of numerous family groups in the Studebaker factories—headed by a father who has seen active service as a Studebaker man for over 28 years.

War has separated many of the famous father-and-son teams that have long made fine craftsmanship one of the great traditions of Studebaker's home community.

But steadily, off to the fighting fronts, from the Studebaker factories, move ever-increasing quantities of Cyclone engines for the mighty Boeing Flying Fortress—tens upon tens of thousands of big multiple-drive military trucks—as well as other vital war matériel.

It's reassuring to every Studebaker man—on the production line or the firing line—to know that each shipment which Studebaker makes today is helping to hasten the dawn of a safe, new tomorrow. After decisive victory comes, still finer Studebaker motor cars and motor trucks than ever will be built for civilian use.

Keep Your Eye On Congress

Main issue this week was still the soldiers' right to vote, with the nation in an uproar over the Senate's refusal to pass federal legislation which would smooth the franchise path for the men who are defending the country with their lives. All CIO locals should immediately wire their Representatives and the chairman of the House Committee on Election of President, Vice-President and Representatives—Rep. Eugene Worley—demanding that the House vote for the Green-Lucas bill that was killed in the Senate but that was scheduled to be introduced in the House as The CIO NEWS went to press.

CIO heat on the House refusal to OK subsidies showed results in the Senate this week, with a 60-day postponement on a showdown recommended to the Senate by the Banking & Finance Committee. The anti-subsidy bill was rushed through the House by the hunger bloc but has met sterner going in the Senate, due to labor and consumer protests. The committee recommended continuation of subsidies during the 60-day period.

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Soldiers' bill.	Gives servicemen and women, merchant marine right to vote.	Green-Lucas bill killed in Senate; now in House Committee on Election of President, etc., etc.	Press for immediate action on Federal voting plan on Green-Lucas model; wire Representative at once.
Subsidy bill. (HR 3477)	Use of public funds to aid output of more food at reachable prices.	In Senate Banking and Finance Committee, which asked for 60-day delay before showdown on issue.	Wire your two Senators for CCC bill with subsidy system.
Eastland-McClelland. (S 1418)	Raises milk price 1 cent a quart now, more later; kills present subsidy on dairy feed.	Reported out by Senate Agriculture Committee, (Sen. Smith, polltaxer, S. C., chmn.). Ready for Senate vote.	Wire your two Senators to work and vote against as threat to all price control.

Help Win Vote Rights For Service Men

By ELEANOR FOWLER

Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

It seems almost incredible that the American Senate voted down the plan which would have made it possible for every American service man and women—and the men in the Merchant Marine who are risking their lives delivering the goods— to vote in the federal elections in 1944.

They voted to refer the whole matter of arrangements for servicemen voting back to the states—and only 20 states have made provision for them to vote.

Here's an issue in which almost every American family feels its concern. There are very few families that don't have at least one member in the armed forces.

They can fight, Mr. Senator—let them vote.

CAN CHANGE DECISION

The House hasn't discussed the soldier-vote bill yet. There's time to change the Senate's decision, and if we can get these millions of servicemen's families on the move, we can change it.

Mothers and wives of servicemen can do a real job on Congress on this issue. They can point out that they still have their votes and that they intend to use them in 1944 to elect men whose record shows they believe in democracy.

The Senate vote on federal ballots for servicemen should open a lot of eyes to the unrepresentative character of our Senators today. Sixteen of them, one-sixth of the Senate, come from the eight southern states where there's a poll tax—where people have to pay to vote.

TIED TO POLLTAX

The fight to pass H. R. 7—the bill to abolish the poll tax—is therefore closely tied in with the fight to give all our soldiers a right to vote. The anti-democratic forces in Congress are making the soldiers' vote a test of strength. If they can deny a federal ballot to our eleven million servicemen, they think they can continue to keep 10,000,000 southern Americans from voting, too.

It's up to us to show them they can't do either—and it's very important that we do it now.

FEPC Order Bans Job Bias on 16 Railroads

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—A major blow for equality of Negroes on the job was struck by the President's Fair Employment Practices Committee this week when it denied the claim of 16 southern railroads that it would be "impossible and impractical" to carry out FEPC directives banning discrimination in the employment of Negroes.

The militant stand of the committee brought threats from reactionary Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) of an investigation by the Smith committee, of which he is a member. Headed by polltaxer Howard Smith, the committee's most recent job has been to smear the work of the Office of Price Administration.

In a letter denying the objections of the 16 railroads, Chairman Malcolm Ross of the FEPC pointed out that four other railroads have already complied with the FEPC anti-discrimination order.

"Evidence at the FEPC hearing," Ross declared in a letter to the 16 railroads, "showed a shortage of 850 firemen on American railroads, this at a time when trained and experienced Negro firemen were unemployed and the carriers were preferring to take on green hands simply because there has been for years a sometimes tacit and sometimes formal agreement between the railroads and the railroad unions to decrease the number of Negro firemen and give the jobs to white workers."

Declaring that white Southern engineers have for years worked with Negro firemen, Ross said:

"The FEPC is an American committee trying to help fight an American war. Its duty is to prevent discrimination against any worker, whatever his or her race, creed or nationality, who would be an acceptable war worker were it not for preconceived prejudice.

"We may not be able to wipe out discrimination overnight, but where war manpower needs are at stake we can and shall try."

Canadian Technicians Join FAECT

New York, Dec. 18—Affiliation of the Assn. of Technical Employes, the only Canadian national union of its type, was announced this week by the CIO Federation of Architects, Engineers and Technicians.

Pres. Lewis Alan Berne of FAECT said that the Association, which has branches in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor and other areas, will be established as an autonomous Canadian division. In welcoming the affiliation, Berne said:

"The affiliation of the national union is symptomatic of the thinking of technical employes in our nation as well. Technical employes play a most essential part in the war effort and their prime concern is the proper utilization of their talents and skills. This is important in the war period and for the post-war period, for planning for peace is contingent upon our ability to plan for victory. The affiliation of the Association represents the growing understanding for cooperation among all technical groups, unions and societies."

U. S. Civilians Give One Ounce of Butter A Month to Red Army

Washington, Dec. 18—The average civilian gives up less than one ounce of butter a month to help supply the Soviet armies with the food they need to drive Hitler's legions back to Berlin, the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture announced this week.

The Department said that 79.65 per cent of butter produced is used for civilians here, 16.33 per cent goes to our troops, .83 per cent is used for "special needs," and 3.19 per cent is shipped abroad under Lend-Lease authority.

Civilians now get about 13 pounds of butter a year. In 1941 and 1942 the figure was 16 pounds—but the Department stressed the fact that these figures were averages, with some individuals getting much more and some much less.

20% Layoff at Buick

Toys Help Kids Grow! Buy Kind They Need

By SUNNY PRESSMAN

Staff Writer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

In a hurry to do the rest of your Christmas shopping, you stop at the toy counter and ask the sales girls, "What kind of a toy shall I get for Johnny? Something that he can't break in a hurry—something that will keep him busy for more than a minute." That's a question that you ought to decide for yourself before you get to the counter.

Take time to watch Johnny at play to see what he likes to do most. Does he like to hammer? Does he usually take his toys apart? You may call it breaking his toys, but really he's only trying to find out how they work.

You might find some toys whose parts fit together like wagons and trains, made out of sturdy material. If he likes to hammer and make loud noises, there is a very good peg board that comes with a wooden hammer.

Does Jane like to play with water? Get her a small washboard and pick up a good sturdy box at the grocer's and let her use the washboard in the sink or in the bathroom, using the box to stand on.

PLAY SERIOUS BUSINESS

Let her wash her doll's clothes or even her own underwear and socks. Suppose she does spill some water on the floor—let her help mop it up. She will have no end of fun, and at the same time will feel a sense of responsibility of doing something on her own.

Unfortunately, to most of us, "toys" mean something to amuse the child for a little while to keep them out of mischief. Modern educators have pointed out again and again that play is a very serious business with a child. He learns how to live with other people, play with other children, share his toys, make decisions, develop his body by climbing, reaching, pulling and pushing.

The toys are merely tools to help children grow. What a child likes most to do should give you some idea of the kind of thing he would appreciate most in his stocking on Christmas.

KIDS LIKE REPETITION

It's a grown-up idea that a child needs something new and different all of the time. The child loves to do things over and over again. He loves the satisfaction of knowing what to expect. How many times has your youngster asked you to read and re-read the same story over and over again?

Just because your child likes to play with a doll or with a wagon is no reason for you to try something different to keep him busy. Rather, give your little girl some new clothes for her doll, or a tea set, so she can play house with her doll, and give your little boy some blocks or tools that he can pile into the wagon and pull around.

Before you buy a toy, ask yourself these questions:

1. Is the toy connected in any way with something your youngster likes to do on his own?

2. Is the toy well built?

3. Can the child play with the toy alone as well as with other children?

4. And, last and most important, can the child do something with it? Can he take it apart? Pull it behind him? Push it? Use it in some way?

Utility Workers End Pa. Strike

Washington, Dec. 18—Voting to go back to work at once and end a five-day strike at the plants of the Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. at Lansford, Pa., and Pine Grove, Pa., members of CIO Utility Workers Locals 113 and 277 this week accepted assurances of WLB representatives that a special panel of the Board would promptly hear the merits of a discharge case. The strike was in protest against WLB delay since last August.

The strike, the first in the history of the UWOC since 1937, was voted by the workers under the Smith-Connally Law and was twice postponed by them in an attempt to settle the dispute.

Canadian Unions Hit New Labor Code

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (ALN)—Sharp criticism was expressed by all sections of the Canadian labor movement this week at the government plan for a new Labor Code, outlined in a radio speech by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. The speech, regarded as a reply to the demands put forward by labor at special hearings before the War Labor Board last spring, gave no indication that the government is prepared to change its basic anti-labor policies and as such is harmful to the war effort, trade union leaders charged.

At the WLB inquiry last spring, heads of the Trades and Labor Congress (AFL), Canadian Congress of Labor (CIO and national unions), and Railway Brotherhoods put forward the following principal demands:

(1) Federal legislation to make it compulsory for all employers to bargain collectively with their employes; (2) a minimum wage of $25 a week or 50 cents an hour; (3) unfreezing of substandard wages throughout the country; (4) full cost of living bonus for all workers; (5) public acknowledgement of the fact that prices are not determined by wages and that decent wage levels will not cause inflation; (6) revision of the existing method of computing the cost-of-living index; (7) equal pay for equal work for women; (8) machinery for arbitrating disputes; (9) labor representatives on all government war agencies.

Criticizing the Premier's speech, labor leaders point out that the new Labor Code will make collective bargaining compulsory in "war industry" only; that instead of a floor being put under wages, there will be a stricter enforcement of the ceiling over wages; that the cost-of-living bonus is to be incorporated into basic wages—thereby making it impossible for wages to keep pace with the rise in living costs; and that the false theory that wage increases cause inflation is again stressed.

Report CIO, Latin-American Relations Show Progress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—CIO's good neighborly relations with Latin-American labor are steadily improving and many of its proposals which require governmental action are receiving serious and sympathetic attention in the highest quarters in Washington, Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman of the CIO Committee on Latin-American Affairs, told the CIO News this week.

Potofsky, accompanied by Martin C. Kyne, of the committee, and CIO Sec.-Treas. James B. Carey, had a long conference with Secretary of State Hull. They also conferred with Nelson Rockefeller, Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, with officials of the Federal Economic Administration, and with Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director of the Pan-American Union.

The CIO representatives urged labor representation on all commissions and boards dealing with Latin-American affairs, where labor interests are involved.

They asked particularly that a labor advisory committee be formed in the State Dept., and that labor attaches be included in the staffs of United States embassies in Latin-American countries.

Labor clauses in United States credit agreements and contracts with Latin-American countries were another subject of serious discussion. The CIO representatives urged closer inspection and enforcement of such clauses, to protect the health, safety and working conditions of the workers.

They registered CIO's vigorous protest against the suppression of labor by the Ramirez government in the Argentine, and discussed the possibility of action on behalf of the imprisoned labor unionists and anti-fascists in that country.

In their visit with Dr. Rowe, the CIO men asked the cooperation of the Pan-American Union in obtaining facts about, and making a close study of, working conditions in the various Latin-American countries.

Potofsky also reported that he had been meeting with AFL leaders to work out closer coordination between the Latin-American activities of CIO and AFL and to prepare the ground for the formation of one joint labor committee.

Inside Japan

Suppressed Story Of Anti-War Strikes

By ISRAEL EPSTEIN

(In this exclusive article, third of a series, ALN's Chungking correspondent gives the first report to reach the outside world of wartime strikes in Japan. His information comes from Japanese war prisoners. Under the auspices of the Japanese Anti-War League in China, these prisoners are holding labor study groups, the Japanese manuscript minutes of which have been made available to Mr. Epstein. Next week: Strikes spread to Nagoya, Kokura and Tsurumi.)

CHUNGKING, Dec. 18 (ALN)—Although Japan was then not at war with Britain and America, strict internal censorship kept western newspapermen and officials from learning the full extent of the great strikes of 1941. These strikes, which included the military industries, began with economic demands but quickly acquired a political, anti-war character. Compilation of the reports of many eye witnesses and participants by the discussion group organized among Japanese war prisoners in China revealed these strikes as the last great struggle of Japanese labor before Pearl Harbor. This struggle was so important that there was reason to believe that it modified the whole course of Japan's strategy.

Labor Still Fights

It is clear that Japanese labor, although exploited and regimented almost beyond endurance, and in spite of the continued influence of chauvinist delusions, has by no means lost the will and ability to struggle against its oppresors.

It shows that against the background of the ever closer alliance between the Tokyo war lords and finance capitalists, so long considered "liberal" by the western world, the Japanese workers alone can be the basis of a democratic movement of all sections of Nippon society—peasants, white collar workers, small traders and minor industrialists to whom the war brings only ruin, slavery and death.

The development of Japanese working class dissatisfaction has been directly related to the progress of Tokyo's imperialistic aggression. By 1939, the mobilization of industry had advanced so far that high wages were no longer necessary to raise output and attract labor. As already described, the workers found that imperialist adventures really meant merciless oppression at home.

Planned Blitzkrieg

The easy successes of German fascism in Europe in 1939 and 1940 caused the Japanese militarists feverishly to prepare for a blitzkrieg of their own. The opporunity for this blitzkrieg was to be the planned German attack on the Soviet Union, which Tokyo knew was coming.

The first objective of the blitzkrieg was the Soviet Far East. Japan hoped that in a war with Russia she would secure a not too unfriendly neutrality on the part of Britain and America and that, after the Soviet Far East had been reduced, she could turn against these countries also as she finally did at Pearl Harbor—but with the difference that her continental rear would be secure.

It was in April, 1941, at the height of these preparations, that the wave of strikes in Japanese war industry began to rise. The first great strike was at Kobe and embraced more than 100,000 workers—a large part of the factory workers of the city. It included all the men in the great Kawasaki dockyard and the Kobe factories of the Mitsubishi trust.

The direct cause of the Kobe strike was dissatisfaction with food rations. Under the new system brought into force that year, each worker was entitled to 2.7 go of rice (normal peace time consumption was 4 go for men and 3 for women.) But because of shortages the amount actually given the workers was about 15 per cent less. At the same time the working day had been increased from between 10 and 12 to 16 hours.

Workers' Demands

A subsidiary question was that of compulsory night shifts, of which each worker had to do two every week. Representatives from various plants met secretly and decided to launch a movement under three slogans: "Shorten working hours and raise wages," "Give us 2.7 go of rice as you promised," and "A voluntary night shift."

The first step was to present these demands to the factory owners. After they were refused the workers started a form of sit-down strike. They continued to come to the factories, but they stopped the machines and did nothing. Groups marched around the factory grounds shouting, "Why should we be such fools as to work?"

Almost from the beginning anti-war slogans were also heard. At first the police tried to take the usual measures. But since all the big factories in Kobe were involved in the movement, these did not suffice.

When the deadlock had continued for five days and the owners did not show any signs of willingness to negotiate, another slogan appeared: "The plant administrations have no sincerity—break the machines." Systematic sabotage began and more than 100 lathes were smashed in the Kawasaki dockyards alone.

News Suppressed

While news of the strike was strictly suppressed, the papers not being allowed to publish a word and the police making arrests of people who were even heard talking about it, there was plenty of discussion in government circles. At a secret session of the cabinet, reports were presented to the effect that "the strike has now become very bad in nature." Most of all the government was afraid the strike would spread to other buildings.

As a result, soldiers were ordered into the industrial districts and there were clashes between them and the workers. The strike was smashed. In the following week the police arrested and questioned 20,000 workers. All were asked to identify the ring leaders. All said they did not know them. After a thorough comb-out, four men accused of fomenting the strike were shot.

It is significant of the broad nature of the movement that three of these four were foremen and the other was a factory official with a good salary. Twenty-four of the more active workers were sentenced to transportation from the country and never heard of again.

Use Slave Labor

This was a new punishment in Japan and it is supposed that they were taken to "Manchukuo" for labor on secret military construction and possibly killed. Japanese workers now in China say that when the Japanese militarists build their secret defenses they do not use common workers but prison labor so that ordinary people cannot know about it.

In the captured Chinese provinces kidnapped Chinese workers are used. They are strictly guarded, moved from site to site for labor of the same nature and then often killed. (The Japanese anti-fascist writer, Wataru Kaji, who works among Japanese prisoners, told me that he had met a Korean who had been used as a foreman for such work and had escaped. The Korean said he personally had witnessed the slaughter of secret defense workers.)

This was the story of the Kobe strike of April, 1941. Participants say that the strike failed not only because of its brutal suppression, but also because there was not sufficient contact between workers in the different plants. But although the Kobe strike was crushed, the movement continued. The chief fear of the authorities—that the strike would spread to other sections of Japanese war industry—became a reality a few months later.

Post Prints Article On UAW's President

Washington, Dec. 18—Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union was the subject of a full-length feature article carried in this week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

Thomas was described in the headlines as "the noisy, unreconstructed workingman who runs the world's largest and most turbulent union." The piece was the second of a series of personality articles dealing with "the more responsible labor leaders of this country."

British Unionists Say:

World Labor Parley Open to All Unions

LONDON, Dec. 18 (ALN)—The hope that all the United Nations labor movements, "however much they may differ in structure or in ideology," will accept the invitation of the British Trades Union Congress to attend the world labor conference in London next June is expressed this week by Labor Press Service, official publication of the British Labor Party. Of the two and a half million members of the Labor Party, 2,225,000 are trade unionists.

Commenting on the fact that the invitations sent out by TUC secretary Sir Walter Citrine are "all-embracing," the paper says:

"If the trade union movement is to be rebuilt, it must be founded on the broadest possible basis, and this can only be achieved if all bona fide trade union organizations are brought together and are given the opportunity to rise above their internal difficulties and feuds.

"By sitting down in the same council chamber," the paper continues, "they will be able, we hope, no matter what their past dissensions may have been, to find common ground of agreement and give to the world an example of unity and strength of purpose. Admittedly there are difficulties in the way of achieving this end. But we are quite convinced that the TUC is acting wisely in framing its invitation on these broad terms, and we hope that the trade union organizations in other countries will respond in the same spirit of far-sighted statesmanship."

You Tell 'Em!

Get Your Facts Straight Before You Write Your Congressman a Letter

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Two Congressmen this week took their noses out of the hundreds of letters they receive every month to tell CIO members through the CIO News:

"Just be sure to get the boys back home to gather all the facts about the subjects they write about, and get them straight. Tell them to explain the issues fully, and to list all the reasons WHY they want us to vote one way or the other."

One of the Congressmen was Warren G. Magnuson, from the State of Washington, and the other declined to be identified—his constituents are only 30 miles away.

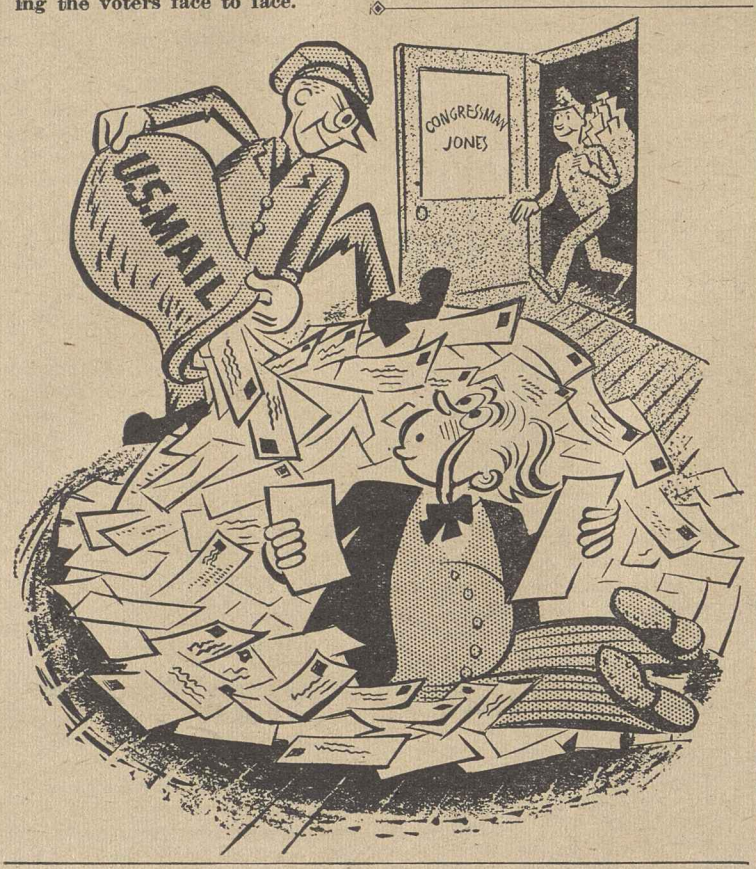
They both warned not to scratch post cards off the list of "ways to influence Congressmen," pointing out that even though they usually don't say much, they pack some weight if they arrive by the thousands.

While the 30-mile Congressman maintained that no amount of mail would change his mind provided that he had decided his position supported the best interests of the nation, he said that undoubtedly most Congressmen would be somewhat concerned if they knew that thousands of people in their districts were excited about an issue, and would remember how their Congressmen voted on it.

Magnuson, in his fourth term, said that 70 per cent of his mail is written by constituents who want him to do something personal for them, that 10 per cent of it comprises personal letters, and that 20 per cent of it deals with issues—this "issue" mail jumps to more than 50 per cent when vital bills are hot on the "Hill."

The 30-mile Congressman, who's serving his first term, gets 75 per cent of his mail on issues.

It's when he gets a delegation from his district that he really takes notice, he said. There's nothing so healthy for a Congressman, he contends, as meeting the voters face to face.



CIO Urges Vote Rights for D. C. Residents

Washington, Dec. 18—Residents of the nation's capital this week were watching with keen interest hearings of the Senate District Committee on the McCarran bill, providing for an elected council-city manager form of government, which would still leave Congress with its historic legislative control.

CIO's position, for voting rights for residents, was expounded by Sec.-Treas. Sidney R. Katz of the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council.

Katz said the CIO agreed that Congress must retain legislative control but declared there was nothing inconsistent between this and local self-government with "proper limitations" on the latter.

WPB Orders Plants To Provide Workers With Meals on Job

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Responsible federal agencies got marching orders this week from Chairman Donald Nelson of the War Production Board to promote the establishment of facilities to provide healthy meals for war workers at their places of employment.

Clearing the decks of priority restrictions, Nelson said:

"I call on the managements of war industries to arrange to provide or improve in-plant feeding facilities if adequate provision does not already exist to care for the needs of their workers."

Asking maximum help from management and labor to increase productive efficiency through the provision of nutritious food for war workers, Nelson said:

"One of the most efficient ways to improve the nutrition of civilian war workers is in-plant feeding. This has been demonstrated in many American factories where, even in peacetime, canteen or cafeteria service was provided for employes.

"The need for such service has rapidly increased in this country. In many places the vastly increased employment in essential industries on a two or three-shift basis has overtaxed the ability of the few neighboring shops to serve suitable food to large numbers of workers during their brief mid-shift meal period. So many wives have joined the force of war workers that it is increasingly difficult for workers to rely on the old-fashioned lunch box or dinner pail.

"For these and other reasons, millions of American war workers must look to plant canteens or cafeterias to obtain the warm and substantial mid-shift meals they must have to sustain the physical effort required in war industry."

'Dangerous Talk' Peril To War—Rayburn

Washington, Dec. 18 — A sharp warning against "dangerous talk . . . calculated to bring about disunity and wrong thinking" in the prosecution of the war was sounded this week by Speaker Sam Rayburn (D. Tex.) in one of his rare addresses before the House of Representatives.

Declaring that he had no reason to believe this will be a short war, Rayburn used stern language to remind the representatives that "some groups in this country, at the expense of our unity in the war effort, are thinking more of their position after the war than they are of winning the war now."

Rayburn cited as "dangerous trends" questions raised by the defeatists about England's and Russia's postwar intentions, criticism of the Army, Navy and lend-lease, sniping at price control and complaints about sacrifices. He contrasted "the little inconveniences" at home with the sacrifices of millions of American soldiers, "wading in the mud and murk of vermin-infested islands."

'Inflationary Gap' Theory Taken for Ride

Washington, Dec. 18—The bogey of the "inflationary gap," that leading bourgeois economists said would force prices to skyrocket, was taken for a ride this week in the November issue of CIO's Economic Outlook.

The Outlook said that "no sensible person can deny that this large and increasing pool of unspent income is a potential threat to prices" but added that fears that the money would be spent and would drive up prices have not been realized.

"The inflationary gap proved to have little sting," the Outlook stated. "Gradually the fact is being borne in upon the alarmists that, as Mr. Randolph Burgess says:

" 'Inflation is not a direct product of excess money; it is a product of human behavior. Money does not become wild by itself. It could be dangerous only when used wildly by the people who have it; and the significant thing that is happening is that with some conspicuous exceptions, the financial behavior of the great bulk our people has thus far been characterized by common sense.'

"This," the Outlook stated, "makes the argument against wage increases on grounds of increasing the inflationary gap (to quote the lawyers) 'irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial'."

Kill Medicine Trusts, Urges Wallace

Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 18 — Trusts and monopolies which keep vitally-needed medicines from the people must be destroyed as a result of this war, Vice Pres. Henry A. Wallace told an audience at the University of North Carolina here.

"Power to condemn millions of people to suffering because they cannot buy health at monopoly prices must be eliminated," Wallace declared.

As an example he cited American manufacture of atabrine, synthetic substitute for quinine, which is licensed by a partner of I. G. Farben, German chemical trust.

Six months after the war, he pointed, manufacturers of atabrine may find themselves out of business because their licenses from I. G. Farben's American partner are good only until then.

Sometimes a Pudgy Little Guy Can Pack an Awful Wallop

By VIRGINIA GARDNER

WASHINGTON (FP)—This is about an anonymous member of the big union delegation that came to Washington last week to tell Congress why they want subsidies to keep down the cost of living.

Picture a rather pudgy man in a brown suit. His hair is thinning. He has a son 14 years old. His eyes are shadowed and a little bloodshot. He's been riding all night in a chair car; he was on the Hill all day.

He walked in the door of Federated Press. He twirled his hat around, stared down at his hands. He said something in an inaudible voice, then cleared this throat and repeated it. "I want you to tell me how you get to be a full time labor editor," he said.

I didn't know myself, I replied, but I thought he ought to try reading as much as he could—the classics as well as daily papers, and then he should try to write and send in stuff to labor papers.

SENATOR WAS IRKED

Having delivered myself of this lofty little speech, I gathered up my purse and papers and thought purposefully of my 9:15 bus. I glanced at my friend, though, and he was smiling.

"I was just thinking of Sen. ——," he said. "I wrote a story about his plantation, not thinking he'd ever see it. He was pretty mad. He said I wasn't much like my father. He grew up with my old man. Everything the senator doesn't like he calls communist. I asked him about his vote on grade labeling. He said grade labeling was red, and as he said it his hands trembled. He was very angry."

"Where did he see what you wrote about him?" I asked, and he said in an offhand way, "Oh, I write a column in our county labor paper.

WORKS IN SHOP TOO

"Then I edit our own local's paper, too," he went on almost apologetically. "Of course I work in the shop, and I'm educational director of the local, too, so I can't devote every night to the paper. Then I usually have to distribute it at the plant, too."

"Don't you have any regular help with the paper?" I asked, feeling like a pie card.

"My wife helps some," he said, "when she isn't busy with her Girl Scout troop. She's been having an awful fight on with the Chamber of Commerce because she took Negro girls into her Scout troop. She looked up their constitution and there was a clause against discrimination. She took it down to the principal banker in town, who runs the C. of C. He didn't like it much, but the wife keeps her Negro girls."

He could spend more time on the paper, he said, except that as educational director he had to combat race prejudice which threatened a serious situation there.

FOUR HOURS' SLEEP

"I don't need more than four hours' sleep a night any more," he said. "But still it's hard to get time for reading. My wife and I buy two books a week, though. Good ones. Just finished Carlson's 'Under Cover.' "

By this time I could see the little town, the big plant, my friend waiting in a union hall hoping for a good turnout to hear the Negro minister he'd got for a speaker, and my friend straining with his bloodshot eyes over an editorial, wondering if it will get over or will be torn apart at the next membership meeting.

"But when do you do the reading?" I asked. He smiled, and made his confession: "Every Saturday night my wife and I get our books out. We pour ourselves a shot of gin, and drink wine for a chaser. We read until we fall asleep. That's our recreation. We like it."

After the door had closed on my brother editor, I knew what a union representative here had meant when she said: "You know, Washington doesn't seem so far away when you talk to the people from the field who come here."

Washington takes on meaning when the people come here to find out why they're not being thought of on the Hill. When you run into a man coming out of a Senator's office who's a union man, not a packer or a corporation apple grower, or a trade association lawyer, or that neat little man from the NAM who haunts my dreams, so often have I heard him testify on taxes and renegotiation—then you begin to get the feeling that this is the Capital of the Nation.

U.S. Hits Ford, Genl. Motors Lack of L-M Committees

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—Henry Ford and General Motors' Alfred Sloan were told this week to get in step with the rest of the country and set up labor-management committees to improve morale and increase vital war production in their plants. The advice came in an editorial entitled "Please, Mr. Ford and Mr. Sloan!" written by Theodore K. Quinn, director-general of WPB's war production drive committee. It appeared in the Jan. 1, 1944, edition of Labor-Management News.

Close to 4,000 individual war plants in this country and over 5,000 in Great Britain have set up such committees, Quinn said, "but unfortunately, neither Ford nor General Motors have so far seen fit to give more than superficial attention to the plan."

Reports of "conditions in Detroit war plants of loafing on the job, slow-downs, insufficient work, slow moving operations and general indfference"—the subject of hundreds of letters to the Detroit News, he said, had been found to be true in many instances.

In the previous edition of Labor-Management News, Quinn pointed out that "the worst conditions in Detriot are not found in plants where workers are given an opportunity to express themselves and enjoy a sense of participation through commitees . . ."

GIVES THEM LOWDOWN

Placing the blame for such conditions squarely on the industrialists, Quinn outlined for Ford and Sloan the ABC of labor-management committees:

"The committees are purely advisory to management. . . . They simply recognize workers as human beings with minds and hearts as well as arms and muscles. And they provide a medium of expression where the plain people on the job and their constructive production ideas, not grievances, are presented and considered impartially.

"They successfully deal with absenteeism in a way that no supervision can deal; with salvage and conservation; with health and safety; with housing and transportation; with the proper care of tools and equipment, education, labor turnover, etc. . . .

"Not only is this teamwork indispensable for production now, but what happens to all the great stated promises and hopes for the future unless reasonable men deal reasonably with each other within industry? Future employment depends upon production as production depends upon it. And greater, smoother production is the aim and object of labor-management committees."

UAW Pushes Job Plan For Disabled Vets

DETROIT, Dec. 24—Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union this week wrote to all affiliated locals urging that they seek immediately to negotiate agreements with their respective managements whereby light work may be provided for partially disabled war veterans.

Thomas said that, while seniority clauses in UAW contracts will provide job protection for most discharged soldiers who are members of the UAW, it will be necessary to create "light work departments" in plants to give veterans who have been partially incapacitated an opportunity to earn a livelihood for themselves and their families.

"Surely, we owe a great debt to these men who have not only gone to fight for our democratic freedom, but have also made the sacrifice of some of their capacity to earn a living," Thomas wrote. "Whatever pensions the United States Government may give these partially disabled men will not take the place of their normal earning power.

"For this reason, I ask that all our local unions proceed immediately to negotiate with management the establishment of what might be called 'light work' departments, in which partially disabled veterans can do a fair day's work and thus earn a decent living for themselves and for their families.

"Some managements may not be too anxious to go to the trouble of doing this because it will require some thought and planning, but there can be no question that such set-ups can be arranged in a very large proportion of the plants over which we have jurisdiction. The veterans engaged in this work, once adapted to their capacity, can make a real contribution to production and not be a burden upon the employer."

British Bill Would Aid Soldiers

London, December 24 (By Cable)—Disabled persons from the armed forces and from industry will get a planned opportunity to resume active employment, under the terms of a bill introduced into the House of Commons.

This Disabled Persons (Employment) Bill provides for the registration, training and rehabilitation of all disabled persons, and requires each employer of more than 25 persons to hire a certain quota of the disabled. If an employer violates this quota rule, he is subject to a $400 fine, three months' imprisonment, or both.

Labor Minister Ernest Bevin is authorized, under the bill, to arrange training and rehabilitation courses and reserve vacancies in certain fields especially for the disabled.

CIO WINS $11,550 IN BACK PAY: That sum plus job reinstatements for nine members of the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, who got checks ranging from $350 to $1,900 (see one above) were won this week at the North Carolina Shipbuilding Co. yard at Wilmington, N. C. The men had been fired for union activity, according to M&SW Director William Smith. The company surrender culminated an 18-month fight to get management to comply with an NLRB directive ordering the reinstatements with pay.

Put Heat On Army Vote Issue

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—Protests from merchant seamen, from CIO shoe workers and from liberal Southerners featured the week's indignation at the vote steal against service men and women put over in the Senate in the defeat of the Green-Lucas bill.

The merchant seamen, members of the Natl. Maritime Union, took their brief shore leave between trips through sub waters to come to Washington to tell their Congressmen what they think about a trick that robs them as well as soldiers and Navy sailors of the rights they're risking their lives to save.

Writing for the Southern Conference of Human Welfare, with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., the "Southern Patriot" had this to say in its lead editorial:

"There are many who regard the election of 1944 as the most important one since that of Abraham Lincoln. Certainly, what happens in that election will be a potent factor in shaping the world to which our soldiers will return. To deny a voice in that election to those who are dying to protect our right to hold such elections is indeed a macabre joke and an everlasting disgrace."

And speaking for 70,000 CIO United Shoeworkers, Pres. Frank J. McGrath wrote to all Congressmen: ". . . if the citizens of the U. S. are called on to give their life and limb for the defense of liberty and democracy, they should have the right of casting a vote to decide who the leaders of our great nation shall be."

Murray Backs FEPC R. R. Order

Washington, Dec. 24—The order of the Fair Employment Practices Committee to certain railroads to end Jim Crowing of Negro workers "should receive the wholehearted support of every American lover of democracy," President Philip Murray said here this week in a wire of support to President Roosevelt.

The Committee order, which applies to 16 southern roads, "represents a decided step forward in achieving the principles that this country was founded upon," Murray's wire said.

"It is the firm resolve of this organization to work unceasingly toward this goal in the mine, in the shop, in the factory and in the social and political life of the community.

"We feel that your support of the committee is to be highly commended and should receive the wholehearted support of every American lover of democracy," Murray added.

The CIO Committee to Abolish Racial Discrimination, headed by James B. Carey, chairman, and Willard S. Townsend, secretary, has been working closely with the FEPC to back up its efforts to end discrimination in industry.

Named as Liaison Man for WPB

Washington, Dec. 24—CIO Pres. Philip Murray this week announced appointment of Ted F. Silvey as liaison man between the CIO and the War Production Board.

Silvey's duties will include representation of the CIO on various industry committees within the WPB, contact work between unions of the CIO and the Board, and traveling in the field. He will begin work February 1.

Silvey was secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Industrial Union Council from its founding in 1937 to November, 1943. He resides at Columbus, Ohio.

Canadian Labor Fights Wage Order

Ottawa—Canadian labor prepared to fight a new wage Order-In-Council announced by the Dominion government this week which freezes wages unless it can be shown that wage adjustments will not increase production costs. The order also provides severe penalties for union officials and members who oppose the measure by striking.

President A. R. Mosher of the Canadian Congress of Labor (CIO) declared that "the most vicious part of the new order is the institution of a new system of jurisprudence whereby workers will be penalized for going on strike in the event of their inability to secure proper redress.

"The provision for dealing with gross inequalities in wage rates by predicating adjustments of such inequalities on the ability of employers to pay removes any hope that such inequalities will be remedied," he added.

The new order reconstitutes the National War Labor Board, making it a six-man Board with only one representative of labor. All decisions of provincial boards must be approved by the National Board which is expected to result in the creation of a bottleneck in the handling of decisions due to existing delays under the present set-up.

Shipbuilders Ask Premium Pay Return

Camden, N. J., Dec. 24—Restoration of time and a half payment for Saturday work and double time payment for Sunday work was requested this week by the Intl. Executive Board of the CIO Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, following a government order which halted operation of shipyards on Sundays.

The Union asked for repeal of the section of the shipbuilding stabilization program which provdes for payment of time and a half and double time, respectively, for the sixth and seventh consecutive days of work, regardless of which days of the week they happened to be.

The union pointed out that in May, 1942, it had waived contract provisons for time and a half and double time payment for Saturdays and Sundays to facilitate continuous operations of shipyards, but aded that with the Sunday shut-down order, there no longer is any point in waiving premium pay for these days.

"The continued denial of premium pay for Saturday and Sunday work could only be regarded as an abuse of labor's readiness to cooperate and a punitive attack on long established labor standards," a resolution of the Board stated.

In another resolution, the Board voiced its opposition to plans of the Natl. War Labor Board's Shipbuilding Commission to establish regional wage brackets.

The Board called upon this agency to determine zone-wide rates for subsidiary classifications in the Atlantic coast zone for the purpose of eliminating intra-plant inequalities.

CIO Architects Urge Stabilization Plan

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—A nation-wide stabilization program for technical employes was called for this week by the CIO Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists & Technicians. According to FAECT Pres. Lewis Alan Berne, the program, submitted to government officials, calls for:

1. A uniform classification system as a basis for determining salary scales, and to bring order out of chaos. Archaic classifications systems, such as those in Federal Civil Service, should be revised in keeping with the need for a nation-wide stabilization program.

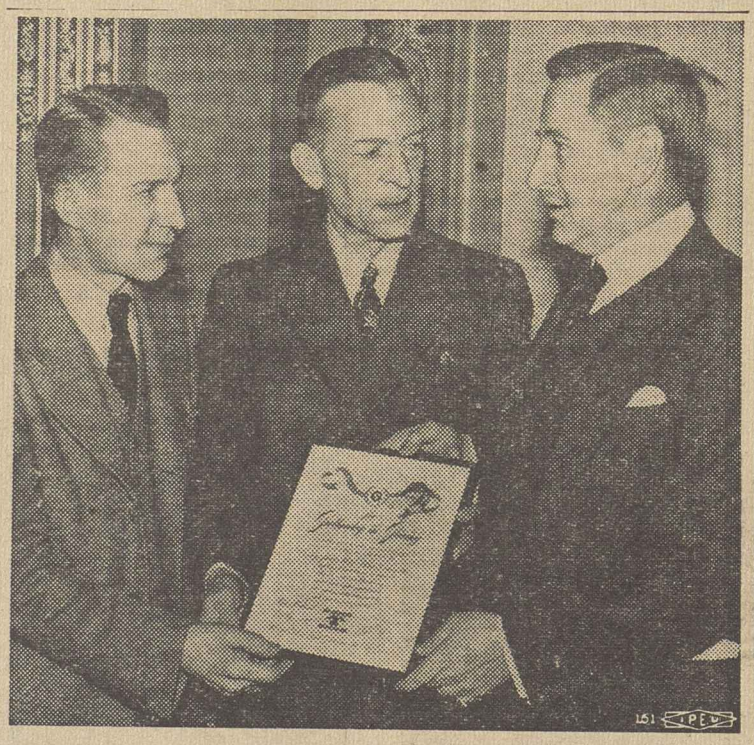
2. Guaranteed annual salaries.

3. Compulsory compensation for all overtime at the rate of not less than time and a half.

4. Dismissal pay.

5. Patent protection and renumeration for contributions to technology.

The union also urged establishment of a stabilization committee to execute the stabilization program, with representatives of FAECT and the technical societies, industry and government serving on it.



A 'G FOR GALLANTRY' award was presented this week by Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Natl. War Fund, to Michael Orfinik, president of CIO Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers Local 450, and R. E. Gillmor, president of the Sperry Gyroscope Co., in recognition of the contribution of $209,843 by 23,000 of the company's employes for war relief and home front causes. Left to right: Orfinik, Gillmor and Aldrich.

WLB Hands Steel Firms Presents Out Of Workers' Pockets

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—The nation's steel manufacturers—fat with $650,300,000 in war profits—this week were handed a tidy little Christmas present of several millions more. The War Labor Board played Santa Claus—at the expense of 700,000 members of the United Steelworkers of Amrica.

The gift to the manufacturers came with the Board's refusal to grant a request of the USA that any wage increases negotiated as a result of current demands be made retroactive to January 3, date of expiration for most of the industry's contracts. The Board vote was eight to four, with labor members dissenting.

Commenting on the decision, USA President Philip Murray said:

"The net result is that a grave situation has been created. At midnight, December 24, 350,000 steelworkers throughout the United States will be without an agreement. The public members of the Board are cognizant of these facts and yet, despite the pleadings of the labor members of the Board that the Board remain in session until the matter was finally resolved, the Board recessed to meet again Tuesday, next week.

"This attitude indicates a definite lack of responsibility on the part of some members of the National War Labor Board. It is, to say the least, provocative and could only be intended to cause bitterness and wrath in the hearts of the steelworkers.

"Why, in the face of these circumstances, certain members of the National War Labor Board should fail to sense the implications of their act, is beyond understanding."

The Board's action was in strange contradiction to the precedent it set in connection with the mine workers' case, when it agreed to retroactive adjustment of wages pending settlement of differences over how much they should be.

This was pointed out by Lee Pressman, USA general counsel, in a War Labor Board hearing on the union's case. Predicting that "an extremely serious situation" might well develop if the union's petition were not granted equality of treatment by the Board, Pressman said:

"If you fail to grant this petition, the steelworkers will not understand how you could afford that relief to the coal miners when they followed the pattern that they did and not afford the same relief to the steel workers, following the pattern that they did."

Pressman nicely refuted tearful statements of steel magnates that they could not afford to grant increases retroactively by pointing to the tremendous profits rolled up by the industry in the last few years.

He said that the industry's "take" after payment of taxes was $556 million dollars from 1936 to 1939.

An estimated $1,206,000,000 profit has been chalked up in the period from 1940 through 1943, Pressman said.

The industry's war profit—over and above the "normal" peacetime rate—has been at last $650,300,000, Pressman declared.

All the figures are after payment of taxes.

Senate Hearing to Act On White Collar Plight

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—The serious straits of 15 million white collar and professional workers on fixed incomes will be probed by a special Senate sub-committee headed by Sens. Claude A. Pepper (D., Fla.) and Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), beginning here Jan. 16, it was announced this week.

Writing to Senator Pepper, chairman of the Senate sub-committee on Wartime Health and Education, Senator Thomas said:

"It is apparent that the health and security of these 15 million Americans is imperiled by this economic pressure" of rising living costs and static earnings. "It is a Federal responsibility to see that this segment of our society is protected. Furthermore, it would seem that the entire economy of the Nation and the health of the American people as a whole is seriously affected by this anomaly."

Hailing the decision to hold the hearings, Pres. Lewis Merrill of the United Office & Professional Workers Union, representing 50,000 organized white collar employes, said:

"This decision proves that the white collar workers can look to government for help in solving the problems with which they are struggling today, and that the welfare of every citizen of a democracy is the active concern of his government."

The situation leading to the hearings was to be pointed up in CIO's regular Labor for Victory Broadcast, scheduled for December 26. Leaders of CIO white collar unions pointed out that OPA figures show that despite time pay that may have been earned, the white collar worker's purchasing power averages out at some three per cent. less than it used to be.

Speed WLB Appeals

Washington, Dec. 24—Mechanism to speed up consideration of petitions for review of Regional War Labor Board decisions was set up this week by the Natl. War Labor Board. The Board has established two full-time tripartite appeals committees to make recommendations to it concerning the disposition of such petitions.

Hit Ban On Retroactive Clothing Pay

Washington, Dec. 24—Labor members of the War Labor Board this week criticized a Board opinion which made a 50-cent wage minmum for the cotton garment industry effective on December 8 instead of on September 1, when contracts between the industry and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union expired.

The labor members—Van A. Bittner, John Brophy, Carl J. Shipley, and James Brownlow—stated in effect that the Board had indulged in false reasoning regarding the financial problems the industry would face if the wage increases were made retroactive to September 1.

The labor members stated that the Board's policy, that inability to pay a proper wage is no defense against a demand for a wage increase, "applies with equal force to the requirement that wage awards be made retroactive."

Political Action Pot Boiling

Warns U. S. Fascism Is Possible Here

Cleveland, Dec. 24—There is room in America for jobs for everyone at good wages but, unless labor acts politically, we face the prospect of skyrocketing prices, mass unemployment and the possibility of American fascism after the war.

These were conclusions drawn by Jack Kroll, regional director for the CIO Political Action drive, when he addressed representatives of all Cleveland's CIO unions here last week.

Kroll came here to help speed the campaign already inaugurated by the Cleveland CIO to get all members registered, to form ward and precinct political organizations and to move now for action in the May primary elections.

Returning from conferences with government and labor officials in Washington, Kroll predicted after the war "a very short period of prosperity. Then, if we don't have the right kind of administration, we'll see prices go sky high . . . definite attacks on labor . . . soldiers and workers walking the street, hungry and jobless.

"This," he said, "would provide the same situation as prevailed in Europe and will definitely bring to the American scene a man on a white horse to promise everything and then establish fascism in this country."

Says Smith-Connally Act Aroused Unions

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 24—Labor may yet erect monuments to the memory of Congressman Smith and Senator Connally, authors of the anti-labor Smith-Connally bill, Leo Krzycki, vice-president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, declared in a talk here before the representatives of all CIO local unions in the Greater Kansas City area.

Krzycki declared that time may show that the passage of the notorious Smith-Connally Act served to awaken union members to the necessity of taking an intelligent interest and active part in politics. If that is true, he continued, then Smith and Connally may be remembered as the men who, by inadvertance, actually served Labor.

More than 250 persons, officers, of local union executive boards and shop stewards representing Kansas City CIO affiliates attended the meeting, which was one of a series being arranged throughout the state by the Missouri CIO Political Action Steering Committee.

Krzycki, who described himself as "a trail blazer for the CIO Political Action Program," reported that he had just completed a tour of the Pacific coast where considerable progress has been made in getting all factions of organized labor to work together in the political field.

He predicted that problems now confronting organized labor might, within the near future, compel the CIO, the AFL and the Railroad Brotherhoods to "forget all their petty differences and combine" for effective political action to protect the interests of labor.

LABOR POLITICAL MINDED

"Labor in America is becoming political minded to an extent never before seen in the history of our nation" he insisted. In California and Vermont, Krzycki said, outstanding progress has already been made in joint political action by the Big Three of organized labor.

Krzycki warned that not only must union members register and vote but they must see that every member of their families who are eligible to vote cast their ballots. This is the only thing which can stem the tide of reaction and turn it into a tide for progress.

Fair Warning

Dies Committee Due To Ask More Dough

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—Keep a sharp eye on Jan. 15, when the Dies Committee comes up again to ask for more funds to carry on more disruptive work against labor and the government war agencies.

This warning comes from action of the House last week in giving the un-American Dies $7500 to pay back wages due to the staff of the committee. It looks harmless enough since people ought to be paid even if they work for Dies, but it's obviously the opening wedge for more and bigger dough for the committee next month.

The un-American Dies Committee has already spent $575,000 of the taxpayers' money—enough for a couple of Flying Fortresses—and has earned the denunciation of labor, progressives and administration leaders.

In asking for the $7500, Rep. Cochran (D., Mo.), chairman of the House Accounts Committee, said frankly, "So far as I am concerned, I will welcome the day when this committee will go out of business." Rep. Sabbath, (D., Ill.), Marcantonio, (ALP, N.Y.), and Folger, (D., N.C.), also wanted to see the committee end. Marcantonio voted against the $7500 resolution.

Two New War Films Available

Washington, Dec. 24 — Two new war films—one of them showing that the Axis is still far from being beaten—were made available to unions and other organizations this week for exhibition.

"War Dept. Report" is an official military review intended for war workers, and consists largely of combat scenes, captured enemy movies and animated drawings illustrating the problems of supply, troop distribution, etc.

The film is a confidential report of the progress of the war to date and of preparations for the coming offensive. One of the points it makes is that the United Nations will have to fight longer and harder than many people believe to defeat the enemy.

For prints, apply to Chief, Industrial Services Division, Bureau of Public Relations, War Dept., Washington, D. C., if using such films for the first time. If you have used them before, apply to your local distributor.

The other film, "When Work Is Done," is a presentation of the important role recreation is playing in war production. Apply to nearest Office of War Information distributor for loan of print.

Pitches Hot One To Republicans On Soldier Vote

Washington, Dec. 24—Chairman Harrison Spangler of the Republican Natl. Committee, who tried to make political capital out of some Willkie buttons and the censored letter of a serviceman, had his statements thrown back in his teeth this week by Richard T. Frankensteen, vice-president and legislative director of the United Auto Workers Union.

Spangler had expressed concern about the political rights of a serviceman who had written home for some old Willkie campaign buttons, and whose letter had been partially censored.

This week Spangler received a wire from Frankensteen, who said:

"I note you said in a public statement yesterday, 'The right of our soldiers and sailors to vote is a sacred privilege.'

"Last year under so-called states' rights only 28,000 out of 10 million soldiers were able to vote.

"Since Senate Republicans have just voted overwhelmingly to retain this system, I suggest you back up the soldiers by calling on House Republicans to support the simple, practical proposition originally made by Lucas and Green.

"So far, Republicans in both houses have been long on oratory and short on deeds where our fighting men are concerned."

Chicago Labor Lays Ground For Ward, Precinct Work

CHICAGO, Dec. 24—The legislative program of the United Labor and Community Political Action Committee was shifted into high gear this week at a continuations committee meeting held here.

The committee implemented the program adopted earlier at a conference in which 145 delegates represented 100,000 workers, members of the CIO, AFL, railroad brotherhoods, and independent labor groups, as well as civic, fraternal, professional and small businessmen's organizations.

The committee lad the groundwork for broad political action in the district on a ward, precinct, and block basis. Machinery was set in motion to carry into the homes for the fight against the L fare increase, and for the Soldier Vote bill and the administration's food subsidy program. Plans were made for mass registration before the coming primaries.

The organization is headed by Joe Rhoden, Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, chairman; J. R. Robertson, Executive Board member of the CIO Illinois Industrial Union Council, executive secretary; E. A. Houser, recording secretary, Railroad Machinists Local 524, treasurer.

Praises Union Men Serving In Seabees

Washington, Dec. 24—High praise for the men in the Seabees, many of them from the ranks of organized labor, was voiced this week by Rear Admiral C. H. Woodward, USN, chief of the Navy's Industrial Incentive Division. In commemoration of the second anniversary of the organization's founding December 28, Woodward said:

"From the Arctic to the tropics, the Seabees have continued their former trades in the fight for freedom. A great many of these men were recruited from the ranks of organized labor and they have carried labor's banner proudly on every fighting front."

WLB Order Ups Glass Pay

Philadelphia, Dec. 24—Increases in hourly rates for women employes in six job classifications at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. Pittsburgh, Pa., have been approved by the Regional War Labor Board in the settlement of a dispute between the company and the Federation of Glass, Ceramic, and Silica Sand Workers.

License to Profiteer

The tory Republican-polltax Democrat alliance that is now running Congress is a rich man's party. It has consistently favored capital as against labor, the rich as against the poor, the few as against the many, on nearly every issue it has handled.

The tax legislation it has initiated and passed has been particularly scandalous for its class character, in the midst of a war that calls for all groups to pull their full weight in the spirit of national unity.

But there has been one curb on the worst excesses of war profiteering, beyond the present inadequate taxes with all their loopholes.

This has been the Renegotiation Act of 1942, under which the government is empowered to renegotiate with war contractors, when it finds they are making excessive profits.

Under this act, some $5,300,000,000 has been recovered or saved for the American people through the rewriting of war contracts.

Despite this measure and war taxation generally, the profit-makers have been doing very nicely, thank you. In fact, corporation profits, after all taxes, are now more than twice as high as they were in 1939.

But now come the House and Senate Finance Committees with proposals to change the renegotiation regulations in such a way as to "open the way to truly extortionate profits," according to Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

To say, as Morgenhau does, that these changes "hold the seed of a national scandal," is to put it mildly.

There is already scandalous profiteering in this war, and if still further license is given for even worse profiteering, the indignation of labor, our fighting men and the American people generally will know no bounds.

There may be no limits to the arrogance of the tory clique that has usurped control of Congress, but there are limits to the patience of the American people, as the next elecions may show if real curbs are not enforced on war profiteering.

Congress in Recess

While the members of Congress are home for the present recess, they'll want to find out what the voters are thinking.

Don't disappoint them, or let them go back to Washington with any false impressions.

The high-cost-of-living crowd, who want to profiteer from higher prices, regardless of inflation, are going to pressure the Congressmen all they can against food subsidies.

Let's tell our Congressmen that most Americans want prices kept down and know this can only be done through subsidies.

Then there's the matter of taxes. Congress is letting war profiteers get away with murder, and saying the wealthy just can't spare any more of their surplus wealth. And don't think a lot of their country club friends won't be agreeing and saying the only thing left is to soak low-income folks through a sales tax.

So let's tell our Congressmen we don't want a sales tax, and that there's plenty of tax money forthcoming, if they'll take it from those who have it, on the basis of ability to pay.

Then there's that bill to end the polltax. It has been passed by the House, and the Senate can make it law any time now.

Let your Senator know that everyone who believes in democracy wants this anti-polltax bill (HR 7) passed without any more stalling; and ask him to vote cloture to kill off any polltaxers' filibuster.

And don't forget to let your Congressmen know what you think of the disgraceful action of the Senate in denying our fighting men the right to vote.

To leave it to the states, as the Senate did, means that practically none of our soldiers can vote. The Senate's action must be reversed and a Federal law passed to cut through the red tape of state restrictions.

Tell your Congressmen too you want an end to labor-baiting and administration-baiting politics-as-usual, and a real effort by Congress to give us national unity behind the Commander-in-Chief for a strong and stable home front to back the great armed offensive of 1944.

Let them hear from you whether their record has been good or bad. If it's been bad, they may improve; and if it's been good, they need your encouragement and support.

Looking Ahead

By Len De Caux

LOOKING back over 1943, the CIO can tell its sons in the fighting forces that it has really "held the fort," backing them up to the limit and setting victory first.

The year opened with a new Congress, many of whose members had been elected by default—because millions of progressive voters were absent in the armed forces and millions of war workers could not vote due to having moved to other states for new war jobs.

As a result, a reactionary coalition seized control of Congress, consisting of tory Republicans and bitterly anti-New Deal and anti-labor polltax Democrats.

This coalition acted as if its war against the Roosevelt administration and all labor and progressive tendencies were more important than the war against the Axis.

The administration, for its part, though generally advancing win-the-war policies, weakened at times before this vicious opposition and attempted to appease it.

The CIO therefore had both to wage an uncompromising struggle against tory disruptions in Congress and to exert constant pressure on the administration.

★ ★ ★

Many of CIO's biggest fights in 1943 revolved around stabilization of our war economy. It fought for extension of democratic rationing, for strict price control, for a victory tax program based on ability to pay, for real social security, and for fair wage stabilization.

At the same time, the CIO fought for total mobilization of all our material and manpower resources, with national planning under centralized direction and control.

As a part of this national mobilization, the CIO demanded equal job rights for Negroes and other minorities and an end to the polltax, which keeps 10 million Americans from full democratic participation.

The CIO also led in every move on behalf of our fighting men—for higher pay for them, for increased allowances for their dependents, for adequate mustering-out pay, for post-war jobs and security, and for their right to vote in the coming elections.

At all times, the CIO made national unity behind our Commander-in-Chief and the offensive of the United Nations its first consideration.

★ ★ ★

For rationing and price control, the CIO had to fight appeasers of special interests within the administration; the disgraceful sniping, fund-slashing and outright sabotage in Congress; and the constant efforts to ban food subsidies.

As to taxes, Congress in 1943 passed the 75% Ruml grab plan, defeated the $25,000 limit, and granted many other special tax privileges to wealthy profiteers, while adding constantly to the burdens of low-income groups least able to pay.

On wage stabilization, the CIO consistently opposed inflexible policies that prevented the remedying of inequities and the adjustment of wages to increased living costs. If fought long and hard for a rollback of prices to the Sept. 15, 1942, wage freeze level.

Once it became clear, however, that the rollback had failed, and that prices would continue far above frozen wage levels, CIO demanded wage increases to restore wage-price stability, at the same time renewing its insistence on an all-around program of stabilization to prevent inflation.

★ ★ ★

Along with the above struggles, the CIO in 1943 led the fight in labor's ranks against the disruptive and defeatist policies associated with John L. Lewis.

Even after the passage of the vicious strike-provoking Smith-Connally Act, the CIO emphatically reaffirmed its no-strike pledge.

It has consistently hewed to the line of setting victory first, opposing any interruption of production for any cause, and mobilizing labor 100% behind the war effort.

★ ★ ★

1943 also saw the launching of CIO's greatest political campaign.

With its unions at their greatest peak of strength, with prospects good for united political action by all sections of labor and other progressives, the CIO enters the new year with optimism.

Its battles in 1943 have been tough ones, against powerful combinations of reaction and disruption. But they have also been marked by many successes, and CIO has yet to concede defeat on any one of its major campaigns.

1944 will be a year of supreme offensive for victory, and the win-the-war policies of the CIO are bound to gain in public support as the American people become more and more absorbed in our victory effort.

Congress 'Lays An Egg'

The Rest Is Up to YOU!

By C. W. FOWLER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—Congress recessed this week to go back home and face the voters on the record since Labor Day, when the last recess ended.

The current recess, which ends January 10, finds four major issues of prime importance to the war and the home front still unsolved. These are:

1. The soldiers' vote.

2. Subsidies for more food at lower prices.

3. Taxes.

4. Polltax repeal.

Of the four, the soldiers' vote is perhaps the hottest of all, with more popular indignaton raised on it than on any ssue in recent months of Congressional obstructionism.

As Congress recessed, the vote for Servicemen and women and for the merchant marine had been denied by Senate action in defeating the Lucas-Green bill and substituting the Eastland-McClelland measure.

Federal Machinery

Briefly, the Green-Lucas bill set up a Federal commission to see that men and women in the services got their ballots in time, that they were returned to the states and counted in the 1944 election.

An "unholy alliance" of reactionary Republicans and polltax Democrats in the Senate, with the leadership of a member of the lower House, polltaxer Rankin of Mississippi, succeeded in pushing through the substitute, which turned the whole matter over to the individual states.

This was done under the loud cry of "states' rights," and means simply that the men and women in the services will not get to vote in 1944. Last year, when a similar law was in effect, only some 28,000 service votes were counted.

Compromises Bad

Since the Senate substitute was passed, various "compromises" have been suggested, designed to mollify the "states' righters" and at the same time allay the nationwide indignation at Congress.

Principal of these compromise proposals is that of Rep. Worley (polltaxer, Tex.), who has a bill to retain the form of Federal supervision but to let the states decide whether or not to count the service peoples' votes.

Actually, this is no compromise at all, since it leaves the counting of the vote up to the political machines in the states. It is purely and simply a surrender, when you remember that many of the state legislatures are not meeting in 1944 and therefore will not provide the apparatus for counting the votes. And more—Texas, for example, has a constitutional ban on counting soldiers' votes.

ACTION: Rep. Thomas Scanlon (D., Pa.) put a bill (HR. 3895) in the House on the last day before the recess that is a replica of the original Green-Lucas bill. Urge your Representative to work and vote for this; write to Rep. Worley, chairman of the House Committee on Election of President, Vice-President and Representatives, to report it out. Insist on no "compromise," either the men and women in the services vote and have their votes counted, or they don't.

When Congress recessed, it left the food subsidy issue still in the Senate, where the Banking and Currency Committee has been delaying action on the CCC extension bill (HR 3477), which was passed by the House with an absolute ban on use of subsidies for greater food output at reachable prices.

The arguments for use of subsidies are well-known. Subsidies, properly applied, make it possible to protect producers and consumers from higher food costs by absorbing increased costs before they reach the consumer.

It has been estimated that every $1 spent on food subsidies saves from $4 to $12 in higher costs to consumers and to the government, which buys a huge proportion of the food produced.

Various compromises, which are not compromises but surrenders, are cooking on the subsidy issue. The princpal scheme here is to allay the nationwde demand for real subsidies by permitting their use, but under such severe limits as to destroy their effectiveness. Thus, Sen. Taft (R., Ohio) would allow subsidies in limited amounts and under a strct ban on their use to achieve price rollbacks.

ACTION: Tell your Senators that you want the CCC extended (HR 3477) with Section 3 (which bars use of subsidies) removed, and that no compromise on full use of public funds as needed is acceptable.

The tax bill, as passed by the House and as reported by the Senate Finance Committee (Sen. George, polltaxer, Ga., chairman), is, in Secretary Morgenthau's phrase, a "national scandal."

Originally, the Administration asked for $10 billion in new taxes to help carry on the war. The CIO, led by Pres. Murray in testimony before both House and Senate, urged that this be raised by increasing income taxes in the brackets above $3,500, with steep increases in all levels over $5,000, increases in war profits taxes, income limits of $25,000, etc.

The House utterly failed to do anything toward a win-the-war tax program. Big incomes, war profits, loopholes were left untouched. The bill as passed raises only a little more than $2 billion, of the $10 billion needed. Excise taxes were increased.

The idea, of course, was to pave the way for a sales tax and other new burdens on low incomes. The Senate Finance Committee fell in with this, reporting a bill almost identical to that passed by the House.

Only last week, Sen. George repeated his demands for a sales tax, in telling the Administration that his Committee would not raise the needed revenue unless the sales tax were put over.

ACTION: So far, labor has stopped a sales tax, though it has won none of the positive parts of its tax program. There is still time to tell your two Senators what you think of the present bill, and to repeat—if necessary, for the Nth time—what you want by way of a tax program for 1944.

Polltax Repeal

Labor's patience and endurance have been tested on this issue longer than on any of the others—in fact, the reactionary strategy is to wear the people down by constant delays, then to knife the bill on the floor if it does come up.

Here, again, we have to be watchful on so-called "compromises" which actually defeat the bill's purpose. Chief of these maneuvers is the scheme to put polltax repeal up to a constitutional amendment. This, of course, would effectively kill repeal, since 36 states are required to ratify it.

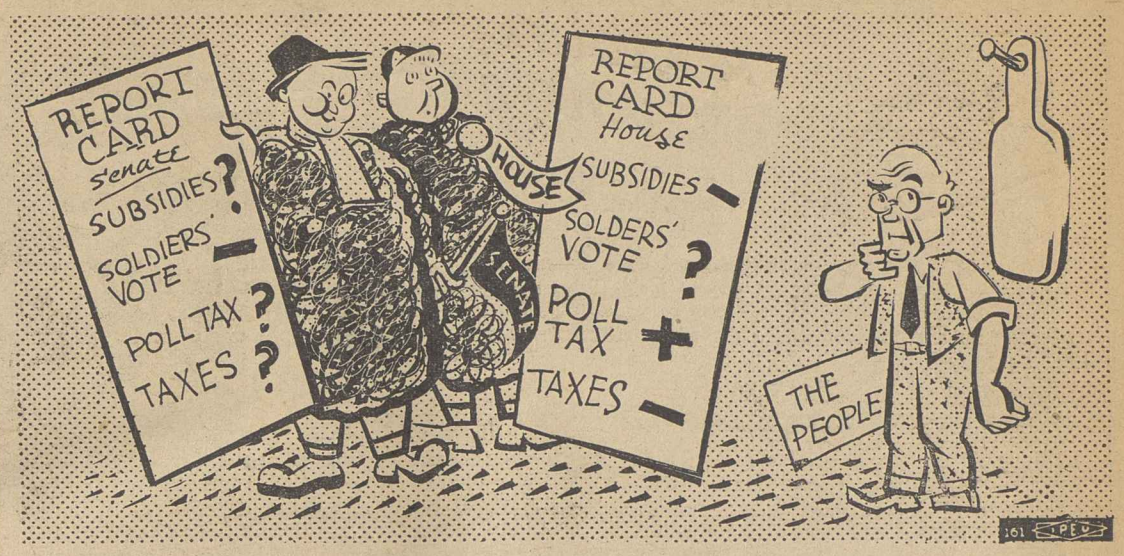
The other threat is a filibuster, which can be stopped by a Senate vote for cloture. Cloture simply means a motion to end debate, and it requires a two-thirds majority.

ACTION: Tell your Senators that you want action on polltax repeal; that you want the bill (HR 7) brought up without delay or change on the Senate floor, and again that no compromises are acceptable.

What Can Be Done

The current recess is a short one, and all labor and all progressives will have to work fast to take advantage of it. The Congressmen will be coming home for the holidays, however, and can be reached.

These are the four most important isues to talk to them about. There are others—see above—that should be discussed with your Representatives and your Senators.



Some Other Issues That Are Hot

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—While you're talking with your Congressman during the recess on the four main issues—soldiers' vote, subsidies, taxes and polltax repeal—don't forget a word or two on some of the other things that Congress has done since last Labor Day or has failed to do.

For example, tell your Senators that you want some action on the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Social Security bill. This measure, which increases scope and size of benefits, has been buried in committee since it was introduced months ago. Demand as a very minimum that hearings start.

Then there's the question of appropriations to keep vital war agencies of the U. S. government running. Only last week the Senate, following earlier House action, voted to slash needed funds for such agencies as Public Health, for war housing, child care, welfare work, etc.

At the same time, the House and Senate did another of their famous "compromises" on the Farm Security Administration, cutting its funds for aid to farmers in war food production far below the danger line.

And, just to rub it in, apparently, they voted to build $9,000,000 worth of useless airports that the Army doesn't want. A generation ago, the pork barrel experts used to specialize in un-wanted bridges and impossble harbors. Today, in the avation age, it's airports.

As a matter of fact, it's not too early to begin talking to the Congressmen about appropriations for all the war agencies, which will be coming up in the spring. Last year, remember, Congress slashed such outfits as OPA, OWI, FSA and others equally important, to the bone. OPA, for example, was left almost without any means of enforcing price control, by cutting funds for inspectors. OWI, which has the job of telling the people about the people's war, was crippled.

The defeatists and the anti-labor gang don't just rest with cutting needed funds. Remember what they did to the Natl. Labor Relations Board in 1942, when they fastened the Frey amendment to the appropriation, thereby licensing company unions.

It's not too early to begin building up the pressure for repeal of this infamous clause that actually puts a premium on back-door collusive contracts between anti-union employers and their stooge "unions."

Smear Committees

Parallel with this type of sabotage, there's the special investigating committee trick that the reactionaries have worked so well with the Smith Committee and the Committee that Gene Cox used to head. The Smith Committee is one of the hardest working monkey-wrench outfits in Congress, and has been working steadily against rent and price control, against the Fair Employment Practices Committee, the War Labor Board and others.

Tell your Congressmen you're fed up with this species of sabotage, and that he must vote against any more such special committees aimed at smearing and obstructing war work, and specifically against funds for Smith, Dies et al.

While you're talking, don't forget to mention some of the delayed action threats still hanging in the wings of Congress such as the Austin-Wadsworth forced labor bill, the Hobbs bill to outlaw union practices, the other Hobbs bill (HR 3690) to legalize the third degree, etc.

And ask your Congressman what became of the two bills (HR 3238 and HJ Res. 49) to bar anti-Semetic, anti-Negro and other race hate propaganda from the mails. At last report, they're still bottled up in the House Post Office Committee.

Take a blackboard and a pointer and show them to your Congressman and your Senators during this recess. Be polite but quite firm. If your man's record is good, praise him. If it's bad, persuade him to change it. If it's indifferent, prod him into action.

Time Out!

Senators who opposed the soldiers' vote bill left the capital this week for a holiday recess. Their constituents can be counted on to provide at least one feature of a genuine, old-fashioned Christmas—the jangling of bells (door and telephone.)

* * *

HE SAID A MOUTHFUL: Rep. Eberharter (D., Pa.), speaking in Congress on the soldiers' vote: "All of us know that the Rankin bill (leaving the whole thing up to the states) will not give the right to vote to our soldiers and sailors. The Rankin bill is not even a worthy gesture and will deceive nobody—least of all the boys and girls in the service when election time comes."

* * *

The recent endorsement of Governor Dewey by ex-candidate Alf Landon is hardly likely to excite the entire nation. Alf, it is remembered, is the fellow who carried Maine and Vermont.

* * *

THE WEEK'S BALONEY: "There is too much talk of maldistribution. We have maldistribution due to the lack of productivity and to the failure of the underprivileged worker to produce enough to give him a fair share of the things he wants." Chairman Frederick Crawford, of the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers, speaking at the Bond Club in New York City.

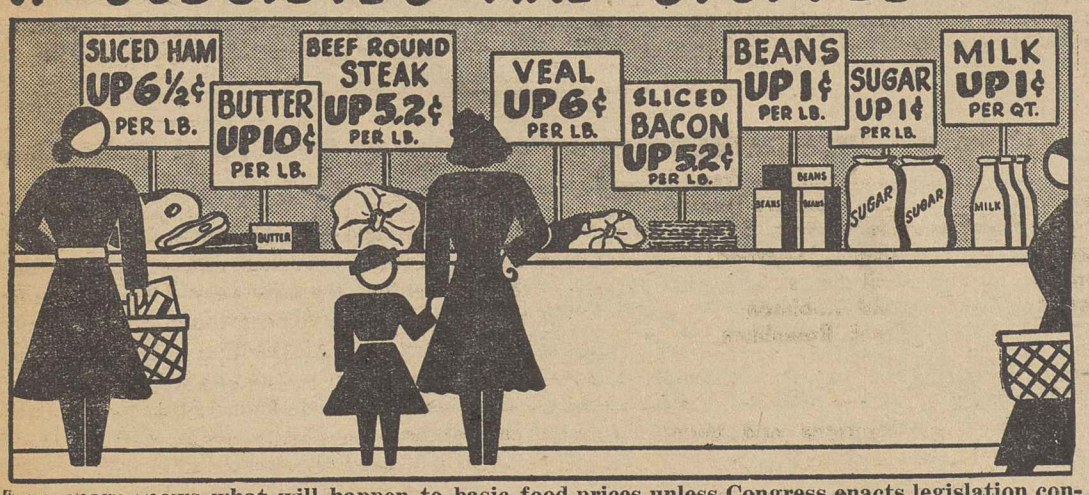
NAM CONVENTION GEM: "The best friend business men have today is Congress."—Pres. H. W. Prentis of the Armstrong Cork Co.

IF SUBSIDIES ARE STOPPED—



This chart shows what will happen to basic food prices unless Congress enacts legislation continuing subsidies. Labor and other consumer groups are behind the Administration's subsidy program. Reactionary congressional bloc and big food interests are opposed. Get busy and write or wire your congressman to keep prices down.

Keep Your Eye On Congress

The Congressional recess—from Dec. 22 to Jan. 10—gives us a chance to work on the Congressmen and Senators on the home grounds.

This week—even though it's the Christmas season—look up your Congressman's home address, call on him, invite him down to the union hall, have him meet the union workers, the women's auxiliaries, the political action groups in your community.

Pound away on four main issues: 1) the soldiers' vote, which must be guaranteed by a Federal system of voting, with no compromise based on so-called states' rights; 2) subsidies for more food at lower prices, in HR 3477, the CCC bill; 3) repeal of the polltax, in HR 7 now before the Senate, and 4) a decent tax bill to end the national scandal of the present grab on the part of the rich and the big corporations.

Here's a reminder again on where these bills stand, plus a couple of other items you should be watching:

BILL	WHAT IT DOES	WHERE IT IS	ACTION
Soldiers' vote. (HR 3895)	Gives vote to service men and women under Federal supervision; guarantees votes will be counted. Replica of Green-Lucas bill defeated in Senate.	In House Committee on Election of President, V.-P., & Reps., which also has Chm. Worley's (D., Tex.) "compromise" which allows states to refuse to count soldiers' votes.	Insist on work and vote by your Representatives for HR 3895, put in by Rep. Scanlon (D., Pa.) and opposition to any compromise.
Food subsidies. (HR 3477)	Aids food production at lower prices by helping farmers meet higher costs.	Still in Senate Banking and Finance, with delay on showdown until after recess.	Keep after your two Senators for subsidies, against "compromises" that would forbid rollback, new subsidies.
Taxes	Your new taxes, plus what you pay now. Sales tax drive cooking again.	Still in Senate, waiting for vote.	Tell your two Senators for the Nth time that you want a real win-the-war tax plan based on ability to pay, no sales tax.
Discharge Petition 16.	Would bring Smith-Connally Act repeal bill (HR 3055) on House floor.	A Discharge Petition, which shortcuts Rules Committee, needs 218 signatures before it is effective.	Tell your Representative to sign, urge his colleagues to sign also.
Oil price hike (HR 2887)	Orders OPA to jack fuel oil prices up 80c a barrel, which means at least 1c a gallon to you. An opening wedge to weaken OPA some more.	In Senate Banking and Finance Committee, Robt. F. Wagner (D., N. Y.), chmn.	Tell your two Senators to kill.

Unity Needed to Aid Working Women

By ELEANOR FOWLER
Secretary-Treasurer, CIO Women's Auxiliaries

Here's a suggestion for a New Year's Resolution for all the government agencies concerned in recruiting women for war jobs that they pool their energies and resources and begin a national campaign to help solve the problems confronting women workers.

Last Sunday's paper says that a new drive to recruit two million women for war jobs is under way. It's less than three months since the last one. Obviously, the campaign so far has not been a success.

The government agencies concerned seem to analyze the failure as a lack of patriotism on the part of women workers. They are busy thinking up new and more appealing slogans.

If that is all they do, we predict that the new drive will fail, too. Our American women want to work to help win the war. They know that the only way to safeguard their way of life, their families, their children's future is to lick Hitlerism.

The reason they don't respond to their country's call for women workers, or don't stay long on the job if they do respond, is that they don't get the help they need to do the double job at home and on the production line.

TURNOVER COST HIGH

Mrs. Rataj, a committee woman in one of the Ford plants in Detroit, testified at the recent Senate hearing on juvenile delinquency. The plant where she works employs thousands of women and most of them leave after 2 or 3 months. She figures it costs about $300 to train each of those women, and it takes about six weeks. In the course of the year, it costs well over a million dollars more than it should in that one plant to train new workers. Since Ford has a cost plus contract, every cent of that is government money.

Think what that million dollars could do spent on providing adequate child care facilities, recreation programs for young people, government restaurants where meals were served at cost, etc.

And at the same time production in that plant would leap ahead, because the constant turnover now is holding up production.

That's just one plant, but it's fairly typical. Patriotic slogans aren't going to change conditions there. If you're worried about your children; if there's no food left when you go to shop; if you can't find a laundry, you just can't be a steady worker. And if nothing is done to help you solve any of these problems, you'll end up by quitting after a certain number of months.

The third annual conference of our CIO auxiliaries outlined a practical program for solution of the problems of women workers. We have sent that program to the government agencies concerned. We hope that they will use it as the basis of the national campaign which is so urgently needed if women are to respond to the government's call.

Form Group to Fight Anti-Semitism; CIO Leaders Aid Drive

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—"Dedicated to the proposition that anti-Semitism in any of its forms is fascism," an organization named the "National Committee to Combat Anti-Semitism," sponsored by several hundred prominent leaders in various fields of American life, is being formed on a nation-wide basis, according to Leonard E. Golditch, acting secretary of the organization.

Among the prominent initial sponsors are included:

Presidents Philip Murray of CIO, R. J. Thomas of UAW, Albert J. Fitzgerald of UE, S. H. Dalrymple, United Rubber Workers, and Morris Muster, United Furniture Workers, and Clinton S. Golden, assistant to the president, United Steelworkers.

Bishop G. Ashton Oldham, president, American Council World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Church; Van Wyck Brooks; James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany; Raymond Massey; Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president, Boston University; Pierre van Passen; Carl Van Doren; Mrs. Stephen S. Wise; Serge Koussevitzky; Mrs. Thomas N. Hepburn, and Louis Adamic.

The immediate purpose of the committee, according to Golditch, is to effect the introduction and help in the passage of national legislation outlawing anti-Semitism.

It is expected that the committee will work in legislative and educational fields in an effort to expose anti-Semitism, and according to the committee's statement, "make every American realize that anti-Semitism is the problem of every American, a threat to his life and liberty, and treason to the United States."

Rallies Poles In Support Of War

New York, Dec. 24—Polish-American leaders of unions, of the church and of education are uniting to rally their fellow citizens around the United Nations and the leadership of Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

This move was seen in a call to a January 16 conference in Cleveland sent out by Leo Krzycki, vice-president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and a leader of the American Slav Congress.

It was also evident in a Polish-Soviet rally in this city, at which Krzycki, Father Stanislaw Orlemanski, Prof. Oscar Lange, Senator James M. Tunnell and others were featured speakers.

In calling the January 16 conference, Kryzcki stressed the fact that more than 800,000 Polish-Americans are members of organized labor, and that their interests naturally lie with United Nations unity and with unity behind Pres. Roosevelt.

"Upon Polish-American labor falls the responsibility of exposing pro-fascists, anti-United Nations and anti-Roosevelt forces which aim to undermine American foreign policy, including the American-Anglo-Soviet coalition, within Polish communities. It is also our task to give support to those forces of the Polish nation that are fighting nazis, and for a free, democratic Poland."

Speaking at the New York meeting last week, Krzycki called for an end to talk that the Soviet Union was the enemy of an independent Poland, and that the "Russification of Europe was planned indirectly in Moscow."

Urging unity of all Polish-American labor forces together with American labor in the tasks of the 1944 election, Krzycki's conference call stressed the need for making labor's program "the common property of all Americans of Polish descent."

Los Angeles CIO Tells Labor's Story over Radio

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24—Behind the sound-proof windows on the top floor of the CIO Building here, Albee Slade, editor and commentator of labor's newspaper of the air, "Our Daily Bread," tells the people of Southern California every evening, Monday through Friday, at 7:15, about the activities and campaigns of the CIO.

The radio studio in the CIO Building is believed to be the first of its kind in America. Never before has organized labor had its own broadcasting studio in its own building with a nightly program.

Hollywood writers and playwrights, and talent drawn from the ranks of labor itself—workers from aircraft, shipyard, steel mills, oil refineries, longshoremen, welders—all get a chance to tell the public the true story of their activities in support of the war effort.

CIO unionists often drop in to watch the broadcasting. The telephone in Slade's office rings constantly with news of last minute victories, projects and campaigns of CIO unions in the area. Thursday evening, is called "Political Action" night. A Consumer Column of the Air is also broadcast on this night.

On Wednesdays, the UAW takes over, with aircraft workers from Long Beach and Santa Monica telling their plans and problems.

OPA Ruling Real Christmas Present

By SUNNY PRESSMAN
Staff Writer, CIO Women's Auxiliary

You can't take anything for granted these days. I bet you thought that just because an OPA ruling says that if any merchant charges more than ceiling prices, you could take him to court, and if you proved your case you could collect from him $50 or three times the price of the article, whichever is greater.

Well, the OPA thought so, too. But it took a lawsuit that went clear up to the United States Court of Appeals to make that ruling stick.

Miss Josephine McCorry of Washington, D. C., filed a suit in the Municipal Court against the American Stores, Inc., for charging 14 cents for a can of soup that had a ceiling price of 10 cents. She proved her case and expected to collect $50 in damages, but instead the court returned a judgment of $5 and costs.

The OPA attorneys took the case to the Municipal Court of Appeals. They proved their case in this court, too, but it didn't help. The Court of Appeals upheld the judgment of the first court.

A little shaken by now, but determined to get to the bottom of this, the OPA attorneys went to the United States Court of Appeals. And, in no uncertain terms, the higher court found that the OPA ruling meant just what it said. $50 in damages, or three times the amount of the overcharge, whichever is greater, must be paid by any merchant charging more than the ceiling prices. Miss McCorry won her case and the $50.

Consumers take heart! Here is the best Christmas present yet—the assurance that price ceilings will be strictly enforced. To the OPA attorneys, our thanks and best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a successful New Year.

The OPA legal department scored again in ruling illegal all tie-in sales. That means any offer of merchandise that has to be bought with something else. In some stores you can't buy combs separately, but you can pay a little more and buy a comb with a bow on it. Or if you want a pair of garters, you have to buy a wallet with a key ring to go with it.

OPA has ruled that these combination sales are all right only if you can also get the articles separately. So here's something else to watch for. You can report such sales to the price panel of your local ration board. They'll investigate and put a stop to them.

Back FEPC Order

New York, Dec. 24—Support of the Fair Employment Practices Committee's ruling directed against the Jim Crow practices of 16 southern railroads was pledged this week by the New York CIO Council, representing more than 500,000 members, in telegrams to President Roosevelt and Malcolm Ross, chairman of the FEPC.

Condemning the railroads' defiance of the FEPC ruling ordering them to cease discriminatory employment practices toward Negroes, the CIO urged President Roosevelt to compel the railroads to obey the committee's ruling.

Organizing

By ALLAN S. HAYWOOD

CIO Vice-President and Director of Organization

In behalf of the staff of the Organization Dept. here in Washington, and myself, I wish to extend to all our regional, sub-regional directors, field representatives and staff, officers of International unions and membership, the compliments of the season. May Christmas be a happy and cheerful one.

The year 1943 has been an eventful one and has seen our Nation and the United Nations go from the defensive to the offensive in this great struggle for liberty. It has seen our movement grow in numerical strength and prestige which will serve as an inspiration for all of us to go out and do even greater things in the year to come—1944!

Touring U. S. War Workers Home, 4 Britishers Here To Inspect Factories

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—Four American union war workers were welcomed back home after a six weeks' tour of Great Britain and four British union war workers were welcomed to the United States by Mayor LaGuardia this week.

The British workers, traveling like their American brothers under the auspices of their government, are likewise to go on an inspection tour of industry and to report back home what they see.

The American workers concluded their tour enthusiastic over present and prospective future cooperation of American labor with workers of the rest of the United Nations.

The Americans are Joseph Smith, United Auto Workers member; Hugh T. Mahoney, United Steelworkers, and Otto Butler and Stanley Ceizyk of the AFL.

The British are John H. Jones, a Manchester steelworker and a member of the Manchester Labor Ministry Tribunal and of the executive council of the Iron & Steel Trades Confederation; James H. Ward, aircraft technician and secretary of a local of the Amalgamated Engineering Union; John G. Clark, transport supervisor from Billingham and secretary of a union of unskilled workers, and Patrick Carey, metal worker and shop steward in the London Handley Page Aircraft Co.

The four American workers brought back with them a message from Lt. Gen. Jacob Devers, commander-in-chief of U. S. forces in Great Britain, who said:

"The equipment you are sending us is outstanding, but we need more and more of it—a terrific amount more."

In an interview with Allied Labor News before leaving London, Ceizyk said: "After talking with the men who are doing the flying and fighting, we have come to the same conclusion they have: that the Nazis and Japanese are anything but vanquished foes."

Appearing on a British "Information Please" program organized by the National Council of Labor and Fabian International Bureau, Ceizyk drew loud applause when he referred to the "great and growing unity between rank-and-filers in the AFL and CIO."

In reply to a question regarding the attitude of the AFL executive council toward the Soviet trade unions, Ceizyk stated: "I am deeply impressed with the viewpoint of British workers toward the Russian labor movement. The United States must cooperate with Russia in the post-war world. I hope that the AFL will be present at the world labor conference next June alongside the CIO, and that this will result in more recognition of the Russian labor movement in the United States."

The success of the U. S. delegation's tour has been widely acknowledged. "This exchange of workers between America and Britain has offered us for the first time an opportunity to understand our respective union organizations," William Elger, secretary of the Scottish Trades Union Congress, said in proposing a toast to the delegates at a dinner given by the STUC.

"We hope from this understanding there will come a united effort to secure a prominent place in the post-war world for all the world's working people."

Stone Workers Win 2 Elections

Barre, Vt., Dec. 24—Workers of the Campbell Limestone Co.'s plants at Gaffney and Liberty, S. C., voted for the CIO United Stone & Allied Products Workers in recent Labor Board elections. The vote was 47 to 4 at Gaffney and 46 to 13 at Liberty, union headquarters here announced.

A new contract between the Borden Brick & Tile Co., Durham, N. C., and the union's Branch 59, giving pay increases of from two to five cents an hour plus an hourly five-cent bonus, was also announced.

The union stated that the War Labor Board has approved a joint application made by labor and management for a six cents an hour pay increase retroactive to April 1 to some 60 employes of the Baker Wood Preserving Co., Marion, Ohio.

Inside Japan

War Plan Changed By Fear of Strikes

By ISRAEL EPSTEIN

(Fourth in a series of exclusive Allied Labor News articles, based on information from Japanese war prisoners, formerly workers in Japan's industries. Next week: Strikes since Pearl Harbor show we have potential allies in Japan.)

CHUNGKING, Dec. 24 (ALN)—The Kobe strike of April, 1941, did not end Japanese labor action before Pearl Harbor. In August another large scale strike broke out at Nagoya, involving among other factories the Mitsubishi aircraft plant in that city—the plant that produces the famous Zero.

The Nagoya strike involved more than 20,000 workers. As at Kobe, sabotage was a prominent characteristic. The striking workers took airplane parts out of the plant buildings, broke them and threw them into ditches. The strike was settled by partial concessions to the workers, but after they came back to the factories, very extensive arrests took place.

Ordnance Plants Strike

In September, 1941, the workers of the War Ministry Ordnance plants at Kokura also came out. This strike, a partial one, was confined to the section of the works manufacturing barrels for artillery —3,000 out of 60,000 men in the entire plant. At Kokura the work was exceptionally heavy and the 16-hour day literally crippled hundreds. The plnat hospital was full of men who had broken down on the job. The workers' demands were for shorter hours and improvement of conditions and the movement ended in a favorable compromise.

The War Ministry itself recognized that the degree of exploitation was so high that it impeded instead of speeded up production. There may also have been a desire on the part of the militarists to show that they, unlike the private capitalists, were willing to listen to legitimate complaints—and highly skilled labor in a key sector of war industries had to be dealt with gently. In any case, the Kokura strike stands alone among the strikes of 1941 in that there were no arrests and no reprisals after the settlement.

More than 20,000 workers participated in the last big strike of 1941, which took place in October at Tsurumi, a town between Tokyo and Yokohama in which most of the heavy industry of the Tokyo district is centered. A special characteristic of this strike was a united front and joint action between workers and salaried employes. There is not much known of this strike, except that repression was severe and, as at Kobe, many participants were transported for work on overseas fortifications.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE

The special historical significance of the 1941 strikes is that they came at a time when Hitler's invasion of the Soviet Union made it necessary for the Japanese warlords to decide, and decide quickly, whether they would come to the aid of their Nazi allies by attacking Siberia or advance their own ambitions in some other way. The final decision as to whether to strike at the USSR or at Britain and America was made some time in the late summer or early fall of the same year, precisely when the labor unrest in Japan was at its highest.

It is the opinion of such prominent anti-fascist Japanese as Waturu Kaji that the strikes of 1941 led many of Japan's leaders to believe that an attack on the USSR—involving an all-out continental war close to home, large scale bombing of Japan and Soviet political warfare amid unsettled internal conditions — could not be contemplated until order within the country was complete and secure.

The reports of Japanese diplomats and army officers in both Germany and Russia made it plain that Hitler was by no means as near victory as the first month of the war might have indicated.

A meeting of Japanese military attaches in Europe was called, significantly, not in Berlin but in Rome, where both German pressure and German espionage were weaker. The recommendations of this meeting are said to have made it plain to Tokyo that whatever opportunity might have appeared to exist for a successful joint Axis campaign against the Soviet Union had already passed.

TURNED SOUTHWARD

The Japanese militarists therefore turned their faces resolutely toward southeast Asia and the Pacific islands, where they faced a foe who was initially weaker and could begin the war on fronts far from home. Striking in this direction they did not need to deploy great mass armies but only a largely professional fleet, carrying highly trained invasion forces of picked regulars.

On the home front, the southward advance gave them political advantages, because they could pretend that "Japan was fighting for her life against economic strangulation" and for the "liberation of the subject peoples of Asia." These slogans undoubtedly have some influence among ordinary Japanese who have no unbiased sources of news.

The record of the facts and the expressed opinion of responsible analysts make it clear that the strikes of 1941 had a great deal to do with determining the course of the global war. It was not only because of their extent but also, and mainly, because of the background against which they occurred.

Tells of Eleven Months In Japanese Prison Camp

New York, Des. 24— Christmas had a double meaning this week to a CIO seaman just returned from 11 months in a Japanese concentration camp. Two years ago to a day he was in Manila when Japanese bombers roared over the city, killing more than 1,500 people.

This week, the seaman—29-year-old John Dushek, a charter member of the Natl. Maritime Union—told how he had been waiting in Manila in 1941 for an injured leg to heal so that he could ship out again.

He was lucky enough to survive weeks of Japanese bombings to welcome the declaration on Christmas Eve, 1941, that Manila henceforth would be "an open city," not subject to attack.

On Christmas Day the Japanese broke their word and bombed the city without mercy.

When the city fell, Dushek was interned with other Americans in the Japanese concentration camp at Santa Thomas, the Spanish pro-Franco Falangist university. Prisoners had to bring their own food. For almost three months the Japanese provided nothing to eat, no beds, no mosquito nets. The Philippine Red Cross finally provided meals.

"The Japs," Dushek said, "didn't abuse us at all—except when we broke the rules. There were a lot of rules, and it was awful easy to break them. One night three Australians tried to escape. They were caught, given a severe beating, tried, sentenced to death and shot the next day."

Dushek, who lost 35 pounds from Japanese treatment, got back early this month on the S. S. Gripsholm. He's shipping out again shortly.

UAW Men Commissioned

Camp Lee, Va., Dec. 24—Four members of the United Auto Workers Union won commissions in the Quartermaster Corps here this week. They were: Lt. Charles W. Fratcher, Lansing, Mich.; Lt. John H. Dodge, South Bend, Ind.; and Lt. Edwin W. Ciolek, Michigan City, Ind., all of Local 652, and Lt. Jerome T. Deren, Manistee, Mich., of Local 650.

2 More Smashing Victories Chalked Up by CIO Unions

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Dec. 24—Climaxing a two-year organizing campaign, CIO won bargaining rights by a vote of more than two to one in a final election covering the 12,000 workers at the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. here. The Tobacco Workers Organizing Committee of UCAPAWA-CIO polled 6,822 votes to 3,175 for the R. J. Reynolds Employes Assn. (company union), and 301 for no union.

The election followed a series of court actions by the company union, which succeeded in getting two injunctions restraining the National Labor Relations Board from holding the election on two previous occasions.

In addition to Camel cigarettes, the Reynolds Co. makes Prince Albert smoking tobacco and the following brands: George Washington, Stud and Advertising smoking tobaccos, Apple Sun-Cured, Days'-Work, Big Apple, Brown Mule, Mickey Twist, Honey-Cutt, Black Horse, Sweep Stake and Figs Chewing Tobacco.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 25—The CIO Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Union this week by a vote of 6913 to 1187 defeated a company union in an election at the Intl. Nickel Co's. Sudbury plant.

The victory, which made MM&SW Local 598 the largest in the union, was the culmination of a long campaign of anti-union discrimination featured by wrecking of union halls and assaults on union officers by goon squads.

Cost of Living Index Fails to Note Cuts In Quality—CIO

Washington, Dec. 24—The decline in the quality of goods that people buy—particularly clothing—is a point that the U. S. Dept. of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics does not measure in computing the advance in the cost of living, it was pointed out this week by the December issue of CIO's Economic Outlook. This fact should be taken into account when considering wage demands, the Outlook stated.

The Outlook noted that a decline in quality in a garment is equivalent to a rise in price, but "is a hidden rise and consequently escapes the attention of field examiners and statisticians."

Discussing the chart above, the Outlook stated:

"The shoes pictured sell in 1943 for the same price they commanded in 1941. However, the materials out of which they have been constructed have changed as indicated, resulting in a 30 per cent decline in the serviceability of the shoes.

"This cut in quality is equivalent to a 43 per cent increase in price. But the dollar price actually is reported unchanged."

Pointing out that the decline in the quality of women's suits and coats is as much as 30 per cent, the Outlook said that "this development in clothes could be found duplicated in some forms of food, particularly meat."

The Outlook added that it is necessary to take into account such reductions in quality in correcting the BLS cost of living index before applying it to wage cases before the War Labor Board.

CIO Blasts Phoney Race Issue Strike in Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Dec. 24—Maryland's first strike under the Smith-Connally anti-labor law was sharply condemned by the CIO Maryland & District of Columbia Industrial Union Council this week, with the council supporting government seizure of the plant under orders from President Roosevelt.

The stoppage occurred at the Point Breeze plant of the Western Electric Co., and was instigated by a company union which played on race prejudice to win favor for the strike.

The action was voted at a company union "membership meeting" of only 350 of the plant's 7,000 employes, the council charged. The chief issue raised was a demand for separate toilet facilities for white and Negro workers.

Both the CIO United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers and the AFL Intl. Assn. of Machinists have been conducting organizing drives at the plant, with the company union using the race issue to try to divert the minds of the workers from sound union action that would win them better conditions.

The council pointed out that the situation is a prime example of the disruptive effect of the Smith-Connally law, which was supposed to prevent strikes.

CO. UNION OUTLAWED

Under the law, the company union—previously outlawed for bargaining purposes by the Natl. Labor Relations Board—was allowed to petition for a strike vote despite the fact that it represents only a minority of the employes.

The council called for an FBI investigation of the company union and its officers and added: "The question of segregated plant facilities is a false issue behind which a clearly established company-dominated union is trying to promote race issues, defeat bona-fide labor unions, and most important, disrupt the war effort in Baltimore and discredit our great President Roosevelt."

Md.-D. C. CIO Backs 4th Term

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 24—President Roosevelt was unanimously endorsed this week for a fourth term by the Executive Board of the Maryland & District of Columbia Industrial Union Council.

In a resolution directed to FDR, the board urged him "to respond as you have always responded to the needs of the people by accepting candidacy for President of the United States in 1944, for which we pledge you our support."

NMU Sues Chicago 'Trib'

Chicago, Dec. 24—Col. Robert R. McCormick's Guadalcanal lie about the Natl. Maritime Union (CIO) came sailing home this week with a $200,000 slander suit in tow.

The union is suing McCormick and his isolationist mouthpiece, The Chicago Tribune, for publishing a repeatedly denied story saying that sick and wounded Marines had to unload cargo ships at Guadalcanal because NMU members refused to work on Sunday.

The suit followed similar actions brought against The Akron (O.) Beacon-Journal and other papers. The Akron paper originated the yarn, which has been officially refuted by high Navy and Army authorities.

Mrs. FDR Urges Use Of Subsidies

San Francisco, Dec. 24—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was projected into the subsidy question yesterday as a result of a letter to UOPWA Local 34, made public in connection with the establishment of the union's subsidy booth on Market Street in San Francisco.

The Local released a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt which said, in part:

"If a farm subsidy is finally ruled out, the public as a whole, all over the country, would pay increased prices, not just for farm products, but for all the products in which farm products are used. For instance, the price of meat would go up because the price of feed went up.

"If food prices go up, it would be natural for people who work for wages to ask for higher wages because their money would not buy as much. If wages go up, all manufactured articles would go up, and the farmer, as well as everybody else, would be paying higher prices for the things he bought.

"The people who would suffer most, however, would be the people who are not covered by any organization which could negotiate an increase in wages. This group includes white collar workers, government employes, municipal, state and federal, and people living on small fixed incomes derived from annuities or insurance policies, pensions, etc."

Red Cross Goal $200 Million

Washington, Dec. 24—A War Fund of $200,000,000 will be asked of the American public next March to finance wartime operations of the American Red Cross, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced this week.

Thomas Urges U.S. Keep Government Plants After War

DETROIT, Dec. 24—Pres. R. J. Thomas of the United Auto Workers Union this week urged that the Federal Government retain title in the post-war period to all plants and equipment now owned by the government. He estimated that this property has cost the government some 20 billion dollars, or more than one-fifth of the nation's capital investment.

Thomas, in a statement to the House committee on public buildings and grounds, proposed that control of the government's industrial property should be lodged in the hands of a joint commission representing government, labor and industry, which would have the authority to lease the property to private manufacturers who meet certain qualifications with regard to fees to the government, maintenance of employment, and fair labor policies.

The prices of goods produced in such properties leased by the government, Thomas urged, should be "directly related to production costs and shall be closely guarded against all forms of monopoly control."

The UAW-CIO president urged also that "under the guidance of government there shall be a full pooling of technical and scientific resources for the development of new products and methods to provide at lower prices fuller supplies of essential or desirable goods or services for the people."

"The tools and machinery and the manpower which have made the country a giant force in war cannot be allowed to rust and decay in peace," Thomas said. "They must be used and used as the powerful instruments which they are for the elimination of poverty, insecurity, and misery among the people of America and the world.

"To allow this priceless equipment to be scrapped or to become a pawn in the sterile game of the monopolists would be a national and a world disaster of unparalleled proportions.

"Within the framework of the world victory of democracy which the fighting armies of the United Nations are now forging out for us, this plant and equipment can become the instrumentality for the widest and fullest fructification of American aspiration toward opportunity and progress for all."

THEY TELL 'EM: To speed support for the subsidy program, members of Local 34, United Office & Professional Workers (CIO), take letters from all comers at this booth in the main business section of San Francisco.
